L 912

0000

REEL L 911

INDIANA STATE LIBRARY

PHOTOGRAPHIC LABORATORY

APRIL 1975

ST. JOE NEWS

1922 TO 1923

C. CROSS 16 X

L 912

0001

INDIANA NEWSPAPER MICROFILMING PROJECT
INVENTORY FORM

COMMUNITY: St. Joe COUNTY: DeKalb INVENTORY-TAKER: Cross
TITLE: St. Joe News DAY PUBLISHED Thursday
EDITOR: PUBLISHER:
COLUMNS: 6 REMARKS: No editor or publisher is listed until 2/16/1922

Vol.	#	Date	pgs.	Comments
36	1	Jan. 5, 1922	8	pp. 1-4 mutilated
	2	12	9	p.1 soiled;p.3 c.1 hole;supple.;p.5 c.1 ragged edge;prt. miss.
	3	19	8	p.4 c.5-6 St. Joe News 35th Anniversary
	4	26	8	p. 4 col. 6 light print
	5	Feb. 2, 1922	8
	6	9	9	supplement
	7	16	10	supplement; William B. Quance listed as ed. and pub.
	8	23	8
	9	March 2, 1922	8
	10	9	8
	11	16	8
	12	23	8
	13	30	8
	14	April 6, 1922	9	supplement
	15	13	9	supplement
	16	20	9	supplement
	17	27	10	supplement
	18	May 4, 1922	8
	19	11	8
	20	18	8
	21	25	8	pp. 1,4,5,8 pencil marks
	22	June 1, 1922	8
	23	8	8
	24	15	8
	25	22	8
	26	29	8
	27	July 6, 1922	8
	28	13	8
	29	20	8
	30	27	8
	31	Aug. 3, 1922	8
	32	10	9	supplement
	33	17	8
	34	24	8
	35	31	8
	36	Sept. 7, 1922	8
	37	14	8
	38	21	8
	39	28	8
	40	Oct. 5, 1922	8
	41	12	8
	42	19	8	pp. 1,4,5,8 pencil marks
	43	26	9	supplement has columns 6 cut off
	44	Nov. 2, 1922	9	supplement
	45	9	8	pp. 1,4,5,8 pencil marks
	46	16	8
	47	23	8
	48	30	8
	49	Dec. 7, 1922	9	supplement
	50	14	9	supplement
	51	21	8
	52	28	--	missing

INDIANA NEWSPAPER MICROFILMING PROJECT
INVENTORY FORM

COMMUNITY: St. Joe COUNTY: DeKalb INVENTORY-TAKER: [illegible]
TITLE: St. Joe News DAY PUBLISHED [illegible]
EDITOR: William B. Quance PUBLISHER: William B. Quance COLUMNS: 6 REMARKS:

Vol.	#	Date	pgs.	Comments
37	1	Jan. 4, 1923	8	p.1 soiled;pp.[illegible] prt. miss.;[illegible]
	2	11	8
	3	18	8
	4	25	8	p. 1 light print
	5	Feb. 1, 1923	8	pp. 1,4,5,8 pencil marks
	6	8	8
	7	15	8
	8	22	8
	9	March 1, 1923	8	pp. 1-8 bleed through; pp. 1,4,5,8 pencil marks
	10	8	8
	11	15	8
	12	22	8
	13	29	8	p. 1 black ink stains
	14	April 5, 1923	8
	15	12	8
	16	19	8
	17	26	8
	18	May 3, 1923	8
	19	10	9	supplement
	20	17	8
	21	24	8
	22	31	8
	23	June 7, 1923	8
	24	14	8
	25	21	8
	26	28	8
	27	July 5, 1923	8
	28	12	8
	29	19	8
	30	26	8
	31	Aug. 2, 1923	8
	32	9	8
	33	16	8
	34	23	8
	35	30	8
	36	Sept. 6, 1923	8
	37	13	8
	38	20	8
	39	27	8
	40	Oct. 4, 1923	8
	41	11	8
	42	18	8
	43	25	8
	44	Nov. 1, 1923	8	p. 3 col. 6 edge torn; print missing
	45	8	8
	46	15	8
	47	22	8
	48	29	8
	49	Dec. 6, 1923	8	p. 1 col. 4 F. B. Leighty becomes pub. and ed.
	50	13	8
	51	20	9	supplement;p.2 c.1;p.3 c.6 edge ragged; prt. miss.
	52	27	8	p. 2,4 col. 1 edge ragged; print missing

L 912

JANUARY

JANUARY

L 912

0003

MUTILATED

ISSUE

JANUARY

L 912

0004

ST. J

VOL. XXXV1 ST. JOE DeKALB

OPPORTUNITY TO SAVE

-The- 1/4 ..OFF..
Great SALE

is still on and you can get
Men's and Boys Suits, Overcoats
Woolen Underwear, Bath Robes,
Night Shirts, Pajamas, Wool Shirts, Rain Coats, and Mackinaws, at
1-4 Off of the Regular Prices
Shoes, Boots, Hosiery, Work Clothes
that you will need for Winter and Spring wear.

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Committees Meet to Further Plans

On Tuesday night in the schoolroom in the Leighty block the committees for the Farmers' short course met to make some definite arrangement in the preparation for the couase which is to take place in St. Joe on Feb. 21st and 22nd.

Not all of the committee men have yet been appointed but by the next meeting the committee organizations must have been completed, for it will then be high time to know just what to do and go ahead with it.

F. R. Bowman, who was formerly appointed secretary and treasurer, was relieved from the duties of treasurer, and Fred B. Leighty was appointed to fill that capacity; also Mrs. H. O. Waltz was selected to head the Home Economics Committee.

Purdue Short Course, Jan. 9--13.

Next week is the big week at Purdue. Each year the short course for farmers gains in size and popularity. 'Tis time well spent.

Railroad fares have been reduced. First the 10% war tax is off, and secondly, to all persons attending the Farmer's Week program, the fare is reduced to one and one half fare round trip from all points in Indiana on steam roads. Negotiations are now on to make a similar arrangement with the electric roads.

County agent Showalter of Allen Co., has written that a special car will be chartered to start from Ft. Wayne. He has asked that we in DeKalb join them. The regular fare to Lafayette round trip will be only $3.56 from Ft. Wayne, if will leave Monday morning.

50 people go on the one ca

All persons interested in program can secure a full copy activities at the county agent office.

One Secret of Success

Is the ability to know what you want and a sincere desire to get it.

If you want to accumulate wealth and are willing to try and get it, let our bank help you. Open an account this very day.

Do not delay. It pays to be Associated with a sound, reliable
Dependable bank like ours.

If you will do your part, we will agree to do ours. Our interests are mutual. We want to see every one succeed. Start with us, and stay with us.

You will have no cause to regret

St. Joe Valley Bank--S

NEW

As ever old 1921 ca business or ing new pa thirty-fifth with this i.

For th of publicity rounding co
here, for the tomers and original size o inches long.
of enlargeme

H. S. B per for a num
Williams beca.
to Mr. Olds, th
Lloyd Engle, an necessity to the

About 1900,
News and manage been editor and pub leased to the present

It has been prov
essary factor in the w ceeding years, the New success of the vicinity.

Dates Have Been Assigned for St. Joe Short Course

The Purdue Farmers Short Course will be held at St. Joe on February 21 and 22. The program will consist of 14 periods of instruction by means of classes, lectures and demonstrations on various phases of agriculture most vital to DeKalb County citizens. The lines of work to be taken up are live stock, poultry, home economics and corn improvement.

All the teaching work will be in the hands of picked men and women from the Agricultural Extension staff of Purdue University. These people are not coming to St. Joe in the capacity of a teacher because they know everything about the farmers problems, but rather because through training and experience gained in years of study, research and observation they are especially qualified to present their particular line of work. They will bring to our community the result of experimental work done by our own and other State Experiment Stations, and present it in such a way that every one can understand and be benefited by it.

The poultry work will be given by L. L. Jones and will deal with houses and equipment, hatching and rearin chicks, and utility judging. In t live stock work, J. W. Schwab will i struct on hog feeding and selecti hogs for breeding and market. M Florence Boston will have charge of home management work for the wor and wishes to have it clearly stood that there will be a gram for the women men. With this thought would be well for all farm begin planning their work now they will be able to attend ev sion.

Farmers Realize Tw Cents an Ho

Indiana farmers received 2.05 cents an hour for their own labor and 1.02 cents an hour for their horse labor for the time they spent in the cornfield last summer, based on the average price of corn, 26 cents, Nov. 1, according to a statement given out Friday by Director G. I. Christie of the Agricultural Experiment Station at Purdue University, on the cost of production of corn. These figures are in sharp contrast to those involved now in controversy in the packing indus mines and certain g

There
for labor horse labor and relative c is paid at the hour and horse hour, or only hour for both These figu on the avera mer will r determining late the cos farm," said example: th analysis and mu value rate coun.
valu
ly ing

yiel per aver high
the bush corn cent sta
C

the shall necks in a reunion that shall n
end. Funeral services were held day afternoon at the home grandparents, Mr. and M
by Rev. C. O. Jo church offici erside C

JANUARY

L 912

0005

es Go

ur Money
iness

etc. Contributor er of Recognized hods.

thout
a member is share of the e conditions be de-eparate governmental engineering, architec-orks functions, all of a e is no good reason why should not be co-ordi-ment and about 38 of ons done away with:

nt agencies engaged ping; there are 27 agencies engaged in tions; there are 16 build roads; there
raulic construction;
rk on rivers; there
lic land functions;
ical investigation
ork operations;
ering and re-
e been in-

of years, but they personnel in anticifuture. We could r, in my judgment, seless bureaus and
s.
ations are ridicu-instance, the gov-
ect the wild animals
If a brown kadiak one brown and one pens, and one should b he must make his department, but if other, the black cub, another department.
a fox in Alaska your with the Department ile if you trapped the make your settlement nt of Commerce.
issued last year bureaus and depart-
s. The last one that blished by the board tion. This is a board ongress for the purpose crippled soldiers of the vent, as far as possible, erelicts in life. . . . It st to state that while the been issuing 16 cookbooks vast quantities of print and similar useless publi-country town newspapers in the last three months ould not secure print paper. s and a great many others
d the feeling in the coun-congress that the time has put an end to all this sort
He gives reasons for his

the reasons is that the people that their taxation be reduced.
ny years we have been collecting nues of this government through s of indirect taxation. The reve-have been collected through a pro-e tariff and by excise taxation on icating liquors. Indirect taxation of kind prevents the people from realiz-fully just who is paying the expenses the government. There was a time when the expenses of the government amounted to only 12 cents per capita per year. Today the annual per capita expense exceeds $40. This tremendous expense has made it necessary to resort to direct taxation, and the people have suddenly become painfully aware of who pays the expenses of the government.

I am very certain that the elimination of duplications and overlapping in the departments will result in the saving of millions of dollars. There is no reason why it should not be done.

There is every reason, in the presence of the strife and turmoil that prevail in this country and of the unrest occasioned by the high cost of the necessaries of life, that the government should be put upon a sane, efficient and economical basis.

Whoever by public clamor or other means can induce congress and the executive departments to organize the routine business of the national government will have performed a great public service. Note that I say "organize" and not "reorganize," for in no proper sense has the federal business ever been organized.

ANCE TO FIND OUT

is under the facts and gov-
Bureau of nized and irection of are work ssification salaries.

been or-

rt of had
the ca-art
of le e-

everal e overuthority."
tion from the judiciary committee to the house the members were told:

> It is a matter of common knowledge > millions of dollars are wasted by > ment by the almost endless > activities. There has been > ange in the adminis-
> the organization
> Hamilton, and > entirely out > of depart> ng years
> -States > usiness > man

sive taxation, any legislative measure looking to real economy should commend itself to the sympathetic attention of the house, and we feel that the passage of this resolution and the work of the committee which will be done under its authority will result in the saving of millions annually.

It can be predicted with considerable assurance that nothing will come of this proposed voyage of discovery unless we, the shareholders in the enterprise, maintain an active, lively, sustained interest in it. One thing is always true of the house of representatives—it is representative. If we breathe warmly upon it, it glows. If we are indifferent it becomes cold.

This isn't the first time that a plan has been set in motion to find out something about how the government's business is conducted.

The earliest inquiry into the administrative methods of the executive rtments was made by the Cockrell ssion in 1887. Six years later, 893, a joint commission, of which resentative Dockery was chairman, as appointed to examine the status
f the laws organizing the departments. President Roosevelt in 1905 named an interdepartmental committee, of which C. H. Keep, assistant secretary of the treasury, was chairman, to consider department methods. President Taft in turn, in 1910, named a commission on economy and efficiency of which Frederick Cleveland was chairman.

Broadly and generally speaking, nothing came of these enterprises. You and I—commonly and vaguely known as the public—were not interested, and neither was congress. That ended it.

But just now, at this moment, we have the best chance we ever had to find out about our common business and how to improve it and lessen its cost to us. The burden of supporting it is heavier than ever before.

You will perhaps notice all through these articles that the information supplied me about the general facts of government ment and government bus
terms of This

INDIANA BREVITIES

Bicknell.—Mr. and Mrs. Lon Ashley of Oaktown were killed at Sandborn when the closed automobile in which they were riding was struck by an Indianapolis, Cleveland, Chicago & St. Louis railroad train.

Columbus.—"I am satisfied with the verdict," said Ben Brooks, who was found guilty of the murder of A. B. Montgomery and sentenced to death in Bartholomew Circuit court at Columbus, discussing the verdict in the jail. "If they had given me any less I would have been mobbed, and I would rather be electrocuted than lynched," jail attendants quoted him as saying.

Marion.—Resolution demanding a strict enforcement of all laws relating to the curtailment of the use of cigarettes and tobacco, condemning the use of public highways for immoral practices, asking for the removal of all bill boards along the highways bearing cigarette advertisements, and requesting a reduction in the land appraisement of farm lands, were passed at the Grant county farmers' institute.

Franklin.—Probably nowhere in Indiana was there a happier celebration of Christmas than at the Indiana Masonic home in Franklin. Several days before Christmas all members of the home were asked to write a letter to Santa Claus, telling just what they wanted him to bring them. Each member, young and old, wrote a letter. On Christmas morning Santa Claus, with several automobiles loaded with gifts arrived, these having been provided by the Scottish Rite bodies of Indianapolis. The desires of the children covered a wide range of gifts, while the older members of the home asked for wearing apparel, but each got just what was asked for.

Indianapolis.—That real estate in Indiana will be assessed for taxation next year, as a whole, at about the same amount it was assessed for in 1919, the last real estate assessment year, was indicated by the discussions at the annual conference of the state board of tax commissioners and county assessors the past week. While an insistent demand of farmers was voiced by some of the county assessors for radical percentage reductions in the assessment of farm hands next year, it appears that the demands will not be granted. However, in cases where land is assessed for more than its cash value, the assessment is to be lowered, while in cases where the assessment is less than its cash value it is to be increased.

Indianapolis.—Changes in state specifications for concrete and brick roads were approved by the state high-commission. The result of the changes, it was said, will result in higher cost of construction for concrete roads and lower costs for brick roads. The new specifications will call for a thicker concrete road. Officials of the commission said that under the old specifications the concrete roads were a straight seven-inch slab. The change has been made to an 8-7-inch basis, with the new roads eight inches thick in the center. The commission, in the new specifications, will require brick roads to have a five-inch base, with a one-inch sand-cement cushion and three-inch vertical fiber brick with asphalt filler.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray announced, following a meeting of the reformatory relocation commission and advisory committee, that questionnaires will be sent to all persons desiring to submit land to be considered as a proposed site for the new reformatory. The questionnaire will call for detailed information concerning the land, water supply, proximity to railroads and other data which will be of value to the commission in determining a satisfactory site for the institution, which is to be removed from Jeffersonville under the provisions of an act of the special session of the legislature. All questionnaires are to be returned to the commission by January 1, the governor said. The commission will meet January 5, to consider the information.

Indianapolis.—The new automobile lighting ordinances drawn up by the secretary of state in conformance with the act of the 1921 general assembly went into effect a few days ago, according to the announcement of the automobile division of the secretary of state's office. The new regulations provide that no headlight shall be equipped with lamps of more than 32 candle power, and that lenses when properly focused will, at a distance of 100 feet ahead of the vehicle and 60 inches above the ground, develop a light of no greater intensity than 2,400-candle power. So far 27 devices have been approved by the state automobile light engineer, who has announced that "after a thorough investigation and series of road tests," the rules promulgated by the Illuminating Engineering society and approved by the Society of Automotive Engineering, have been adopted.

Washington, D. C.—The civil service commission has designated January 14 as the date of examination for the selection of postmasters at Bristol, Clermont, Gaston, Oaktown and Waldron. Candidates will be assembled ination at Elkhart, Indianapoville and Vincennes.
Bankers' Investment
apolis is forming a for the purpose of otel on the site
ke Wawasee,
it has been

Evansville.—Bessie Ruby, six, accidentally shot herself in the abdomen while playing with a pistol. The wound was fatal. Ollie King, ten, while celebrating Christmas, shot himself through the hand and death resulted from tetanus.

Indianapolis.—Bakers of Indiana are to hold their eighteenth annual convention January 4 and 5 at Indianapolis, according to an announcement made by C. P. Ehlers of Indianapolis, president of the Indiana Association of the Baking Industry.

Indianapolis.—Downward trend in prices of foodstuffs is noted by the secretary of the state purchasing committee, in connection with bids submitted for state grocery contracts. Lowest bidders have been awarded contracts for a three months' period. The largest purchase was [illegible] pounds of butterine at [illegible] cents a pound.

Terre Haute.—The act of the last legislature prohibiting persons convicted of federal crime from holding office in Indiana was held unconstitutional by Judge John P. Jeffries in Circuit court at Terre Haute. The ruling was made in the case of Joseph O'Mara, who was elected councilman in the November election and whose right to hold office was contested.

Indianapolis.—William A. Ketcham, former commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, is dead at his home here. He was seventy-five years old. Death was caused by acute indigestion. Mr. Ketcham was elected commander in chief September 24, 1920. He was succeeded by Lewis Pilcher of New York, who was elected at the grand encampment held in Indianapolis last September.

Washington, D. C.—Robert H. Springsteen, postmaster at Indianapolis, has been requested by [illegible], assistant postmaster general, to organize in the Indianapolis office a training school for newly appointed postmasters of Indiana. Each new postmaster when commissioned is urged to attend the school for a short, intensive course of instructions before taking office.

Sullivan.—The family [illegible] have been taken down from their places of hiding in many homes in Sullivan following the recent wave of thefts and holdups and have been loaded ready for use. Most of the business men and others who might be victims of burglary now have firearms within easy reach when they retire. There have been no less than a dozen robberies and attempted robberies in Sullivan within the last thirty days.

Indianapolis.—Receipts in the office of the collector of internal revenue for Indiana for the first 15 days of December have amounted to about $700,000, bringing the total of collections for the last quarter of the year up to $7,374,028.89, as compared with $7,452,797 for the same period last year, the collector announced. He estimated that total collections in his office this year will be only about $60,000,000, or approximately $15,000,000 less than last year.

Noblesville.—Cold weather, the last few days, during which the temperature fell below the freezing point caused farmers in central Indiana for the first time in several weeks to stop plowing for spring planting. During the warm weather of the last month most of them have been breaking clover and timothy meadows, which were damaged by the dry weather last June. More plowing has been done in central Indiana in the last six weeks than in any corresponding period of any year in a long time, all of which was the result of the mild condition of the weather.

Indianapolis.—The public service commission has denied the petition of the Parke County Telephone company for authority to put into effect certain higher rates at Rockville, Rosedale, Mecca, Montezuma and West Union. It has authorized, however, a somewhat higher rate for the places. The new single line business rate is to be $3 for Rockville and $2.50 for the other places; new single line residence, $1.75, Rockville, and $1.50 elsewhere. Rural homes and rural business out of Rockville are to be respectively $1.40 and $1.75; out of the other places, $1.25 and $1.50.

Evansville.—Starting a campaign against the attacks on their chief by Frank R. Farrington and Alexander Howat, insurgent leaders of the Illinois and Kansas coal miners, two Ayrshire locals have passed a resolution voting confidence in the administration of John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America. More than 720 mines scored the actions of the two insurgent leaders as having caused the greatest period of disruption in the ranks of the organization. Locals No. 289 and No. 4262, of Winslow, adopted the resolution, which contained these charges: That the two leaders were trying to destroy every semblance of the honesty and fairness now demanded by labor or its employer through the medium of "collective bargaining"; that the uprising was prompted by the leaders' selfish greed for profits, and that the only results from such actions can be the preparation of a trail of want and misery and the lowest standard of living for the toilers.

Bloomington.—With practically every member of the congregation on the scene and in tears, the Fairview Methodist Episcopal church in Bloomington was destroyed by fire, with a loss estimated at $50,000. The structure, insured for only $15,000, was built seven years ago, after many sacrifices on the part of the members of the congregation. The fire started from an overheated furnace and was discovered a few minutes after the congregation had left the building, the annual Christmas entertainment of the church having been held during the evening.

JANUARY

L 912

0006

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.Advertisement

MADE HIT WITH YOUNGSTER

Companionable Mother Need Not Have Been Afraid She Was Overdoing Her Romping.

A prominent Hoosier clubwoman is a devoted mother, and takes time to romp with her children every night. The other evening her eight-year-old daughter brought her chum home with her for the night. The chum's mother is dignified and never romps or jokes with her children. So the prominent woman outdid herself for the children's amusement. Finally she said laughingly: "I must stop or Mildred will think you have a nut for a mother."

The next morning when she went upstairs to pull her daughter out of bed she heard the two youngsters talking. And the little visitor said: "I'm going to begin to pray that God will make my mother into a nut like yours."

MOTHER! CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Has the Key Habit.

Young Detroit had been given locker and key for his gym things at school last September. Then he suddenly got the idea that he should have a ring for the key, and soon decided that he should have more keys for the ring, so he acquired a latch key to the front door, and one belonging to the garage. He bought a padlock for his tool chest and one for his bicycle, and added two more keys to his collection. Now he appropriates every unattached key he can find, regardless of whether it will unlock anything or not. And his wonderful collection is the envy of all his schoolmates.—Detroit News.

Don't Forget Cuticura Talcum

When adding to your toilet requisites. An exquisite face, skin, baby and dusting powder and perfume, rendering other perfumes superfluous. You may rely on it because one of the Cuticura Trio (Soap, Ointment and Talcum). 25c each everywhere.—Advertisement.

What He Wished.

They were buying the son and heir a new pair of shoes. Father had expressed the usual wish that he could buy a paid of number 10s as cheaply as number 8s, and mother had expressed the usual hope that the new shoes would last a long while.

"And I wish," said the youngster, "that you would buy me a football so that I could have some use for my new shoes!"—Milwaukee Journal.

Snowy linens are the pride of every housewife. Keep them in that condition by using Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry. At all grocers.—Advertisement.

What You Have at Home.

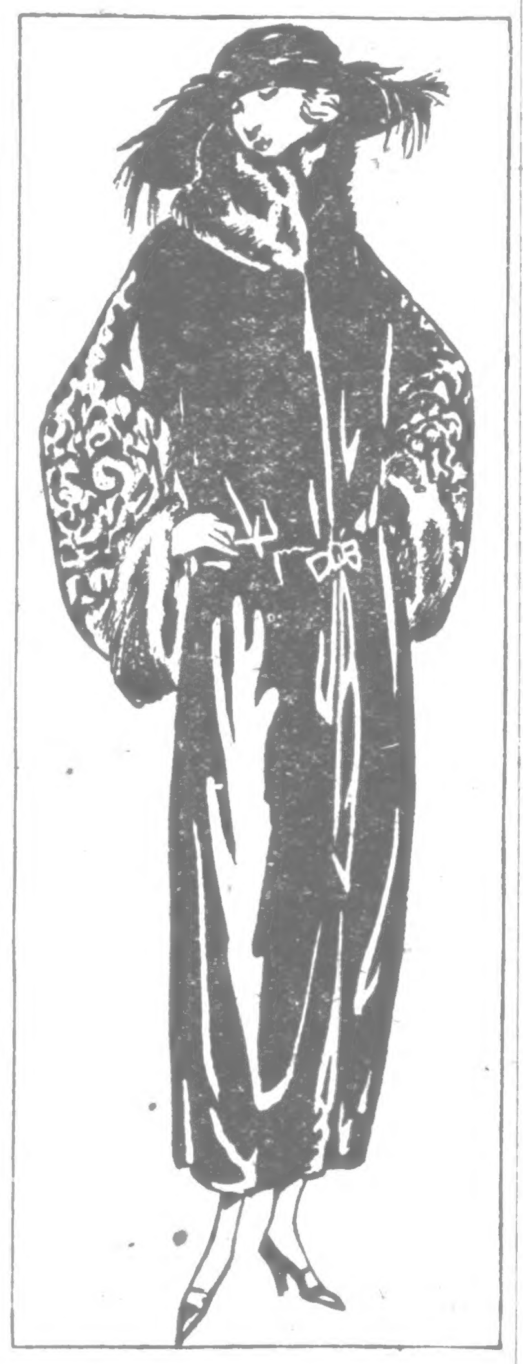
Be still and do not forget what you have at home by turning to seek abroad what you will not find.—Fenelon.

Indolence and slovenliness are bosom friends.

SURE AS DAWN BRINGS A NEW DAY
HILL'S
CASCARA QUININE
BROMIDE
AT ALL DRUG STORES
Will Break That Cold and Make You Fit Tomorrow
PRICE 30 CENTS
W. H. HILL CO., DETROIT

Frock and Wra
Straight-I

From the straight-line frock we can't seem to break away—even by way of Paris, observes a fashion authority in the New York Times. Everything that comes across the water does more to accentuate that line, far from stealing into any less favored paths. Don't think for a moment that this tendency to straighten out the silhouette has anything of monotony about it. On the contrary, it seems as though the line had infinite possibilities of development. We think that every known angle has been exhausted, and then—lo and behold! there appears a totally original conception of the same line. The newer frocks are thrilling, that is all there is to it. And the prayer of the American woman, that the straight silhouette at last seems to have its answer always in the affirmative.



One of Drecoll's Ideas of Afternoon Coat in Black Satin

Gowns grow more picturesque as time goes on, even though their general outlines remain quite according to established precedent.

The black and white dress follows that liking for the strong contrast of the two colors which is so characteristic of Parisian dresses just now. Only the sleeves and the portion of the bodice from which they spring are of white—white georgette. The rest of the gown is made of a beautiful soft black velvet, trimmed around the bottom of the skirt with chenille lace done into an interesting pattern of decoration.

Cuffs Are Attractive.

The cuffs of the sleeves haps, the most attractive dress, for they accentu about the lower port which, just at the an indescribable a any gown. There dict that the wide disappear from fact that it has al
But it cannot be newer models tha been in the lea
The cuffs seem more picturesque

Then the F about everythi have actually m sleeves that real way, and that by things they do to t
the ends of the more apt than not to some very heavy tri of a lightweight mate weighting does a real it automatically drops as the arm is held u reaches for something, o
the sleeve is being miracu from all contact with bric-athe way, just because the he is realizing its own part in the

You will find this happening over and over again on the French dresses. Do not be afraid to try wearing one of them, for your imagination has been wrong in picturing their awkwardness. They are so graceful, indeed, that they promptly impel you to throw your arms about in competition with the rhythmic dancers. You become fascinated with the manners of your own sleeves, and it seems interesting to see just how cleverly they will behave.

The sleeves on a coat are made on this same general plan, and with the same subtle reasoning lying behind the manner of their fur edging. Sleeves of this character will be seen on many of the new afternoon coats, and all one can say for them is that they certainly have a way of making the coat about as graceful a garment as has at any time been seen in any wardrobe.

The fact is that the modern coat is running a close second to the gown for interest in design and for general becomingness. In the some reason to were clumsy in they ran to th were overdone bread trimming has been artist directions. T strike that which is so charm.

There is adays sho as the fro more so. B ence for any a beautiful ful wrap, k
when she se garment sh lookers a co

The coats a of their feathe terlinings. The about woolens i nothing too pl
They are all conc fons and silks a tynes. But they a less to defy any c make the winter we matter what the socia was, you know, when be interesting looking l one made up one's mi gently but willingly. Th chance for gracefulness com warmth. But now all that has and the more delicate a wrap more one may be sure tha tucked away in its innards som paddings that guarantee it for w

Of Heavy Black Satin.

One of Drecoll's coats is made of heavy black satin, and for its lining there is all that "extraness" we have just been describing. The fur about the neck and sleeves is gray, the embroidery which is concentrated on the sleeves is also done in gray, and the lining, to repeat the general scheme, is a soft gray crepe.

This desire for black and gray become a general one during this ent winter season. In all sorts conditions of wraps and ways union of the two colors is demo strated. Really, one feels out of t general running if one has not at le one costume made of these two c
Each of them seems to give li other, and it may be said that has a combination of two shad come so generally flattering.

The black coats trimmed with c cul or squirrel or any of gray furs are much in de blacks are those materi thick, heavy naps, and son of this texture m much blacker than
There is nothing d their surfaces, for ter in the sunlig pletely out of the of this character d
black, but is re
when it ha show it.
there

Lelong Afternoo
Black Velvet With

gray stockings with blac do so much to accentua scheme by repetition. And gloves are just about as go thing that has ever been po the covering of the hands.
much more in key than could be and not nearly so keep looking the pink of pe

Color in these afternoon not so greatly in evidence have been imagined from ad ports. Still, one sees coats purple, and those of the reddis which are awfully good lookin deep red Kasha cloth cape, trim with wide collar and cuffs of carac is an interesting importation.

W said remem clothes—had saved he happened so much th know wh

JANUARY

L 912

0007

cher Co's

ICE SALE

This will be the Greatest of all our merchandise. The cheapest overcoat will go at $12.50 and up. The cheapest silk
30. Michaels Stern overcoats will start at $15.00
Marx is to retail at $40. They will start at $20 rombies. The cheapest overcoat made by Goodman ave been selling their $85 coats at $75 and these will now Half Price. Shirts, Neckwear, Underwear, etc. at Half will be discounted 10 to 50 per cent with the exception of over-we are selling the $2.20 white back overalls at $1.00 and the count these.

ETCHER CO.

Fort Wayne, Indiana

E "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174

174 EAGLE MIKADO No 2

our Dealer

Made in five grades

K FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND

EAGLE MIKADO

LE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

GREAT HALF-PRICE
HURSDAY MORNING.

erson-Fletcher's Half-Price Sale
ally held in the month of Febru-
t this year they will hold their able sale in January—right at inning of the winter.
store has the reputation of ng people over 100 miles to se-heir great bargains. It is not at nusual for them to receive mail rs from cities much farther away.
s generally understood that it is eir wonderful volume of business that allows them to do a thing of this kind. Their merchandise is guaranteed to their customers just the same as if they were paying full price. We to call our readers' attention to Fletcher's ad in this issue.

s
or Year

ers Christian Sunday
e New Year under the rs elected a week ago

dent—Meade Baker.
Chares Inlow.
Carl Hart.
-Eva Shull.
r—Glen Hart.
nt—Bernice Hart.
ch officers will be elected next
y.

Were Guests.

Mrs. Ida Hose, Miss Esther Hose, and George Cotrell of near Butler, wrre recent guests in the home of Laney Gee and family; also Friday last Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hadsel of Hicksville, and Mrs. Ophelia Headley of Newville were guests, the latter remaining until last Saturday morning, when she went to spend the day with Mrs. Matie Gee.

Let Us Print
Your Sale Bills

Sale Bills

Printed Neatly at the
News Office
St. Joe, - - Indiana
Give us an Early call.

The Central Grocery is in poistion to take orders for Suits and Overcoats, all at the one price of $22.50.

These clothes are tailor-made and are absolutely guaranteed to fit or money refunded.

The tailor will call at your home with samples and will take your measurements.

Mr. and Mrs Ross Lee, Joe L. Stark, Steve Marshall, and Victor Brown, of the Western Union Telegraph gang, and the Misses Mary Armstrong, Erma Rhodenbaugh, and Anna Hart, motored to Fort Wayne last Menday night and attended the Palace theatre.

JANUARY

L 912

MONEY

-:The Right Start:-

Is-All Important to
to your children.

Give them a Savings Account
in their own names for

NEW YEAR

and put them on the road
to success.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT
NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

Mr and Mrs Rescoe Walter
LICENSED EMBALMERS
and
FUNERAL DIRECTORS
GENERAL LINE OF FURNITURE
TELEPHONE No. 9-11. Spencerville, Ind.

A O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE NOTARY PUBLIC

Call and see our display of New Lenses. Theymeet the requirements of the new law. Frank W. Silberg's Garage.

Grocery, St. Joe, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Patronize the advertisers.

Envelopes at the News office.

Baltzer Koontz, who has been ill, is slowly improving.

Mrs. Hattie Beams has been quite ill but is improving at this writing.

Miss Kate House spent Friday at Auburn with friends.

Walter Tyndall, who has been confined to his home by tonsilitis, is able to be around again.

This Thursday night the Masons will hold an installation of officers at their hall.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gibbons spent Tuesday at Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Betz and children of Woodburn were Monday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Josl Betz.

Mr. and Mrs. John House and Miss Minnie Wilmot and Donald Kimes were Sunday dinner guests of Glenn Freeburn and wife.

Mrs. Jack Henderson is quite ill at her home. Little Emma Allen is suffering with an attack of rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles High were New Year's guests for dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Zimmerman and famly.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibbons very pleasantly entertained a large number of guests at a New Year watch meeting at their home east of town on Saturday night.

Over a quarter of a million well known men and women fron different parts of the country have signed written endorsements for Tanlac. B. S. Sheffer.

Quite an exciting time was caused on Saturday evening last when fire broke out in the Community hall. A fire had been built in the furnace and caught fire in the wall boards near the furnace, burning the board away from the chimney. The St. Joe fire department was called.

Members of the Mason's wives and children of this place banqueted on Thursday evening at the Community hall. Guests from many surrounding towns assisted them in having a good time. The banquet was in honor of Henry Murray of this place.

The Bluffton Phi Delts played the Spencerville city team at this place on Saturday evening. The game went to the home team by a score of 34-31.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stiman and children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman and Samuel Markle were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Billman.

Mrs. Fay Henderson and son, Richard, of Antwerp, Mrs. Ethel Viland and daughter of Edgerton, and Miss Letha Baker of Ft. Wayne, visited their mother and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Gust Cupp last week.

BANK STATEMENT.

F. E. Rhodes, President; L. B. Fisher, Vice-president; C. G. Rectenwall, Cashier. Report of the condition of the Farmers & Merchants State Bank, a State bank at Spencerville, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on Dec. 31, 1921.

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	172,455	95
Overdrafts	168	59
U. S. Bonds	585	31
Banking House	3,668	39
Furniture and fixtures	2,552	88
Due from Banks and Trust companies	18,049	76
Cash on Hand	4,118	57
Current Expenses	185	03
Interest Paid	435	34
Total Resources	202,822	82
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock, paid in	$25,000	00
Surplus	5,050	00
Undivided Profits	4,922	46
Exchange, discounts and interest	633	47
Demand deposits	52,869	59
Demand certificates	104,347	30
Bills Payable	10,000	00
Total Liabilities	202,822	82

State of Indiana,
County of DeKalb, ss:

I, C. G. Rectenwall, cashier of the Farmer & Merchant State Bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

C. G. RECTENWALL, Cash.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 4th day of Jan., 1922.

[L S.] F. W. Silberg, N. P.

My com. expires Jan. 11, 1923.

CONCORD

Ford Jackson and wife spent Monday evening in Auburn with friends.

Ira Bone and wife entertained at New Year dinner, Willie Keeler and family, and Harry Keeler.

John Hull and wife entertained on New Years: Mrs. Ada Ervin and husband, of Saginaw, Mich; James Ervin, Sam Daily and family, Dell Draggoo and family, and Mrs. Mary Shuff and son Harry.

Those who spent New Years in the home of Chas. Jackson and family were Lloyd Beldon and wife, of Ft. Wayne; Bert Timmerman, wife and son Herald, of Harlan; John Timmerman and family, and Miss Elizabeth Thorn, of Spencerville. Mr. and Mrs. Beldon returned home Monday evening.

Class No. 5 held a watch meeting at the church, Saturday evening. Thirty were present and enjoyed a good time.

Mrs. John Fetters went to Edon, Christmas eve, remaining until Monday of this week, helping to care for her sister Lillie, who is in poor health. They think she is slowly improving.

Ernest Johnson and wife, Lancaster Morr and family, Howard Krise and family spent New Years with Mr. and Mrs. Clark, of near Auburn.

Mrs. Anna Koch, Mrs. Nannie Lysher and son Edgar, Mrs. Geo. Kees and little son, and Miss Edna Jackson, of St. Joe; and Alice Timmerman, of Spencervil'e, visited last Wednesday with Mrs. Mary Timmerman and daughter, Mrs. Chas. Jackson and family. Miss Edna Jackson remained until Friday evening while Miss Timmerman returned home Thursday.

Grace For Auto License

A month and a half grace has been allowed to Indiana auto owners in which to get their 1922 license, but after February 17 they will be caught if they drive their auto without the new plates.

The 1922 license plates will show each group of three numbers separated by a dash, as 101-113, or 4-491.

Births.

Mr. and Mrs. Jennings Horn of south of Spencerville are the proud parents of a daughter.

On Monday last born to Mr. and Mrs. Delos White of Auburn a son. Mrs. White will be remembered as Miss Ada Chaney.

Deaths.

Little Martin Clugston of Frankton, Ind., 14 months' old son of the Rev. and Mrs. Herbert Clugston, died on Thursday evening at the home of his grandparent, Rev. W. W. Martin of Fort Wayne. The family formerly resided in Spencerville, moving to Frankton in Oct.

The eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Halter of Cedarville died on Wednesday of spinal miningitis The funeral was held on Thursday in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Walters.

C. C. Club Entertained

Members of the C. C. Club was very pleasantly entertained Friday in an all day meeting at the home of Mrs Minta Rhodes. The house was decorated in Christmas colors, green and red.

After the delightful pot-luck dinner was served in cafeteria style the president, Mrs Agnes Baker, called them to order. The regular meeting was held and the officers for the coming six months were elected as follows:

President—Mrs. Lucy Beams.
Vice-President—Mrs. Dean.
Secretary-Treasurer—Mrs. Zelpha Steward.
Asst. Sec'y.-Treas.—Mrs Maude Beams.

The Christmas exchange was in the hands of Mrs. Jane Butler and Mrs. Lucy Beams. Mrs. Vernie Rhodes then served ice cream and cake to the membrs and one guest, Mrs. Brown.

Elect Officers

The Ladies' guild of the M. E. church met on Thursday at the the home of Mrs. Ella Lucas, and elected officers for the year as follows:—

President—Mrs. Ethel Bowser.
Vice-Pres—Mrs. Minta Rhodes.
Sec'y—Miss Arminta Steward.
Asst. Sec'y—Mrs. Louie Beam.
Treasurer—Mrs. Audra Wade.
Asst. Treasurer—Mrs. Princess Rectenwal.
Flower Committee—Mrs. Hazel Steward and Mrs. Golden High.
Silverware Committee—Mrs. Minta Rhodes, Mrs. Ella Lucas, Mrs Princess Rectenwal.

Anniversary

Friends of Del Kelly reminded him on Wednesday evening of his birthday anniversary, and came with well filled baskets and oysters

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman, Mr. and Mrs. Gerry Wasson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Billman, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Markle, Samuel Mackle, Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Kelly and three children, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hodges and daughter Doris, Mr. and Mrs. Charley Gibbons, Mr. and Mrs. Carr.

PUBLIC SALE!

The undersigned, having sold his farm, will sell to the highest bidder on the Isaac Grosh farm located 1 mile west of Hurshtown and 1 1-2 miles northeast of Leo, on the Ft. Wayne and Leo road, on

Tues., January 10, 1922

Commencing at 10 o'clock, the following:

Span Mules

They are well matched, will weigh 2200 pounds, and will work in all harness.

2 Head Cows 2

These are good milk cows, are giving milk now, and will fresh, one in April, and the other in May.

3 Head Hogs 3

Brood sow that will farrow in March; 2 head shoats that will weigh about 125 pounds each.

Chickens

50 good Plymouth Rock pullets

Miscellaneous

Hay in the mow and fodder in the barn. Farm wagon Spring wagon, Heavy set work harness, Set double driving harness, Set single buggy harness, Single buggy, Gale corn planter, Riding cultivator, Gibbs walking plow, Spike-tooth harrow, Spring tooth harrow, Hoe drill, Wheel barrow, tooth cultivator, Single-shovel plow, Double-shovel plow, chains, Double trees, New X-ray 120 egg-incubator, Portable hog house, Chicken coops, Majestic range in good shape, New DeLaval cream separator No. 12, Some household goods, and other things too numerous to mention.

Warm Lunch Will Be Served

USUAL TERMS

HENRY WITMER

Rhodenbaugh & McNamara, Auct. J. Klopfenstine, Clerk

Loyal Daughters Elect.

Loyal Daughters of the Lutheran Sunday school elected their officers for the following year:

President—Gaylon Mackle.
Vice-President—Lois Askey,
Treasurer—Irene Webb.
Asst Treasurer—Helen Furnish
Secretary—Doris Rhodes
Asst. Sec'y—Virginia Goldsmith.

Elect Officers

On Sunday morning the members of Lutheran Sunday school elected officers for the year as follows:—

Superintendent—Sol Goldsmith.
Asst Supt.—Roscoe Walters.
Secretary—Mary White.
Asst. Sec.—Marjorie Hollabaugh
Treasurer—Chas. Watson.
Chorister—Florence Beams.
Asst. Chorister—Eileen Askey.
Pianist—Gaylon Markle.
Assistant Pianist—Helen Lake.
Librarians—Garnett Beams and Mable Rhoades.
Teachers—Primary class—Gaylon Markle.
Golden Hour—George Beams.
Willing Workers—Mrs. Frank Baltz.
Loyal Daughters—Leana Steward
Men's class—Henry Beams, Sr
Ladies' class—Mrs. Henry Beams
Women's class—Miss Bertha Thornbaugh.

Pays Fine, Trial Dismissed

The trial of Abram Culbertson of St. Joe, which was set for Friday, January 6, in the DeKalb circuit court, will be taken off the docket and the appeal from Justice John Zimmer's court will be dismissed.

Culbertson was tried in the court of Justice Zimmer a month ago on a charge of assault and battery. The jury found him guilty and he was fined $25 and costs, a total of [illegible]. He appealed his case to the circuit court, but he has decided to dismiss his appeal and stop further proceedings by paying the fine and costs to Justice Zimmer.

After Culbertson was found guilty he filed an affidavit in Justice [illegible] Ford's court against John Koch, charging him with assault with intent to commit murder. Koch was bound over to the circuit court, but the date of the trial has not been set.—Sta[illegible]

Is Elected County Coroner

W. H. Ettinger of Waterloo, who has been acting county coroner during the illness and death of William E. By[illegible], former coroner, was elected as county coroner to serve through the remainder of the term, at the meeting of the board of county commissioners, Today. The term will expire next [illegible] 31 and then a coroner will be chosen by the people at the general election in November.

Lodge Notes.

At the last regular meeting of the Pythian Sisters, a Christmas exchange was held and a treat of popcorn, apples and home made candy given after which the following election of officers was held:

M. E. C.—Mrs. Ida Woodcox.
E. C.—Mrs. Daisy Keeler.
E. J.—Mrs. Bessie Henley.
M. of R. & C.—Mrs. Blance Leighty.
M. of F.—Mrs. Alice Copp.
Manager—Mrs. Pearl Cochran.
O. G.—Miss Marjoria Curie.
P. T.—Mrs. Huldah Reasoner.
Installing officer—Mrs. Maude Monroe.
Pianist—Miss Edna Jackson.

ST. JOE NEWS.

Fred Leighty is at Maumee, O., today on business

Mrs. Wm. Brown was at Hicksville, Monday.

Leon Sechler and little son spent Wednesday with Ralph Sechler and family at Ft. Wayne.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1867

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

810 CALHOUN STREET

BEN LEHMAN PROP.

Fort Wayne, Ind.

JANUARY

L 912

0009

THE GREEN PEA PIRATES

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN," "THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS," ETC.

Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne

GUN RUNNING.

Synopsis.—Captain Phineas P. Scraggs has grown up around the docks of San Francisco, and from mess boy on a river steamer, risen to the ownership of the steamer Maggie. Since each annual inspection promised to be the last of the old weatherbeaten vessel, Scraggs naturally has some difficulty in securing a crew. When the story opens, Adelbert P. Gibney, likable, but erratic, a man whom nobody but Scraggs would hire, is the skipper, Neils Halvorsen, a solemn Swede, constitutes the forecastle hands, and Bart McGuffey, a wastrel of the Gibney type, reigns in the engine room. With this motley crew and his ancient vessel, Captain Scraggs is engaged in freighting garden truck from Halfmoon bay to San Francisco. The inevitable happens; the Maggie goes ashore in a fog. A passing vessel hailing the wreck, Mr. Gibney gets word to a towing company in San Francisco that the ship ashore is the Yankee Prince, with promise of a rich salvage. Two tugs succeed in pulling the Maggie into deep water, and she slips her tow lines and gets away in the fog. Furious at the deception practiced on them, Captains Hicks and Flaherty, commanding the two tugboats, ascertain the identity of the "Yankee Prince" and, fearing ridicule should the facts become known along the water front, determine on personal vengeance. Their hostile visit to the Maggie results in Captain Scraggs promising to get a new boiler and make needed repairs to the steamer. Scraggs refuses to fulfill his promises and Gibney and McGuffey "strike." With marvelous luck, Scraggs ships a fresh crew. At the end of a few days of wild conviviality Gibney and McGuffey are stranded and seek their old positions on the Maggie. They are hostilely received, but remain. On their way to San Francisco they sight a derelict and Gibney and McGuffey swim to it. The derelict proves to be the Chesapeake, richly laden, its entire crew stricken with scurvy. Scraggs attempts to tow her in, but the Maggie is unequal to the task and Gibney and McGuffey, alone, sail the ship to San Francisco, their salvage money amounting to $1,000 apiece. His crew having deserted him, Captain Scraggs induces them to return. At an "old horse" sale the three purchase two mysterious boxes which they believe to contain smuggled "Oriental goods." They find, instead, two dead Chinamen. Scraggs seeks to "double cross" his two associates, but Mr. Gibney outwits him and makes a satisfactory financial settlement with the Chinese company to whom the bodies have been consigned, leaving Scraggs out in the cold.

CHAPTER IX.

—8—

Even after allowing for the expenditures on the engine weighing heavily on Captain Scraggs, that individual continued morose and more than ever inclined to be sarcastic. Mr. Gibney commented on the fact to Mr. McGuffey.

"He's troubled financially, Gib."

"Well, you know who troubled him, don't you, Bart?"

"I mean about the cost o' them repairs in the engine room. Unless he can come through in thirty days with the balance he owes, the boiler people are goin' to libel the Maggie to protect their claim."

Mr. Gibney arched his bushy eyebrows. "How do you know?" he demanded.

"He was a-tellin' me," Mr. McGuffey admitted weakly.

"Well, he wasn't a-tellin' me." Mr. Gibney's tones were ominous; he glared at his friend suspiciously as from the Maggie's cabin issued forth Scraggsy's voice raised in song.

"Hello! The old boy's thermometer's gone up, Bart. Listen at him. 'Ever o' thee he's fondly dreamin'.' Somethin's busted the spell an' I'll bet a cooky it was ready cash." He menaced Mr. McGuffey with a rigid index finger. "Bart," he demanded, "did you loan Scraggsy some money?"

The honest McGuffey hung his head. "A little bit," he replied childishly.

"What d'ye call a little bit?"

"Three hundred dollars, Gib."

"Secured?"

"He gimme his note at eight per cent. The savin's bank only pays four."

"Is the note secured by endorsement or collateral?"

"No."

"Hum-m-m! Strange you didn't say nothin' to me about this till I had to pry it out o' you, Bart."

"Well, Scraggsy was feelin' so doggoned blue——"

"The truth," Mr. Gibney insisted firmly, "the truth, Bart."

"Well, Scraggsy asked me not to say anythin to you about it."

"Sure. He knew I'd kill the deal. He knew better'n to try to nick me for three hundred bucks on his danged, worthless note. Bart, why'd you do it?"

"Oh, h—ll, Gib, be a good feller," poor McGuffey pleaded. "Don't be too hard on ol' Scraggsy."

"We're discussin' you, Bart. 'Pears to me you've sort o' lost confidence in your old shipmate, ain't you? 'Pears that way to me when you act sneaky like."

McGuffey bridled. "I ain't a sneak."

"A rose by any other name'd be just as sweet," Mr. Gibney quoted. "You poor, misguided simp. If you ever see that three hundred dollars again you'll be a lot older'n you are now. However, that ain't none o' my business. The fact remains, Bart, that you conspired with Scraggsy to keep things away from me, which shows you ain't the man I thought you were, so from now on you go your way an' I'll go mine."

"I got a right to do as I blasted please with my money," McGuffey defended hotly. "I ain't no child to be lectured to."

"Considerin' the fact that you wouldn't have had the money to lend if it hadn't been for me, I allow I'm insulted when you use the said money to give aid an' comfort to my enemy. I'm through."

McGuffey, smothered in guilt, felt nevertheless that he had to stand by his guns, so to speak. "Stay through, if you feel like it," he retorted. "Where d'ye get that chatter? Ain't I free, white, an' twenty-one year old?"

Mr. Gibney was really hurt. "You poor boob," he murmured. "It's the old game o' settin' a beggar on horseback an' seein' him ride to the devil, or slippin' a gold ring in a pig's nose. An' I figured you was my friend!"

"Well, ain't I?"

"Fooey! Fooey! Don't talk to me. You'd sell out your own mother."

"Gib, you tryin' to pick a fight with me?"

"No, but I would if I thought I wouldn't git a footrace instead," Gibney rejoined scathingly. "Cripes, what a double-crossin' I been handed! Honest, Bart, when it comes to that sort o' work Scraggs is in his infancy. You sure take the cake."

"I ain't got the heart to clout you an' make you eat them words," Mr. McGuffey declared, sorrowfully.

"You mean you ain't got the guts," Mr. Gibney corrected him. "Bart, I got your number. Goodbye."

Mr. McGuffey had a wild impulse to cast himself upon the Gibney neck and weep, but his honor forbade any such weakness. So he invited Mr. Gibney to betake himself to a region several degrees hotter than the Maggie's engine room; then, because he feared to linger and develop a sentimental weakness, he turned his back abruptly and descended to the said engine room.

On his part, Adelbert P. Gibney entered the cabin and glared long and menacingly at Captain Scraggs. "I'll have my time," he growled presently. "Give it to me an' give it quick."

The very intonation of his voice warned Scraggs that the present was not a time for argument or trifling. Silently he paid Mr. Gibney the money due him; in equal silence the navigating officer went to the pilot house, unscrewed his framed certificate from the wall, packed it with his few belongings, and departed for Scab Johnny's boarding house.

"Hello," Scab Johnny saluted him at his entrance. "Quit the Maggie?"

Mr. Gibney nodded.

"Want a trip to the dark blue?"

"Lead me to it," mumbled Mr. Gibney.

"It'll cost you twenty dollars, Gib. Chief mate on the Rose of Sharon, bound for the Galapagos islands sealing."

"I'll take it, Johnny." Mr. Gibney threw over a twenty-dollar bill, went to his room, packed all of his belongings, paid his bill to Scab Johnny, and within the hour was aboard the schooner Rose of Sharon. Two hours later they towed out with the tide.

Poor McGuffey was stunned when he heard the news that night from Scab Johnny. When he retailed the information to Scraggs next morning, Scraggs was equally perturbed. He guessed that McGuffey and Gibney had quarreled and he had the poor judgment to ask McGuffey the cause of the row. Instantly, McGuffey informed him that that was none of his dadfetched business—and the incident was closed.

The three months that followed were the most harrowing of McGuffey's life. Captain Scraggs knew his engineer would not resign while he, Scraggs, owed him three hundred dollars; wherefore he was not too particular to put a bridle on his tongue when things appeared to go wrong. McGuffey longed to kill him, but dared not. When, eventually, the railroad had been extended sufficiently far down the coast to enable the farmers to haul their goods to the railroad in trucks, the Maggie automatically went out of the green-pea trade; simultaneously, Captain Scraggs' note to McGuffey fell due and the engineer demanded payment. Scraggs demurred, pleading poverty, but Mr. McGuffey assumed such a threatening attitude that reluctantly Scraggs paid him a hundred and fifty dollars on account, and McGuffey extended the balance one year—and quit.

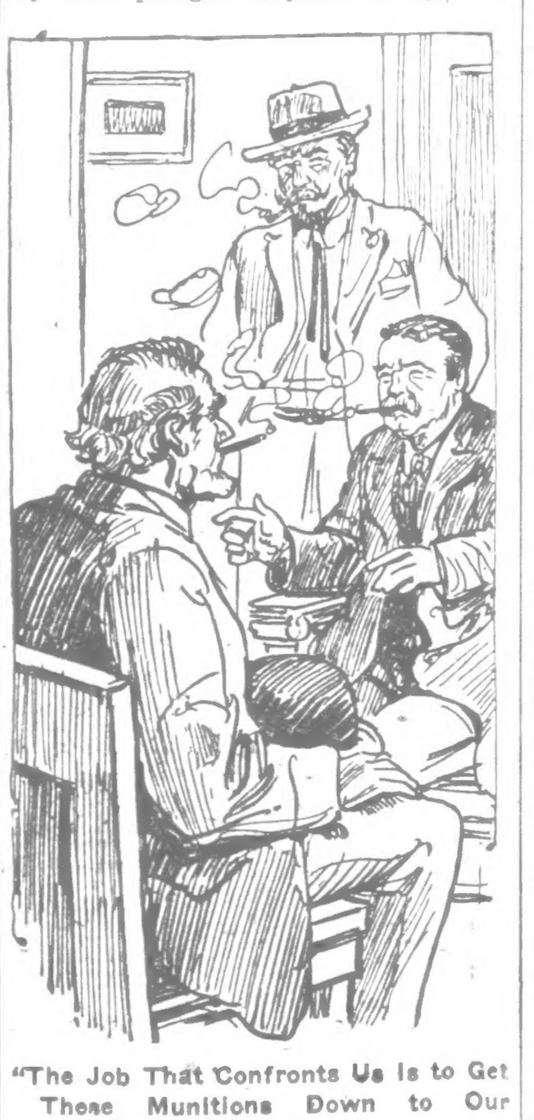
"See that you got that hundred and fifty an' the interest in your jeans the next time we meet," he warned Scraggs as he went overside.

Time passed. For a month the Maggie plied regularly between Bodega bay and San Francisco in an endeavor to work up some business in farm and dairy produce, but a gasoline schooner cut in on the run and declared a rate war, whereupon the Maggie turned her blunt nose riverward and for a brief period essayed some towing and general freighting on the Sacramento and San Joaquin. It was unprofitable, however, and at last Captain Scraggs was forced to lay his darling little Maggie up and take a job as chief officer of the ferry steamer Encinal, plying between San Francisco and Oakland. In the meantime, Mr. McGuffey, after two barren months "on the beach," landed a job as second assistant on a Standard Oil tanker running to the west coast, while thrifty Neils Halvorsen invested the savings of ten years in a bay scow known as the Willie and Annie, arrogated to himself the title of captain, and proceeded to freight hay, grain and paving stones from Petaluma.

The old joyous days of the green-pea trade were gone forever, and many a night, as Captain Scraggs paced the deck of the ferryboat, watching the ferry tower loom into view, or the scattered lights along the Alameda shore, he thought longingly of the old Maggie, laid away, perhaps forever, and slowly rotting in the muddy waters of the Sacramento. And he thought of Mr. Gibney, too, away off under the tropic stars, leading the care-free life of a real sailor at last, and of Bartholomew McGuffey, imbibing "pulque" in the "cantina" of some disreputable cafe. Captain Scraggs never knew how badly he was going to miss them both until they were gone, and he had nobody to fight with except Mrs. Scraggs and when Mrs. Scraggs (to quote Captain Scraggs) "slipped her cable" in her forty-third year Captain Scraggs felt singularly lonesome and in a mood to accept eagerly any deviltry that might offer.

Upon a night, which happened to be Scraggs' night off, and when he was particularly lonely and inclined to drown his sorrows in the Bowhead saloon, he was approached by Scab Johnny, and invited to repair to the latter's dingy office for the purpose of discussing what Scab Johnny guardedly referred to as a "proposition."

Upon arrival at the office, Captain Scraggs was introduced to a small, fierce-looking gentleman of tropical appearance, who owned to the name of Don Manuel Garcia Lopez. Scab Johnny first pledged Captain Scraggs to absolute secrecy, and made him swear by the honor of his mother and the bones of his father not to divulge a word of what he was about to tell him.



"The Job That Confronts Us Is to Get These Munitions Down to Our Friends in Mexico."

Scab Johnny was short and to the point. He stated that, as Captain Scraggs was doubtless aware, if he perused the daily papers at all, there was a revolution raging in Mexico. His friend, Senor Lopez, represented the under-dogs in the disturbance, and was anxious to secure a ship and a nervy sea captain to land a shipment of arms in Lower California. It appeared that at a sale of condemned army goods held at the arsenal at Benicia, Senor Lopez had, through Scab Johnny, purchased two thousand single-shot Springfield rifles that had been retired when the militia regiments took up the Krag. The Krag in turn having been replaced by the modern magazine Springfield, the old single-shot Springfields, with one hundred thousand rounds of 45-70 ball cartridges, had been sold to the highest bidder. In addition to the small arms, Lopez had at present in a warehouse three machine guns and four 8-inch breech-loading pieces of field artillery (the kind of guns generally designated as a "jackass battery," for the reason that they can be taken down and transported over rough country on mules)—together with a supply of ammunition for same.

"Now, then," Scab Johnny continued, "the job that confronts us is to get these munitions down to our friends in Mexico. If we're caught sneakin' 'em into Mexico we'll spend the rest of our lives in a federal penitentiary for bustin' the neutrality laws. All them rifles an' the ammunition is cased an' in my basement at the present moment—and the government agents knows they're there. But that ain't troubling me. I rent the saloon next door an' I'll cut a hole through the wall from my cellar into the saloon cellar, carry 'em through the saloon into the backyard, an' out into the alley half a block away. I'm watched, but I got the watcher spotted—only he don't know it. Our only trouble is a ship. How about the Maggie?"

"I'd have to spend about two thousand dollars on her to put her in condition for the voyage," Scraggs replied.

"Can do," Scab Johnny answered him briefly, and Senor Lopez nodded acquiescence. "You discharge on a lighter at Descanso bay about twenty miles below Ensenada. What'll it cost us?"

"Ten thousand dollars, in addition to fixin' up the Maggie. Half down and half on delivery. I'm riskin' my hide an' my ticket an' I got to be well paid for it."

Again Senor Lopez nodded. What did he care? It wasn't his money.

"I'll furnish you with our own crew just before you sail," Scab Johnny continued. "Get busy."

"Gimme a thousand for preliminary expenses," Scraggs demanded. "After that Speed is my middle name."

The charming Senor Lopez produced the money in crisp new bills and, perfect gentleman that he was, demanded no receipt. As a matter of fact, Scraggs would not have given him one.

The two weeks that followed were busy ones for Captain Scraggs. The day after his interview with Scab Johnny and Don Manuel he engaged an engineer and a deck hand and went up the Sacramento to bring the Maggie down to San Francisco. Upon her arrival she was hauled out on the marine ways at Oakland creek, cleaned, caulked, and some new copper sheathing put on her bottom. She was also given a dash of black paint, had her engines and boilers thoroughly overhauled and repaired, and shipped a new propeller that would add at least a knot to her speed. Also, she had her stern rebuilt. And when everything was ready, she slipped down to the Black Diamond coal bunkers and took on enough fuel to carry her to San Pedro; after which she steamed across the bay to San Francisco and tied up at Fremont street wharf.

The cargo came down in boxes, variously labeled. There were "agricultural implements," a "cream separator," a "windmill," and half a dozen "sewing-machines," in addition to a considerable number of kegs alleged to contain nails. Most of it came down after five o'clock in the afternoon after the wharfinger had left the dock, and as nothing but a disordered brain would have suspected the steamer Maggie of an attempt to break the neutrality laws, the entire cargo was gotten aboard safely and without a jot of suspicion attaching to the vessel.

When all was in readiness, Captain Scraggs incontinently "fired" his deckhand and engineer and inducted aboard a new crew, carefully selected for their filibuster virtues by Scab Johnny himself. Then while the new engineer got up steam, Captain Scraggs went up to Scab Johnny's office for his final instructions and the balance of the first instalment due him.

Briefly, his instructions were as follows: Upon arrival off Point Dume on the southern California coast, he was to stand in close to Dume cove under cover of darkness and show two green lights on the masthead. A man would come alongside presently in a small boat, and climb aboard. This man would be the supercargo and the confidential envoy of the insurrecto junta in Los Angeles. Captain Scraggs was to look to this man for orders and to obey him implicitly, as upon this depended the success of the expedition. This agent of the insurrecto forces would pay him the balance of five thousand dollars due him immediately upon discharge of the cargo at Descanso bay. There was a body of insurrecto troops encamped at Megano rancho, a mile from the beach, and they would have a barge and small boats in readiness to lighter the cargo. Scab Johnny explained that he had promised the crew double wages and a bonus of a hundred dollars each for the trip. Don Manuel Garcia Lopez paid over the requisite amount of cash, and half an hour later the Maggie was steaming down the bay on her perilous mission.

The sun was setting as they passed out the Golden gate and swung down the south channel, and with the wind on her beam, the aged Maggie did nine knots. Late in the afternoon of the following day she was off the Santa Barbara channel, and about midnight she ran in under the lee of Point Dume and lay to. The mate hung out the green signal lights, and in about an hour Captain Scraggs heard the sound of oars grating in rowlocks. A few minutes later a stentorian voice hailed them out of the darkness. Captain Scraggs had a Jacob's ladder slung over the side and the mate and two deckhands hung over the rail with lanterns, lighting up the surrounding sea feebly for the benefit of the lone adventurer who sat muffled in a great coat in the stern of a small boat rowed by two men. There was a very slight sea running, and presently the men in the small boat, watching their opportunity by the ghostly light of the lanterns, ran their frail craft in under the lee of the Maggie. The figure in the stern sheets leaped on the instant, caught the Jacob's ladder, climbed nimbly over the side, and swore heartily in very good English as his feet struck the deck.

"What's the name of this floating coffin?" he demanded in a chain-locker voice. It was quite evident that even in the darkness, where her many defects were mercifully hidden, the Maggie did not suit the special envoy of the Mexican insurrectos.

"American steamer Maggie," said the skipper frigidly. "Scraggs is my name, sir. And if you don't like my vessel—"

"Scraggsy!" roared the special envoy. "Scraggsy, for a thousand! And the old Maggie of all boats! Scraggsy, old tarpot, your fin! Duke me, you doggoned old salamander!"

"Gib, my dear boy!" shrieked Captain Scraggs and cast himself into Mr. Gibney's arms in a transport of joy. Mr. Gibney, for it was indeed he, pounded Captain Scraggs on the back with one great hand while with the other he crushed the skipper's fingers to a pulp, the while he called on all the powers of darkness to witness that never in all his life had he received such a pleasant surprise.

It was indeed a happy moment. All the old animosities and differences were swallowed up in the glad handclasp with which Mr. Gibney greeted his old shipmate of the green-pea trade. Scraggs took him below at once and they pledged each other's health.

"Well, I'll be keel-hauled and skull-dragged!" said Captain Scraggs, producing a box of two-for-a-quarter cigars and handing it to Mr. Gibney. "Gib, my dear boy, wherever have you been these last three years?"

"Everywhere," replied Mr. Gibney. "I have been all over, mostly in Panama and the Gold coast. For two years I've been navigatin' officer on the Colombian gunboat Bogota. When I was a young feller I did a hitch in the navy and become a first-class gunner, and then I went to sea in the merchant marine, and got my mate's license, and when I flashed my credentials on the president of the United States of Colombia he give me a job at "dos cienti pesos oro" per. That's Spanish for two hundred bucks gold a month. I've been through two wars and I got a medal for sinkin' a fishin' smack. I talk Spanish just like a native, I don't drink no more to speak of, and I've been savin' my money. Some day when I get the price together I'm goin' back to San Francisco, buy me a nice little schooner, and go tradin' in the South seas. How they been comin' with you, Scraggsy, old kiddo?"

"Lovely," replied Scraggs. "Just simply grand. I'll pull ten thousand out of this job."

Mr. Gibney whistled shrilly through his teeth.

"That's the ticket for soup," he said admiringly. "I tell you, Scraggs, this soldier of fortune business may be all right, but it don't amount to much compared to being a sailor of fortune, eh, Scraggsy? Just as soon as I heard there was a revolution in Mexico I quit my job in the Colombian navy and come north for the pickin's. . . . No, I ain't been in their rotten little army. . . . D'ye think I want to go around killin' people? . . . There ain't no pleasure gettin' killed in the mere shank of a bright and prosperous life . . . a dead hero don't gather no moss, Scraggsy. Reads all right in books, but it don't appeal none to me. I'm for peace every time, so right away as soon as I heard of the trouble, says I to myself: 'Things has been pretty quiet in Mexico for twenty years, and they're due to shift things around pretty much. What them peons need is a man with an imagination to help 'em out, and if they've got the money, Adelbert P. Gibney can supply the brains.' So I comes north to Los Angeles, shows the insurrecto junta my medal and my honorable discharges from every ship I'd ever been in, includin' the gunboat Bogota, and I talked big and swelled around and told 'em to run in some arms and get busy. I framed it all up for this filibuster trip you're on, Scraggsy, only I never did hear that they'd picked on you. I told that coffee-colored rat of a Lopez man to hunt up Scab Johnny and he'd set him right, but if anybody had told me you had the nerve to run the Maggie in on this deal, Scraggsy, I'd a-called him a liar. Scraggs, you're mucho-bueno—that is, you're all right. I'm so used to talkin' Spanish I forget myself. Still, there's one end of this little deal that I ain't exactly explained to all hands. If I'd a-known they was charterin' the Maggie, I'd have blocked the game."

Scraggsy and Gib prepare for war, horrid war.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Mothers Who Are Run-Down and Nervous
Heed This Advice

Indianapolis, Ind.—"I cannot speak too highly of the benefits I received from the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription which I used for a run-down condition after motherhood. I also used Dr. Pierce's Healing Suppositories and take great pleasure in recommending them."—Mrs. Geo. West, 707 East New York St.

Health is of vital importance to every mother. Do not neglect this most valuable asset you have. Get this Prescription of Dr. Pierce's from your neighborhood druggist in tablets or liquid or send 10c for trial pkg. to Dr. Pierce's, Buffalo, N. Y., and write for free medical advice.

ITCH!

Money back without question if HUNT'S GUARANTEED SKIN DISEASE REMEDIES (Hunt's Salve and Soap), fail in the treatment of Itch, Eczema, Ringworm, Tetter or other itching skin diseases. Try this treatment at our risk. Sold by all reliable druggists. A. B. Richards Medicine Co., Sherman, Texas

Garfield Tea
Was Your Grandmother's Remedy

For every stomach and intestinal ill. This good old-fashioned herb home remedy for constipation, stomach ills and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicine than in your grandmother's day.

RAW FURS

Honest grading and quick returns our motto. Trial shipment will convince you. Send for price list and tags today.
E. SPOHR WOOL CO.
107-113 N. Main St. - St. Louis, Mo.
In Business since [illegible]

FOR SALE OR RENT

To actual settlers in large or small tracts, on easy terms. Close to three railroads and good markets, in the best agricultural region of north Texas. Good roads, good schools and churches, pure water. Would consider purchasers who can avail themselves of the Federal Farm Bank loans. One-half oil privileges reserved on all sales. Address Wm. H. Bush, owner, room 1446 First National Bank Building, Chicago, Illinois, or Amarillo, Texas, Box 1384.

Be Your Own Boss. Travel; Make Money. Anyone with $200 can go into moving picture business. Experience unnecessary. No machine needed. J. J. Frank, 8 Seltzer, Wapakoneta, O.

FOR SALE—Middle Georgia. 225 Acre Farm; location, water, people, good; climate mild. C. K. McClelland, Owner, Fayetteville, Ark.

Are You Risking Your Life by Neglecting a Cough or Cold?

Home Remedies Are Best and Cheapest

Nurses use and doctors recommend

GLANDO PINE

You Ought to Try It

Sold by druggists or may be had by sending to The Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Advisory Market Letter Service

On Nov. 9th we told our clients to buy [illegible] Tel. Around 105. We will accept new clients one month's trial $10 each, reserve right to reject applicants and return [illegible] when quota is filled. LEHMAN & CO. Advisory letter service & Security Analysts, 30 Broad Street, NEW YORK.
"Nothing to sell but service."

OUT OF A JOB?

Elmer made $1,000 in 3 weeks. No experience necessary. Superintend your agents. [illegible] Chester, 5875 Estrella, Los Angeles.

AGENTS WANTED

Powder makes pint blue black writing ink instantly, by adding water, cost [illegible] for 25c, trial sample mailed free.
INSTANT INK COMPANY,
Dept. 1, 12 Miller Bldg. Cincinnati, Ohio

SELL WILSON HATS FROM FACTORY TO WEARER. Extraordinary commission. [illegible] deliver and collect. Every man a [illegible] Wilson Hat Works, Montclair, New [illegible]

Walk—for Health and Strength—Walk

You cover miles and miles every day [illegible] you will never know just how far you [illegible] until you own a PEDOMETER. Farmers, soldiers, boy scouts, hikers of every description are using this wonderful invention which registers every mile you walk. Walk for joy and pleasure. WALK. Price [illegible] postpaid. Send money order to
BROWN NOVELTY CO.
511 Union St. - SCHENECTADY, N. Y.

RAZOR BLADE POCKET KNIFE

HANDLE

Made From Your Old Blades

Send 25c, stamps or coin, for a pretty little handle. Makes a [illegible] handy pocket knife. Agents wanted.
A. TUBBS & CO.
66 Plummer Ave. Hammond, Ind.

Choice of Evils.

"Why do you want to marry during your first season?" "I'd rather be scolded by a husband than a chaperon."—Life.

In danger of becoming obsolete: "I beg your pardon."

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

JANUARY

L 912

0010

CRAMPS, PAINS AND BACKACHE

St. Louis Woman Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Louis, Mo.—"I was bothered with cramps and pains every month and had backache and had to go to bed as I could not work. My mother and my whole family always took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for such troubles and they induced me to try it and it has helped me very much. I don't have cramps any more, and I can do my housework all through the month. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends for female troubles."—Mrs. DELLA SCHOLZ, 1412 Salisbury Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Just think for a moment. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been in use for nearly fifty years. It is prepared from medicinal plants, by the utmost pharmaceutical skill, and superior methods. The ingredients thus combined in the Compound correct the conditions which cause such annoying symptoms as had been troubling Mrs. Scholz. The Vegetable Compound exercises a restorative influence of the most desirable character, correcting the trouble in a gentle but efficient manner. This is noted, by the disappearance, one after another, of the disagreeable symptoms.

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN

PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

Comfort Your Skin With Cuticura Soap and Fragrant Talcum

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

16799 DIED

in New York City alone from kidney trouble last year. Don't allow yourself to become a victim by neglecting pains and aches. Guard against this trouble by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles. Holland's National Remedy since 1696. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Lady With Large Acquaintance can make $20 to $40 extra money per week by representing me in your locality. I will send you from ten to fifteen new style dresses monthly to be shown amongst your friends. Dignified, pleasant work. No money necessary. Bank or business references required. We can also use one or two dressmakers to represent us. Write for full particulars. PEGGY O'NEIL

Creator of Popular-Priced Dresses

19 W. 35th St. New York, N. Y.

Better Than Pills For Liver Ills.

You can't feel so good but what NR will make you feel better.

Get a 25c. Box.

Acts on the Liver Stomach Kidneys and Bowels
Nature's Remedy
NR-TABLETS-NR
Price 25 cents
A. H. LEWIS MEDICINE CO. ST. LOUIS, U.S.A.
25-TABLETS-NR

Wireless Network.

If one set of radio instruments can establish a wireless line of communication, apparently the multiplication of such sets will produce a wireless network. And there is something peculiarly fitting in the notion that the government radio systems can use such a net for protecting aviators and their passengers in airplane flights. Apparently, the radio netting will be able to keep the airplane from straying into areas of unfavorable flying conditions as effectually as chickens netting keeps the hens from straying into the garden.—Exchange.

At the Source.

"Have you heard today's gossip?"

"No, I haven't."

"Then I guess there isn't any."

Use MURINE Night and Morning

Keep Your Eyes Clean—Clear and Healthy

Write For Free Eye Care Book Murine Co., Chicago, U.S.A.

BETTER ROADS

SEEK DEFINITION FOR TRUCK

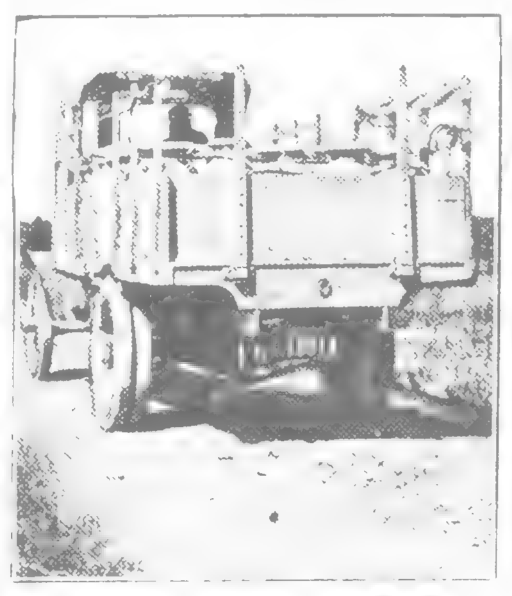
But Few States Furnish Data as to Size of Vehicles Using Nation's Highways.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What is a motortruck?

There is no universally accepted standard of what constitutes a motortruck in the various states, says the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. As a result, only 13 states have furnished the department with the important data—so essential to road building—as to the size of trucks and commercial cars using the nation's highways during the first six months of 1921.

"In some states," says the department, "all motorcars are registered on the same basis; in others, only cars having solid tires are classed as trucks; while in others all motor vehicles used for carrying freight or merchandise of any kind whatever are classed as trucks. Even those states which provide for a separate registration for motortrucks do not employ the same basis for designating the size of the vehicle. Some states use the total weight of the loaded vehicle, others the weight of the unloaded vehicle or the weight of the chassis, and still others use such indefinite bases as the horsepower or the cost of the vehicle."



Truck Used by Dairyman in New York State for Carrying Milk.

The need for definite and uniform information concerning motortrucks in use on roadways is felt, the department says, in the preparation of data which will enable road builders to take accurately into consideration the effect of such traffic.

STANDARD MATERIAL TESTS

Increasing Need Felt for Some System to Be Recognized in All Parts of Country.

With the wide extension of improved highway construction throughout the United States, the need is increasingly felt for some system of standards for the testing of highway materials so that tests in one part of the country can be accepted in another.

The bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture has held conferences on the subject with the various state highway departments, and last year a conference of testing engineers was held in Washington. The results of the conference are published in Department Bulletin No. 949, "Standard and Tentative Methods of Sampling and Testing Highway Materials." This bulletin of 98 pages gives 62 different tests and tentative tests covering nonbituminous and bituminous road materials, soils and other substances.

In some cases the standard tests of the American Society for Testing Materials have been adopted in their original or slightly modified form, and in others not yet covered by the society original standards have been established. Lists and descriptions of apparatus for conducting tests, form for reports and tables of comparative standards such as Baume gravity, Centigrade and Fahrenheit temperatures, and metric and American measurements are also given for ready reference.

ROOM YET FOR IMPROVEMENT

Although Roads Have Been Improved Since Coming of Auto, Conditions Are Ripe for More.

That the roads in this country, although greatly improved since the coming of the automobile, are not yet universally developed to the point where they should be, was demonstrated during the stress of war. In several instances shipments of essential war materials were seriously delayed because of little less than deplorable conditions along some of our supposedly important highways, conditions that might have been improved at but little cost.

Mileage Would Encircle Globe.

Since the government first began planning the enormous task of building highways, July, 1916, the mileage of roads which have been built or are now under construction by federal aid is nearly sufficient to encircle the globe.

Dragging Helps Road.

Is your road to town rough and hard to travel over? A split log or iron drag drawn over the road after each rain helps a good road and does not cost much

True Detective Stories

VANISHING MAN

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

WHEN Gideon Rabshaw, chief of detectives of Cleveland, Ohio, was notified over the long distance wire from Buffalo, that the police of that city had captured the four men responsible for the murder of Patrolman Leroy Bouker, he smiled, shrugged his shoulders, and muttered:

"Fine work! That much is out of the way!"

But, had Rabshaw only known it, his troubles were only beginning—for one of the bandits, a man by the name of Meaney, determined to fight for his life with every weapon that the law afforded him.

Securing an attorney familiar with the kinks and twists of criminal law, he quickly succeeded in manufacturing an alibi which appeared to be ironclad. Half a dozen witnesses swore that, at the time Bouker was shot, Meaney had been in their company, and that it was physically impossible for him to reach the scene of the crime in time to take part in the murder.

Meaney's lawyer followed his client's instructions to "make the alibi good enough for me to have 24 hours clearance—once I'm out of Cleveland they'll never find me" and the district attorney, rather than imperil the entire case, decided to drop the proceedings against Meaney and concentrate his attack upon the other three men who had the foresight to provide themselves with capable legal assistance. Therefore, in spite of the pleadings of Chief Rabshaw, Meaney was released.

Less than twelve hours later, the chief of detectives secured evidence that riddled the carefully prepared alibi—evidence which proved that Meaney had been directly implicated in the murder. But it was too late. The gunman had vanished, apparently into thin air!

Spurred on by a realization that he had had the man he wanted, actually lodged in jail, only to have him slip through a loophole in the legal wall which surrounded him, Rabshaw determined to nail the escaped murderer if, as he stated, "it took ten years and every man on the force to do it."

The city of Cleveland was combed from one end to the other. Every known meeting place in the underworld was watched and raided and closed.

But the days lengthened into weeks, and the weeks into months, and still there was no trace of Meaney.

At night, when his day's work was finished, Rabshaw would relieve the man always on watch at the former Meaney home, for the chief had a theory that some day the fugitive's wife would provide the clue which would lead them to the man they wanted.

"Yes, I know it's hard work and tedious work," Rabshaw would say, as he took up his nightly vigil. "But there's no woman alive that can outwit us if we keep steadily at it.

As events proved, however, Rabshaw was wrong. The clue which led to the final capture came from another and unexpected source.

It was some eleven months after the Bouker murder—after Meaney had been traced to Toledo and Pittsburgh and St. Louis and Toronto and various points in between, the police always one jump behind him—that Rabshaw dropped into the Cleveland postoffice to purchase a stamp. There was nothing unusual in the action itself. He had bought stamps at that window hundreds of times before. But there was something in the attitude of the woman ahead of him in line, something furtive about the manner in which she attempted to conceal the address of the letter which she carried, which made the chief of the detectives wonder what was wrong.

When he caught a flash of her face, half-hidden under a long black veil, he had an intuition that he knew her reason for trying to prevent anyone from seeing the letter. The woman was Meaney's sister-in-law.

As she purchased the stamp and bent forward to affix it, Rabshaw stepped swiftly out of line, and succeeded in catching a glimpse of the envelope. One glance was all he needed. The missive was addressed to John M. Oliver, at a number which Rabshaw knew was in a secluded and quiet part of Indianapolis.

Early the following morning Rabshaw took up his vigil outside the house where Oliver was supposed to be living. But no one answering to the description of the missing man made his appearance, so the Cleveland chief determined to force the issue by sending two of the local police in to find out if anyone by that name resided there. Scarcely had they reported that "Oliver lived there, but was out at the time," than Meaney strolled down the street and started to mount the steps of the house, totally unsuspicious of his danger. An instant later, Rabshaw was upon him, his automatic ready for action, but the fugitive, realizing the folly of opposition to superior force, threw up his hands and surrendered.

"You've got me," he admitted. "Just when I thought I was safe, too. How'd you manage it?"

"A little matter of a postage stamp," said Rabshaw, and it wasn't until after he had commenced his life term in the Ohio penitentiary, that Meaney discovered the loophole which he had overlooked, the trivial detail which had enabled Rabshaw to trace him when every other means had failed.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JANUARY 8

ELIJAH THE TISHBITE.

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 17:1-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matt. 6:33.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Ex. 16; I Kings 16:29-33; Matt. 6:19-34.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Cares for Elijah.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Elijah, the Brave Prophet.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jehovah's Champion Preserved.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Obeying the Word of Jehovah.

I. Elijah's Message to Ahab (v. 1).

This was a startling message, for Ahab had not only led Israel into idolatry, but into a repudiation of the living God.

1. "As the Lord God of Israel liveth." Elijah knew the source of his message. He knew that he represented the living God, therefore had no fear to come into the presence of the king in His name.

2. "Before whom I stand." Because Elijah stood before God, he could stand before Ahab. His "standing" before God indicates his constant readiness to go on His errands.

3. "There shall not be dew nor rain these years but according to my word." This suspension of moisture continued for three and a half years (Jas. 5:17), and was given in answer to Elijah's prayer (Jas. 5:17). Drouth was predicted as the punishment for idolatry (Deut. 11:16, 17), and the prophet was now applying the divine judgment.

II. Elijah's Retirement (vv. 2-16).

As soon as he had delivered his message he retired from the king's sight, while the penalty of the king's sin should be visited upon the land. When the famine was sore in the land, the king sought east and west, north and south for Elijah, but God had concealed him. Those who speak God's message frequently seek solitude when the message is delivered.

1. By the brook Cherith (vv. 2-7). (1) Drinking of the brook (vv. 4-6). While drinking of the literal waters of the brook, he was being nourished by the Living Waters from the throne of God. From day to day Elijah's faith was tested as he saw the stream run lower and lower as the drouth continued. (2) Fed by the ravens (vv. 4-6). The ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning and bread and flesh in the evening. Elijah thus enjoyed two meals each day, with water to drink. The same God who sustained Elijah, still lives, and we should trust Him for our daily bread. At last the brook dried up because there was no rain in the land. The Lord then instructed him to move.

2. At Zarephath (vv. 8-16). (1) The place (v. 9). Zarephath was at the west side of Palestine, near the Mediterranean sea, in Gentile territory. In order to reach this place Elijah had to cross the country from the Jordan to the sea. Zarephath was only a few miles from the home of Jezebel's father. This, no doubt, was a trial to Elijah. (2) Sustained by a widow (vv. 10-12). "Bring a little water and a morsel of bread," was the request which he made of the widow. This, no doubt, was a great trial to her, but God had touched her heart and stirred up faith in her. Her reply reveals her deep distress. (3) Elijah's reply (v. 13). This made plain to her that it was a case of mutual interest to do as the Prophet said. "The barrel of meal shall not waste; neither shall the cruse of oil fail." (4) The widow's obedience (v. 15). "She did according to the sayings of Elijah, and she and her house did eat many days." (5) God keeps His word (v. 16). May we learn from this lesson:

1. The particularity of God's providence. Truly a sparrow shall not fall to the ground without our Father. By the prearrangements of God all our needs are daily met. There is no happen so in God's providence. The woman of Zarephath, going out to gather sticks to prepare the last meal, met Elijah, and is helped for two years.

2. No matter how small our resources, we can do something for God if we will. The lad with the five barley loaves and the two small fishes, with the blessing of the Lord, did a great work.

3. Our concern should be to work for others and for God before ourselves. We should give our all to God and trust Him for further supply.

4. God often allows us to get down to our very last in order to teach us that all is from Him.

5. God's dealing with this Gentile woman is a foregleam of His dealing with the Gentile nations.

The Cheerful Worker.

Do all things without murmurings and disputings; that ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shall shine as lights in the world.—Philippians 2:14 to 16.

A Great Reward.

I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness.—II Timothy 4:7 and 8.

A Willing Husband.

An Atlanta man tells of a darky who called at his house one afternoon seeking work.

"All right," the darky was told, "there's a ton of coal on the walk that must be brought up."

"But," the darky protested, "dat's no work fo' a lady! My wife does washin'."

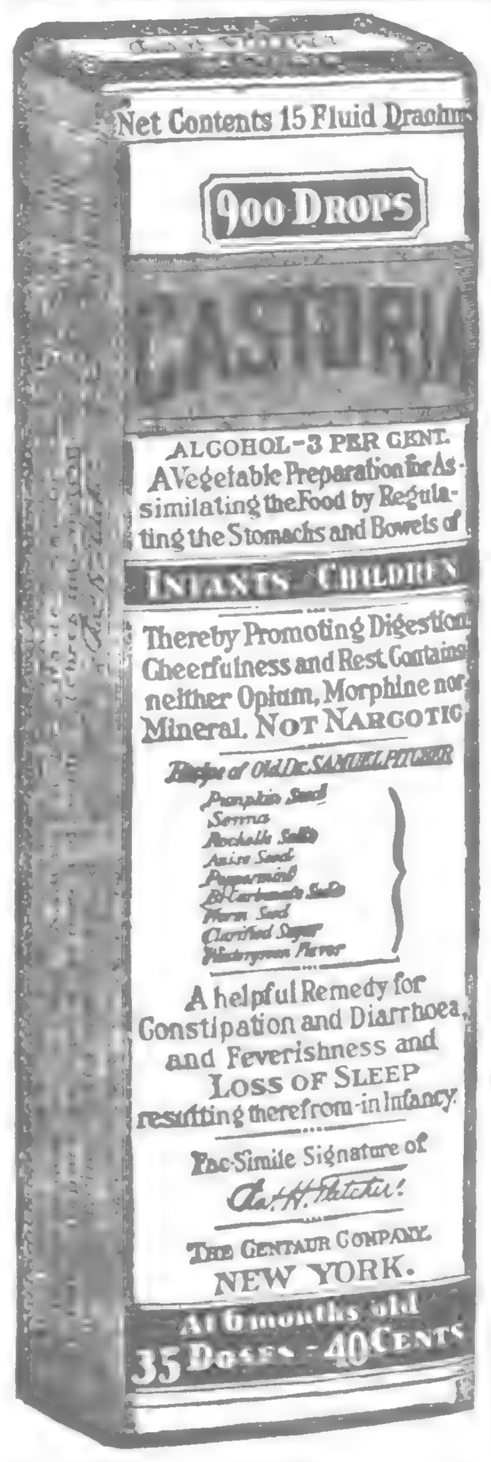
It's easier to collect a crowd than a dollar for charity.

A summer garden knows first when autumn is coming.

for that COUGH!

KEMP'S BALSAM

Pleasant to take Children like it



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachms
900 DROPS
CASTORIA
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
Recipe of Old Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi-Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea, and Feverishness and Loss of Sleep resulting therefrom in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 Doses - 40 Cents

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria Always Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

TURNED IT BACK TO BAKER

Chinese Dairy Farmer Had Good Excuse for Selling His Product Without Using Scales.

A dairy farmer living in a small town was recently summoned to appear before the local magistrate on a charge of selling butter under weight. The complainant was the village baker, who felt he was being wronged when he discovered that every pound of the farmer's butter fell below the weight that a pound ought to be.

"Have you a pair of scales?" asked the magistrate of the farmer.

"Yes, your honor."

"And weights?"

"No, your honor, I have no weights."

"You have no weights! How, then, can you weigh your butter?"

"That is very simple, your honor. Since the baker has bought his butter from me, I buy my bread from him, and his one-pound loaves serve me as weights to weigh my butter. If the butter does not weigh what it should, it is the baker's fault, and not mine, you see."—North China Herald.

Toads Return to Old Pond.

It is said that full-grown toads always return to the pond where they were hatched to mate and to lay their eggs.

The Exchange.

Esau sold his birthright for a mess of potage. "I was trying to do my Christmas shopping early," he cried.

TO KILL RATS and MICE

Always use the genuine

STEARNS' ELECTRIC RAT & ROACH PASTE

It forces these pests to run from the building for water and fresh air

Ready for Use—Better Than Traps

Directions in 15 languages in every box.

35c and $1.50. "Money back if it fails."

U. S. Government buys it.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Removes Dandruff Stops Hair Falling

Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair

60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

NEW WAY TO FENCE FARMS

CARBO The Different Way

ASK FOR CATALOG 22-J

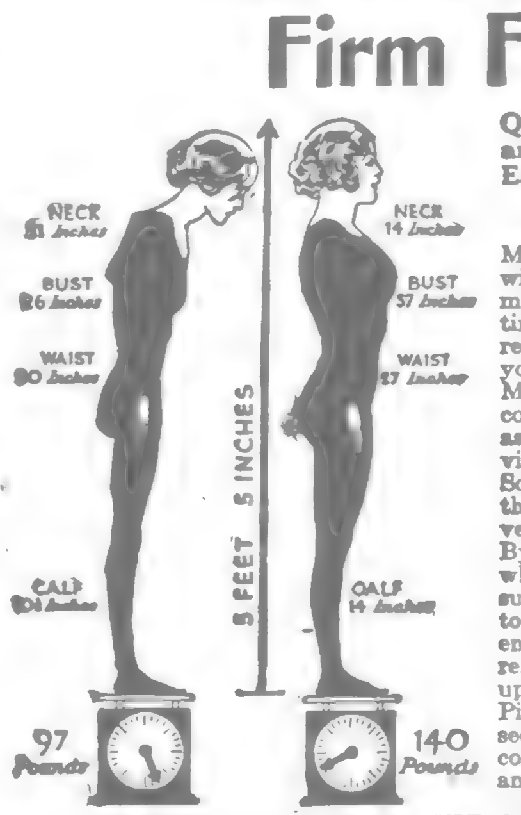
THE ONLY CORRECT WAY

Applied Science

GET U.S. GOV. TESTS

CARBO STEEL PRODUCTS CO. MORGAN PARK CHICAGO

How Yeast Vitamon Tablets Put On Firm Flesh



Quickly Increase Your Energy and Beautify the Complexion—Easy and Economical to Take.

Thin or run-down folks! Take Mastin's VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself each week and continue taking Mastin's VITAMON regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and energy. Mastin's VITAMON contains highly concentrated yeast-vitamines as well as the two other still more important vitamines (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C). It is now being used by thousands who appreciate its convenience, economy and quick results. By increasing the nourishing power of what you eat Mastin's VITAMON supplies just what your body needs to feed the shrunken tissues, strengthen internal organs, clear the skin and renew shattered nerve force without upsetting the stomach or causing gas. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish as if by magic and the complexion becomes radiantly clear and beautiful.

IMPORTANT! While the amazing health-building value of Mastin's VITAMON has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, nervous troubles, anemia, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, it should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having their weight increased to normal. You can get Mastin's VITAMON tablets at all good druggists.

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS

THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE

YEAST VITAMINE TABLET

Are Positively Guaranteed to Put On Firm Flesh, Clear the Skin and Increase Energy When Taken With Every Meal or Money Back

if it isnt MASTIN'S it isnt VITAMON

L 912

0011

JANUARY

--Dr.--

J. W. Hartzog

Eye-Sight SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist Office, St. Joe, Ind.,

Friday, JANUARY 13th.

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL

Indigestion

DO YOU KNOW that indigestion can be cured, permanently cured, so that you can eat any kind of food that you crave? It has been done not only once, but in almost every case when Chamberlain's Tablets are used. An instance: Mr. J. Pominville, Stillwater, Minn., who had spent over $2,000.00 for medicine and treatment was permanently cured by these tablets.

Chamberlain's Tablets

NEWS OF THE TOWN

Central Grocery, St. Joe, Ind.

Mesdames John Beard and Frank Myrtle, of Waterloo, were Monday guests of Wm. Randall and wife.

Rev. R. B. Daily was at Monroeville, Monday, in the interest of the Church of Christ at that place.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway of Auburn, was callers in the M. P. Bishop home, Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Elma Brown, of Spencerville, came Saturday for a several days visit with her brother, John Wineland and family.

A. J Pembrook and Hollis Dilley, of Ft. Wayne, spent Tuesday at the William Randall home when they fitted doors and windows with weatherstrips.

The Women's Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Mary Sechler, Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock You are invited to attend.

E. P. Brown is buying and cutting timber in the surrounding community and is expecting to put the local mill into operation within a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. F. Abel entertained at Saturday dinner Mr and Mrs. Laney Gee and daughter Miss Mildred, and Mr N. F. Light of near Dayton, Ohio.

Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price were called to Pierceton last Thursday morning to attend the funeral of the latter's brother's wife, Mrs Monroe Dill

Durwood Ridgway, wife and two younger children, Mrs. John Wineland and Mrs. Elma Brown spent Tuesday as guests of Glen Freeburn and family, near Spencerville

The Misses Josephine and Esther Johnson returned to their college work at Adrian, Mich., Tuesday evening, after spending the holidays here with their parents, Dr and Mrs. C S. Johnson.

Jesse Coons, son of Rev. J. C Coons, former pastor of the local M. P. Church and now a pastor at M[illegible]ion, Ind., stopped in town M[illegible]day night, for a few days visit wi[illegible] [illegible]ends before going back to [illegible] at Adrian, Mich.

Master Dean Kees is on the sick list.

Get your automobile license of Widney.

Charles Koch was a Fort Wayne visitor Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Reed Place spent Tuesday in Fort Wayne.

Miss Cecilia Hays of Spencerville was a Thursday night guest of Miss Leota Milliman.

Mrs. Abe Mason and daughter of Auburn were recent guests of St. Joe relatives

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Herrick and children were Sunday guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Perry.

Mrs. Carrie Smith of Garrett is here for a few days visit with her sister Mrs. Wilson Sanders and husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Koch spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Clay Coburn.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Belden of Fort Wayne spent over New Years Day with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kees were Sunday dinner guests of their son and wife Mr. and Mrs. George Kees.

Mrs. Nan Lysher spent Tuesday and Wednesday with her brother John Timmerman and family near Spencerville.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway went to Hobart, Friday, to visit her daughter, Mrs. Ves Chandler and husband until Wednesday.

Miss Marcealine Curie spent over Sunday with her aunt and husband Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Klopfenstine at Grabill.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gill went to Hamilton, Tuesday afternoon for a few days visit with the latter's brother, Martin White and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Reasoner returned home Sunday evening after a several days visit with their children at Auburn.

Friday evening a representative of the Standard Oil Company will give a lecture on "Conservation of Gasoline" at the Coburns Corners church.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brown who have been spending the past few days with her parents returned home Tuesday evening.

LOST on floor of Bank or on street; Saturday, Dec. 31, a $10 bill. Finder please return to bank. FRANK TUSTISON.

The Young Peoples' class of the Coburn corners Christian church with their teacher, Saxe Hadsell, held a class meeting at the home of Lerr Wilder, Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brunson and daughter, Violet, left Friday night for a few days' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Bash, a Jonesville, Mich.

Saving.

Saving is the sin of no man. Saving is not only a privilege but the duty of every man. In these days of reconstruction mankind has found it necessary to save that "Almighty Dollar," and when spending it to see that it goes to the place that will give to him the greatest and cheapest return for his money. This money saving disposition that has taken hold of everybody is one of the by products of the war—the natural reaction after several years of wild cat speculation and wild eyed spending of that dollar most of us now long for at this present time. To save is to be respected because the saving habit is usually prompted by the element of common sence and there can scarcely be an argument presented that will discredit a man who buys the necessities of life at the cheapest market place.

When we say we save we take in to account a great many things that the average man never dreams of when he buys for the family When we save we save time, our own pocket-book, our neighbors' pocket book, higher taxes, and a great many other things we do not notice and hence we do not understand. When we save we save for the other fellow, and in direct return we save for ourselves. When we spend we spend for ourselves and in direct return we spend for the other fellow. No man lives alone. Every man is as rich as is his community, and his community is as rich as he he helps to make it and every citizen knows that a dollar planted in this neighborhood gives to it interest both financial and social.

As you owe it to yourself and society to save and at the very same time to be a real help to the community it will absolutely be necessary for everyone to determine how he can save for himself and the other fellow at the same time and at the same price to him self. In other words, how he can save for himself and at the same time give to his neighbor. In still other words, how he can spend his money at home without any additional cost to himself. This is true saving. This is saving with the hog taken out. Saving, like Charity, begins at home

A dollar that goes out of this community makes some one a dollar poorer; a poorer someone makes poorer bankers, poorer merchants poorer barbers, poorer shoe makers and candle-stick makers, etc, and all these makes poorer churches and schools; and the final analysis of the whole thing is higher taxes, because the dollar that went out of the community did not stay to be taxed nor to pay taxes, and very often did not buy anything any cheaper away from home. When a man finds out that his friends are worth as much as his money he has saved the first and best ten minutes of his whole life and with it all the money that he spends.

Successful Operation

Della May Fellers of Auburn, well known here, is a patient in the Ft. Wayne Hope hospital, since 2 weeks ago last Thursday. She had a cancer growth on her leg and it was thought that X-ray treatments would serve the purpose, but after several treatments the physician decided that it would be necessary to cut it out. She is improving nicely. Mrs Sam Fellers is staying with her.

Entertained Society

Mrs. Rose Meese entertained the Martha society of the Christian church Thursday afternoon, fifteen being present. After the regular meeting the election of officess for the coming six months were elected as follows:

President—Ada Bassett.
Vice-Pres.—Arminta Northrup.
Secretary—Dora Daily.
Treasurer—Eva Sheffer.

Three members were added to the enrollment. Mrs Ada Bassett will entertain the society Jan. 5th.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

See Widney for automobile license.

Orange Herrick and C. P. Bassett we[illegible] Auburn visitors Saturday.

[illegible] Vina Fish went to Hicksville, Mo[illegible] morning for a few days visit.

[illegible] Charles Mavis of Defiance was a [illegible]day night guest of Mrs. Jacob Se[illegible]

[illegible] Marion Smith and children of A[illegible] spent over Sunday with Mr. and [illegible] Frank Sechler.

[illegible] spent the week as guest of her mother Mrs. John K[illegible] at [illegible]

Dr. Bonnell M Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St. Auburn, Indiana.

Twenty million people have taken Tanlac with the most gratifying results. At B. S. Sheffer's.

Transfer paper at NEWS office 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer.

Miss Edna Jackson spent from Wednesday until Friday as a guest in the Charles Jackson home.

In the basement of the Lutheran church warm meals will be served to the public during the farmers' short course.

N. F. Light left Monday morning for Antioch College near Dayton, Ohio, after spending the holiday vacation in the Lane[illegible] home.

Calvin Kain, who was operated on Friday at the Amaden hospital at Hicksville is doing very nicely con[illegible] [illegible]iousness of his case.

[illegible] Will Monroe and children [illegible] spent from Wed[illegible] [illegible] Sunday with W. E. Hen[illegible]

Narsis Bailey of Leo spent from Friday until Sunday in the George Wilmot, J. C Bailey and David Poper homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Florence Buchanan returned home Sunday evening from a visit with their daughter Mrs. J. E. Sturgis and family at Butler.

Mrs. Alice Copp left Tuesday of this week for a three or four weeks visit with her daughter and husband, Mr and Mrs. B. V. Widney at Albion.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Curie, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Curie and baby son spent Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Klopfenstein at Grabill.

Mrs. Anna Koch, Mrs. Nan Lysher on Edgar, Mrs. Wilma Kees and son Dean spent Wednesday as guests of Mr. and Mrs Charles Jackson and family.

Mr and Mrs Hollis Dilley, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bowen of Fort Wayne and Merritt Sechler were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Staman,

On last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Mat Hart, Mrs. W. P. Coburn, Mrs. Floyd Coburn, and baby, Mrs. Bessie Clopfenstein of Fort Wayne and Mrs. Cora Waltz, were entertained.

Harry Waltz and wife entertained to dinner Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. George Hart, Mr. and Mrs. Merwin Place, and Mr. and Mrs. Faye Wilmot of Fort Wayne.

The St. Joe Choral Society, under the able management of Dr. C. S. Johnson as president and Mrs. Roy Koch as directress, rendered an excellent program at Coburn's Corners church last Sunday night to an appreciative audience Each number received applause and a generous free will offering was contributed.

A meeting of the Womens Auxiliary of the DeKalb County Farm Bureau has been called to be held in the Assembly room of the court house at Auburn for Saturday, January 14. Four or more representative women from each township are to be in attendance. Miss Lella R. Gaddis of Purdue University will be in Auburn at that time and will assist at this meeting.

Special Notice

—MR.—

Jack Hatch

of SOUTH BEND, Ind., will give a Lecture At Coburntown,

Friday Ev'g, JAN. 6

SUBJECT:

"GASOLINE"

"From the well to the Exhaust Pipe"

If you are interested in how to get better results out of gasoline hear him.

Admission Free

TANLAC'S best advertising comes from people who have actually used it. At B. S. Sheffer's.

Mr. and Mrs. Faye Wilmot of Fort Wayne spent from Saturday until Tuesday with Arthur Wilmot and family.

Fred Quance of Fort Wayne spent his holiday week with relatives in St Joe. His father, J. O. Quance, was in town Monday

The Auburn Printing Co. has opened their new plant on W. Ninth St. The building is modern in every detail and affords without a doubt the best equipped shop in the state.

Mrs. Warren Coburn, son Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Russell and daughter Lucile of Fort Wayne, and Russell Bear of Angola spent Monday in the Frank Milliman home.

Revival services are starting off nicely at the Methodist church, this week. Rev. Kuhn will speak each evening at 7 p. m. All the people of the community are urged to attend these services.

Mrs. Paul Curie and little son returned home Thursday from a few days visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Grimm at Waterloo. While there she also attended a class reunion of the Waterloo High School

H. M. Widney lost one of his best horses. Sunday morning he went to the barn to find that it had one of its hind legs broken. It is thought that the horse was kicked by another. Old Fawn was the old standby at Spring Brook.

Reports for Indiana show that there is a reduction in wheat acreage this year from last year. The condition at this stage is good however, and the development of the root system is such that will stand the strain of the weather.

William Price and family of Denver, Colorado, are here for an indefinite visit with his brother, C. R. Price, and wife. Mr. Price was a boy in Newville township and went west in 1899 on account of his health. He says he is feeling fine and says that there is no place like Colorado.

Thieving has become quite a trade by some fellows this winter. Only last Wednesday night some rascals entered Harve Kimes garage and deliberately stole 7 coon, 9 skunk and 2 opossum skins, valued at $60.00. Sheriff T. G. Hood later was in town Thursday morning investigating matters but nothing definite has developed.

Elected Officers.

The Coburn-corners Ladies' Aid have elected the following officers to serve during 1922:

President—Gladys Hart.
Vice-President—Eva Shull.
Secretary—Estelle Baker.
Asst Secretary—Winifred Hart.
Treasurer—Minnie Gee.

BANK STATEMENT.

Emillus Case, President; Wm. Curie Vice President; F. R. Bowman, Casheir; Elgin Curie, Assistant Cashier. Report of the condition of the St Joe Valley Bank, a State bank, at St. Joe, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on Dec. 31, 1921.

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	$128,839 54
Overdrafts	411 35
U. S Bonds	1,971 45
Other Bonds and Securities	9,000 00
Banking House	4,731 00
Furniture and Fixtures	4,220 90
Other Real Estate	550 00
Due from Banks and Trust Companies	21,308 52
Cash on Hand	4,175 53
Current Expenses	4,698 82
Taxes Paid	299 18
Interest Paid	1,732 59
Cert., on other Banks	207 97
Total Resources	$178,846 85
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock, paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus	4,520 00
Undivided Profits	429 79
Exchange, discounts and Interest	3,941 55
Demand Deposits	55,917 61
Demand Certificates	82,037 90
Bills Payable	7,000 00
Total Liabilities	$178,846 85

State of Indiana,
County of DeKalb, ss:

I, Frank R. Bowman, cashier of the St. Joe Valley Bank, a state bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

FRANK R. BOWMAN, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 5th day of Jan., 1922.

[L.S.] S. S. WIDNEY, N. P.

My commission expires [illegible]. 7, 1923.

National Sportsman, Ladies' Home Journal, Good House Keeping, Popular Science, and all other magazines for January, are for sale at the News office now.

MONEY to LEND ON Farms!

LOANS to be Secured by First Mortgages not exceeding

50 per cent of the present total value of land and improvements.

—Conditions—

and Terms are Attractive. Call at our office.

The Straus BROS. COMPANY
Ligonier - Ind.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Cause No. 2412.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons interested in the estate of Frederick J. Keller, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn Indiana, on the 30th day of January, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of decedent should not be approved and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 29th day of December, 1921.

Frank R. Bowman,
Administrator.

Atkinson, Endicott
& Husselman,
Attorneys.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate.

Cause No. 2432.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons interested in the estate of Catherine Hamilton, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 20th day of January, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness my name, this 20th day of December, 1921.

OLEUS K. SHULL,
Executor.

Life & Ridenour, Attorneys.

Notice of Administration

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, Administrator, with will annexed, of the Estate of Joseph B. Haifley, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MELVIN T. BISHOP,
Administrator.

Dec. 23, 1921.

J. E. Pomeroy, Attorney.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

JANUARY

L 912

0012

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI — ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, JAN. 12, 1922 — NO. 2

OPPORTUNITY TO SAVE

-The- Great ¼ ..OFF.. SALE

is still on and you can get

Men's and Boys Suits, Overcoats

Woolen Underwear, Bath Robes,

Night Shirts, Pajamas, Wool Shirts, Rain Coats, and Mackinaws, at

1-4 Off of the Regular Prices

Shoes, Boots, Hosiery, Work Clothes

that you will need for Winter and Spring wear.

MAXWELL BROS.

2 BIG STORES

Hicksville Ohio

Sherwood, O.

Tankage-Cotton Seed Meal-Oil Meal

BRAN--Middlings--Armour's

Stock and Hog Feed.

All these feeds we have in stock and would be pleased to have you buy your feeds of us.

COAL of all descriptions---both hard and soft. Hocking Valley, Virginia and Kentucky. All the highest grade of their kinds. Buy your coal now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.

Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

One Secret of Success

Is the ability to know what you want and a sincere desire to get it.

If you want to accumulate wealth and are willing to try and get it, let our bank help you. Open an account this very day.

Do not delay. It pays to be Associated with a sound, reliable Dependable bank like ours.

If you will do your part, we will agree to do ours. Our interests are mutual. We want to see every one succeed. Start with us, and stay with us.

You will have no cause to regret it.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

Finds Thieves Who Stole Hides

Pair of Allen Co. Brothers Admit Guilt.

Attached to the arrest of David and Millard Wells, of Allen county, by Sheriff Twite L. Hoodelmier and his deputy, H. H. Squires, at midnight Sunday on a charge of grand larceny, are some details of peculiar human interest.

David Wells is twenty-one years old and his brother is nineteen. Their father is dead and their mother lives at Grabill. They themselves live together in an old hut on the Ohio state line thirty-seven miles southeast of Auburn. The doors are nailed shut and access to the place is obtained only by crawling through the windows. The house is unfit for human habitation. Millard is six feet, one and a half inches tall and he served in the army and navy, entering the service during the World war. Although he was very young he was able to get into the army because of his unusual size. His brother could not pass the physical examination.

While living in the hut, which was formerly the home of the entire family, the Wells boys have not been working very much. Petty thefts in that vicinity have been blamed on them, but could not be directly traced to them.

A brother of the boys, Henry, lives with Harvey Kimes, the well known St. Joe trapper. They visited at the Kimes home a few days and then returned to their home at the hut. Shortly thereafter, on Wednesday night, December 28, five racoon hides, seven polecat hides and an opossum hide disappeared from Mr. Kimes' garage, where they were hanging. Mr. Kimes places their value at $50.

David and Millard Wells were at once suspected of the crime. It was learned they had sold the hides to a Fort Wayne fur dealer for $27. The sheriff has been on their trail ever since, but was not able to place his hands on them until Sunday night. He and Mr. Squires left Auburn at 9 o'clock and they found the young thieves in bed at the hut. They admitted they had stolen the furs.

Although they at first denied it, the boys, Monday morning in the DeKalb county jail, also confessed the theft of a Ford automobile. The car belonged to a farmer living near Grabill and it was stolen from his garage the night of December 27. The Wells brothers started with it for the Kimes place to steal the furs, but near St. Joe they had trouble with it and abandoned the machine in the roadway. It was returned to the owner two days later.

After leaving the Ford, the Wells boys spent the remainder of the night and the next day under cover. The following night they stole the furs, walked to Spencerville with them and there took a train for Fort Wayne.

The affidavit for the arrest of the prisoners was filed in the court of Justice of the Peace T. C. Ford by the deputy sheriff.—Star.

County Ships Car of Fine Cattle

The best carload of cattle that has been shipped from Garrett for a long time was the twenty-five head loaded at the stock yards Saturday for the county by M. E. Leighty, superintendent of the county farm, for shipment to Chicago.

A year ago Mr. Leighty and the county commissioners decided that much rough feed that could not be disposed of was going to waste each year at the county farm that could be profitably fed to cattle. The cattle were bought and taken to the farm. They weighed when purchased an average of 650 pounds a head. The twenty-five head shipped Saturday averaged 1,146 pounds, a gain of nearly 500 lbs., each. In addition to the ones shipped to Chicago, Clark & Co., at Garrett purchased ten head paying for them the same price a pound received for the ones shipped.

Mr. Leighty says the cattle were fed much rough feed that otherwise would have been of no value and in addition 200 loads of manure was distributed over the farm and ploughed under for fertilizer.

The care of the cattle has not entailed any additional expense to the county as the inmates at the farm perform the work.

Mr. Leighty, accompanied by County Commissionets Perry De. Pew and Lloyd Yeiser went to Chicago early Monday morning to attend the sale of the cattle.—Star.

Mrs. H. L. Hutton Dies.

Mrs. H. L. Hutton, aged 69 years, died at the home of Ivan Hutton living six miles east of Auburn, Monday night at 9 o'clock from pneumonia, after an illness of a week.

Mrs. Hutton was born October 14, 1853, and for a number of years, lived in Auburn, making her home for the past seven years with her son Ivan Hutton, east of Auburn.

Mrs. Hutton was a member of the Church of God in this city and was strong in her religious belief.

Five children survive the mother, Mary Apple, of Milan, Michigan; John Hutton living on East Seventh street; Carl Forsythe, of Auburn; Carl Hutton living on the Butler road, and Ivan Hutton the son at whose home the deceased died.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at the late home six miles east of Auburn and was conducted by Rev. A. P. Bourns. Burial was made at the cemetery between Concord and St. Joe.-Star

Train Kills Four School Children.

Tuesday morning four children were instantly killed and thirty-five others were injured when a Pennsylvania fast freight crashed into the buss in which they were riding to school near Van Wert, Ohio.

A heavy fog hung close to the ground and the approaching train was obscured from the vision of the hack driver. J. E. Trimble, engineer; W. E. Koons, fireman, and Jas. Raines, conductor of the train, all of Ft. Wayne, were immediately arrested by Sheriff J. B. Sells.

Quarantined for Small Pox.

Ray Herrick is quite sick with the small pox and it has been learned that his little son is taking the disease. The family is quarantined, the card being placed on the house Sunday by Dr. Sheffer, our health officer. Mr. Herrick made his trip to Ft. Wayne, last Thursday, but at night began to feel bad. He discovered small patches breaking out on his body and on examination by the family doctor he was informed that he was getting the small pox.

We hope that this disease will not have a chance to spread any farther and by using all precautions it is probable that it will not

Chas. Bassett is driving the Herrick buss while Ray is confined to his home.

News Correspondent For Coburn Corners

For some weeks The News has been without a regular news correspondent from Coburn's Corners, hence the absence of the regular column under that head.

And now we are pleased to announce to the people of that community that Mrs. Meade Baker has been asked to give us that service and she has kindly consented to do so. However you will be expected to willingly give her your items early enough in the week that she can mail them to us on Monday or not later than Tuesday morning of each week. Mrs. Baker's telephone number is No. 6802, St Joe, so if it is not possible for her to see you personally, you can reach her by phone.

St. Joe Garage

Boost St. Joe

We can make you a dandy proposition on TIRES. Buy now. Pay as you use them.

Hot Shot Batteries--a quick start.

$2.00 This week only.

Why buy new Tubes? --Dannie can vulcanize your old ones.

Lens—Chains—Boots—Bulbs.

DANNY and VEENON on the job every minute

Phone—Days 36. Nights 95.

Business! How is your business? Is it growing better or worse? No matter [illegible] fault

The business that is growing today is the business that is run by a man who can fight. Get out any fight for your business. Don't be a pessimist or a grouch. —The GRAY Line.

The Name that stands for Stability

A Business Change.

F. B. Leighty sells his half interest in the Central Grocery to H. G. Hursh, his business partner. The change was made this week. Mr. Hursh states that his policy shall be one price to all, when buying produce or selling groceries or merchandise. A fair marginal profit is all that shall be expected from the customer. The business shall be free from foreign control, being in alliance with no incorporation or syndicate. This new business change will start off with a sale on the entire stock at a reduced price on next Friday and Saturday, January 13th and 14th. This sale will include shoes, rubber goods of all kinds, dry goods, groceries.

Chosen with Purposes.

Dr. James M. Gray, dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago, in a call he has issued for the Annual Founder's Week Conference to be held Feb. 1st to 5th inclusive, states that the Conference speakers have been chosen with reference to the following purposes:

To meet the attacks of Modernism on the fundamental doctrines of the Christian faith; to enlighten Christian believers concerning the extravagances and disorders of professed faith healers and "Tongues" movement; to stimulate missionary zeal; to quicken the hope of believers concerning the return of Christ promised in the Scriptures; to afford instruction in the practical problems of to-day in the evangelistic field, the sphere of rescue missions, the pastoral office, and the management of the Sunday-school; the deepening and refreshing of spiritual life; and the annual meeting of the Institute's Alumni Association.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $3000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:

$25.00 a month for five years,
$12.50 a month for five years,
$6.25 a month for ten years.

If Permanently and Totaly Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of 60, Premiums on this policy will cease and the Company will pay you $25 a month as long as you live, and at you death the full $2500 will be paid to your beneficiary.

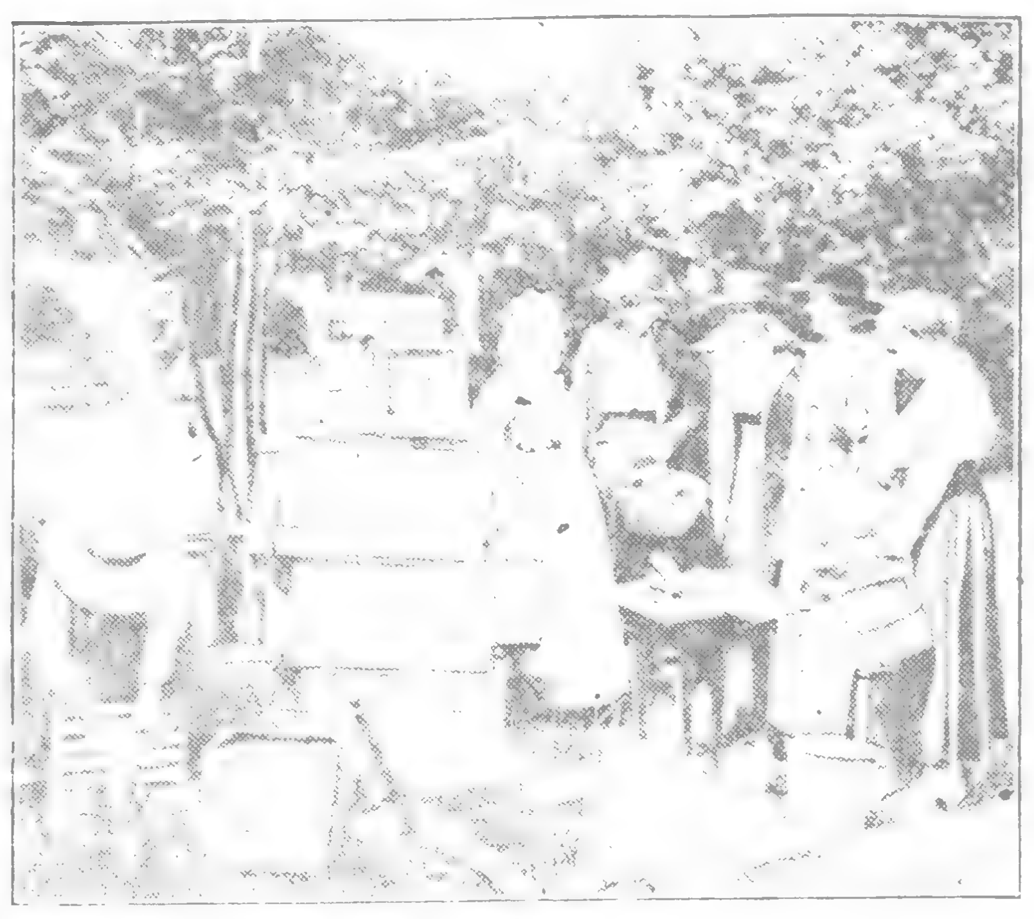
Full particulars of this Perfect Policy given upon request by

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

JANUARY

L 912

EGG CIRCLES AID FARMERS IN SOLVING MARKETING PROBLEMS



An Egg-Circle Pay Day Gives Opportunity for Exchange of Experiences.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When it is considered that the value of the poultry and egg crop is equal to that of either the hay or wheat crop, and that there is a total annual loss of nearly 8 per cent of the eggs marketed, it is evident that many producers would be benefited by a change in the methods of handling and marketing eggs. Investigations by the United States Department of Agriculture have shown that a good share of this big loss occurs as a [illegible]

Organize a Few Egg Producers.

In [illegible] communities the problem of [illegible] eggs has [illegible] been useful in improving [illegible] of eggs in various ways in [illegible] methods of marketing. [illegible] them have given much [illegible] to selecting standard breeds [illegible] more or larger eggs. They [illegible] also made a study of better [illegible] feeding, and shelter.

[illegible] improve the quality of the poultry [illegible] one of the most successful egg [illegible] a large incubator house [illegible] capacity, where early [illegible] for the members [illegible] cost. This is done in order to [illegible] early maturing pullets, thus [illegible] eggs during the fall when [illegible] are usually scarce and high [illegible]. This company also has a [illegible] room for eggs where they are [illegible] sorted to weight (about 24 [illegible] to the dozen), packed in cartons and shipped on contract orders. The eggs are all guaranteed to be true [illegible] they advertise the fancy [illegible] their cartons or cases, and [illegible] prices are paid to the members. [illegible] a year dividends are paid each member in proportion to the number of eggs marketed through the company and the time of year eggs were brought in, a larger dividend being paid per dozen for eggs brought in during the fall and winter than for those brought in during the spring and summer. A regular trade is established with discriminating consumers, with city clubs, with the best class of hotels and restaurants, and with fancy grocers for a supply each day or week. The reputation thus established enables the association to fix its price at several cents a dozen above the regular market quotations. This association, in common with many others, co-operates in buying chicken feed and other supplies.

Attractive Package Is Important.

One of the very important considerations in getting a good price for eggs thus marketed is an attractive package. Some of the most successful shippers have done away with dirty, wooden cases, and use a heavy fiberboard case which will hold from 15 to 20 pasteboard cartons of 12 eggs each. Advertising is printed upon both the cartons and the case. Some of the circles market by parcel post within the first and second zones; that is, 150 miles. When eggs are sold in this way, special care must be given to packing.

Another marketing method that has been developed with a good deal of success in dairy sections is to sell through the creamery. Eggs can be delivered to the creamery with the cream or milk, and the creamery officials are often able to work up a fancy trade with those who buy their butter.

The objects of such organizations, as given in the sample constitution compiled by the Department of Agriculture, will give a good idea of what most of these circles attempt to accomplish. They are: The securing of better strains of poultry; to produce more eggs of good color and size; to handle eggs more carefully in order to be able to guarantee them, and thus create a reputation; to market same more directly to the consumer; to purchase supplies in a co-operative way; and to do such other things as may prove of benefit to members of the community.

Now Is Good Time to Organize.

The winter months, when there is usually more leisure for farmers to get together and talk over their problems, should be the best time to make the first move in organizing an egg circle. Marketing eggs is not such a problem at this season, but when the hens begin to lay heavily in the spring it will be a great convenience to have an organization already in working order.

Detailed information regarding the organization of egg circles may be obtained from the Department of Agriculture.

AVOID DISAGREEABLE SMELLS

Unless Scrupulous Care Is Taken Unpleasant Odors Are Likely to Hurt Products.

In winter smells are apt to find their way to milk and butter quite as readily as in summer. Now these products must be kept in the house, and some artificial heat must be used to keep them from freezing. This close confinement is very apt to bring an unpleasant smell or taste to milk and butter unless the most scrupulous care is taken. Milk ought never to be kept anywhere near the kitchen. If it is, some bad smells will surely be imparted to the milk and cream.

CHARCOAL GOOD PREVENTIVE

Has Great Purifying Effect in Absorbing Noxious Gases—Aids Digestive Disorders.

The value of charcoal can scarcely be over-emphasized, and it should be fed to fowls of all ages as a preventive of bowel disorders and disease. It is best to keep it before the fowls at all times, as there is no danger of them eating too much. Charcoal has a great purifying effect in absorbing noxious gases, and will correct many digestive disorders.

GOOD DAIRYMAN IS DEFINED

Among Other Things He Should Meet and Know Other Men Who Can Handle Cows.

To be a good dairyman you must meet and know other dairymen who know how to handle cows. Read the agricultural papers, and the paper devoted to your breed. Be familiar with the weak and strong points of each animal in the herd and strive to prevent a recurrence of the weak points in the offspring by skillful mating.

ESSENTIALS FOR DAIRY BULL

Future Development of Herd Depends Largely on What Calves Inherit From Him.

Too often the bull is housed in a dark, dirty stall and receives but little attention. Remember the bull is half the herd and that the future development of the herd depends largely upon what the calves inherit from him. The bull at all times should have proper feed and plenty of exercise.

The young bull should be fed rather liberally as this is the only means of getting his full size developed and an undersized animal is always looked upon unfavorably.

RAISE CALVES SUCCESSFULLY

Feeder Must Have General Knowledge of Subject and Then Apply It in Practical Manner.

In order to raise calves successfully the feeder must have a general knowledge of the subject, and then apply his knowledge in a practical manner. It is highly important, also, that sanitation be considered one of the most important factors involved in the raising of calves; that all milk must not be lower in temperature than the body heat of the animal, and that all feeds be increased very gradually in amounts.

GIVE BIRDS PLENTY OF GRIT

Good Plan to Dump Supply of Sharp Sand Near Henhouse for Fowls to Work Over.

See that your hens get plenty of grit, either in the form of sharp sand, which can be dumped near the henhouse for the birds to work over, or in the form of a good commercial sandstone grit which has been washed and graded to the right size.

Seen and Heard In Indiana

Indianapolis.—Indiana [illegible] 1921 from the 92 counties $12,579,000, an increase of $1,750,000 over the total collected in 1920, figures compiled in the office of state auditor show. The 1920 increase over 1919 was $1,919,000. The 1921 total was the greatest ever collected by the state. The collections came from the state tax levies, unclaimed fees, docket fees, common school fund and permanent endowment fund interests. The December settlement of the state [illegible] office with county auditors [illegible] state $5,899,000. This with the June yield of [illegible] made the total of $12,579,000. The December settlement included taxes paid at the fall taxpaying period and the June settlement included taxes paid in spring period. A part of the June and December collections are returned to the counties, through the distribution of the common school fund, which was raised principally by one of the levies.

Indianapolis.—Figures prepared in the office of the county treasurer show that $1,456,406.36 was paid to the state in taxes by Marion county persons in 1921, including $753,949.88 for the first half of the year and $702,456.48 for the last half. The various items in the last half of 1921 were: State general tax fund, $39,894.13; benevolent institutions, $196,413.74; state permanent endowment fund interest, $1,683.41; Circuit court docket fees, $426; state soldiers' memorial fund, $19,974.62; state highway fund, $129,831.63; state school fund, $194,038.84; state educational institutions, $93,212.24; state vocational education fund, $6,669.80, and state common school fund interest, $20,311.87.

Lafayette.—Farmers in the "pocket" region of Indiana, including the southwestern part of the state, are trying to improve their potato crops by the use of good seed and they are co-operating with the extension department of Purdue university in obtaining seed that has been certified as to its purity of strain and yielding ability. Only recently farmers in Gibson, Warrick, Vanderburg and Posey counties purchased five car loads of certified seed from a northern state, all of the Early Ohio or Irish Cobbler for early planting, and Rural New Yorkers for late planting.

Indianapolis.—A general program for reduction of the salaries of assistant highway superintendents of Marion county was agreed on by the county commissioners. Leo K. Fesler, county auditor, was instructed by the commissioners to have a resolution drafted to that effect. The salaries, it is said, of the assistant road superintendents will be reduced from 40 to 30 cents an hour, the salary of laborers from 20 to 25 cents an hour, and that for men with teams employed on the county highway work from 50 to 40 cents an hour.

Martinsville.—Two men who were identified as robbers who held up the bank of Waverly were captured at Centerton, after a revolver battle in which one of the men was shot and seriously wounded. The wounded man gave the name of Rudolph Shonfield and his address as Wabash. He was taken to Indianapolis. The other man said he was Elzo Clevenger of Muncie. The amount of $1,353 stolen from the bank was found tied in a small sack about Clevenger's neck.

Newcastle.—The city treasurer controversy at Newcastle occasioned by a new state law which prohibits city treasurers in fourth class cities having less than $100,000 utility revenue, was settled by the new city council when it passed on ordinances creating the office of deputy county treasurer and fixing the salary at $1,300, the sum allowed the county treasurer and county auditor for handling the city's business. Mrs. Nettie Colson was elected to the new position.

Petersburg.—The Vulcan Coal company, which has options on 2,000 acres of coal land in Monroe township, Pike county, near Spurgeon, has started taking up its options, paying from $100 to $125 an acre for the land. During the last two weeks more than 300 acres of land have been bought and paid for, and many farmers have been asked to prepare abstracts for their land. The company will open two stripping mines just east of Spurgeon.

Gary.—R. O. Johnson, mayor, who took office January 2, has announced that he will add a number of women to the police force whose duties will include that of keeping young girls off the streets late at night. He has asked the council to pass a curfew ordinance and the policewomen will be instructed to enforce it.

Portland.—Thomas H. Fleming, mayor, has demanded an accounting of the various departments of the city. A thorough examination of the city records is the demand of the new mayor and the council and it has been decided to ask the state board of accounts to take charge at once of the city records.

Evansville.—Resolutions urging immediate grand jury action against alleged election law violators and pledging support in election contest suits have been mailed to Warren T. McCray, governor of Indiana; U. S. Lesh, attorney-general, and George D. Heilman, prosecuting attorney of Vanderburg county, by the Men's Club of Vanderburg county.

Shelbyville.—Appointive officers, serving the city of Shelbyville, have been told by the mayor that they should expect no salary increases in the next four years.

Hammond.—A decided change has come over the East Chicago-Indiana Harbor industrial district since the holidays. Producers report a [illegible] number of orders and increase in operations when the plants reopened. The Inland Steel [illegible] jumped from 40 to 50 per cent and further increases are expected. All of the No. 1 side of the Inland mills are operating. The sheet mills [illegible] were completely shut down during the holidays, are again running full. In addition the bar, plate, sheet [illegible] inch mills are running. The [illegible] tive departments of [illegible] Tank Car corporation closed down during the holidays, started work. The "nine-eighteen" and busheling [illegible] of the Republic Iron and Steel [illegible] continued work. The Steel [illegible] Tube company, shut down for New Year's, returned to work on [illegible] per cent basis. The Edward Valve and Manufacturing company, closed down temporarily, is expected to resume operation the middle of the month.

Indianapolis.—The Indiana board of agriculture elected Thomas A. Grant of Lowell, president; S. W. Taylor of Boonville, vice president; Newt Brown of Franklin, recording secretary; William M. Jones of Fairmount, financial secretary, and Forrest Neal, general superintendent of the state fair grounds. Mr. Grant was re-elected unanimously. Mr. Taylor won with 12 votes, while Harry M. Moberly of Shelbyville, an opponent, received six votes and Edgar Philips of Walton, another opponent, received two votes. Mr. Brown was re-elected with twelve votes, Charles N. Lindley of Salem, his opponent, received six votes. Mr. Jones and Mr. Neal were re-elected without opposition. The board is preparing to issue bonds, revise its 1922 premium list and otherwise arrange for the 1922 fair.

Bluffton.—Contending that constitutional amendment No. 1 (citizenship), adopted in the state-wide special election September 6, 1921, does not require registration of voters and that a law requiring registration is unconstitutional, former State Senator Abram Simmons brought suit in the Wells Circuit court, asking a restraining order to enjoin county officials and party chairmen from carrying out the registration of voters. The suit, brought in behalf "of all the voters" of Indiana, is designed to test the constitutionality of the existing law. Simmons avers the registration of voters would entail a needless expenditure by the state of $200,000.

Indianapolis.—The state highway commission will receive bids for paving unimproved gaps of the National road on January 26, it was announced. The portions of the road not paved comprise a total distance of about 56 miles. Bids will be received for brick, concrete and bituminous concrete construction. The gaps on the road are as follows: Brazil to Manhattan, Terre Haute to Seeleyville, Greenfield to Knightstown, Knightstown to Lewisville, Lewisville to Wayne county line, west line of Marion county to point ten miles west of Plainfield.

Indianapolis.—Mrs. Malyn J. Behrman of Indianapolis, who was elected by the county commissioners to serve as justice of the peace of Washington township, has been sworn in and received instructions from the county commissioners as to her work and arranged bond. Mrs. Behrman is the first woman to serve as justice of the peace in Marion county, county officials believe, and it is probable that she is the first woman in the state to hold such a position.

Indianapolis.—Because of the acute shortage of graduate nurses, organized trained nurses in Indiana have arranged to carry on in this state a division of the nation-wide campaign to recruit students for nurses' courses. Miss Annabel Petersen, assistant division director for the Red Cross public health service and also of the public health division of the state board of health, heads the committee in charge of the Indiana campaign.

Indianapolis.—Compensation claims of every ex-service man in Indiana against the government are to be investigated immediately by agents working from the subdistrict office of the United States Veterans' union in Indianapolis. John H. Ale, in charge of the office, said he believed there are 15,000 ex-soldiers in the state who have asked relief of the government and that at least 25 per cent of them have not received attention.

Columbia City.—The fire losses of Columbia City for the year 1921 were unusually heavy, totaling $157,640. This large total was due to the Harper Buggy company fire which resulted in the destruction of two large factory buildings valued at $140,000, two residence properties and damage to a number of nearby dwellings. The loss aside from this one fire would not have been much more than $5,000.

Frankfort.—Fire of undetermined origin destroyed the mill and engine room of the National Handle company. The damage is estimated at $30,000 and is covered by insurance. The plant, which is a branch of the American Fork and Hoe company, had been shut down for several months.

Princeton.—Seventy men were put back to work at the Southern railroad shops here, making the force now employed 270. The railroad regards 500 men as a normal force. This number has not been employed since December, 1920, when there were 506 on the pay roll.

Indianapolis.—Efficacy of the "blue sky" law in preventing loss of large sums by Indiana persons through investment in worthless securities was praised by Ed Jackson, secretary of state, in an address before the Indianapolis Real Estate Board.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS
6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS
25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

Genuine
BAYER
ASPIRIN
WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache	Rheumatism
Toothache	Neuralgia	Neuritis
Earache	Lumbago	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

PISO'S
SAFE AND SANE
for Coughs & Colds
This syrup is different from all others
Quick relief. No opiates. 35c everywhere

Skin Tortured Babies Sleep
Mothers Rest
After Cuticura
Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

HELP INVALIDS TO FORGET

Presence of a Canary or Goldfish in the Sickroom Invariably Has Beneficial Effect

Next time you [illegible] the furnishings of which [illegible] you spend watching the small fish as they swim slowly about or dart about in pursuit of each other.

Probably you will conclude you were indulging the usual tendency of the normal person to be attracted to moving objects. In sick persons and convalescents this tendency is more pronounced, and in the aged and very young it is still more so.

That psychology of this attraction was given by Dr. Edward N. Leavy, formerly veterinarian to the [illegible] in Central park zoo. He is now connected with a Fifth avenue pet store.

"Sick persons lying in bed spend a great deal of time watching the goldfish if an aquarium is in their room," he said. "It takes their minds off their pains and aches and is very beneficial."

Canaries share with goldfish the honor of being the chief animate entertainment to the sick.—New York Sun.

One isn't troubled much by the laws against violence if he isn't troublesome.

Making Good an O[illegible]

A process has [illegible] whereby [illegible]

The Wrong Foot.

[illegible] recently [illegible] Taking him to be [illegible] senger, I proceeded to slap [illegible] said box, clad [illegible] uniform he took thereout [illegible] me. The shoe is the [illegible] erroneous peddie. [illegible] London Morning Post.

National Emblems.

The rose, [illegible] flower, was chosen as the country's [illegible] the [illegible] Roses. [illegible] Irish hearts because St. Patrick used it to illustrate one of his sermons. The thistle was adopted as the national emblem of Scotland because, in the reign of Malcolm II, a moat filled with thistles saved a Scotch fortress from Danish invasion.

A Forgotten Art.

In New York's streets there may be counted hundreds of signs that read "Watchmaker." Yet perhaps less than a dozen of such concerns could make a watch.

The crooked path is longest.

You are entitled to the benefit of the doubt. Why not take advantage of it?

The law is very careful in protecting the rights of a prisoner charged with a crime.

How about the Law of Common Sense and the man who has committed an error only? Isn't this a good place to use the benefit of the doubt, too?

Take your own case: If you don't know for sure whether tea or coffee is harming you, you do know that many are harmed by the drug element in tea and coffee, and that headaches, nervousness, or high blood pressure are symptoms which often tell that the drug, caffeine, is giving the nervous system too much jolt.

Probably you know, too, that some people can't drink a cup of tea or coffee at bed-time, and sleep well that night.

Where many have been harmed by tea and coffee, and you may be harmed, isn't it well to put the benefit of the doubt on your side before doubt becomes an unpleasant certainty?

There's charm without harm in Postum—a pure cereal beverage, rich in flavor, fully satisfying; the favorite table drink of thousands.

Suppose you try giving yourself this benefit today, and keep up the test for ten days; then judge the results. See if you don't feel better and work better. You can get Postum wherever good food and drink are sold or served.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Postum for Health
"There's a Reason"

JANUARY

L 912

0014

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognized Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

VI.

HIRE GOVERNMENT HELP

The civil service commission hires all employees in the classified service of the government. The only thing to be said about the classified service, is that it has not yet been classified. But you shall hear what the civil service commission has to say about hiring help, without comment from me.

There is an utter lack of definitely planned and well-organized employment policy in the government service.

There is need for a centralized employment office with jurisdiction in all matters relating to employment.

The employment methods of the government [illegible] such as to serve [illegible] for private business.

There is at present no central control over the executive service short of the President. The President is a busy man and cannot concern himself with the details of the executive departments.

The lack of efficiency in government offices has a marked effect on private business.

[illegible] information concerning the number of federal civil employees in [illegible] branches of the service and the amount of the government pay roll are not readily available.

An official register, or blue book, is issued every two years. It is out of date long before it is printed.

A provision of the civil service rules theoretically gives the civil service [illegible] authority to collect and [illegible] complete personnel statistics [illegible] labor and expense involved, [illegible] practically prohibit the collection and compilation of reliable statistics.

[illegible] the commission [illegible] is the absence of [illegible] to enforce its findings. The [illegible] can make recommendations [illegible] departments and offices [illegible] but it cannot [illegible].

[illegible] what is known as [illegible] January 16, 1883, [illegible] the United States [illegible] commission. The law was [illegible] part the evils [illegible] system which [illegible] the four-year-tenure-of-[illegible] 1820.

[illegible] first 40 years after the [illegible] our government, ad[illegible] practice with regard to [illegible] civil service seemed to [illegible] intention of the founders. The Constitution fixed the term of no officer in the executive branch of the government except those of the President and vice president. It was the established usage during these first 40 years to permit executive officers except members of the cabinet, to hold office for an unlimited period during good behavior. The practice was changed in 1820 by the four-year-tenure act. The spoils system, as it was officially described as early as 1835 was introduced and extended until it permeated the entire civil service of the country.

The fundamental purpose of the civil service law was to establish, in the parts of the service covered by its provisions, a merit system whereby selection for appointment should be made upon the basis of demonstrated relative fitness, without regard to political, religious, or other such considerations.

The act requires that the rules shall provide, among other things, for open competitive examinations for testing the fitness of applicants for the classified service, the making of appointments from among those passing with highest grades, an apportionment of appointments in the departments at Washington among the states and territories, a period of probation before absolute appointment and the prohibition of the use of official authority to coerce the political action of any person or body.

In 1883, the year in which the civil service law was enacted, 13,924 positions in the civil service were made subject to competition. The entire number of positions in the federal executive civil service on June 30, 1916, was 480,327. At the height of the war expansion there were approximately 1,000,000 men and women employed in the federal executive civil service, about 700,000 of whom held positions subject to competition. On July 31, 1920, the entire number of federal executive civil positions, as nearly as can be estimated, had been reduced to [illegible]. Approximately 450,000 of these were subject to competition, or, in other words, in the classified service. The force is still slowly but steadily decreasing.

During the 19 months of our participation in the war the civil service commission gave competitive examinations under the civil service law and rules to slightly less than 1,000,000 persons, and about 400,000 persons with tested qualifications were supplied by the commission to the service. A normal year's business is about 200,000 persons examined and about 50,000 appointed.

MAKE YOUR VOICE HEARD

[illegible] Mellon of the treasury, in [illegible] Representative Fordney, [illegible] the committee [illegible] ways [illegible] of the house of representa[illegible] "Ordinary expenditures [illegible] three quarters of the fis[illegible] year, 1921, have been $3,783,771,-[illegible] or at the rate of about $5,000,-000,000 for the year. . . . According to the latest estimates of the spending [illegible] ordinary expenditures [illegible] the fiscal year 1922 in[illegible] interest on the public debt, [illegible] over $4,000,000,000.

"The nation cannot continue to spend at this shocking rate. As the President said in his message, the burden is unbearable, and there are two avenues of relief. 'One is resistance in appropriation and the other is the utmost economy in administration.'"

R. C. Leffingwell, formerly an assistant secretary of the treasury, whom I have quoted previously in these articles and who is still deeply and actively interested in securing retrenchment in national expenditures, commenting on this utterance of Secretary Mellon, says: "Why should there be retrenchment in public expenditure? Why does the secretary of the treasury speak of current and estimated expenditures as shocking? What is the evil that we are discussing and what is its effect?

"Government expenditures must be met from taxes. To the extent that they are met promptly from taxes and from honest taxes directly laid upon the incomes of the people, and in proportion to those incomes, exaggeration of the evil of government expenditure is avoided. Government expenditure takes the money of all the people for the supposed benefit of a portion of the people, honestly or dishonestly, equally or unequally, avowedly by direct taxation, or surreptitiously by the indirect taxation which results from inflation of currency and credit and of the public debt.

"Government expenditure takes the fruits of the earth and the labor of the people and diverts them from the productive and reproductive enterprises of men, from the natural enjoyment of the men, who by their prudence, foresight and effort, created the wealth and made it available, to the sometimes benevolent and sometimes belligerent, but almost always economically wasteful, purposes of government.

"Government exploits all of us for the benefit, or supposed benefit, of some of us. Yielding to the vague aspirations of men for a better world or a better distribution of the good things of this earth, government imposes upon all of us ever-increasing burdens in the effort to benefit vociferous and organized minorities.

"Each of the executive departments is concerned to improve its service and to discover new and useful fields of service. The entire organization of the army, of the navy, of each of the departments, independent offices and agencies of the government, is devoted to an important task. Its particular function seems of vital usefulness, even necessity. Experts in each are alive to its defects and to the opportunities for usefulness which have not been availed of.

"The secretary, or other head of the department, drawn from private life, perhaps wholly ignorant at the outset of the nature and extent of its problems, promptly becomes the advocate of the policies and demands of his permanent assistants and bureau chiefs. If he does not become such advocate, he may break down the morale of his organization and possibly lose the confidence of his personnel.

"Behind it all is the pressure of organized interests in the constituencies, which are the beneficiaries of specific expenditures, operating upon politicians, executive departments, senators and congressmen. The strident voice of greed is heard in the market place and in legislative halls; the voice of the people is barely audible.

"The fact that each project is considered separately, without reference, either in executive departments or congress, to ways and means of financing it, prevents concentration of popular opinion on the awful total. All agree that there must be economy, but as each item is presented all seemingly agree that that is not the proper field for economy. There must be economy, but there must be a merchant marine, whatever the cost. There must be economy, but the government must pay high wages to railroad employees and furnish transportation on the railroads at less than cost. There must be economy, but the World war soldiers must have their bonus. There must be economy, but Civil war pensions must be increased. There must be economy, but we must prepare for war, regardless of expense."

You know this is true. The new budget law will help very much this condition, but unless you are interested, continuously, actively, openly interested, your money will not be saved.

GOOD ROADS

TRAFFIC WEAR ON BRIDGES

New Instrument Measures With Scientific Precision the Effect of Every Shock.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A new instrument devised by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture measures with scientific precision the effect of every shock and blow delivered by moving vehicles in crossing a bridge. Attached to any part of the bridge structure, this instrument makes a photographic record of the effect of the moving load. The amount of stretching or shortening of the part as a result of the shocks is represented by a fine black line on the photograph.

No blow or shock can be delivered so quickly that the instrument will not record its effect. It has never before been possible to measure the effect of such blows. Engineers have long been able to calculate the effect of standing loads very exactly; but because of their inability to measure the effect of quickly delivered blows or impacts, they have never been able to proportion the various parts of a bridge with absolute assurance. It has been necessary to make a liberal allowance for this unknown quantity. In some cases the allowance has not been sufficient and the bridges have collapsed under moving loads.

Many bridges still in service are probably too weak to withstand safely the sharp blows of swiftly moving vehicles, though they will safely carry the same vehicles at rest or moving at slow speed. The familiar warning posted at the portals of a bridge: "Speed limit on this bridge eight miles per hour," means that the design of the bridge to which it is attached is not strong enough to allow for impact. In the light of the recent experiments with motortrucks in which it was shown that a swiftly moving motortruck may strike a blow equivalent to seven times its actual weight, it is rather surprising, the department road experts say, that failures have been so few.

Concrete Structure Built to Withstand Swiftly Moving, Heavily Loaded Motortrucks.

It is believed this new measuring instrument will soon do away with uncertainty. The knowledge gained by its use will enable the engineer to design bridges which are sure to hold up under fast-moving vehicles, and to build such bridges without undue waste of material and money.

GOOD ROADS AID PROSPERITY

Sum of $300 000,000 Lost Last Year by Farmers Unable to Get to Market Over Highways.

Good roads are the greatest single factors in securing and maintaining "community prosperity." Last year the sum of $300,000,000 was lost by farmers in being unable to market their products over bad roads. Roads that are impassable during part of the year cost farmers in every community thousands of dollars a week.

When one stops to think that in every township laid out in sections there are 72 miles of roads, it is easy to imagine the mileage of roads in this country, says a writer in an Exchange. Of these hundreds of thousands of miles of roads and streets, comparatively few miles are paved, and a noted authority on road building prophesies that not more than 8 per cent of all the roads in this country will be paved by 1926.

It would be excellent if we could have all hard roads—brick, concrete or macadam roads, which are good all-year roads. We should have more of them. But it is impracticable to pave every country road. However, it is just as important to have good laterals leading to the main roads as it is to have hard surfaced main roads. So we must do the best we can and properly maintain our dirt roads and streets.

Automobiles Must Take Turn.

Twenty-one thousand miles of roads have been built with federal aid in the last five years, and these, of course, help out a whole lot, but progress may have to be even greater in road building unless the automobiles are to take turn about.

Pavements.

Motortrucks ruin pavements about as fast as they are laid. As fast as pavements get stronger, trucks get larger and loads heavier.

True Detective Stories

THE RED HAND

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

"ALL aboard! All aboard!" The guards who had charge of the London local which was due to stop at Hackney shortly after six o'clock in the evening, were even more insistent than usual in their demands one night in the summer, for the train was already late, and trying to make up time. But a cry of consternation from one of the men who was boarding the train brought the attendants flocking around him.

"Look!" he cried, pointing through the glass of the compartment toward the cushions of the seat on the far side. My God, man! Don't you see? They are soaked with blood! And there's a man's walking stick and a black leather bag! Where's the occupant of this compartment?"

That was the question which puzzled every member of the London police force, and especially Col. James Fraser, head of the department.

Where was the man who had very evidently been murdered in the coach? Who was he?

The black bag contained no information whatever, and the walking stick was merely an ordinary one, lacking even initials. The guard who had charge of that car said that he "seemed to recall two men getting into that compartment at Fenchurst street, in London," but he wasn't sure.

When Colonel Fraser examined the car carefully, however, he found the print of a bloody hand—a hand with short, squat fingers—on the wall of the coach, evidently where the murderer had steadied himself after committing the crime. But where was the body?

This angle of the case was soon cleared up by the discovery of the body of a man near the railroad tracks in Victoria park. The head and face had been so disfigured that identification would have been almost impossible, had it not been for the card which was found in his vest pocket. By means of this it [illegible] found that the dead man was [illegible]tain Thomas Briggs, chief clerk [illegible] London banking house, who had [illegible] on his way to visit his daug[illegible] Peckham. According to [illegible]ciates, he was in the habit of [illegible] a considerable sum of money [illegible] him, and also wore a very h[illegible] watch and chain. When [illegible] was discovered, however, [illegible] chain and the money were missing.

Immediately after the body was discovered Colonel Fraser measured the fingers of the left hand, but found that they were entirely too long and well shaped to fit the bloody imprint on the wall of the coach.

Pinning his faith to the fact that the murderer would probably try to sell Brigg's watch and chain, the police settled down to watch all the pawn brokers in and around London, but days passed without any developments from this end of the case.

Finally, just as Fraser was nearing the end of his patience a second-hand dealer in Cheapside reported that a chain, similar to the one worn by the dead man, had been brought into his establishment on the day after the murder. The chain, he said, had been placed in with some others, and had slipped his mind, until he commenced to go over his stock. The only description he could give of the man who sold it was that he was "foreign-looking," in fact he felt certain he was a German.

More in order to quiet the press than because he attached any real importance to the discovery, Colonel Fraser made public the details of the dealer's story, and the following morning a man called at police headquarters, bringing with him a card which he said his daughter had found on the floor of the room recently occupied by Franz Muller. The card bore the name of the second-hand dealer who had purchased the chain!

Muller, stated Fraser's informant, was a German who had boarded in his house for some time past, but who had suddenly disappeared, leaving most of his effects behind him.

"Didn't happen to leave a photograph, did he?"

"Yes, sir, he did. Here it is," and the man produced a picture which the second-hand dealer immediately identified as the man who had sold him the chain.

It was a matter of only a few hours to trace the German to a steamship office and to find that he had sailed, 48 hours before, for America. Wishing his own men to have credit for the capture, Fraser dispatched two of them to New York on a fast boat, and when Muller stepped off the gangplank he was arrested for the murder of Thomas Briggs, although he vigorously protested his innocence, and stated that he had bought the chain from a man on the street. As further proof of his assertion, he produced Briggs' watch, which he said he had bought at the same time as the chain.

Inasmuch as the guard who had seen the men enter the coach at Fenchurch street could not positively identify Muller, the case against him appeared to be very flimsy—until Colonel Fraser compared the man's hand with the bloody outline on the wall of the coach. The two were identical to the thousandth part of an inch!

Some months later Franz Muller paid the penalty for his crime on the gallows.

[illegible]'s Business.

[illegible] the poet is like unto [illegible] it is to pursue [illegible] rare specimens of [illegible] have hitherto escaped the [illegible] in crystal-clear [illegible] beauties of na[illegible] them, 'mid the wild [illegible] native haunts, for the [illegible] reverence and love of all

NAME "BAYER" IS ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

Take Tablets Without Fear, if You See the Safety "Bayer Cross."

If you want the true, world-famous Aspirin, as prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, you must ask for "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin."

The "Bayer Cross" is stamped on each tablet and appears on each package for your protection against imitations.—Advertisement.

Honest Paris.

A black satchel containing $55,000 in cash was found on the seat of a Paris omnibus one morning recently, writes a correspondent. It had been forgotten by a bank messenger, who was greatly relieved to find that the conductor of the omnibus had duly delivered it to the lost property office, where it lay among umbrellas and odd gloves awaiting reclamation.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Easy to see through—the people who make spectacles of themselves.

Cuticura Comforts Baby's Skin

When red, rough and itching, by hot baths of Cuticura Soap and touches of Cuticura Ointment. Also [illegible] now and then of that exquisitely scented dusting powder, Cuticura Talcum, of the indispensable Cuticura Toilet Trio.—Advertisement.

It's queer how anxious people [illegible] to lend you money when you [illegible] need it.

[illegible]

[illegible]

GIRL HAD PAINFUL TIMES

Mothers—Read This Letter and Statement Which Follows

Portland, Indiana.—"I was troubled with irregularity and constipation and would often have to lie down because of pains. One Sunday my aunt was visiting us and she said her girls took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got well, so mother said she guessed she would let me try it. It is doing me good and I praise it highly. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial." — STELLA NEWTON, R. R. 8, Portland, Indiana.

Mothers—You should carefully guard your daughter's health. Advise her of the danger which comes from standing around with cold or wet feet, from lifting heavy articles, or overworking. Do not let her overstudy.

If she complains of headache, pains in back or lower limbs, or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, give her careful attention.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for your daughter to take, as it is especially adopted to relieve just such sy[illegible] Remember it contains nothi[illegible] injure and can be tak[illegible]

There's [illegible] not on the right [illegible]

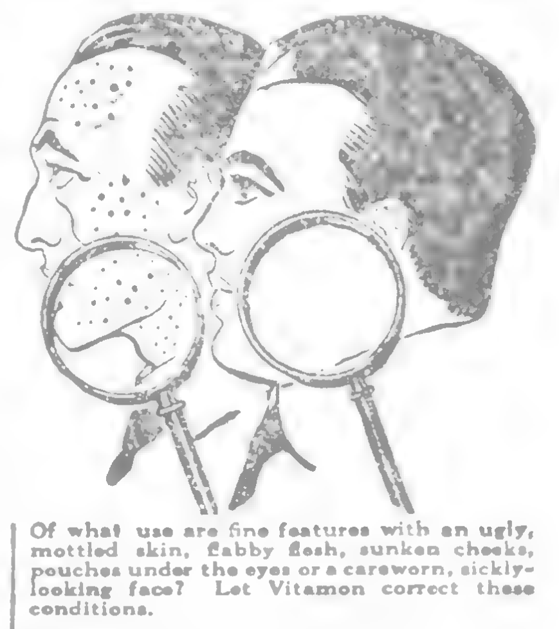
CURES COLDS — LA GRIPPE
in 24 Hours — in 3 Days
HILL'S CASCARA BROMIDE QUININE
[illegible]

A Full Year's Wear In Every Pair of Nu-Way or Excello Suspenders
Rubberless
The Nu-Way Line
Guarantee Label Attached to Every Pair
Ask Your Dealer
[illegible]

Take Yeast Vitamon Tablets To Clear The Skin

Build Firm "Stay-There" Flesh—Increase Energy.

If you want to quickly clean your skin and complexion, put some firm healthy flesh on your bones, increase your nerve force and power and look and feel 100 per cent. better, simply try taking two of Mastin's tiny yeast VITAMON Tablets with each meal and watch the results. Mastin's VITAMON Tablets contain highly concentrated yeast-vitamines as well as the two other still more important vitamines (Fat soluble A and Water soluble C) and are now being used by thousands. They positively will not upset the stomach or cause gas, but, on the contrary, are a great aid to digestion, to overcome constipation and as a general conditioner of the whole system. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish like magic, the complexion becomes fresh and clear, the cheeks glow with ruddy health, the flesh becomes firm, the eyes bright. Mastin's VITAMON Tablets are positively guaranteed to give you new health, energy and ambition and improve your appearance. Do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get Mastin's VITAMON Tablets from any good druggist.



Of what use are fine features with an ugly, mottled skin, flabby flesh, sunken cheeks, pouches under the eyes or a careworn, sickly-looking face? Let Vitamon correct these conditions.

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS
THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE
YEAST VITAMINE TABLET

Are Positively Guaranteed to Put On Firm Flesh, Clear the Skin and Increase Energy When Taken With Every Meal or Money Back

if it isnt MASTINS it isnt VITAMON

VICTIMS RESCUED

Kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles are most dangerous because of their insidious attacks. Heed the first warning they give that they need attention by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

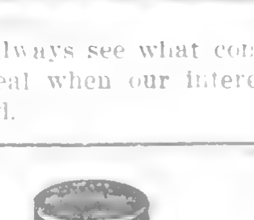
The world's standard remedy for these disorders will often ward off these diseases and strengthen the body against further attacks. Three sizes, all druggists.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

MURINE FOR YOUR EYES

Night and Morning. Have Strong, Healthy Eyes. If they Tire, Itch, Smart or Burn, if Sore, Irritated, Inflamed or Granulated, use Murine often. Soothes, Refreshes. Safe for Infant or Adult. At all Druggists. Write for Free Eye Book. Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

We can always see what constitutes a square deal when our interests are not involved.



Vaseline
Reg U.S. Pat. Off.
PETROLEUM JELLY

For sores, broken blisters, burns, cuts and all skin irritations.
Also innumerable toilet uses.

REFUSE SUBSTITUTES

CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO. (CONSOLIDATED)
State Street New York

L 912

0015

CONCORD

Charley Murphy has been having the gripp this last week.

Mrs Jane Hull spent last Sunday with her sister, Mrs Ann Ricket.

Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Brinker of St. Joe visited Mr. and Mrs. Walker Baker last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Leighty spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Draggoo.

Mr. and Mrs Ford Jackson spent Saturday and Sunday in Ft. Wayne with Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Beldon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone and son, Harry, visited Sunday in the home of Willie Keeler and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Dell Draggoo and son Clifton, and little friend Russel Randall, spent Sunday with Mart Hull and family.

Mrs. Dema Hull and daughter, Marie, and Mrs Curtis Watt, were Thursday dinner guests of Mrs. L. Draggoo.

Mr. and Mrs Adams returned to Concord on last Saturday morning from Mansfield, where they have been spending the holidays. She reports a good time.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Draggoo entertained to Sunday dinner Mr. and Mrs. Sam Daily and son Keith, and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Harris and family.

NEWVILLE

The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Minnie Tarney recently.

Dewey Miller and wife, and Byron Miller, spent Saturday evening in Hicksville.

Hugh Strong had his foot badly injured by getting it run over with a wagon. We did not learn the particulars of the accident.

Mesdames Minnie Mellser and Ina Traxler motored to Bryan last Tuesday where they spent the day visiting relatives.

Mrs. Vina Rude went to Goshen on Thursday for an indefinite visit with her people. Mr. Rude will remain here; he is baling hay with Sam Tomelson.

The Rev. J.A Hubartt is preaching to a full house every evening now. At first the audience was small. The meeting will be continued this week; perhaps longer.

Mr. Carl Clark and wife went to Hicksville on Saturday last. Mrs Clark, Jr., will remain there to keep house for Mrs. Forest Clark's family, while she makes an indefinite visit to her daughter, Mrs. Florence Fox and family, at Atlanta Ga.

The W. C. T. U. will hold an all-day meeting at the home of Mrs Jennie Glengnagle, Feb. 7th. A pot luck dinner will be served, each member contributing her share; don't forget the date. Let all the members of Newville local union be present. Visitors will also be made welcome.

CHIROPRACTIC
The Pinch hitter in the
HEALTH GAME
Acute and Chronic diseases, Men, Women and Children restored to health by Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments.
ERNEST C. FULLER, D. C.
CHIROPRACTOR
Auburn, Ind., Phone 235 W.
Waterloo, Ind., Phone 211.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Mr and Mrs Roscoe Walter
LICENSED EMBALMERS
and
FUNERAL DIRECTORS
GENERAL LINE OF FURNITURE
TELEPHONE No. 9-11. Spencerville, Ind.

Patterson-Fletcher's

Great Half-Price Sale

"The Sale of All Sales"—Now and Until February 1st One Month Earlier Than Usual and With at Least $20,000.00 More Merchandise to Sell at

HALF PRICE

Read Over this List---Note the Wonderful Values

Suits and Overcoats at Half Price

Four-Hundred and Fifty $25 to $65
Suits
HALF PRICE
$12.50 TO $32.50

Eleven Hundred $15 to $75
Overcoats
HALF PRICE
$7.50 TO $37.50

100 Men's and Young Men's Light Weight, $30
OVERCOATS
WILL BE SOLD AT HALF PRICE
$15.00

300 Pair of Men's and Young Men's Odd TROUSERS HALF PRICE
All Other Trousers Discounted at Least 10 Per Cent

All Other Suits, Overcoats and Raincoats One-Fifth Off

Furnishing Goods Half Price

Shirts—Half Price
(400 Dozen to Be Sold)

$2.00 Fancy Neckband Shirts	$1.00
$3.00 Fancy Neckband Shirts	$1.50
$4.00 Fancy Neckband Shirts	$2.00
$5.00 Fancy Neckband Shirts	$2.50
$6.00 Fancy Neckband Shirts	$3.00

(All Other Shirts Discounted 10%)

Neckwear—Half Price

100 dozen 50c to $1.50 Fancy Four-in-Hand Ties	25c to 75c
75c Cheney Silk and Cotton Tubular Ties	37½c
$1.00 Cheney Silk Tubular Ties One Half Price	50c
$2.50 Swiss Silk Knit Ties	$1.25

Garters—Half Price
(10 Gross to Be Sold)

25c Com-Fit Pad Garters, Half Price	12½c
35c Com-Fit Pad Garters, Half Price	17½c
50c Com-Fit Pad Garters, Half Price	25c
100 dozen 50c, 75c and $1.00 Belts will be sold at Half Price	25c, 37½c, 50c

Broken lines of Pajamas, Half Price.

'Kerchiefs—Half Price
(Over 400 Dozen to Be Sold)

90 dozen 25c fancy border Cambric Handkerchiefs	12½c
300 dozen 10c White Handkerchiefs at	5c
75 dozen 5c Blue Work Handkerchiefs	2½c

Hosiery—Half Price
(Over 350 Dozen to Be Sold)

Wilson Bros. 25c Split Foot Hose, Half Price	12½c
75c Silk and Fiber (slightly imperfect) Hose	37½c
$1.00 Silk Hose (slightly imperfect) Half Price	50c
Broken lines of Wool Hose, 35c or 3 for	$1.00
Wilson Bros. 50c Suspenders, Half Price	25c
Ladies' Wool Mufflers, that we have been selling special at $4, will be sold while they last, Half Price at	$2.00
$5.00 Silk and Fiber Pajamas, Half Price	$2.50
50 dozen Wilson Bros. $6 Silk and Wool Union Suits will be sold at Half Price	$3.00

All Other Shirts, Underwear, Pajamas, Hosiery, Etc., Discounted at Least 10%

Boys' Wearables Half Price

250 Boys' $6 to $20 Knickerbocker Suits, half price,	$3 to $10
Boys' and Children's $5 to $25 Overcoats, half price	$2.50 to $12.50
25 dozen Boys' $1.50 Blouse Waists, while they last, half price	75c
150 Boys' 10c Handkerchiefs, half price	5c
25 dozen Children's Majestic Wash Suits, half price,	$1.50, up
50 dozen Boys' 50c Four-in-Hand Ties will sell for	25c
35 dozen Children's ¾ length Sport Hose	50c a pair
15 dozen Boys' $1.50 Neckband Shirts	75c
All Children's Velour, Plush, and Velvet Hats	½ Price

All other Boys' and Children's Clothing, Furnishings, etc., discounted at least 10 per cent

All Hart Schaffner & Marx Ladies' Coats at Half Price

200 Dozen Children's Black, Heavy Ribbed Hose; All Sizes, 6½ to 11, at	20c

25 dozen Men's and Young Men's $3.00 to $8.00 Hats will be sold at half price	$1.50 to $4.00
Broken lines of Men's and Young Men's Dress Gloves	HALF PRICE
300 dozen Knit Wrist and 200 dozen Gauntlet Canvas Gloves per pair	10c
A heavy 12-oz. Gauntlet Glove that will cost you 25c elsewhere, will be sold during this sale at	15c

All Other Hats, Caps and Gloves Will Be Discounted at Least 10 Per Cent

Remember Everything in Our Great Store Is Discounted 10% to 50% with the Exception of Work Shirts and Overalls

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

[illegible] Things [illegible] Wayne and [illegible]

L 912

0016

MONEY

-:The Right Start:-

Is All Important to your children.

Give them a Savings Account
in their own names for

NEW YEAR

and put them on the road
to success.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT
NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE NOTARY PUBLIC

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, price 75c.
Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

SPENCERVILLE

Mrs. Alice Henderson who has been ill, is slowly improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baltz were Sunday guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Baltz.

Mrs. Alice Zimmerman and Mrs. Ethel Bowser are numbered with the sick.

Mrs. Gertie Wasson and James Reed were Sunday evening supper guests of the R. U. Bowser home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ora Woodring spent Thursday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Vallien and family.

Little Jack Allen has been quite ill with heart trouble, but is some better at this writing.

D Coolidge is a new advertiser through the columns of the News. See his display ad on this page.

For the common everyday ills of mankind there is nothing to equal Tanlac. At B. S. Sheffer's.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank VanZile of near Leo, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Jenkins of St. Joe, were recent guests of Charles High and wife.

Mrs. Emila Gloyd and son Gerry left on Monday evening to spend a few days with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Dunton, near Huntertown.

Rev. Stelfey of Waldon, near Logansport, has accepted the position as pastor of the Lutheran church, and will move here in the near future.

The Spencerville Basket Ball team motored to Angola, Wednesday evening, and played the Angola team. The score was 55-25 in favor of the Angola team.

Mr. and Mrs. Gust Cupp left on Tuesday for a visit with the latter's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Viland and family, near Edgerton.

The revival meetings at the M. E. church are progressing very nicely under the direction of the pastor, Rev. Uphoff, and Rev. Jones of New Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Webb left last Sunday for Montgomery, Michigan, to visit their son, Mr and Mrs. Clinton Webb and family. Mr. and Mrs. Date Webb are taking care of the restaurant while they are gone.

Patronize the advertisers.

Get your automobile license of Widney.

Arthur Castret and wife of Fort Wayne were last Sunday guests of Charles High and wife.

Rolla Moflit and wife were Friday evening supper guests of the latter's parents, Jacob Batz.

Miss Lina Rummell, residing with her sister, and husband, John Hobaugh, and wife, is seriously ill.

Jacob Baltz and wife were Saturday dinner guests of Wm. Summers of Coburntown.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

John B. House and wife returned home Sunday after spending several weeks with her parents, Vern Wilmot and wife.

Jerry Klophenstine and wife of Grabill were Sunday guests of the latter's sister and husband, Frank Beams and family.

Mark Tyndall, wife and baby, spent Sunday the guests of W. S Tyndall and attended the funeral of the former's cousin.

William Vallien and daughter, Bevere, and Wm. Jones, wife and sons, Milton and Robert, of Harlan, were Sunday guests of James Vallien and family.

The C. C. club will be entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Pernetta Steward and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Zelpha Steward.

The Kinsey ambulance of St. Joe took Mrs Jenning Horn to the Lutheran hospital at Ft. Wayne on Tuesday morning last. A baby was born to the Horns only a week ago and the mother has been quite low since.

Little Jack Allen, son of William Allen, was taken to the Lutheran hospital at Ft. Wayne on Tuesday where it will be tried to relieve him of heart trouble which has been troubling him for some time He is a brother to the little lad who died of heart trouble last week.

Good Game.

The High school Basket ball teams, both boys and girls, motored to Woodburn and played at that place on Friday evening. On account of the illness of several of the Woodburn High school girl players the girls' team played the Woodburn city team.

The boys and girls team played the High school team, the score was as follows: 18-14 in favor of Spencerville.

Seniors Entertained

Miss Bertha Thornburg very pleasantly entertained the Senior class of the High school, Thursday night. All the Seniors, which number 28, were present, but two. The guests were as follows:

The Misses Esther Henderson, Anna Beerbower, Florence Beams, Marjorie Spitler, Eilleen Askey, Cleo Bowser and Portia Hadsell of St. Joe, and Miss Ida Reed and Messrs. Joe Koch, Donald Kimes and Arthur Todd of St Joe.

Teacher Entertains Class

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Beams very pleasantly entertained the Golden Hour class of the Lutheran Sunday school at a six o'clock dinner as a Christmas present from their teacher, George Beams

After the delightful four course dinner at which time toasts were given by the Misses Leone Widdifield and Gaylon Markle, and Mr. Beams. Election of officers were held as follows:

Teacher—George Beams.
President—Marjorie Hollabaugh.
Secretary-Treas.—Helen Lake.

There were five new scholars taken in the class at this time. The home was beautifully decorated in the class colors—gold and white. Miss Mable Rhoades and Florence Beams won prizes.

The hostess was very ably assisted by Mrs. Frank Beams.

Elect Officers

The election of officers was held Sunday morning last at the M. E. Sunday school. Following are the officers:

Superintendent—John Koch.
Asst. Supt.—Melvin Howey.
Sec'y—Miss Venus Beerbower.
Asst.—Miss Esther Henderson
Treasurer—Frank Miller.
Pianist—Laverne Rhodes.
Asst. Pianist—Elizabeth Thorne.
Chorister—Clarice Hahn.
Asst. Chorister—Otis Koch
Librarians—Frankie Allen and Janice Wade.
Prim. Supt—Arminta Steward.
Adult Supt.—Minta Rhodes.
Cradle Roll Supt.—Mrs. Ray Farver.
Home Dept. Supt—Mrs. Gertie Wasson.
Missionary Supt.—Mrs. Gertie Smith.
Missionary Treas.—Mrs. Koonts.
Temperance Supt.—Miss Ethel Palmer.
Teachers—Class No. 1—Mrs Gertie Smith.
No. 2—Mrs. Ethel Bowser.
No. 3— ——
No. 4—Mrs. C. A. High.
No. 5—Harvey Beam.
No. 6—Melwin Howey.
No. 7—Mrs. E. E. Provines.
No. 8—Mrs. Gertie Wasson.

Committees will be named later.

Deaths.

Miss Helen Lake was called to Pleasant Lake on Sunday by the death of her grandmother, Mrs. Jane Lake, of that place. Mrs. Lake was a former residence of this place, but made her home of late years at Pleasant Lake; the funeral was held on Tuesday at one o'clock at that place, interment being at the White City cemetery at this place.

ALLEN

Little Emma Allen, the six year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs Wm. Allen, passed away on last Friday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the family home on Washington street of heart trouble.

The little girl took sick about two weeks ago with rheumatism, which gradually got worse until heart trouble developed, the little one suffering intense pain until death ended her suffering. Besides the parents two brothers survive who is attendi Vaugh, Frank Merton; one Jason Kees, grandfather, G host of relatives

The funeral was dist church at 1:30 officiating, the interm at the White City cem place.

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR

-Attention! FORD Owners-

FORD parts, like most everything else worth while, are counterfeited. The manufacturers of these imitation parts are obviously not as interested as we are in maintaining the high standard of quality and the complete satisfaction of FORD owners. Imitation parts are manufactured to sell at the highest possible rate of profit and the grades of steel used are consequently not the same high quality, specially heat-treated alloy steels specified in FORD formulas for the manufacture of Genuine FORD Parts.

Don't be misled--Insist upon Genuine FORD Parts made by the FORD Motor Company. By so doing you will get from 35 to 100 per ct. more wear from them, and you will pay the lowest possible cost —the same everywhere.

50 per ct. of Genuine FORD parts Retail for less than 10c. each

Ask for parts Price List.

When your FORD car, truck or FORDSON Tractor needs attention, call on the following authorized FORD dealer, who is properly equipped, employs competent mechanics, and uses Genuine FORD and FORDSON parts in all repair work.

F. W. SILBERG, SPENCERVILLE, I

The Coolidge Store

In the building formerly owned by Jack Beams we are doing a rushing business in
Dry Goods, Boots, Shoes, Coats,
Sheep skinned lined and other kinds
Groceries, Candies, Cigars, Tobacco, Farm Produce, Eggs, Butter, Cream, Light Hardware.

SPECIAL for SATURDAY
2 packages Pancake Flour- 15c 15c

(Watch this space for Specials next week)

D. COOLIDGE, Spencerville, Indiana.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

ESTABLISHED 1867

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

810 CALHOUN STREET

Fort Wayne, Ind.

BEN LEHMAN PROP.

JANUARY

L 912

0017

The Green Pea Pirates

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN," "THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS," ETC.

Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne

HORRID WAR.

Synopsis.—Captain Phineas P. Scraggs has grown up around the docks of San Francisco, and from mess boy on a river steamer, risen to the ownership of the steamer Maggie. Since each annual inspection promised to be the last of the old weatherbeaten vessel, Scraggs naturally has some difficulty in securing a crew. When the story opens, Adelbert P. Gibney, likable, but erratic, a man whom nobody but Scraggs would hire, is the skipper, Neils Halvorsen, [illegible] solemn Swede, constitutes [illegible] fo'castle hands, and Bart McGuffey, a wastrel of the Gibney [illegible], reigns in the engine room. [illegible] this motley crew and his ancient vessel, Captain Scraggs is engaged in freighting garden [illegible] from Halfmoon bay to San Francisco. The inevitable happens, the Maggie goes ashore in a fog. A passing vessel hailing the wreck, Mr. Gibney gets word to a towing [illegible] in San Francisco that the ship ashore is the Yankee Prince, with promise of a rich salvage. Two tugs succeed in pulling the Maggie into deep water, and she slips her tow lines and gets away in the fog. Furious at the deception practiced on them, Captains Hicks and Flaherty, commanding the two tugboats, ascertain the [illegible]ntity of the "Yankee Prince" [illegible], fearing ridicule should the [illegible]ts become known along the water front, determine on personal [illegible]ngeance. Their hostile visit to the Maggie results in Captain Scraggs promising to get a new boiler and make needed repairs to the steamer. Scraggs refuses to fulfill his promises and Gibney and McGuffey "strike." With marvel[illegible]s luck, Scraggs ships a fresh [illegible]w. At the end of a few days [illegible] [illegible]ld conviviality Gibney and [illegible]y are stranded and seek [illegible] positions on the Maggie. [illegible] hostilely received, but re[illegible] [illegible]eir way to San Fran[illegible] [illegible] a derelict and Gib[illegible] [illegible]uffey swim to it. The [illegible] to be the Chesa[illegible] [illegible] laden, its entire crew [illegible] scurvy. Scraggs at[illegible] [illegible]her in, but the Mag[illegible] [illegible] the task and Gib[illegible] [illegible] alone, sail the [illegible] [illegible] their sal[illegible] [illegible]ounting to $1,0[illegible] [illegible] having deserted [illegible] induces them [illegible] "old horse" sale [illegible] e two mysterious [illegible] believe to con[illegible] "Oriental [illegible]" [illegible]ead, two [illegible] [illegible]aggs seeks to "double [illegible] two associates, but Mr. [illegible] twits him [illegible] [illegible] settlement [illegible] Chinese company to [illegible] bodies have been con[illegible]ving Scraggs out in the [illegible]ney resents McGuffey's [illegible]nding mo[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]onsulting him, and after wordy combat the three separate, McGuffey becoming as[illegible]nt engineer on an oil tanker, [illegible] disappearing, and Scraggs, [illegible]ed to lay up the Maggie, takes a subordinate position on a ferry steamer. Senor Lo[illegible] Mexican revolutionist, m[illegible]ggs a generous offer for transportation of munitions to Lower California. Scraggs accepts, and the old Maggie is once more put into commission. Arriving at his destination, Scraggs finds his old companion, Mr. Gibney, is the consignee. Time having softened animosities, the reunion is joyful.

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

—9—

"Why?" demanded Captain Scraggs, instantly on the defensive.

"Not that I'm holdin' any grudge agin you, Scraggsy," said Mr. Gibney affably, "but I wouldn't a-had you no more now than I would when we was runnin' in the green-pea trade. It's because you ain't got no imagination, and the Maggie ain't big enough for my purpose. Havin' the Maggie sort of puts a crimp in my plans."

"Rot," snapped Captain Scraggs. "I've had the Maggie overhauled and shipped a new wheel, and she's a mighty smart little boat, I'll tell you. I'll land them arms in Descanso bay all right."

"I know you will," said Mr. Gibney sadly. "That's just what hurts. You see, Scraggsy, I never intended 'em for Descanso bay in the first place. There's a nice healthy little revolution fomentin' down in the United States of Colombia, with Adelbert P. Gibney playin' both ends to the middle. And there's a dog-hole down on the Gold coast where I intended to land this cargo, but now that Scab Johnny's gone to work and sent me a bay scow instead of a sea-goin' steamer, I'm in the nine-hole instead o' dog-hole. I can never get as far as the Gold coast with the Maggie. She can't carry coal enough to last her."

"But I thought these guns and things was for the Mexicans," quavered Captain Scraggs. "Scab Johnny and Lopez told me they was."

Mr. Gibney groaned and hid his face in his hands. "Scraggsy," he said sadly, "it's a cinch you ain't used the past four years to stimulate that imagination of yours. Of course they was purchased for the Mexicans, but what was to prevent me from lettin' the Mexicans pay for them, help out on the charter of the boat, and then have me divert the cargo to the United States of Colombia, where I can sell 'em at a clear profit, the cost bein' nothin' to speak of? Now you got to come buttin' in with the Maggie, and what happens? Why, I got to be honest, of course. I got to make good on my bluff, and what's in it for me? Nothin' but glory. Can you hock a chunk of glory for ham and eggs, Phineas Scraggs? Not on your life. If it hadn't been for you buttin' in with your blasted, rotten hulk of a fresh-water skiff, I'd—"

Mr. Gibney paused ominously and savagely bit the end of his cigar. As for Captain Scraggs, every drop of blood in his body was boiling in defense of the ship he loved.

"You're a pirate," he shrilled.

"And you're just as big a hornet as you ever was," replied Mr. Gibney. "Always buzzin' around where you ain't wanted. But still, what's the use of bawlin' over spilt milk? We'll drop into San Diego for a couple of hours and take on coal, and about sunset we'll pull out and make the run down to Descanso bay in the dark. We might as well forget the past and put this thing through as per program. Only I saw visions of a schooner all my own, Scraggsy, and—well, what's the use? What's the use? Scraggsy, you're a natural-born mar-plot. Always buttin' in, buttin' in, fit for nothin' but the green-pea trade. However, I guess I can turn into my old berth and get some sleep. Put the old girl under a slow bell and save your coal. We'll have to fool away four or five hours in San Diego anyhow and there ain't no sense in crowdin' the old hulk."

"Gib," said Captain Scraggs, "was that really your lay—to steal the cargo, double-cross the insurrecto junta, and sell out to a furrin' country?"

"Of course it was," said Mr. Gibney pettishly. "They all do such things in the banana republics. Why should I be an exception? There's half a dozen different gangs fightin' each other and the government in Mexico, and if I don't deliver these arms, just see all the lives I'll be savin'. And after I got the cargo into Colombia and sold it, I could have peached on the rebels there, and got a reward for it, and saved a lot more lives, and come away rich and respected."

"By the Lord Harry," said Captain Scraggs, "but you've got an imagination, Gib. I'll swear to that. Gib, I take off my hat to you. You're all tight and shipshape and no loose ends bobbin' around you. Don't tell me th' scheme's got t' fall through, Gib. Great snakes, don't tell me that. Ain't there some way o' gettin' around it? There must be. Why, Gib, my dear boy, I never heard of such a grand lay in my life. It's a absolute winner. Don't give up, Gib. Oil up your imagination and find a way out. Let's get together, Gib, and make a little money. Dang it all, Gib, I been lonesome ever since I seen you last."

"Well," replied Mr. Gibney, "I'll turn in and try to scheme a way out, but I don't hold out no hope. Not a ray of it. I'm afraid, Scraggsy, we've got to be honest."

Saying which, Mr. Gibney hopped up into his berth, stretched his huge legs, and fell asleep with his clothes on. Captain Scraggs looked him over with the closest approach to affection that had ever lightened his cold gray eye, and sighing heavily, presently went on deck. As he passed up the companionway, the first mate heard him murmur:

"Gib's a fine lad. I'll be dad burned if he ain't."

At six o'clock next morning the Maggie was rounding Point Loma, heading in for San Diego bay, and Captain Scraggs went below and awakened Mr. Gibney.

"What's for breakfast, Scraggsy, old kid?" asked Mr. Gibney.

"Fried eggs," said Captain Scraggs, remembering Mr. Gibney's partiality for that form of nutriment in the vanished days of the green-pea trade. "Ham an' fried eggs an' a sizzlin' pot o' coffee. Thought a way out o' our mess, Gib?"

"Not yet," replied Mr. Gibney as he rolled out of bed, "but eggs is always stimulatin', and I don't give up hope on a full stomach."

An hour later they were tied up under the coal bunkers, and at Mr. Gibney's suggestion some twenty tons of sacked coal were piled on top of the fo'castle head and on the main deck for'd, in case of emergency. They lay in the harbor all day until about four o'clock, when Mr. Gibney, by virtue of his authority as supercargo, ordered the lines cast off and the Maggie steamed out of the harbor. Off Point Loma they veered to the south, leaving the Coronado islands on the starboard quarter, ten miles to the west. Mr. Gibney was below with Captain Scraggs, battling with the problem that confronted them, when the mate stuck his head down the companionway to report a large power schooner coming out from the lee of the Coronados and standing off on a course calculated to intercept the Maggie in an hour or two.

Captain Scraggs and Mr. Gibney sprang up on the bridge at once, the latter with Scraggs' long glass up to his eye.

"She was hove to under the lee of the island, and the minute we came out of the harbor and turned south she come nosin' after us," said the mate.

"Hum!" muttered Mr. Gibney. "Gasoline schooner. Two masts and baldheaded. About a hundred and twenty ton, I should say, and showin' a pretty pair of heels. There's somethin' up for'd—yes—let me see—ye-es, there's two more—holy sailor! it's a gunboat! One of those doggoned gasoline coast patrol boats, and there's the federal flag flying at the fore."

"Let's put back to San Diego bay," quavered Captain Scraggs. "I'll be durned if I relish the idee o' losin' the Maggie."

"Too late," said the philosophical Gibney. "We're in Mexican waters now, and she can cut us off from the bay. The only thing we can do is to run for it and try to lose her after dark. Tell the engineer to crowd her to the limit. There ain't much wind to speak of, so I guess we can manage to hold our own for a while. Nevertheless, I've got a hunch that we'll be overhauled. Of course, you ain't got no papers to show, Scraggs, and they'll search the cargo, and confiscate us, and shoot the whole bloomin' crowd of us. I bet a dollar to a doughnut that fellow Lopez sold us out, after the fashion of the country. I can't help thinkin' that that gunboat was there just a-waitin' for us to show up."

For several minutes Mr. Gibney continued to study the gunboat until there could no longer be any doubt that she intended to overhaul them. He made out that she had a long gun for'd, with a battery of two one-pounders on top of her house and something on her port quarter that looked like a Maxim rapid-fire gun. About twenty men, dressed in white cloth, could be seen on her decks.

Presently Mr. Gibney was interrupted by Captain Scraggs pulling at his sleeve.

"You was a gunner once, wasn't you, Gib?" said Captain Scraggs in a trembling voice.

"You bet I was," replied Mr. Gibney. "My shootin' won the trophy three times in succession when I was on the old Kearsarge. If I had one good gun and a half-decent crew, I'd knock that gunboat silly before she knew what had hit her."

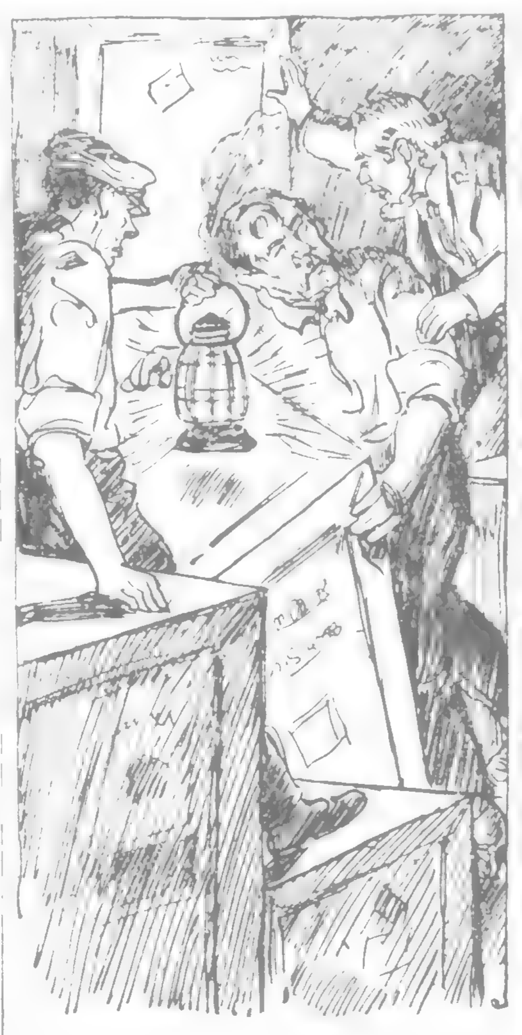
"Gib, I've got an idee," said Captain [illegible].

"Out with it," said Mr. Gibney cheerfully.

"There was four little cannon lowered into the hold the last thing before we put on the main hatch, and the ammunition to load 'em with is stowed in [illegible] after hold and very easy to get [illegible]."

Mr. Gibney turned a beaming face to the skipper, reached out his arms, and folded Captain Scraggs in an embrace that would have done credit to a grizzly bear. There were genuine tears of admiration in his eyes and in his voice when he could master his emotions sufficiently to speak.

"Scraggsy, old tarpot, you've been a long time comin' through on the imagination, but you've sure arrived with all sail set. I always thought you had about as much nerve as an oyster, but I take it all back. We'll get out them two little jackass guns and fight a naval battle, and if I don't sink that Mexican gunboat, and save the Maggie, feed me to the sharks, for I won't be worthy of the blood that's in me. Pipe all hands and lift off that main hatch. Reeve a block and tackle through that cargo gaff and stand by to heave out the guns."



"I'd Sooner Die Fightin' Than Let Them Stand Me Up Agin a Wall in Ensenada."

But Captain Scraggs had repented of his rash suggestion almost the moment he made it. Only the dire necessity of desperate measures to save the Maggie had prompted him to put the idea into Mr. Gibney's head, and when he saw the avidity with which the latter set to work clearing for action, his terror knew no bounds.

"Oh, Gib," he wailed, "I'm afraid we better not try to lick that gunboat after all. They might sink us with all hands."

"Rats!" said Mr. Gibney, as he leaped into the hold. "Bear a light here until I can root out the wheels of these guns. Here they are, labeled 'cream separator.' Stand by with that sling to—"

"But, Gib, my dear boy," protested Captain Scraggs, "this is insanity!"

"I know it," said Mr. Gibney calmly. "Scraggsy, you're perfectly right. But I'd sooner die fightin' than let them stand me up agin a wall in Ensenada. We're filibusters, Scraggsy, and we're caught with the goods. I, for one, am goin' down with the steamer Maggie, but I'm goin' down fightin' like a bear."

"Maybe—maybe we can outrun her, Gib," half sobbed Captain Scraggs.

"No hope," replied Mr. Gibney. "Fight and die is the last resort. She's eight miles astern and gainin' every minute, and when she's within two miles she'll open fire. Of course, we won't be hit unless they've got a Yankee gunner aboard."

"Let's run up the Stars and Stripes and dare 'em to fire on us," said Captain Scraggs.

"No," said Mr. Gibney firmly, "my old man died for the flag an' I've sailed under it too long to hide behind it when I'm in Dutch. We'll fight. If you was ever navigatin' officer on a Colombian gunboat, Scraggs, you'd realize what it means to run from a Mexican."

Captain Scraggs said nothing further. Perhaps he was a little ashamed of himself in the face of Mr. Gibney's simple faith in his own ability; perhaps in his veins, all unknown, there flowed a taint of the heroic blood of some forgotten sea-dog. Be that as it may, something did swell in his breast when Mr. Gibney spoke of the flag and his scorning to hide behind it, and Scraggs' snaggle teeth came together with a snap.

"All right, Gib, my boy," he said solemnly, "I'm with you. Mrs. Scraggs has slipped her cable and there ain't nobody to mourn for me. But if we can't fight under the Stars and Stripes, by the tail of the Great Sacred Bull, we'll have a flag of our own," and leaving Mr. Gibney and the crew to get the guns on deck, Captain Scraggs ran below. He appeared on deck presently with a long blue burgee on which was emblazoned in white letters the single word Maggie. It was his own houseflag, and with trembling hands he ran it to the fore and cast its wrinkled folds to the breeze of heaven.

"Good old dishcloth!" shrieked Mr. Gibney. "She never comes down."

"D—d if she does," said Captain Scraggs profanely.

While all this was going on, a deckhand had reeved a block and tackle through the end of the cargo gaff and passed it to the winch. The two guns came out of the hold in jig time and while Scraggs and one deckhand opened the after hold and got out ammunition for the guns, Mr. Gibney, assisted by the other deckhand, proceeded to put one of the guns together. He was shrewd enough to realize that he would have to do practically all of the work of serving the gun himself, in view of which condition one gun would have to defend the Maggie. He had never seen a mountain gun before, but he did not find it difficult to put the simple mechanism together.

"Now, then, Scraggsy," he announced cheerfully when the gun was finally assembled on the carriage, "get a sizeable timber an' spike it to the center o' the deck. I'll run the trail spade up against that cleat an' that'll keep the recoil from lettin' the gun go backward, clean through the opposite rail and overboard. Gimme a coupler gallons o' distillate an' some waste, somebody. This cosmoline's got to come out o' the tube an' out o' the breech mechanism before we commence shootin'."

The enemy had approached within three miles by the time the piece was ready for action. Under Mr. Gibney's instructions Captain Scraggs held the fuse setter in case it should be necessary to adjust with shrapnel. Mr. Gibney inserted his sights and took a preliminary squint. "A little different from gun-pointin' in the navy, but about the same principle," he declared. "In the army I believe they call this kind o' shootin' direct fire, because you sight direct on the target." He scratched his ingenious head and examined the ammunition. "Not a high explosive shell in the lot," he mourned. "I'll have to use percussion fire to get the range; then I'll drop back a little an' spray her with shrapnel. Seems a pity to smash up a fine schooner like that one with percussion fire. I'd rather tickle 'em up a bit with shrapnel an' scare 'em into runnin' away."

He got out the lanyard, slipped a cartridge in the breech, paused, and scratched his head again. His calm deliberation was driving Scraggs crazy. He reminded Mr. Gibney with some asperity that they were not 'attending a strawberry festival and for the love of heaven to get busy.

"I'm estimatin' the range, you snipe," Gibney retorted. "Looks to be about three miles to me. A little long, mebbe, for this gun, but—there's nothin' like tryin'," and he sighted carefully. "Fire," he bawled as the Maggie rested an instant in the trough o[illegible] the sea—and a deckhand jerked [illegible] lanyard. Instantly Mr. Gibn[illegible] the long glass to his eye.

"Good [illegible] [illegible]sured. "I'll lay on her wa[illegible] time." He jerked open [illegible] ejected the cartridge case [illegible] another cartridge home [illegible] struck the water directly [illegible] schooner's bow and threw [illegible] her forecastle head. [illegible] smiled, spat overboard, [illegible] confidently at Captain Scra[illegible] spearin' fish in a bath[illegible] clared. He bent over the [illegible] "Corrector three ze[illegible]" "four eight hundred." He [illegible] cartridge in the fuse sett[illegible] it, slammed it in the gun, a[illegible] again. "Over," he gr[illegible]

Something whined over [illegible] and threw up a waterspout [illegible] mile beyond her.

"Dubs," jeered Mr. Gi[illegible] sighted again. This time h[illegible] burst neatly on the schoone[illegible] Almost simultaneously a shell [illegible] the schooner dropped into the [illegible] on the forecastle head of [illegible] and enveloped her in a [illegible] smoke and coal dust. [illegible] Scraggs screamed.

"Tit for tat," the philosop[illegible]ney reminded him. "We [illegible] to get away with everything [illegible] old kiddo." The words [illegible] out of his mouth before [illegible] mainmast and about [illegible] ancient railing were [illegible] side. Mr. Gibney w[illegible] through his [illegible] sprayed the [illegible] my heart [illegible] he decl[illegible] more.

"My Maggie's Tail Is Shot Away."

"My Maggie's [illegible]" Captain [illegible] rebuilt [illegible] Three more shots from [illegible] but the fo[illegible] leaving [illegible] house, with the helmsman unscathed, sticking up like [illegible]

"Turn her around and head straight for them," the gallant Gibney roared. "She's a smaller target comin' bows on. We're broadside to her now."

"Gib, will you ever sink that Greaser?" Captain Scraggs sobbed hysterically.

"Don't want to sink her," the supercargo retorted. "She's a nice little schooner. I'd rather capture her. Maybe we can use her in our business, Scraggsy," and he continued to shower the enemy with high bursting shrapnel. When the two vessels were less than two miles apart the one-pounders came into action. It was pretty shooting and the wicked little shells ripped through the old Maggie like buckshot through a roll of butter. Mr. Gibney slid flat on the deck beside his gun and Captain Scraggs sprawled beside him.

"A feller," Mr. Gibney announced, "has got to take a beatin' while lookin' for an openin' to put over the knockout blow. If the old Maggie holds together till we're within a cable length o' that schooner an' we ain't all killed by that time, I bet I'll make them skunks sing soft an' low."

"How?" Captain Scraggs chattered.

"With muzzle bursts," Mr. Gibney replied. "I'll set my fuse at zero, an' at point-blank range I'll just rake everything off that schooner's decks. Guess I'll get half a dozen cartridges set an' ready for the big scene. Up with you, Admiral Scraggs, an' hold the fuse setter steady."

"I'm agin war," Scraggs quavered. "Gib, it's sure h—ll."

"Rats! It's invigoratin', Scraggsy. There ain't nothin' wrong with war Scraggsy, unless you happen to get killed. Then it's like cholera. You can cure every case except the first one."

They had come inside the minimum range of the Mexican's long gun now, so that only the one-pounders continued to peck at the Maggie. Evidently the Mexican was as eager to get to close quarters as Mr. Gibney, for he held steadily on his course.

"Well, it's time to put over the big stuff," Mr. Gibney remarked presently. "Here's hopin' they don't pot me with rifle fire while I'm extendin' my compliments."

Captain Gibney, a victor, organizes "The Syndicate."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SOME PEOPLE PREFER TABLETS

Pepto-Mangan Is Sold in Liquid and Tablets—the Same Medicinally.

The famous blood builder, Gude's Pepto-Mangan, can be had in tablet form, as well as in liquid. Some people prefer Pepto-Mangan tablets to the liquid. They are put up in a convenient package. There are people [illegible] take the liquid Pepto-Mangan at home morning and night, and take the tablets at noon time.

Medicinally the liquid and the tablet form of Gude's Pepto-Mangan are the same. Any druggist can supply this well-known blood builder. Physicians have prescribed Gude's Pepto-Mangan for years. It restores the blood to its normal healthy state by increasing the number of red cells. Men, women and children who are run down, weak, pale and sickly, regain normal health by helping the blood to get back its strength. Look for the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package. Advertisement.

No man is as dangerous as he thinks you think he is.

MOTHER! OPEN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Your little one will love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" even if constipated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

[illegible] from breaking.

To insure glistening-white linens, use Red Cross Ball Blue in [illegible] laundry. It never disappoints. At all good grocers.—Advertisement.

[illegible]

Have You A Daughter?

Here Is Some Good Advice

Indianapolis, Ind.—"When my [illegible]ter was sixteen y[illegible] tracted a severe [illegible] resulting in her d[illegible] other remedies and fell [illegible] cine tha[illegible] nana [illegible] Dr. P[illegible] tion, along with [illegible] covery, and before the fe[illegible] gone she was well. Fr[illegible] have been recommending [illegible] medicines."—Mrs. Mary [illegible] South State Ave.

Health is of vital importance [illegible] neglect your most valuable a[illegible] Dr. Pierce's famous Family [illegible] from your neighborhood druggist [illegible] tablets or liquid, or write Dr. [illegible] president Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice.

COUGHING IS DANGEROUS

Make Your Own Pine Cough Medicine and Save $2.

3 oz. of Glando Pine makes a pint of excellent cough medicine. You add the syrup and it is ready to use. Fine for croup, colds, hoarseness and bronchial trouble.

Ask your druggist or send to The Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN

PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

NR

TONIGHT

Tomorrow Alright

NR Tablets stop sick headaches, relieve bilious attacks, tone and regulate the eliminative organs, make you feel fine.

"Better Than Pills For Liver Ills"

Get a 25c. Box.

JANUARY

L 912

0018

BLANCHE BLAIR

REGINA McCABE and RICHARD LEARY Jr.

THAT Tanlac is a wonderful medicine for delicate children is conclusively proven by the remarkable results accomplished in the cases of the three children shown in this pic- [illegible]

Little Blanche Blair, of Providence, R. I., age 13, gained 10 pounds; Regina McCabe, at right, age 9, of Scranton, Pa., gained 15 pounds; little Richard Leary, Jr., of Philadelphia, who was very delicate, is now in fine, robust health. The statements made by their parents are as follows:

Mr. A. M. Blair, residing at 20 Atwood street, Providence, R. I., said: "We are just so happy over the change Tanlac has made in our little girl that we can't do or say enough to show our appreciation. She had lost nearly 20 pounds in weight and looked so frail and weak that her mother and I were both almost worried sick over her condition. Since taking Tanlac, she has already gained 10 pounds, her color is better than it ever has been and she looks and acts like a different girl."

Mrs. Catherine McCabe, 414 Dickens Ave., Scranton, Pa., said: "The 'flu' left my little Regina in such a bad condition that I have no idea she would be with me now if it hadn't been for Tanlac. It is a mystery to me how she lived on the little she was eating and was so lifeless she never even cared to play with the dolls and toys she got at Christmas. Since taking Tanlac she is as hardy and well as any child could be and has gained 15 pounds in weight. I will always praise Tanlac for restoring our little [illegible]'s health."

Richard Leary, 2342 Palethorpe St., Philadelphia, said: "There is no doubt in my mind but that Tanlac saved my little boy's life. For two years I wouldn't have been a bit surprised to have seen him drop off at any time. He had stomach trouble and many a time the gas pressed up into his chest until his heart palpitated so I thought sure he couldn't breathe but a few more gasps. But Tanlac gave him back to us strong and well and we will praise it to our dying day."

The effect of Tanlac on the delicate stomachs of the young is one of the strongest evidences of its wholesomeness as well as its unusual merit. Although a powerful reconstructive, Tanlac contains no harmful ingredients, minerals or opiates which are so often found in other medicines. Being composed of the most beneficial roots and herbs known to science it is purely vegetable and can be taken by the most delicate children, and does not upset or injure the weakest or most delicate stomach.

There is a Tanlac agent in every town.—Advertisement.

Cities as Thunderstorm Spots.

The conclusion has been reached by a well-known engineer who has given the subject considerable attention that certain cities, if not indeed most inland cities of say 100,000 population or more, appear to be "thunderstorm spots." The observation has been made by E. R. Horton, of Voorheesville, N. Y., who also points out that "a shallow lake with sandy margins located in a forest may serve as a thunderstorm breeder" and cites as proof observations made by him over Oneida lake, New York.

Old Court Has Much Power.

In Liverpool (Eng.) there still exists one of the very few remaining medieval borough courts of record. At one time there were 215 in various parts of the kingdom. The Liverpool court of passage, as it is called, has practically unlimited jurisdiction in causes of action arising within the city, and has more power than has the City of London court which has jurisdiction only when the defendant is employed in the city itself.

Misery loves company, but the company isn't apt to make a second call.

Nature's Supreme Wisdom.

If it were not for the check that winter interposes, vegetation would climb skyward until we had tropical jungles and flowers high in the branches of the forest, instead of violets and daisies and lady's-slipper orchids. As it is, the year's tender growths decay in the wet and cold of winter, furnish shelter to the seeds of grasses and small woodland plants, and so foster a new growth for the coming of spring. Even in decay there is a purpose; in nature always there is a new beginning.—Youth's Companion.

Jewish Physicians to Popes.

Many examples might be enumerated of popes who patronized Jewish physicians. An exception was Paul IV, who introduced the Ghetto into Rome, but at least a score of popes seem to have gone out of their way in extending friendly recognition to the medical members of this race.

The Alibi.

The Secretary—This speech may get you into trouble.

The Honorable—Then you had better prepare a statement saying that I was misquoted by the newspaper.—Life.

A "balanced diet" may sound confusing to many people

The facts, as explained here, are simple.

The secret of a "balanced diet" is to have food containing all the elements needed for proper nutrition. These elements are protein, to nourish the tissues; starch and sugar to furnish energy; fat to supply heat; and mineral salts to provide the material necessary for building nerves, brain, and tooth and bone structure.

Grape-Nuts, the nourishing cereal made of whole wheat flour and malted barley, served with cream or milk, is a complete food for young and old alike.

Go to your grocer today and get a package of Grape-Nuts. Eat it with milk or cream for breakfast; or with stewed fruit, jelly or jam, as a delicious dessert for lunch or dinner.

Every member of the family will relish this palatable and nourishing food—

Grape-Nuts—the Body Builder
"There's a Reason"

Made by Postum Cereal Co., Inc., Battle Creek, Mich.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JANUARY 15

ELIJAH'S CHALLENGE OF BAAL WORSHIP.

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 18:1-46.

GOLDEN TEXT—This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.—I John 5:4.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Josh. 24:14-28; Eph. 6:10-20.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Answers Elijah's prayer.

JUNIOR TOPIC—One Man Against Four Hundred and Fifty.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jehovah's Victorious Champion.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Modern Evils; How to Fight Them.

I. Elijah Meets Ahab (vv. 17-19).

At the Lord's command, Elijah shows himself to Ahab. When Elijah was last seen by Ahab, he announced that rain would only be given by his word (17:1). In connection with the Prophet's appearing before the king, rain was promised.

1. Ahab's question—"Art thou he that troubleth Israel?" (v. 17). Ahab's aim was to intimidate Elijah—to awe him into submission.

2. Elijah's answer (v. 18). He denied the charge and boldly declared that the calamity which had befallen the nation was caused by the idolatry of Ahab and his family.

II. Elijah's Challenge (vv. 19-24).

1. The people assembled (vv. 19, 20). The king convened the people at the urgent request of Elijah.

2. Elijah's ringing call to decision (vv. 21-24). (1) The question asked—Who is your God, Baal or the Lord? (v. 21). Many of the people had not wholly forsaken God. They attempted to worship both God and Baal. Many today are halting between two opinions; they are halting between self and God—sin and holiness—mammon and God. But the question must be settled sooner or later. In fact, the decision is being made every day. (2) The silence of the people (v. 21). This may have been because of fear of the king or ignorance, for many were of the opinion that to be religious was the only thing necessary, irrespective of the being worshiped. (3) The method of decision (vv. 22-24). Two sacrifices were to be provided, one to be offered to Baal, the other to God. The god who answered by fire was to be the God. The people consented that this was a fair test.

III. The Test Applied (vv. 25-39).

1. The offering by the prophets of Baal (vv. 25-29). Elijah gave a fair test, even placed the advantage on the other side. He gave the prophets of Baal the first opportunity to prove to the people as to whether Baal was a real god. Elijah taunted them, and they more earnestly cried to Baal, but no answer came.

2. The offering by Elijah (vv. 30-39). (1) The people invited near (v. 30). His object was for them to see the entire proceedings in order to fully grasp the genuineness of the test. (2) The altar repaired (vv. 30-32). Before there can be the power of God manifested, the altar must be repaired. Elijah took twelve stones, representing the united nation. God is one, and His people is one. (3) The offering on the altar (vv. 33-35). After the bullock was in place, he had four barrels of water three times emptied upon the sacrifices and the wood so as to fill the trench about the altar. So sure was Elijah that God's power was sufficient, that he heaped difficulty upon difficulty. (4) Elijah's prayer (vv. 36-37). (a) It was based upon covenants (v. 36). The foundation upon which all real prayer rests is covenant relationship. (b) Its object was God's exaltation (v. 36). Elijah was jealous for God's glory—his supreme desire was to honor and magnify the Lord. The only thing that he asked for himself was to be known as God's servant. (c) It was for the salvation of the people (v. 37). His heart yearned after Israel. He was most desirous that they should come to know God. (5) The result (vv. 38, 39). (a) The fire of the Lord fell and consumed not only the sacrifice, but the wood, stones and dust, even licking up the water in the trench. (b) The people fell on their faces and confessed that the Lord was the God.

IV. The Execution of Baal's Prophets (v. 40).

The reason for this drastic action was that Israel's government was a theocracy—God was their King. Idolatry was treason against the King. These false prophets were traitors to God and therefore should die.

V. God's Prophets Vindicated (vv. 41-46).

The proof that Elijah was God's prophet was incomplete till rain came. Israel under his ministry had now turned back to God, and God made known to them His graciousness.

The Bounds of the Sea.

Fear ye not me? said the Lord; will ye not tremble at my presence, which have placed the sand for the bound of the sea by a perpetual decree, that it cannot pass it; and though the waves thereof toss themselves, yet can they not prevail; though they roar, yet can they not pass over it?—Jeremiah, 5:22.

The End of Enmity.

When a man's ways please the Lord he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him.—Proverbs 16:7

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Help Your Kidneys Fight That Cold!

Winter Colds and Chills Weaken the Kidneys and Are the Direct Cause of Many Serious Kidney Disorders

IS winter-time your backache-time? Does every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you lame, achy and all worn out? Does your back throb and ache until it seems you just can't keep going another day?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills throw a heavy strain on the kidneys. They overload the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys have to filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder then, that every cold finds you suffering with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

But don't worry! Simply realize that your kidneys are overworked at such times and need assistance. Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills today and give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Assist them also by drinking pure water freely, eating lightly, and getting plenty of fresh air and rest. Doan's Kidney Pills have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Good Folks:

MRS. JAMES BRADY, 301 Sycamore St., La Grange, Ind., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have done me more good than anything I have ever used. My kidneys were always weak and when I took cold, it settled in these organs. My back ached so I could hardly keep on my feet to do my work and my kidneys acted irregularly, too. I used Doan's Kidney Pills for these attacks and they never failed to help me right away, strengthening my back and kidneys."

G. N. TEMPLE, 508 W. Fourth St., Uhrichsville, Ohio, says: "I was laid up with a backache, as the result of a cold, which settled in my kidneys. The constant, dull ache in the small of my back annoyed me and many times, sharp pains shot up through my shoulders. My kidneys were out of order, too, and acted too frequently. I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and it only took a short use before [illegible] no longer bothered me. My health has been fine since then."

Doan's Kidney Pills

At all dealers, 60c a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chemists, Buffalo, N. Y.

Connubial Pleasantry.

"Tired of waiting, dearie?" she asked, emerging from her dressing room after exhausting her feminine arts in the attempt to appear beautiful.

"Oh, no," he replied, wearily, "it's all in a wife-time."—Life.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

The Opportunity.

In this world the one thing supremely worth having is the opportunity to do worthily a piece of work, the doing of which is of vital consequence to the welfare of mankind.—Roosevelt.

No ugly, grimy streaks on the clothes when Red Cross Ball Blue is used. Good bluing gets good results. All grocers carry it.—Advertisement.

There are no more attics, so junk stores increase.

Adam was the original oldest inhabitant for that COUGH! KEMP'S BALSAM

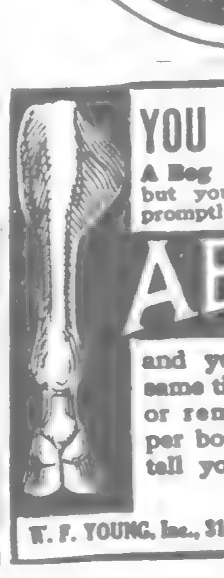
Pleasant to take Children like it!!



YOU CAN'T CUT OUT

A Bog Spavin or Thoroughpin but you can clean them off promptly with

ABSORBINE

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

and you work the horse same time. Does not blister or remove the hair. $2.50 per bottle, delivered. Will tell you more if you write. Book 4 A free.

W. F. YOUNG, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

Don't be visionary. It's foolish to plant sunflower seeds to raise rainbows.

SALESMAN

Large reliable New York House dealing in Standard Household Merchandise seeking local representative to sell new, sound Exclusive Sales Promotion System to retail grocers, druggists, and general stores. The greatest selling plan of the age and the one chance of a lifetime for the right man. Attractive proposition; unusual opportunity; exclusive territory; liberal commission basis, payable weekly.

INTERSTATE FACTORY PRODUCTS CORP.
Fifth Avenue Building NEW YORK CITY

3 SILK NECKTIES
[illegible] $1.10, $1.25, $1.65 at 50% saving. Specify style desired [illegible]

TOBACCO, NATURAL LEAF WHITE BURLEY, old crop, mild and sweet. Thirty cents per pound; ten pounds $2.50; light smoking ten pounds $[illegible] prepaid. Sample for stamp.
WM. R. WALTON, OTISCO, INDIANA

VELVET SKIN—MEN AND WOMEN, don't tolerate a sluggish, blotchy complexion, pimples, bl[illegible] Don't be [illegible] ashamed of [illegible]

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 2–1922.

Growing Children

are often troubled with Feverishness, Constipation, Headache, Stomach troubles, Teething disorders and Worms. At such times thousands of Mothers use and find they give certain relief. They tend to break up colds. Cleanse the stomach, act on the liver and bowels and give healthful sleep. Easy to give and pleasant to take.

MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS for CHILDREN

Used by Mothers for over 30 years.

Do Not Accept Any Substitute for MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS.

MOTHER GRAY'S

WESTERN CANADA
Land of Prosperity

offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts and conveniences which make life worth living.

Farm Gardens, Poultry, Dairying

are sources of income second only to grain growing and stock raising. Attractive climate, good neighbors, churches, schools, good markets, railroad facilities, rural telephone, etc.

For illustrated literature, maps, description of farm opportunities in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, reduced railway rates, etc., write

W. S. NETHERY, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, Ohio; M. J. JOHNSTONE, 215 Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Indiana

Authorized Agent, Dept. of Immigration and Colonization, Dominion of Canada

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

JANUARY

L 912

--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight
SPECIALIST
of Ft. Wayne, Indiana
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist Office, St. Joe, Ind.,
Friday, JANUARY 13th.
If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL

Headache

THOUSANDS OF WOMEN suffer miserably from periodic attacks of headache, never dreaming that a permanent cure may be had. Headache nearly always results from some disorder of the stomach, liver or bowels. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will correct these disorders and there will be no more headache. Many have been permanently cured by Chamberlain's Tablets.

Chamberlain's Tablets

ADVERTISING BRINGS BIG RESULTS

Last week this paper carried an announcement of the beginning of Patterson-Fletcher Company's Great Half Price Sale. We understand that larger crowds have attended this sale than were ever present at any previous sale. This probably can be accounted for very easily—first the sale is one month earlier than usual, just at the beginning of the winter months; so they probably have much more merchandise to sell at Half Price and more people are learning every year of the wonderful values that Patterson-Fletcher Company give their customers and when they read their advertising in our paper, they know that the news is important and that they'll find the values just as advertised. It pays to advertise.

Hi' School to Present "Outside the Law"

On next Saturday night the High school will offer the first moving-picture show of the current school year. This will consist of a Universal Super-Jewel Production of eight reels and a one reel comedy.

The management of these shows is in the hands of a student committee and teachers.

Saturday night at eight o'clock in the Assembly room of the school building; admission 15c25c

Every Boy Wants It

If you could realize how much that boy of yours or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through—and its influence is of the best.

THE AMERICAN BOY
"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"

In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.

Price Reduced

THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. Make some boy happy—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY!

Mail this Coupon to the publication in which this offer appears.

For $2.00 enclosed send a Year's Subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, beginning with the..................Number to

Name ....
Address ....

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174
For Sale at your Dealer
Made in five grades
ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND
EAGLE MIKADO
EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

The WEEK'S DOINGS

Envelopes at the News office.

See Widney for automobile license.

Mrs Clarence Dorsey is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs John Wineland.

Mrs. Ada Berry, Mrs Etha Jackson and daughter, Miss Edna, spent Saturday at Fort Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Henley and children spent Sunday at Auburn visiting relatives.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St. Auburn, Indiana.

Transfer paper at NEWS office 2 sheets for 5c. Get some now for that pattern you wish to transfer

Mrs. Frank Curie and her little daughter Mary, who have been ill the past week, are improving Mrs. Vina Fish went to Auburn, on Friday, to visit relatives indefinitely.

M. A Butler, of Spencerville, is a new subscriber to the St. Joe News.

Get your McCall's or Popular Science magagine. January now at the News office.

James Argubright and son, of Grover Hill, Ohio, were calling on old friends here, yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. J. C. Hull and son Merritt, called on J. O. Quance and family, of Ft. Wayne, Wednesday.

The Newville Township Farm Bureau postponed their regular meeting last Thursday evening until next Thursday evening

Mr. and Mrs Chas. Hanson and little son of Garrett spent over Sunday at this place a guest of Merritt Sechler.

Tanlac is purely vegetable and is made from the most beneficial roots, herbs and barks known to science. At B. S. Shefler's.

A fine red fox was caught Tuesday morning in an ordinary steel rat trap by Joe Foltz. The trap had been set for a rabbit.

Mrs. Pauline McDaniel, who has been taking treatment at the Irene Byron Sanatorium, came to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Brown, Saturday evening.

Samuel Keesler went to LaOtto, yesterday morning, where he will spend a few days doing some repair work on the Nathan Grain Co, elevator at that place.

Dr. C. S. Johnson went to LaGrange, Saturday, where he spoke to Rev. J. R Kuhn's congregation in his stead. Rev. Kuhn is here assisting in the two weeks' meetings at the Methodist church.

Mrs. John Wineland received word of the death of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Jane Lake, which occurred on Saturday afternoon at Pleasant lake. The funeral will be held on Tuesday afternoon at Spencerville.

R. F. Place was at Fort Wayne, Tuesday, where he took a radium treatment to free his lip of a cancer which has recently started there. Miss Edith Widney was a Ft. Wayne shopper the same day.

The Tri-Township Shipping Association will have a car load of Kentucky Famous Yellow Jacket lump coal at St. Joe the last of this week or the first of next. It will sell at about $7.50 per ton. H. O. Waltz, Mgr.

Farm Record Books can be secured at the St. Joe Valley Bank. This bank had some special printing done on them and are being handed out to their patrons. A very good move. Now is the time to start right by taking an inventory of the farm and equipment.

The local fire department was called out early Wednesday morning by a call from the B. & O. tower. But it was not the tower that was on fire, it was a field of grass which had caught fire from a spark from a passing train and the wind was carrying the blaze rapidly toward the Brodbeck home. The blaze was soon extinguished and no damage resulted.

Mrs. Alice Hart is spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hart

Mrs. Samuel Armstrong and daughter, Miss Mary, spent Friday at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Will Hamm and Mrs. W. E. Henley spent Saturday morning at Ft. Wayne.

Mrs. F. M. Monroe and Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Frye were at Auburn, Saturday.

C. A. Patterson was in town Monday and Tuesday looking after some matters concerning his property here.

Grover Curie left Monday to take up his work with the International Harvester Company

The Tri-township institute was held here Saturday in the High school building.

Mrs. Eva Shull entertained her Sunday school class Sunday, the Juniors of Coburns Corners.

The Misses Lucile Curie, Viola Coburn and Priscilla Borthwick spent Sunday afternoon as guests of Miss Verba Haner.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Buckingham and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Foltz were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Reasoner.

Harry Bassett was a Sunday dinner guest of his cousin, C. C. Bassett, and family. Sidney Brunson, of Newville, was an evening guest.

Have you heard that Mr. Schwab will be at St. Joe to talk on swine and swine management during the Short Course, February 21-22nd?

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Keesler and daughter Jane spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Snyder.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway returned home Sunday night from a several days visit with her daughter, Mrs. Ves Chandler, at Hobart.

Mrs. Grover Curie and three children, Keith, Romaine and Katherine, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Roland Bearss.

Among those who have been on the sick list, but who are now improving, are Mrs. Nan Lysher, Mrs. William Hamm, Darwin Frye, Master Charles Coburn and little Miss Jean Myers.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamm had as Sunday guests Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bleeks and Mr. and Mrs. Harlow Sechler and children.

Mrs. Clay Coburn spent Sunday afternoon with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Koch, while Mr. and Mrs. John Koch were Monday evening guests.

Mrs. Loretta Hull entertained the W. C. T. U. Friday afternoon. A very interesting program was carried out and one honorary member, Rev. R. B. Daily, added to the enrollment.

The Coburns Corners Ladies Aid met Wednesday afternoon of this week with Mrs. Harry Waltz Mrs Wilmot Coburn had charge of the Bible study.

Plan your work so that you can attend the Short Course at St. Joe on February 21-22nd and receive some worth while benefits that will be possible to get there from the practical demonstrations, lectures, etc.

Laney Gee and Fred Gee accompanied the former's daughter, Miss Mildred, as far as Fort Wayne, Sunday morning, on her return to Thomson, Illinois, via Chicago, to resume her duties as High school principal at that place, after spending her two weeks vacation here.

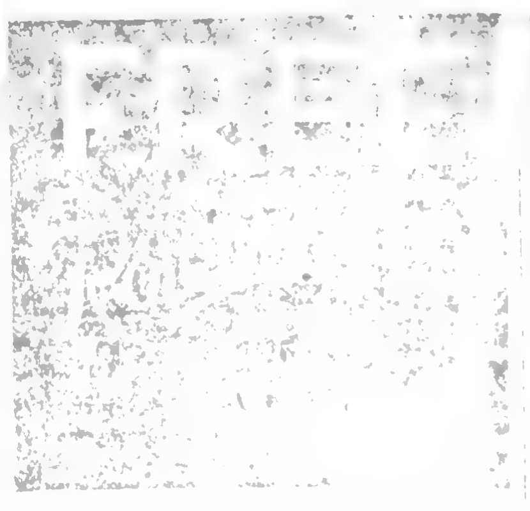
Banish that awful insomnia that worries you every night. Let your sleep be restful and refreshing. Tanlac does it. At B. S. Sheffer's Drug Store.

Farmers Short Course Brings University to the People

The Purdue Farmers Short Course, which is to be held at St. Joe on February 21 and 22, will bring to the farmers and housewives of DeKalb County, just what the name implies, a short course in agriculture and home economics, thorough and practical. All the information to be presented has been collected either at the Purdue Experiment Station or similar institutions in other states, by careful and extensive investigational work. Those in charge of the Short Course from Purdue are men and women who through their training and experience in teaching, research and investigation, are particularly adapted to this kind of work.

The lectures on various farm practices will be supplemented by demonstrations and classes, in which livestock, hogs, chickens, etc., are used. This will give a series of object lessons that cannot fail to attract considerable attention, and at the same time teach some important idea. Purdue instructors in charge of the work are L. L. Jones, poultry; J. W. Schwab, livestock; G. M. Frier, corn improvement; Miss Florence Boston, home economics.

The program has been arranged in such a way that one will find something of interest going on at all times, a complete schedule having been planned for both men and women. No progressive, up-to-date farmer or housewife can afford to pass up this opportunity to enlighten themselves with the latest and best of all that has been discovered by the various Experiment Stations through this country. Begin to plan your work now that you may be able to attend every session of the coming school.



Instructive Lecture.

Last Friday evening at the Coburn's Corners, Mr. Jack Hatch, of South Bend, representing the Standard Oil Company, gave a very interesting and instructive lecture on the subject of GASOLINE, from the Well to the Exhaust Pipe. His discussion was not of an advertising nature as some might suppose, but it was along the line of the processes through which crude petroleum is taken and how and when gasoline is taken from it.

His statement concerning the mistaking idea some people have on this "water [illegible] gasoline" talk made tho[illegible] their remarks [illegible] tion was all [illegible] undoubtedly true.

It is most [illegible] Coburn's Corners [illegible] Association will succeed in obtaining Mr. Hatch to come back to talk on the subject of "Oil" at one of their meetings in the near future. And when he comes again there will be a big crowd to hear him.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	108	$ 6.02
M. P.	84	3.57
Lutheran	96	8.62
M. E. Spencer	77	4.35
Lutheran	87	4.95
Coburntown	75	2.70
Newville U. B.	94	3.79
Christian	93	3.00
Concord	5	2.12

COLETOWN

Alvin Walker and family visited Sunday at Wallace Ruperts'.

J. W. Hart and wife took dinner Sunday with Karl Hart [illegible]

Clara Perman [illegible] and Sunday with Mildred Perman.

Mrs. Maggie Boggers took dinner with her sister, Mrs. Jay Hart.

Sherman Meek and family visited Sunday afternoon with Wm. Sauers and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Ginther returned Friday to Akron, Ohio, where he is teaching school.

Elton Brown and family were entertained Sunday for dinner at the Edwin Guthrie home.

William and Zelma Miller, Ralph and Floyd Palmer spent Friday evening with Opal Walker.

Leroy Mann took supper Friday evening with Henry Kling and wife.

Clair Miller, of Auburn, and Mark Murphy and family visited Saturday night and Sunday at the Wm. Sauers' home.

Administrator's Sale of Personal Property.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Administrator with the will annexed, of the estate of Joseph B. Haifley, deceased, will offer for sale at public out-cry, at the late residence of said deceased, on West Main street, in the town of Saint Joe, DeKalb county, Indiana, on Saturday, the twenty-eighth day of January, 1922, the personal property of said estate, consisting of Ford automobile, 1 cart, wheel-barrow, grindstone, pipe cutter, clamp and dies, work-bench, wrench, adz, bar, oil tank and oil, 50 feet lawn hose, hammers, tools and tool chest, handsaws, square, braces and bits, saw-sets, planes, whetstones, levels, trowels, wrenches, chisels, screw-drivers, files, drills and bits, pipe vise, vise 20-ft ladder and many other articles.

Sale to begin at 1 o'clock p.m.

Terms of Sale—Sums of $5 dollars and under, cash; sums over five dollars, a credit of nine months will be given purchaser, the purchaser executing his note with good security, waiving benefit of valuation and appraisement laws, without interest if paid when due, and attorney fees.

MELVIN T. BISHOP,
Administrator.

In addition to above sale and following on same date and place will be sold the following: One 6 h. engine, Waterloo boy, and 1 buzz saw, 1 Boiling sap pan, [illegible] sap pails, 155 spiles, hog trough 14 ft. long; 12-ft. galvanized hog trough. Charley Haifley.

Money
To Lend on Farms!

LOANS to be secured by First Mortgage not exceeding 40 per ct. of the present value of land alone excluding improvements; conditions and terms are attractive. Call at our office.

Trade Mark.

The Straus BROS. COMPANY
Ligonier - Ind.

J. Maxwell Lile
Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

Notice of Final Settlement of Esta

Cause No. 2412.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons interested in the estate of Frederick J. Keller, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 30th day of January, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 29th day of December, 1921.

Frank R. Bowman,
Administrator.
Atkinson, Endicott & Husselman,
Attorneys.

Notice of Administration

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned has been appointed by the Judge of the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, Administrator, with will annexed, of the Estate of Joseph B. Haifley, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

MELVIN T. BISHOP,
Administrator.
Dec. 23, 1921.
J. E. Pomeroy, Attorney.

JANUARY

L 912

0020

St. Joe News Supplement

Thursday, January 12, 1922

Christian Church Notes

The orchestra responded to an invitation from the Coburns Corners church, Sunday evening, and played several numbers during the meeting.

The Personal Evangelist class will meet each Friday evening for the next six weeks with Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily. The class grows in interest each meeting.

The Loyal Boys and Girls class is still a close second in their division to the Loyal Juniors class of the Columbia Ave., Cincinnati Christian church, they being only 22 ahead in the aggregate attendance in the International attendance contest.

Mrs. Ada Bassett entertained the Martha Society, Thursday afternoon. Nine members were present and three small guests. Two new names were added to the enrollment. The next meeting will be with Mrs Amanda Brown, January 19th, and it is expected that there will be work.

If the Evangelistic meetings at the M. P. church still continue next Sunday evening there will be no services at the Christian church except Christian Endeavor. The pastor and congregation expect to meet with the sister church.

The Loyal Sons and Daughters Class will meet with Mr and Mrs Olen Dermott, next Sunday, after services. A pot luck dinner will be served.

The following superintendents have been appointed in the various departments as follows:—Childrens Division, Mrs Dora Daily; Young People, Mrs. Ada Bassett; Adult, Sam Keesler; Home, Mrs. Nan Lysher; Educational, H. C. Borthwick; Missionary, Mrs. Eva Sheffer; Temperance, Mrs Ada Bassett; Teachers Training, Mrs. Belle Woodcox.

Coburn's Corners—

Bible School, 9:30 o'clock; Preaching, 10:30: R. B. Daily's subject will be "Christian Unity."

Coburns Corners

Rev. R. B. Daily filled h [illegible] appointment at the church [illegible] day evening.

Will Maxwell received word [illegible] day of the death of his [illegible] Julia Passon, of Joliet, [illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. Will Price, of [illegible] were guests of Mr. and Mrs S Hadsell, Sunday.

Miss Mildred Gee has [illegible] her duties as teacher at Thomso [illegible] after spending the holidays here [illegible]

[illegible] and Clyde Hart [illegible] Mrs. Alice Hart [illegible] the Clarence H [illegible] home. Mrs. Alice Hart remained [illegible]

Through the courtesy of Mr. [illegible] the Standard Oil Co., an [illegible] lecture upon "Gasolin [illegible] Well to Exhaust Pipe" was d [illegible] livered here last Friday evening b [illegible] Mr. Hatch of South Bend. The Luth [illegible] an Orchestra, of St. Joe, was al [illegible] present and rendered several pleasin [illegible]

Mrs. Eva Shull very pleasantly entertained at a dinner Sunday, compl [illegible] mentary to her Sunday school class. The following were present: Willard [illegible] John Walker, Elmer Place, [illegible] Hart, Kenneth Coburn, [illegible] ward Kimes, Dale Trostel, Henry Hert, Edith Place, Violet and Latha [illegible] organized as fol [illegible] Pres., John Walker; Vice Pres., Elmer Place; Sec'y., Dale Trostel; Treas., Edward Kimes.

The Christian church held its annual election of officers Sunday, results as follows: Elders, Floyd Coburn, Chas. Tustison, Saxe Hadsell, Clyde Hart, and Reed Place. Deacons, Claude Laub, Alvin Perry, Will Maxwell, Meade Baker, Fred Hart and Wilmot Coburn. Clerk, Ella Wilmot. Chorister, Bernice Hart. Ass't Chorister, Saxe Hadsell.

The R. H. C. enjoyed a pot luck dinner with Mrs Will Hamilton last Thursday. Seventeen members were present and five guests, viz. Mrs. Howard Northrup, Mrs. B. E. Widney, Mrs. Harry Hursh, Mrs. H. M. Widney and Miss Mildred Gee. Mrs. Inez [illegible] proved winner in a musical [illegible] conducted by the Pres., Mrs Dora Wilder. A holiday [illegible] was also an enjoyable feature of the afternoon. An all day meeting and pot luck will be with Mrs. Inez Hadsell, Jan. 19th.

JANUARY

L 912

0021

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI   ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, JAN. 19, 1922

—WHY—

PAY HIGH PRICES?

When you can buy

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suits at $26.25

Club Clothes at .... $10 to 18.75

Overcoats at .... $10 to 25.00

Heavy Cotton Underwear (the suit) at $1.15

Heavy Cotton Sweaters, with collar at 95c

Solid Leather Shoes at $2.45

Heavy Blue Work Shirts at 65c

Sheep Skin Coats at $6.00

All our Winter Clothing and Underwear at ☞ 1-4 OFF

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville   Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Tankage-Cotton Seed Meal-Oil Meal

BRAN--Middlings--Armour's

Stock and Hog Feed.

All these feeds we have in stock and would be pleased to have you buy your feeds of us.

COAL of all descriptions---both hard and soft. Hocking Valley, Virginia and Kentucky. All the highest grade of their kinds. Buy your coal now.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

In Trouble? ALWAYS Remember that it is easier to keep out of trouble than it is to get out, once you are in. Have you made a bad investment?

Are you in financial trouble?

Come right in and tell us about it. We will do our best to help you. But the really wise investors come to us before they get into trouble.

We are handling financial deals every day. That's our business. We invite you to come and confer about deals.

All our banking facilities are at your disposal. Let us help you to keep out of trouble.

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

I. O. O. F. Lodge Buys Property

The St. Joe lodge of the order of the I. O. O. F have purchased from Emiles Case the property at the corner of Third and Washington streets, the building of which, the first story, is occupied by the post office, and the second by the rooms of the I. O. O. F. lodge, consideration $2,000.

The location is an ideal site for the erection of a fine modern business and lodge building, and it is the purpose of the new owners to sooner or later put up on the lot such a structure that will be a big improvement to the town. The lot is in size 50 ft. x 130 ft., which will enable a large building to be built.

The post office will maintain its present location until such time as is set for removing the old building.

The lodge used to occupy rooms in the 2nd story of the old Leighty block, but when this building was destroyed by fire in 1917 the upstairs of the Case building was obtained, and were to be used as a meeting place until such time as a new or better building could be had.

The building now occupied by the Sheffer drug store also stands on the west side of the lot and is included in this property.

—‡—‡—‡—

Goes to Mishawaka

L. B. Heller, who formerly owned the grocery store now known as the Central Grocery, has bought a store at Mishawaka, Ind., and went there to take possession Monday morning, if he can get his goods moved. His line of stock will be groceries and general merchandise, as it was while in business here. The News joins with a host of other friends in wishing him success in his new locality.

—‡—‡—‡—

Rid of Sparrows

One night last week members of the Newville township bureau, who are organized in a sparrow killing contest, came to the M. H. Widney barn and asked that they might have the privilege of killing sparrows there. Of course they were told to go ahead for Mr. Widney was glad to get rid of his many devastating little pests, and, after a few hours in the barn these few contestants had killed and gathered together in a pile over two hundred birds.

—‡—‡—‡—

Breaks Leg

Mr. Clyde Schooley was hauling gravel on the Ohio-Indiana line road. He was walking along side the wagon and as he reached in behind the horse to pick up a line that had slipped down was caught by the wheel, and his left leg was run over, breaking it above the knee. He was taken into the Hurne home and medical aid was called.

—‡—‡—‡—

County Debt Paid Off

Sunday, January 15, the bonded indebtedness of the DeKalb county court house ceased and the bonds retired for every cent was ready and paid by the county treasurer. Ten years ago many people said that the sum of $160,000, then the amount owing on the court house could never be paid, but now the people of the county have the proud satisfaction of knowing that the last cent of the big debt has been paid. This fine building has cost in the neighborhood of about $298,000.

Sentenced to Penal Farm.

David and Millard Well [illegible] had been held in the county jail for over a week charged with the thieft of hides at St. Joe, [illegible] sentenced to serve 90 days [illegible] state penal farm. The [illegible] was given Tuesday morning [illegible] Judge Dan M. Link.

—‡—‡—‡—

"Jolly Jester" at the M. P. Church

The school pupils [illegible] township were treated to a [illegible] lesson in health, Tuesday [illegible] Wallace McKay, the J[illegible] by means of his use [illegible] quism, and his clownish [illegible] had the youngsters in [illegible] uproar of laughter. [illegible] tered, carrots talked, [illegible] wept, all to one purpose [illegible] the youngsters the best [illegible] preserving their health.

The lessons learned were [illegible] and the teachers feel that the lower grades learned more in [illegible] than they could have done by [illegible] of lecturing. The [illegible] do well to heed some of [illegible] these young Health Crusaders will expound to them.

Through the courtesy of the Methodist people, their church was used. The school takes this method of publicly thanking them.

—‡—‡—‡—

Goes to Prison

It was not only Friday [illegible] but the twenty-third [illegible] the December term of [illegible] circuit court when Ward [illegible] ward Auburn youth, was [illegible] Judge Dan M. Link [illegible] charge of petit larceny [illegible] ment was ill-timed. [illegible] tence of one to eight [illegible] Indiana reformatory [illegible] on him.

Mercer is an orphan lacking [illegible] moral stability required [illegible] self to lead a straight life [illegible] eighteen years old. [illegible] years ago he broke in[illegible] Corunna and was taken in [illegible] Because of his tender years [illegible] did not keep him confined [illegible] insisted that he remain i[illegible] diate vicinity of the l[illegible] evening he disappeared and [illegible] minutes later he was arres[illegible] police as he was leaving [illegible] grocery. He had broken [illegible] store and stolen some pen[illegible]

Ward was then taken to [illegible] boys' school at Plainfield. Even [illegible] did not reform him. Last summer [illegible] and two Jackson township youths stole some chickens from their neighbors and were held in jail several weeks. Then Judge Link gave all three suspended sentences. Ward promised to go straight if shown clemency.

Early in December Ward told Deputy Sheriff H. H. Squires that he needed an overcoat. The officer offered to give him one that was in good condition, but the youth refused to accept it. He said he wanted a coat like Howard Maginnis's—a sheep lined garment. The deputy sheriff could not accommodate him with such a coat and so Ward made up his mind to get one elsewhere.

On December 7th Mercer, with Clifford West and Rollie Irvin, was at St. Joe. Mercer noticed the kind of coat he wanted hanging in front of the store owned by Fred B. Leighty and Harry T. Hursh. He remarked that he intended to take it and his companions warned him that he would get into trouble if he did. He refused to take the suggestion and when the other boys were not looking he grabbed the coat and ran.

When Ward was arrested he claimed he bought the coat in Fort Wayne, but after he was in jail a while he confessed that he was guilty. When taken before Judge Link Friday morning he said he took the coat because he needed such a garment. In view of his bad record, the court decided Mercer would have to go to the reformatory.

Charles S. Smith, deputy prosecuting attorney, appeared for the state and Willis Rhoads, attorney for the poor, was counsel for Mercer.—Star.

—‡—‡—‡—

Indicted by Grand Jury

It developed late Friday that one of the ten indictments returned by the December grand jury was against John Koch, of St. Joe. Koch is charged with assault and battery.

St. Joe Garage

Boost St. Joe

[illegible]

$2[illegible]

Why buy [illegible]?

[illegible]

Notice-

The GRAY [illegible]

JAN 24-25.

[illegible]

The GRAY Line

The N[illegible] that stands for Stabili[illegible]

[illegible]

W[illegible] named by [illegible] Culbertson [illegible] cox.

[illegible]

[illegible] appearance to answer [illegible] selling a diseased anim[illegible]

The [illegible] arded to Clyde Lindsey [illegible] the defect [illegible] he accepted [illegible] for $1[illegible] from [illegible]

Witnesses [illegible] Lindsey, Henry S. [illegible] Kee and Dr. Ora W[illegible]

Bowser retained Capt. W. D. Stump as his attorney. He claims the horse in question belonged to M. C. Stewart, of near Auburn, and that all he had to do with it was to enter it for sale at a public auction he held. He said it was announced at the time that the horse was the property of Mr. Stewart. He admits that the note was [illegible] out to him, but he adds that he [illegible] dorsed the note and gave it to [illegible] Stewart and that he himself did [illegible] profit by the transaction.—Star.

—‡—‡—‡—

St. Joe High School Notes.

FRESHMEN

The Freshmen have succeeded in obtaining the highest spelling average for the last two weeks.

A class meeting was held last Monday, for the purpose of transacting some important business.

The class has just begun its work on the first classic of the semester. We are studying Scott's "Marmion."

SENIOR

[illegible]

JUNIOR

[illegible]

SOPHOMORE

[illegible]

Last Call

[illegible] World War History of [illegible] [illegible] efforts we[illegible] to have [illegible] from this county [illegible] fear that there are boys who have not done [illegible] to be filled [illegible] American Legion, at Butler and [illegible] Auburn. We [illegible] So it is up to [illegible] who have not signed to get [illegible] do so at one of these [illegible] the undersigned.

J. Y. W. McC[illegible]
Historian DeK[illegible]
Aub[illegible]

—‡—‡—‡—

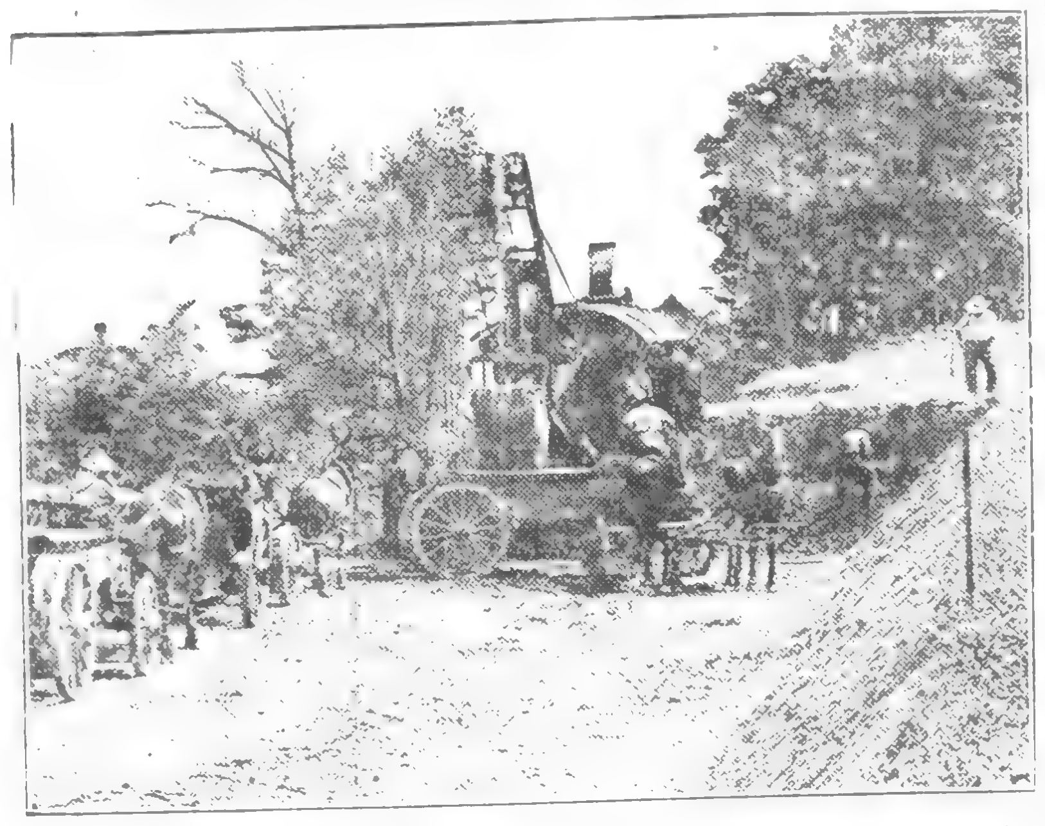
"Movies" to please young [illegible] old at the school house Sat[illegible] night at 8 o'clock.

JANUARY

L 912

0022

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ACT PROVIDES WORK FOR QUARTER MILLION MEN



About One-Half of All Roads That Are Being Built Are Being Aided by the Government Financially.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Seventy-five million dollars becomes available as federal aid for road construction in the various states, the money to be spent under the supervision of the bureau of public roads, Department of Agriculture, under the federal highway act, signed November 9, by the President. In addition, $15,000,000 is appropriated for national forest roads. The $75,000,000 represents the federal government's appropriation to the work of building highways in the various states and must be matched, dollar for dollar, by funds from the state treasuries, except in states where more than 5 per cent of the area is unappropriated public land.

Part of Money Now Available.

The $75,000,000 appropriated is for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922. Here is how the money will be apportioned among the 48 states:

[illegible]	[illegible]	Neb.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Nev.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	N. H.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	N. J.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	N. M.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	N. Y.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	N. C.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	N. D.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Ohio	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	R. I.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	S. C.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	S. D.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Tenn.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Texas	4,425,172.41
[illegible]	[illegible]	Utah	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Vermont	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Virginia	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Wash.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	W. Va.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Wis.	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	Wyo.	934,617.63

Of the appropriation of $15,000,000 for the improvement of national forest roads $5,000,000 is made available for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, and $10,000,000 for the following fiscal year.

The federal highway act in a general way resembles the federal-aid act of 1916 but contains several new features. Administration of the act by the secretary of agriculture, and under him the bureau of public roads, remains unchanged.

Apportionment of the fund to the states is almost the same as in the previous act, the fund being divided into three parts, one part apportioned according to population, one according to area, and one part according to mileage of rural and star mail routes. A new feature is the stipulation that no state shall receive less than one-half of 1 per cent of the total fund which, in this case, amounts to $365,625. This stipulation will increase the amount received by four of the smaller states, i. e., Delaware, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Change in Use of State Allotments.

There is considerable change, however, in the manner in which a state may use its allotment. Each state must select a connected road system not exceeding 7 per cent of its road mileage for improvement with federal aid. This system will be divided into two classes, one of which will be known as interstate highways and the other as intercounty highways. The interstate highways must not exceed three-sevenths of the system selected; on them not more than 60 per cent of the state's allotment can be spent without the joint approval of the secretary of agriculture and the state highway department. The intercounty highways, which consist of the remainder of the system selected, will receive the remainder of the state's allotment.

Except in states where more than 5 per cent of the area is unappropriated public land, the amount of federal aid received on any project must not exceed 50 per cent of the estimated cost. In states where more than 5 per cent of the area is unappropriated public land the 50 per cent allotment is increased by an amount equal to one-half the percentage of unappropriated public land in the state. Before any funds can be paid to a state, the state must appropriate money, under the direct control of the state highway department, to match the federal allotment, and for the maintenance of federal-aid highways.

All highways in the interstate system must have a surfaced width of at least 18 feet, unless a narrower width is deemed permissible by the secretary of agriculture. In case a federal-aid highway is not properly maintained by a state, the state will be given 90 days' notice by the department; at the end of that time if the highway is not in good condition of maintenance the secretary of agriculture will maintain it out of the state's allotment and refuse to approve any new projects until reimbursement is made by the state.

What the new appropriation will mean to the country can be judged by the use to which the $275,000,000 previously appropriated has been put, according to officials of the United States Department of Agriculture. Practically $200,000,000 of that money has been put to work in projects which are either entirely completed or now under construction. The exact amount was $199,823,427 on October 31. To match this amount the states have appropriated $265,529,090, making a total of $465,352,517.

Mileage Sufficient to Encircle Earth.

The roads to be paid for by this money, if placed end to end, would encircle the earth and extend from New York to San Francisco on the second lap, the total mileage of the roads under construction and completed being reported by the bureau of public roads as 27,000 miles on October 31. Of this mileage, 9,555 miles is in projects which are entirely completed and the contractors discharged. The balance of 17,445 miles is in projects which are still under construction, but which were 69 per cent complete on October 31. In these projects there is therefore the equivalent of 12,000 miles of completed road, so that the completed road to date totals over 21,000 miles.

The average cost per mile of the roads built with federal aid has been between $17,000 and $18,000. More than half the money has been spent for roads with the highest types of surface, such as concrete, brick, and bituminous concrete, but a very large mileage of roads of the cheaper type, such as gravel and sand-clay, has been built where such types would withstand the wear of the traffic.

Prior to five years ago the federal government took no active part in the road construction of the country. Today about one-half of all the roads that are being built are being aided by the government financially, and the construction is subject to the inspection and approval of federal engineers.

Work for Quarter Million Men.

It is estimated by engineers of the United States Department of Agriculture that the federal-aid roads under construction on October 31 were giving employment to about 250,000 men, either directly on the actual road construction or indirectly in the production and transportation of the materials which enter into the construction.

IF YOU CARE FOR CALVES

Don't slaughter or sell a heifer calf from a profitable cow. Raise it.

Don't keep your cows in a dark, damp, dirty pen.

Don't overfeed them.

Don't feed milk at 100 degrees temperature one time and 80 degrees the next time.

Don't feed sweet milk one time and sour milk the next time.

Don't feed from dirty buckets and never from a trough.

Doing any of the last five things is apt to cause "scours" and "stunted calves."

Don't feed the grain in the milk; feed it dry. Chewing it aids digestion. Mixing it in milk means more scours.

Don't feed the foam that forms on milk as it comes from the separator, nor that on whole fresh milk. Foam is bubbles—bubbles are full of gas and gas causes colic and sometimes scours.

Don't expose young stock to cold, bleak weather, nor allow them to drink very cold water in winter.

DAILY REQUIREMENTS OF COW

Food Used for Milk Production Must Be in Addition to That Necessary for Body.

A cow weighing 1,000 pounds needs every day, for the maintenance of her body, an amount of food equivalent to that supplied in eight pounds of clover hay and twenty pounds of good corn silage. She must have this food regardless of whether she produces any milk. Food used for milk production must be in addition to that required to maintain the cow's body.

IMPROVED ROADS

WAR SUPPLIES FOR HIGHWAYS

So Far Approximately $150,000,000 Worth of Surplus Material Has Been Distributed.

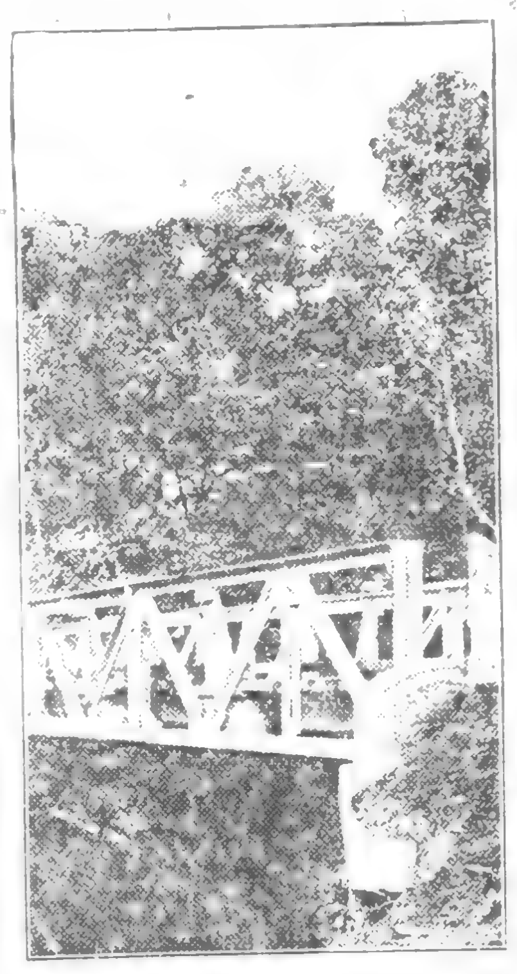
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Approximately $150,000,000 worth of surplus war materials, turned over by the War department to the Department of Agriculture, were distributed through the bureau of public roads to the various states for road-building purposes up to November 1 last.

Under the Wadsworth-Kahn bill this surplus war material is sent to the states with the sole provision that it be used only for road-building purposes. A vast accumulation of machinery, equipment, supplies and motor vehicles that was to have been used in France has thus been diverted to a useful peace-time purpose.

Included in the supplies distributed among the states are 27,198 motor vehicles, mostly trucks; 172 locomotives of various sizes; 25,000 gross tons of rails; more than 4,500,000 pounds of powder; and nearly 10,000 tons of TNT.

A compilation showing total deliveries of war material to the various states up to July 1, last, places the value of machinery, equipment and supplies so delivered at $30,648,779; of motor vehicles, $74,730,568; and of spare parts, at $11,731,424. The total value of deliveries to the states up to that date was $117,110,771. That figure did not include material to the value of approximately $11,000,000, which was retained by the Department of Agriculture, largely for forest road work, which is not done by the states. Also, it is believed that the states have received, in addition to the amount above mentioned, approximately $5,000,000 worth of material shipped by the War department from the various army camps and not reported by the states as delivered.



Army Sectional Bridge Erected Over Davidson River, Pisgah National Park.

The value of deliveries of surplus war material for road-building purposes to the states is in detail as follows:

Alabama	$ 2,587,740
Arizona	2,041,401
Arkansas	2,025,000
California	3,687,500
Colorado	2,527,640
Connecticut	643,500
Delaware	412,500
Florida	1,483,900
Georgia	4,271,600
Idaho	1,474,000
Illinois	5,462,000
Indiana	2,942,920
Iowa	2,871,000
Kansas	2,591,600
Kentucky	2,011,900
Louisiana	1,472,100
Maine	973,500
Maryland	1,056,160
Massachusetts	899,800
Michigan	4,648,320
Minnesota	3,190,100
Mississippi	3,273,320
Missouri	3,669,800
Montana	2,400,400
Nebraska	3,347,660
Nevada	1,182,300
New Hampshire	412,500
New Jersey	1,657,900
New Mexico	2,133,440
New York	5,509,520
North Carolina	3,093,920
North Dakota	1,447,350
Ohio	4,194,900
Oklahoma	2,112,000
Oregon	1,662,000
Pennsylvania	4,384,600
Rhode Island	229,900
South Carolina	1,768,820
South Dakota	2,365,900
Tennessee	3,156,500
Texas	7,101,240
Utah	1,333,500
Vermont	529,100
Virginia	2,920,800
Washington	1,391,500
West Virginia	2,254,400
Wisconsin	3,042,000
Wyoming	1,230,900
Total	$117,110,751

Signs to Guide Motorists.

Three wordless signs to guide motorists have been adopted for Massachusetts highways. Danger points are marked by three diagonally parallel lines, an intersecting road by a T laid on its side and a cross. The warnings will be placed 200 feet from the points indicated.

Work in Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania constructed 615 miles of modern durable type highways this year, breaking the world's record.

True Detective Stories

THE FINAL DETAIL

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THE annals of crime disclose a surprisingly large percentage of cases in which the criminal, having spent months or even years in building up the superstructure of his scheme, makes a fatal blunder in connection with some apparently unimportant detail—a blunder which wrecks his entire plan and brings his operations to the attention of the authorities.

For example, the chances were more than a thousand to one that William Brockway, counterfeiter, being desirous of securing a proof of a plate on which he was working, would select a printer who was not a personal friend of a prominent detective. But chance, which so often plays a leading role even in true detective stories, directed him to a man who knew A. L. Drummond, of the United States Secret Service, well enough to call him by his first name.

"This man came into my place yesterday afternoon," reported the printer, "and wanted some proofs pulled of a plate which he had with him. I took one look at the plate and told him to come back today—said my machinery was out of order. He didn't leave the plate, but he didn't have to. I saw what it was—the figure $1,000, surrounded by a lot of scroll work."

"If he returns today," directed Drummond, "pull his proofs for him and hold one of them for me. A couple of my men will be outside your shop, so signal them and they will follow your customer."

The plan worked according to schedule and, shortly after receiving a proof of the mysterious plate, Drummond got word from his operatives that they had trailed the suspect to a house on Greenwich street. In addition, one of the government agents had recognized him as William F. Brockway known to be the most expert counterfeiter in the country and the man who had achieved fame by manufacturing $100,000 worth of bonds which the Treasury department had accepted as genuine—only to reverse its opinion some weeks later.

Drummond accordingly made a report of the entire matter to Washington, and forwarded a proof of the plate which Brockway had in his possession. To his amazement, the treasury officials stated that the figures and the scroll did not form a part of any government currency or bond issue and that, as federal funds could not be used except in the search for counterfeiters of money or government bonds, Drummond could not be permitted to handle the case.

Accordingly, all the data was turned over to the New York police, and Brockway dropped out of sight for nearly a year, until a rumor was passed along from Washington that the master counterfeiter was working on some coup which would be the biggest of his career.

Drummond knew where to find Brockway, but the secret service men had to work under a handicap, because the ex-convict appeared to have an uncanny way of knowing just when he was being followed. Then he would slip and twist and turn and lose himself, no matter how many men were trailing him.

As a last resort Drummond enlisted the services of his son, a boy of ten, whom he sent to the elevated station at Twenty-eighth and Sixth avenue, with instruction to play around there until he received a signal from two of the operatives. Brockway, not dreaming that the secret service had begun to use children as detectives, was unsuspicious and the boy followed him until he entered the St. James, hotel, at the corner of Twenty-sixth and Broadway. With that much of the trail already blazed, it was easy to pick up the rest, and within a few days Drummond was notified that the counterfeiter divided his time between the St. James and a house on Lexington avenue. His associates were two men of about his own age, men whom Drummond recognized as Lewis Martin and Nathan Foster, both of them proficient in all branches of the work connected with the manufacture and passing of counterfeit money.

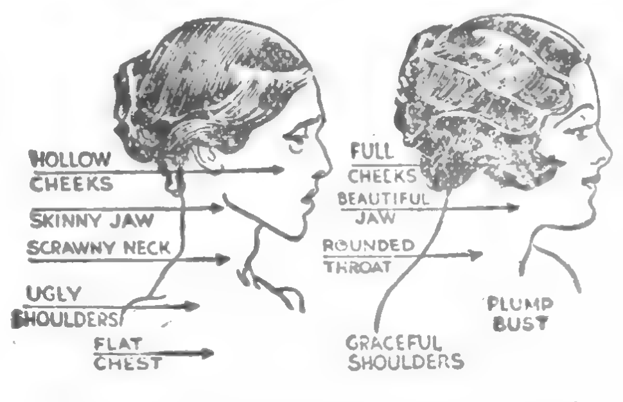
But even then Chief Brookes of the secret service, declined to allow Drummond to handle the case officially, because all the indications pointed to a plot to counterfeit railroad bonds, rather than United States currency. It was only when Inspector Byrnes of the New York police force, asked permission to use Drummond as a private agent that Washington permitted him to continue with the case.

Using the proof of the "$1,000 scroll" as a foundation, Drummond searched through all the prominent bond issues listed on Wall street, until he found its counterpart—the central portion of the bonds of the Central Pacific railroad. Armed with this information, which was essential to the securing of a definite and specific warrant, Drummond raided the house on Lexington avenue and Martin's room at the St. James' hotel. There, in addition to dies, seals and tracing paper, he found fifty-seven counterfeit $1,000 Central Pacific bonds, all of which were so perfectly executed that one of the officers of the company said he would not have had the least hesitation of cashing the coupons.

Brockway had slipped up on only one detail, the choice of a printer to pull the proofs, but this slip cost him five years in the penitentiary!

New Yeast Vitamon Tablets Round Out Face and Figure

With Firm, Healthy Flesh, Increase Energy and Beautify the Complexion—Easy and Economical to Take—Results Quick



Thin or run-down folks who want to quickly get some good, firm, solid flesh on their bones, fill out the hollows and sunken cheeks with strong, healthy tissues, and build up increased energy and vitality should try taking a little Mastin's VITAMON with their meals. Mastin's VITAMON is a tiny tablet containing highly concentrated yeast-vitamines as well as the two other still more important vitamines (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C). It banishes pimples, boils and skin eruptions as if by magic, strengthens the nerves, builds up the body with firm flesh and tissue and often completely rejuvenates the whole system. Quick, gratifying results. No gas caused.

If you are thin, pale, haggard, drawn looking or lack energy and endurance take Mastin's VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself each week and continue taking Mastin's VITAMON regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and energy.

IMPORTANT! While the remarkable health-building value of Mastin's VI-TA-MON has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, nervous troubles, anemia, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, it should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having their weight increased to normal. Do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get Mastin's VITAMON tablets at all good druggists.

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS
THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE
YEAST VITAMINE TABLET

Are Positively Guaranteed to Put On Firm Flesh, Clear the Skin and Increase Energy When Taken With Every Meal or Money Back

if it isnt MASTINS it isnt VITAMON

Just so it is pie the small boy does not care what kind it is.

Cuticura Soothes Itching Scalp.

On retiring gently rub spots of dandruff and itching with Cuticura Ointment. Next morning shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Make them your everyday toilet preparations and have a clear skin and soft, white hands.—Advertisement.

PLAYER FORCED TO PROTEST

London Ladies So Annoyed Pianist That He Was Compelled to Voice His Grievance.

London has been amused by the publication of the notice that Mr. Pouishnoff, the Russian pianist [illegible] playing there, [illegible] door, begging people in general, and the ladies [illegible] to leave him alone. "Mr. Pouishnoff," [illegible] these ladies who derive pleasure from [illegible] well-known musicians that he has no social qualifications whatever, and that except for his pianistic art he is the most uninteresting of men. He will be extremely grateful if he is allowed to live the peaceful life of a bachelor hermit." It seems that he is besieged by people mostly young ladies—who not only want autographs, but want him to play for them. Every [illegible] man who has been pestered in this way will applaud Mr. Pouishnoff for his reply: "If you want to hear me play, my recitals are always open to you."

If it were literally true that whisky fills our jails, lots of men would break into them.

A cat may look at a king, but the average man would rather look at four aces any time.

Necessity is the mother of several other children besides invention.

The use of soft coal will make laundry work heavier this winter. Red Cross Ball Blue will help to remove that grimy look. At all grocers—Advertisement.

HAD TO FALL BACK ON LUNCH

Seemed the Only Thing Left to Which Host Could Invite His Artistic Friends.

[illegible]

Church Is Cheaper Still.

"It's really a waste of money [illegible] my husband to go to the theater."

"Why so?"

"He sleeps nearly all the time. A 25-cent seat at the movies would do just as well, and besides the movies are nice and dark."—Boston Transcript.

Will your "Good Morning" last all day?

Easy to start from the breakfast table with zest and enthusiasm, but how easy is it to keep on? Does ambition last, or lag, as the day develops?

The afternoon "slump" is a factor to be counted upon, in business or social life.

Usually, there's a reason.

Nerves whipped by tea or coffee won't keep on running, and they won't stand constant whipping.

Many a man or woman who has wished the afternoon would be as bright as the morning has simply been wishing that the nerves wouldn't have to pay the natural penalty for being whipped with the caffeine drug.

Postum gives a breakfast cup of comfort and cheer, without any penalties afterward. There's no "letting down" from Postum—no midday drowsiness to make up for midnight wakefulness; no headaches; no nervous indigestion; no increase of blood pressure.

Think it over. There's full satisfaction in Postum—a cup of comfort for anybody (the children included), any time.

You can get Postum from your grocer or your waiter today, and probably you'll begin to have better tomorrows, as so many thousands have had, who have made the change from coffee to Postum.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

Postum for Health
"There's a Reason"

JANUARY

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ACT PROVIDES WORK FOR QUARTER MILLION MEN

About One-Half of All Roads That Are Being Built Are Being Aided by the Government Financially.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Seventy-five million dollars becomes available as federal aid for road construction in the various states, the money to be spent under the supervision of the bureau of public roads, Department of Agriculture, under the federal highway act, signed November 9, by the President. In addition, $15,000,000 is appropriated for national forest roads. The $75,000,000 represents the federal government's appropriation to the work of building highways in the various states and must be matched, dollar for dollar, by funds from the state treasuries, except in states where more than 5 per cent of the area is unappropriated public land.

Part of Money Now Available.

The $75,000,000 appropriated is for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922. Here is how the money will be apportioned among the 48 states:

Ala.	$1,553,420.67	Neb.	$1,591,189.50
Ariz.	1,053,281.44	Nev.	953,436.78
Ark.	1,254,142.20	N. H.	365,625.00
Calif.	2,462,098.53	N. J.	942,870.95
Colo.	1,341,175.69	N. M.	1,189,823.34
Conn.	480,897.78	N. Y.	3,696,447.97
Del.	365,625.00	N. C.	1,709,338.90
Florida	886,825.69	N. D.	1,164,714.42
Georgia	1,997,957.58	Ohio	2,823,004.05
Idaho	938,536.68	Okla.	1,752,339.44
Illinois	3,246,281.07	Oregon	1,182,663.90
Indiana	1,958,855.41	Penna.	3,398,953.97
Iowa	2,102,872.74	R. I.	365,625.00
Kansas	2,102,281.51	S. C.	1,061,237.34
Ky.	1,417,178.68	S. D.	1,204,060.31
Louisiana	996,984.04	Tenn.	1,647,692.24
Maine	685,160.25	Texas	4,425,172.41
Md.	840,629.01	Utah	849,417.21
Mass.	1,096,176.04	Vermont	365,625.00
Mich.	2,249,582.43	Virginia	1,456,828.47
Minn.	2,123,597.07	Wash.	1,103,709.77
Miss.	1,294,906.22	W. Va.	802,359.77
Missouri	2,445,128.62	Wis.	1,894,815.86
Montana	1,546,885.82	Wyo.	934,617.63

Of the appropriation of $15,000,000 for the improvement of national forest roads $5,000,000 is made available for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1922, and $10,000,000 for the following fiscal year.

The federal highway act in a general way resembles the federal-aid act of 1916, but contains several new features. Administration of the act by the secretary of agriculture, and under him the bureau of public roads, remains unchanged.

Apportionment of the fund to the states is almost the same as in the previous act, the fund being divided into three parts, one part apportioned according to population, one according to area, and one part according to mileage of rural and star mail routes. A new feature is the stipulation that no state shall receive less than one-half of 1 per cent of the total fund which, in this case, amounts to $365,625. This stipulation will increase the amount received by four of the smaller states, i. e., Delaware, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont.

Change in Use of State Allotments.

There is considerable change, however, in the manner in which a state may use its allotment. Each state must select a connected road system not exceeding 7 per cent of its road mileage for improvement with federal aid. This system will be divided into two classes, one of which will be known as interstate highways and the other as intercounty highways. The interstate highways must not exceed three sevenths of the system selected; on them not more than 60 per cent of the state's allotment can be spent without the joint approval of the secretary of agriculture and the state highway department. The intercounty highways, which consist of the remainder of the system selected, will receive the remainder of the state's allotment.

Except in states where more than 5 per cent of the area is unappropriated public land, the amount of federal aid received on any project must not exceed 50 per cent of the estimated cost. In states where more than 5 per cent of the area is unappropriated public land the 50 per cent allotment is increased by an amount equal to one-half the percentage of unappropriated public land in the state. Before any funds can be paid to a state, the state must appropriate money, under the direct control of the state highway department, to match the federal allotment, and for the maintenance of federal-aid highways.

All highways in the interstate system must have a surfaced width of at least 18 feet, unless a narrower width is deemed permissible by the secretary of agriculture. In case a federal-aid highway is not properly maintained by a state, the state will be given 90 days' notice by the department; at the end of that time if the highway is not [illegible] to approve any new projects until reimbursement is made by the state.

What the new appropriation will mean to the country can be judged by the use to which the $275,000,000 previously appropriated has been put, according to officials of the United States Department of Agriculture. Practically $200,000,000 of that money has been put to work in projects which are either entirely completed or now under construction. The exact amount was $199,828,427 on October 31. To match this amount the states have appropriated $265,529,090, making a total of $465,352,517.

Mileage Sufficient to Encircle Earth.

The roads to be paid for by this money, if placed end to end, would encircle the earth and extend from New York to San Francisco on the second lap, the total mileage of the roads under construction and completed being reported by the bureau of public roads as 27,000 miles on October 31. Of this mileage, 9,555 miles is in projects which are entirely completed and the contractors discharged. The balance of 17,445 miles is in projects which are still under construction, but which were 69 per cent complete on October 31. In these projects there is therefore the equivalent of 12,000 miles of completed road, so that the completed road to date totals over 21,000 miles.

The average cost per mile of the roads built with federal aid has been between $17,000 and $18,000. More than half the money has been spent for roads with the highest types of surface, such as concrete, brick, and bituminous concrete, but a very large mileage of roads of the cheaper type, such as gravel and sand-clay, has been built where such types would withstand the wear of the traffic.

Prior to five years ago the federal government took no active part in the road construction of the country. Today about one-half of all the roads that are being built are being aided by the government financially, and the construction is subject to the inspection and approval of federal engineers.

Work for Quarter Million Men.

It is estimated by engineers of the United States Department of Agriculture that the federal-aid roads under construction on October 31 were giving employment to about 250,000 men, either directly on the actual road construction or indirectly in the production and transportation of the materials which enter into the construction.

IF YOU CARE FOR CALVES

Don't slaughter or sell a heifer calf from a profitable cow. Raise it.

Don't keep your cows in a dark, damp, dirty pen.

Don't overfeed them.

Don't feed milk at 100 degrees temperature one time and 80 degrees the next time.

Don't feed sweet milk one time and sour milk the next time.

Don't feed from dirty buckets and never from a trough.

Doing any of the last five things is apt to cause "scours" and "stunted calves."

Don't feed the grain in the milk; feed it dry. Chewing it aids digestion. Mixing it in milk means more scours.

Don't feed the foam that forms on milk as it comes from the separator, nor that on whole fresh milk. Foam is bubbles—bubbles are full of gas and gas causes colic and sometimes scours.

Don't expose young stock to cold, bleak weather, nor allow them to drink very cold water in winter.

DAILY REQUIREMENTS OF COW

Food Used for Milk Production Must Be in Addition to That Necessary for Body.

A cow weighing 1,000 pounds needs every day for the [illegible]

IMPROVED ROADS

WAR SUPPLIES FOR HIGHWAYS

So Far Approximately $150,000,000 Worth of Surplus Material Has Been Distributed.

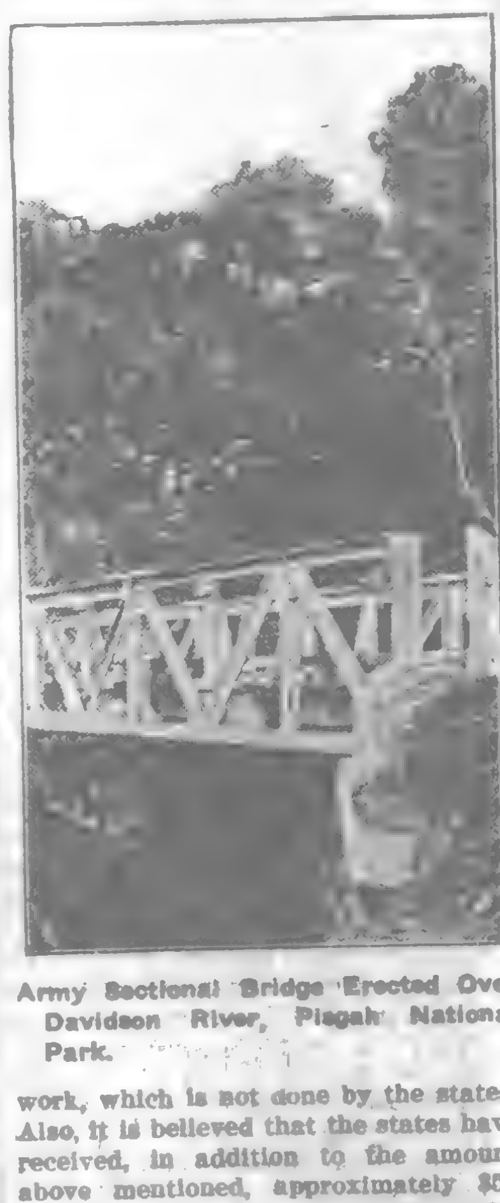
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Approximately $150,000,000 worth of surplus war materials, turned over by the War department, to the Department of Agriculture, were distributed through the bureau of public roads to the various states for road-building purposes up to November 1, last.

Under the Wadsworth-Kahn bill this surplus war material is sent to the states with the sole provision that it be used only for road-building purposes. A vast accumulation of machinery, equipment, supplies and motor vehicles that was to have been used in France has thus been diverted to a useful peace-time purpose.

Included in the supplies distributed among the states are 27,198 motor vehicles, mostly trucks; 172 locomotives of various sizes; 25,000 gross tons of rails; more than 4,500,000 pounds of powder; and nearly 10,000 tons of TNT.

A compilation showing total deliveries of war material to the various states up to July 1, last, places the value of machinery, equipment and supplies so delivered at $30,648,779; of motor vehicles, $74,730,568; and of spare parts, at $11,731,424. The total value of deliveries to the states up to that date was $117,110,771. That figure did not include material to the value of approximately $11,000,000, which was retained by the Department of Agriculture, largely for forest road work, which is not done by the states. Also, it is believed that the states have received, in addition to the amount above mentioned, approximately $5,000,000 worth of material shipped by the War department from the various army camps and not reported by the states as delivered.



Army Sectional Bridge Erected Over Davidson River, Pisgah National Park.

The value of deliveries of surplus war material for road-building purposes to the states is in detail as follows:

Alabama	$ 2,587,740
Arizona	2,041,401
Arkansas	2,025,000
California	3,687,500
Colorado	2,527,640
Connecticut	643,500
Delaware	412,500
Florida	1,483,900
Georgia	4,271,600
Idaho	1,474,000
Illinois	5,462,000
Indiana	2,942,920
Iowa	2,871,000
Kansas	2,591,600
Kentucky	2,011,900
Louisiana	1,472,100
Maine	973,500
Maryland	1,056,160
Massachusetts	[illegible]
Michigan	4,648,320
Minnesota	3,190,100
Mississippi	3,272,320
Missouri	[illegible]
Montana	3,347,060
Nebraska	1,182,800
Nevada	412,500
New Hampshire	[illegible]
New Jersey	[illegible]
New Mexico	[illegible]
New York	[illegible]
North Carolina	[illegible]
North Dakota	[illegible]
Ohio	[illegible]
Oklahoma	[illegible]
Oregon	[illegible]
Pennsylvania	[illegible]
Rhode Island	[illegible]
South Carolina	[illegible]
South Dakota	[illegible]
Tennessee	[illegible]
Texas	[illegible]
Utah	[illegible]
Vermont	[illegible]
Virginia	[illegible]
Washington	[illegible]
West Virginia	[illegible]
Wisconsin	[illegible]
Wyoming	[illegible]
Total	[illegible]

Signs to [illegible]

[illegible]

True Detective Stories

THE FINAL DETAIL

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THE annals of crime disclose a surprisingly large percentage of cases in which the criminal, having spent months or even years in building up the superstructure of his scheme, makes a fatal blunder in connection with some apparently unimportant detail—a blunder which wrecks his entire plan and brings his operations to the attention of the authorities.

For example, the chances were more than a thousand to one that William Brockway, counterfeiter, being desirous of securing a proof of a plate on which he was working, would select a printer who was not a personal friend of a prominent detective. But chance, which so often plays a leading role even in true detective stories, directed him to a man who knew A. L. Drummond, of the United States Secret Service, well enough to call him by his first name.

"This man came into my place yesterday afternoon," reported the printer, "and wanted some proofs pulled of a plate which he had with him. I took one look at the plate and told him to come back today—said my machinery was out of order. He didn't leave the plate, but he didn't have to. I saw what it was—the figure $1,000, surrounded by a lot of scroll work.

"If he returns today," directed Drummond, "pull his proofs for him and hold one of them for me. A couple of my men will be outside your shop, so signal them and they will follow your customer."

The plan worked according to schedule and, shortly after receiving a proof of the mysterious plate, Drummond got word from his operatives that they had trailed the suspect to a house on Greenwich street. In addition, one of the government agents had recognized him as William F. Brockway known to be the most expert counterfeiter in the country and the man who had achieved fame by manufacturing $100,000 worth of bonds which the Treasury department had accepted as genuine—only to reverse its opinion some weeks later.

Drummond accordingly made a report of the entire matter to Washington, and forwarded a proof of the plate which Brockway had in his possession. To his amazement, the treasury officials stated that the figures and the scroll did not form a part of any government currency or bond issue and that, as federal funds could not be used except in the search for counterfeiters of money or government bonds, Drummond could not be permitted to handle the case.

Accordingly, all the data was turned over to the New York police, and Brockway dropped out of sight for nearly a year, until a rumor was passed along from Washington that the master counterfeiter was working on some coup which would be the biggest of his career.

Drummond knew where to find Brockway, but the secret service men had to work under a handicap, because the ex-convict appeared to have an uncanny way of knowing just when he was being followed. Then he would slip and twist and turn and lose himself, no matter how many men were trailing him.

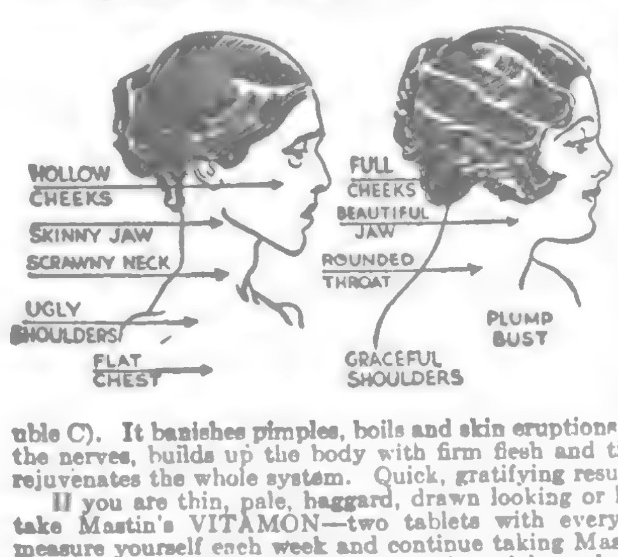
As a last resort Drummond enlisted the services of his son, a boy of ten, whom he sent to the elevated station at Twenty-eighth and Sixth avenue, with instruction to play around there until he received a signal from two of the operatives. Brockway, not dreaming that the secret service had begun to use children as detectives, was unsuspicious and the boy followed him until he entered the St. James hotel, at the corner of Twenty-sixth and Broadway. With that much of the trail already blazed, it was easy to pick up the rest, and within a few days Drummond was notified that the counterfeiter divided his time between the St. James and a house on Lexington avenue. His associates were two men of about his own age, men whom Drummond recognized as Lewis Martin and Nathan Foster, both of them proficient in all branches of the work connected with the manufacture and passing of counterfeit money.

But even then Chief Brookes of the secret service declined to allow Drummond to handle the case officially, because all the indications pointed to a plot to counterfeit railroad bonds, rather than United States currency. It was only when Inspector Byrnes of the New York police force, asked permission to use Drummond as a private agent that Washington permitted him to continue with the case.

Using the proof of the "$1,000 scroll" as a [illegible], Drummond searched [illegible] the prominent bond issues [illegible] street, until he found the [illegible]—the central portion of the [illegible] of the Central Pacific [illegible]

New Yeast Vitamon Tablets Round Out Face and Figure

With Firm, Healthy Flesh, Increase Energy and Beautify the Complexion—Easy and Economical to Take—Results Quick



Thin or run-down folks who want to quickly get some good, firm, solid flesh on their bones, fill out the hollows and sunken cheeks with strong, healthy tissues, and build up increased energy and vitality should try taking a little Mastin's VITAMON with their meals. Mastin's VITAMON is a tiny tablet containing highly concentrated yeast-vitamines as well as the two other still more important vitamines (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C). It banishes pimples, boils and skin eruptions as if by magic, strengthens the nerves, builds up the body with firm flesh and tissue and often completely rejuvenates the whole system. Quick, gratifying results. No gas caused.

If you are thin, pale, haggard, drawn looking or lack energy and endurance take Mastin's VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself each week and continue taking Mastin's VITAMON regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and energy.

IMPORTANT! While the remarkable health-building value of Mastin's VI-TA-MON has been clearly and positively demonstrated in cases of lack of energy, nervous troubles, anemia, indigestion, constipation, skin eruptions, poor complexion and a generally weakened physical and mental condition, it should not be used by anyone who OBJECTS to having their weight increased to normal. Do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get Mastin's VITAMON tablets at all good druggists.

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS
THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE
YEAST VITAMINE TABLET

Are Positively Guaranteed to Put On Firm Flesh, Clear the Skin and Increase Energy When Taken With Every Meal or Money Back

if it isnt MASTINS it isnt VITAMON

Just so it is pie the small boy does not care what kind it is.

Cuticura Soothes Itching Scalp.

On retiring gently rub spots of dandruff and itching with Cuticura Ointment. Next morning shampoo with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Make them your everyday toilet preparations and have a clear skin and soft, white hands.—Advertisement.

PLAYER FORCED TO PROTEST

London Ladies So Annoyed Pianist That He Was Compelled to Voice His Grievance.

London has been amused by the publication of the notice that Mr. Pouishnoff, the Russian pianist now playing there, has had to paste on his front door, begging people in general, and the ladies in particular, to leave him alone. "Mr. Pouishnoff," the notice runs, "begs politely to inform these ladies who derive pleasure from calling uninvited on well-known musicians that he has no social qualifications whatever, and that except for his pianistic art he is the most uninteresting of men. He will be extremely grateful if he is allowed to live the peaceful life of a bachelor hermit." It seems that he is besieged by people—mostly young ladies—who not only want autographs, but want him to play for them. Every public man who has been pestered in this way will applaud Mr. Pouishnoff for his reply: "If you want to hear me play, my recitals are always open to you."

If it were literally true that whisky fills our jails, lots of men would break into them.

A cat may look at a king, but the average man would rather look at four aces any time.

Necessity is the mother of several other children besides invention.

The use of soft coal will make laundry work heavier this winter. Red Cross Ball Blue will help to remove that grimy look. At all grocers—Advertisement.

HAD TO FALL BACK ON LUNCH

Seemed the Only Thing Left to Which Host Could Invite His Artistic Friends.

Mr. Heming tells an amusing little incident to disprove the general belief that artists are temperamental, dissipated creatures who thrive on the white lights. In the ancient days before prohibition Mr. Heming was in New York to invite American artists to exhibit in the Canadian national exhibit in Toronto. Gardner Symons, the well-known American artist, invited Heming and Frederick Waugh, another leading artist, to dinner at the National Arts club. "Let's go down and have a cocktail before lunch," said Symons. "I never take anything," said Heming. "Neither do I," said Waugh. Symons laughed. "That's funny," he said. "Neither do I, but anyway we'll have some cigars." "I don't smoke," said Waugh. "And I don't smoke," said Heming. "Well, this is a great joke," said Symons. "I don't smoke, either, but I thought you fellows would at least take a cigar. Say, you eat, don't you?—because I've ordered lunch."

Church Is Cheaper Still.

"It's really a waste of money for my husband to go to the theater."

"Why so?"

"He sleeps nearly all the time. A 25-cent seat at the movies would do just as well, and besides the movies are nice and dark."—Boston Transcript.

Will your "Good Morning" last all day?

Easy to start from the breakfast table with zest and enthusiasm, but how easy is it to keep on? Does ambition last, or lag, as the day develops?

The afternoon "slump" is a factor to be counted upon, in business or social life.

Usually, there's a reason.

Nerves whipped by tea or coffee won't keep on running, and they won't stand constant whipping.

Many a man or woman who has wished the afternoon would be as bright as the morning has simply been wishing that the nerves wouldn't have to pay the natural penalty for being whipped with the caffeine drug.

Postum gives a breakfast cup of comfort and cheer, without any penalties afterward. There's no "letting down" from Postum—no midday drowsiness to make up for midnight wakefulness; no headaches; no nervous indigestion; no increase of blood pressure.

Think it over. There's full satisfaction in Postum—a cup of comfort for anybody (the children included), any time.

You can get Postum from your grocer or your waiter today, and probably you'll begin to have better tomorrows, as so many thousands have had, who have made the change from coffee to Postum.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes. Sold by all grocers.

Postum for Health
"There's a Reason"

JANUARY

CRAMPS, PAINS AND BACKACHE

St. Louis Woman Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Louis, Mo.—"I was bothered with cramps and pains every month and had backache and had to go to bed as I could not work. My mother and my whole family always took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for such troubles and they induced me to try it and it has helped me very much. I don't have cramps any more, and I can do my housework all through the month. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends for female troubles."—Mrs. DELLA SCHOLZ, 1412 Salisbury Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Just think for a moment. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been in use for nearly fifty years. It is prepared from medicinal plants, by the utmost pharmaceutical skill, and superior methods. The ingredients thus combined in the Compound correct the conditions which cause such annoying symptoms as had been troubling Mrs. Scholz. The Vegetable Compound exercises a restorative influence of the most desirable character, correcting the trouble in a gentle but efficient manner. This is noted, by the disappearance, one after another, of the disagreeable symptoms.

AT ALL DRUG STORES

AT THE FIRST SIGN OF A COLD—USE

CASCARA HILL'S BROMIDE QUININE

WORLD'S Standard Cold and La Grippe remedy. Demand red box bearing Mr. Hill's portrait and signature. (102)

W. H. HILL COMPANY, DETROIT

PRICE 30 CENTS

TOO LATE

Death only a matter of short time. Don't wait until pains and aches become incurable diseases. Avoid painful consequences by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—the National Remedy of Holland since 1696. Three sizes, all druggists.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

MAKE YOUR COUGH MEDICINE

Don't Pay $2 a Pint for Syrup.

Get 8 oz. of Glando Pine and add to it enough syrup to make a pint and you will have a family supply of the best cough medicine you ever used. It can't be beat for throat irritations, hoarseness, croup, or bronchial affections. Try it—if you don't like it your money will be refunded. Sold by druggists.

The Gland-Aid Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

DODDS KIDNEY PILLS

The Dodds Medicine Co.

Back Ache?

This old, reliable kidney remedy relieves backaches quickly, permanently.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS check kidney disorders which too often lead to Bright's disease and other dangerous ailments.

Act now—a disease like this, unchecked, gets worse instead of better. Stop your trouble today—be free from pain and future ills. Dodd's has been a stand-by in thousands of homes for over two generations.

Good Druggists recommend and guarantee DODD'S—three D's in name. Money back if it fails to relieve. Large box only 60c. Ask your druggist or send price direct to

DODD'S MEDICINE CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Mild Laxative — Diamond Dinner Pills — Never Gripe

Derivation From the French.

The French for "What shall I say of it?" is qu'en dirai, and that has been corrupted into our word quandary.

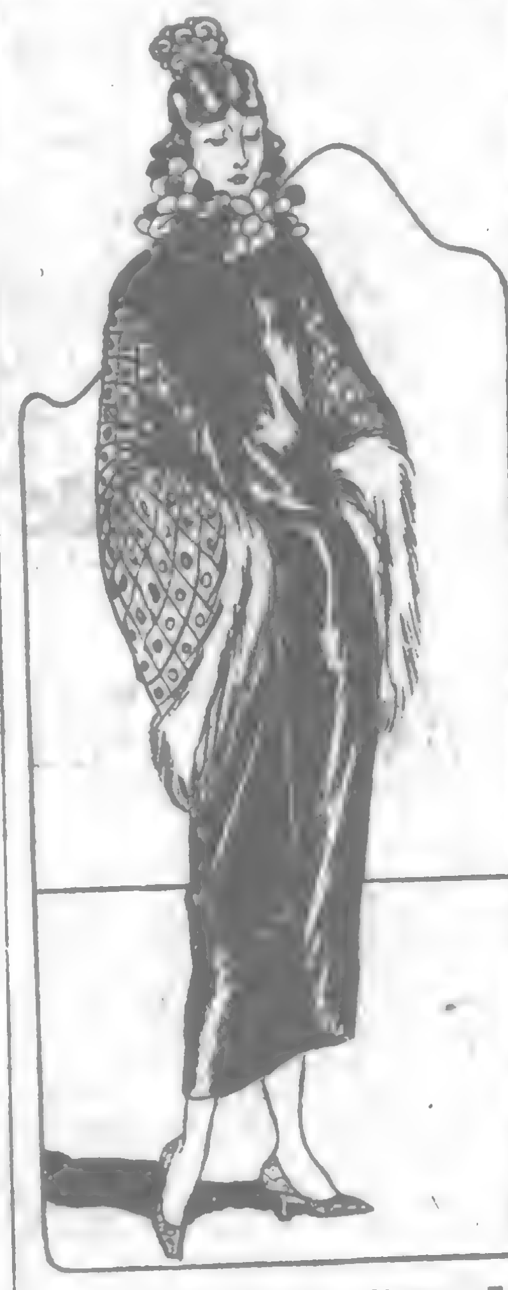
Marriage is never a failure, but often the contracting parties are.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
[illegible]
BELL-ANS
[illegible]

Winter Mantles in Gay Fabrics

It is true, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune, that those who refuse to observe the seasons in attire, and are always looking far into the distance, scanning the horizon for a new season's styles, already are scouting for models showing the tendencies of spring.

Fortunately the numbers of extremists in dress who insist upon forcing the season are diminishing, and women in general are dressing more in accordance with the thermometer. Any news of spring fashions at the present time cannot be other than intimations, many of which may prove false.



Cerise Velvet Mantle, Sleeves Embroidered in Cerise and Silver; Gray Fox Cuffs.

Now is the time for sumptuous clothes. There is no other season so well suited to them. In midsummer clothes are beautiful but simple, as befits that time of year. Gorgeousness in dress appears in the winter.

Interesting things have been done for evening coats. No longer are they voluminous wraps of costly fabrics, but, rather, handsome coats and capes, showing great variety in style, material and trimming.

Colors and Fabrics

Much less material is used in this winter's evening coats than in those of past years. Slim, straight coats and straight-hanging capes are of velvet, rich brocade, metal tissue, or fur, those of fur being surprisingly light in weight. Models of this sort have sleeves of interesting cut, set into wide armholes and flaring in Chinese fashion.

These are draped and wrappy evening coats, less full than those used heretofore. Many capes are worn. These hang in straight lines and are topped by handsome collars of fur or velvet. A surprising number of velvet collars, often in contrasting color, are used; for instance, a black velvet cape may have a huge ruff of bright pink velvet peonies.

Always a medium for exploiting beautiful colors as well as fabrics, the evening wrap now excels itself in this respect. Velvet wraps in startling hues, such as geranium reds and cyclamen mingle pleasingly with soft grays. Brocaded velvets and cloths, glistening with gold and silver are used.

The Parisian dressmaker has a craze for sheer metal fabrics and ever so many French evening wraps are of velvet striped with silver tissue. Frequently they are made entirely of gold tissue or of a mingling of metal tissue and a handsomely brocaded velvet. A model noted recently was a black velvet striped with steel and trimmed with black fox.

Fringes Arranged to Simulate Capelet.

The fuchsia colorings have not met with the success that was prophesied for them, or which one might have expected, considering the wonderful showing of fuchsia shades by the great French dressmakers in the autumn. American dressmakers have ex- [illegible] fect. Interesting models are made with the capelet and lower portion or skirt of the coat of fur and the sleeves and the waist portion of velvet.

Ermine Trims Gray Velvet Costume.

Among the furs, sable, ermine, fox and various gray furs are used, the latter being featured on gray velvet wraps. Goat also is much in evidence. Although used on the evening models of velvet—imported models of black velvet being lavishly trimmed with white goat skin—it is better suited for daytime wear.

A costume worked out in gray and white consists of a straight, full cape of gray velvet and a gray velvet frock. The cape is attached to a deep ermine band, which forms the collar. The bottom is cut in deep points.

The frock is sleeveless and has a bateau neckline. Both neck and armholes are embroidered in steel beads. From one side of a low placed girdle of steel hangs a very full tunic, also cut in points at the bottom. Placing a tunic on one side only is an unusual and good method of introducing variety into a plain chemise style.

Diadem Toque With Shell Embroidery.

An evening wrap from Worth illustrating several of the new features is developed in a lovely cerise velvet with an embroidery of cerise and silver on the sleeves, which are bordered with silver gray fox. The collar is formed of velvet roses in all the lovely cherry shades.

An interesting model is of royal blue velvet, lined with silver cloth. This mantle matches a silver cloth evening gown with a scarf train of blue chiffon. At a recent social event in Paris a toilette of this description was completed with a Lanvin Russian diadem toque of silver cloth embroidered in small shells, the greatest embroidery novelty of the season.

Martial et Armand are having great success in their cape wraps, richly embroidered in high colors. One of these in blue velvet is collared with the new gray fur wistatch, a cross-bred animal of South America, the mother of which is chinchilla.

Wraps With Huge Petal Ruffs.

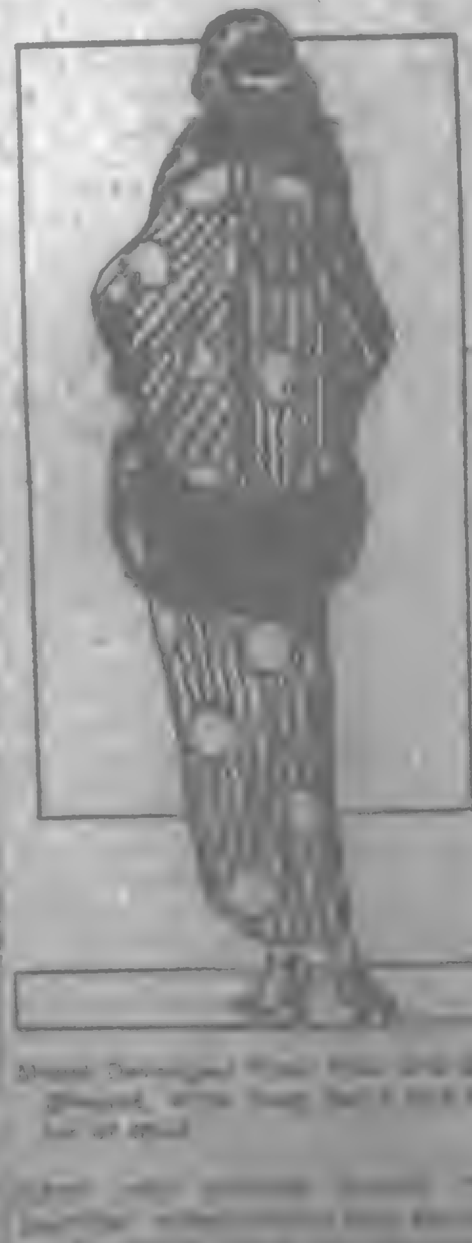
Wraps for young girls are made without trimming, but are much elaborated in the working of the fabric. A model of this sort which is a great Parisian success and made by Charlotte, is developed in bright colored velvet with intricate handwork on the shoulders to yoke depth. A very elaborate collar of the velvet cut in the shape of petals forms a huge ruff.

Models of the heavy, somewhat cumbersome sort of overcapes sometimes ending in long sleeves of the distinctly Renaissance types are being worn in Paris, and copies have been sent to this country, but apparently they are too eccentric to make any great appeal. All such mantles have very elaborate fur trimmings, the fur being used in quantities.

A successful blending of blue fox which is called renard fume, is used on many models of this sort. It is an excellent imitation of the natural blue fox, there being an underlay of blue gray fur like the skin of this somewhat rare animal. The tips of the long hairs are reddish brown.

Jet and Jewel Harnesses.

Among the things that add variety to the evening costume are headdresses with fans to match, and the fans made to correspond in color and



[illegible]

[illegible]

LAND OF WEALTH

Potentialities of Western Canada Abundantly Proved.

Prizes Taken at International Live Stock Exposition Show What Land Is Capable of Producing.

Forty years ago the first sale was made of lands acquired by the Canadian Pacific railway. This is but a short span in the lives of many, and there are those who look back upon that period as it being but of yesterday. Yet when one glances back it is to marvel at the accomplishments of that period. One of the most striking of these is the progress that has been made in Western Canada since that day, forty years ago, when an official of the railway placed his signature to the document that gave possession to the new owner of a section of land. This was the first sign of the wealth that in time would be added to the wealth of the world in forty years, this single section of land being the base upon which the future would be built. The potential wealth was but in embryo; today it is a big, living reality. Among the many things that reveal this, may be seen the winnings made by Western Canada exhibitors at the International Live Stock show held in Chicago in 1921. These were so marked in their number as to give to the world—the American world—a splendid idea of the excellence of the products of the farms of the new but rapidly developing country lying to the north of the international boundary line.

The results of the exhibition show, according to the Manitoba Free Press, that in live stock and grain exhibits the three prairie provinces of Canada made something like 150 winnings. Every animal sent from the province of Alberta won a prize. Exhibits included Shorthorn and Hereford cattle and Percheron and Clydesdale horses. An Alberta-bred heifer got fourth place in a class of eighteen outstanding individuals. In grain, Alberta made simply an astounding record, securing the sweepstakes for oats, and eight or nine prizes before even the American exhibitors secured a placing, and while the grand championship for wheat went to Montana, the prairie provinces took 23 out of 25 possible placings. The first prize for alfalfa seed was awarded for seed grown at Brooks, Alberta, in competition with 43 entries. Alfalfa-growing in Western Canada has been increasing by leaps and bounds, and this victory will give it and the dairy industry, which is always linked with it, a further impetus.

In live stock classes alone Saskatchewan had sixty entries and took sixty-four ribbons.

The winning of the grand championship for Clydesdale stallions by a Saskatchewan horse, for the second time in succession, was almost exceptional. He was bred on a Western Canada farm, fitted and prepared for exhibition there, and able to win over horses shown from the studs of men who have unlimited money to spend on the breeding and preparation of their exhibits. This is proof positive that the farmers of Western Canada are not only in a position to breed their own horse power, and that of a very high quality, but to breed horses that will be saleable in any market of the world.

Manitoba takes just pride in the fact that a Percheron stallion, first in his class and Canadian-bred champion, was bred by Vance, of Crandall, Manitoba. Manitoba took 64 places outside of the grain exhibits.

When all is said and done, the real triumphs are the wins of both live stock and grains actually produced in the great Canadian provinces.

Commenting upon the enterprise of agriculturists of Western Canada in sending exhibits to the International Live Stock exposition at Chicago, the New York Herald in a recent issue said: "Western Canada is encouraging diversified farming in a way certain to bring an increased flow of dollars into the pockets of agriculturists, who at one time devoted their energies exclusively to the raising of grain crops."—Advertisement.

Genuine

BAYER

Bayer-Tablets Aspirin
The Bayer Company Inc
117 Hudson St NY

ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Colds
Toothache
Earache
Headache
Neuralgia
Lumbago
Rheumatism
Neuritis
Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

DISTEMPER AMONG HORSES Successfully Treated With

Spohn's Distemper Compound

At this time of year horses are liable to contract contagious diseases—DISTEMPER, INFLUENZA, COUGHS and COLDS. As a preventive against these, an occasional dose of "SPOHN'S" is marvelously effective. As a remedy for cases already suffering, "SPOHN'S" is equally effective. Give it as a preventive. Don't wait. 60 cents and $1.20 per bottle at drug stores.

SPOHN MEDICAL COMPANY GOSHEN, INDIANA

How much easier it is to buy things on the installment plan than it is to pay for them that way!

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Variety must truly be the spice of life or young ladies wouldn't be so anxious to change their names.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Tied Up.

Knicker—"Smith says all he is he owes to his wife." Bocker—"Another of those frozen credits."

Ambition is merely a nightmare preceded by a deep slumber and followed by a rude awakening.

There is about as much sense in a woman's reason as there is in a mans excuse.

Garfield Tea

Was Your Grandmother's Remedy

For every stomach and intestinal ill. This good old-fashioned herb home remedy for constipation, stomach ills and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicine than in your grandmother's day.

NR

ACTS ON THE LIVER STOMACH KIDNEYS AND BOWELS
Nature's Remedy
NR-TABLETS-NR
PRICE 25 CENTS
A. H. LEWIS MEDICINE CO.
ST. LOUIS, U.S.A.
25-TABLETS-NR

Get a 25¢ Box

Better than Pills For Liver Ills.

NR Tonight—Tomorrow Alright

ITCH!

Money back without question if HUNT'S GUARANTEED SKIN DISEASE REMEDIES (Hunt's Salve and Soap), fail in the treatment of Itch, Eczema, Ringworm, Tetter or other itching skin diseases. Try this treatment at our risk. Sold by all reliable druggists. A. B. Richards Medicine Co., Sherman, Texas

FINANCIAL

$19.95 buys City of Warsaw, Poland, Municipal 10,000 Mark Bond. These bonds pay 5% interest on face value and are a lien on the entire municipal property of Warsaw which has a pre-war valuation of approximately $48,000,000. With expected rise in European exchange following International Economic Conference these bonds should be worth many times their present value. For literature and full particulars address, FOREIGN SECURITIES DEPARTMENT, Suite 506, 513 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

"I like 'em"
"They Satisfy"

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Chesterfield
CIGARETTES
of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—blended

JANUARY

no tax now
LUDEN'S
menthol
cough drops
price 5¢ straight
GIVE QUICK RELIEF
Famous Yellow Package—
Sold the world over

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

Mother Dear!
One of the Greatest
Songs Published
—Write to—
JOE D. MILLER
Box 224
St. Joe, DeKalb co.,
Indiana
who will write the author
for songs with music.
Price 30c each.

--Farmers--
and others when you
attend the
Short Course Meeting
in St. Joe be sure to call at the
News Office
for your Job Printing,
if you need cards, etc.

CHIROPRACTIC
The Pinch hitter in the
HEALTH GAME
Acute and Chronic diseases,
Men, Women and Children
restored to health by Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments.
ERNEST O. FULLER, D. C.
CHIROPRACTOR
Auburn, Ind., Phone 285 W.
Waterloo, Ind., Phone 211.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Mr and Mrs Roscoe Walter
LICENSED EMBALMERS
and
FUNERAL DIRECTORS
GENERAL LINE OF FURNITURE
TELEPHONE No. 9-11. Spencerville, Ind.

Coburn's Corners

Lehr Winder attended American Legion at Antwerp, Ohio, Tuesday evening.

[illegible]

Messrs. W. W. Wilder and Clyde Hart families, and Mrs. Alice Hart, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hart, Sunday.

National Sportsman,
Ladies' Home Journal,
Good House Keeping,
Popular Science, and all other magazines for January, are for sale at the News office now.

Mrs Chas. Tustison is ill at the present writing. A physician has been in attendance, and Mr. Chas. Tustison is convalescing from an attack of bronchitis.

The demand for Tanlac has broken all world's records. Over Twenty Million bottles have been sold since it was placed on the market six years ago. At B. S. Sheffer's.

The following ladies were guests at an all-day meeting of the Coletown Ladies' Aid last week at the home of Mrs Vere Nelson: Mrs. Alva Perry, Mrs. McClellan Hart, Mrs. W. P. Coburn, Mrs. Wesley Hart, Mrs. W. W. Wilder, and Mrs. Harry Walts.

The Ladies' Aid met with Mrs. Harry Walts last week with an attendance of twenty members and five guests. The Bible lesson was conducted by Mrs. Sadie Coburn, subject, "Bible Cities." A reading was given by Mrs. Mattie Hart, and several points of interest were discussed during the business session. The hostess served pop-corn balls. Next meeting with Mrs. Cora Maxwell.

—‡—‡—‡—

Notice to Rural Teachers

A mass meeting of the rural teachers of DeKalb County is called for next Saturday, January 21, at 1:30 P. M., in the assembly room of the court house at Auburn. Teachers will have the opportunity on this occasion of listening to an address by Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health. Mr. S. LeRoy Scholes, assistant state school inspector, will also speak to the teachers. The Victor Talking Machine Company is sending Miss Hobson, already favorably known to DeKalb County teachers, to furnish music. After the program there is important miscellaneous business to be transacted. All rural teachers of the county are urged to be present.

(Signed) Clarence Green.
Supt. DeKalb County Schools.

—‡—‡—‡—

CONCORD

Mrs. John Hull and son Fred were at Ft. Wayne last Saturday.

Quite a good many around here are almost sick with bad colds.

Jack Sechler was baling hay last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Moor and family, and Miss Mildred Murphy, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Dell Draggoo.

The dredge men shut up shop and went home to Kendallville until the weather warms up so they can work.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone and son, Harry, was entertained in the home of John Engle and wife last Sunday; also Willis Keeler and family spent the day in the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Jackson, Mr. and Mrs Chas. Jackson and daughter, Mabie, visited Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jackson at St. Joe.

Mrs. Dell Draggoo and son Clifton [illegible]

[illegible]

NEWVILLE

[illegible]

Spencerville on Wednesday of last week. Some of the younger pupils did not go however.

Mrs. Leroy Kinny, Mrs. John Miller, Mrs. Dewey Miller, and Miss Mable Harter were Hicksville visitors Monday afternoon.

C. E. Tarney has bought the Jud Fee farm of 40 acres northeast of town. There will certainly be a lot of changes of possessions about the first of March.

The meeting still continues at the U. B. church. The choir of the sister church is kindly assisting in the singing. The writer is sorry that she has been of such poor health that she cannot attend.

Jacob Pressler and wife who purchased the Wm. Miller property and moved here in the fall, have concluded to move back to Hicksville again. Paul Rex has bought them out and they will vacate in the near future.

Wm. Miller who recently purchased the Rhoads property has bought the C. E. Tarney place, whech joins the Rhoads place on the west. Mr. Miller expects to remodel the Tarney house some and will make a nice home of it. The Tarney place has been an old homestead it being in the possession of the Barney family for over 75 years. It sold for $700.

—‡—‡—‡—

CRHISTIAN CHURCH NOTES

Regular preaching services will be held next Sunday morning by the pastor, R. B. Daily. Christian Endeavor will be held at 6:00 p. m.

The Friday night class in Personal Evangelism will be held as usual at the home of Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily.

Mr. and Mrs. Olen Dermott very pleasantly entertained the Loyal Sons and Daughters Class of the Christian Sunday School, Sunday, gathering immediatly after morning services. A pot luck dinner was served to the twenty-five members and guests present. At the business session held in the afternoon the following officers were elected:—Pres., Charles Lawson; Secy.-Treas., Alice Gee; Chaplain, Dora Daily.

—‡—‡—‡—

Local Briefs

A better show than ever next Saturday night at school building

Little Miss Marian Miller came Saturday for a visit in the William Randall home.

J. E. Foltz had a bit of luck recently. He had two rabbit traps set and caught a mouse in one and a big red fox in the other. Mrs. Foltz plans on wearing a new fox neck piece in the near future.

Models of the Auburn auto, manufactured at Auburn, exhibited at an auto show in New York attract special attention. Some large contracts are being closed which means that the Auburn factory will increase its production considerably.

A new hotel [illegible] for Auburn and [illegible] E. Burkett, it would be a [illegible] structure, [illegible] and would cost [illegible] be a [illegible] city.

[illegible]

[illegible] hammer [illegible] The boy's [illegible] pistol was [illegible] bul- [illegible]

Patterson-Fletcher Co.'s
GREAT
Half-Price
SALE
"The Sale of All Sales"

NOW---One month earlier than usual, but with at least $20,000 more merchandise to sell at

Half Price

Think of buying a $40 Overcoat for $20; a $2 Shirt for $1.00; a $1.00 Necktie for 50c; a 25c Garter for 12½c; a 10c Handkerchief for 5c and hundreds of other just such wonderful values throughout our great store.

REMEMBER

Everything in our store discounted 10 to 50 per cent, excepting work shirts and overalls.

Patterson-Fletcher Co.
"The Store That Does Things" Wayne and Harrison

The St. Joe News Has a Birthday

Over at St. Joe a birthday anniversary was enjoyed last week that should be and no doubt was of much interest to that whole community. It was the thirty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the St. Joe News.

In that period of time the publication has performed a service for that community and all of its institutions that could not be set down in dollars and cents. In that time it goes almost without saying that it has repeatedly [illegible] favored and obliged [illegible] each and every soul of [illegible] in ways that could not [illegible] for the services the same as they have to do in the case of the lawyer, docter, teacher, laborer, etc., etc.

[illegible]

To bleed a paper to death and lose it is the heighth of folly for any community. Towns that have a paper should support and encourage it, for these are the days they are losing them forever, if they do not.

St. Joe people should see to it that their paper has many prosperous natal days yet to come and thus avoid a newspaper funeral, which is the most disastrous thing that can happen to a community center, to be left without a newspaper at all.—The Hicksville Tribune.

—‡—‡—‡—

A Stack of Cards Ten Miles High

[illegible]

JANUARY

Importance —OF— Little Things

Dimes built the Woolworth Bldg., highest in New York.

Nickels built the Wrigley Building highest in Chicago.

Put your nickels and dimes in a savings account in

The Farmers' and Merchants' STATE BANK

and soon they will grow into dollars—hundreds and thousands of dollars.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

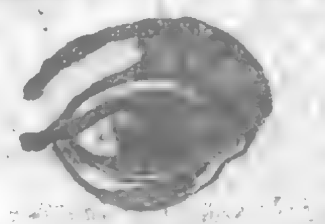
Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE, - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician



Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

H O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE NOTARY PUBLIC

FOR OVER 40 YEARS

[illegible]

[illegible]

SPENCERVILLE

Envelopes at the News-office.

Jacob Henderson was a Monday business caller at Auburn.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St. Auburn, Indiana.

Mrs. Sophia Miller spent last week with her son, Vinton Miller, and family, east of town.

Do you remember Miss Boston, the Home Economics leader? She will be at St. Joe, Feb. 21-22.

Mrs. Herman Reasoner is spending a few days with friends at Fort Wayne.

Miss Thelma McNabb was the guest of Miss Pearl Goldsmith on Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Violette Erick and sister, Miss Mary Tyndall, spent Saturday at Ft. Wayne.

Mrs. Kate House was a Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Hafner.

Miss Ada Bowers spent Sunday last at the John Koch home west of town.

Wm. Henderson, wife and son of Antwerp were Sunday guests of Mr and Mrs. Jack Henderson.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Summers of Coburntown spent Monday with the lady's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Waltz.

The Misses Lois Aakey and Marcella Zimmerman spent Sunday afternoon last with Mrs. LeAnna Stewart.

On Saturday night the [illegible] Basket ball team [illegible]

The basket ball game between [illegible] and [illegible] was played here last [illegible] night, the game [illegible]

[illegible]

Mr. Case, residing north of town, is reported to be very ill.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Albert Wertman of Auburn was a Monday guest of Frank Wertman and wife.

The High school Basket ball girls' team played the Corrunna girls recently.

Vern Wilmot was unable to work several days' last week on account of sickness.

The quarantine for scarlet fever was lifted from the Eck Hursh home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Markle and children spent last Sunday with the lady's mother, Mrs. Matilda Oberholtser, of Springfield Center.

Dr. C. R. Baumgartner returned home Saturday from Indianapolis, where he attended the State Veterinary convention.

The officers for the Golden Hour class for 1922 was recently elected as follows: President, Marjorie Hollabaugh; Secretary and Treasurer, Helen Lake; Asst., Esther Doll.

The third number of the lecture course will be held at the Community hall on Friday evening. It will be given by the Sterling Male Quartet, and is expected to be very good.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard White of Big Rapids, Mich., and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Miller and baby of Ft. Wayne, are visiting the Mary Jane Silberg home. Mr. White is quite ill at this writing.

Ashur Culp left Monday morning for Indianapolis to attend the Lumbermen convention, Mrs. Culp and children being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Jenkins while he is away.

Argyle Beams of Cleveland was called home Saturday by the serious illness of his mother, Mrs. Hattie Beams, who is suffering from a serious attack of pneumonia. A special nurse came Monday to care for her.

Obituary

Miss Dona Isolina Rummel, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Rummel, was born in Beverly, Va., on July 8, 1857, and departed this life at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Hobaugh, on Jan. 14th, 1922, having reached the age of 64 years, 5 months and 6 days.

She spent most of her life in Virginia, however a number of years were also spent in Missouri and Indiana. She was converted in her youth and joined the Spencerville Lutheran church; and later when she returned to Virginia she had her membership transferred to the Presbyterian church, there being no Lutheran church to her home town.

The departed leaves one brother and two sisters with other relatives and friends to pay her the last earthly tribute of respect. She suffered much, but she no doubt realized the truth of and found comfort in the words of St. Paul where he says: "For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us more and more exceedingly an eternal weight of glory; while we look not at the things which are seen; for the things which are seen are temporal; but the things which are not seen are eternal."

Funeral services were held from the M. E. church on Monday at [illegible] a. m. with the Rev. A. K. [illegible] officiating with Rev. A. F. Uphoff and Rev. C. L. Jones assisting. Interment at the White City cemetery, Roscoe Walters Funeral director.

[illegible]

[illegible] other relatives and friends.

She was a member of the M. E. Sunday school and she loved to be in her place when she could, and was interested in every activity of the school. The last time she was in the church was when she was helping with her part of the Christmas program, in the midst of which she was taken sick and from which she did not recover.

Emma has gone to the land where sickness and sorrow never can come.

Funeral services were held in the M. E. church Sunday at 1:30 p. m. with Rev. A. F. Uphoff officiating Interment was at the White City cemetery, Roscoe Walters, Funeral director.

Card of Thanks.

We desire to thank our friends for their help and sympathy during the sickness and death of our dear little daughter and sister, Emma Emila. We also thank those who gave the beautiful flowers.

William Allen and Family.

Deaths.

Eugene Furnish, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Furnish of the county line, died on Saturday evening at the Lutheran hospital at Ft. Wayne of appendicitis.

He is survived by the parents, two brothers and two sisters, one grandfather, James Furnish, of the county line, and many relatives and friends.

The funeral was held on Tuesday morning from the Lutheran church, interment being held at the White City cemetery.

Ford THE UNIVERSAL CAR

-Attention! FORD Owners-

FORD parts, like most everything else worth while, are counterfeited. The manufacturers of these imitation parts are obviously not as interested as we are in maintaining the high standard of quality and the complete satisfaction of FORD owners. Imitation parts are manufactured to sell at the highest possible rate of profit and the grades of steel used are consequently not the same high quality, specially heat-treated alloy steels specified in FORD formulas for the mauufacture of Genuine FORD Parts.

Don't be misled--Insist upon Genuine FORD Parts made by the FORD Motor Company. By so doing you will get from 35 to 100 per ct. more wear from them, and you will pay the lowest possible cost —the same everywhere

50 per ct. of Genuine FORD parts Retail for less than 10c. each

Ask for parts Price List.

When your FORD car, truck or FORDSON Tractor needs attention, call on the following authorized FORD dealer, who is properly equipped, employs competent mechanics, and uses Genuine FORD and FORDSON parts in all repair work.

F. W. SILBERG, SPENCERVILLE, Ind.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	83	$ 5.09
M. P.	82	6.38
Lutheran	75	4.13
M. E. Spencer	63	4.40
Lutheran	64	2.83
Coburntown	71	2.26
Newville U. B.	75	3.13
Christian	73	2.40
Concord	18	.65

The Sheriff Will Get 'em

It seems like the county sheriff is wanting to locate in St. Joe. He makes regular trips here anyway, Sunday being the date of his last call, and then he took away from one or two of our fellows a jug of joy water they thought no one to be wise to. First he had to find the lifter of the coat from The Central Grocery and see that he got his just dues, and then after Harvey Kimes had been relieved of his hides Mr. Hoodelmier had to straighten that, and he sure does his job right.

The Coolidge Store

In the building formerly owned by Jack Beams we are doing a rushing business in Dry Goods, Boots, Shoes, Coats, Sheep skinned lined and other kinds Groceries, Candies, Cigars, Tobacco, Farm Produce, Eggs, Butter, Cream, Light Hardware.

SPECIAL for SATURDAY

2 packages 15c Pancake Flour- 15c

Enough flour left to sell the same as last Saturday.

D. COOLIDGE, Spencerville, Indiana.

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
AND BOYS
Fort Wayne, Ind.

JANUARY

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognized Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

VII.

WHY GOOD MEN DODGE

The government service must look largely to the graduates from colleges and universities in recruiting for its technical work. Replies to an inquiry addressed to some forty of the leading colleges and universities of the country to discover what class of men took civil service examinations, whether the number is decreasing and, if so, the reasons, disclose vividly what the training schools of technical and scientific men think about the government as an employer. They warn their graduates against government service, and the graduates heed the warning.

Carnegie Institute of Technology, at Pittsburgh, reports:

> It is certainly true that the best of our graduates are not interested in government employment because they feel that, first of all, it does not pay adequate salaries, nor does it offer opportunity for advancement that private enterprise does. This spring I interviewed all the members of the graduating class, except the women, and none of them would consider government employment, although there were many positions open. . . . There are now about 1,500 male graduates of the institute, and I will venture to state that not more than ten are employed by the government.

Replies of similar tenor and import were received from the University of Chicago, Leland Stanford university, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Princeton university, Indiana university, and the University of Wisconsin.

Inequality of compensation is one of the chief reasons that deter scientific men from going into the government service. Congress fixes the salaries of most of the government employees. I can give a concrete illustration of how it determines the salaries of scientific men.

Dr. Leland O. Howard and Dr. Edward W. Nelson are two scientists in the employ of the government who have national reputations.

The appropriation bill for the Department of Agriculture was under consideration in the house on January 30th, 1920. The secretary of agriculture had been recommending for five or six years that Doctor Howard's salary be increased from $4,500 to $5,000. He proposed it again in that year's bill. When the item was reached in the discussion on the floor, this colloquy ensued:

> Mr. Stafford—Mister Chairman, I reserve a point of order on the paragraph. Is the entomologist whose salary you propose to increase the same person recommended for an increase last year?
>
> Mr. Lever—Yes; he has been in the government service many, many years.
>
> The Chairman—I make the point of order.
>
> Mr. Lever—I concede it.
>
> Mr. McLaughlin of Michigan—Will the gentleman reserve his point of order?
>
> Mr. Stafford—I will reserve it.
>
> Mr. McLaughlin—The committee made the recommendation to increase the salary $500, took testimony on it and considered it very carefully. In our judgment the increase in salary ought to be made for an official who has been in the department, as the chairman says, for a long time at the head of this bureau. He has performed able and faithful services. The salary is less than that paid to the heads of other bureaus. We felt, after listening to all that was said, and with a knowledge of the work he has been doing and has done, the salary proposed is not too large.
>
> Mr. Stafford—How long has he been there?
>
> Mr. Lever—He has been there forty-two years.
>
> Mr Stafford—What is his age?
>
> Mr. Lever—Over sixty, perhaps nearer seventy, but he is still vigorous and able to do good work. He is one of the greatest entomologists in the world.
>
> The Chairman—The point of order is sustained.

Five minutes later the matter of Doctor Nelson's salary was reached. The secretary of agriculture recommended an increase of his pay from $3,500 to $4,000. This happened:

> Mr. Stafford—Mister Chairman, I reserve the point of order on the paragraph. Will the chairman of the committee inform the house as to how long this biologist has been in the service of the government and how long he has been receiving the present salary of $3,500, on which you recommend an increase of $500?
>
> Mr. Lever—Mister Chairman, this gentleman, whose name is Nelson, has been in the service of the department since November, 1890. He has served as chief field naturalist from 1907 to 1912, and was assistant in charge of the biological investigation, from 1913 to 1914. On August 6, 1914, he was appointed assistant chief of the bureau, and on December 1, 1916, was made chief of the bureau. He took the place of Doctor Henshaw.
>
> Mr. Stafford—And the salary has been $3,500 since 1916?
>
> Mr. Lever—Yes.
>
> Mr. Stafford—What is his age?
>
> Mr. Lever—I should think that Doctor Nelson is round fifty years of age.
>
> Mr. Stafford—He is not superannuated.
>
> Mr. Lever—Oh, no; he is a very vigorous man.
>
> Mr. Stafford—Mister Chairman, I withdraw the point of order.

Doctor Howard was refused his increase of pay because he was too old, "over sixty, perhaps nearer seventy." Doctor Nelson was allowed his increase because he was not superannuated but in his prime, "round fifty years of age."

Now, as a matter of fact, Doctor Howard is more than two years younger than Doctor Nelson. Is it any wonder that scientific men of any attainments are reluctant to enter a service where the measure of the value of their services is set down in any such haphazard and casual way?

SYSTEM IS ALL WRONG

The great difficulty that stands in the way of discussing Uncle Sam as an employer is that there is no such person. The men who stand in the relation of employer to their subordinates are nothing but employees themselves, and temporary ones at that, with a very fleeting tenure of office. Cabinet officers and members of congress, to whom the rank and file of employees look for guidance for a solution of their problems, are simply fleeting figures that come and go, with their own interests to serve. They testify freely enough as to conditions of government employment. Senator Carter Glass, recently secretary of the treasury, for example:

"The largely-multiplied business of the government cannot be conducted with efficiency and economy unless there be attracted to and retained in the public service a group of highly trained, well-paid and permanent officials of supervisory grades. Uncertainty of tenure in some instances and inadequacy of compensation have closed the public service to many men of the best type or forced them out of government employ at the moment of their greatest usefulness.

"The war has increased the public debt more than twenty-five fold, and has augmented the functions and activities of the government in many ways. The duties are greater and the responsibilities are larger than those of other days, to the stewards of which it is not to be expected that the government will ever return. The [illegible] are such that failure to take the necessary action to invite and hold in the public service men of exceptional ability [illegible] the field of private enterprise. They were too fine and too patriotic to leave their posts.

"Under the compelling force of patriotism they made willing sacrifices during the war, but with the return of peace the government cannot expect to retain these employees indefinitely, because in justice to themselves and their families they will sooner or later accept the larger opportunities that are open to them in the world of business and industry unless the government proposes to pay them salaries that at least reasonably approach the value of their services.

"Only prompt action by the congress to build up a permanent and dignified civil service which will include men of great ability and high attainments can prevent mistakes and failures in the transaction of the public business, the consequences of which may be calamitous."

Ex-Representative Good, who was chairman of the appropriations committee of the house, is equally frank:

"Today duplication in the government service abounds on every hand. For example, eight different departments of the government, with large overhead organizations, are engaged in engineering work, in navigation, irrigation and drainage; eleven different bureaus are engaged in engineering research; twelve different organizations are engaged in road construction, [illegible] with large overhead organizations are engaged in hydraulic [illegible]

Seen and Heard In Indiana

Montezuma.—The First National bank was held up and robbed by three men. They escaped with $2,000 in silver and currency.

Terre Haute.—Officials of District 11, United Mine Workers of America, have started a move for an investigation of the controversy in Kansas among coal miners and officials, and will also aid in fighting the Kansas industrial court law. A committee, to represent the district, which includes the most of Indiana's coal fields, and to make the investigation has been named. The committee will be assisted by District 11 attorneys.

Wabash.—Plans for the annual convention of the Farmers' Grain Dealers' Association of Indiana, which will be held at Wabash in March, have been started. This association is composed of all co-operative owned grain elevator members in the state and approximately 200 delegates are expected to be in attendance. Last year more than 100 delegates were in Wabash for the convention and the officers at that time predicted the number would be doubled at the meeting this year.

Indianapolis.—Marriage is one way of beating the new school attendance law that requires boys and girls to attend school until they are sixteen years old. "A married person is not a child," says Attorney General Lesh regarding the meaning of the attendance law and in answer to a question as to whether a fifteen-year-old wife would have to go to school. The question was presented to the attorney general by the state attendance officer.

South Bend.—For the first time in the last half century South Bend is without a theater offering legitimate theatrical attractions despite the fact that the city has two houses erected at a cost of $1,500,000 and has a third house under construction and which will cost $800,000. This latter house, the construction of which was started six months ago, and which was to house the drama and musical comedy, has been absorbed by the Orpheum circuit and will be used for vaudeville.

Shelbyville.—Demand "that the 1922 assessments of farm lands for taxation shall show a substantial reduction in assessed values, so that such assessed values shall be in harmony with the actual cash values of farm lands" has been made by the Shelby County Farmers' association, in a resolution adopted at a meeting of the board of directors of the association. The resolution received the support of each member of the board, there being one representative from each township in the county.

Indianapolis.—The state board of medical registration and examination, at its semiannual meeting in Indianapolis, re-elected the following officers: Dr. W. A. Spurgeon, Muncie, president; Dr. E. M. Shanklin, Hammond, vice-president; Dr. W. T. Gott, Crawfordsville, secretary; Dr. Paul Tindall, Shelbyville, treasurer. Miss Lucy Campbell was continued as the clerk of the board. The board decided that there would be no January examinations for the licensing of physicians, due to the limited number of applicants. The board meets in January and July.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray and M. E. Foley, secretary of the Indiana reformatory relocation commission, announced that the commission has got down to 47 possible sites for the new institution. It has eliminated all except that number from nearly 200 site offers. On January 21, the commission will visit sites which are included in Marion and Hamilton counties. Mr. Foley said the commission has in mind "four or five" sites in the two counties. He said it has in mind "seven or eight" in Hendricks county, and "five or six" in Morgan county. The commission will inspect the Hendricks county sites January 20, and the Morgan county sites, January 19.

Lafayette.—Uncurtailed issuing of tax-exempt securities was criticised in resolutions adopted by [illegible] representative farmers of Indiana, who met at Purdue university to [illegible] views and [illegible] suggestions for President Harding's forthcoming agricultural conference at Washington, D. C. The resolutions, in addition to the suggestion concerning securities, included the following [illegible]

Fort Wayne.—James P. Goodrich, formerly governor of Indiana, denied a report that he would be a candidate for a post in President Harding's cabinet to succeed Will H. Hays, in case the latter resigned as postmaster general. Mr. Goodrich was emphatic in his statement that he would not consider the position. He said he intended to return to Russia to resume his duties in connection with the American relief commission.

Indianapolis.—Indiana's parole system and indeterminate and suspended sentence laws are defended as important factors in bringing about the reformation of criminals, who, under the old system, often were turned back on society at the end of a prison term more hardened than ever in their criminal tendencies, in addresses by Governor McCray and Hugo Pam, judge of the Superior court of Cook county, Illinois, at the conference of the state judiciary, which met at Indianapolis.

Kendallville.—The fourth annual meeting of the Kendallville Shippers' association held here shows by the report of the secretary-treasurer that the association handled last year 10,264 head of live stock, the gross receipts for which were $175,692.12. During 1920 the total live stock shipped was 9,969 head, the gross receipts being $291,899.94. The average weight of the hogs shipped in 1920 was 206 pounds, while in 1921 the average was 217.5 pounds.

Layfayette.—Ralph L. Heilman, of Hope, Bartholomew county, won the grand championship honors at the annual Indiana state corn show at Purdue university, his ten ears of Johnson county white being adjudged the best display. W. P. Foster, of West Point, Tippecanoe county, won the single ear championship with a sample of Reid's yellow dent. This is the first time Tippecanoe county has ever figured in the championship honors at a state corn show.

Peru.—The largest circus corporation in the world has just been completed at Cincinnati, O., by a merger of the Hagenback-Wallace, Sells-Floto, Howe's Great London, and John Robinson shows, according to word received. The capital stock is $2,000,000 and the concern is incorporated under the laws of Ohio, it was said. The corporation likely will maintain its offices in Cincinnati, but all the shows will winter in Peru, it was said. The Robinson and Howe Shows are now in Peru.

Indianapolis.—In a decision in city court at Indianapolis in a test case involving about 30 owners of motor trucks and about 250 drivers who were arrested many months ago for failing to comply with the state law requiring state licenses, Frank A. Symmes, special judge, ruled that the truck owners must obtain licenses, and in a blanket order assessed fines ranging from $5 to $25 and costs, the amount of the fines depending on the number of trucks operated without licenses by the respective owners.

Clinton.—Two hundred union coal miners, representing 700 members of locals Nos. 4311, 382 and 28 of the Clinton field, adopted resolutions at a mass meeting in Clinton, favoring return to work, pending future settlement of their controversy. The men are in the employ of the Clinton Coal company, and their action was taken in spite of an order issued by John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, and officials of district No. 11, U. M. W. A. The strike was declared in October, when the company discharged a pumpman.

Indianapolis.—The Indiana Dairy Marketing association, a nonstock, nonprofit-sharing organization, determined on several months ago by members of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' Associations, became a reality, when 25 incorporators met in Indianapolis and effected the nucleus of the organization. The incorporators are dairymen operating in the vicinity of Indianapolis, and the organization intends to facilitate the marketing of dairy products, and to increase the economy of the process, not so much by a change of prices—for no radical or immediate price changing is contemplated, it is said—but mainly by a better conservation of the abundant supply of summer milk, which now regularly disturbs prices.

Indianapolis.—Sheriffs and prosecuting attorneys from a majority of the counties in Indiana, meeting in open conference at Indianapolis in what was characterized by Alexander [illegible], newly appointed assistant United States district attorney, as the first meeting ever held in the state by [illegible] enforcement officers, pledged themselves in resolutions [illegible] a program of rigid [illegible] and the [illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JANUARY 22

ELIJAH'S FLIGHT AND RETURN.

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 19:1-21.

GOLDEN TEXT—I waited patiently for the Lord; and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry.—Ps. 40:1.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Ezek. 2:1-7; Acts 16:6-10; 18:1-11.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Sends an Angel to Help Elijah.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God Strengthens Elijah.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jehovah's Champion Encouraged.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Finding and Finishing Our Task.

This lesson story proves Elijah to have been a man of like passions as we are (Jas. 5:17).

I. Elijah's Flight (vv. 1-14). Upon Ahab's return from the excitement on Mount Carmel, he told his wife all that Elijah had done—that even all her prophets had been hewn to pieces by the sword. This so enraged her that she sent a message of death to Elijah, who seems to have been waiting at the gate (vv. 1, 2). This was clearly a bluff on Jezebel's part. Though Elijah had courageously stood before the king and the priests of Baal, he now cowered before this woman and fled for his life. He seems to have failed at his strongest point.

1. Elijah under the juniper tree (vv. 3-7). The juniper tree was a shrub of the desert which afforded shelter and protection to travelers from the burning sun by day and the cold wind by night. (1) His request (v. 4). This was that he might die. This was, no doubt, a foolish thing for him to say, but let us be as considerate toward him as was God. The discouragement, and even despondency, of Elijah was due to the nervous strain of about four years of unusual service for God, which culminated on Mount Carmel. Such nervous reaction is to be expected. (2) God's tender treatment (vv. 5-7). (a) He gave him sleep (v. 5). "He giveth His beloved sleep" (Psa. 127:2). (b) He sent an angel to cook Elijah's meal (vv. 6, 7). The angel of the Lord is usually understood to be the second member of the Holy Trinity. If this be correct, then we see Jehovah-Jesus preparing food for His servant Elijah, as He afterward did for His discouraged disciples by Galilee (John 21:19). God again gave him sleep, and at the proper time again gave him food. Though Elijah wanted to die, God had something better for him, for in a later day He met him with the "chariot of the Lord" and took him to heaven untouched by death.

2. Elijah at Horeb (vv. 8-14).

(1) God's interview with Elijah in the cave (vv. 9, 10). (a) God's question (v. 9). "What doest thou here, Elijah?" This was a stinging rebuke, though most kindly given. It implied that His appointed messenger was now far away from the field of duty. Elijah was not where God wanted him, but God sought him where he was. How blessed to know that "A God-forsaking saint is not a God-forsaken saint!" (b) Elijah's answer (v. 10). Elijah tried to vindicate himself by asserting his jealous loyalty to God—that in spite of all this the people had not only rejected his message and dishonored God, but had sought to destroy him. (2) God's interview with Elijah on the Mount (vv. 11-14). While standing before the Lord on the mount, God caused a mighty demonstration of wind, earthquake and fire to pass before him to show unto him the nature of the work which he had been doing for God, and to show him what was lacking in his work for the fullest attainment of success. Elijah had about him much of the whirlwind, earthquake and fire. His work had been terrifying and alarming, but it lacked in gentleness and love.

II. Elijah's Return (vv. 15-18). Though Elijah had erred, God brought him again into His service. How comforting to know that God does not reject His servants because of their failures in times of despondency! He deals with them after the motive of their hearts. Elijah was nourished and instructed by the Lord and then sent on a high mission. God is a [illegible]. He took Elijah out of [illegible] by giving him a new commission. The most healing ministry is [illegible]. Many bereaved ones have been [illegible] out of themselves by active ministry to others. Before God would come in His chariot to take Elijah home, he set him upon a threefold ministry:

1. To anoint Hazael king over Syria (v. 15).
2. To anoint Jehu king over Israel (v. 16).
3. To anoint Elisha as his own successor (vv. 16-21).

[illegible] Rightly Employed.

[illegible]

111 one eleven cigarettes

Three Friendly Gentlemen — TURKISH VIRGINIA BURLEY

The perfect blend of the three perfect cigarette tobaccos in one perfect cigarette

one-eleven cigarettes

15¢ for 20

The American Tobacco Co.

111 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK CITY

RAZOR BLADE POCKET KNIFE

Made From Your Old Blades

Send 25c, stamps or coin, for a pretty little handle. Makes a safe, handy pocket knife. Agents Wanted

A. TUBBS & CO.

66 Plummer Ave. Hammond, Ind.

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

TO KILL RATS

and MICE

Always use the genuine

STEARNS' ELECTRIC RAT & ROACH PASTE

It forces these pests to run from the building for water and fresh air.

Ready for Use—Better Than Traps

Directions in 15 languages in every box.

35c and $1.50. "Money back if it fails."

U. S. Government buys it.

World's Richest Playwright.

The Rockefeller among playwrights is Franz Molnar, of Budapest, who is reputed to have more gold than the Austrian treasury, says the Mentor Magazine. Molnar is best known in the United States for his plays, "Liliom" and "The Devil." The millionaire playwright is said to be extremely eccentric. He lives in an obscure hotel on a Danube island, which he favors because it can be reached by bridge. He mistrusts boats and never uses them.

How It Is.

"What's the difference between insurance and assurance?" "Well, you can't sell one without the other."

HEALTH BRINGS BEAUTY

If You're a Woman Rundown, Nervous, Have Headaches and Backaches, What This Woman Says is Vital to You

Indianapolis, Ind.—"I underwent an operation a year ago last April; then afterwards I always suffered terribly each month with headache and a chilly, numb feeling, until I learned about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. I took three bottles of it and was wonderfully relieved. If I had known sooner about the 'Favorite Prescription' am sure I would have avoided a great deal of suffering."—Mrs. Hazel A. Pultse, 929 East St. Clair St.

You'll be on the road to health and beauty if you purchase this 'Prescription' of Dr. Pierce's at your nearest drug store, in tablets or liquid.

COUGH KEMP'S BALSAM

Cuticura Soap [illegible] Without Mug

JANUARY

The GREEN PEA PIRATES —

By PETER B. KYNE

Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne

—Author of—
"WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN,"
"THE VALLEY of the GIANTS,"
Etc.

RE-ENTER McGUFFEY.

Synopsis.—Captain Phineas P. Scraggs has grown up around the docks of San Francisco, and from mess boy on a river steamer, risen to the ownership of the steamer Maggie. Since each annual inspection promised to be the last of the old weatherbeaten vessel, Scraggs naturally has some difficulty in securing a crew. When the story opens, Adelbert P. Gibney, likable, but erratic, a man whom nobody but Scraggs would hire, is the skipper, Neils Halvorsen, a solemn Swede, constitutes the forecastle hands, and Bart McGuffey, a wastrel of the Gibney type, reigns in the engine room. With this motley crew and his ancient vessel, Captain Scraggs is engaged in freighting garden truck from Halfmoon bay to San Francisco. The inevitable happens; the Maggie goes ashore in a fog. A passing vessel hailing the wreck, Mr. Gibney gets word to a towing company in San Francisco that the ship ashore is the Yankee Prince, with promise of a rich salvage. Two tugs succeed in pulling the Maggie into deep water, and she slips her tow lines and gets away in the fog. Furious at the deception practiced on them, Captains Hicks and Flaherty, commanding the two tugboats, ascertain the identity of the "Yankee Prince" and, fearing ridicule should the facts become known along the water front, determine on personal vengeance. Their hostile visit to the Maggie results in Captain Scraggs promising to get a new boiler and make needed repairs to the steamer. Scraggs refuses to fulfill his promises and Gibney and McGuffey "strike." With marvelous luck, Scraggs ships a fresh crew. At the end of a few days of wild conviviality Gibney and McGuffey are stranded and seek their old positions on the Maggie. They are hostilely received, but remain. On their way to San Francisco they sight a derelict and Gibney and McGuffey swim to it. The derelict proves to be the Chesapeake, richly laden, its entire crew stricken with scurvy. Scraggs attempts to tow her in, but the Maggie is unequal to the task and Gibney and McGuffey, alone, sail the ship to San Francisco, their salvage money amounting to $1,000 apiece. His crew having deserted him, Captain Scraggs induces them to return. At an "old-horse" sale the three purchase two mysterious boxes which they believe to contain smuggled "Oriental goods." They find, instead, two dead Chinamen. Scraggs seeks to "double cross" his two associates, but Mr. Gibney outwits him and makes a satisfactory financial settlement with the Chinese company to whom the bodies have been consigned, leaving Scraggs out in the cold. Gibney resents McGuffey's action in lending money to Scraggs without consulting him, and after a terrific wordy combat the three separate, McGuffey becoming assistant engineer on an oil tanker, Gibney disappearing, and Scraggs, forced to lay up the Maggie, takes a subordinate position on a ferry steamer. Senor Lopez, Mexican revolutionist, makes Scraggs a generous offer for transportation of munitions to Lower California. Scraggs accepts, and the old Maggie is once more put into commission. Arriving at his destination, Scraggs finds his old companion, Mr. Gibney, is the consignee. Time having softened animosities, the reunion is joyful. Gibney plans to steal the ammunition and convey it to revolutionists in Colombia. On the way they are attacked by a Mexican gunboat and a terrific combat ensues.

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

—10—

As the first muzzle burst raked the Mexican Captain Scraggs saw that most of the terrible blast of lead had gone too high. Nevertheless, it was effective, for to a man the crews of the one-pounders deserted their posts and tumbled below; seeing which the individual in command lost his nerve. He was satisfied now that the infernal Maggie purposed ramming him; he had marveled that the filibuster should use shrapnel, after she had ranged with shell (he did not know it was percussion shrapnel) and in sudden panic he decided that the Maggie, mortally wounded, purposed getting close enough to sink him with shell-fire if she failed to ram him; whereupon the yellow streak came through and he waved his arms frantically above his head in token of surrender.

"She's hauled down her rag," shrieked Scraggs. "Be merciful, Gib. There's men dyin' on that boat."

"[illegible] that craft," Mr. Gibney [illegible]

[illegible]

had a monkey wrench in one hand and a greasy rag in the other.

Mr. Gibney turned and looked at the man.

"McGuffey, for a thousand!" he bellowed, and ran forward with outstretched hand. Captain Scraggs was at Gibney's heels, and between them they came very nearly dislocating Bartholomew McGuffey's arm.

"McGuffey, my dear boy," said Captain Scraggs. "Whatever are you a-doin' on this heathen battleship?"

"Me!" ejaculated Mr. McGuffey, with his old-time deliberation. "Why, I'm the chief engineer of this craft. I had a good job, too, but I guess it's all off now, and the Mexican government'll fire me. Say, who chucked that buckshot down into my engine room?"

"Admiral Gibney did it," said Scraggs. "The old Maggie's alongside and me and Gib's filibusters. Bear a hand, Mac, and help us clap the hatches on our prisoners."

"Thank God," said Mr. Gibney piously, "I didn't kill you. Come to look into the matter, I didn't kill anybody, though I see half a dozen Mexicans around decks more or less cut up. Where you been all these years, Mac?"

"I been chief engineer in the Mexican navy," replied McGuffey. "Have you captured us in the name of the United States or what?"

"We've captured you in the name of Adelbert P. Gibney," was the reply. "I been huntin' all my life for a ship of my own, and now I've got her. Lord, Mac, she's a beauty, ain't she? All hardwood finish, teak rail, well found, and just the ticket for the island trade. Well, well, well! I'm Captain Gibney at last."

"Where do I come in, Gib?" asked Captain Scraggs modestly.

"Well, seein' as the Maggie has two holes through her hull below the waterline, and is generally nicked to pieces, you might quit askin' questions and get back aboard and put the pumps on her. You're lucky if she don't sink on you before we get to Descanso bay. If she sinks, don't worry. I'll give you a job as my first mate. Mac, you're my engineer, but not at no fancy Mexican price. I'll pay you the union scale and not a blasted cent more or less. Is that fair?"

McGuffey said it was, and went below to tune up his engine. Mr. Gibney took the wheel of the gunboat, and sent Captain Scraggs back aboard the Maggie, and in a few minutes both vessels were bowling along toward Descanso bay. They were off the bay at midnight, and while with Mr. Gibney in command of the federal gunboat Captain Scraggs had nothing to fear, the rapid rise of water in the hold of the Maggie was sadly disconcerting. About daylight he made up his mind that she would sink within two hours, and without pausing to whine over his predicament, he promptly beached her. She drove far up the beach, with the slack water breaking around her scarred stern, and when the tide ebbed she lay high and dry. And the rebel soldiers came trooping down from the Megano rancho and falling upon her carcass like so many ants, quickly distributed her cargo amongst them, and disappeared.

Captain Scraggs sent his crew out aboard the captured gunboat to assist Mr. Gibney in rowing his prisoners ashore, and when finally he stood alone beside the wreck of the brave old Maggie, piled up at last in the port of missing ships, something snapped within his breast and the big tears rolled in quick succession down his sun-tanned cheeks. The old hulk looked peculiarly pathetic as she lay there, listed over on her beam ends. She had served him well, but she had finished her last voyage, and with some vague idea of saving her old bones from vandal hands, Captain Scraggs, sobbing audibly, scattered the contents of half a dozen cans of kerosene over her decks and in the cabin, lighted fires in three different sections of the wreck, and left her to the consuming flames. Half an hour later he stood on the battered decks of the gunboat beside Gibney and McGuffey and watched the dense clouds of smoke that heralded the passing of the Maggie.

"She was a good old hulk," said Mr. Gibney. "And now, as the [illegible] of the Liberal army of Mexico, here's a draft on [illegible] five thousand [illegible] Maria, but I'm going to run her to Panama and change her name. She'll be known as Maggie II, out of respect for the old girl that's burnin' up there on the beach."

[illegible]

Captain Scraggs was so touched at this delicate little tribute that he turned away and burst into tears.

"Aw, shut up, Scraggsy, old hunks," said McGuffey consolingly. "You ain't got nothin' to cry about. You're a rich man. Look at me. I ain't a-bawlin', am I? And I don't get so much as a bean out of this mix-up, all on account of me bein' tied up with a lot of hounds that quits fightin' before they're half licked."

"That's so," said Captain Scraggs, wiping his eyes with his grimy fists. "I declare you're out in the cold, McGuffey, and it ain't right. Gib, my boy, us three has had some stirrin' times together and we've had our differences, but I ain't a-goin' to think of them past griefs. The sight o' you, single-handed, meetin' and annihilatin' the pride of the Mexican navy, calm in th' moment o' despair, generous in victory and delicate as blazes to a fallen shipmate, goin' to work an' namin' your vessel after him that way, is somethin' that wipes away all sorrer and welds a friendship that's bound to endoor till death us do part. If McGuffey'd been on our side, we know from past performances that he'd a fit like a tiger, wouldn't you, Mac?" (Here Mr. McGuffey coughed slightly, as much as to say that he would have fought like ten tigers had he only been given the opportunity.)

Captain Scraggs continued: "I should say that a fair valuation of this schooner as she stands is ten thousand dollars. That belongs to Gib. Now I'm willin' to chuck five thousand dollars into the deal, we'll form a close corporation and as a compliment to McGuffey, elect him chief engineer in his own ship and give him, say, a quarter interest in our layout, as a little testimonial to an old friend, tried and true."

"Scraggsy," said Mr. Gibney, "your fin. We've fought, but we'll let that go. We wipe the slate clean and start in all over again on the Maggie II, and I'm free to state, without fear of contradiction, that in the last embroglio you showed up like four aces and a king with the entire company standin' pat. Scraggsy, you're a hero, and what you propose proves that you're considerable of a singed cat—better'n you look. We'll go freebootin' down on the Gold coast. There's war, red war, breakin' loose down there, and we'll shy in our horseshoe with the strongest side and pry loose a fortune somewhere. I'm for a life of wild adventure, and now that we've got the ship and the funds and the crew, let's go to it. There's a deal of fine liquor in the wardroom, and I suggest that we nominate Phineas Scraggs, late master of the battleship Maggie, now second in command of the Maggie II, to brew a kettle o' hot grog to celebrate our victory. Mac—Scraggsy—your fins. I'm proud of you both. Shake."

They shook and as Captain Gibney's eye wandered aloft, First Mate Scraggs and Chief Engineer McGuffey looked

[illegible]

...ere's outlawed, or I'll feed you to the fishes."

Captain Scraggs looked crestfallen, but produced the money.

CHAPTER X.

"Well, Scraggsy, old hunks, this is pleasant, ain't it?" said Mr. Gibney, and spat on the deck of the Maggie II.

"Right-o," replied Captain Scraggs cheerily, "though when I was a young feller and first went to sea, it wasn't considered no pleasantry to spit on a nice clean deck. You might cut that out, Gib. It's vulgar."

"Passin' over the fact, Scraggs, that you ain't got no call to jerk me up on sea ettycat, more particular since I'm the master and managin' owner of this here schooner, I'm free to confess, Scraggsy, that your observation does you credit. I just did that to see if you was goin' to take as big an interest in the new Maggie as you did in the old Maggie, and the fact that you object to me expectoratin' on the deck proves to me that you're leavin' behind you all them bay scow tendencies of the green-pea trade. It leads me to believe that you'll rise to high rank and distinction in the Colombian navy. Your fin, Scraggsy. Expectoratin' on the decks is barred, and the Maggie II goes under navy discipline from now on. Am I right?"

"Right as a right whale," said Captain Scraggs. "And now that you've given that old mate of mine the course, and we've temporarily plugged up the holes in this here Mexican gunboat, and everything points to a safe and profitable voyage from now on, suppose you delegate me as a committee of one to brew a scuttle of grog, after which the syndicate holds a mettin' and lays out a course for its future conduct. There's a few questions of rank and privileges that ought to be settled once and for all, so there can't be no come-back."

"The point is well taken and it is so ordered," said Mr. Gibney, who had once held office in Harbor 15, Master and Pilots Association of America, and knew a fragment or two of parliamentary law. "Rustle up the grog, call McGuffey up out of the engine room, and we'll hold the meetin'."

Twenty minutes later Scraggs came on deck to announce the successful concoction of a kettle of whisky punch; whereupon the three adventurers went below and sat down at the cabin table for a conference.

"I move that Gib be appointed president of the syndicate," said Captain Scraggs.

"Second the motion," rumbled McGuffey.

"The motion's carried," said Mr. Gibney, and banged the table with his horny fist. "The meetin' will please come to order. The chair hereby appoints Phineas Scraggs secretary of the syndicate, to keep a record of this and all future meetin's of the board. I will now entertain propositions of any and all natures, and I invite the members of the board to knock the stopper out of their jaw tackle and go to it."

"I move," said Captain Scraggs, "that B. McGuffey, Esquire, be, and he is hereby appointed, chief engineer of the Maggie II at a salary not to exceed the wage schedule of the Marine Engineers' Association of the Pacific coast, and that he be voted a one-fourth interest in the vessel and all subsequent profits."

"Second the motion," said Mr. Gibney, "and not to hamper the business of the meetin', we'll just consider that motion carried unanimous."

B. McGuffey, Esquire, rose, bowed his thanks, and sat down again, apparently very much confused. It was evident that he had something to say, but was having difficulty framing his thoughts in parliamentary language.

"Heave away, Mac," said Mr. Gibney.

"Cast off your lines, McGuffey," chirped Scraggs.

Thus encouraged, McGuffey rose, bowed his thanks once more, moistened his larnyx with a gulp of the punch, and spoke:

"Feller members and brothers of the syndicate: In the management of the deck department of this new craft of ourn, my previous knowledge of the worthy president and the unworthy secretary leads me to believe that there's goin' to be trouble. A ship divided agin herself must surely go on her beam ends. Now, Scraggsy here has been master so long that the juice of authority has sorter soaked into his marrer bones. For twenty years it's been 'Howdy do, Captain Scraggs,' 'Have a drink, Captain Scraggs,' 'Captain Scraggs this an' Captain Scraggs that.' I don't mean no offense, gentlemen, when I state that you can't teach an old dog new tricks. No man that's ever been a master makes a good mate. On the other hand, I realize that Gib here has been a-pantin' and a-bellyachin' all his life to get a ship of his own an' have folks call him 'Captain Gibney.' Now that he's gone an' done it, I say he's entitled to it. But the [illegible] our mate'll do the navigatin' while Scraggsy's learnin' the deep sea stuff."

[illegible]

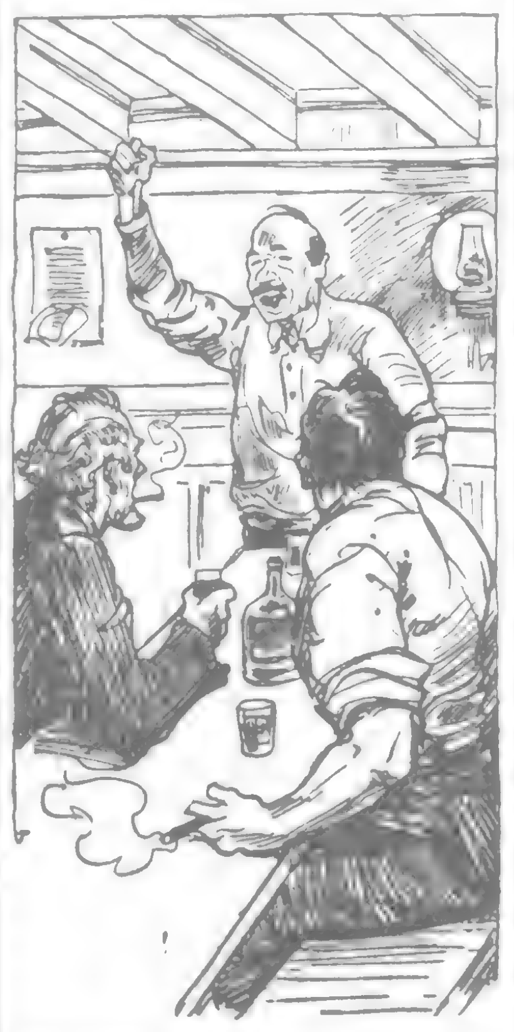
"Second the motion," said Captain Scraggs briskly. "McGuffey, your argument does you a heap of credit. It's—it's—dog my cats, McGuffey, it's masterly. It shows a keen appreciation of an old skipper's feelin's, and if the move is agreeable to Gib, I'm willin' to hail him as commodore and fight to maintain his office. I—I dunno, Gib, what I'd do if I didn't have a mate to order around."

"Gentlemen," said Mr. Gibney, beaming, "the motion's carried unanimous. Captain—chief—your fins. Dook me. I'm honored by the handshake. Now, regarding that crew you brought down from San Francisco on the old Maggie, Scraggs, they're a likely lot and will come in handy if times is as lively in Colombia as I figger they will be when we arrive there. Captain Scraggs, you will have your mate pipe the crew to muster and ascertain their feelin's on the subject of takin' a chance with Commodore Gibney. If they object to goin' further, we'll land 'em in Panama an' pay 'em off as agreed. If they feel like followin' the Jolly Roger we'll give 'em the coast seaman's scale for a deep-water cruise and a five per cent bonus in case we turn a big trick."

Captain Scraggs went at once on deck. Ten minutes later he returned to report that the mate and the four seamen elected to stick by the ship.

"Bully boys," said the commodore "bully boys. I like that mate. He's a smart man and handles a gun well.



"Gentlemen and Brothers of the Syndicate," He B..an.

While I should hesitate to take advantage of my prerogative as commodore to interfere with the normal workin's of the deck department, I trust that on this special occasion our esteemed navigatin' officer, Captain Scraggs, will not consider it beneath his dignity or an attack on his office if I suggest to him that he brew another kettle of grog for the crew."

"Second the motion," replied McGuffey.

"Carried," said Scraggs, and proceeded to heat some water.

"Anything further?" stated the president.

"How about uniforms?" This from Captain Scraggs.

"We'll leave that to Gib," suggested McGuffey. "He's been in the Colombian navy and he'll know just what to get us."

"Well, there's another thing that's got to be settled," continued Captain Scraggs. "If I'm to be navigatin' officer on the flagship of a furrin' fleet, strike me pink if I'll do more cookin' in the galley. It's degradin'. I move that we engage some enterprisin' Oriental for that job."

"Carried," said Mr. Gibney. "Any further business?"

Once more McGuffey stood up. "Gentlemen and brothers of the syndicate," he began, "I'm satisfied that the backbitin', the scrappin', the petty jealousies and general cussedness that characterized our lives on the old Maggie will not be duplicated on the Maggie II. Them vicious days is gone forever, I hope, an' from now on the motto of us three should be:

> "All for one and one for all—
> United we stand, divided we fall."

This earnest little speech, which came straight from the honest McGuffey's heart, brought the tears to the commodore's eyes. Under the inspiration of McGuffey's unselfish words the glasses were refilled and all three pledged their friendship anew. As for Captain Scraggs, he was naturally of a cool and selfish disposition, and McGuffey's toast appealed more to his [illegible] in his heart. Had he known what was to happen to him in the [illegible]

[illegible]

LET'S STOP THE COLDS

Use the Old-Fashioned Cure That Grandmother Used

LANGLEY'S OLD-FASHIONED MEDICATED GOOSEGREASE COMP. FOR COUGHS COLDS BRONCHITIS ETC. "IT PENETRATES" LANGLEY CHEMICAL CO. ST. LOUIS, MO. PRICE 50 CENTS

Also good for Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness Tonsilitis, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Asthma, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Sprains, Strains, Headache, etc. Any pain quickly relieved. Keep a jar of Langley's in the home at all times. If your druggist does not carry Langley's, send 50c to

LANGLEY CHEMICAL CO.
Central Division - NEWPORT, KY.

INVEST $50. Get weekly cash returns. No stock scheme. Manufacturing. World wide market; we do the selling. Manufacturer, Room 306, 1431 Broadway, New York

Start in Business for Yourself; make candy at home in spare hours. Big profits. Particulars, Elmers Confect'y, Watertown, N. Y.

LOCAL SECRETARY
STEADY INCOME. NO SOLICITING. Costs you nothing. Spare time only. Write today SUITE 1, 5504 Kenwood Avenue, CHICAGO

Prayers of the man who prays for himself alone probably never get higher than the roof.

SHE IS "FULL OF PEP" THEY SAY

She Is Good-Looking and Gay and Is Always Ready for a Good Time.

Why is a girl popular? Look around and see what a good time the good-looking ones have all the time. Men seek them out and ask them to parties, dances and entertainments. And notice that it is not the doll-face type real men like most, but the red-blooded girl with "pep" and happy good nature. Any girl who is tired and languid and has a poor complexion and dull eyes can improve her condition and be far happier if she will simply take Gude's Pepto-Mangan until she has put her blood into good condition. Red blood means "full of life" and "full of life" usually means happiness.

Try Gude's Pepto-Mangan and see how much better you feel. Doctors have used it nearly thirty years for weak, run-down people. It helps them get well. Sold in both liquid and tablet form. Advertisement.

An Allusion.

"I hear your father alludes to me as a pup."

"Not exactly, Cholly, not exactly. He did threaten to send for the dog catcher, however, if you keep hanging around."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Uses Radio Telephone.

The fire department chief in a New Jersey city has equipped his automobile with a radio telephone to enable him to keep in touch with headquarters at all times.

The prices of cotton and linen have been doubled by the war. Lengthen their service by using Red Cross Ball Blue in the laundry. All grocers—Advertisement.

Giant Ox.

An ox of gigantic proportions was exhibited last April at the Royal Sydney show, in Australia. It was a seven-year-old, and stood 6 feet [illegible] inches high. [illegible]

Murine [illegible] Keep Your Eyes [illegible]

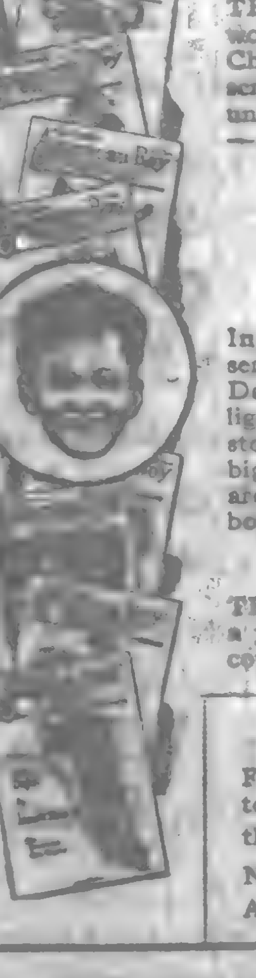
--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight SPECIALIST
of Ft. Wayne, Indiana
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist Office, St. Joe, Ind.,
Friday, JANUARY 27th.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL

Biliousness

WHEN you have a bilious attack your liver fails to perform its functions. You become constipated. The food you eat ferments in your stomach instead of digesting. This inflames the stomach and causes nausea, vomiting and a terrible headache. Take Chamberlain's Tablets. They will tone up your liver, clean out your stomach and you will soon be as well as ever. There is nothing better.

Chamberlain's Tablets



Every Boy Wants It

If you could realize how much that boy of yours, or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well-balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through—and its influence is of the best.

THE AMERICAN BOY
"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"

In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.

Price Reduced

THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. Make some boy happy—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY!

Mail this Coupon to the publication in which this offer appears.

For $2.00 enclosed send a Year's Subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, beginning with the................Number to Name ....
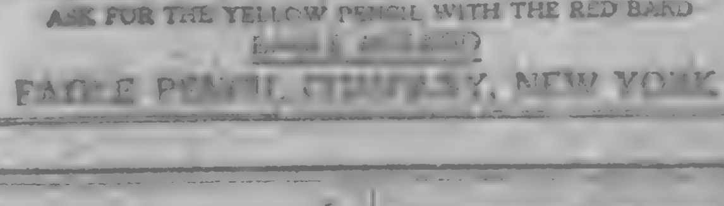
Address ....



EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174
For Sale at your Dealer — Made in five grades
ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND
EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

ADVERTISERS
don't "Send to your own "[illegible]" ads [illegible]
The St. Joe News
[illegible]

[illegible] WEEK'S DOINGS
[illegible]

Valentine cards at News office.

Mrs. Sam Kees is again on the sick list.

Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Heller are moving this week to Mishawaka.

Mrs. Frank Kinsey spent Friday in Fort Wayne.

Donald Snyder went to Wayne, Monday, to spend the week.

Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Kinsey and sons were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cochran.

Don't fail to see the "Movies" at the school building Saturday night.

For Sale—Hard wood at $2.50 a cord, delivered. M. H. Storer, phone No. 5009; St. Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Jackson entertained at Sunday dinner Mr. and Mrs. Ford, Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jackson and daughter, Mable.

Rev. S D. Steffy of Waldon, Ind., will be installed as pastor of the Lutheran churches of St. Joe and Spencerville, Ind., Sunday, Feb. 5.

Gladys McNab and little son, Harold, from Butler, and Clyde Mason and wife, visited Wm Brown and wife, Friday.

Blanch Sebring of Auburn, her daughter, Gladys Farner and two children, visited her father, William Brown and wife, Monday.

E. R Kinsey drove to near Newville, Saturday, to tke Geo. Oberlin home, taking the latter's son to the Garret Sacred Heart hospital in the Kinsey ambulance, the son being afflicted with appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Foltz spent Sunday and Monday at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Margaret Foltz, near Continental, Ohio. They also visited other relatives nearby.

Mr and Mrs. Jacob Sechler spent from Friday until Monday noon with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Everett Mavis, at Hicksville.

Mr. and Mrs. Craig Sheffer entertained last Saturday at dinner in honor of the former's birthday anniversary his parents Dr and Mrs B. S. Sheffer, and his niece, Miss Evelyn Knight.

The Misses Anna Hart, Irma Rhodenbaugh and Mary Armstrong and Messrs Scott, Stark and Brown formed a party from here Friday night attending the Palace theatre at Fort Wayne.

Ralph Sechler, of Ft. Wayne, was here Saturday carring pickles from the local station. He was assisted by Leon Sechler and George Baifley. Seven hundred and fifty bushels were put on the car. Monday, they carred at Butler from the station there.

In a thrilling gun battle Thursday afternoon, the Fort Wayne police captured six automobile thieves when they swooped down on their nest in a little garage repair shop in Ft. Wayne. All under arrest are said to be Ft Wayne men. They gave their names as George McCulloch, Charles Roberts, Hugh McKeehan, Boston Brickemayer, Ed. Skinner and Frank Nicklas.

Mrs. Alfred Reasoner is on the sick list.

Get your Valentine cards at the News office.

Miss Florence Hart was a Sunday guest of Miss Carrie Davidson.

Who is "Chick" Jones? Get acquainted at the St. Joe Short Course.

John George and family, of Auburn, spent Sunday afternoon with Alfred Reasoner and wife.

Miss Florence Kagey, of Warsaw, is spending the week with her uncle, H. M. Widney and family.

Mrs. Kate A. Leighty left Saturday morning for Celina, Ohio, where she will visit her sister, Mrs. E. F. Philley, until about Mar. 1st

Don't blame anybody but yourself if your nights are made miserable by indigestion. You failed to take Tanlac. At B.S. Sheffer's.

Miss Anna Hart and Bert Timmerman spent Saturday and Sunday as guests of Miss Zora Garton at Coldwater lake.

St. Joe High school Alumni will elcet officers, the election to be held at the home of Frank Scholes on Jan, 26, 1922, at 7:45.

There will be room for three extra persons to go to Convoy with the High school basket ball team. See the Gray line man.

Miss Lenore Moore and Miss Mabelle Schmalsreid spent over Sunday at the former's home at Cromwell.

Grover Ward and wife went to Bryan, Ohio, Tuesday, to attend the funeral of the former's father, who died Sunday.

For Sale:—Base burner, 16-in. Good condition. Can be seen in use 1 mile north and ½ mile west of St. Joe. $15. L. H. Douglas.

Glen Abel of Peru returned home Thursday after spending Wednesday and Wednesday night here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. F. Abel.

Mrs. Fordyce Daub and little daughter of Hicksville spent from Thursday evening until Monday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hart.

A series of meetings will begin next Sunday evening at the Newville Christian Church, under the leadership of the regular pastor, Rev. W. W. Denham.

It may seem strange but reports from the clerk of Grant county, show that during 1921 for every four divorce cases, three were of women request.

H. M. Widney and wife entertained at Friday dinner, Rev. R. J. Kuhn, of LaGrange; Dr. and Mrs. C. S. Johnson, Rev. and Mrs. C. O. Johnson and two little daughters.

The Western Union telegraph gang which has been camped here on the B. & O., tracks and working on the lines both west and east of town, moved to Garrett, Saturday morning. Their work has gone far enough west to justify the move. In the three months stay here they made many friends in St. Joe and they will be missed by all.

John Schwab will be with us once more in a few weeks, at the Short Course at St. Joe.

Emilus Case is confined to his bed suffering from an attack of heart trouble and rheumatism. He has been ailing for several months but not until last week did he have to go to his bed.

The Auburn Printing Company is now located in their new plant on West Ninth St., in Auburn. They have added considerable equipment and have sufficient to take care of a great business in newspaper and job printing work.

Mrs. Roy McDanial returned to the Irene Byron Sanatarium, Monday, after a week's visit here in the home of her parents, E. P Brown and wife. Mr. McDanial and little son left the same day for Wayne.

Emanuel Hendricks died Wednesday night at his home in Auburn, a victim of tuberculosis. He with his family were residents of St. Joe for a good many years. His wife, son Simon, and daughter Pearl, of Edon, Ohio, survive his death.

David Furnish, wife and little daughter, of Detroit, came Sunday to attend the funeral of Mr. Furnish's nephew, Eugene Furnish, of Spencerville. David returned Tuesday evening to Detroit, while his wife and daughter remained for a longer visit with her parents, Marsh Andress and wife.

PUBLIC SALE

The undersigned will sell at public sale, 5 miles south and ½ miles west of Butler, nine miles east of Auburn, and 2 miles west of Newville, on the Hicksville - Auburn road, at the H. W. Krabill farm, on

Wednesday, Feb. 8, '22,

Commencing at 10:00 o'clock,
the following property:

6—Head of Horses—6

Bay horse, 6 yr. old, weight 1500 lbs; Roan horse, 5 yrs. old, weight 1450 lbs.; Bay horse, 3 years old, weight 1050 lbs.; Gray horse, 8 yr. old, weight 1450 lbs.; Brown mare, 8 years old, weight 1450 lbs.; Bay herse, 8 years old, weight 1100 lbs.

3—Head of Cattle—3

Cow, 8 yrs. old, giving good flow of milk; Heifer, 1 year old; Heifer, 9 months old.

60-Head Chickens-60

A Studebaker automobile, seven passenger, in good running order.

Farm Machinery, etc.

J. I. Case corn planter; Turnbull wagon; 8-foot Moline grain binder; Keystone hay loader; Corn King manure spreader; International disc harrow; 16-ft hay rack; J. I. Case riding plow; Oliver walking plow; Gale walking plow; Spring-tooth harrow; Spike tooth harrow; Ohio cultivator; International cultivator; Walking cultivator; Double-shovel plow; Disc harrow; Turnbull grain box; 3 h.p. gasoline engine; Buss saw outfit; Pump jack; set double work harness, and set single buggy harness.

Terms—8 months; 8%; 4% discount for cash.

Warm lunch served on grounds.

M. H. Storer, Ray E. Inlow.

Garmen Hallett, Auctioneer.
W. G. Erick, Clerk.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate.

Cause No. [illegible]

Notice is Hereby Given to all persons interested in the estate of Charles Kaeller, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 6th day of March, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness my name, this 18th day of January, 1922.

Clarence Hull,
Administrator.
Atkinson, Endicott
& Husselman,
Attorneys.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Cause No. 2412.

Notice is Hereby Given to all persons interested in the estate of Frederick J. Keller, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 30th day of January, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 29th day of December, 1921.

Frank R. Bowman,
Administrator.
Atkinson, Endicott
& Husselman,
Attorneys.

Administrator's Sale of Personal Property.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Administrator with the will annexed, of the estate of Joseph B. Hailey, deceased, will offer for sale at public out-cry, at the late residence of said deceased, on West Main street, in the town of Saint Joe, DeKalb county, Indiana, on Saturday, the twenty-eighth day of January, 1922, the personal property of said estate, consisting of Ford automobile, 1 cart, wheel-barrow, grindstone, pipe cutter, clamp and dies, work-bench, wrench, adz, bar, oil tank and oil, 50 feet lawn hose, hammers, tools and tool chest, hand-saws, square, braces and bits, saw-sets, planes, whetstones, levels, trowls, wrenches, chisels, screw-drivers, files, drills and bits, pipe vise, vise, 20-ft. ladder, and many other articles.

Sale to begin at 1 o'clock p. m.

Terms of Sale—Sums of five dollars and under, cash; sums over five dollars, a credit of nine months will be given purchaser, the purchaser executing his note with good security, waiving benefit of valuation and appraisement laws, without interest if paid when due, and attorny fees.

Melvin T. Bishop,
Administrator.

EXPANSION SALE
At BISHOP-McBRIDE COMPANY, Auburn, Indiana
Begins Saturday, JANUARY 21st—Ends Saturday, JANUARY 28th
[illegible]

JANUARY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI — ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, JAN. 26, 1922 — NO. 4

—WHY—
PAY HIGH PRICES?

When you can buy

Hart/Schaffner & Marx Suits at	$26.25
Club Clothes at	$10 to 18.75
Overcoats at	$10 to 25.00
Heavy Cotton Underwear (the suit) at	$1.15
Heavy Cotton Sweaters, with collar at	95c
Solid Leather Shoes at	$2.45
Heavy Blue Work Shirts at	65c
Sheep Skin Coats at	$6.00

All our Winter Clothing and Underwear at 1-4 OFF

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Keep Warm! Buy only the Highest Grade COAL for the least money.

Our Hocking Valley COAL speaks for itself. Ask those who have used it.

Our Buffalo White Ash needs no introduction; none better mined in West Virginia.

Our Chestnut Hard Coal as good as money will buy.

We have a nice supply of all Coals on hand and always several cars in transit.

Place your orders and they will have prompt attention as soon as the cars arrive, if you want coal off cars, if not we make quick deliveries from our bins.

Tankage--Cotton Seed Meal--Oil Meal--Bran and Middlings--Armour's Hog and Stock Feeds.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept. — Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us, glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

In Trouble? ALWAYS Re[illegible] [illegible] it is easier to keep out of trouble than it is to get out, once you are in. Have you made a bad investment?

Are you in financial trouble?

Come right in and tell us about it. We will do our best to help you. But the really wise investors come to us before they get into trouble.

We are handling financial deals every day. That's our business. We [illegible] to come and confer about them.

All our banking facilities are at your disposal. [illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Accidentally Shot Himself

Grover Curie accidentally shot himself through the calf of his left leg Saturday night. After having finished cleaning a 32-calibre revolver he replaced the cylinder which was filled, and just as it clicked in place the piece discharged. The only way he can account for it is that the revolver being of the hammerless kind was just partly cocked and springing the cylinder in place released the firing pin which had stuck, thus discharging the load.

While the accident caused a very painful wound, Mr. Curie feels thankful that none of their small children were near at the time. The wound is only in the muscles and he may not be laid up very long.

Called to Lima, Ohio

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Badman, north of town, were called to Lima, Ohio, last week, by the death of the latter's brother, John D. Mull, and his brother, Charley Badman.

These two persons passed away within a couple of days of each other. Mr. and Mrs. Badman have each lost a sister and two brothers within the past eighteen months.

Their sons Rex and Harry drove to Lima, Monday, to bring them home. Chas. Badman was known in this vicinity having been here with his brother for quite a while.

W. C. T. U. Program

The W. T. C. U convenes at the home of Mrs. Lora Leighty, Friday, Jan. 27th, for the first meeting of the new year. Topic, "Sabbath Observance."

Song.
Devotion ..... Mrs. C. O. Johnson
Reading—"Supreme Court Law on Sunday Rest. Mrs. Alice Gee
Reading—Commercialized Amusements versus The Fourth Commandment ..... Jennie Sechler
Song.
Motion Picture Standards .... Ada Bassett
Business ... Reports ... Benediction

The programs for the year 1922 are being printed this week.

Local H. S. Wins Over Spencerville

Last night at the Widney Opera House a most exciting game of basket ball was played in which the Spencerville [illegible] lost to the local team [illegible] of 8 points. The final score [illegible] 18 to 26.

The visitors started the game off with a spurt of [illegible] signified that the home boys were going to get [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

Ice Is Harvested

[illegible] proceeded to fill his ice house with ice for his years use.

Monday the ice was much better, for the cold snap from Saturday until Monday had added a couple of inches to its thickness. Tuesday it was still better and by noon his building was filled.

Mr. Brown, the restaurant man, then obtained the old ice house on the lot of the Central Grocery, and using the same force Mr. Buckingham employed, went ahead to put up enough ice for his use this coming summer.

Brown considering this quite an opportunity and advantage for last summer he had no little difficulty and inconvenience in obtaining his supply of ice.

Anyone else expecting to put up ice had better get busy for this cold spell may not last long.

3rd No., of H. S. Lecture Course.

The third number of the High School lecture course, a concert rendered by the Sterling Male Quartette, on last Thursday evening, was unusually good in spite of the fact that one of the members of the company was absent on account of the death of a brother, who was killed in the recent noted tragedy of Burmingham, Ala.

The singing, instrumental music, and readings, which composed the program, interested the audience immensely. The next number on the course will be held in Feb., the date to be announced later.

Dick White Dead.

Sherman "Dick" White, of Big Rapids, Mich., died at the home of his sister, Mrs. Mary Jane Silberg, of Spencerville, Tuesday noon from kidney trouble, which has troubled him for a long time.

He came here about six weeks ago for a visit and soon after took quite sick and has borne much suffering since until death came to relieve him. He has a wife to leave behind besides his relatives and friends.

Funeral was held at the home of Mary Jane Silberg, north of Spencerville, at 1:00 o'clock, Thursday, and burial in the Riverside cemetery at St. Joe.

Farmers' Meeting

Concord township bureau met [illegible] night in the school [illegible] County [illegible] was present and gave a [illegible] talk on farm bureau work. County Agent [illegible] of [illegible]

What God Says

[illegible]

St. Joe Garage
Boost St. Joe

United States 30x3 1-2 Non-Skid. - - - $10.90

If your motor is using too much Gasoline and Oil, let us tell you the remedy. We have added to our equipment a new Foster-Johnson Reamer, and Dannie can do the work.

Alcohol-Chains-Lenses-Bulbs

We invite you to use our Free Air and Battery Service.

We will take care of your trouble. Call Day or Night.

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 95.

NOTICE

The GRAY Bus Line is not in service for a period of a few days, being laid off for alterations.

Our patrons, however, are being taken care of in touring cars, until further notice.

The GRAY Line.
The Name that stands for Stability

6 per ct.
Money To Lend on Farms

LOANS to be secured by First Mortgage for not to exceed [illegible] of the present value of land alone excluding improvements.

LOANS to more than 40% of land value at 7%

Call at our office for complete information about our conditions and terms, which are attractive.

The STRAUS BROTHERS COMPANY
LIGONIER, INDIANA

Christian Church Notes

The Loyal Boys and Girls class will meet at the home of Miss Beatrice Lawson, Friday night at 7 o'clock.

A new class has been organized with a membership of about fourteen, [illegible] is H. C. [illegible]

The Loyal Boys and Girls class was reported but ten points behind the [illegible] Every [illegible] and [illegible] the International attendance [illegible]

[illegible] Brown entertained the [illegible] Thursday afternoon. [illegible] and two guests [illegible] persons were [illegible] [illegible]

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $3000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years,
$12.50 a month for five years.
$6.25 a month for ten years,

If Permanently and Totaly Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of [illegible], [illegible] on this policy will cease and the Company will pay you [illegible] a month as long as you live, and at your death [illegible] will be paid to your beneficiary.

A. R. [illegible], St. Joe, Ind.

The GREEN
PEA
PIRATES
By PETER B. KYNE
Author of
"Webster—Man's Man,"
"The Valley of the Giants,"
Etc.
Picturized by
A. Weil
COPYRIGHT, BY PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER X—Continued.

—11—

"There's one thing more that we mustn't neglect," warned Mr. Gibney before the meeting broke up. "We've got to run this little vessel into some dog-hole where there's a nice beach and smooth water, and change her name. I notice that her old name Reina Maria is screwed into her bows and across her stern in raised gilt letters, contrary to law and custom. We'll snip 'em off, sandpaper every spot where there's a letter, and repaint it; after which we'll rig up a stagin' over her bow and stern, and cut her new name, 'Maggie II,' right into her plankin'. Nobody'll ever suspect her name's been changed. I notice that the official letters and numbers cut into her main beam is F-C-P—9957. I'll change the F to E, and the C to O, and the P to R. A handy man with a wood chisel can do lots of things. He can change those nines to eights, the five to a six, and the seven to a nine. I've seen it done before. Then we'll rig a foretopmast and a spinnaker boom on her, and bend a fisherman's staysail. Nothing like it when you're sailing a little off the wind. Scraggs, you have the papers of the old Maggie, and we all have our licenses regular enough. Dig up the old papers, Scraggsy, and I'll doctor 'em up to fit the Maggie II. As for our armament, we'll dismount the guns and stow 'em away in the hold until we get down on the Colombian coast, and while we're lying in Panama repairing the holes where my shots went through her, and puttin' new planks in her decks where the old plankin' has been scored by shrapnel, those paraqueets will think we're as peaceful as chipmunks. Better look over your supplies, McGuffey, and see if there's any paint aboard. I'd just as lief give the old girl a different dress before we drop anchor in Panama."

"Gib," said Captain Scraggs, earnestly, "I'll keel-haul and skull-drag the man that says you ain't got a great head."

"By the lord," supplemented McGuffey, "you have."

The commodore smiled and tapped his frontal bone with his forefinger. "Imagination, my lads, imagination," he said, and reached for the last of the punch.

Exactly three weeks from the date of the naval battle which took place off the Coronado islands, and whereby Mr. Gibney became commodore and managing owner of the erstwhile Mexican coast patrol schooner Reina Maria, that vessel sailed out of the harbor of Panama completely rejuvenated. Not a scar on her shapely lines gave evidence of the sanguinary engagement through which she had passed.

Mr. Gibney had her painted a creamy white with a dark blue waterline. She had had her bottom cleaned and scraped and the copper sheathing overhauled and patched up. Her sails had been overhauled, inspected, and repaired wherever necessary, and in order to be on the safe side, Mr. Gibney, upon motion duly made by him and seconded by McGuffey (to whom the seconding of the Gibney motions had developed into a habit), purchased an extra suit of new sails. The engines were overhauled by the faithful McGuffey and a large store of distillate stored in the hold. Captain Scraggs, with his old-time aversion to expense, made a motion (which was seconded by McGuffey before he had taken time to consider its import) providing for the abolition of the office of chief engineer while the Maggie II was under sail, at which time the chief ex-officio was to hold himself under the orders of the commodore and be transferred to the deck department if necessary. Mr. Gibney approved the measure and it went into effect. Only on entering or leaving a port, or in case of chase by an enemy, were the engines to be used, and McGuffey was warned to be extremely saving of his distillate.

Mr. Gibney made a splendid job of changing the vessel's name, and as she chugged lazily out of Panama bay and lifted to the long ground-swell of the Pacific, it is doubtful if even her late Mexican commander would have recognized her. She was [illegible]

[illegible] during Mr. Gibney's absence on his filibustering trip the Colombian revolutionists had risen and struck their blow. After the fashion of a hotheaded and impetuous people, they had entered the contest absolutely untrained. As a result, the war had lasted just two weeks, the leaders had been incontinently shot, and the white-winged dove of peace had once more spread her pinions along the borders of the Gold coast.

Commodore Gibney was disgusted beyond measure, and at a special meeting of the syndicate, called in the cabin of the Maggie II that same evening, it was finally decided that they should embark on an indefinite trading cruise in the South seas, or until such time as it seemed their services must be required to free a downtrodden people from a tyrant's yoke.

Captain Scraggs and McGuffey had never been in the South seas, but they had heard that a fair margin of profit was to be wrung from trade in copra, shell, coconuts, and kindred tropical products. They so expressed themselves. To this suggestion, however, Commodore Gibney waved a deprecating paw.

"Legitimate tradin', boys," he said, "is a nice, sane, healthy business, but the profits is slow. What we want is quick profits, and while it ain't set down in black and white, one of the principal objects of this syndicate is to lead a life of wild adventure. In tradin', there ain't no adventure to speak of. We ought to do a little black-birdin', or raid some of those Jap pearl fisheries off the northern coast of Formosa."

"But we'll be chased by real gunboats if we do that," objected Captain Scraggs. "Those Jap gunboats shoot to kill. Can't you think of somethin' else, Gib?"

"Well," said Mr. Gibney, "for a starter, I can. Suppose we just head straight for Kandavu island in the Fijis, and scheme around for a cargo of black coral? It's only worth about fifty dollars a pound. Kandavu lays somewhere in latitude 22 south, longitude 178 west, and when I was there last it was fair reekin' with cannibal savages. But there's tons of black coral there, and nobody's ever been able to sneak in and get away with it. Every time a boat used to land at Kandavu, the native niggers would have a white-man stew down on the beach, and it's got so that skippers give the island a wide berth."

"Gib, my dear boy," chattered Captain Scraggs, "I'm a man of peace and I—I——"

"Scraggsy, old stick-in-the-mud," said Mr. Gibney, laying an affectionate hand on the skipper's shoulder, "you're nothin' of the sort. You're a fightin' tarantula, and nobody knows it better'n Adelbert P. Gibney. I've seen you in action, Scraggsy. Remember that. It's all right for you to say you're a man of peace and advise me and McGuffey to keep out of the track of trouble, but we know that away down low you're goin' around lookin' for blood, and that once you're up agin the enemy, you never bat an eyelash. Eh, McGuffey?"

McGuffey nodded; whereupon, Captain Scraggs, making but a poor effort to conceal the pleasure which Mr. Gibney's rude compliment afforded him, turned to the rail, glanced seaward, and started to walk away to attend to some trifling detail connected with the boat falls.

"All right, Gib, my lad," he said, affecting to resign himself to the inevitable, "have it your own way. You're a commodore and I'm only a plain captain, but I'll follow wherever you lead. I'll go as far as the next man and we'll glom that black coral if we have to slaughter every man, woman and child on the island. Only, when we're sizzlin' in a pot don't you up and say I never warned you, because I did. How d'ye propose intimidatin' the natives, Gib?"

"Scraggsy," said the commodore solemnly, "we've waged a private war agin a friendly nation, [illegible]

[illegible]

"Like playin' post-office," was McGuffey's comment.

The commodore smiled. "I thought you boys would see it that way. Now tomorrow I'm going ashore to buy three divin' outfits and lay in a big stock of provisions for the voyage. In the meantime, while the carpenters are gettin' the ship into shape, we'll leave the first mate in charge while we go ashore and have a good time. I've seen worse places than Panama."

As a result of this conference Mr. Gibney's suggestions were acted upon, and they contrived to make their brief stay in Panama very agreeable. They inspected the work on the canal, marveled at the stupendous engineering in the Culebra Cut, drank a little, gambled a little. McGuffey whipped a bartender. He was ordered arrested, and six spiggoty little policemen, sent to arrest him, were also thrashed. The reserves were called out and a riot ensued. Mr. Gibney, following the motto of the syndicate, i. e.,

> All for one and one for all—
> United we stand, divided we fall,

mixed in the conflict and presently found himself in durance vile. Captain Scraggs, luckily, forgot the motto and escaped, but inasmuch as he was on hand next morning to pay a fine of thirty pesos levied against each of the culprits, he was instantly forgiven. Mr. Gibney vowed that if a United States cruiser didn't happen to be lying in the roadstead, he would have shelled the town in retaliation.

But eventually the days passed, and the Maggie II, well found and ready for sea, shook out her sails to a fair breeze and sailed away for Kandavu. She kept well to the southwest until she struck the southeast trades, when she swung around on her course, headed straight for her destination. It was a pleasant voyage, devoid of incident, and the health of all hands was excellent. Mr. Gibney took daily observations, and was particular to make daily entries in his log when he, Scraggs, and McGuffey were not playing cribbage, a game of which all three were passionately fond.

On the afternoon of the twenty-ninth day after leaving Panama the lookout reported land. Through his glasses Mr. Gibney made out a cluster of tall palms at the southerly end of the island, and as the schooner held lazily on her course he could discern the white breakers foaming over the reefs that guarded the entrance to the harbor.

"That's Kandavu, all right," announced the commodore. "I was there in '89 with Bill McGinty in the schooner Dashin' Wave. There's the entrance to the harbor, with the Esk reefs to the north and the Pearl reefs to the south. The channel's very narrow—not more than three cables, if it's that, but there's plenty of water and a good muddy bottom that'll hold. McGuffey, lad, better run below and tune up your engines. It's too dangerous a passage on an ebb-tide for a sailin' vessel, so we'll run in under the power. Scraggsy, stand by and when I give the word have your crew shorten sail."

Within a few minutes a long white streak opened up in the wake of the schooner, announcing that McGuffey's engines were doing duty, and a nice breeze springing up two points aft the beam, the Maggie heeled over and fairly flew through the water. Mr. Gibney smiled an ecstatic smile as he took the wheel and guided the schooner through the channel. He rounded her up in twelve fathoms, and within five minutes every stitch of canvas was clewed down hard and fast. The sun was setting as they dropped anchor, and Mr. Gibney had lanterns may be that these precautions ain't necessary, but when I was here twenty years ago it was all the rage to kill a white man and eat him. Maybe times has changed, but the harbor and the coast looks just as wild and lonely as they ever did, and I didn't see no sign of missionary when we dropped hook last night. So don't take no chances."

[illegible]

All hands promised that they would take extreme care, to the end that their precious persons might remain intact, so Mr. Gibney finished his cup of coffee at a gulp and went on deck.

The Kandavu aborigines were not long in putting in an appearance. Even as Mr. Gibney came on deck half a dozen canoes shot out from the beach. Mr. Gibney immediately piped all hands on deck, armed them, and nonchalantly awaited the approach of what might or might not turn out to be an enemy.

When the flotilla was within pistol shot of the schooner Mr. Gibney stepped to the rail and motioned them back. Immediately the natives ceased paddling, and a wild-looking fellow stood up in the forward canoe. After the manner of his kind he had all his life soused his head in lime-water when making his savage toilette, and as a result his shock of black hair stood on end and bulged out like a crowded hayrick. He was naked, of course, and in his hand he held a huge war club.

"That feller'd eat a rattlesnake," gasped Captain Scraggs. "Shoot him, Gib, if he bats an eye."

"Shut up," said the commodore, a trifle testily; "that's the number-one nigger, who does the talkin'. Hello, boy."

"Hello, cap'n," replied the savage, and salaamed gravely. "You likee buy chicken, buy pig? Maybe you say come 'board, I talk. Me very good friend white master."

"Bless my sweet-scented soul!" gasped the commodore. "What won't them missionaries do next? Cut off my ears if this nigger ain't civilized!" He beckoned to the canoe and it shot alongside, and its brown crew came climbing over the rail of the Maggie II.

Mr. Gibney met the spokesman at the rail and they rubbed noses very solemnly, after the manner of salutation in Kandavu. Captain Scraggs bustled forward, full of importance.

"Interduce me, Gib," he said amiably, and then, while Mr. Gibney favored him with a sour glance, Captain Scraggs stuck out his hand and shook briskly with the native.

"Happy to make your acquaintance," he said. "Scraggs is my name, sir. Shake hands with McGuffey, our chief engineer. Hope you left all the folks at home well. What'd you say your name was?"

The islander hadn't said his name was anything, but he grinned now and replied that it was Tabu-Tabu.

"Well, my bucko," muttered McGuffey, who always drew the color line, "I'm glad to hear that. But you ain't the only thing that's taboo around this packet. You can jest check that war club with the first mate, pendin' our better acquaintance. Hand it over, you black beggar, or I'll hit you a swat in the ear that'll hurt all your relations. And, hereafter, Scraggsy, just keep your nigger friends to yourself. I ain't waxin' effusive over this savage, and it's agin my principles ever to shake hands with a colored man. This chap's a d—d ugly customer, and you take my word for it."

Tabu-Tabu grinned again, walked to the rail, and tossed his war club down into the canoe.

"Me good missionary boy," he said, rather humbly.

"McGuffey, my dear boy," protested Captain Scraggs, "don't be so doggone rude. You might hurt this poor lad's feelin's. Of course he's only a simple native nigger, but even a dawg has feelin's. You——"

"A-r-r-rh!" snarled McGuffey.

"You two belay talkin' and snappin' at each other," commanded Mr. Gibney, "an' leave all bargainin' to me. This boy is all right and we'll get along first rate if you two just haul ship and do somethin' useful besides buttin' in on your superior officer. Come along, Tabu-Tabu. Makee little eat down in cabin. You talkee captain."

"Gib, my dear boy," sputtered Captain Scraggs, bursting with curiosity, following the commodore's reappearance on deck, "whatever's in the wind?"

"Money—fortune," said Mr. Gibney, solemnly.

McGuffey edged up and eyed the commodore seriously. "Sure there ain't a little agitin' mixed up in it?" he asked.

"Not a bit of it," replied Mr. Gibney. [illegible] Kandavu as if you [illegible] This Tabu kid is sort of [illegible] to the king, with a [illegible] at court. The crew of a [illegible] stole him for a [illegible] when he was a kid, and [illegible] him," said Mr. Gibney. "He'll see that we get all the trade we can lug away. We're the first vessel that's touched here in two years, and they have a thunderin' lot of stuff on hand. Tabu's gone ashore to talk the king into doin' business with us. If he consents, we'll have him and Tabu-Tabu and three or four of the subchiefs aboard for dinner, or else he'll invite us ashore for a big feed, and we'll have to go."

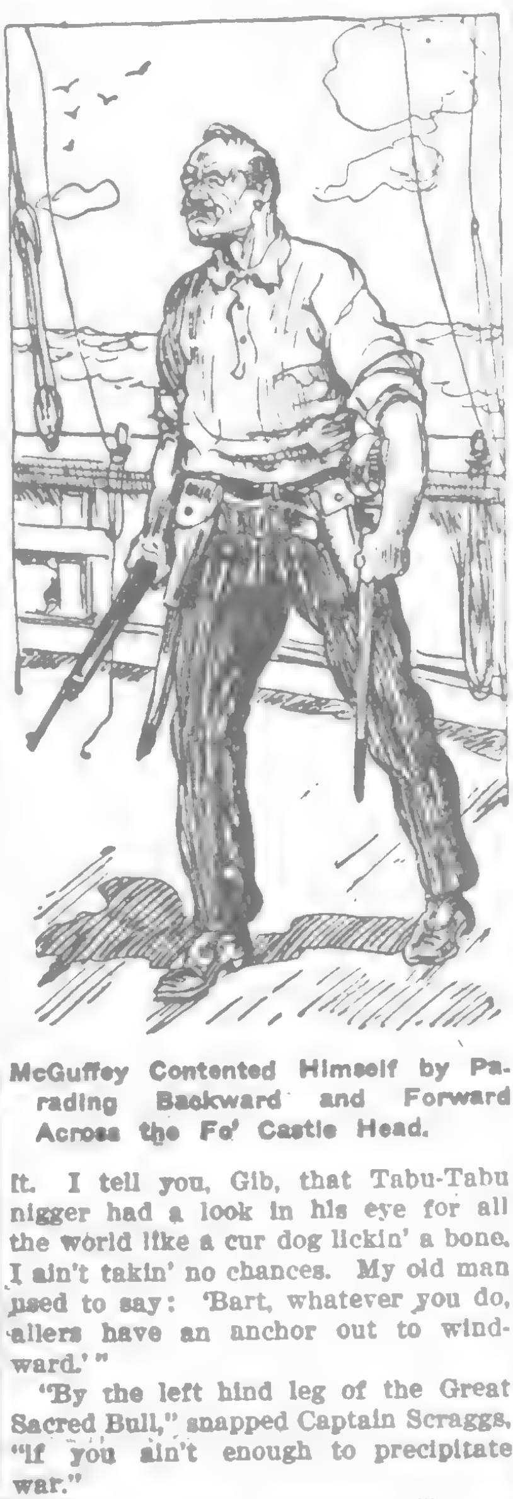
"Supposin' the king don't care to have any truck with us?" inquired McGuffey, anxiously.

"In that case, Mac," replied the commodore with a smile, "we'll just naturally shell him out of house and home."

"Well, then," said McGuffey, "let's get the guns ready. Somethin' tells me these people ain't to be trusted, and I'm tellin' you right now, Gib, I won't sleep well tonight unless them two quarter gatlings and the Maxim-Vickers rapid-fire guns is mounted and ready for business."

"All right, Mac," replied Mr. Gibney, in the tone one uses when humoring a baby. "Set 'em up if it'll make you feel more cheerful. Still, I don't see why you want to go actin' so foolish over nothin'."

"Well, Gib," replied the engineer, "I may be crazy, but I ain't no fool, and if there's a dead whale around the ship, I can come pretty near smellin'



McGuffey Contented Himself by Parading Backward and Forward Across the Fo' Castle Head.

it. I tell you, Gib, that Tabu-Tabu nigger had a look in his eye for all the world like a cur dog lickin' a bone. I ain't takin' no chances. My old man used to say: 'Bart, whatever you do, allers have an anchor out to windward.'"

"By the left hind leg of the Great Sacred Bull," snapped Captain Scraggs, "if you ain't enough to precipitate war."

"War," replied McGuffey, "is my long suit—particularly war with native niggers. I just naturally crave to punch the ear of anything darker than a Portugee. Remember how I cleaned out the police department of Panama?"

"Mount the guns if you're goin' to, Mac. If not, for the love of the Lord don't be demoralizin' the crew with this talk of war. All I ask is that you set the guns after I've finished my business here with Tabu-Tabu. He's been on a war vessel, and knows what guns are, and if he saw you mountin' them it might break up our friendly relations. He'll think we don't trust him."

"Well, we don't," replied McGuffey, doggedly.

"Well, we do," snapped Captain Scraggs.

There is always something connected with the use of that pronoun of kings which eats like a canker at the heart of men of the McGuffey breed. That officer now spat on the deck, in defiance of the rules of his superior officers, and glared at Captain Scraggs.

"Speak for yourself, you miserable little wart," he roared. "If you include me on that cannibals' visitin' list, and go to contradictin' me agin, I'll——"

"Mac," interrupted Mr. Gibney, angrily, "control yourself. It's agin the rules to have rag-chewin' and back-bitin' on the Maggie II. Remember our motto: 'All for one and one for all'——"

"Here comes that sneakin' bushy-headed murderer back to the vessel," interrupted McGuffey. "I wonder what devilment he's up to now."

Mr. McGuffey was partly right, for in a few minutes Tabu-Tabu came alongside, climbed aboard, and [illegible] Mr. Gibney, fearful of McGuffey's inability to control his antipathy [illegible] beckoned Captain Scraggs and Tabu-Tabu to follow him down [illegible] Meanwhile, McGuffey [illegible] himself by parading backward and forward across the fo'castle [illegible]

MOTHERS AND DAUGHTERS

Read This Letter from Mrs. W. S. Hughes

Greenville, Del.—"I was under the impression that my eldest daughter had some internal trouble as ever since the first time her sickness appeared she had to go to bed and even had to quit school once for a week. I always take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound myself so I gave it to her and she has received great benefit from it. You can use this letter for a testimonial if you wish, as I cannot say too much about what your medicine has done for me and for my daughter."—Mrs. WM. S. HUGHES, Greenville, Delaware.

Mothers and oftentimes grandmothers have taken and have learned the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So they recommend the medicine to others.

The best test of any medicine is what it has done for others. For nearly fifty years we have published letters from mothers, daughters, and women, young and old, recommending the Vegetable Compound. They know what it did for them and are glad to tell others. In your own neighborhood are women who know of its great value.

Mothers—daughters, why not try it?

BETTER DEAD

Life is a burden when the body is racked with pain. Everything worries and the victim becomes despondent and downhearted. To bring back the sunshine take

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

The National Remedy of Holland for over 200 years; it is an enemy of all pains resulting from kidney, liver and uric acid troubles. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

CURES COLDS IN 24 HOURS
WORLD'S STANDARD
AT ALL DRUG STORES
CASCARA QUININE
HILL'S BROMIDE
FOR TWO GENERATIONS
CURES LA GRIPPE IN 3 DAYS
DETROIT. W. H. HILL CO. MICHIGAN.

A Move for Peace.

Knicker—"How would you reduce undersea tonnage?" Bocker—"Tell how much the fish really weigh."

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Just So.

"Now, there's talk of another egg trust."

"Another yolk."

No Friend of Humanity.

He who employs excellent faculties and good wit to humor and please men in their vices, is the greatest enemy of mankind.

DON'T FEAR ASPIRIN IF IT IS GENUINE

Look for Name "Bayer" on Tablets, Then You Need Never Worry.

To get genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" you must look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on each package and on each tablet.

The "Bayer Cross" means true, world-famous Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, and proved safe by millions for Colds, Headache, Earache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for Pain in general. Proper and safe directions are in each unbroken "Bayer" package.—Advertisement.

And the [illegible] Where Was He?

[illegible]

JANUARY

★111 one eleven cigarettes

Three Friendly Gentlemen

Made to Suit Your Taste

We have for years catered to the cigarette smokers of America.

With this experience, we created One Eleven—"111"—"Made to Suit Your Taste," of the world's three greatest cigarette tobaccos—

1—TURKISH, for Aroma
1—VIRGINIA, for Mildness
1—BURLEY, for Mellowness

We named them One Eleven—the address of our home office. We are proud of their success.

Have You Tried Them?

15¢ for 20

Guaranteed by The American Tobacco Co.
★111 FIFTH AVE. NEW YORK CITY

Shining-up Days Are Here, Use
E-Z STOVE POLISH
Its Shine Is Wonderful
Save the coupons for kitchen aprons. Martin & Martin, Mfrs., Chicago

MAD OVER A MERE TRIFLE

Surely, Any Man Who Has Seen Service Will Agree That Corporal Was Unreasonable.

A couple of recruits of the latest vintage were discussing the pros and cons of service life at Paris Island.

"It ain't so bad," confided one. "Most of it is all right, but it's that blasted relief from guard duty that gets me."

"Relief from guard duty!" ejaculated the other. "Man, you're cuckoo! There's nothing to being relieved from guard duty. It's being on guard duty that's tough."

"No," maintained the first, "it's the relief. Why, the other day they put me on guard duty for two hours, and it wasn't bad at all just standing around and watching the rest of 'em drilling and knowing that I didn't have to do it myself, but when the time for relief came the corporal came up and gave me the devil."

"What for?"

"Nothing—nothing at all. I just couldn't remember where I left my rifle."—The Leatherneck.

To Be, There Is No Question.

When an eligible man proposes to a maid of thirty summers there isn't apt to be any Hamlet's soliloquy business.—Boston Transcript.

It is true "the Lord will provide." He provides the world. Your methods must be your own.

HE HAD SOMETHING COMING

Five-Year-Old Got Drawing He Wanted, but Retribution Was Stalking Behind Him.

R. S. Grable, a St. Louis newspaper man, celebrated his fiftieth birthday in a unique way. He gave a birthday party and invited 75 children.

Cobb Shinn was in St. Louis at the time, and was asked to help entertain the youngsters by drawing pictures on the large paper hats which were given to each child. He would draw whatever the children asked for, and the subjects were many and various.

Finally a five-year-old handed up his hat and said:

"I want a pig."

The drawing was started, when a brother about a year older, spoke up:

"Aw, he don't want a picture of a pig"—and the argument was on.

When the drawing was finished, the five-year-old stuck out his chest and boasted:

"See, I got what I wanted!"

"Yes, but just wait until I get you home and see if I don't ruin you," replied the brother.

Pleasant Life.

"A fortunate man. Always sure to see people at their best." "Who is that?" "The photographer."

The woman who weds a bad egg need not expect to enjoy the matrimonial yolk.

Many ambitious men and women live only half a life—and don't know it

No person whose nerves are continually irritated, whose appetite and digestion are disturbed, or who doesn't sleep well has more than half his normal chance for success in life. For weakness, debility, anemia and general lack of tone are a serious handicap to anybody.

Those who drink tea or coffee are often sufferers from these conditions. Tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance which has a decided stimulant action on the nerves and brain cells.

Each cup of strong coffee contains about as large a dose of caffeine as your doctor would ordinarily give to a very sick person.

You can readily see that the effect of giving this stimulant regularly to a well person might finally have a tendency to make him sick.

If you want to avoid a very common cause of irritation and enjoy restful sleep, good digestion, and all the feeling of vigor and robust endurance that comes to healthy, normal people, quit tea and coffee, and drink Postum, instead. It is a rich, coffee-like cereal beverage—perfectly delicious!

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, aromatic beverage and see how much better you'll feel—able to do more without becoming fatigued—as thousands have discovered for themselves.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) [illegible]

Postum for Health
"There's a Reason"

Highway Improvement

SCIENTIFIC ROAD BUILDING

Test Being Made in Illinois to Determine What Pavement Can Be Used on Highways.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Some time within the next few months a new road 2½ miles long is to be broken up in what is probably the most extensive study of road service ever undertaken in the United States. The road is located in Illinois, about 12 miles southwest of Springfield, and parallels the Wabsh railroad. In the test road there are no curves. The grades vary from zero to four-tenths of 1 per cent, with an average grade of one-tenth of 1 per cent, the maximum and minimum grades extending over very short distances. The subgrade soil is uniformly a brown silt loam, except for two small stretches where it more nearly approaches gumbo.

There are seven general types of paving in the road, the idea being to have represented the chief materials used in road making, so that engineers may study the effect of known and measured traffic of varying degree upon each kind of road. The seven types are:

Portland cement concrete.

Three and four inch lug brick constructed monolithic and with a Portland cement concrete base.

Three and four inch lug brick constructed semimonolithic and with a Portland cement concrete base.

Three and four inch bituminous filled lug and lugless brick on Portland cement concrete base.

Three and four inch bituminous filled lug and lugless brick on macadam base.

Asphaltic concrete with and without binder course on macadam base.

The road, known as the Bates experimental road, was constructed by the division of highways, Illinois department of public works and buildings, in co-operation with the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. Actual work was begun on the road in June, 1920, and it was finished some time ago. Since its completion the state and federal government engineers, by numerous daily observations, have been measuring the effect of heat, cold, moisture, and other elements upon its surface and on the subgrade. These observations have been taken on 63 sections, and much information has been obtained which will be valuable in building roads in the future.

Instrument Set Up for Obtaining Information on Deflection of Pavement, Showing Method of Loading Ames Dial and Apparatus for Recording Pressure Cells.

This information is of the utmost value. Knowing the conditions of traffic which are to be met, it will afford a means by which a proper paving can be selected to meet those conditions. It may lead to the saving of millions of dollars each year by preventing the construction of pavements that are found to be incapable of resisting modern traffic.

Why some types of pavement fail and others hold up will be largely determined by the test. Why a roadway cracks also is being studied. At different times each section is observed and all cracks noted. In addition, a considerable number of cracks have been measured by a micrometer.

PAVE ROADS IN WASHINGTON

Number of Miles to Be Improved Totals 323, at an Expenditure of $6,630,000.

Road paving and improvement contracts have been let in Washington to the number of 60 since March [illegible], according to James Allen, state highway commissioner. The contracts including an added 10 per cent for engineering and incidentals, total $6,630,000. The number of miles [illegible]ed is 323.58.

Employ Ex[illegible]

Fifty per [illegible]

[illegible]

True Detective Stories

ALLAN PINKERTON'S RECORD CASE

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THERE was no response to the impatient knocking on the heavy doors of the Adams Express company's building near the end of the Columbus (O.) Union station, one night in the middle of winter. There stood the train, with the usual bustle and clamor preparatory to departure, but the express clerk and his assistant had not made their appearance.

Bang! Bang! Bang!

This time John Grossman, the express messenger, knocked harder than ever, for it was beginning to dawn upon him that something must be wrong. A moment later he tried the knob of the door. To his amazement it turned easily and he stepped forward into utter darkness, stumbling over boxes and packages until he reached the gas jet in the center of the room. Papers and parcels lay in wild confusion all over the floor, the door of the safe stood open and the clerk and his assistant were lying in one corner, in a sort of stupor.

It was evident that the two men had been chloroformed—the sickening odor of the drug still pervaded the room—and that the company had been robbed, in spite of the fact that hundreds of people had been just outside the building all during the evening. These circumstances, coupled with the fact that $40,000 was missing from the safe, were all that Allan Pinkerton had to work upon when he reached Columbus the following morning.

The details of the robbery were obtained directly from John Barker, the express clerk.

According to Barker, he and his assistant were stretched out on two cots, as usual about ten o'clock in the evening, taking a nap before going on duty on the train which was due to leave Columbus shortly after midnight.

"I was awakened by what appeared to be a muffled pounding or pushing at the door," Barker continued.

"Was the door locked?" inquired Pinkerton.

"It was—and bolted. I didn't pay any attention to the matter because, while we did have $72,000 in the safe—$32,000 of it in revenue stamps—we had often guarded a good deal more, and I thought the noise had been made by some one who had stumbled against the door in the darkness. Then, before I got really awake, I heard the bolt give, and the next thing I knew some one had pinioned my arms, and I caught a whiff of something which I recognized as chloroform. I struggled, but it was no use. When I came to, Grossman, the messenger, was bending over me, and the whole place looked like a cyclone had struck it. The $40,000 in cash was gone, but they had overlooked or deliberately left the $32,000 in stamps."

Pinkerton made no comment at the time, but continued his examination of the room where the robbery had taken place. A careful scrutiny of the door revealed two interesting facts: The bolt had been bent, as if it had been in place when the door was forced, but it was bent far more than was necessary to secure an entrance to the room, and there were no scratches or other signs of violence on the outside of the door.

All the evidence appeared to point to the fact that the job had been handled from the inside, and Pinkerton immediately ordered the arrest of Barker and his assistant. The two men protested their innocence.

Upon looking into Barker's antecedents, Pinkerton found that the express clerk had a brother living in Chicago, a man who was reputed to be quite wealthy and whom Barker stated would willingly go on his bail if permitted to do so. But the Chicago branch of the Pinkerton agency reported that the other Barker was not only not wealthy, but was prominent in the life of the underworld.

"Where was this man on the night of the Columbus robbery?" Allan Pinkerton inquired by wire.

"Unable to obtain definite information," came back the reply; "but he was not in Chicago."

"Trail him closely, and arrest him the instant he attempts to leave the city," were the telegraphic directions which followed.

Early the following morning, less than [illegible] after the crime in Columbus, [illegible] Barker was arrested en route to [illegible], and $[illegible] was found in the [illegible] of his valise. Later after having been given a taste of the [illegible] "science cure," he [illegible] the other [illegible]

AFTER EVERY MEAL

WRIGLEY'S P-K

This new sugar-coated gum delights young and old.

It "melts in your mouth" and the gum in the center remains to aid digestion, brighten teeth and soothe mouth and throat.

There are the other WRIGLEY friends to choose from, too:

WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT
WRIGLEY'S DOUBLEMINT CHEWING GUM
WRIGLEY'S JUICY FRUIT CHEWING GUM
THE FLAVOR LASTS
C28

LOOKING AT IT PRACTICALLY

Really There Is Something Worth While in the Assertion Made by Little Johnny.

The physician was telling little Johnny's mother about a railroad accident in which a teamster had both legs crushed from the effects of which he died the same day. Little Johnny, about six years old, stood by, greatly interested in the accident.

"Thay, doctor," he broke in with his eyes wide open, "wuth the horth hurt?"

"I don't know," said the doctor, "I was more interested in the man, and didn't think of the horse."

"Well, I don't care," Johnny said, taking the doctor's reply as an implied rebuke, "but a live horth ith bettr'n a dead man, anyway."

Completed.

Teacher—We borrowed our numerals from the Arabs, our calendar from the Romans, and our banking from the Italians. Can anyone think of any other examples?

Willie Willis—Our lawnmower from the Smiths, our snow shovel from the Jones' and our baby carriage from the Bumps.—Judge.

This is the glad season of the year when the plumber gets square with the iceman.

The Surprise.

"A passel of the neighbors gave Jurd Lopp a birthday surprise party tuther night," related a resident of the Straddle Ridge, Ark., region. "Somehow the word sorter punctuated around to Jurd that they were coming, and on the morning of his birthday he woke up with the grip. He got worse during the day and by night he was feeling meaner than thunder and plumb hostile. He loaded up his old shotgun and 'lowed, b'gud, if anybody surprised him they'd run theirselves ragged getting away from there."

"Well, did they sure-enough surprise him?"

"You bet! They found out how he felt about it, and didn't come."—Kansas City Star.

Worse and Worse.

A correspondent sends us a few more of those crazy smiles from recent novels such as we printed a little while ago. They are:

"Laughter dropped from her lips like a dead bird."

"Her breath sounded in his ear like gouts of blood."—Boston Transcript.

Jud Tunkins Remarks.

Jud Tunkins says very few people honestly believe all the world loves a lover excepting the slightly prejudiced young lady in the case.

You wouldn't put on hobbles to run a foot race

Then why load up on handicaps for the day's work?

A good deal of food, unwisely chosen, does weigh the body down and clog the digestion, and dull the brain.

Why put on the hobbles?

Grape-Nuts is a breakfast or lunchtime dish for those who want food efficiency, and mind and body efficiency.

Grape-Nuts satisfies and nourishes. It delights the taste. It is ready to serve whenever you are ready to eat. And it digests easily, quickly and completely—leaving no handicap of heaviness and drowsiness.

Grape-Nuts is the food for health and action.

"There's a Reason"

[illegible]

JANUARY

29

no tax now
LUDEN'S
menthol
cough drops
price 5¢ straight
GIVE QUICK RELIEF
Famous Yellow Package—
Sold the world over

J. Maxwell Life
Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.
7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA
Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

Mother Dear!
One of the Greatest
Songs Published
—Write to—
JOE D. MILLER
Box 224
St. Joe, DeKalb co.,
Indiana
who will write the author
for songs with music.
Price 30c each.
Which includes a
a fine picture of a young lady on the front page.

--Farmers--
and others when you
attend the
Short Course Meeting
in St. Joe be sure to call at the
News Office
for your Job Printing,
if you need cards, etc.

CHIROPRACTIC
The Pinch hitter in the
HEALTH GAME
Acute and Chronic diseases,
Men, Women and Children
restored to health by Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments.
ERNEST O. FULLER, D. C.
CHIROPRACTOR
Auburn, Ind., Phone 285 W.
Waterloo, Ind., Phone 211.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township
Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

To Start Campaign in DeKalb County For Nurses

Miss Mary Gladwin will Spend First Week of Feb. here in an Effort to Interest Young Women in Work

[illegible] campaign for the enrollment of [illegible] nurses will [illegible] in Auburn [illegible] [illegible] interest the citizens in train nurse work.

Miss Gladwin is at present conducting the drive for student nurses in the city of Indianapolis. She has headed the campaigns for student nurses in several of the large cities of the country, and is thoroughly familiar with the work.

Miss Gladwin is a native of Akron, Ohio, and is a graduate of Buchtel college and the Boston School of Nursing. In June, 1921, she received the degree of LL. D. from her alma mater for Red Cross services in the war. She served in the American Red Cross in the Spanish-American war, the Japanese-Russian war, and the World war, and was in charge of the nurses in Dayton, Ohio, at the time of the big flood in 1913.

In Sept., 1914, Miss Gladwin was sent to Belgrade, Serbia, in charge of the Red Cross unit. She was there when the Austrians captured the city in December of the same year and stayed until it was retaken by the Serbians.

During the spring and summer of 1915, she nursed hundreds of cases of typhus in the epidemic which hit the city. She remained in the hospital for a month after the Germans and Austrians had taken the city in the winter of 1915. She then came out of Serbia through Budapest, Vienna and France, returning to America for a short rest in 1916.

Late in the same year she returned by way of the Mediterranean sea to Salonica, where she did relief work until her return to America in January, 1919.

Miss Gladwin was in charge of thousands of refugees, Greek and poor Moslem's in Salonica.

Four governments have honored Miss Gladwin with medals. From Serbia she holds the St. Sava, the Royal Red Cross, and the Cross of Charity medals. Russia has honored her with the Ribbon of St. Anne, with medal, the presentation being made by the last general of the Russian division on the Macedonian front. The Order of the Golden Crown, the Royal Red Cross, and several other medals have been presented to her.

Date will be stated later when Miss Gladwin will speak in DeKalb county.

—‡—‡—‡—

COBURN'S CORNERS

Colds and Lagrippe are prevalent in this community.

Leo O. Tustison of Defiance, Ohio, was the guest of his parents from Friday until Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Abner Trostel were guests at dinner in the Will Hamilton home, Friday.

Mrs. Charles Tustison is but slightly improved from a nervous attack of several days duration.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Inlow and children were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Monte Storer recently.

Mrs. Alice Hart is at Hicksville for an indefinite stay in the Adrian Hart home.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hart were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kel Hart, Sunday.

Clyde Hart and daughter, Miss Berniece attended the teachers' meeting in Auburn, Saturday.

Will Price of Denver, Colorado, a former resident of the neighborhood, was a visitor at [illegible] here, Sunday.

[illegible]

the cold weather and handicap of much sickness. All report an enjoyable time and a sumptuous feed.

Mrs. Saxe Hadsell very hospitably entertained the R. H. C. last Thursday in an all-day meeting. Two guests were present—Mrs. H. M. Widney and Mrs. Will Price. The discussion of household helps was of unusual interest. Announcement of next meeting at Mrs. Fred Hart's—responses to roll call and collection; Indiana cities and Lincoln narratives.

—‡—‡—‡—

NEWVILLE

The revival meeting at the U. B. church closed recently with an addition of 8 members to the church.

Miss Hilda Tarney is ill and was unable to attend school last week at Butler.

Rev. and Mrs. Hubartt have a little daughter who is quite ill, requiring the attention of a physician.

Mrs. Kinney and daughter, Mrs. Robbie Wyatt, are both numbered among the sick.

Mrs. Minnie Welker is now employed in the Manford Smith home at Hicksville.

Frank Snellbaker and wife have returned from Swanten, Ohio, where they have spent the fore part of the winter.

The W. C. T. U. will meet with Mrs. Jennie Gengnagle on Feb. 7, in an all day meeting. A pot-luck dinner will be served by the members. Visitors are always welcome.

It had been announced that revival meetings would begin at the Christian church, Sunday, but on account of the sickness of the pastor, Rev. Denham, of Edgerton, the meetings have been postponed.

—‡—‡—‡—

COLETOWN

E. M. Kain and wife visited last Sunday at Homer Dooley home.

J. D. Brown and daughter, Jessie, were Auburn callers Monday.

Mrs. Ada Mann visited Sunday with her daughter, Mrs. Anna Hursey, near Concord.

Rex R. B. [illegible] entertained [illegible] at the J. W. [illegible]

[illegible]

Tanlac will overcome that run down debilitated condition and make you feel just like your old self again. Sheffer Drug Store.

Mrs. Lora Leighty spent from Wednesday until Friday evening in the home of Wm. Gugerli and wife at Hurshtown.

Ft. Wayne where he lived until he moved to Waterloo. We know that Hi is a first class druggist and that he will conduct a good business in his new locality.

Fred Leighty and wife and Miss Grace Leighty called on Mr. and Mrs. Ross Lee, of Western Union Telegraph Co. gang at Garrett, who were camped at St. Joe a short time ago.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Lawson and daughter, and Mrs. Virginia Lawson, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Lindley and children.

"I have taken eight bottles of Tanlac and have actually gained 40 pounds in weight and feel better and stronger than I have felt before in twenty-five years," says O. H. Mahaffy, of Nashville, Tenn. B. S. Sheffer.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Leighty, the Misses Martha Moon, Grace Leighty and Martha Miser, and the Messrs. William Quance, Elgin Curie, Allen Coburn, Robt. Johnson and Harcourt Miser were royally entertained by Mr. S. S. Widney at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Sechler, Friday evening, to an informal party. Luncheon, pop corn balls and homemade candy was served.

—‡—‡—‡—

St. Joe High School Notes.

Freshmen

The Freshmen Manual Training class is starting on Mechanical Drawing work.

The Freshmen are busily at work preparing their contributions for the Annual.

Sophomore

The Domestic Science class is studying the art of making pastry. They have been producing ideal samples of cake, pie, etc. They hope this will prove useful in future life. "The way to a man's heart is through his stomach."

The music class is now [illegible] music. We [illegible] some Beethovens and [illegible] in our midst.

The Junior [illegible]

[illegible]

The "Love-Mind."

When Love thy mind has made correct,
Thy thoughts shall lead thee circumspect;
For then thy reason Spirit guides,
Thy will and His shall coincide

The soul whose mind is taught by Love
Has only thoughts born of above
The thoughts that have their birth in flesh
Are driven out by Virtues' lash.

The mind of Christ is Spirit Love
We need not reason when we love;
For perfect love gives daily proof
Of Him who speaks eternal Truth

When Love is mind we need no
"brain,"
Man's technique proves to be but vain;
When Love fulfills the Law and more,
It gives us wings of Light to soar

And when we rise on wings of Light
The Truth we find arrayed in Might.
'Tis Truth that frees the mind to find
It's union with the mind sublime

—Joseph Homer Ulmer.

—‡—‡—‡—

IMPOSED SENTENCE BY WIRE

This Is Probably the Most Novel Use to Which the Telephone Has Been Put.

The telephone has long been recognized as a valuable aid in fighting forest fires, but it remained for Stanley C. Walters, chief forest ranger of the district surrounding Hood River, Ore., to put it to a novel use recently when he discovered two campers who had left fires burning, contrary to forest fire regulations.

Calling up Justice Onthank of Hood River, the ranger gave his "testimony" over the telephone, the justice listened to the campers while they entered pleas of guilty and imposed fines of $25 each upon the unfortunate nature lovers, authorizing Walters to collect the money on behalf of the court.

"I didn't even get the names of the offenders," Mr. Onthank is quoted as saying. "Mr. Walters promised to provide me with the data when he comes down to pay over the fines, in order that I may keep my docket records straight."

Home After 260 Years.

For the first time since they marched south from the border under General Monck, 260 years ago, the Coldstream guards officially revisited Coldstream when the old colors of the Second battalion were presented to the town which gives the regiment its name.

The color party consisted of ten officers and forty-six other ranks, including part of the regimental band. They wore full dress, with scarlet tunics and bearskins. The King's Own Scottish Borderers, as the territorial regiment provided a strong contingent to welcome the guards to Coldstream and line the route.

At an impressive ceremony in the market square, within a few yards of the house in which General Monck had his headquarters, the colors were formally handed over by Lieut. Gen. [illegible] colonel of the [illegible] were accepted on behalf of the town by [illegible] headed by the [illegible] band, the colors were [illegible] to the parish church.

[illegible] Put Out of Order

[illegible]

An Open Letter to the readers of "Daddy's Evening Fairy Tales"

from
Mary Graham Bonner

Also author of "Daddy's Bedtime Animal Stories," "Daddy's Bedtime Fairy Stories," "Daddy's Bedtime Bird Stories," "Daddy's Bedtime Outdoor Stories."

Dear Girls and Boys and Grown-Ups and In-Betweens:

When the holiday season comes along authors become a little bolder, you know, and creep out from their caves or away from their pencils and pens and typewriters and try to catch glimpses of some of their readers. It's not possible for them to see them all. But I have seen many of my readers with my eyes shut, and at this time I love to shut my eyes and think of those readers. I can see them in small rooms and big rooms, rooms where there are good old warm lamps by which to read and rooms where electric lights shine down on the pages, or gas light. And I see them reading of that best of all friends—Santa Claus—and of his dog, Boy of the North, and of Santa's magic telescope, through which he can see the smiles of his many friends when they open their gifts on Christmas morning. I see them reading of old Mr. Giant and Witty Witch and the Fairy Wondrous Secrets and the Dreamland King, of Gypsy Haze and Midgie Moon and the good Old Man himself and Mr. Sun. And as I can see them reading in all these rooms all over the country I wish I knew them all. For I'd like to tell them that they are really the creators of these stories! It is because they like them, because they encourage and enthuse and because I please them that I want to go on and on making them better and better all the time.

When one is not welcome in a house it makes one feel ill at ease and embarrassed; but when one is cordially greeted one feels so happy and is at one's best. So it is I give you of my best, my very best, because you have given me of your cordiality, which I feel even when I can neither see it nor hear it.

So at this time when a New Year is beginning, I could not resist writing to all of you—every one of you!

To the boys and girls I have a few little secrets to tell. Your same friends will be coming to you in the year to come. Porky Pig and Brother Bacon are far too greedy, as you and I know, to keep from shoving their little snouts right straight into a story every so often! And there will be new friends, too—lots of new ones, but the old ones will not be lost. They'll all be on hand, grunting, cackling, crowing, quacking, squealing, shrieking, chattering, whispering, smiling and dancing and hoping that you'll like them all as they like you!

And Margaret M. Fifer will be making them look their best in her wonderful pictures. Porky Pig grunted to me in confidence not long ago (but he told me I might tell this to his real friends) that no pictures had ever done him justice until Margaret M. Fifer came along—and that that was true of all his family. And the Fairies—well, the Fairies say she's just like a Fairyland artist—almost too good to be true!

But my letter must come to an end!

With loving holiday greetings and the happiest of happy New Years to every friend of "Daddy's Evening Fairy Tales," girls and boys and grown-ups and in-betweens, I remain your very sincere story-companion,

MARY GRAHAM BONNER.

—‡—‡—‡—

Rebuilding Ypres.

[illegible]

Our Great Half Price SALE
Closes Next Saturday Night
Added merchandise, taken from lines that have become broken in sizes during the past two weeks of intense selling, have been added to our already large assortment of seasonable merchandise and during the next three days you can take your choice at just—
Half Price
Wayne and Harrison Sts. PATTERSON - FLETCHER CO. The Store That Does Things

JANUARY

Importance -OF- Little Things

Dimes built the Woolworth Bldg., highest in New York.

Nickels built the Wrigley Building highest in Chicago.

Put your nickels and dimes in a savings account in

The Farmers' and Merchants' STATE BANK

and soon they will grow into dollars—hundreds and thousands of dollars.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

H O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
Auburn

FIRE INSURANCE NOTARY PUBLIC

FOR OVER 40 YEARS

[illegible]

[illegible]

SPENCERVILLE

Envelopes at the News office.

Try a NEWS want ad—It Pays.

Miss Nina Crone of Loudenville, Ohio, is visiting her cousin, Miss Arminta Steward.

The small baby of Mr. and Mrs. Carol Watt is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Mrs. Edward Billman, who has been confined to her bed with pneumonia, is again able to be around.

Mrs. Wm. Reed spent Monday the guest of Mrs. Cora Steward and daughter Arminta.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Reasoner spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Gothrop of Ft. Wayne.

Miss Thelma McNabb was a last Sunday guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John McNabb.

Miss Cleo Bowser, a junior of the High school, has been very ill but is slowly improving.

Gale Bowser, Audrey Wasson and Elizabeth Thorne were last Sunday guests at John Timmerman home.

Mrs. Anna Headley and children of Hicksville were Sunday [illegible] of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. [illegible] family.

Mrs. Lizzie [illegible] of [illegible] visited her mother, Mrs. [illegible] Rummel, and sister and husband, Mr and Mrs. Harvey [illegible].

Mrs. Jennings Horn, who is at the Lutheran hospital [illegible] underwent an operation on [illegible]. She is still seriously ill.

The teachers of the High school and grades, [illegible] teachers' convention at Auburn, Saturday.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Two teams of the grammar and intermediate rooms, the black and red, played the preliminary game of basket ball on Saturday night. The score was 17-14 in favor of blacks.

Mr. Thorne, who has been ill for some months at the home of his sister and husband, Rev. and Mrs. W. W Martin, of Fort Wayne, is improving rapidly at this writing.

Samuel Markle, Jerry Markle, Mrs. Kate House, were last Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman. Mr. and Mrs. Gust Hafner were Sunday evening guests of the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Rolla Moffit and daughters, the Misses Jessie and Pauline, Ray Rodasser and Paul Adams of Auburn, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baltz were last Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Baltz. The above spent Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baltz, and enjoyed a "weinnie" and marshmellow roast at the Old-Fashioned Fire-place.

—‡—‡—‡—

Obituary

Mary Jane Horn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Horn, was born October 17, 1842, in Ashland county, Ohio, and died at her home in Pleasant Lake, Ind., January 7, 1922, at the age of 79 years, two months and 21 days.

She was married to Geo. Draggoo who died and left her a widow with three children, who all survive.

Later she married Geo. Lake, to whom two children were born, one dying in infancy, leaving Dr. G. N. Lake 3 step-children, one brother, twelve grand-children and 19 great-grand children to mourn their loss.

She was a kind and loving mother and leaves a host of friends both here and at her former home in Spencerville, Ind.

She came with a letter from the Lutheran church at Spencerville, Indiana, to the United Brethren church here and was always a loyal supporter of her church.

Jennie Estella Brown, daughter of Charles and Mary Freese, was born near Spencerville, DeKalb Co., Nov. 2, 1886, and departed this life at Auburn on Jan. 19, 1922, aged 35 years, 2 months and 17 days.

On April 19, 1905, she was united in marriage to Charles Rhodes, of Spencerville. To this union were born two sons, Kenneth and Robert. On May 11, 1916 she was united in marriage to Wm. Brown, of near Spencerville, shortly after which the family moved to Auburn, where they have since resided.

She was the youngest of a family of three daughters; all of whom have now passed to the Great Beyond. Netta who was called at the tender age of 15 years, and Mrs. Florence Stafford dying in 1919 at the age of 38 years.

A bereaved husband and two sons and aged father and mother, besides a host of relatives and friends mourn her untimely departure.

Funeral services were conducted at the Spencerville Lutheran church by the Rev. A. R. [illegible], and burial at the [illegible] cemetery.

—‡—‡—‡—

Unique Distinction

[illegible]

[illegible]

Ford
THE UNIVERSAL CAR.

-Attention! FORD Owners-

FORD parts, like most everything else worth while, are counterfeited. The manufacturers of these imitation parts are obviously not as interested as we are in maintaining the high standard of quality and the complete satisfaction of FORD owners. Imitation parts are manufactured to sell at the highest possible rate of profit and the grades of steel used are consequently not the same high quality, specially heat-treated alloy steels specified in FORD formulas for the mauufacture of Genuine FORD Parts.

Don't be misled--Insist upon Genuine FORD Parts made by the FORD Motor Company. By so doing you will get from 35 to 100 per ct. more wear from them, and you will pay the lowest possible cost —the same everywhere

50 per ct. of Genuine FORD parts Retail for less than 10c. each

Ask for parts Price List.

When your FORD car, truck or FORDSON Tractor needs attention, call on the following authorized FORD dealer, who is properly equipped, employs competent mechanics, and uses Genuine FORD and FORDSON parts in all repair work.

F. W. SILBERG, SPENCERVILLE, Ind.

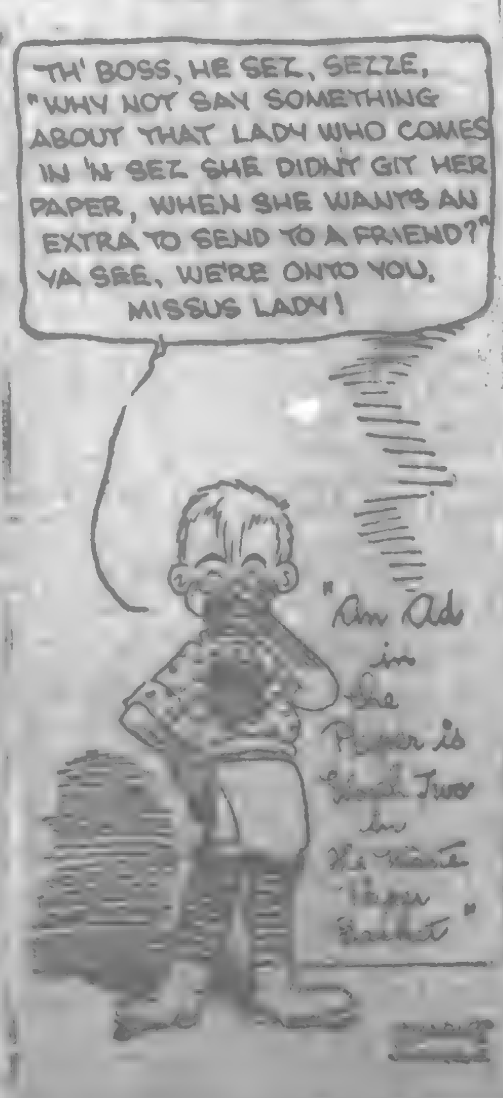
Dies from Operation

Jennie Brown, wife of William Brown, died at the Souder hospital at Auburn at 9 o'clock Thursday morning last from a complication of diseases caused from kidney trouble.

Only a week prior to her death she was taken to the hospital where an operation was performed for gall stones from which she did not rally at all. Her condition was quite serious at the time she was taken to the hospital.

The deceased was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Freese of Spencerville.

MICKIE SAYS



TH' BOSS, HE SEZ, SEZZE, "WHY NOT SAY SOMETHING ABOUT THAT LADY WHO COMES IN 'N SEZ SHE DIDN'T GIT HER PAPER, WHEN SHE WANTS AN EXTRA TO SEND TO A FRIEND?" YA SEE, WE'RE ONTO YOU, MISSUS LADY!
"An Ad in the Paper is Worth Two in the Waste Paper Basket"

Your Legal Notices

Should be sent to the

News Office

where the estate is in St. Joe and vicinity.

Don't fail to see that all the notices are published in the St. Joe News.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	74	$ 3 [illegible]
M. P	65	4.90
Lutheran	80	3 58
M. E. Spencer	78	4 [illegible]
Lutheran	58	3 43
Coburntown	52	1 75
Newville U. B.	56	3 16
Christian	94	30.00
Concord	20	. 5

The Coolidge Store

In the building formerly owned by Jack Beams we are doing a rushing business in Dry Goods, Boots, Shoes, Coats, Sheep skinned lined and other kinds Groceries, Candies, Cigars, Tobacco, Farm Produce, Eggs, Butter, Cream, Light Hardware.

SPECIAL for THE WEEK
6 Bars of Fine LAUNDRY SOAP---Regular Stock----at 25c

Watch this space for Specials next week.

D. COOLIDGE, Spencerville, Indiana.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible]

Fort Wayne, Ind.

JANUARY

LIFE OF POPE BENEDICT HAS SUDDEN ENDING

Bronchial Affection, Not Considered Serious, Developed Into Pneumonia.

NOT LONG ON PAPAL THRONE

Elevation to Head of the Church Took Place in 1914—War Which He Vainly Sought to End Affected Him Deeply.

Rome.—Pope Benedict XV is dead.

From a slight cold, which had not been regarded as anything serious, double pneumonia developed, and the physicians in attendance had given up hope for the recovery of their distinguished patient. Their bulletins had in a measure prepared the world for the sad event, which occurred early Saturday.

He had lapsed into delirium earlier in the day and failed to recognize any one at the bedside, and during the early hours of the forenoon death was expected within a few hours.

The pope was in extreme weakness and restless.

Lying with closed eyes, he murmured "Peace, peace," evidently alluding subconsciously to the great mission of the pontificate in war time.

Tragic Scene at Dawn.

Other undistinguished messages fell from his lips from time to time, but his vitality had sunk so low that he spoke in the weakest of whispers.

The day dawned upon a tragic scene at the Vatican. The papal court joined the cardinals in prayer. Outside in the piazza of St. Peter's a crowd of reverent men and women, mostly kneeling with faces heavenward, uttered their supplications for the recovery of the Holy Father.

The Late Pope Benedict XV.

The four attending physicians did all in their power to relieve his sufferings, but they could hold out no hope for ultimate recovery. The strain was telling on all. In the anteroom off the sick-chamber high prelates of the church, faces drawn with the agony of their sorrow, prayed without cessation.

Suffers Great Pain.

At 8 a. m. the Holy Father was still breathing, but was in great pain and suffering agonized contractions of the throat. A brief bulletin was issued saying:

"His holiness is weaker. The symptoms of pneumonia have extended."

By this time all hope had been abandoned and the most optimistic of the Vatican entourage had come to realize that the end was a matter of hours if not minutes.

When the pope lost consciousness late Friday afternoon the attending physicians did not hesitate in expressing their fears that death was at hand.

The pope had been sinking all day, due to inflammation of the lungs and weak heart action, but had retained consciousness. When he sank into a state of coma, after many hours of patient suffering, all preparations had been made and all pre-death ceremonies completed.

Shortly before noon the Vatican announced that the pontiff had requested the last sacraments, realizing that he was dying.

Thr[illegible]ut the afternoon he was kept [illegible] by use of oxygen and [illegible] heart stimulants. At [illegible] the four [illegible] at the pontifical bedside [illegible] these restoratives at [illegible].

[illegible] after noon Mgr. Z[illegible] [illegible] the last sacraments.

[illegible] cardinal chamberlain, assumes papal authority until a new pope is elected, assumed permanent residence at the Vatican.

Cardinal Giorgi began recitation of the prayers for the dying at 10 o'clock Friday morning. This was the official beginning of the grand penitentiary ceremonial.

At 11 o'clock official notice of the grave condition of the Holy Father was sent to the Italian government.

Cardinal Gasparri was notified as soon as it was ascertained that the condition of his holiness was critical. The cardinal, in tears, hurried to the bedside of the pontiff.

When the papal secretary of state arrived the pope was resting tranquilly and immediately requested that the last sacraments be administered. His holiness was conscious and calm as Mgr. Zampini read the ceremony. The pope then continued fully conscious, but owing to his weakened condition, only a small drop of holy water was placed on his tongue. The few cardinals gathered about the pontiff's bedside recited the Psalms in subdued tones while the ceremony lasted.

The grand penitentiary of the sacred college, surrounded by assistants, then approached the bedside and read to the pontiff the profession of faith as formulated by the Vatican and the Trent councils.

Monks Recite Formulas.

Cardinal Giorgi, after reading the profession of faith, gave to the pontiff the absolution in articulo mortis. As though to impress on every one within hearing the solemnity of the occasion, the words of the formula were pronounced slowly.

The heads of all the various religious orders in Rome then entered the sick-chamber. One by one they bestowed on the pope the indulgences of the various orders which each represented. Throughout the ceremony a profound silence pervaded the room, which was broken only by the low voice of each aged monk as he recited the formula for his order.

Following the ceremony the procession slowly returned to the Basilica of St. Peter. Only the domestic prelates, whose duty it is to assist the pontiff until his death, remained around the sick man.

Groups of nuns and monks belonging to nearly all of the religious orders having convents or monasteries in Rome gathered in the space extending from the great bronze doors of the Vatican to the top of the Scala Regia, praying for the pope.

HAD FILLED HIGH POSITIONS

Pope Benedict Prominent in Church Counsels Before His Elevation to the Papal Throne.

Pope Benedict XV rose to the supreme head of the Catholic church Sept. 6, 1914, less than six months after he was elevated to the cardinalship. He was born of noble parents at Pogli, near Genoa, Italy, Nov. 21, 1854. His father was Marquis Della Chiesa.

Educated at Capronican college and the Academy of Ecclesiastics, he was ordained to the priesthood in 1878. He was taken to Madrid, Spain, by Cardinal Rampolla, and for four years was secretary of the nunciature in Spain. In 1901 he was appointed consultor of the holy office and in 1907 Pope Pius gave him the appointment of archbishop of the see of Bologna. He was made a cardinal in May, 1914.

Pope Benedict was much affected by the horrors and sorrow of the World war and many times tried to bring about peace negotiations. Germany's violation of Belgium's neutrality filled him with great sorrow and after the sinking of the Lusitania, he telegraphed the German emperor telling his abhorrence of the deed.

Pope Benedict's first appeal for peace was issued one week after his coronation. The appeal failed to bring results, as did also his later plan for a Christmas truce. In January and in July, 1915, he again tried to bring about peace negotiations. In March, 1916, he repeated his attempts and in May of the same year suggested that America should act as conciliator between the warring nations. His note to President Wilson to this effect reached Washington when Germany and the United States were involved in a diplomatic crisis. The Vatican approved of President Wilson's peace note in 1917, but three months later the United States entered the war.

The Pope's most memorable appeal for peace was issued in his own handwriting on August 8, 1917, and asked belligerent rulers to end the struggle. During the peace conference [illegible] were issued in behalf of [illegible] tions.

Just before the conference President Wilson [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

INDIANA BREVITIES

Indianapolis.—None of the eleven counties required by the 1921 state probation law to appoint probation officers has complied fully with the law and some have not complied at all, says a report Governor McCray has received from Mrs. Carina C. Warrington, of Ft. Wayne, state probation officer. The appointment of such officers in eighty-one counties of the state is optional with the counties. Judges of circuit courts, or in Marion county the juvenile court judge, appoint the officers. Mrs. Warrington's report says she sent questionnaires to all judges, but only seventy-four replied. Of that number, twenty-three report no probation officers and twelve counties are using the county attendance officers as probation officers. This, Mrs. Warrington said, is illegal. The law requires judges to appoint probation officers in counties of 50,000 population or more. The counties may have one or more, according to certain provisions. The officers' pay ranges from $4 a day to $1,500 a year.

Elkhart.—Two men arrested at Elkhart confessed to the theft of a registered letter pouch at the New York Central station in Elkhart and $100,000 in negotiable and non-negotiable bonds was recovered, but of the rest of the loot—whatever the amount may be—not a trace has been found. The two men under arrest for the robbery are Dan Ingram, twenty-eight years old, colored, employed as a porter at the New York Central station, and George E. Scruggs, thirty years old, once employed at Elkhart as a switchman and who recently finished a sentence imposed by the federal court in Grand Rapids for stealing goods in interstate transit.

Jeffersonville.—An indication that the cost of local government is falling, with a recession in commodity prices, is seen in the reports of the 12 township trustees of Clark county, the last of which has just been filed. All reports but one show lower expenditures and in most cases revenue was considerably in excess of disbursements. It has been pointed out that tax levies were fixed on the basis of prices in September, 1920, while expenditures have been made on a steadily falling level of prices. The total revenue was $286,678.91 for township purposes, and the total expenditure was $237,851.16.

Indianapolis.—The state board of agriculture has sold for 8½ per cent above par value the $1,000,000 in bonds, which it was authorized to issue to pay the expense of construction of new buildings and the repair costs on present buildings and equipment at the state fair grounds. The state board plans to build new cattle and swine barns at the fair ground and in time construct a mechanical building. Contemplated plans call for the repair of the grand stands around the race track and a settlement of all debts of the board.

Marion.—Resolutions condemning the use of oleomargarine in the place of butter for World war veterans at the Marion National sanitarium as a slap against dairy interests, were passed at the closing session of the annual meeting in Marion of the Fourth Indiana District Farmers' association. Later, officials of the sanatorium said the best brand of oleomargarine was used and had been used in soldiers' homes everywhere for years, because it had been found more satisfactory.

Edinburg.—Four persons were killed and one seriously injured when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Pennsylvania passenger train at a crossing near here. The dead are: Mrs. Alcinda Joslen, seventy-four years old; Dorothy Joslen, two years old; Miss Opal Joslen, twenty-two years old; Emma Joslen, ten years old. John Joslen, fifty-four years old, driver of the car, was severely cut and bruised.

Indianapolis.—By June 1 Indianapolis will have a large fireproof garage and automobile storage building within a few blocks of the congested business district, with a capacity of 700 automobiles and constructed in anticipation of providing the city with a suitable structure for expositions, according to plans announced by business men interested in the project.

Indianapolis.—Indianapolis and Marion county banks and trust companies under state control are in sounder condition now as a whole than at any time in the last six years, Charles W. [illegible], state bank commissioner, said.

[illegible] of an armory [illegible] National Guard was provided for in a contract [illegible]

[illegible]—The Madison county [illegible] for paving [illegible] approximately [illegible]

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—Indiana leads all the states of the Union, and is 60 per cent ahead of the next highest state, in its game warden service, at an expense in the last year of $68,528.81, director of the state department of conservation said in a letter sent to all game wardens of the state, in which the service of 1920-1921 is reviewed. Indiana leads the states in the number of convictions obtained by each warden, with an average of 55.4 cases. Connecticut is next, with an average of 32.8 cases of conviction for each warden. New York is third with a record of 31. Eleven of the states have an average of convictions by each warden under twenty, and the others show fewer than ten. In the proportion of convictions to arrests, New York has the highest rank with a record of 96 per cent. Indiana ranks sixth, with a record of 93 per cent.

Indianapolis.—A total of $1,623,785.83 has been distributed to the 92 counties of the state as the semi-annual apportionment of the state school fund, the deputy state superintendent of public instruction, announced. The fund is distributed in January and June of each year. The money was distributed on the basis of $2.036 for each of the 797,537 school children in Indiana. Marion county received the largest amount, the total being $168,880.09. The smallest amount of the money went to Ohio county, which received $1,860.90. The state school fund is derived from the state school tax, interest on the common school fund, unclaimed fees, manuscript fees and show licenses. The largest source of income is the state school tax, which this year provided $1,619,817.63.

Indianapolis.—Standards for interurban car headlights are prescribed in an order issued by the public service commission under authority granted by a law approved at the 1921 session of the legislature. The order will become effective in 30 days. The standard prescribed by the order is as follows: "A headlight which shall afford sufficient illumination to enable a person in the vestibule of said interurban car who possesses the usual visual capacity required of motormen to see in a clear atmosphere a dark object as large as a man of average size standing erect at a distance of at least 600 feet ahead of and in front of such headlight."

Richmond.—The cost of constructing gravel roads in Wayne county is $218 a mile, while the average cost of constructing roads of this kind in Indiana is $1,200 a mile, says a report of the county highway superintendent. To aid in the economical construction and maintenance of the road system the county has its own gravel digging machinery, and last year cut 20,000 yards at an average cost of 15 cents a yard. The report shows $31,537 in the road fund, which means that the road levy will be cut from 14 cents to 9 cents in 1922, county officials said. Last year the department spent $94,017.

Indianapolis.—The state charter board granted three bank charters, authorized a new institution to take over an old one and declined to grant one petition for charter. The charters went to the Peoples' Loan and Trust company, of Lafayette, with a capital of $50,000; Oolitic State bank, Oolitic, capital $25,000, and Leiters Ford State bank, Leiters Ford, capital $25,000. The Gosport State bank will take over the business of the Gosport Banking company. A charter was refused B. E. Conwell, of Logansport, for a proposed $10,000 capital state bank.

Indianapolis.—Indiana public school teachers who have been receiving disability pensions for a number of years are to receive their payments henceforth according to the rate provided in the teachers' retirement fund law passed by the general asembly of 1921, and not according to the act of 1915 of the general assembly, as a result of an opinion submitted by U. S. Lesh, attorney-general of the state, to Senator Estes Duncan, secretary of the state teachers' retirement fund.

Lafayette.—At the regular monthly meeting of the Indiana Soldiers' home, which closed at Lafayette, reports submitted by the commandant showed a membership at the present time of 1,071, [illegible] men and 773 women. Applications for 28 more were received by the board and acted on favorably. The applicants included Civil war veterans more than ninety years old and Spanish war veterans in their forties.

Vincennes.—The American coal mine, No. 1, which is near Bicknell, broke a world's record for hoisting coal in one day recently when [illegible] tons were brought to the top of the ground in [illegible] hours. [illegible] is said to be one of the best equipped coal mines in the country.

[illegible]—Fifty persons are [illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR JANUARY 29

ELIJAH IN NABOTH'S VINEYARD

LESSON TEXT.—I Kings 21:1-29.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Be sure your sin will find you out.—Num. 32:23.

REFERENCE MATERIAL.—Lev. 25:23-28; Amos 3:4-10; Micah 3:1-4.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—The Sin of Selfishness.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—Elijah Denounces a Selfish King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—Jehovah's Champion Feared.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—Respecting the Rights of Others.

I. Ahab Covets Naboth's Vineyard (vv. 1-6).

1. Location of the vineyard (v. 1). It joined Ahab's summer home in Jezreel. He wanted to transform it into an herb garden and thus round out his property.

2. Ahab's proposal (v. 2). He offered to buy it outright for money, or give in exchange a better one. Ahab's wish for it was a selfish whim. He did not at all need it.

3. Naboth's refusal (v. 3). It was for a twofold reason: (1) regard for the paternal estate; (2) obedience to God's law (Lev. 25:23-28, cf. Num. 36; 7-9). His refusal was on conscientious grounds. A king, even, has no right to ask of his subject that he violate his conscience.

4. Ahab's behavior (v. 4). He came into his house, lay down upon his bed and refused to eat. The king was sulking like a spoiled child. This is a picture of what a fool even a king, may make of himself. Let us learn that "godliness with contentment is great gain" (I Tim. 6:6).

5. Jezebel's inquiry (vv. 5, 6). Apparently she came with the sympathy of a wife, inquiring as to the cause of his behavior. But when she knew of Naboth's refusal she was violently angry. That a humble subject should refuse to conform to the desire of the king was an insult which she would not brook.

II. Ahab Taking Possession of Naboth's Vineyard (vv. 7-16).

1. Jezebel's treachery (vv. 7-15). (1) Her contemptuous question (v. 7). She taunted him for his cowardice. The fear of being thought weak moves a weak man quickly. (2) Her exhortation to Ahab (v. 7). "Arise, eat bread, and let thine heart be merry." A wife has great influence over her husband. Many a man has been saved from discouragement and therefore defeat, through his wife's influence. Unfortunately in this case the influence of the wife is bad. (3) Her promise to Ahab (v. 7). "I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth." She took matters into her own hands. If Ahab was too weak to be king, she would rule for him. (4) Her wicked scheme (vv. 8-15). She wrote letters in Ahab's name, sealed them with his seal and sent them to the elders and nobles who were dwelling in the city with Naboth, asking them to proclaim a fast, as though some great calamity had befallen the nation, and place Naboth before the public as the one who was the cause of it all. They were instructed to find two false witnesses who would testify against Naboth. The charge they brought according to the wicked device of Jezebel was blasphemy against God and the king. Naboth's only offense was his refusal to sell his estate, contrary to the law of God. When they had stoned to death Naboth and his sons (II Kings 9:26), they came and told Jezebel, who in turn came to Ahab with the information and directed him to take possession of the vineyard.

2. Ahab goes to Jezreel to take possession of Naboth's vineyard (v. 16). Ahab had not killed Naboth, but he eagerly accepted the prize without inquiring as to how it was secured.

III. Elijah in Naboth's Vineyard Announcing Doom Upon Ahab (vv. 17-26).

1. Doom upon Ahab (vv. 17-22). Elijah told him the dogs should lick his blood in the place where they licked the blood of Naboth. Evil was to fall upon Ahab and his posterity, even wipe out his seed and name. He was guilty of conspiracy, murder, robbery, perjury, blasphemy, though he had been silent and inactive. God held him responsible for Jezebel's acts, for he was king and head of the nation. The day of reckoning did come to Ahab (I Kings 22:38).

2. Doom upon Jezebel (vv. 23-26). She likewise should be eaten by dogs [illegible]

[illegible]

Pat. Process LOOM
Lloyd Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture
Ask Your Local Dealer
Write Now for 32-Page Illustrated Booklet
The Lloyd Manufacturing Company (Heywood-Wakefield Co.) Dept E
Menominee, Michigan (16)

A Full Year's Wear In Every Pair of Nu-Way & EXCELLO SUSPENDERS
Guarantee Label Attached to Every Pair
"The Strech is in the Spring"
The Nu-Way Line
Nu-Way and Excello Suspenders—75¢
Men's Garters—50¢
Ladies-Misses-Children's Hose Supporters 25¢
Ladies' Corset "Sew-On" Hose Supporters 25¢
Ask Your Dealer
If he hasn't them—Send direct. Accept no Substitute. Look for Name on Buckles Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co. Manufacturers Adrian, Mich.

ABSORBINE
Reduces Strained, Puffy Ankles, Lymphangitis, Poll Evil, Fistula, Boils, Swellings; Stops Lameness and allays pain. Heals Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Boot Chafes. It is a
Safe Antiseptic and Germicide
Does not blister or remove the hair and horse can be worked. Pleasant to use. $2.50 a bottle, delivered. Describe your case for special instructions and Book 5 A free.
W. F. Young, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

Liggett & Myers
KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as "that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

[illegible] COUGH
KEMP'S BALSAM
Pleasant to take Children like it

PISO'S
SAFE AND SANE for Coughs & Colds
This syrup is different from all others. Quick relief. No opiates. 35c everywhere

Skin Troubles Soothed With Cuticura
Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

Edmonds' Poultry Account Book, recently devised, copyright, easily kept, shows results any time. Receipts & Disbursements distribution 16 columns. Egg & Inventory Records. Summary, Income, Bal. Sheets. $1 prepaid. Edmonds, Cert. Pub. Accountant, Darien, Conn.

Factory Agents—All or spare time. Make $50 to $100 per week selling Custom Built Raincoats. Selling outfit and sample raincoat free. The Custom Mfg. Co., Ashland, O.

Start in Business for Yourself; make candy at home, spare hours. Big profit. Particulars free. Elmer's Confectionery, Watertown, N.Y.

SELL STEEL SAFETY PINS. PROFIT 100%. Send 2c stamp for samples. STEEL SAFETY PIN COMPANY, YONKERS, NEW YORK.

CANDY—ALL KINDS
Learn how to make it in your own home. My book teaches you how. My recipes are absolutely reliable, failure is impossible. For particulars write MARGERY A. RICKER, Dept. 3, Lynbrook, Long Island, N. Y.

WANTED—Ladies and gentlemen, sell hosiery to friends, acquaintances and others; part or full time. Good income. Unexcelled Hosiery Mills, 396 Broadway, New York.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 4—1922.

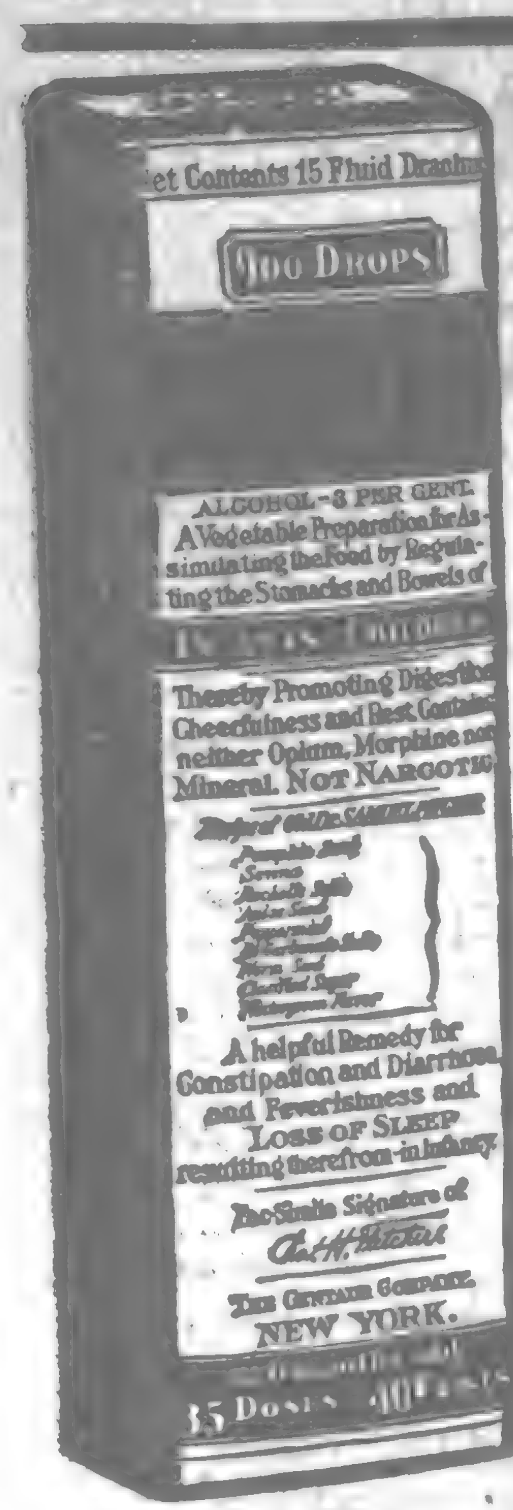
Apropos.

"Where are you going?" "Hunting." "For what?" "Money. I'm on the court."—Judge.

Women who cheapen themselves [illegible] that men do not care for [illegible]

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
[illegible]
BELL-ANS
[illegible]

JANUARY



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachms
900 DROPS
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom—in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES 40 CENTS

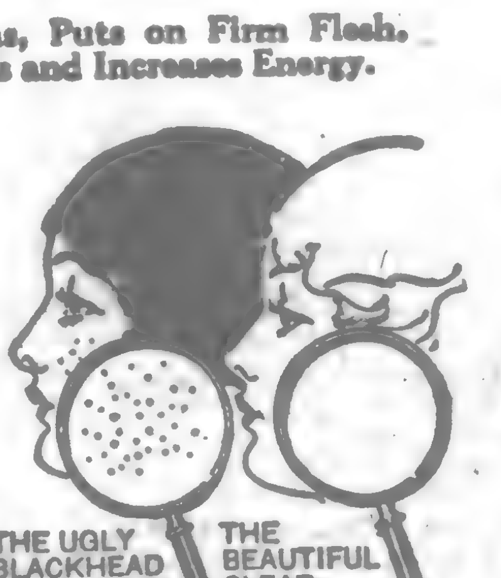
Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria
Always Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Yeast Vitamon Complexion Secret

Banishes Skin Eruptions, Puts on Firm Flesh. Strengthens the Nerves and Increases Energy.

If you want to quickly clear your skin and complexion, put some firm, healthy flesh on your bones, increase your nerve force and power and look and feel 100 per cent. better, simply try taking two of Mastin's tiny VITAMON tablets with each meal and watch results. Mastin's VITAMON Tablets contain highly concentrated yeast-vitamines as well as the two other still more important vitamines (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C) and are now being used by thousands as a tonic restorative and amazing complexion secret. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish like magic, the complexion becomes fresh and beautiful, the cheeks rosy, the lips red, the eyes bright. So rapid and amazing are the results that success is absolutely guaranteed or the trial costs you nothing. The source of a glowing, radiant complexion is from inside. You can't expect external applications to benefit a condition due to internal conditions. Get some vitamines into your system! Be sure to remember the name—Mastin's VI-TA-MON. You can get Mastin's VITAMON Tablets at all good druggists.



THE UGLY BLACKHEAD UNHEALTHY SKIN
THE BEAUTIFUL CLEAR VITAMON SKIN

Of What Use Are Beautiful Features If You Have An Ugly Skin, Flabby Flesh, Hollow Cheeks, Or a Scrawny Neck? Mastin's VITAMON Tablets Are Positively Guaranteed To Give You New Health, Beauty And A More Rounded Face and Figure, or Money Back.

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS
THE ORIGINAL AND GENUINE
YEAST VITAMINE TABLET

Are Positively Guaranteed to Put On Firm Flesh, Clear the Skin and Increase Energy When Taken With Every Meal or Money Back

if it isn't MASTIN'S it isn't VITAMON

An Arabian proverb puts it this way: "He who has health has hope, and he who has hope has everything."

To Have a Clear Sweet Skin

Touch pimples, redness, roughness or itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, then bathe with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Rinse, dry gently and dust on a little Cuticura Talcum to leave a fascinating fragrance on skin. Everywhere 25c each.—Advertisement.

There are no breakers ahead of the man who is already broke.

People who never get down to business seldom get up in the world.

At the Track.

"Where do I cash this winning ticket?"

"Follow those men."

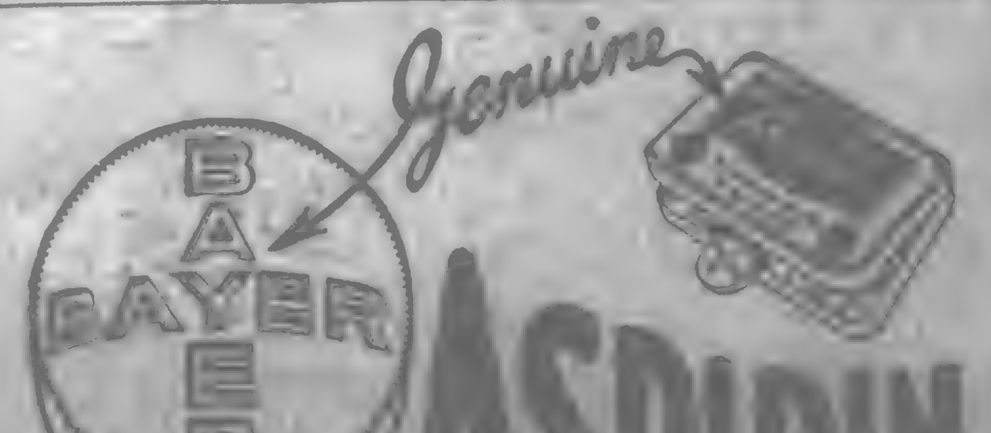
"Which men?"

"The ones who are smiling."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Children's handkerchiefs often look hopeless when they come to the laundry. Wash with good soap, rinse in water blued with Red Cross Ball Blue. —Advertisement.

Lots of people live all their lives without learning how to live.

The wisest of us can learn.



ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

[illegible]

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognized Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

VIII.

INCOMPETENTS ARE KEPT

The annual turnover in the government service is something almost incredible. No business corporation, however strongly established, could long endure the heavy annual drain on its resources. Hundreds of men leave the government service daily; and new, untrained people have to be taken on and taught to do the work. This costs money, as every employer knows.

The resignations from the government service are chiefly from the supervisory and most highly paid positions and from the very lowest grades. The men at the top, if they have any initiative or ability or ambition to make a name for themselves, are offered private employment at double or treble or more what the government can pay them. The people in the lowest grades leave for private employment when opportunity affords because in too many instances they actually cannot keep body and soul together on their government pay.

It is the people in the middle class who stay on the longest. The whole constant process makes for a steady deterioration in the quality of the government service and tends to retain the mediocre in public employment.

The civil service commission, through which the great bulk of government employees are brought into the service, is acutely aware of this condition. Its reports give emphasis to the difficulty constantly experienced in securing and retaining competent employees. The rotation in office has become increasingly frequent and vitally impairs the efficiency of the service.

During the war there was a lower rate of turnover in the mechanical forces than in outside establishments. The proposition of separations, however, is excessive in clerical, professional and technical positions, in which the rate of turnover sometimes amounts to a third of the force in a year.

During the nine months preceding the armistice more than 60,000 appointments were made in the civil service and about 28,000 separations occurred—that is, for every two appointments made one person left the service. For a period of similar length following the armistice only 60 per cent as many appointments were made, but there were nearly 33 per cent more separations. In this period almost as many positions were vacated as were filled.

The exigencies of the war required a great expansion of the clerical forces at Washington and elsewhere and this was accomplished by a labor turnover several times above normal. The percentage of declinations of appointments among eligibles on the civil service register increased in many instances from 30 to more than 50 per cent—that is, more than half the men and women who successfully passed civil service examinations and were offered jobs under the government refused to take them. It is estimated that more than 950,000 of those who met the test were appointed during that time.

The civil service commission says flatly:

"Those familiar with the federal service at Washington know that the service is now hampered by the retention of incompetents whose removal is rendered difficult by influences which are incompatible with the efficiency of the service. Preferences and exemptions increasingly clog the departments with persons who, no matter how inefficient, are difficult to remove, and whose retention tends to destroy the discipline of the service."

Among these inefficients, of course, are the superannuated and the physically incapacitated. The bureau of efficiency estimated, before the passage of the superannuation retirement law, the number of employees in the civil service of the United States seventy years of age and over as follows:

	Number
Railway postal clerks	197
Rural letter carriers	464
City letter carriers	230
Post office clerks	387
Mechanics	323
General employees, Dist. Columbia	1,484
General employees elsewhere	1,613
Total	4,698

The commissioner of pensions supplies the following compact statement of the age of the employees in the pension bureau:

Number in the classified civil service, 874; age of the oldest employee, eighty-eight; number over eighty years of age, 26; number between sixty-five and eighty, 266; based on age of sixty-five, number eligible for retirement, 292; percentage of employees eligible for retirement, 33.4; average age of all employees, July 1, 1919, fifty-eight.

These old men and women bear the burden of the administration of the complex, intricate and involved procedure under the pension laws having to do with the disbursement of $222,159,292 in 1920 to 600,000 and some-odd beneficiaries.

WHAT OF THESE OLD MEN?

Congress enacted a law in 1890 requiring all heads of departments and independent establishments in the federal service to report each year to the secretary of the treasury the number of employees under them who were below a fair standard of efficiency. Every year this is done and the letters to the secretary of the treasury from the various departments and bureaus are printed in the book of estimates of appropriations compiled for use by congress in making up the annual supply bills. Congress never pays the slightest heed to these reports. They are made up year after year, but the inefficient are never fired.

For example, last year the chief clerk of the treasury reported 170 employees of the Treasury department as below a fair standard of efficiency. But nothing will be done about it. The Interior department reported 139 inefficients, and will probably go on reporting them till they die of old age. There are employees of the government in Washington who are totally blind and who are led from their homes to their offices each day and back home again in the afternoon.

I knew in [illegible] one gentleman of ninety-two years who [illegible] in the government service [illegible] years. He was being paid at that time [illegible] a year. [illegible]

[illegible] year; July 1, 1870, principal clerk at $1,800 a year; December 6, 1911, clerk at $1,400 a year; May 1, 1918, stenographer and typewriter at $900 a year.

It will be seen that he was demoted in December, 1911, and again in May, 1918, to lower positions, involving less work and responsibility. These demotions were at his own request. In October, 1917, he received from the assistant secretary of the navy, Mr. Roosevelt, the following letter:

"I have to inform you that you have been granted leave without pay for six months beginning October 18, 1917.

"As you have been in the employ of the government now nearly sixty-nine years, and during all that time your record has been excellent, I regret that there is no way in which the department could continue you on the rolls with compensation.

"I desire at this time to express the appreciation of the department for your long and satisfactory service, and the hope that you will be so benefited by this leave that you can return and resume your duties at its expiration."

I talked with one of the cabinet officers about the old and feeble employees.

He said: "I don't know what congress intends to do about them, but I know what I intend to do with those in my department. I intend to leave them alone. They can stay here as long as they live, until some provision is made for them. When I was new in the department I [illegible] these old people and [illegible] on the ground that they were superannuated and inefficient and were a [illegible]

[illegible]

Keep the Children Well!

During these days many children are complaining of headache, feverishness, stomach troubles, and irregular bowels. If mothers only knew what

MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS for CHILDREN

Will do for children no family would ever be without them. These powders are so easy and pleasant to take and so effective in their action that for over 30 years mothers have used them and told others about them. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

Do Not Accept Any Substitute for MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS.

The spots on a man's reputation look about ten times larger to others than to himself.

WHY DO THEY LIKE THIS MAN?

It Is Because He Has the Life and Energy that Red Blood Gives.

He has a good color. He is strong and virile, and looks it. He is good humored. He laughs easily. In short, he is "full of life," which is simply another way of saying he is full of red blood. If you are weak and run-down and nervous, don't sleep very well and have a poor appetite go to your druggist and buy a few bottles of Gude's Pepto-Mangan and take it for a few weeks at meal-time. See how it will build you up by giving you plenty of good blood. Don't drag around half sick and half well. Get some "pep" into you by taking Pepto-Mangan. Sold in both liquid and tablet form. Advertisement.

A legend is a barefaced lie that has grown old enough to wear whiskers.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Advertisement.

Curriculum.

"Slang is getting more and more prevalent."

"Yes, I guess the schools will soon have to give a course in it."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The charm of a bathroom is its spotlessness. By the use of Red Cross Ball Blue, all cloths and towels retain their whiteness until worn out.—Advertisement.

Happy the man who knows he can't tell a funny story; others, too.

Getters Most Fortunate.

Six-year-old Davy drowsed before the fireplace while his parents and Uncle Jim, thinking him safe in dreamland, discussed his Christmas gifts.

"Gee," drawled the childish voice from the other side of the room unexpectedly, "I'm mighty glad I'm a getter 'stead of a giver."

When You Have a Cough or Lose Weight and Appetite

Take This Advice

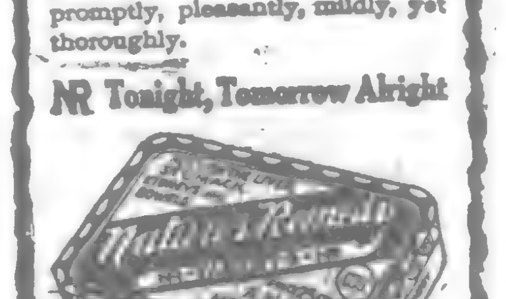
Muncie, Ind.—"When I had a severe cough, night sweats, loss of weight and appetite, I was persuaded to try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I took it faithfully for about forty days and gradually I gained; the cough disappeared and I put on flesh and got strong again. I took no other medicine at the time. It did me a great deal of good and I shall always feel grateful to Dr. Pierce for this remedy. I have had no cough for fourteen years, since I was cured by taking 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"—Mrs. Lucy McCoy, 424 So. Madison St.

Step into any drug store and ask for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in tablets or liquid, or send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial pkg. and write for free medical confidential advice.

Better Than Pills For Liver Ills.

NR Tablets tone and strengthen organs of digestion and elimination, improve appetite, stop sick headaches, relieve biliousness, correct constipation. They act promptly, pleasantly, mildly, yet thoroughly.

NR Tonight, Tomorrow Alright



Get a 25c. Box.

WARNING
This May Save You Much Distress

LANGLEY'S
FOR COMMON COLDS BRONCHITIS ETC.
"IT PENETRATES"
LANGLEY CHEMICAL CO.
ST. LOUIS MO.
PRICE 50 CENTS

It contains such curative agencies as Menthol, Thymol, Camphor, Root. Turpentine, Balsam, Wintergreen, Eucalyptus, Oil of Thyme, and Lanolin, Mutton Suet, Goose Grease, etc. Keep a jar of Langley's in the home at all times. If your druggist does not carry Langley's, send 50c to

LANGLEY CHEMICAL CO.
Central Division - NEWPORT, KY.

Western Canada Offers Health and Wealth

[illegible]

HARTZOG EYE SIGHT SPECIALIST

--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight
SPECIALIST

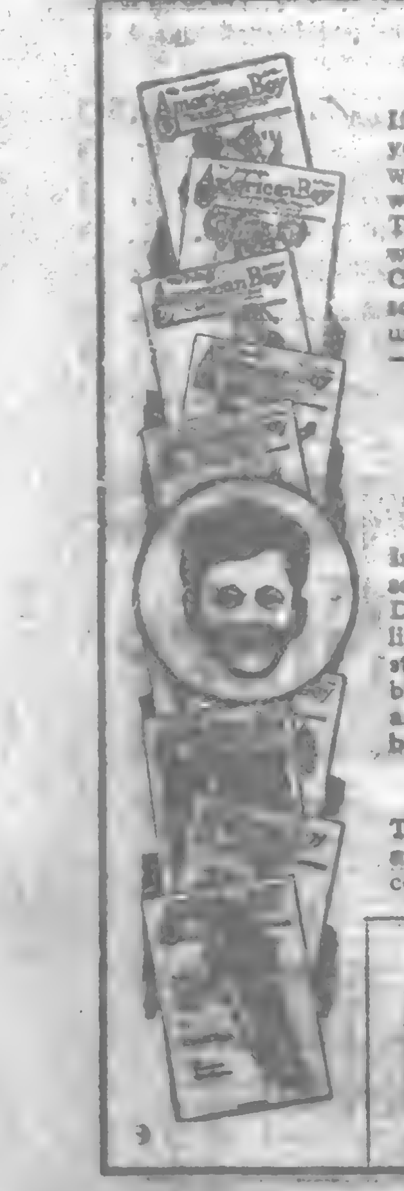
of Ft. Wayne, Indiana
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist Office, St. Joe, Ind.,
Friday, JANUARY 27th.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL

MUDDY COMPLEXION

YOUR COMPLEXION is muddy. You look haggard and yellow. Your eyes are losing their lustre. The trouble is with your liver. Take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. They will correct that. Then avoid meats, hot bread and hot cakes, take frequent baths and a long walk every day, and you will soon be as well and as beautiful as ever. Price 25 cents per bottle.

Chamberlain's Tablets



Every Boy Wants It

If you could realise how much that boy of yours, or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well-balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through—and its influence is of the best.

THE AMERICAN BOY
"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"

In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.

Price Reduced

THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. Make some boy happy—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY!

Mail this Coupon to the publication in which this offer appears.
For $2.00 enclosed send a Year's Subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, beginning with the ....Number to Name ....
Address ....

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174
For Sale at your Dealer
Made in five grades
ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND
EAGLE MIKADO
EAGLE PENCIL CO., NEW YORK

ADVERTISERS

Sickness, Accidents, and Deaths

Will Hamm is ill and under the doctor's care.

Letha Federspell died Tuesday morning at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Walters north of town, after being ill for several months.

Mrs. Mary Timmerman tripped over a rug at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chas Jackson, last Friday, and struck her shoulder and arm against a door casing, bruising herself quite severely.

Miss Dorothy Ginther, daughter of Otto Ginther and wife, is quite sick with typhoid fever. Dr. Shook is attending her and he states that she is getting along as well as can be expected. She has been sick for over a week.

Lee O. Tustison, of Defiance, spent from Friday until Sunday night at the home of his parents, Chas. Tustison and wife. Mrs. Earl Tustison, of Hicksville, spent Tuesday forenoon, at the same home. Mrs. Charles Tustison being ill and under the doctor's care.

Wm. Quance spent Saturday and Sunday at Ft Wayne visiting his parents, J. O. Quance and family. His father has been confined to his bed since a week ago Tuesday with an attack of sciatic rheumatism. His condition was bad Friday and Saturday but he showed much improvement Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs Jasper Snyder, Jay Snyder and family, Grover Morr and family, Miss Faye Hughs, Floyd Snyder and Gordan Keller attended the funeral of Mrs. Warren Snyder held Sunday forenoon at Leo. Mrs. Snyder died quite suddenly at her home near there Wednesday morning. She leaves her husband and five children.

David Poper is very low with a severe attack of pneumonia, taking sick only last Saturday night. His condition became worse and Dr. Shook secured a trained nurse to care for him. Mr. Poper is of the age at which this dreadful disease deals recklessly. The News joins Mr. Poper's friends in wishing him hasty recovery.

Conrad Haupt, residing northwest of town, was kicked by a horse, Sunday night, which he was doctoring. The animal was sharp shod and struck him just below the knee, breaking Mr. Haupt's leg. The following neighbors gathered Tuesday afternoon, and cut enough wood to last him sometime:—Leroy White, Ora White, Austin Fellers, Jay Snyder, Ernest Johnson, Edward Schrader, Charles Bleeks, Edward Bassett and sons, Harry and Virgil, Harry Haines, Howard Borthwick, Leland Hade, Floyd Snyder, Ira Bone, Walter Baker, Lancaster Morr, F. E. Johnston, and John Gascoyne of Garrett, a brother-in-law of Mr. Haupt. Mr. Gascoyne will remain for an indefinite time and help with his care and do the necessary work about the farm.

Elgin Gucie is on the sick list and Mrs. Lena Meek is taking his place in the St. Joe Valley bank during his illness.

—‡—‡—‡—

The WEEK'S DOINGS

Valentine cards at News office.

Earl Smith was a Sunday dinner guest of Merritt Sechler.

Harry Kees of Marion was a St. Joe visitor Saturday.

Get your Tanlac where they've got it. Dr. Sheffer.

Harry Randall was a recent business visitor at Ottawa, Ohio.

Earl Coburn has resumed work on the Wabash Railroad.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Mrs. Pluma Hamilton entertained the Edith Widney Reed Class, Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St. Auburn, Indiana.

Chicago Evening American and Chicago Tribunes on sale each day at the News Office. 3 cents a copy.

Will Koch and guest, Mrs. Lloyd Belden, spent last Sunday forenoon with Mr. and Mrs. Clay Coburn.

Lost—An auto license tag, No. 53057 Ind., somewhere between here and Butler. Finder please return to News office.

Wm. Randall and wife, and Mrs. Helen Randall and two children spent Sunday with Frank Myrtle and wife, at Waterloo.

The motion picture show at the school house, last Saturday night, was well attended, and is reported to have been a very good entertainment.

Mrs. Mary Meek and Mrs. Ruth Clark and little daughter, Pauline, and Alvy Perry were last Thursday dinner guests of Wm. Brown and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Abe Mason of Auburn were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Belle Ridgway and son Floyd. Mr. and Mrs. Darwin Frye and little daughter, Virginia, returned to their home with them for a visit.

Of course weather thermometers vary and sometimes the readings are exagerated by various reporters, but from the average report on Wednesday had the coldest morning of the present cold snap, with a reading of 14 below zero.

The K. of P. Basket ball team drove to Harlan on last Saturday night and played the team at that place, and at the end of the game the score stood 19-19. After five minutes more play the Harlan team made one more point and thus won the game.

Get your Valentine cards at the News office.

Envelopes at 5 and 10c. per package at News office.

Miss Stella Hull, of Ft. Wayne, spent over Sunday with her parents, Al Hull and family.

Harry Randall and family were Thursday evening supper guests of Neff Culler and family.

Mr. and Mrs Paul Curie and little son spent last Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chas Grimm at Waterloo.

Merritt Sechler and Grant Baltz were entertained at six o'clock dinner, Friday, by Wm. Staman, Jr., and wife.

We have some extra Chicago Americans and Tribunes these days. Have us deliver one to you each morning or call at the News Office for one.

A man's ears are placed so that he may catch all things said to his face. It was never intended that he should hear the things that were said behind his back.

Mrs. Lloyd Belden, of Wayne, spent from Saturday evening until Sunday noon a guest of her aunt, Mrs. Will Koch and husband Roy Koch and family were also Sunday dinner guests. After dinner the Koch families, Mrs. Belden, Mrs. Nan Lysher and Master Charles Coburn took a bob sled ride to the John Timmerman home near Spencerville and spent the afternoon.

FREE FAMOUS Rosebud
Crackers
Recipe Book
Ask your Grocer or Write to
CRAIG BISCUIT CO.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate.

Cause No. 2448.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons interested in the estate of Charles Kaeller, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 6th day of March, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness my name, this 18th day of January, 1922.

CLARENCE HULL,
Administrator.
Atkinson, Endicott
& Husselman,
Attorneys.

Administrator's Sale of Personal Property.

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Administrator with the will annexed, of the estate of Joseph B. Haifley, deceased, will offer for sale at public out-cry, at the late residence of said deceased, on West Main street, in the town of Saint Joe, DeKalb county, Indiana, on Saturday, the twenty-eighth day of January, 1922, the personal property of said estate, sconisting of Ford automobile, 1 cart, wheel-barrow, grindstone, pipe cutter, clamp and dies, work-bench, wrench, ads, bar, oil tank and oil, 50 feet lawn hose, hammers, tools and tool chest, hand-saws, square, braces and bits, saw-sets, planes, whetstones, levels, trowls, wrenches, chisels, screw-drivers, files, drills and bits, pipe vise, vise, 20-ft. ladder, and many other articles.

Sale to begin at 1 o'clock p. m.

Terms of Sale—Sums of five dollars and under, cash; sums over five dollars, a credit of nine months will be given purchaser, the purchaser executing his note with good security, waiving benefit of valuation and appraisement laws, without interest if paid when due, and attorny fee.

MELVIN T. BISHOP,
Administrator.

VALENTINES
FROM 1c to 5c
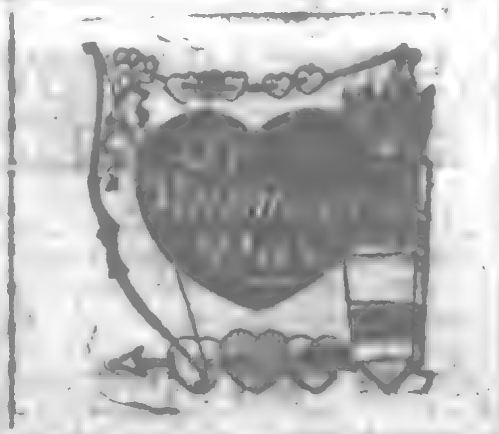
Come in to
The News Office
and see them—plain and fancy, and also folders, for the young and old.
THESE VALENTINES
are just as pretty as you will find in the large cities of the U. S.



EXPANSION SALE
At BISHOP-McBRIDE COMPANY, Auburn, Indiana
Ends Saturday Night, Jan'y 28
A couple days left which will mean much if you take advantage.
We are doing our best to reduce this BIG STOCK of Merchandise before the remodeling begins.
BIG REDUCTIONS ON ALL READY-TO-WEAR
Friday Special
38c
Saturday Special
58c

FEBRUARY

FEBRUARY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, FEB. 2, 1922

—WHY—

PAY HIGH PRICES?

When you can buy

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suits at	$26.25
Club Clothes at	$10 to 18.75
Overcoats at	$10 to 25.00
Heavy Cotton Underwear (the suit) at	$1.15
Heavy Cotton Sweaters, with collar at	95c
Solid Leather Shoes at	$2.45
Heavy Blue Work Shirts at	65c
Sheep Skin Coats at	$6.00

All our Winter Clothing and Underwear at 1-4 OFF

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Keep Warm! —Buy only the Highest Grade COAL for the least money.

Our Hocking Valley COAL speaks for itself. Ask those who have used it.

Our Buffalo White Ash needs no introduction; none better mined in West Virginia.

Our Chestnut Hard Coal as good as money will buy.

We have a nice supply of all Coals on hand and always several cars in transit.

Place your orders and they will have prompt attention as soon as the cars arrive, if you want coal off cars, if not we make quick deliveries from our bins.

Tankage--Cotton Seed Meal--Oil Meal--Bran and Middlinfis--Armour's Hog and Stock Feeds.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Be Careful and Systematic!

People who pay their bills by check get a reputation for being careful and systematic in their business dealings. Such a reputation means much in the establishment of credit. It costs no more to pay your money out by check than it does to use the hard cash, and you have the advantage of having it in a place that is absolutely safe.

To have MONEY in the bank is of itself a valuable asset in the establishment of credit; and it is possible to practically everyone without one cent of cost; it takes [illegible] money to do business by the [illegible] method than it does by the cash-in-hand method.

We [illegible] a checking account [illegible] [illegible] a real convenience.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Barn Burned; Man Cremated

Wm. Orr, a bachelor of the age of about 70 years, was burned to death in his barn on his farm 4½ miles southeast of St. Joe, Tuesday evening. The barn was totally destroyed.

The fire was discovered by neighbors who spread the alarm. The St. Joe Fire Department made the run but all help was too late to render any aid in saving building or the entrapped man. Entire building was in flames when first people arrived at scene, but the body of the man was discovered through a window. It appeared to be lifeless leaning against a post at the edge of a bull pen, and the form of a bull was only a little distance from it.

Mr. Orr had been doing his chores carrying a lantern. It is supposed that the bull, being of a vicious nature, injured him and the lantern became overturned starting a fire in the bedding. Some carry suspicions of other descriptions.

All fire fighting was centered about the spot where the body was discovered and finally it was possible to get to it and carry it out of the ruins.

Both arms and the head were burned off, and the body was badly charred down to the knees. The heavy boots which he wore together with baled hay which fell over him protected the feet and legs below the knees and they were not burned.

The body was cared for by Roscoe Walter, of Spencrville, and E. R. Kinsey, of St. Joe, and as soon as relatives from Illinois can arrive arrangements will be made for the burial.

Four head of horses, six head of cattle, and some sheep were also in the barn and burned. The total loss has not been estimated but it will run high.

Note the Change.

Beginning with February 9, The News will go to press on Wednesday afternoon of each week instead of on Thursday afternoon, one day later, as has been the plan since September of last year. In this way the advertisers are the ones most favored perhaps due to the fact that their Saturday Special ads will be read early enough to be effective, but it also is of an advantage to all its readers. You will secieve your paper just one day earlier, and that fact is well worth mentioning, for often times someone calls in and asks, "Why didn't we get our paper this morning." We answer, "We don't print until Thursday."

This change will mean that all copy must be in by Tuesday night and we trust that all correspondents and advertisers will fall in with this better plan, and get in their copy as soon as possible. The advantage is mutual.

Short Course Only Three Weeks Off

In a [illegible]

best courses to add to his year's report. The time, Feb. 21 and 22, of our course, has its advantages over some others. The speakers and demonstrators schednled to be here are exceptionally good and they have some information to impart to us which will be of the most benefit. The Purdue men to have charge are: L. L. Jones, poultry: J. W. Schwab, live stock; G. W. Frier, corn improvement; and Miss Florence Boston, home economics. You've heard of them all and their good work.

It may be that this cold weather may prevail through February, but do not let that keep you from attending. The condition of the opera house is being improved and it will be as comfortable on those days as you please. Places of others classes and sessions will also be comfortable.

Mr. Frier has informed that he is thoroughly convinsed that the attendance is going to be obtained largely through making considerable commotion and fuss all over the county. So all of us old fussers are going to fuss about this short course until after it is all over; and it will be fine if every one will become a fusser and make this subject predominent.

Are you interested in corn improvement?

Are you a raiser of hogs? All livestock?

Do you want to learn how to make more off your poultry?

Would you listen to one who knows, from practical experience, about Home Economics?

The Town Band Elects Officers

At the monthly business meeting of the Community Welfare band, January, 1922, the following officers were elected to serve for one year:

President—Carl Perkins.
Vice-President—Russel Wade.
Secretary-Treas.—Bob Johnson.
Librarian—Harcourt Miser.

This band has been in existence a little over a year. With every member co-operating under the direction of Mr. Lawson. We have succeeded in holding weekly rehearsals preparatory to next summer concerts.

We wish to thank the citizens of this community for their liberal patronage and support at the various functions which have been given during the past year.

Signed—Bob Johnson, Sec.

Has Good Birds.

G. A. Ward, of east of town, shipped six of his fine White Rock chickens, 1 cockerel, 1 cock bird, 3 pullets, and 1 hen, to Logansport, to be put on show at the Logansport Fanciers' club exhibit, which took place last week.

He is proud to announce that his [illegible] took 1st and 2nd prizes for [illegible] and [illegible] on hen.

[illegible] to attend [illegible] on account of [illegible] but it was [illegible]

Farm Bureau Meets.

[illegible]

a round table talk. If you have a farm problem that is hard to figure out bring it to our next meeting.

Does the world ever turn backward?

Would you go back to oxen, cradles and flails?

What do you live for?

Don't travel in the same old rut, get out and get busy.

Come to our next meeting.

Christian Church Notes

Miss Berniece Lawson assisted by her sisters, the Misses Alma and [illegible], very royally entertained the Loyal Boys and Girls Class Friday evening [illegible] [illegible] of the Teachers Training Class [illegible]

[illegible]

The Class in Personal Evangelism will meet this Friday evening with Mrs. Belle Woodcox.

Preaching services here next Sunday morning by the Pastor.

[illegible]

St. Joe Garage

Boost St. Joe

United States 30x3 1-2 Non-Skid - - $10.90

If your motor is using too much Gasoline and Oil, let us tell you the remedy. We have added to our equipment a new Foster-Johnson Reamer, and Dannie can do the work

Alcohol-Chains-Lenses-Bulbs

We invite you to use our Free Air and Battery Service.

We will take care of your trouble. Call Day or Night.

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 95.

It will now be possible to haul freight and express for the public as well as passengers.

The GRAY Line.
The Name that stands for Stability

6 per ct.

Money --To-- Lend --on-- Farms

LOANS to be secured by First Mortgage for not to exceed 40% of the present value of land alone excluding improvements.

LOANS for more than 40% of land value at 7%

Call at our office for complete information about our conditions and terms, which are attractive.

The STRAUS BROTHERS COMPANY
LIGONIER, INDIANA

CANDIDATES
For County Offices should advertise in
The St. Joe News
a widely circulated newspaper.
Get your ads in before the Farmers' Short Course takes place in St. Joe,
Feb. 21-22.

FEBRUARY

THE GREEN PEA PIRATES

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN," "THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS," ETC.

Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

—12—

"Well, what's in the wind this time?" inquired McGuffey.

"We're invited to a big feed with the king of Kandavu," replied Captain Scraggs, as happy as a boy. "Hop into a clean suit of ducks, Mac, and come along. Gib's goin' to broach a little keg of liquor and we'll make a night of it."

"Good lord," groaned McGuffey, "does the man think I'm low enough to eat with niggers?"

"Leave him to his own devices," said Mr. Gibney, indulgently. "Mac's just as Irish as if he'd been born in Dublin, instead of his old man. Nobody yet overcome the prejudice of an Irishman so we'll do the honors ourself, Scraggsy, old skittles, and leave Mac in charge of the ship."

"Mind you're both back at a seasonable hour," warned McGuffey. "If you ain't, I'll suspect mischief and—say! Gib! Well, what's the use of talkin' to a man with an imagination? Only if I have to go ashore after you two, those islanders'll date time from my visit, and don't you forget it."

Upon arrival at the beach the two adventurers were met by a contingent of frightful-looking savages bearing long spears. As the procession formed around the guests of honor and plunged into the bush, bound for the king's wari, two island maidens marched behind the two sea-dogs, waving huge palm-leaf fans, the better to make the passage a cool and comfortable one.

"By the gods of war, Gib, my dear boy," said the delighted Captain Scraggs, "but this is class, eh, Gib?"

"Every time," responded the commodore. "If that chuckle-headed McGuffey only had the sense to come along he might be enjoyin' himself, too. You must be dignified, Scraggsy, old salamander. Remember that you're bigger an' better'n any king, because you're an American citizen. Be dignified, by all means. These people are sensitive and peculiar, and that's why we haven't taken any weapons with us. If they thought we doubted their hospitality they'd have the court bouncer heave us out of town before you could say Jack Robinson."

"I'd love to see them giving the bounce to McGuffey," said Captain Scraggs, musingly. Mr. Gibney had a swift mental picture of such a proceeding and chuckled happily. Had he been permitted a glance at McGuffey at that moment he might have observed that worthy sweltering in the heat of the forward hold of the Maggie II, for he was busy getting his guns on deck. From which it will readily be deduced that B. McGuffey, Esquire, was following the advice of his paternal ancestor and getting an anchor out to windward.

One might go on at great length and describe the triumphal entry of Commodore Gibney and Captain Scraggs into the capitol of Kandavu; of how the king, an undersized, shriveled old savage, stuck his bushy head out the window of his bungalow when he saw the procession coming; of how a minute later he advanced into the space in the center of his wari, where in the olden days the populace was wont to gather for its cannibal orgies; how he greeted his distinguished visitors with the most prodigious rubbing of noses seen in those parts for many a day; of the feast that followed; of the fowls and pigs that garnished the festive board, not omitting the keg of Three Star thoughtfully provided by Mr. Gibney.

Tabu-Tabu acted as interpreter and everything went swimmingly until Tabu-Tabu, his hospitality doubtless strengthened by frequent libations of the Elixir of Life, begged Mr. Gibney to invite the remainder of his crew ashore for the feast. Mr. Gibney, himself rather illuminated by this time, thought it might not be a bad idea.

"It's a rotten shame, Scraggsy," he said, "to think of that fool McGuffey not bein' here to enjoy himself. I'm goin' to send a note out by one of Tabu-Tabu's boys, askin' him once more to come ashore, or to let the first mate and one or two of the seamen come if Mac still refuses to be civil."

"Good idea, Gib," said Captain Scraggs, his mouth full of roast chicken and yams. So Mr. Gibney tore a leaf out of his pocket memorandum book, scrawled a note to McGuffey, and handed it to Tabu-Tabu, who at once dispatched a messenger with it to the Maggie II.

Within half an hour the messenger returned. He was wildly excited and poured a torrent of native [illegible] into the attentive ears of Tabu-[illegible] and the king. He [illegible] several times to the point of his jaw, [illegible] the small of his back, and [illegible] touched his nose; [illegible] Mr. Gibney was aware that [illegible] at Captain Scraggs, and Mr. Gibney was suddenly aware that goose-flesh was breaking out on the backs of his sturdy legs. He had a haunting sensation that not only had he crawled into a hole, but he had pulled the entire aperture in after him. For the first time he began to fear that he had been too precipitate, and with the thought it occurred to the gallant commodore that he would be much safer back on the decks of the Maggie II. Always crafty and imaginative, however, Mr. Gibney came quickly to the front with an excuse for getting back to the ship. He stepped quickly toward the little group around the outraged royal ambassador, and inquired the cause of the disturbance. Quivering with rage, Tabu-Tabu informed him of what had occurred.

Mr. Gibney's rage, of course, knew no bounds. Nevertheless, he did not have to simulate his rage, for he was truly furious. When he could control his emotions, he requested Tabu-Tabu to inform the king that he, Gibney, accompanied by Captain Scraggs, would forthwith repair to the schooner and then and there flay the offending McGuffey within an inch of his life. Suiting the action to the word, Mr. Gibney called to Captain Scraggs to follow him, and started for the beach.

As Captain Scraggs arose, a trifle unsteadily, from his seat, a black hand reached around him from the rear and closed over his mouth. Now, Captain Scraggs was well versed in the rough-and-tumble tactics of the San Francisco waterfront; hence, when he felt a long pair of arms crossing over his neck from the rear, he merely stooped and whirled his opponent over his head. In that instant his mouth was free, and clear above the shouting and the tumult rose his frenzied shriek for help. Mr. Gibney whirled with the speed and agility of a panther just in time to dodge a blow from a war club. His fist collided with the jaw of Tabu-Tabu, and down went that savage as if pole-axed.

Pandemonium broke loose at once. Captain Scraggs, after his single shriek for help, broke from the circle of savages and fled like a frightened rabbit for the beach. One of the natives hurled a rock at him. The missile took Scraggs in the back of the head, and he instantly curled up in a heap.

"Scraggsy's dead," thought the horrified Gibney, and sprang at the king. In that moment it came to Mr. Gibney to sell out dearly, and if he could dispose of the king, he fe't that Scraggs' death would be avenged. In an instant the commodore's great arms had closed around the king, and with the helpless monarch in his grizzly bear grip Mr. Gibney backed up against the nearest bungalow. A fringe of spears threatened him in front, but for the moment he was safe behind, and the king's body protected him. Whenever one of the savages made a jab at Mr. Gibney, Mr. Gibney gave the king a boa-constrictor squeeze, and the monarch howled.

"I'll squeeze him to death," panted Mr. Gibney to Tabu-Tabu when that individual had managed to pick himself up. "Let me go, or I'll kill your king."

The answer was an earthenware pot which crashed down on Mr. Gibney's head from a window in the bungalow behind him. He sagged forward and fell on his face with the gasping king in his arms.

CHAPTER XII.

On board the Maggie II B. McGuffey, Esquire, had just gotten into position

[illegible]

McGuffey leaned against the gun, and for the moment he was as weak as a child. "Gawd," he muttered, "that was Scraggsy and they're a-goin' to eat him up. Oh, Gib, Gib, old man, why wouldn't you listen to me? Now they've got you, and what in blazes I'm going to do to get you back, dead or alive, I dunno."

It was fully half an hour before poor McGuffey could pull himself together, and when he did, his grief was superseded by a fit of rage that was terrible to behold.

"Step lively, you blasted scum of the seas," he bawled to the mate, and the crew gathered around the gun. "Lug up a case of ammunition and we'll shell that bush until even a parrot won't be left alive in it."

"Aye, aye, sir," responded the crew to a man, and sprang to their task.

"I'm an old navy gunner," said the first mate quietly. "I'll handle the gun. With a 'pom-pom' gun it's just like playing a garden hose on them, only it's high-explosive shell instead of water. I can search out every nook and cranny in the coast of this island. Those guns are sighted up to 4,000 yards."

"Kill 'em all," raved McGuffey, "kill all the blasted niggers."

When Mr. Gibney fell under the impact of the earthenware pot he was only partially stunned. As he tried to struggle to his feet half a dozen hands were laid on him and in a trice he was lifted and carried back of the wari to a clear space where a dozen heavy teakwood posts stood in a row about four feet apart. Mr. Gibney was quickly stripped of his clothing and bound hand and foot to one of these posts. Three minutes later another delegation of cannibals arrived, bearing the limp, naked body of Captain Scraggs, whom they bound in similar fashion to the post beside Mr. Gibney. Scraggs was very white and bloody, but conscious, and his pale-blue eyes were flickering like a snake's.

"What's—what's—the meanin' of this, Gib?" he gasped.

"It means," replied the commodore, "that it's all off but the shouting with me and you, Scraggsy. This fellow Tabu-Tabu is a d—d traitor, and his people are still cannibals. He's the decoy to get white men ashore. They schemed to treat us nice and be friendly until they could get the whole crew ashore, or enough of them to leave the ship helpless, and then—O Gawd, Scraggsy, old man, can you ever forgive me for gettin' you into this?"

Captain Scraggs hung his head and quivered like a hooked fish.

"Will they—eat—us?" he quavered, finally.

Mr. Gibney did not answer, only Captain Scraggs looked into his horrified eyes and read the verdict.

"Die game, Scraggsy," was all Mr. Gibney could say. "Don't show the white feather."

"D'ye think McGuffey could hear us from here if we was to yell for help?" inquired Captain Scraggs hopefully.

"Don't yelp, for Gawd's sake," implored Mr. Gibney. "We got ourselves into this, so let's pay the fiddler ourselves. If we let out one yip and McGuffey hears it, he'll come ashore with his crew and tackle this outfit, even if he knows he'll get killed. And that's just what will happen to him if he comes. Let poor Mac stay aboard. When we don't come back, he'll know it's all off, and if he has time to think over it he'll realize it would be foolish to try to do anything. But right now Mac's mad as a wet hen, and if we holler for help—Scraggsy, please don't holler. Die game."

Captain Scraggs turned his terrified glance on Mr. Gibney's tortured face. Scraggs was certainly a coward at heart, but there was something in Mr. Gibney's unselfishness that touched a spot in his hard nature—a something he never knew he possessed. He bowed his head and two big tears stole down his weatherbeaten face.

"God bless you, Gib, my dear boy," he said brokenly. "You're a man."

At this juncture the king came up and thoughtfully felt of Captain Scraggs in the short ribs, while Tabu-Tabu calculated the precise amount of luscious meat on Mr. Gibney's well-upholstered frame.

"[illegible] we eat white man," said Tabu-Tabu [illegible].

"If you eat me, you blood-[illegible] beggar," [illegible]

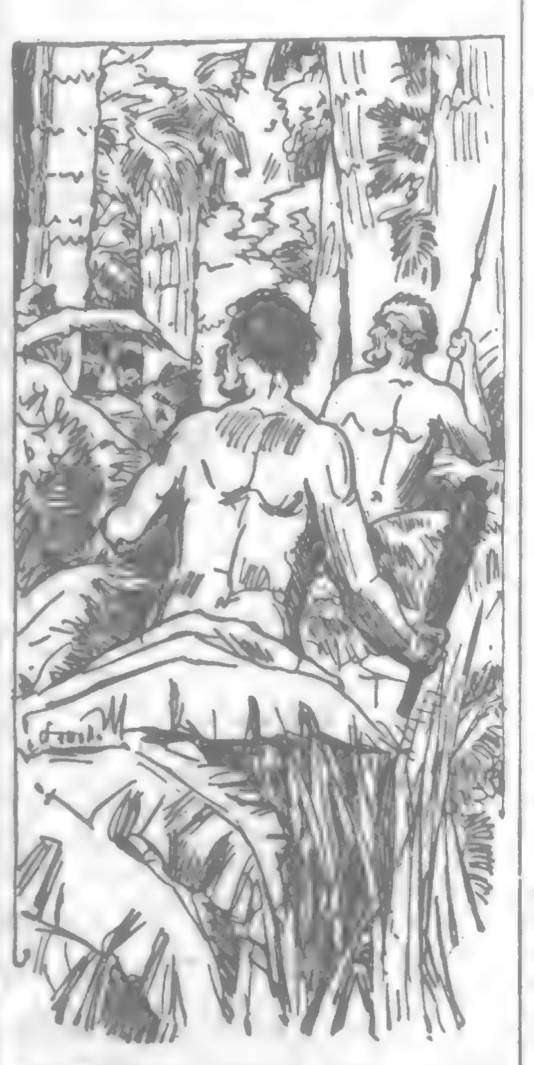
[illegible]

Adelbert P. Gibney across the face. There was a roar, as of an explosion in his ears, and he fell forward on his face. He had a confused notion that when he fell the post came with him.

For nearly a minute he lay there, semi-conscious, and then something warm, dripping across his face, roused him. He moved, and found that his feet were free, though his hands were still bound to the post, which lay extended along his back. He rolled over and glanced up. Captain Scraggs was shrieking. By degrees the bells quit ringing in the commodore's ears, and this is what he heard Captain Scraggs yelling:

"Oh, you McGuffey. Oh, you bully Irish terrier. Soak it to 'em, Mac. Kill the beggars. You've got a dozen of 'em already. Plug away, you good old hunk of Irish bacon."

Mr. Gibney was now himself once more. He struggled to his feet, and as he did, something burst ten feet away and a little fleecy cloud of smoke obscured his vision for a moment. Then he understood. McGuffey had a rapid-fire gun trained on the wari, and the savages, with frightful yells, were fleeing madly from the little shells. Half a dozen of them lay dead and wounded close by.



Detected Two Savages Crouching Behind a Clump of Coco Palms.

"Hooray," yelled Mr. Gibney, and dashed at the post which held Captain Scraggs prisoner. He struck it a powerful blow with his shoulder and Scraggs and the post crashed to the ground. In an instant Mr. Gibney was on his knees, tearing at Scraggs' rope shackles with his teeth. Five minutes later, Captain Scraggs' hands were free. Then Scraggs did a like service for Gibney.

All the time the shells from the Maggie II were bursting around them every second or two, and it seemed as if they must be killed before they could make their escape.

As they tore along through the jungle path Mr. Gibney's good right eye (his left was obscured) detected two savages crouching behind a clump of coco palms.

"There's the king and Tabu-Tabu," yelled Scraggs. "Let's round the beggars up."

"Sure," responded the commodore. "We'll need 'em for hostages if we're to get that black coral. We'll turn 'em over to McGuffey."

* * * * * * * *

"I'd better ease up a minute, sir," said the mate to Mr. McGuffey. "The gun's getting fearful hot."

"Let her melt," raved McGuffey, "but keep her workin' for all she's worth. I'll have revenge for Gib's death or—sufferin' mackerel!"

McGuffey once more sat down on the cabin ventilator. He pointed dumbly to the beach, and there, paddling off to the Maggie II, were two naked cannibals and two naked white men in a [illegible]. [illegible] the breakfast table with appetites in no wise diminished by the exciting events of the preceding day.

[illegible]

McGuffey surveyed his superior officers, cursed them bitterly, and remarked, with tears of joy in his honest eyes, that both gentlemen had evaded their just deserts when they escaped with their lives. "If it hadn't been for the mate," said McGuffey severely, "I'd 'a' let you two boobies suffer the penalty for your foolishness. Any man that goes to work and fraternizes with a cannibal ain't got no kick comin' if he's made up into chicken curry with rice. The minute I hear old Scraggsy yippin' for help, says I to myself, 'let the beggars fight their own way out of the mess.' But the mate comes a-runnin' up and says he's pretty sure he can come near plantin' a mess of shells in the center of the disturbance, even if we can't see the wari on account of the jungle. 'It's all off with the commodore and the skipper, anyhow,' says the mate, 'so we might just as well have vengeance on their murderers.' So, of course, when he put it that way I give my consent—"

At this juncture the mate, passing around McGuffey on his way to the deck, winked solemnly at Mr. Gibney, who hung his war-worn head in simulated shame. When the mate had left the cabin the commodore pounded with his fork on the cabin table and announced a special meeting of the Maggie II syndicate.

"The first business before the meeting," said Mr. Gibney, "is to readjust the ownership in the syndicate. Me and Scraggsy's had our heads together, Mac, and we've agreed that you've shot your way into a full one-third interest, instead of a quarter as heretofore. From now on, Mac, you're an equal owner with me and Scraggsy, and now that that matter's settled, you can quit rippin' it into us on the race question and suggest what's to be done in the case of Tabu-Tabu and this cannibal king that almost lured me and the navigatin' officer to our destruction."

"I have the villains in double irons and chained to the mainmast," replied McGuffey, "and as a testimonial of my gratitude for the increased interest in the syndicate which you and Scraggs has just voted me, I will scheme up a fittin' form of vengeance on them two tar babies. However, only an extraordinary sentence can fit such an extraordinary crime, so I must have time to think it over. These two bucks is mine to do what I please with and I'll take any interference as unneighborly and unworthy of a shipmate."

"Take 'em," said Captain Scraggs vehemently. "For my part I only ask one thing. If you can see your way clear, Mac, to give me the king's scalp for a tobacco pouch, I'll be obliged."

"And I," added the commodore, "would like Tabu-Tabu's shin bone for a clarionet. Pendin' McGuffey's reflections on the hamperin' of crime in Kandavu, however, we'll turn our attention to the prime object of the expedition. We've had our little fun and it's high time we got down to business. It will be low tide at nine o'clock, so I suggest, Scraggs, that you order the mate and two seamen out in the big whaleboat, together with the divin' apparatus, and we'll go after pearl oysters and black coral. As for you, Mac, suppose you take the other boat and Tabu-Tabu and the king, and help the mate. Take a rifle along with you, and make them captives dive for pearl oysters until they're black in the face—"

"Huh!" muttered the single-minded McGuffey. "What are they now? Sky blue?"

"Of course," continued the commodore, "if a tiger shark happens along and picks the niggers up, it ain't none of our business. As for me and Scraggsy, we'll sit on deck and smoke. My head aches and I guess Scraggsy's in a similar fit."

"Anythin' to be agreeable," acquiesced McGuffey.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

The Original of "She."

One of the quaintest sights ever seen in a London salesroom was witnessed a few weeks ago when the collection of Oriental antiques gathered by the late Lord Amherst was put up for sale. There were hundreds of Egyptian gods. Seated cats, with rings in their back and scarabs engraved upon their foreheads, hawks and geese had their place among the deities. There was also a very fine sepulchral figure of a woman in mummy form" in sycamore wood painted white with [illegible] in black, described as "a mummy with a pleasing countenance." This woman was dubbed "She" as being the original of Sir Rider Haggard's [illegible]

[illegible]

MONTHS OF SUFFERING

How a Baltimore Girl Recovered Her Health

Baltimore, Maryland.—"For several months I suffered with severe backache and general weakness. I could not sleep comfortably at night for pains in my back. I found your book at home one day and after reading it began at once to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had very good results and some of my girl friends are taking it now. You may use this letter to help other girls, as the letters in your book helped me." — ROSE WAIDNER, 3018 Roseland Place, Baltimore, Md.

That is the thought so often expressed in letters recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. These women know what they have suffered, they describe their symptoms and state how they were finally made well. Just plain statements, but they want other women to be helped.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine made from medicinal roots and herbs, and without drugs, to relieve the sickness women so often have, which is indicated by backache, weak feelings, nervousness, and no ambition to get anything done or to go anywhere. It has helped many women. Why not try it?

Liggett & Myers
KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as
"that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

TO KILL RATS and MICE
Always use the genuine
STEARNS' ELECTRIC RAT & ROACH PASTE
It forces these pests to run from the building for water and fresh air.
Ready for Use—Better Than Traps
Directions in 15 languages in every box.
35c and $1.50. "Money back if it fails."
U. S. Government buys it.

for that COUGH!
KEMP'S BALSAM
Pleasant to take
Children like it

NR Tonight
Tomorrow Alright
Get a 25c. Box.
Nature's Remedy

Love will open a pocketbook when judgment won't.

DYED HER BABY'S COAT, A SKIRT AND CURTAINS WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her old, worn, faded things new. Even if she has never dyed before, she can put a new, rich color into shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything. Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.—advertisement.

One is never criticised by anyone whom one asks to do it—when it might do some good.

FOR WOMEN ONLY

Heed This Mother's Advice.

South Bend, Ind.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only medicine for women that I can recommend. [illegible]

Help Your Kidneys

Is a cold or grip keeping you miserable? Are you tortured with dull, persistent backache and sharp, cutting pains? Likely your kidneys need help. Colds and grip fill the blood with poisons. Your overworked kidneys have become weakend filtering these poisons off. That's why you feel weak and depressed and suffer from headaches, dizzy spells and urinary disorders. Don't wait for serious kidney disease. Help your kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Ohio Case

Mrs. Eliza Lyon, 321 Tenth St., Wellsville, Ohio, says: "My back hurt so bad, I couldn't get around. The pains in my back were so severe, it felt like someone hitting me. I got dizzy spells, and my kidneys acted too freely. Doan's Kidney Pills fixed me up fine and I have good faith in Doan's."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

MAN'S BEST AGE

A man is as old as his organs; he can be as vigorous and healthy at 70 as at 35 if he aids his organs in performing their functions. Keep your vital organs healthy with

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles since 1696; corrects disorders; stimulates vital organs. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

SALESMAN

Large reliable New York House dealing in Standard Household Merchandise seeking local representative to sell new, sound Exclusive Sales Promotion System to retail grocers, druggists, and general stores. The greatest selling plan of the age and the one chance of a lifetime for the right man. Attractive proposition; unusual opportunity; exclusive territory; liberal commission basis, payable weekly.

INTERSTATE FACTORY PRODUCTS CORP.
Fifth Avenue Building NEW YORK CITY

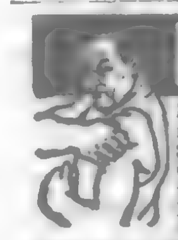
LET'S STOP THE COLDS

Use the Old-Fashioned Cure That Grandmother Used

LANGLEY'S
OLDFASHIONED MEDICATED
GOOSE GREASE
COMP
FOR COUGHS COLDS
BRONCHITIS ETC.
"IT PENETRATES"
"YOUR GRANDMOTHER USED IT"
LANGLEY CHEMICAL CO.
ST. LOUIS, MO.
PRICE 60 CENTS
CONTENTS 1 1/2 OUNCES

Also good for Croup, Sore Throat, Hoarseness, Tonsilitis, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Asthma, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Sprains, Strains, Headache, etc. Any pain quickly relieved. Keep a jar of Langley's in the home at all times. If your druggist does not carry Langley's, send 60c to

LANGLEY CHEMICAL CO.
Central Division - NEWPORT, KY.



ITCH!

Money back without question if HUNT'S GUARANTEED SKIN DISEASE REMEDIES (Hunt's Salve and Soap), fail in the treatment of Itch, Eczema, Ringworm, Tetter or other itching skin diseases. Try this treatment at our risk. Sold by all reliable druggists. A. B. Richards Medicine Co., Sherman, Texas

Amending It.

Mr. Nagg—I suppose now you wish you were free to marry again?

Mrs. Nagg—No, just free.

A Lady of Distinction

Is recognized by the delicate fascinating influence of the perfume she uses. A bath with Cuticura Soap and hot water to thoroughly cleanse the pores followed by a dusting with Cuticura Talcum powder usually means a clear, sweet, healthy skin.—Advertisement.

Almost a Tragedy.

Jack—Did you hear about that terrible accident at the ball last night?

Jill—No; what was it?

Jack—Bess got too near an electric fan, and two men who were standing near were almost suffocated by the clouds of powder.

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 5

ELIJAH TAKEN UP INTO HEAVEN

LESSON TEXT.—II Kings, 2:1-15.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.—Rev. 2:10.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Mark 9:2-8; II Tim. 4:1-8.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Takes Elijah to Heaven.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Elijah Taken Up Into Heaven.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jehovah's Champion Exalted.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Divine Approval of Faithful Service.

I. God Reveals to Elijah His Approaching Rapture (v 1).

It was made known to Elijah that he was to go to heaven by a whirlwind. There is a striking correspondence between his life and his home-going. Much of his life was characterized with the rush of the storm, so God chose to take him home to himself in the whirlwind. As a reward for his faithfulness, God lifted the prophet over death into heaven. Elijah did not choose the time of his home-going, but was ready.

II. Elijah's Closing Ministry (vv. 2-8).

Knowing that the time of his home-going was near, he did not change his manner or method of life, but thoughtfully and calmly pursued his customary duties.

1. Visits the schools of the prophets (vv. 2-8). At the Lord's direction he went to give his farewell counsels to the young students whom he had been training and upon whom the future of the nation politically and religiously so largely depended. He made regular rounds in visitation and instruction. Schools were located at Gilgal, Bethel and Jericho. His educational work shows him to have been not merely an iconoclast, but a statesman of a high order.

2. Trains Elisha to be his successor (vv. 2-8). There was a real friendship between Elijah and Elisha, though the one was old and the other young. Elisha came into the life of Elijah in the field when Elijah called him from the plow (I Kings 19:19-21). Elisha clung to his master to the very last in spite of three urgent requests for him to remain behind. These tests were somewhat like those of the Master with Peter (John 21:15-17). The great object was to get him ready to take up the work which Elijah was to lay down. The order of progress of the journey indicates, says Scofield, "the experience of every child of God who enters into a vital experience of God's best. That walk began at Gilgal. The typical significance of Gilgal cannot be mistaken by any reader of Joshua. Gilgal was the place where a redeemed people rolled away the reproach of Egypt (Josh. 5:1-11).

"The next stage was Bethel—house of God—the place of vision, of spiritual insight, for Bethel was the place where Jehovah gave Jacob the great ladder vision (Gen. 28:1-19). He must go on from Bethel to Jordan. Jordan stands for the New Testament truth, crucified with Christ. There, on the resurrection side of Jordan, the gift of power awaited the prophet."

III. Elijah's Rapture (vv. 9-11).

1. Elisha's request of Elijah (v. 9). The walk of Elisha with Elijah from Gilgal to Jordan has prepared him for the final question of Elijah before his rapture. Elijah now knew that it was safe to allow Elisha to choose for himself. Elisha made a noble request—did not ask for riches, honor or position. He supremely desired the qualifications which would enable him to worthily succeed Elijah. Curiously enough, however, Elisha performed twice as many miracles as Elijah.

2. The condition of receiving was steadfastness and perseverance (v. 10). He must have faith in the invisible life in order to have power for public ministry.

3. Elijah's rapture (v. 11). It seems that he went to heaven in a chariot of fire enveloped by the whirlwind. Elijah underwent that change which all believers shall experience at the appearing of Christ (I Cor. 15:51, 52).

IV. The Spirit of Elijah Upon Elisha (vv. 12-15).

1. Elisha's cry (v. 12). He cried after Elijah, "The chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof!" This shows the value of a godly man to his country. It implies that Elijah was the true national defense. Godliness and character are more important than armies and navies.

2. Elisha uses the power (vv. 13, 14). He had faith to put the power to test.

3. The spirit of Elijah on Elisha (v. 15). This was confirmed by the sons of the prophets.

A Prophecy of Christ.

And the angel of the Lord protested unto Joshua, saying, [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

GOOD HIGHWAYS

ROADS CONSTRUCTED IN 1921

Approximately 28,000 Miles Built During Year Just Passed—Materials Lower.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Road building has recovered from the setback received during the war, and prospects are bright for the future. Approximately 14,000 miles of road were constructed during the present season by the states in conjunction with federal aid, according to the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, and probably an equal amount independent of federal aid. More miles of improved road were built than during any other year.

Costs of road grading and construction with local materials is down practically to the 1914 level. Some reductions, also, have been made in freight rates on road materials. The importance of this item is shown by the fact that in some cases it has been estimated that increased freight rates have added 10 per cent to the cost of a road. Prices of manufactured road materials tend downward; the present level is materially lower than that of a year ago.

With the new appropriation by congress of $75,000,000, added impetus will be given to new road construction. Many of the states are considering enlarged amounts of state aid, and the new law will have a tendency to encourage this policy. It will also secure the construction of a system of interstate and intercounty highways, rather than haphazard selection of roads as in some cases in the past.

Federal-Aid Road in Western State, Just Completed.

HEAT INFLUENCES CONCRETE

Discovery Made That Edges Curl Up and Down in Response to Temperature Changes.

That the edges of concrete roads curl up and down in response to changes in temperature is the discovery recently made by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture in the course of experiments at the department's experimental farm at Arlington, Va.

Curling is caused by the unequal expansion and contraction of the upper and lower sides of the concrete slab under the influence of heat. It has been observed during the middle of the day when the surface of the road becomes hot it expands more than the cooler underside and causes the sides to move downward. At night when the surface is cool the contraction causes the edges to rise slightly. The extreme movement may be as much as one-tenth of an inch.

While the warping of the concrete is not in itself detrimental to the road, it may lead to failure of the surface under the wheels of vehicles which travel over it when parts of it are not resting on the ground.

HAUL PRODUCTS TO MARKET

Enormous Amount Carried Over Country Roads Shows Necessity of Better Condition.

The necessity of keeping country roads in good condition is shown by a report recently compiled by the bureau of markets and crop estimates, United States Department of Agriculture, showing the extent to which they are used in hauling farm products to market. According to the report, which shows the tonnage of 11 products hauled on country roads, giving the yearly average for the period from 1915 to 1919, there were 27 tons of these 11 crops hauled for every 100 acres of land. The average [illegible] of the 11 crops hauled on country roads each year for the period mentioned amounted to [illegible] tons. The 11 crops referred to in the report are corn, wheat, oats, barley, [illegible] flaxseed, cotton, [illegible], tobacco, potatoes and [illegible] hay.

[illegible]

[illegible]

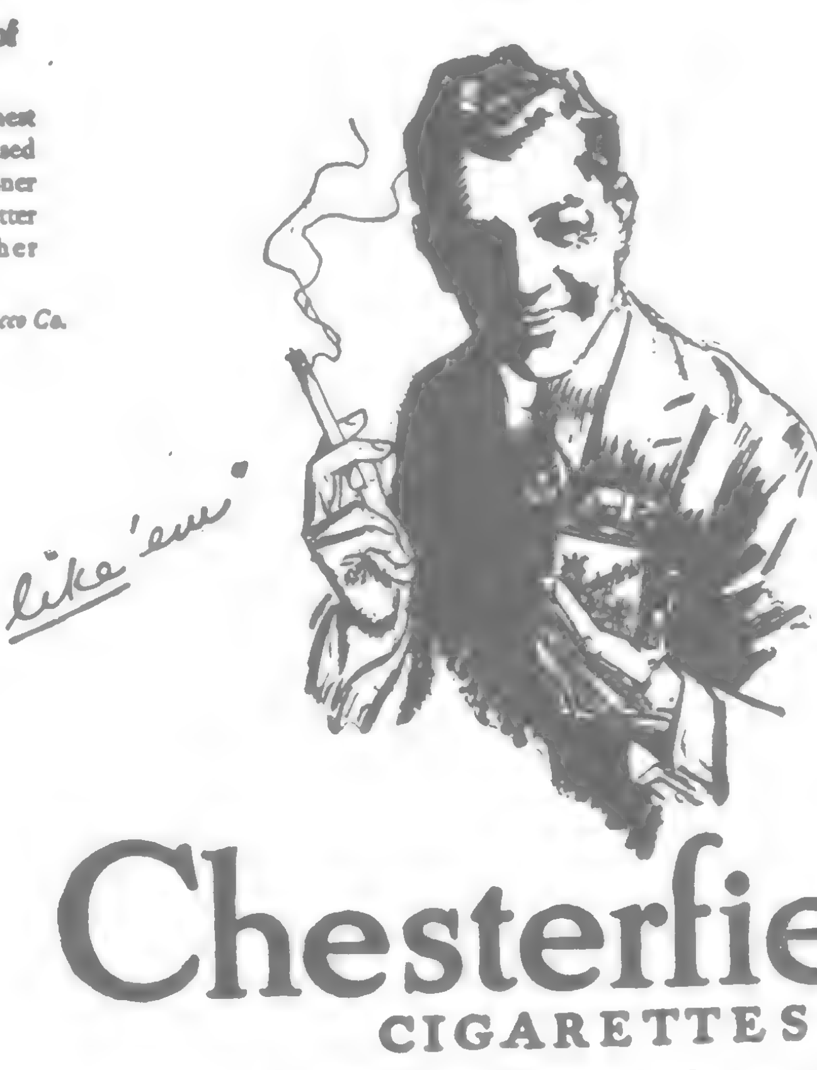
[illegible]

[illegible]

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.



"I like 'em"

Chesterfield
CIGARETTES
of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—blended

Lower Prices
20 now 18c
10 now 9c
(Two 10's—18c)

"They Satisfy"

Don't expect your opinions to fit if you obtain them ready made.

Salesman or Saleslady

Be independent. Sell our high grade imported coffees to homes direct, also hotels, restaurants, etc. One salesman each city of 1,000 or over. Exclusive territory, $30.00 to $50.00 weekly for your spare time. Samples free. New method. Write now. Sanichu Incorporated, 3620 Cottage Grove Ave., Chicago, Ill.—Advertisement.

TAUGHT VIRTUE AND WISDOM

Confucius One of the Really Great Philosophers the Human Race Has Developed.

Confucius is the Latin form of the name of Kung Futze (Kung, the master or philosopher), a great Chinese philosopher, who founded a form of religion which is based on the worship and practice of morality as shown in the lives and teachings of wise men who have gone before. He was born 551 B. C., in the state of Lu, part of the province of Shantung.

Confucius' chief aim being the reformation of the state, he wandered from court to court, seeking to teach princes his maxims of virtue and wisdom; while around him gathered a band of devoted followers. He died 478 B. C. The books he composed, the books he edited, the books supposed to have been written by his grandson, and the books compiled by his followers, with the works of Mencius (born 371 B. C.), form the Chinese classics, on which are based education and competitive examinations, and by which promotion in public life has been regulated for 18 centuries.

Monarch's Odd Pastime.

The king of Denmark delights in crochet work. At an early age he developed a taste for this sort of work, but as it was regarded by his parents as effeminate he did it secretly. Queen Alexandra possesses a fine shawl made by his hands.

There is even vanity in always telling the truth.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND
is indispensable in treating Influenza, Distemper, Coughs and Colds
so prevalent among horses and mules at this season of the year. For nearly thirty years "SPOHN'S" has been given to prevent these diseases, as well as to relieve and cure them. An occasional dose "conditions" your horse and keeps disease away. As a remedy for cases actually suffering, "SPOHN'S" is quick and certain. 60 cents and $1.20 per bottle at drug stores.
SPOHN MEDICAL COMPANY GOSHEN, INDIANA

Don't let your automobile be your utter master. Walk a little.

Every department of housekeeping needs Red Bross Ball Blue. Equally good for kitchen towels, table linen, sheets and pillowcases, etc.—Advertisement.

TWO RARE ORCHID SPECIMENS

Central America Can Boast of Two of the Most Perfect of Beautiful Flowers.

A quaint little orange orchid, odorless, very common in Central America, is the Spidendrum Radicans, locally called the "Dutch Shoe" because of its fancied resemblance to a tiny sabot. The "Monkey" orchid, more curious than beautiful, has greenish, small flowers growing in thick clusters, suspended from whorls of glossy leaves. Great quantities of it grow on the dead stumps of the overflowed land forming lagoons in Gatun lake. A peculiarity of the Monkey orchid is that when domesticated its flowers do not develop fragrance until they are three days old. Another odd species mimics a white violet, not only in size and shape, but in the exquisite violetlike fragrance which the blossom gives out in the late afternoon only. It has no fragrance at any other time and the tiny flowers last several days.

To Work Ancient Gold Mine.

Goldfields that have not been worked since the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries are to be exploited by the Austrian government. The deposits lie in the Ziller and Lavant valley on the Tyrol-Salzburg frontiers, and prospecting has given a yield of slightly more than an ounce of gold to the ton.

Conversation flags when you have to be careful.

Cuticura Soap
—Is Ideal for—
The Complexion
Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

LOCAL DISTRIBUTOR

For Snuffo Antiseptic Inhaler in your city and adjacent territory. Relieves cold, hay-fever catarrh and asthma immediately. Big profits. Write today; free sample, easy sales plan. Snuffo Co., 600 Loop End Bldg., Chicago.

ONLY MADE MATTERS WORSE

"Dowager Mrs. Smythkins" Might Better Have Not Spoken to That "Butler" of Hers.

When the D. Smythkinses got on in the world a little, Tim, their handy man, was promoted to a decayed dress suit and the title and emoluments of butler. In this capacity he had been taken severly to task by Mrs. D. Smythkins, Sr., for allowing some visitors who inquired for her son's wife to go away without having announced the fact that she was at home.

"If this happens again, Tim, you must say, 'My mistress is out, but the dowager, Mrs. Smythkins, is within. Please step aside,'" she wound up. And Tim promised to obey.

Long words, however, were not his strong point, and when a few days later more visitors called, the word "dowager" refused to remain in his mind.

"My mistress is out, sir," he said "but the—er—ah—the owld badger is within. Prey step inside. Sure ye needn't look surprised. 'Tis what she towld me to say herself."—London Tit-Bits.

Don't imagine that you have great will power because you have never had occasion to test it.

One third of your life is allotted to sleep. Do you get your share?

The most important period in the process of applying nutrition to the repair of the body is while you are asleep. For the most favorable transformation of digested food into nerve and cell tissue, so doctors tell us, sleep is absolutely essential.

Is it any wonder that those who suffer from lack of proper sleep are weak, pale and lacking in energy or ambition?

One of the causes of insomnia is nerve-irritation from tea and coffee drinking. Tea and coffee both contain caffeine, which has a tendency to cause undue stimulation. The [illegible] effect of caffeine often results in insomnia, depression, and a weakened nervous system.

You can easily overcome these troubles by drinking Postum instead of tea or coffee. Postum is a delicious, satisfying cereal beverage, and it is absolutely free from caffeine, or any other harmful substance.

Ask your grocer for Postum. Drink this delicious, refreshing beverage for ten days. Then see if you do not feel better and more clear headed, and if you do not sleep better at night—as so many other people have proved for themselves.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Postum for Health
"There's a Reason"

Made by Postum Cereal Co., Inc. Battle Creek, Mich.

FEBRUARY

no tax now
LUDEN'S
menthol
cough drops
price 5¢ straight
GIVE QUICK RELIEF
Famous Yellow Package—
Sold the world over

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

Mother Dear!
One of the Greatest
Songs Published
—Write to—
JOE D. MILLER
Box 224
St. Joe, DeKalb co.,
Indiana
who will write the author
for songs with music.
Price 30c each.
Which includes a
a fine picture of a young lady on the front page.

--Farmers--
and others when you
attend the
Short Course Meeting
in St. Joe be sure to call at the
News Office
for your Job Printing,
if you need cards, etc.

CHIROPRACTIC
The Pinch hitter in the
HEALTH GAME
Acute and Chronic diseases,
Men, Women and Children
restored to health by Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments.
ERNEST O. FULLER, D. C.
CHIROPRACTOR
Auburn, Ind., Phone 235 W.
Waterloo, Ind., Phone 211.

F. R. Bowman
TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

Letter From Florida.

Tampa, Florida,
701 East Lafayette street.

Mr. W. Rhodes,
Spencerville, Ind.

Having a few spare minutes and thinking a letter from the South might be of interest to all of you, I will write you of a few of the places that have been of interest to me.

Florida sure has a beautiful climate in the winter. There has not been a day yet since we have [illegible] in Tampa but what the sun has shown all day or at least part of the day.

The temperature does not vary much. The [illegible] from [illegible] to [illegible] degrees.

[illegible] of March.

The rainy season begins about the 15th of June and lasts about three months. During this time it rains nearly every afternoon.

The soil of Florida is nearly all sand, ranging from the white sand like that found around the southern end of Lake Michigan, to the rich, dark hammock land.

The hammock land is especially suited for garden truck, such as—cabbage, lettuce, stringbeans, celery, sweet potatoes and peppers.

The higher ground for orange groves. These orange groves are a beautiful sight. The fruit is much sweeter and juicy when picked direct from the tree than when shipped so far. The fruit is mostly citrus, such as oranges, grape-fruit, lemons, tangerines and mangereins.

Fishing is fine sport. The fish that are caught here are much different than the fish at home. There is the red-fish, red snapper, trout, lake bass, cat-fish, mullet, sheep-head. Yesterday I caught what they call an angel-fish; I also caught a black-fish.

There is no law against fishing, that is you need not take out a license to fish.

Tampa, Florida, is 1027 miles from Cincinnati, Ohio. It is a beautiful city of 80,000 people. It is the 7th port in tne United States "Tampa Bay Hotel," built in the year 1889 to 1891, at a cost of $3,000,000, is said to be the finest "Municipal Hotel" in the world.

This hotel will accommodate 500 people and is patronised by the wealthy class. We have been through this hotel. It has one room called "The Crystal Room," another room called "The Golden Room," and one of the finest dining rooms one would care to look upon.

A large ball-room, barber-shops, library-rooms, and also many other rooms are in this hotel. It is furnished with the finest of carpets, rugs and furniture. Most of this furniture was brought from the old country.

This hotel was built by a man by the name of Henry Plant, he afterwards selling it to the city of Tampa for $140,000, and sold it this cheap in the way of a donation.

Lafayette street bridge spans the Hillsborough river. This bridge cost $265,000. It is of concrete structure and is said to be one of the finest bridges of its type in the world.

Tampa Bay Hotel is located in the center of "Plant Park." This park is filled with flowers and palm trees of all different kinds.

Plant Field adjoins Plant Park and at Plant Field is where the "South Florida Fair and Gasparilla Carnival" will be held from the 2nd to 11th of February.

Much is done here for the entertainment of the tourists, in the way of free band concerts every afternoon from the middle of December to the 1st of April, excursions to different parts of the state at greatly reduced rates, picnics of various kinds, and entertainments are put on most every night by some of the states.

Tampa is a great city for people to come in their automobiles and camp during the winter. At "De Soto Park" are between 1600 and 2000 people that have drove through in cars. Almost every state in the Union is represented here.

It is a sight to go to this park and see their mode of living. Almost everyone has a name for his tent, such as "Peep Tun," "Don't Peep Sun," "All Tun," "Hoosier Boosters," "Big Enough," "Suits Me," "Ohio Boosters," "Good Enough," "Drop Tun," and so on.

These people seem to enjoy themselves this way of living and then they have their car to travel over the state.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

the storm which they had here in October.

"Port Tampa" is located on old Tampa bay, about nine miles southwest of the city. It is the terminus of the "Atlantic Coast Line R. R." and the big docks where ships from all over the world come to discharge and take on cargo. We have been fishing here several different times.

"Sulphur Springs" is about six miles north of the city on Hillsborough river. Here is found the famous "Stomawa" mineral springs.

This is an Indian name meaning "stomach" water. This spring is visited by thousands each year to drink and carry away this water for their health. The sulphur springs from which their park takes its name is enclosed by a large concrete basin, and has a flow of 3000 gallons of water per minute. This basin or pool is used for swimming. There is also an alligator farm at this place where thousands of live alligators of all sizes may be seen.

"Ybor" city is in the suburbs of Tampa, and it is at this place that one may partake of the famous Spanish dinners, and visit some of the large cigar factories. Tampa is the leading cigar manufacturing city in the world, producing more than one million cigars every day. There are 125 factories which employ 12,000 people.

"Tarpoon Springs," located 28 miles northwest of the city, is noted for its large sponge fishieries. We have been also to Newport Richey, which is 36 miles northwest of Tampa. This is where Mr. Sponhour has a cottage. It is a small town and can only be reached by bus line.

It seems somewhat strange to hear birds sing, and see flowers in bloom and gardens clothed in green vegetation in January, to see children barefooted on the streets, and the people walking around in shirtsleeves; but these are the conditions here.

We came over the Baltiomre and Ohio Ry. to Cincinnati, Ohio, and over the Great Southern Railway through Chattanooga, Tenn., Atlanta, Ga., to Jacksonville, Florida, and over the "Atlantic Coast Line R.R." from Jacksonville to Tampa.

We traveled only in daylight, thus we got to see all the country which is worth seeing. We made stops at Cincinnati, Ohio; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Atlanta, Ga., and Jacksonville, Florida.

After crossing the Ohio river into Kentucky the country is very rough and hilly and the land and country homes are nothing when compared to our northern homes. Negro huts everywhere. Negroes working in the fields, plowing with only one mule, turning a very narrow furrow. All hard work is done in the South by the negroes.

The scenery in the Cumberland mountains is fine. The city of Chattanooga is built in a valley, surrounded by Lookout Mountain, Signal Mountain and Missionary Ridge.

We were on the top of all these mountains; also visited the "Battle Fields of Chickamagua. Lookout Mountain is 2700 feet above sea level.

Jacksonville is called "The Gate Way" to Florida. At this place there is a large ostrich and alligator farm. It is after leaving Jacksonville that you notice the change in temperature, and one begins to feel like shedding some of their clothes.

No doubt but what we will stay to the 1st of April, unless something happens, as the cold weather of the North would almost kill one after being in this warm climate.

We intend to visit different parts of the state. May go down to the Everglades soon. They [illegible] to [illegible] the city of Tampa [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] than in the North. [illegible]

Well, Frank, I will close for this time, hoping that you are all well.

Yours, F. E. Rhodes.

MICKIE SAYS

ALL WE HAFTA DO TO PROVE HOW CLOSELY THIS NEWSPAPER IS BEIN' READ IS TO MAKE A FEW MISTAKES 'N THEN WE FIND 'AT EVRYBODY IN TOWN HAS SEEN 'EM!
CHARLES SUGHROE

Coburn's Corners

Get your Valentine cards at the News office.

Chas. and Elmer Inlow were recent business visitors in Ft. Wayne.

Mrs. Cordelia Dermott and son, Victor, were Hicksville visitors last Saturday.

Mrs. Eva Shull entertained Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hart at dinner last Sunday.

Mrs. R. B. Daily of St. Joe spent Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Fred Hart.

Carl Johnson of Hicksville, a former resident of this vicinity, visited friends here the past week.

Mrs. P. A. Walker is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Snyder, at Springfield Centre.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily were entertained at dinner last Thursday in the Will Maxwell home.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Laub and children were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Hart.

Mr and Mrs. Will Maxwell and son, Willard, were callers, Sunday, on Prof. Roy Maxwell, who is suffering an attack of tonsilitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Ella Wilmot entertained the Clyde Mason family at dinner, on Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Wilmot Coburn were also afternoon guests.

Mrs. Flora Simanton and grandson, Corrall, Mrs. Earl Tustson, Victor Dermot and mother, and Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Daily were among callers at the Chas Tustison home the past week.

Little Derrill Murphy and Merle Coburn, small sons of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Murphy, and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Coburn, have been under the care of a physician the past week, being ill of heavy colds.

The Ladies' Aid spent an enjoyable afternoon with Mrs. Cora Maxwell, Thursday, and engaged in the work of quilt-piecing. Sickness accounted for the absence of some members. Mrs. Eva Shull being the only officer present, the business session was postponed until later. The hostess served a delicious lunch of apple pie, fruit cake, celery and apples.

NEWVILLE

C. E. Tarney and wife attended the [illegible] at Auburn, last Friday.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

REMOVAL SALE
Starts SATURDAY, Feb. 4

Within a few days we must vacate this room and move to our new room, formerly occupied by the Sheets Music Store. An opportunity like this may never happen again. Even to attempt to sell High Grade Merchandise at such low prices in the future, would be futile. But everything must move, irrespective of cost. We are taking the loss, you the gain.

It's a Sale with a Reason. A Purpose. A Determination.

SHOE SPECIALS
MEN'S WORK SHOES $2.39
MEN'S DRESS SHOES $2.95
$3.95 $4.95
BOSY' DRESS SHOES $2.39
$2.95 $3.29
These Shoes are all Wonderful Values.

SHOE SPECIALS
LADIES' DRESS SHOES $3.69
$4.49
GIRL'S DRESS SHOES $2.19
$2.89 $3.29
One lot of Ladies' DRESS SHOES, French heels, formerly sold up to $11 $4.98

Men's and Young Men's Suits
CLEAN-UP PRICE.
$13.95 $17.50 values
$15.95 $22.50 values
$17.95 $25.50 values

Men's and Boy's Overcoats
$6.95 $11.50 value
$9.95 $13.50 value
$12.95 $16.50 value
$16.95 $21.95 value
$22.95 $28.50 value
These Suits and Overcoats are Made of All-Wool Materials.

Men's Heavy Union Suits 98c
Men's Heavy Sweaters $1.19
Men's Work Pants 1.39
Canvass Gloves--3 pairs for 25c
Wool Hose--a pair 26c
Heavy Cotton Hose--3 pair for 50c
Jersey Gloves--2 pair for 25c
Heavy Mittens--2 pair for 25c
Spade Work Shirts--$1.00 value 79c
Boys' School Pants 89c
Very Fine Wool Skirts--special $4.95

Francy Trimmed Waists--special $2.98
Union Suits--$2.00 value--special $1.19
Union Suits--wool--$4.00 value $2 49
Flannel Gowns--$2.00 value 98c
Fancy Wool Hose--$1.50 value 98c
Silk Fibre Hose--98c value 48c
Pure Thread Silk Hose--$1.75 value $1.19
Bungalow Aprons--$1.00 value 89c
Petticoats--$1.50 values 98c

Ladies' Suits and Coats.
This is a rare chance to buy strictly hand-tailored garments almost at your own price. Come in and look them over. CLEAN-UP PRICE.
$12.95 $18.50 value
$18.95 $26.50 value
$22.95 $38.00 value

Ladies' Dresses.
Never before have you had the opportunity to buy such wonderful values in real smart dresses, made of serges, tricotine and Canton crepes. You must see them to appreciate a real bargain. New spring styles included.
CLEAN-UP PRICE
$10.95 $12.95 $14.95 $16.95

The Leader Co.,
The Store That Undersells, Auburn, Ind.

George Oberlin and family and Miss Hilda Tarney went to Garrett, Sunday, to see Gerald Oberlin, who underwent an operation for appendicitis He is getting along nicely.

Byron Miller and Carl Clark attended the funeral of Edward Smart, a soldier boy who was killed in the World's War, and whose body was returned to Hicksville, his home town, for burial.

Elect Officers

Election of officers took place on Sunday morning at the U. B. church in Newville, following bible school for the carrying out of the coming Rural Chautauqua, and are as follows:

L. W. Yieser, president.
Chas. Perkins, vice-president.
Mrs. Ida Traxler, secretary.
Miss Gladys Kain, treasurer.

The date of the chautauqua is set to begin on the 2nd Sunday in August to continue for eight days.

St. Joe Locals

Mrs. H. E Randall, Mrs. Lumm [illegible], Miss Florence Williams and C. P. Bassett were among those from here who enjoyed "Irene" at the Majestic theatre at Ft. Wayne [illegible] evening.

Miss [illegible] Davis, of Chattanooga, Tenn., [illegible] last Wednesday, Jan. 25th, to Wm. Curie, the stock buyer at St Joe sixteen head of hogs, weighing 4310 pounds. They received 8c per lb., which amounted to $384 80. It certainly pays to feed and sell hogs.

[illegible]

New $2500 Policy:
Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $8000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years,
$12.50 a month for five years.
$6.25 a month for ten years,

If Permanently and Totaly Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of 60, Premiums on this policy will cease and the Company will pay you $25 a month as long as you live, and at you death the full [illegible] will be paid to your beneficiary.

For particulars of this Policy [illegible]
[illegible] HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

FEBRUARY

Importance -OF- Little Things

Dimes built the Woolworth Bldg., highest in New York.

Nickels built the Wrigley Building highest in Chicago.

Put your nickels and dimes in a savings account in

The Farmers' and Merchants' STATE BANK

and soon they will grow into dollars—hundreds and thousands of dollars.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL

SPENCERVILLE. - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,

Butler, Indiana.

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE

West Seventh Street AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE

NOTARY PUBLIC

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

[illegible]

Hospital at Ft. Wayne, was able to be taken to the home of her parents, August Klinkley and wife, of Zanesville, Saturday.

Virgil Vansile, son of Leslie Vansile, of Hurshtown, is very ill with bronchial pneumonia.

Mrs. Kate House spent last week the guest of Frank Hore and wife, south of town.

Many ice houses are being filled at this place. Bert Fisher and Geo. Henderson finished on Saturday.

The Oakland Base ball team played the Independents at this place on Saturday night. The score was 29-27 in favor of the visitors.

Rev. Uphon was called to Schenectedy, N. Y., Saturbay, by the death of his mother, who died on Thursday night at that place.

Florence Buchanan and wife, of St. Joe, are spending a few weeks with their daughter, Mrs. W. F. Rhoades and family.

Rev. Steffy, of near Logansport, the new pastor of the Lutheran Church, will deliver his first sermon, Sunday evening.

For Sale at public auction: Used Ford autos, tractors, and accessories at Silberg's Garage on Sat., Feb. 18.

Edward Billman and wife, of Wise's Corners, Walter Perkins, wife and son Lloyd, of near Harlan, were Sunday dinner guests of Joel Bets and wife.

The cabinet of the Ladies' [illegible] of the M. E. church will [illegible] Thursday afternoon at the [illegible] of their president, Mrs. R. U. Bowser to arrange for the year.

Word was received here that Mrs. Herbert [illegible], formerly of this place, underwent an operation last week at the Hope [illegible] hospital at Ft. Wayne.

The High school [illegible] [illegible]

Mrs. Della Scott is very sick suffering with gall stones.

Beatrice Wasson and Cleo Bowser returned to High School, Monday, after several weeks illness.

Miss Mary White spent Sunday with her parents, Gene White and wife, east of town.

Herman Reasoner and wife spent Monday with his parents, Charles Reasoner and wife, north of St. Joe Miss Lucy Zimmerman, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis had another operation and is in a very serious conditions.

Dr. Argyl Beams, who has been here assisting in caring for his mother, left Monday evening for his home in Cleveland.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Reasoner and daughter, Violet, were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gust Hafner and family.

Mrs. R. U. Bowser entertained Tuesday afternoon the following ladies, Mesdames Bonnie Watters and Herman Beckman, of near Ft. Wayne; Claude Hafner, Jennett Askey, and Gertie Wasson.

The first mid-year institute of the Epworth Leagues of the Fort Wayne district will meet at Auburn on Feb. 10th, 11th, 12th. An effort is being made by the president, Miss Cleo Bowser, of the Epworth Leaguers of the M. E. church of this place to have as many attend as possible. The Rev. Uphoff has charge of the song services.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chaney died Monday at the home of her son, Bert Wasson, west of town. Mrs. Chaney suffered a stroke of paralysis, Friday. She leaves three sisters: Mrs. Jane Hull, of Concord; Mrs. Anna Rickett, of Newville, and Mrs. Tillie Shelden, of Johnsonburg, Penn.; and one brother, Milton Wasson, of California; four grandchildren, one great grandchild. The funeral was held Wednesday at Sedan, where she made her home until recently.

What God Says.

Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord in vain, for the Lord will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain.

Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.

HERE AND THERE.

Mrs. Sam Gee was at Auburn, Tuesday, visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Millo Provines, and the family.

Damage to the home of Charles Madden of Butler last Wednesday morning, when fire broke out on the roof, amounted to about $10.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Koch, Mr and Mrs. Roy Koch, and children, Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Rosenbury, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Walters.

Mrs. Laura Draggoo, a resident of Concord, died at her home of pneumonia, Tuesday. Funeral services was held from the residence on Thursday afternoon. Interment in [illegible] cemetery.

The body of [illegible] will be brought to this place [illegible] and funeral will be held [illegible] afternoon, from the [illegible] residence. Obituary will appear in next week's issue.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Ford THE UNIVERSAL CAR

-Attention! FORD Owners-

FORD parts, like most everything else worth while, are counterfeited. The manufacturers of these imitation parts are obviously not as interested as we are in maintaining the high standard of quality and the complete satisfaction of FORD owners. Imitation parts are manufactured to sell at the highest possible rate of profit and the grades of steel used are consequently not the same high quality, specially heat-treated alloy steels specified in FORD formulas for the mauufacture of Genuine FORD Parts.

Don't be misled--Insist upon Genuine FORD Parts made by the FORD Motor Company. By so doing you will get from 35 to 100 per ct. more wear from them, and you will pay the lowest possible cost—the same everywhere.

50 per ct. of Genuine FORD parts Retail for less than 10c. each

Ask for parts Price List.

When your FORD car, truck or FORDSON Tractor needs attention, call on the following authorized FORD dealer, who is properly equipped, employs competent mechanics, and uses Genuine FORD and FORDSON parts in all repair work.

F. W. SILBERG, SPENCERVILLE, Ind.

WORTHY OF HIGHEST HONORS

"Made All Americans His Debtors," Declares New York Newspaper, in Eulogy of Jay Cooke.

It is altogether fitting that Duluth, Minn., should be the site of a statue, such as has just been unveiled within its boundaries, in honor of Jay Cooke. Mr. Cooke is known as the "Father of Duluth," the city Proctor Knott described as "the zenith city of the unsalted seas." The Northwest owes much to Mr. Cooke. But a memorial to Jay Cooke would be appropriate in any American settlement. His financial genius was freely put at the service of the government during and after the Civil war. His energy was spent in raising money to support the armies and the navy. He was as ingenious and as persistent in his task of filling the treasury as was the most modern Liberty bond salesman. He was a tower of strength in the days after the war when the edifice of public credit was undergoing repair. He made all Americans his debtors. Such men as Jay Cooke seldom receive during their lives the recognition that is due to them. Time puts them in their proper relation to events in public understanding.—New York Herald.

Too Far.

Cornelius Vanderbilt objected at a dinner in New York to the American rule of politeness whereby men pull out and then push in ladies' chairs as the latter seat themselves at table.

"That," he said, "is carrying our table manners too ridiculously far. It reminds me of the Texas father.

"A Texas father was dining with his son in a Texas hotel, and in the course of dinner the son got into an argument with a cowboy. The cowboy called the son an offensive name, a very offensive name, and the young fellow grabbed his knife in his fist and started around the table to be avenged.

"But his father seized him by the coat-tail.

"'Ain't ye got no table manners?' the old man hissed.

"'But, paw, ye heerd what he called me, didn't ye?'

"'Yes, I heerd all right, but that ain't no ground for yer forgettin' yer table manners. Put down that there knife and go at him with yer fork!'"

Your Legal Notices

Should be sent to the

News Office

where the estate is in St. Joe and vicinity.

Don't fail to see that all the notices are published in the St. Joe News.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	85
M. P.	71
Lutheran	74
M. E. Spencer	70
Lutheran	62
Coburntown	77
Newville U. B.	76
Christian	70
Concord	38

The Coolidge Store

In the building formerly owned by Jack Beams we are doing a rushing business in

Dry Goods, Boots, Shoes, Coats,

Sheep skinned lined and other kinds

Groceries, Candies, Cigars, Tobacco, Farm Produce, Eggs, Butter, Cream, Light Hardware.

There Is Always Something In Store For You Here

Watch this space for Specials next week.

D. COOLIDGE, Spencerville, Indiana.

[illegible] CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible] AND BOYS [illegible]

[illegible]

FEBRUARY

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognized Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

IX.

NO REWARD FOR LOYALTY

What can a man hope for who enters the government service as a career? Let us look at some actual cases. Here is the story of one as told by E. J. Ayers, chief clerk, Department of the Interior. He cites it as a case similar to that of many others in his department, and says there are many others who are in worse circumstances:

"The records of our department show that he entered the service as a laborer at $660 a year, after a service of three and a half years in the United States navy as a first-class fireman, with an honorable discharge. He has been with us for more than thirty-three years, and is sixty-six years old, and has given more than half his life to the service of the government.

"He owns a little property three miles beyond the Chesapeake Junction, and he gets up early in the morning, before daylight, and comes in to work and goes out after dark at night. Today he is getting $840 a year. He has raised a family of nine children—three of whom are now dead—eight boys and one daughter. His elder sons are married and have established homes of their own. Two of his sons were in the military service in France, and his daughter, twelve years old, lives with her grandmother, where he is supporting, educating and clothing her.

"He is a white man, a very intelligent man, eminently qualified for this particular line of work. His wife is dead. He is his own housekeeper and he does the cooking and the washing and the ironing.

"His home was established in its present location because it was not thought practicable to raise a family in the district, and he bought a piece of property in Prince George's county three miles beyond the railroad terminal, which distance, as I said, he walks twice a day, leaving in the morning most of the year before daylight, and returning home by dark. This small place consists of a shack and a few acres of land on which he has a mortgage of $1,000, and you can judge that he enjoys no conveniences other than the small house, which protects him from the elements.

"The house is divided into four rooms, the partitions being of paper tacked to the framework, there being no laths or plaster.

"The small stove standing in the center of the room he has used for more than twenty years, and the pot on the stove contains his Sunday dinner, which he has prepared for himself, consisting of white navy beans and fatback. These beans are now costing him twenty-five to thirty cents a quart, and the fatback costs him forty cents a pound. It could have been purchased a few years ago for seventeen cents a pound, and the beans for ten cents. He does not get any fresh meat because he cannot afford to buy it.

"To my mind it seems a pity that the United States government should employ men of that type, or any other type for that matter, and not give them enough to live on decently. It is particularly a pity in this case because he is somewhat superior to many of the employees. He has stayed with us as a matter of faithfulness to the government, and has stayed with us when he could make more in one week outside of the government than we pay him for one month.

"Others have left us, but instances of that kind have been very few. At one time I had in our auditorium our employees and I made an appeal to them to stand by us during the war period, and there were more than 300 of them present, and they all of one accord assured us that they would stand by us and would give us the benefit of their labor in our department during the war period, notwithstanding the fact that the price for labor outside was a great deal more."

This curious pride in their work and loyalty to the government and the government service was a thing that cropped up in the most unexpected places.

As one employee put it: "I think you will find that every service seems to be quite proud of its work. I know you will find it in our service as far as compensation and such as that are concerned. The pay in this office is small, but that element, that feeling in a man's mind that he is really helping to accomplish good work and helping this government to function well, is really part of it. I find in all my talks with employees that they really feel proud of their work, and that pride is really what gets things done. I think that is true everywhere in the whole service, and particularly throughout the executive departments."

That is curiously true, and it is one of the reasons, possibly the chief reason, why men stay on in the departments year after year at a low rate of pay and not much possibility of promotion.

READ LANE'S DIAGNOSIS

In his final report to the President, upon completing his work as secretary of the interior, Franklin K. Lane sketched with a sure hand out of the abundance of his experience the present Washington condition:

> The call is for thinking, planning, engineering, statesmanship. For we are quickly passing out of the rough-and-ready period of our national life, in which we have dealt wholesale with men and things, into a period of more intensive development, in which we must seek to find the special qualities of the individual unit, whether that unit be an acre of desert, a barrel of oil, a mountain canyon, the flow of a river or the capacity of the humblest of men.
>
> "To conquer and to master—the same old task is ours; but not in the same old way. We have discovered this land and made it ours, but this is not the end of our journey, for now we are to give thought, the deepest thought, to the ways in which it may be made to yield most abundantly in the things which a complex society with a most imperious curiosity demands.
>
> Washington is a combination of political caucus, drawing-room and civil service bureaus. It contains statesmen who are politicians and politicians who are not statesmen. It is rich in brains and in character. It is honest beyond any commercial standard. It wishes to do everything that will promote the public good. But it is poorly organized for the task that belongs to it. Fewer men of larger capacity would do the task better.
>
> Ability is not lacking, but it is pressed to the point of paralysis because of an infinitude of details and an unwillingness on the part of the great body of public servants to take responsibility. Everyone seems to be afraid of everyone. The self-protective sense is developed abnormally, the creative sense [illegible]. Trust, confidence, enthusiasm—these simple virtues of all great business are the ones most lacking in government organization.
>
> We have so many checks and balances upon our work that our progress has not kept pace with the nation's requirements. We could save money for the government if we had more discretion as to how we would use that given us.
>
> For the sake of the civil servants there should be quicker promotion or [illegible] and a sure insurance when [illegible]. For the higher [illegible] there should [illegible]

[illegible] system of competitive examinations and appointments on merit has been built up for the classes of positions covered by the law. But beyond certification by the civil service commission for appointment of those applicants who are proved by examination to be eligible, the merit system is not fully operative even in connection with the positions to which it applies. Haphazard practices in assignments of work and in promotions, over which no central authority has jurisdiction, have brought about inequalities which are discouraging to the workers. This condition and the relatively low salaries paid by the government cause a "turnover" in government forces that could not long be withstood by a private business.

The readjustment of government salaries in the District of Columbia has recently received the attention of the joint commission on reclassification of salaries, which was authorized by a provision in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation act approved March 1, 1919. The report of this commission is now in the hands of congress and its fate remains to be seen. The report represents many months of work and an effort to present data which will enable congress to understand conditions as they exist.

The present civil service law was enacted to correct the evils of the "spoils system" which had become intolerable. That the plan provided by the law, that of appointments through competitive examinations for [illegible] positions, has been a vast improvement over the old patronage [illegible] is generally conceded; but the law failed to be a completely effective instrument by not providing for the application of the merit system [illegible]

[illegible]

INDIANA State News

Wabash.—A membership drive, in which an effort will be made to sign every former service man in the county as a member of the American Legion, has been started at Wabash. It will last until February 28, when all of the new members will be initiated at a county meeting to be held here.

Portland.—A military band for Portland was assured at a meeting and smoker held in the office of the Portland chamber of commerce when the minimum number of enlistments required to form the band detachment of the One hundred and fifty-second infantry, Indiana national guard, were obtained. A total of 19 Portland musicians form the organization.

Indianapolis.—The Indiana Grain Dealers' association in its closing session, re-elected H. W. Reimann, of Indianapolis, as its president. The other officers are: H. C. Scarce, Mooresville, vice-president; Bert A. Boyd, Indianapolis, treasurer; H. W. Dean, Bluffton, and N. O. Davis, Frankfort, members of the executive committee. About 250 members were registered at the convention.

Petersburg.—Pike county farmers are holding their wheat and corn for higher prices. Wheat is in fine condition for next year's crop, and the extreme cold weather has greatly benefited corn in cribs, drying it out and keeping it from molding. Feeding of live stock has almost doubled in Pike county since the price of corn went down, and every farmer has a large drove of hogs or cattle that he is feeding, and many farmers have doubled and tripled their droves of hogs, which they are fattening for the spring markets.

Jeffersonville.—After being practically closed down for nearly three months, during which only a small amount of repair and construction work has been handled, the Jeffersonville plant of the American Car and Foundry company has received a contract for 50 pieces of passenger equipment for the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. The value of the contract is more than $1,000,000 and the order includes day coaches, chair cars, mail cars and baggage cars. It will be two months before a full force of men is at work, but many will be returning before that.

Indianapolis.—Another appeal to land owners along the state highways to move their fences so as to widen the road right of way to 50 feet was made in letters sent out by Lawrence Lyons, director of the state highway commission. State engineers will set stakes for the new fence lines. Mr. Lyons put emphasis on the benefit land owners receive from a state road passing their farm. His letter, in part, said: "Many people are not so fortunate as to live upon a state road which will be made a good road in the near future, yet they pay the same taxes as those who front on a state highway. Therefore, we do not think it unfair for those who are to benefit most by the road to co-operate to the extent of furnishing a place to build it."

Indianapolis.—A new disease is prevalent in Indianapolis, Dr. Herman G. Morgan, secretary of the city board of health, announced. The disease, which is not serious, resembles mumps so closely in its symptoms that a number of physicians have diagnosed cases of the affliction as mumps only to learn later that they were mistaken and that quarantine orders that had been issued should be rescinded. The disease, Doctor Morgan said, is an unusual form of adenitis, which is an inflammation of the glands of the neck. The patient's throat swells and the muscles of the neck become stiff, while the scalp becomes sensitive and tender. The disease is accompanied by sore throat. It usually passes in five or six days, but it is transmissable, Doctor Morgan said.

Indianapolis.—The Indiana Electric corporation petitioned the public service commission for authority to issue $6,000,000 worth of stocks and bonds to finance a power plant it says it will build on the Wabash river in the Vigo county coal field. The company filed another petition in which it asked permission to reduce to $2,000,000 [illegible]

[illegible]

Monticello.—As a part of the economic production program being carried out by county agents, corn shows and demonstrations of treating oats for smut are planned for the rural schools of Monon, Cass, Round Grove, Liberty, Union and Prairie townships, in White county.

Marion.—An unusual situation presented itself at Marion when a basket company made known its inability to obtain sufficient help. Although there is a great deal of unemployment, the company says it has been unable to procure a sufficient number of girls to do special work.

Indianapolis.—Calvin S. Smith, forty-one years old, his wife, Mary Smith, thirty-six years old, and Neal Trestor, thirty years old, all of Indianapolis, and John J. Wright, aged forty-six, of Martinsville, were killed when a four-car Indianapolis & Cincinnati traction freight train struck an automobile in which they were riding at a crossing in Indianapolis. They were returning to Indianapolis after a visit with relatives at Gent, Ky.

Shoals.—An organiaztion is being perfected at Shoals to buy Kentucky bred and northwestern trained wolf hounds to use in chasing the Halbert township wolf pack. It is thought by those interested that wolf chasing will far exceed fox chasing, which is a popular sport in the Shoals locality. The Halbert township pack is increasing considerably in number and it is believed that now there are from forty to fifty of the wolves in the township and adjoining townships. They are large timber wolves and are very wild.

Bloomington.—In the face of assertions that modern college life is mainly living, loving and loafing, Indiana university points to Miss Ruth M. Bourne of Richmond as a denying answer. She has made her own way through school, working two hours each day in the university cafe and putting in extra time in a departmental office. She is a member of the debating class, of the history and psychology clubs, and in addition finds time to serve on a committee of students working in the interest of Indiana university's million-dollar memorial building campaign.

Terre Haute.—The Grasselli Chemical company plant north of Terre Haute will resume the manufacture of metallic zinc within the next few months, it has been officially announced. A coal mine of 1,000 tons daily capacity is now being opened and is to be operated solely by and for the Grasselli company. When the shaft is completed, fourth-vein coal will be mined. The Grasselli company will employ about 450 persons. One hundred of this number will be employed in the mine and 350 in the zinc smelting and refining plant. This number exceeds any number formerly employed and, it is said, in time work will be provided for many more.

Indianapolis. — Automobiles are charged with being the greatest single cause of accidental deaths in Indiana last year in the annual compilation of vital statistics made by the state board of health. The total charged to the automobile was 313 deaths. Railroads, however, ranked third with 263 fatalities, and are not charged in the health board's statistics with deaths of autoists killed in crossing accidents. Such deaths are classified against the auto. Falls, next to the auto, are the leading cause for accidental death. In 1921 a total of 312 persons in Indiana met their death in this manner. Some of the falls were from tall buildings, and others a tumble down stairs or off a porch.

Evansville.—The fourth annual convention of the Associated Building Contractors of Indiana came to a close at Evansville after Michigan City had been selected as the place for the 1923 convention. William Jungelaus of Indianapolis was elected president. The resolutions, as adopted, state that no strike shall occur during the pendency of any discussion relating to a change in wage scales or for any other reason that may be brought up in the way of dispute. Joint committees of equal representation will carry on all discussions regarding any question of difference when presented. Jurisdictional disputes will be settled by the awards of the national jurisdictional award board; should any other question arise upon which no decision has been made, the question will be referred to the jurisdictional award board. The resolutions were adopted unanimously.

Indianapolis. — Constitutionality of the tax section of the 1917 school consolidation law was upheld by the Supreme court in an opinion handed down. The decision was made affirming an order of the Wayne Circuit court, which directed a township trustee to perform duties as a member of the board of trustees for the consolidated school district of Cambridge City and Jackson township of Wayne county. The tax section of the law [illegible]

[illegible]

True Detective Stories

THE DEVONSHIRE DIAMONDS

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

HAD Lady Alberta Devon not yielded to temptation at the last moment and stepped out of her boudoir to secure her sister's opinion upon the effect of her latest Parisian creation it is quite possible that Inspector John Sweeney of Scotland Yard would not have had the opportunity of proving his detective genius in a peculiarly striking manner.

Lady Alberta was absent from her room for less than ten minutes; but during that time occurred an event which, for several hours, threatened to disrupt several of the highest social circles in England.

It was the night of the Devon ball, held in the big old-fashioned house in the center of the Devon estate. As was only to be expected, the list of guests read like a section from Burke's Peerage—a fact which made Inspector Sweeney's work distinctly more difficult when the loss of the famous necklace of Devonshire was reported to Scotland Yard.

Early in the evening Lady Alberta had dismissed her maid with the statement that she would complete her toilette herself, but, just as she was about to put on her necklace—an heirloom which had greatly increased in value because of its historic connections—she thought it would be well to secure an unbiased opinion as to the effect of her gown, which had just arrived from Paris. When she returned from her sister's room a few minutes later she reached for the necklace, only to discover that it had vanished!

Positive that she had had it in her hands less than ten minutes before, she searched the room and then summoned her husband, whom she told of the mysterious loss.

"There is only one thing to do," declared his lordship, after verifying his wife's statement that the jewels were missing, "and that is to notify the police.

Inspector Sweeney reached the Devon house shortly after midnight, while the ball was still in progress, and secured the meager details of the case directly from her ladyship.

"Did you notice any one in the hall as you passed through on the way to your sister's room?" Sweeney asked.

"No one at all."

"How long has your maid been with you?"

"Less than two months—but she came well recommended."

Finally, in spite of protests, the operative from Scotland Yard gave orders that no one was to leave the grounds of the Devon estate without his permission, and, as the ball formed part of a week's festivities, it was possible to arrange this without mentioning the reason for the request to the guests. Armed with a list of those present, with their servants, Sweeney then repaired to Lady Devon's boudoir to commence active investigations.

His knowledge of London society was sufficient to inform him that at least three of the guests, despite their titles, might easily have been guilty of lifting the necklace if the opportunity had presented itself.

"The question is," mused Sweeney, "who could have known that Lady Devon would have been out of the room for just those few moments? She wasn't summoned by any message and it would therefore appear that some one was hiding in the hope that an opportunity would present itself. That would seem to eliminate the guests—but not the servants."

Working along this line, Sweeney made a careful examination of the toilet articles on the dressing table where the diamonds had been placed. After a thorough scrutiny of the perfume bottles, pieces of silver and other articles which were highly polished, the detective made his way downstairs and sent word to Lady Devon that he would like to speak to her for a moment.

"Your ladyship," he said, "will you kindly press the tips of your fingers lightly on this," and he held out one of the hand mirrors from the boudoir. "No," he added, "I'm not suspecting you of making away with your own diamonds—I merely wish to discover which finger-prints are yours."

"Then, a moment later, "Thank you. I thought as much."

"Now," he continued, "I want you to instruct your butler—whom I understand has been with you for a number of years—to secure the prints of all the servants under your roof. Tell him to make any excuse for it that he wants to, but I must secure a complete collection. [illegible] have them sent to my room the first thing in the morning. Meanwhile, don't worry. If my instructions are [illegible] carried out, your necklace should be discovered before nine o'clock."

But Sweeney underestimated by some two hours. It was eleven o'clock on the following morning before he received the complete set of finger-prints, and ten minutes later a pair of [illegible]

[illegible]

LAND GROWS RICH

Wonderful Development of Canada in Forty Years.

Four Decades Ago Little Considered, Today One of the Greatest Granaries and Dairying Centers.

The recent announcement that the sale of the first section of Canadian Pacific land was sold forty years ago, and when you read that the first carload of wheat was shipped from Winnipeg forty years ago, the changes that have taken place since then are matters of reminiscence, but yet of interest. What forty years ago was an unknown quantity, barren because but little production was attempted, is today one of the greatest granaries in the world. Then there was scarcely any farm live stock in the West. Dairying was not engaged in at all. Today there are 6,998,317 farm animals on the prairies, of which 881,899 are milch cows; and dairying is only second in importance to grain growing, in the West.

Forty years ago the shipment of one carload of grain was a notable exploit.

Today, Canada ranks as the second largest wheat-producing country in the world, with 329,185,300 bushels, 90 per cent of which was grown in the three prairie provinces, of which the province of Saskatchewan produced more than half. The Dominion is today the second largest producer of oats, with 530,710,000 bushels, of which 60 per cent was grown between Winnipeg and the Rocky mountains; and the fifth largest producer of barley with 63,311,000 bushels, of which the prairies yielded 65 per cent.

Forty years ago scarcely any of the rich soil had been brought under cultivation. The farm machinery of the time was crude; there were no competent advisers; government experimental farms were a blessing that came years later.

Yet these hardy pioneers stuck it out, and in forty years numbers of them are enjoying their declining days in the communities they wrested from the wilderness, prosperous, contented, with their children's families gathered about them or seeking their own fortunes still further westward or northward. They have seen civilization step in to the West and the wilderness swept out. Today are thriving cities and towns where bleaching buffalo bones marked the ox trails of forty years ago. Today are mighty freight trains, each with its thousand-ton cargo of wheat or merchandise, roaring down the roads where the old carts creaked. Today are schools within walking distance of every farmhouse, churches within driving distance of every home. Today are telephones and every modern convenience linking communities over vast distances by the common bond of the spoken word.

Forty years ago the Rockies were practically an impenetrable barrier, the Pacific coast being reached from the east by ships sailing round Cape Horn. The province of Manitoba had a population of 62,260, compared with 613,008 in 1921. Winnipeg was then a frontier town with 7,987 people, and Brandon, which was regarded as a far-flung outpost of the West, boasted of a few hundred in population. In 1891 it only had 3,778. Such places as Calgary and Edmonton were mere trading posts in the Northwest territories. Buffalo roamed the prairie in their native state.

Today on these plains are to be seen herds of cattle, bands of horses and droves of sheep, from any of which can easily be selected stock that can carry off premiums, sweepstakes and championships in competition with the best in any other part of the world.—Advertisement.

Farmer's work is so often well done because he does it himself.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

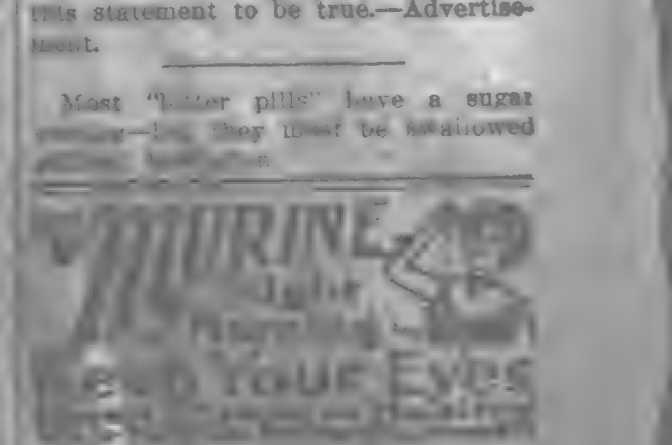
Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Few men care for solitude until they have had their crowds.

Red Cross Ball Blue is the finest product of its kind in the world. Every woman who has used it knows this statement to be true.—Advertisement.

Most "bitter pills" have a sugar coating—but they must be swallowed [illegible]



FEBRUARY

THERE IS MONEY IN FOX FARMING

Industry Is Rapidly Gaining Favor in Several of Northern States of Country.

MANY ANIMALS IN CAPTIVITY

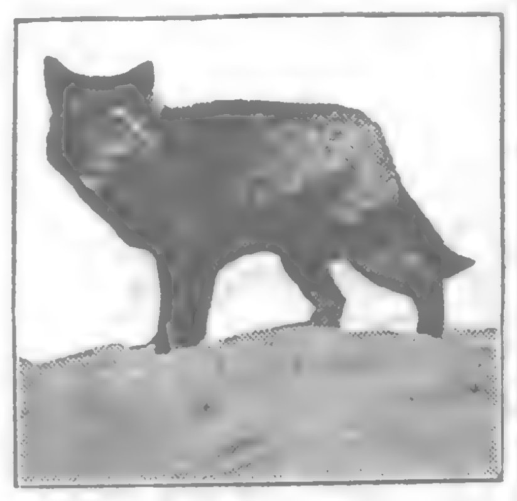
Best Location for Farm Is Where Winters Are Cold and Opportunity Offered to Develop Fur—Big Price for Pelts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Fox farming is fast gaining favor in the United States. The industry, barely known a decade ago, is fairly common in some states of the northern tier, is represented in all states in this tier and in that next to it, and is growing rapidly. There is money in it for the raiser who starts modestly, learns the business, and then expands his holdings. There are losses in store for the type who starts with a big ranch, no knowledge of the business, and only a desire for quick profits. At the present time the industry is undergoing a process of stabilization. Most fox farmers raise animals for breeding purposes, and comparatively few have adjusted the business to a pelt basis. All told, there are between 10,000 and 15,000 silver foxes being grown in captivity on American fox farms at this time.

Many Animals in Canada.

Such are some of the conclusions of a representative of the biological survey, United States Department of Agriculture, who has just returned to Washington after an extensive investigation of American fox farms and the methods of their operation. In Canada, where the industry originated, and especially on Prince Edward island, where there are approximately 15,000 foxes in captivity, fox farming is conducted on a much more extensive scale than in the United States. Its promise of good financial returns to those willing to master its problems, give indication that within a comparatively short time in this country it will rival in proportions the industry in Canada.



A Silver Fox.

The best location for a fox farm is where the winters are cold and the fox may have opportunity to develop fur in keeping with the needs of the climate. The industry is thus confined by climatic conditions to the northern states. There the raising of foxes for breeding and for the fur markets flourishes. Most of the foxes raised in captivity are on farms, or "ranches," with pens for from 25 to 50 pairs, although in occasional instances the ranches are much larger, containing pens for as many as 150 pairs.

The foxes generally breed in January and February and the young are born within 52 days. A pair of foxes raises one family a year, the number of young varying from one to ten, though rarely exceeding five or six. Most of the fox raiser's troubles come when the young are a few weeks old and are peculiarly susceptible to attacks from worms. Great care is necessary to carry the young foxes through this period.

Most Foxes Sold for Breeding.

It is not advisable to kill a fox for the pelt before 18 months of age for at that time its fur is more valuable than at a younger age. Comparatively few of the foxes raised on American ranches are sold at the present time, however, for their pelts. Most of the ranchmen obtain higher values than the worth of the pelt by selling the live animals for breeding purposes. A good pelt may fetch as much as $600, though the average is much lower, approximating $250 to $350. The furs are comparatively little known because of their rarity. Silver foxes vary from those in which the color is entirely silver to those in which it is entirely black except for some white-banded hairs on the back and rump. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

SECRETARY WALLACE ON FARM PROSPECTS

Year 1922 Should Be Better One for the Farmer.

Money Conditions Are Improving and Reduced Freight Rates Lighten Transportation Burden—Prices Hit Bottom.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

When asked for a statement on the prospects of the farmer in 1922 Secretary of Agriculture Wallace said that no man whose opinion is worth considering would care to make any hard and fast prophecies. He added, however, that there are signs which indicate that the coming year should be a better one for the farmer and for those who deal with him than was 1921. Among these hopeful signs he mentioned the following:

Credit conditions are better both through regular channels and through the special agencies created to meet the farmer's needs. Interest rates also are softening.

Reductions already made in freight rates on farm products lighten by that much the transportation burden which the farmer has been carrying.

Cost of producing farm crops will be lower relatively in 1922 than in 1921.

Very likely there will be a reduction in the acreage of some of the grain of which we now have such a large surplus, and this should tend toward better prices.

The paralyzing effect of the sudden drop in prices last year is wearing off, and farmers will enter the new year more hopefully, believing that the worst is over.

Congress has indicated a willingness to enact such legislation as promises to be helpful.

Farmers are coming to see more clearly that the task of putting farming on sound business basis is really up to them and that through organization they can reduce marketing costs. In this they will have increasing help from the Department of Agriculture and the various state agricultural colleges which now see better than before that they must give the farmer the same sort of help in the marketing of his crops that they have been giving him in the production.

In the industrial and financial centers there is coming to be a better understanding of the important part the farmer plays in our general economic scheme, and consequently a decidedly more intelligent and sympathetic attitude toward him and his problems.

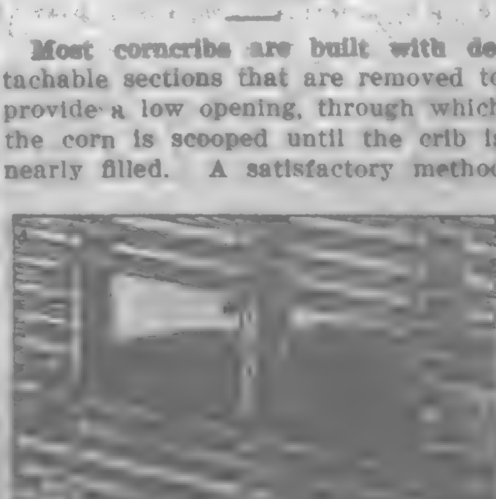
With prices of farm products falling and the future very uncertain, even those farmers who had money laid by—and there are a large number of such—have been restricting their buying to what they had to have. Now with the growing belief that prices have hit bottom, buying will be resumed and should increase in volume, and manufacturers and retailers who make or sell things that farmers need or want should have better business this coming year.

Everything considered, therefore, we can enter the new year in a spirit of hopefulness and good cheer. I see nothing which indicates boom times for the farmer in the near future, but there does seem to be promise of better times both for the farmer and for those whose business is largely dependent upon him.

HOLD CORNCRIB DOORS SHUT

Disks From an Old Harrow Placed Over Corners of Sections Will Prove Efficient.

Most corncribs are built with detachable sections that are removed to provide a low opening, through which the corn is scooped until the crib is nearly filled. A satisfactory method [illegible]



Disks Hold Corncrib Doors in Place.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Must Watch the Modes of Paris

Real expression of Paris is found in the restaurant frock. And this is the time of year when designers over there are bending the best of their efforts to create dresses of such character. Then, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, while we in America do not go in for the restaurant frock as such, still we have a distinct predisposition to a dress of this type, and it is from those models for Parisian restaurant life that we take many of the ideas which carry us into more particularized American creations. The dresses, in fact, which are being worn now in Paris are those it behooves us to watch from this side of the Atlantic, if we wish to be anywhere in touch with fashions as they proceed along their varied ways.

But the restaurant dresses that are new just now are the loveliest, it seems, which have ever been made. they have been in the recent past. But in New York, wherever well-dressed women are gathered together, there is a surprising preponderance of black.

During the last few weeks one has noted some exception to this general rule in the way of all-white frocks seen on many of the younger girls of the theater and dances. But, as a rule, these frocks are made along plain and simple lines, just as their black sisters, and they take the tone of their general effect from their harmony with the personality of the wearer.

Often a white dress on a very accentuated brunette type will create the most vividly colorful effect. And again the all-black costume on a girl whose hair and complexion are a light blonde are the things which make every beholder sit up and take particular notice. Premet's gown is made from a combination of black satin and a vivid blue chiffon, upon which foundation are sewn black jet cabochons in a regularity of pattern which is most charming.

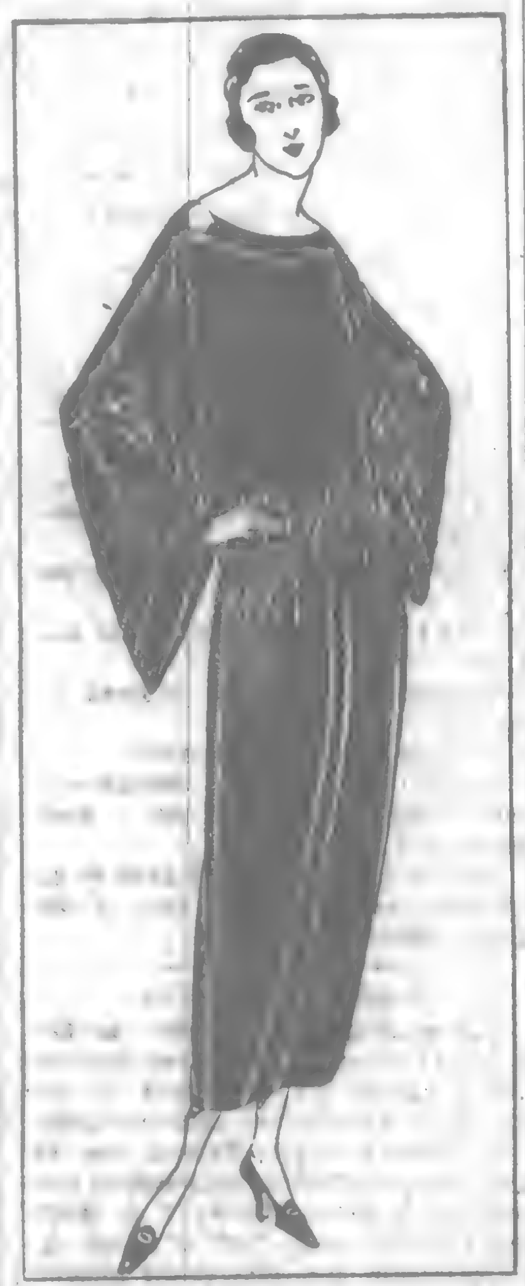
Again the waistline is long, without being too unwieldy in its general proportions, and again the design and construction of the frock are so simple that they seem to defy competition in that particular direction. The black satin is so arranged that it seems to make the foundation gown, but nothing of that sort has really happened. The two materials are so blended that, between them, they make a pattern and a clever combination that seems destined to make the gown which shall be the most successful of the season.

From this gown it will be seen that no particular accent has been put upon the waistline. At that point a simple fold of the material has been the sole claimant to distinction, and it has succeeded in preserving the straight line of the gown with perfect effect.

Draping Is Interesting.

The draping of strings of jet jewels is the interesting feature trimming of this gown of Premet's. Against the lighter color they are always posed, and they are allowed to swing in loose, long lines, contributing their effect to the general gathering-together of lines which all tend in up and down and exaggerated directions. Ladies must be tall in the modern clothes, and tall without the slightest interruption to that scheme. Even if they are short to begin with, they are still expected to wear clothes to make them long-looking in spite of themselves. And for the ladies who are really tall to begin with—why there is no end to the heights they will manage to reach with the aid of the modern dress. They must not be afraid of their own exaggerated lines, that is all. They must frankly accept the fact that they are the leaders of style and play into the hands of the dressmakers who wish to use every atom of the height which is theirs by natural birthright.

Poiret is usually noted for doing the outre thing in the way of women's dress. He is the insurgent in the camp. And yet when you whittle it right down to the base of the situa- [illegible]



Black Crepe Frock With Silver Beads.

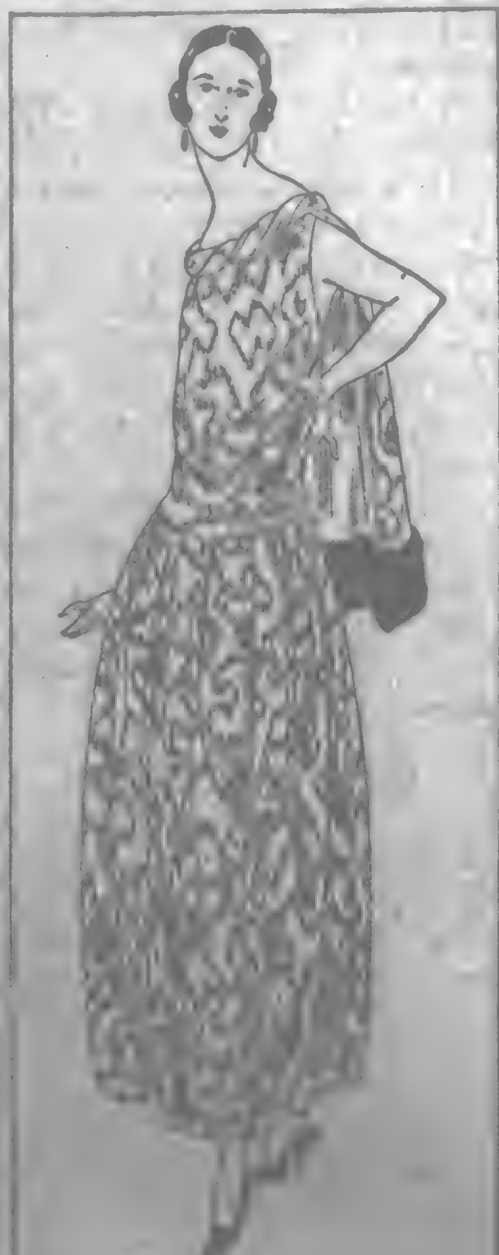
They are simpler even than the simplest of day-time frocks, but they have that distinction of cut and line and fabric which marks them for leaders in their own generation. Most of the draping has disappeared; uneven hems, except those very much restrained, are taboo, and altogether the best of the fresher dresses of this sort have resolved themselves into quite classic affairs.

Quite interesting are the newest of the dresses from three of the leading Parisian couturiers. They are Jenny, Poiret and Premet, each of whom is entitled to a distinct command for fashion as it exists and shall exist. All the waistlines are as long as is consistent with a picturesque effect. The material is the only real consideration about the gowns, and, while the skirts are long, they are not unduly so, to instigate a riot in the camp of those who hate to see the skirts of dresses drop too far.

Sparkles With Brilliancy.

Jenny's dress is made of black crepe. The French call it "crepe morocain noir." It is then trimmed with the slightest tracery of beads in silver and gray. It might, upon this description, be called dull, but only by one who did not know the art of a French designer. Those clever ones—and especially Jenny—can make black and gray and silver shine until they glow with color, and that with only the merest bit of a pattern of trimming with which to create a contrast.

The bodice of this frock is typical of so many of the newer waists. It is just a trifle longer than the normal waistline and manages to give that effect of [illegible]



[illegible] in Ivory and [illegible]

Genuine

BAYER

ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Colds
Toothache
Earache
Headache
Neuralgia
Lumbago
Rheumatism
Neuritis
Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Jud Tunkins.

"A fight," said Jud Tunkins, "in most cases is merely the result of an argument in which two men were trying to reform each other."

GET COLOR INTO YOUR PALE CHEEKS

If Your Face is Your Fortune, Don't Look Like a Bankrupt.

Who does not want red lips, a good, clear, healthy complexion and bright, flashing eyes?

Some people have such wonderfully good health nothing seems to hurt them. Others could so easily have fine color and more strength and vigor if they would help nature with Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It is a splendid iron tonic that physicians have prescribed for thirty years. It is not an experiment. It is not merely a temporary help, because it makes plenty of red blood and, as everybody knows, red blood is the only sure foundation of permanent health and strength. Get Pepto-Mangan of your druggist—and take it a few weeks and see how much better you feel and look. Sold in liquid and tablet form. Advertisement.

Degrees.

Crawford—Doesn't he realize that he'll get into trouble about his neighbors?

Crabshaw—I suppose so, but he figures that he would get into more if he told the truth about them.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Educating the public is no great task if it is anything in which the movies can educate them.

Don't attempt to talk if your mouth is full or your head is empty.

Curiosity leads us into temptation as often as covetousness.

MOTHER! CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Sam says: Workers never kick and kickers never work.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

Garfield Tea

Was Your Grandmother's Remedy

For every stomach and intestinal ill. This good old-fashioned herb home remedy for constipation, stomach ills and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicine than in your grandmother's day.

Yeast Vitamon Tablets Bring Real Beauty

Banishes Skin Eruptions. Puts On Firm Flesh, Strengthens The Nerves and Increases Energy.

LUSTROUS HAIR
BRIGHT EYES
HEALTHY [illegible]
NO FLABBINESS
NO HOLLOWS

Concentrated Tablets Easy and Economical to Take. Results Quick.

If you want to quickly clear your skin and complexion, put some firm, healthy flesh on your bones, increase your nerve force and power [illegible] per cent. better, [illegible]

[illegible]

MASTIN'S VITAMON

[illegible]

MASTIN'S VITAMON

FEBRUARY

HARTZOG EYE SIGHT SPECIALIST

--Dr.--

J. W. Hartzog

Eye-Sight

SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist Office, St. Joe, Ind.,

Friday, FEBRUARY 10th

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Every Boy Wants It

If you could realize how much that boy of yours, or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well-balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through—and its influence is of the best.

THE AMERICAN BOY

"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"

In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.

Price Reduced

THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. Make some boy happy—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY!

Mail this Coupon to the publication in which this offer appears.

For $2.00 enclosed send a Year's Subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, beginning with the ....Number to

Name ....

Address ....

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174

For Sale at your Dealer Made in five grades

ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND

EAGLE MIKADO

EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

ADVERTISERS

don't "Stand in your own light," advertise in

The St Joe News

a paper that has a wide country circulation.

BASKET BALL

Friday Night, FEB. 3rd, At 7:30

Butler Grammar Room

—vs.—

St. Joe Grammar Room

two games—boys and girls

Admission, 10 and 15 cents

[illegible]

Obituary

Letha May Federspiel was born near Harlan, Ind., Feb 12th, 1911, and died at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Walters, Jan. 24, 1922. Her father, Philip Federspiel, died Sept., 1912.

She has made her home with her grandmother Snider most of the time since her father's death, coming to St. Joe about a year ago to make her home with her mother.

She has been a constant sufferer since last March. All that care and skill could do was done to relieve her, but seemed to only prolong the suffering. The last few months have been especially severe, and the constant care and attention has been a severe strain on her loved ones.

Beside the mother, Mrs. Florence Walters, she leaves two brothers, Dale and George Walter, the step-father, Geo. Walters, sr., two grandmothers—Mrs. Snider of St. Joe, and Mrs. Federspiel of Harlan.

Through all her suffering she was patient and hopeful. During her last time away from home she was in attendance at the Sunday school services, and through her classmates she kept in touch with the school during her illness.

Funeral services were conducted from the M. P. church on Thursday, Jan. 26, at two o'clock, with Rev. C. O. Johnson officiating, assisted by Rev. Albright of Harlan. Burial took place in the Riverside cemetery. Funeral director, E R. Kinsey.

Sherman Ulyssis White, better known as "Dick" White, was born near Fairview, Ind., on March 23, 1866, and departed this life January 24th, 1922, aged 55 years, 10 months and one day.

His youth was spent at home. On April 30th, 1902, he was united in marriage to Anna C. Boger, who now survives.

Mr. White spent all of his life in this vicinity up until eight years ago when he moved to Big Rapids, Mich. For the last two years his health had been failing, and November 23rd, last year, he came to visit with his sister, Mrs. Mary Jane Silberg, thinking that a complete rest might help him to recovery, but contrary to his expectations he found that his trouble was one from which he could not hope to recover.

He was one of a family of eight children, four boys and four girls, of which only the oldest and the youngest sister survives.

Besides his griefstricken wife, he leaves his two sisters: Mrs. Mary Jane Silberg of Spencerville, and Mrs. Mattie Bowman of St. Joe; six nephews and nine nieces with other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held from the home on Thursday, Jan 26th, with Rev. A. F. Uphoff officiating, interment being made in the St. Joe cemetery, with Roscoe Walter, funeral director.

Card of Thanks.

In this manner we desire to thank our friends for the help and sympathy rendered us during the sickness and death of our dear husband and brothers. The flowers were appreciated very much.

Mrs. Sherman White, wife;
Mrs. Mary Jane Silberg and
Mrs. Mattie Bowman, sisters.

Hiram David Poper was born May 23, 1855, and departed this life Jan. 28, 1922, at the age of [illegible] years.

He spent his entire life in this section of Indiana and most of it near St. Joe on a farm. He was always active in the community in which he lived and attracted many friends.

[illegible]

brothers and seven sisters.

Of the relatives left are his wife, three children, six grandchildren, three brothers and four sisters.

He was baptised into Christ in 1885 by L. L. Carpenter, and lived a consistant Christian life, eating of the fruits of the Spirit and walking in the fear of the Lord. He also was a Master Mason, belonging to the lodge at Butler.

His sickness, which caused his death, was not of long duration but was severe.

Funeral services were conducted from the Christian Church by Rev. John B. Dickson, of Hicksville, and by a delegation of Masons from Butler who were accompanied by a few of the Newville and St. Joe Brothers. The usual Masonic services at the grave was dispensed with owing to the inclemency of the weather. E. R. Kinsey, funeral director.

CARD OF THANKS.

To those who helped us during the sickness and death of our dear husband and father, and also for the beautiful floral offerings we desire to express our sincere thanks.

Mrs. Poper and Children.

Verbal Curiosities.

A Kansas man has collected a list of words and expressions [illegible] to that [illegible]. Among them are:

Compulsory (meaning necessity or compulsion). "It was a case of compulsoncy, so I went."

Dingling—"He went dingling across the street."

Fleas in one's [illegible]—[illegible]

[illegible]—To [illegible] or reckon.

Jubersome—Dubious, doubtful.

Scald (to get [illegible])—"I baked bread today and got a [illegible] scald on it."

Dead in the shell—"If I have to go without sleep I'll be just dead in the shell."—Boston Transcript.

Radium Versus Knife.

Use of "bloodless surgery" on the face was described in papers read recently before the convention of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology. Radium needles are among the instruments used in this work, as explained by Dr. F. B. [illegible] and Dr. William R. Clark of Pittsburg.

With them, according to the doctors, birth marks, tumors and other malignant growths may be made to disappear. It was said the advantage of this method over knife surgery was that the growths seldom [illegible].—Philadelphia Dispatch in the New York Tribune.

* * *

W. C. T. U. NEWS

Mrs. Lora Leighty very pleasantly entertained the W. C. T. U. Friday afternoon. An instructive program was rendered, and the programs for the coming year were handed out.

Members

Anna Adams
Mary Buchanan
Lillian Buckingham
Ada Bassett
Emma Bishop
Belle Barney
Esther Bowman
Mattie Bowman
Margaret Cannon
Delora Curie
Dora Daily
Vina Fish
Alice Gee
Sylvia Ginther
Pluma Hampson
Retta Hathaway
Hazel Herrick
Ida Herrick
Nancy [illegible]
Loretta Hull
Jane Hull
[illegible] Hull
[illegible] Johnson
Belle Keesler
Frances Koch
[illegible] Kinsey
[illegible]
[illegible] Leighty
Kate Leighty
[illegible] Lawson
Eva [illegible]
Libbie [illegible]man
Eva [illegible]
[illegible] Northrup
[illegible] Robinson
[illegible] Patterson
[illegible]

The Gossips Say-

Try a NEWS want ad—It Pays.

Valentine cards at News office.

Mrs. Frank Curie was a recent Ft. Wayne visitor.

Mrs. Wm Randall has been on the sick list since Friday.

James Smith of Garrett was in town last Saturday.

Will Curie and George Swineford were Auburn visitors, Monday.

Mrs. Vina Fish and granddaughter, Miss Carrie Davison, spent Saturday morning at Hicksville.

Mrs. Belle Keesler and Mrs. Anna Koch spent last Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Beulah Coburn.

Miss Helen Smith and Miss Venus Shults spent last Saturday at Fort Wayne.

Tanlac is appetizing and invigorating. Try it today. At B. S. Sheffer's.

Miss Dorothy Ginther, who is ill with typhoid fever, is improving nicely.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Will Beam and family, of Logansport, spent from Saturday until Tuesday with Sam Kees and wife.

Edith Widney went to the Fred Hart home, Tuesday, for a few days visit.

Mrs. Duncan, of Ft. Wayne, spent a few days the past week a guest of Ora Baker and wife.

Harry Cole, of near Five Corners, spent Sunday with his brother, Glen Cole.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St. Auburn, Indiana.

Orville Todd, of Wayne, spent Sunday here with his parents, H. H. Todd and wife.

Mrs Emma Bishop will entertain the Lutheran Missionary Society, Saturday afternoon.

Little Eloise Draggoo spent over Sunday with her grandparents, Ed Leighty and wife.

Wm. Pepple and wife, of Auburn, visited their daughter, Mrs. E. R. Kinsey and family, from Friday until Monday.

Mrs. Earl Mann and two daughters, Doris and Beatrice, of Hicksville, spent Saturday in the Dannie Myers home.

Frank Bowman is on the sick list this week. Mrs. Lena Meek is assisting in the bank during Mr. Bowman's absence.

C. P. Bassett and mother, Mrs. C. C. Bassett, were Tuesday dinner guests in the home of the latter's brother, C. R. Brunson, at Ft. Wayne.

Aaron Osbun, who has been managing the garage in the Koch livery barn, has closed up until warmer weather, and he and Mrs. Osbun have gone to Auburn for an indefinite stay.

Two teaspoonsful of Tanlac in a little water taken three times a day, just before meals, will make you eat better, feel better, sleep better and work better. B. S. Sheffer has it.

From the Convoy paper:—"St. Joe has come and gone (so also, has Union Center) but we prefer to think of St. Joe just now—more pleasant recollections you know. And it was really a great game—hard fought from the first bell—yet [illegible] with the comfortable margin of [illegible]. The girls game was [illegible] before, ending with [illegible] of 27-6. A delightful lunch was served the visitors after [illegible] they started [illegible] of spirits, [illegible] teams and [illegible] it should [illegible]

Paul Curie, wife and little son visited Waterloo relatives, Sunday.

Dr. C. S. Johnson returned home Friday from a several days business trip to Pittsburgh, Pa.

Anyone wanting baby chickens hatched, see Mrs. Ora Wilmot, St. Joe.

Floyd Ridgway and mother, Mrs. Belle Ridgway, were Sunday afternoon guests of Abe Mason and family, at Auburn.

H. M. Widney left Monday morning for the southern part of the state for two weeks Institute work.

Mrs. Emmett Eppler and little son, of Ft. Wayne, spent over Sunday with her parents, F. Scholes and family.

Rev. C. O. Johnson left Monday for LaGrange, where he will help Rev. Kuhns in a series of meetings of two weeks duration.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Seaness of Hillsdale, Mich., were on Saturday and over Sundays guests of Wm. Brown and wife.

Mrs H. C. Borthwick and three children spent Saturday and Sunday at Hicksville, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Fulmer.

Mrs. George Kinsey went to Ft. Wayne, Tuesday, to be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Quinn and other relatives the rest of the week.

Mrs. James Shearer returned to her home in Ft. Wayne, Tuesday, after being a guest in the home of her son, Otto Ginther, for the past week.

Wid Williams and wife entertained Chester Loucks and family of Hicksville; Mrs. Emmett Eppler, of Ft. Wayne; Miss Dorothea Scholes, Mrs. Mary Meek and Mr. L. B. Meek, Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. C. R. Price and Mrs J. P. Buckingham, who have been on the sick list for the past week, are both improving.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate.

Cause No. 2448.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons interested in the estate of Charles Kaeller, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 6th day of March, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness my name, this 18th day of January, 1922.

CLARENCE HULL,
Administrator.

Atkinson, Endicott
& Husselman,
Attorneys.

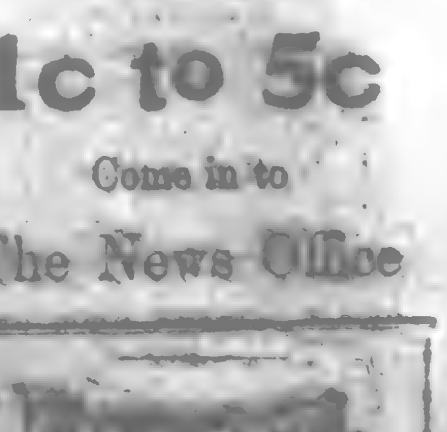
VALENTINES

FROM

1c to 5c

Come in to

The News Office



FEBRUARY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, FEB. 9, 1922 [illegible]. 6

—WHY—

PAY HIGH PRICES?

When you can buy

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suits at	$26.25
Club Clothes at	$10 to 18.75
Overcoats at	$10 to 25.00
Heavy Cotton Underwear (the suit) at	$1.15
Heavy Cotton Sweaters, with collar at	95c
Solid Leather Shoes at	$2.45
Heavy Blue Work Shirts at	65c
Sheep Skin Coats at	$6.00

All our Winter Clothing and Underwear at 1-4 OFF

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

The Coal That gives satisfaction is the COAL to buy. Every pound of our Hocking Valley and Buffalo White Ash is a pound of satisfaction. There are cheaper Coals but not as satisfactory. Order now and get the Best that money will buy.

Tankage—Cotton Seed Meal—Oil Meal—Bran and Middlinfis—Armour's Hog and Stock Feeds.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept. Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Be Careful and Systematic!

People who pay their bills by check get a reputation for being careful and systematic in their business dealings. Such a reputation means much in the establishment of credit. It costs no more to pay your money out by check than it does to use the hard cash, and you have the advantage of having it in a place that is absolutely safe.

To have MONEY in the bank is of itself a valuable asset in the establishment of credit; and it is possible to [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Special Meeting! Farmers

The Farmers' Federation of Concord township are making special preparations to render a very instructive and entertaining program at the High School building, Friday evening, Feb. 17, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The Choral Society of St. Joe will furnish the music.

These folks have been doing fine work in vocal music for several months, and their part of the program will be a great treat.

Some humorous recitations in dialect and other speaking and readings will be given; also three short talks on Federation work by competent persons will be heard.

Refreshments will be served after the program; all free.

Come and bring the whole family and help to have a profitable meeting. Committee.

St. Joe High School Notes.

SENIOR.

Another star in the senior crown—spelling averages for last week:
Seniors, 95.
Sophomores, 94.6.
Freshmen, 87.6.
Juniors, 84.8.

The seniors are rejoicing of their annual pictures. They are exceptionally good.

The seniors find the study of civics equally as interesting as the American History. P. W.

JUNIOR.

The junior English class debated on the following subject: Resolved, That there should be no coeducation in the schools above the common grades. The boys took the affirmative stand and the girls the negative. The affirmatives won with a very close score.

A junior heard the following conversation carried on by two sophomores:

1st Sophomore—"Does your pony have four legs?"

2nd Sophomore—"No, mine has two backs," referring to his Ceasar pony. J. B.

SOPHOMORE.

A class meeting was held Thursday evening last for the purpose of choosing a class motto, class colors and flowers. The motto chosen is as follows: "Climb Though the Rocks be Rugged." Colors: Purple and Violet. Flower: Lily of the Valley.

The Ceasar class has began work on Latin posters which are intended to illustrate the derivation of English words by means of pictures, etc.

The class in English, after several weeks of studying punctuation, and gramatical constructions, are again giving their attention to public speaking and story writing. B.J.

FRESHMEN.

The Freshmen Domestic Science girls have started their second semester sewing. They are now making fancy cussions.

GRAMMHR ROOM.

The 7th grade had an average in spelling last week of 97, and the eighth 96.

The 8th had an absence of 6½ days and the 7th 4½ days last week.

We were badly defeated in our game Friday evening but are living in hopes that we'll win the next time.

Seventh and eighth grades are dramatizing [illegible] to be given in one of the [illegible] during the [illegible]

What Bud Says.

[illegible]

Estate of [illegible] Lothamer is Valued [illegible] personal property and $3,000 in real estate. The heirs are a brother, Ignatius Lothamer, of Sand Lake, Michigan; a sister, Agatha Perl, of Payne, Ohio; 35 nieces and nephews, 14 great nieces and great nephews, none of whom live in DeKalb county.

[illegible]

The administrator gave $2,500 bond, with Edgar W. Atkinson, Harry G. Hogan and Guy Colerick as sureties. The real estate consists of a farm located 2 mile east of St. Joe.

St. Joe Girl Married.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Hart announce the marriage of their daughter, Anna M., age 16, high school student, to Victor E. Brown, age 21, of Dale, Ind., and an employee with the Western Union Telegraph Co., on Monday, Feb. 6, at Auburn. The ceremony took place at the M. E. Church, Rev. E. E. Trippeer pronouncing the words.

The mother of the bride accompanied the couple to Auburn and gave consent to the marriage.

Mr. Brown is leaving for Springfield, Ill., where the gang with which he works is moving Wednesday, and the bride will will remain in the home of her parents for a time. Congratulations.

Free Tuberculosis Clinic.

An other free tuberculosis clinic will be held Feb. 14, from 1 p. m., to 5 p. m., at Court House, Auburn. Physicians are requested to attend, send or bring any patient who are T. B. Suspects.

Any person feeling badly, having cough, languid or tired feeling are urgently invited to attend.

Clinic for residents of DeKalb Co. Come early for registration. Attending clinic does not bind any one desiring to go, see undersigned. Examination private.

Dr. Jas. Stygall will conduct clinic. J. Y. W. McClellan.

Farm Bureau Notes.

Say, Daddy may I join the "Pig Club" or the "Ton Litter Club"?

A great many boys and girls the country over, are asking this question. Say, Daddy, why not start your boy and girl in the right way get them interested in farm life and the great out doors.

Form a partnership or sell them a calf, pig, sheep or colt, whatever they like, then leave them sell it and start a bank account, so that when the time comes to start out for themselves it will be easy to do.

Why does the boy and girl leave the farm? Probably Dad and Mother have forgotten they were boys and girls.

Stick to the farm, boys,
Girls stick to the farm boys.

CONCORD TOWNSHIP

Last Monday night a committee met at the home of Frank Milliman and worked out this program of activities as follows:

Sow [illegible] acres, standard wheat.

Sow [illegible] acres, standard oats.

Hold two oat smut treatment demonstrations.

[illegible] of soy beans.

[illegible] in a pig club.

[illegible] culling demonstration.

Hold [illegible] picnic, including a [illegible] game and a horseshoe pitching contest.

[illegible], Pres.

[illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Garage

Boost St. Joe

Some prices you should note Columbian Hot Shot Batteries--- Four Cells. This Week Only	$2.00
30x3½ Non Skid United States Tire. This Week Only	$10.48
30x3½ United States Grey Tube. This Week Only	$1.98
30x3½ United States Royal Tube This Week Only	$2.48
Alcohol Highest Test Gal. Cans This Week Only	75c

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 95.

It will now be possible to haul freight and express for the public as well as passengers.

The GRAY Line.
The Name that stands for Stability

6 per ct.

Money to Lend on Farms

LOANS to be secured by First Mortgage for not to exceed 40% value of land alone, excluding improvements.

LOANS for more than 40% of land value at 7%

Call at our office for complete information about our conditions and terms, which are attractive.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA. Established 1860

Christian Church Notes

A council meeting of officers and teachers will be held next Sunday immediatly following Communion.

Rev. R. B. Daily motored to Monroeville, Sunday afternoon, where he held baptismal services.

The local congregation voted Sunday morning to keep Rev. R. B. Daily another year. Both Sunday School and church have been [illegible] very much during the past year.

[illegible]

indebted to Rev. R. B. Daily, James Rhodenbaugh, Harvey Lindley and Mrs. Caw for transportation. Mrs. Amanda Coburn will be the next hostess, Feb. 16.

Frank L. Leppin, of Bedford, Ind., was present at the Class of Personal Evangelism at the home of Mrs. C. C. Woodcox, Friday evening, and gave a short talk on the [illegible] Mission in Japan to which place he and his bride will sail about March 1st, where they will assist W. D. Cunningham and wife, who established this Mission in 1901.

ST. JOE.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] and [illegible] spent last [illegible] with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. [illegible]

[illegible]

FEBRUARY

The Green Pea Pirates

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN," "THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS," ETC.

Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne

CHAPTER XII—Continued.

—12—

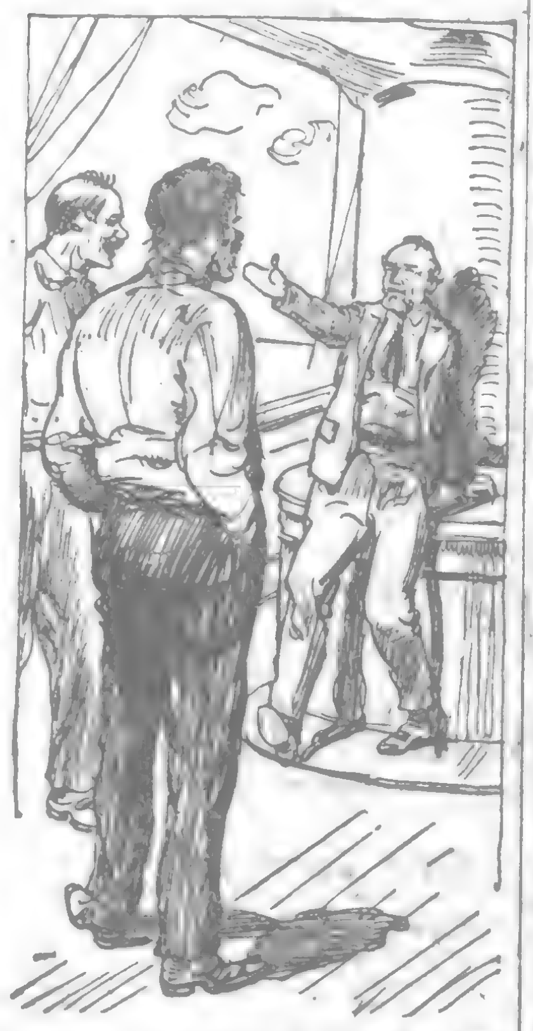
After breakfast Commodore Gibney ordered that the prisoners be brought before him. The cook served them with breakfast, and as they ate, the commodore reminded them that it was only through his personal efforts and his natural disinclination to return blow for blow that they were at that moment enjoying a square meal, instead of swinging in the rigging.

"I'm goin' to give you two yeggs a chance to reform," concluded Mr. Gibney, addressing Tabu-Tabu. "If you show us where we can get a cargo of black coral and work hard and faithful helpin' us to get it aboard, it may help you to comb a few gray hairs. I'm goin' to take the irons off now, but remember! At the first sign of the double-cross you're both shark meat."

On behalf of himself and the king, Tabu-Tabu promised to behave, and McGuffey kicked them both into the small boat. The mate and two seamen followed in another boat, in which the air-pump and diving apparatus was carried, and Tabu-Tabu piloted them to a patch of still water just inside the reef. The water was so clear that McGuffey was enabled to make out vast marine gardens thickly sprinkled with the precious black coral.

"Over you go, you two smokes," rasped McGuffey, menacing the captives with his rifle. "Dive deep, my hearties, and bring up what you can find, and if a shark comes along and takes a nip out of your hind leg, don't expect no help from B. McGuffey, Esquire—because you won't get any."

For nearly two weeks the Maggie II lay at anchor, while her crew labored daily in the gardens of the deep. Vast quantities of pearl oysters were brought to the surface, and these Mr. Gibney stewed personally in a great iron pot on the beach. The shell was stored away in the hold and the pearls went into a chamois pouch which never for an instant was out of the commodore's possession. The coast at that point being now deserted, frequent visits ashore were made, and the crew feasted on young pig, chicken, yams and other delicacies. Captain Scraggs was almost delirious with joy. He announced that he had not been so happy since Mrs. Scraggs "slipped her cable."



"Are You Sure It Ain't All a Dream?"

At the end of two weeks Mr. Gibney decided that there was "loot" enough ashore to complete the schooner's cargo, and at a meeting of the syndicate held one lovely moonlight night on deck he announced his plans to Captain Scraggs and McGuffey.

"Better leave the island alone," counseled McGuffey. "Them niggers may be a-layin' there ten thousand strong, waitin' for a boat's crew to come prowlin' up into the bush so they can nab 'em."

"I've thought of that, Mac," said the commodore a trifle coldly, "and if I made a sucker of myself once it don't stand to reason that I'm apt to do it again. Remember, Mac, a burnt child dreads the fire. Tomorrow morning, right after breakfast, we'll turn the guns loose and pepper the bush for a mile or two in every direction. If there's a native within range he'll [illegible] business in the next county and we won't be disturbed none."

Mr. Gibney's [illegible]

"Do you mean to tell me that all these months we've been asleep under a cabbage leaf, communin' with potato bugs?"

"Not for a minute," replied the commodore. "Why, I got a dozen matched pearls here that's fit for a queen. Big, red, pear-shaped boys—regular bleedin' hearts. There's ten thousand each in them alone."

"Well, I'll—I'll brew some grog," gasped Captain Scraggs, and departed forthwith to the galley. Fifteen minutes later he returned with a kettle of his favorite nepenthe and all three adventurers drank to a bon voyage home. At the conclusion of the toast Mr. McGuffey set down his glass, wiped his mouth with the back of his hairy hand, and thus addressed the syndicate.

"In leavin' this paradise of the South Pacific," he began, "we find that we have accumulated other wealth besides the loot below decks. I refer to his royal highness, the king of Kandavu, and his prime minister, Tabu-Tabu. When these two outlaws was first captured, I informed the syndicate that I would scheme out a punishment befittin' their crime, to-wit—murderin' an' eatin' you two boys. It's been a big job and it's taken some time, me not bein' blessed with quite as fine an imagination as our friend, Gib. However, I pride myself that hard work always brings success, and I am ready to announce what disposition shall be made of these two interestin' specimens of aboriginal life. I beg to announce, gentlemen, that I have invented a punishment fittin' the crime."

"Impossible," said Captain Scraggs.

"Shut up, Scraggs," struck in Commodore Gibney. "Out with it, Mac. What's the program?"

"I move you, members of the syndicate, that the schooner Maggie II proceed to some barren, uninhabited island, and that upon arrival there this savage king and his still more savage subject be taken ashore in a small boat. I also move you, gentlemen of the syndicate, that inasmuch as the two aggrieved parties, A. P. Gibney and P. Scraggs, having in a sperrit of mercy refrained from layin' their hands on said prisoners for fear of invalidin' them at a time when their services was of importance to the expedition, be given an opportunity to take out their grudge on the persons of said savages. Now, I notice that the king is a miserable, skimpy, sawed-off and hammered-down old cove. By all the rules of the prize ring he's in Scraggsy's class." (Here Mr. McGuffey flashed a lightning wink to the commodore. It was an appeal for Mr. Gibney's moral support in the engineer's scheme to put up a job on Captain Scraggs, and thus relieve the tedium of the homeward trip. Mr. Gibney instantly telegraphed his approbation, and McGuffey continued.) "I notice also that if I was to hunt the universe over, I couldn't find a better match for Gib than Tabu-Tabu. And as we are all agreed that the white race is superior to any race on earth, and it'll do us all good to see a fine mill before we leave the country, I move you, gentlemen of the syndicate, that we pull off a finish fight between Scraggsy and the king, and Gib and Tabu-Tabu. I'll referee both contests and at the conclusion of the mixup we'll leave these two murderers marooned on the island and then—"

"Rats," snapped Captain Scraggs. "That ain't no business at all. You shouldn't consider nothin' short of capital punishment. Why, that's only a petty larceny form of—"

"Quit buttin' in on my prerogatives," roared McGuffey. "That ain't the finish by no means."

"What is the finish, then?"

"Why, these two cannibals, bein' left alone on the desert island, naturally bumps up agin the old question of the survival of the fittest. They get scrappin' among themselves, and one eats the other up."

"By the toe-nails of Moses," muttered Mr. Gibney in genuine admiration, "but you have got an imagination after all, Mac. The point is well taken and the program will go through as outlined. Scraggs, you'll fight the king. No buckin' and grumblin'. You'll fight the king. You're outvoted two to one, the thing's been done regular and you can't kick. I'll fight Tabu-Tabu, so you see you're not gettin' the worst of it. [illegible] in the Friendly group [illegible] Tuvana-thole. [illegible]

"Great, great," he murmured. "I couldn't have gotten a better island if I'd had one built to order." He called aft to the navigating officer: "Scraggsy, there's the ring. Nothin' else to do now but get the contestants into it. Along in the late afternoon, when the heat of the day is over, we'll go ashore and pull off the fight. And, by George, Scraggs, if that old king succeeds in lambastin' you, I'll set the rascal free."

Seeing that there was no escape, Captain Scraggs decided to bluff the matter through. "Let's go ashore and have it over with," he said carelessly. "I'm a man of peace, but when there's fightin' to be done, I say go to it and no tomfoolery."

"Clear away the big whaleboat with two men to pull us ashore," said Mr. Gibney to the mate. Five minutes later the members of the syndicate, accompanied by the captives, climbed into the whaleboat and shoved off, leaving the Maggie II in charge of the mate. "We'll be back in half an hour," called the commodore, as they rowed away from the schooner. "Just ratch back and forth and keep heavin' the lead."

They negotiated the fringe of breakers to the north of the island successfully, pulled the boat up on the beach, and proceeded at once to business. Mr. Gibney explained to Tabu-Tabu what was expected of him, and Tabu-Tabu in turn explained to the king. It was not the habit of white men, so Mr. Gibney explained, to kill their prisoners in cold blood, and he had decided to give them an opportunity to fight their way out of a sad predicament with their naked fists. If they won, they would be taken back aboard the schooner and later dropped at some inhabited island. If they lost, they must make their home for the future on Tuvana-thole.

"Let 'er go," called McGuffey, and Mr. Gibney squared off and made a bearlike pass at Tabu-Tabu. To the amazement of all present Tabu-Tabu sprang lightly backward and avoided the blow. His footwork was excellent and McGuffey remarked as much to Captain Scraggs. But when Tabu-Tabu put up his hands after the most approved method of self-defense and dropped into a "crouch," McGuffey could no longer contain himself.

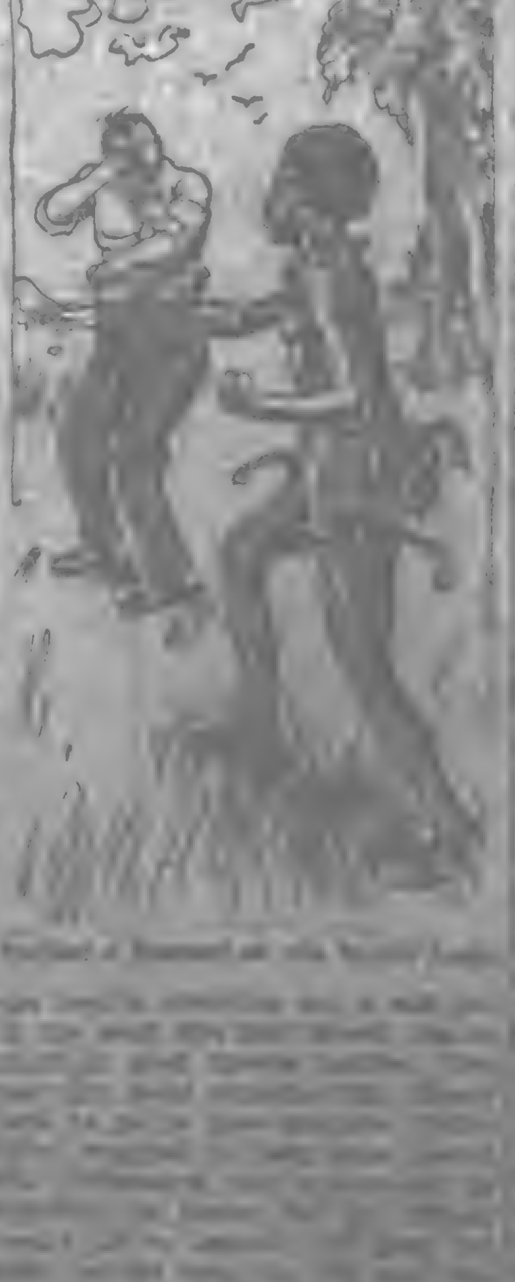
"The beggar can fight, the beggar can fight," he croaked, wild with joy. "Scraggs, old man, this'll be a rare mill, I promise you. He's been aboard a British man-o'-war and learned how to box. Steady, Gib. Upper-cut him, upper—wow!"

Tabu-Tabu had stepped in and planted a mighty right in the center of Mr. Gibney's physiognomy, following it up with a hard left to the commodore's ear. Mr. Gibney rocked a moment on his sturdy legs, stepped back out of range, dropped both hands, and stared at Tabu-Tabu.

"I do believe the nigger'll lick you, Gib," said McGuffey anxiously. "He's got a horrible reach and a mule kick in each mit. Close with him, or he's due for a full pardon."

"In a minute," said the commodore faintly. "He's so good I hate to hurt him. But I'll infight him to a finish."

Which Mr. Gibney forthwith proceeded to do. He rushed his opponent and clinched, though not until his right



[illegible]

[illegible] ly, spat, and spoke to McGuffey, soto voce: "By George, the joke ain't all on Scraggsy," he said. Then turning to Captain Scraggs: "Help yourself to the mustard, Scraggsy, old tarpot."

Captain Scraggs took off his hat, rolled up his sleeves, and made a dive for the royal presence. His majesty, lacking the scientific training of his prime minister, seized a handful of the Scraggs mane and tore at it cruelly. A well-directed kick in the shins, however, caused him to let go, and a moment later he was flying up the beach with the angry Scraggs in full cry after him. McGuffey headed the king off and rounded him up so Scraggs could get at him, and the latter at once "dug in" like a terrier. After five minutes of mauling and tearing Captain Scraggs was out of breath, so he let go and stood off a few feet to size up the situation. The wicked McGuffey was laughing immoderately, but to Scraggs it was no laughing matter. The fact of the matter was the king was dangerous and Scraggs had glutted himself with revenge.

"I don't want to beat an old man to death," he gasped finally. "I'll let the scoundrel go. He's had enough and he won't fight. Let's mosey along back to the schooner and leave them here to amuse themselves the best way they know how."

"Right-O," said Mr. Gibney, and turned to walk down the beach to the boat. A second later a hoarse scream of rage and terror broke from his lips.

"What's up?" cried McGuffey, the laughter dying out of his voice, for there was a hint of death in Mr. Gibney's cry.

"Marooned!" said the commodore hoarsely. "Those two sailors have pulled back to the schooner, and—there—look, Mac! My Gawd!"

McGuffey looked, and his face went whiter than the foaming breakers beyond which he could see Maggie II, under full sail, headed for the open sea. The small boat had been picked up, and there was no doubt that at her present rate of speed the schooner would be hull down on the horizon by sunset.

"The murderin' hound," whispered McGuffey, and sagged down on the sands. "Oh, the murderin' hound of a mate!"

"It's—it's mutiny," gulped Captain Scraggs in a hard, strained voice. "That bloody fiend of a mate! The sly sneak-thief, with his pleasant smile and his winnin' ways! Saw a chance to steal the Maggie and her rich cargo, and he is leavin' us here, marooned on a desert island, with two cannibals."

Captain Scraggs fairly shrieked the last two words and burst into tears. "Lord, Gib, old man," he raved, "whatever will we do?"

Thus appealed to, the doughty commodore permitted his two unmatched optics to rest mournfully upon his shipmates.

He gulped and thoughtfully rubbed the knuckles of his right hand where the skin was barked off. He thought of the silly joke he and McGuffey had thought to perpetrate on Captain Scraggs by leading him up against a beating at the hands of a cannibal king, and with the thought came a grim, hard chuckle, though there was the look of a thousand devils in his eyes.

"Well, Mac, old sporty boy, I guess there ain't much to do except to make up our minds to die like gentlemen. If I was ever fooled by a man in my life, I was fooled by that doggone mate. I thought he'd tote square with the syndicate. I sure did."

For a long time McGuffey gazed seaward. He was slower than his shipmates in making up his mind that the mate had really deserted them and sailed away with the fortunes of the syndicate. Of the three, however, the [illegible] engineer accepted the situation with the best grace. He spurned the [illegible] with his foot and faced Mr. Gibney and Captain Scraggs with just the suspicion of a grin on his homely face.

"I make a motion," he said, "that the syndicate pass a resolution condemnin' the action of the mate."

It was a forlorn hope, and the jest [illegible] the deck de[illegible] Mr. Gibney sadly:

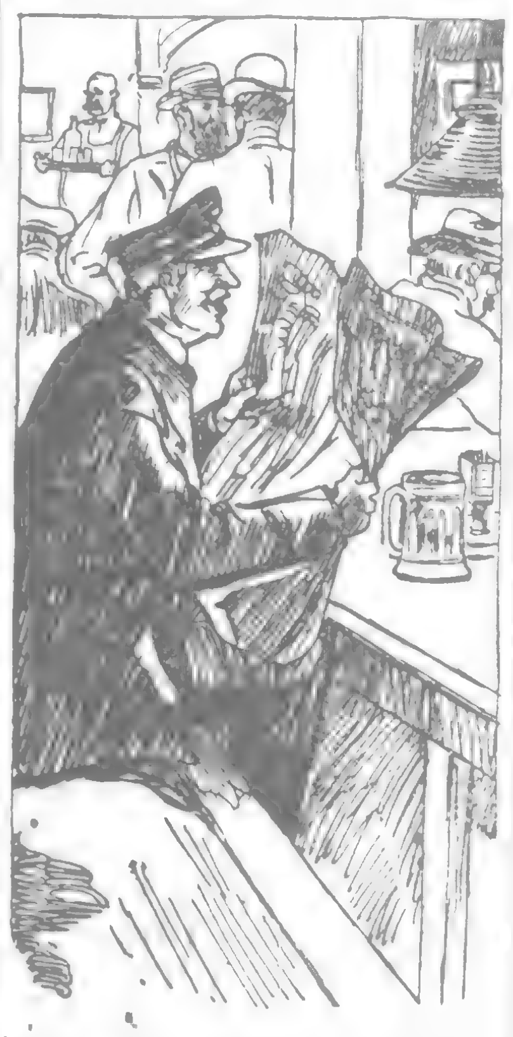
"There ain't no more Maggie II syndicate."

CHAPTER XIII.

[illegible] waterfront, and in the course of time rumors of his demise by sundry and devious routes came to the ears of Neils Halvorsen.

Hence "The Squarehead" was puzzled. In fact, to such an extent was Neils puzzled, that one perfectly calm, clear night, while beating down San Pablo bay in his bay scow, the Willie and Annie, he so far forgot himself and his own affairs as to concentrate all his attention on the problem of the ultimate finish of Captain Scraggs. So engrossed was Neils in this vain speculation that he neglected to observe toward the rules of the ocean highways that nicety of attention which is highly requisite, even in the skipper of a bay scow, if the fulsome title of captain is to be retained for any definite period. As a result, Neils became confused regarding the exact number of blasts from the siren of a river steamer desiring to pass him to port. Consequently the Willie and Annie received such a severe butting from the river steamer in question as to cause her to careen and fill. Being, unfortunately, loaded with gravel on this particular trip, she subsided incontinently to the bottom of San Pablo bay, while Neils and his crew of two men sought refuge on a plank.

Without attempting to go further into the details of the misfortunes of Neils Halvorsen, be it known that the destruction of the Willie and Annie proved to be such a severe shock to Neils' reputation as a safe and sane bay scow skipper that he was ultimately forced to seek other and more virgin fields. With the fragments of his meager fortune, the ambitious Swede purchased a course in a local nautical school from which he duly managed to emerge with sufficient courage to appear before the United States local inspectors of hulls and boilers and take his examination for a second mate's certificate. To his unutterable surprise the license was granted; whereupon he shipped as quartermaster on the steamer Alameda, running to Honolulu, and what with the lesson taught him in the loss of the Willie and Annie and the exacting duties of his office aboard the liner, he forgot that he had ever known Captain Scraggs.



It Was Just a Squib in the Shipping News.

Judge of Neils Halvorsen's surprise, therefore, upon the occasion of his first trip to Honolulu, when he saw something which brought the whole matter back to mind. They were standing in toward Diamond head and the Alameda lay hove to taking on the pilot. It was early morning and the purple mists hung over the entrance to the harbor. Neils Halvorsen stood at the gangway enjoying the sunrise over the Punch-bowl, and glancing longingly toward the vivid green of the hills beyond the city, when he was aware of a "put," "put," "put," to starboard of the Alameda. Neils turned at the sound just in time to see a beautiful gasoline schooner of about a hundred and thirty tons heading in toward the bay. She was so close that Neils was enabled to make out that her name was Maggie II.

"Vell, aye be dam," muttered Neils, and scratched his head, for the name revived old memories. An hour later, when the Alameda loafed into her berth at Brewer's dock, Neils noticed that the schooner lay at anchor off the quarantine station.

That night Neils Halvorsen went ashore for those forms of enjoyment peculiar to his calling, and in the Pantheon saloon, whither his pathway led him, he filled himself with beer and gossip. It was here that Neils came across an item in an afternoon paper which challenged his instant attention. It was just a squib in the shipping news, but Neils Halvorsen read it with amazement and joy:

"The power schooner Maggie II arrived [illegible] Friendly [illegible]

[illegible]

A FRIEND IN NEED A FRIEND INDEED

Writes Mrs. Hardee Regarding Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Los Angeles, Calif.—"I must tell you that I am a true friend to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have taken it off and on for twenty years and it has helped me change from a delicate girl to a stout, healthy woman. When I was married I was sick all the time until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in bed much of my time with pains and had to have the doctor every month. One day I found a little book in my yard in Guthrie, Oklahoma, and I read it through and got the medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—and took eight bottles and used the Sanative Wash. I at once began to get stronger. I have got many women to take it just by telling them what it has done for me. I have a young sister whom it has helped in the same way it helped me. I want you to know that I am a 'friend indeed,' for you were a 'friend in need.'"—Mrs. GEORGE HARDEE, 1043 Byram St., Los Angeles, California

Let Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound be a "friend indeed" to you.

Cuticura Soap
AND OINTMENT
Clear the Skin
Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

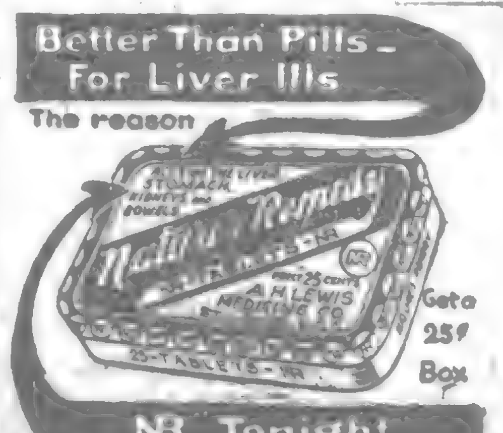
Vaseline
Reg U.S. Pat. Off
PETROLEUM JELLY
For sores, broken blisters, burns, cuts and all skin irritations.
Also innumerable toilet uses.
REFUSE SUBSTITUTES
CHESEBROUGH MFG. CO. (CONSOLIDATED)
State Street New York

CHILDREN WHO ARE SICKLY

TRADE MARK

Don't accept any Substitute.

Mothers who value the health of their children, should never be without MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS for CHILDREN, for use when needed. They tend to Break up Colds, Relieve Feverishness, Worms, Constipation, Headache, Teething disorders and Stomach Troubles. Used by Mothers for over thirty years. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask today. Trial package FREE. Address, MOTHER GRAY CO., LE ROY, N. Y.



Women Made Young

Bright eyes, a clear skin and a body full of youth and health may be yours if you will keep your system in order by regularly taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles, the enemies of life and looks. In use since 1696. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

KEMP'S BALSAM

FEBRUARY

L 912

49

QUEER LINGO OF CATTLE MARKET

Sheep and Hogs Also Come in for Their Share of Weird and Slangy Expressions.

"SLUNK" CALF UNMARKETABLE

"Butcher Hogs" Are Most Popular and Must Be of Right Weight and Quality—"Mutton Sheep" Are Fat Ewes and Wethers.

In the marketing of cattle, sheep and hogs, often queer terms are used. Reporting the markets daily causes many a weird term to be coined and eventually adopted into the language. Here are given a number of common terms used in the course of live stock marketing. Even their users, in some instances, will be enlightened as to the full meaning:

Cattle Terms and Classes.

"Beef cattle" are the heavier, older, heifers or bulls, largely bought by the bigger slaughterers.

"Butcher cattle" are usually trim weight stock, either cows, or steers or heifers, carrying good flesh weighing 550 to 1050 pounds and highly desirable for the city butcher trade.

"Prime finished" beeves are those that have been made strictly fat, generally of 6 to 12 months liberal feed on grain, cake, molasses or other tried rations. "Ripe" is a similar term.

"Fancy" beeves are those that have the prime or ripe finish referred to above and in addition carry full quality due to being high grade or pure bred stock.

"Good," "fair," "medium," "plain," "common" and "inferior" are terms applied to livestock in varying degrees of flesh, condition and quality as they range down the line under the grade of prime.

Prime Finished Beeves.

"Corn fed" beeves usually refer to cattle that have had two to three months or longer ration of generous grain feed.

"Short fed cattle" are those that have had from two to three months (time varying) of fairly generous rations.

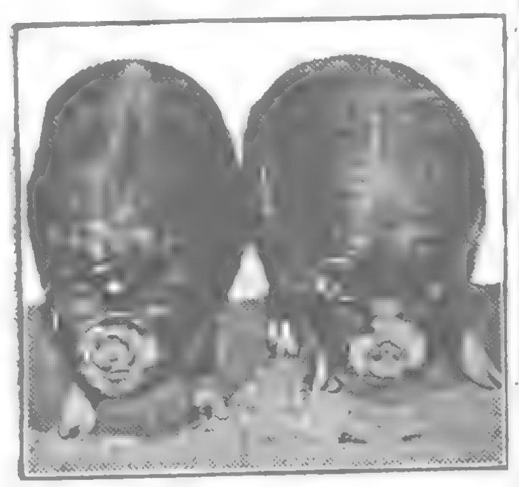
"Warmed up cattle" are those that have been fed for a very brief period, generally three to six weeks—time varying.

"Grassers" are cattle presumably fitted for market on the range or pasture alone.

"Canners" are poor thin animals, furnishing only low grade meat suited only for marketing in the form of canned product.

"Cutters" are animals one grade better than canners, but yet not carrying enough flesh to class as beef types.

"Scalawags," "shells," etc., refer to emaciated stock.



Butcher Hogs.

"Heretics" is a term mostly applied to inbred southern cattle between the veal and yearling stage, weighing generally 150 to 300 pounds.

"Slunk" is a prematurely born calf—unmarketable.

"Yearlings" refer to cattle beyond the calf and under the two year class.

"Heavy yearlings" (southern) are stock generally weighing 275 to perhaps 450 pounds.

"Light yearlings" (southern) are cattle generally weighing 150 to 275 pounds.

"Muley" cattle are those that are without horns.

"Dogey" catle are fine boned, trim southwestern stock, usually susceptible to quick finish on feed.

A "quinine" steer in the trade parlance is a poor, inferior animal having every appearance of disease, usually extremely inbred.

"Sausage" or "bologna" bulls are those not carrying flesh enough to be classed as beef types.

"Stocker" cattle are those suited to go back to the country primarily for further growth before being ready for feeding. Weights vary as to conditions, often reaching up to [illegible].

"Feeder" cattle are [illegible] sufficient growth and [illegible] suitable for [illegible] in the feedlots. Weights [illegible] pounds upwards.

IMPORTANT—Dehorned cattle as a rule outsell those with horns. Cattle should be dehorned or horn tipped before put on feed, so buyers urge.

Hogs.

"Top" is the day's extreme high price for carload lots.

"Bulk" is a term meaning the preponderance of sales for the day or period.

"Dockage" is a specified weight deducted from sows and stags originally used for breeding purposes and are coarse and rough—on sows dock is 40 pounds, on stags 70 pounds.

"Prime heavy" hogs weighing 300 to 400 pounds, prime condition, form and quality. Usually 10 months to 18 months and are heavier as well as older than the majority of the hogs marketed.

"Medium heavy"—Good hogs weighing 240 to 300 lbs. Both the prime heavy and medium heavy hog depends largely for outlet upon the packer. Most popular in fall and winter.

Mutton Sheep.

"Butcher hogs"—Most popular class on the market. Must be of right weight for the butcher block from 190 to 270 pounds in most cases, (although at times lighter or heavier)—of good quality and proper condition. Nothing grading less than a good hog has a place in this class.

"Shipping hog."—Shipper is a hog of good form, condition and quality used to supply order trade. The requirements vary, but for the most part call for animal weighing 175 to 200 pounds.

"Lights" are hogs weighing 160 to 190 pounds, consisting principally of young light weight barrows or clear sows, graded good, common and inferior.

"Light-lights" weigh from 130 to 160 pounds; graded good, common and inferior.

"Pigs" are graded as choice, good and common, and are subdivided as follows. Strong weights, 130 to 150 pounds; medium, 110 to 125 pounds; light, 90 to 110 pounds.

"Pewees" young small pigs from 60 to 80 pounds. Usually sell at a considerably lower figure than the heavier pigs.

"Roasters" are pigs weighing 15 to 40 pounds. They are rarely seen, except around Thanksgiving or Christmas.

"Roughs" are throw-outs too common to grade, lack condition, form and quality.

"Stags" are male hogs castrated after maturity. As they are wasty in dressing dockge of 70 pounds is imposed.

"Boars" are not usually marketed until their days of service are over and therefore old and coarse. As most stockmen have found from experience that it does not pay to send boars, very few of them come to market. They sell for much lower price than stags.

"Mixed packers"—This class involves the heavy hogs that do not have the quality to grade as prime stock and the lighter weights that are not good enough for butchers or shippers. In short, it takes in all of the throw-outs of the aforementioned classes, except those too coarse.

"Singer"—A hog of narrow back and straight belly, particularly used for its lean bacon. Weight 160 to 200 pounds largely, although there is no standard weight. Must be of good quality, not necessarily fat, popular in Canada and England but not common in this country.

Sheep.

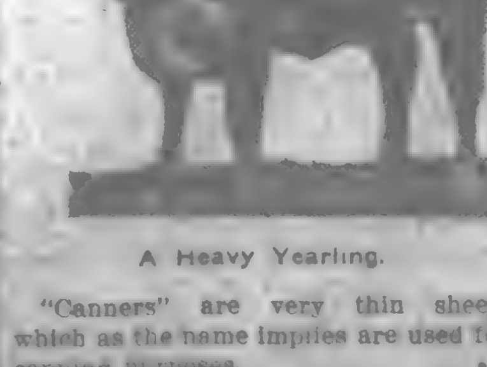
"Trimmed lamb"—One that has been castrated. Such sell to best advantage on the market.

"Culls" are inferior grade lambs or sheep thrown out of consignment by buyers and sold at a lower price than the remainder of the lot.

"Skip"—A light, trashy, common lamb. The plainest grade of cull lamb.

"Mutton sheep" are fat ewes or ewes and wethers mixed used for killing. Wethers are often sold separate as such.

"Choppers" are aged ewes in medium flesh, not good enough to grade as fat.



A Heavy Yearling.

"Canners" are very thin sheep, which as the name implies are used for canning purposes.

"Docked lamb"—One that has had its tail cut off. Many lambs come to market with their tails badly [illegible] which hurts the sale. All sheepmen are consequently urged to adopt the practice of docking their lambs when young.

ROAD BUILDING

SCRUBBING-BOARD SURFACES

Bureau of Public Roads Building Experimental Highway to Determine Cause of Waves.

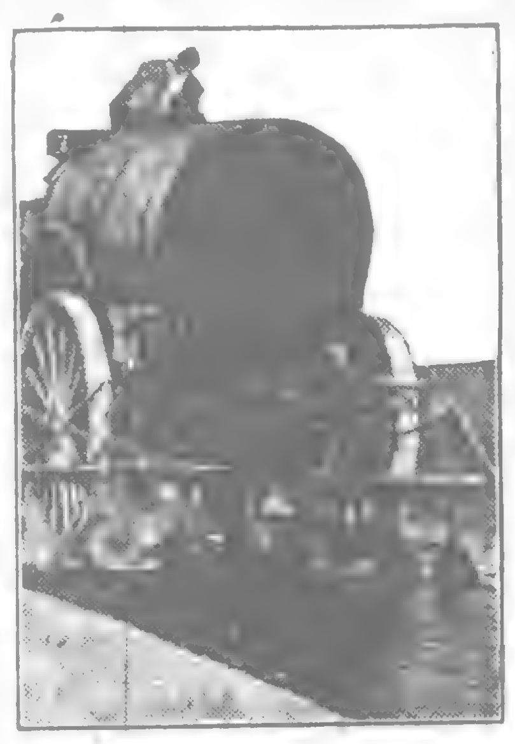
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

What causes a "tarred" road to develop that peculiar scrubbing-board surface is a question that has been worrying the highway engineers quite as much as the long-suffering public. As often as not the symptoms appear in a macadam road that has been treated with asphalt. But the trouble is largely confined to roads built with tar or asphalt. Concrete and brick roads never develop such a surface, and ordinary dirt roads seldom do.

The bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture is building at the Arlington (Va.) experimental farm an experimental roadway 15 feet wide in an attempt to discover the cause of the trouble. The road is laid out in the form of a circle with a 90-foot radius, and its circumference, 565 feet in length, is to be divided into sections, each of which will be surfaced with a different kind of asphalt or tarred surface.

The experimental sections will be built exactly like actual road surfaces and when completed they will carry a "traffic" as much like actual traffic as it is possible to devise. The "traffic" will be supplied by a driverless motortruck which will be held to the circular path by means of a long arm extending from the center. The course of the truck will be altered from time to time so that the entire width of the roadway will be traveled.

It has not been possible to determine the cause by observation of actual roads because there are too many unknown quantities. The defect may be due to distortion of the earth under the road surface or to defects in the surface itself. It is probably caused in some way by the wheels of motor vehicles—how and why the engineers have not determined, largely because they have never possessed all the facts with regard to surface and subsurface conditions and character and weight of traffic.



Treating the Surface of a Macadam Road With Bituminous Material.

OILED ROADS ARE APPROVED

Operation Must Be Performed Intelligently or It Will Make Conditions Worse.

The American Highway Bulletin, which approves of oiled roads, observes that oiling must be performed intelligently or it will make conditions worse instead of better. According to this authority it is useless to oil a dirt road which is not thoroughly drained and properly graded. It is a waste of money to oil a road which does not have a smooth hard surface free from dust. If the surface is uneven, oil collects in shallow depressions and softens the surface so that after the first heavy rain the travel tends to make mudholes at these places. If there is dust on the road, the oil combines with the dust to form a sort of mat, which the travel over it quickly breaks up into large flakes or scales. But if the road is in proper condition to receive the oil and the right kind of oil is used, the oil percolates into the pores of the earth for a depth of several inches, sealing them with an asphaltic binding material which unites the surface into a tougher mass than the original surface. The oil cannot make the road any harder, for only stone or gravel will accomplish that, but it will prevent the displacement of the earth particles under any loads which an earth road is adapted to carry. If the oiled surface is immediately covered with a thin layer of clean, hard sand, the travel will not disturb the oil and the travelers will suffer less inconvenience.

Gate for Crossings.

A new safety gate for railroad crossings is designed which, stretching across the road like the old style gate, still is flexible and elastic, so that it gives instead of breaks when [illegible]. The gate will [illegible] away from danger.

[illegible] Work on Roads.

[illegible]

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

A man will fall in love with any clever woman who will treat him as though he were abused.

MOTHER! OPEN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Your little one will love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" even if constipated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

What becomes of the self-made man when Be It Enacteds accomplish everything?

The war has made table linen very valuable. The use of Red Cross Ball Blue will add to its wearing qualities. Use it and see. All grocers.—Advertisement.

Chinese Women Advance.

About the only thing of modern times to which China has not laid claim as being so old in that country that it was outworn and discarded centuries ago, is the new woman with a magazine of her very own, published in the interest of her development. This publication, called the New Woman, boldly states as its object the reform of the old society to give more honorable place to women and the new woman is described as "a joyous being, of honest occupation, complete personality, free, independent and mutually helpful," says the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

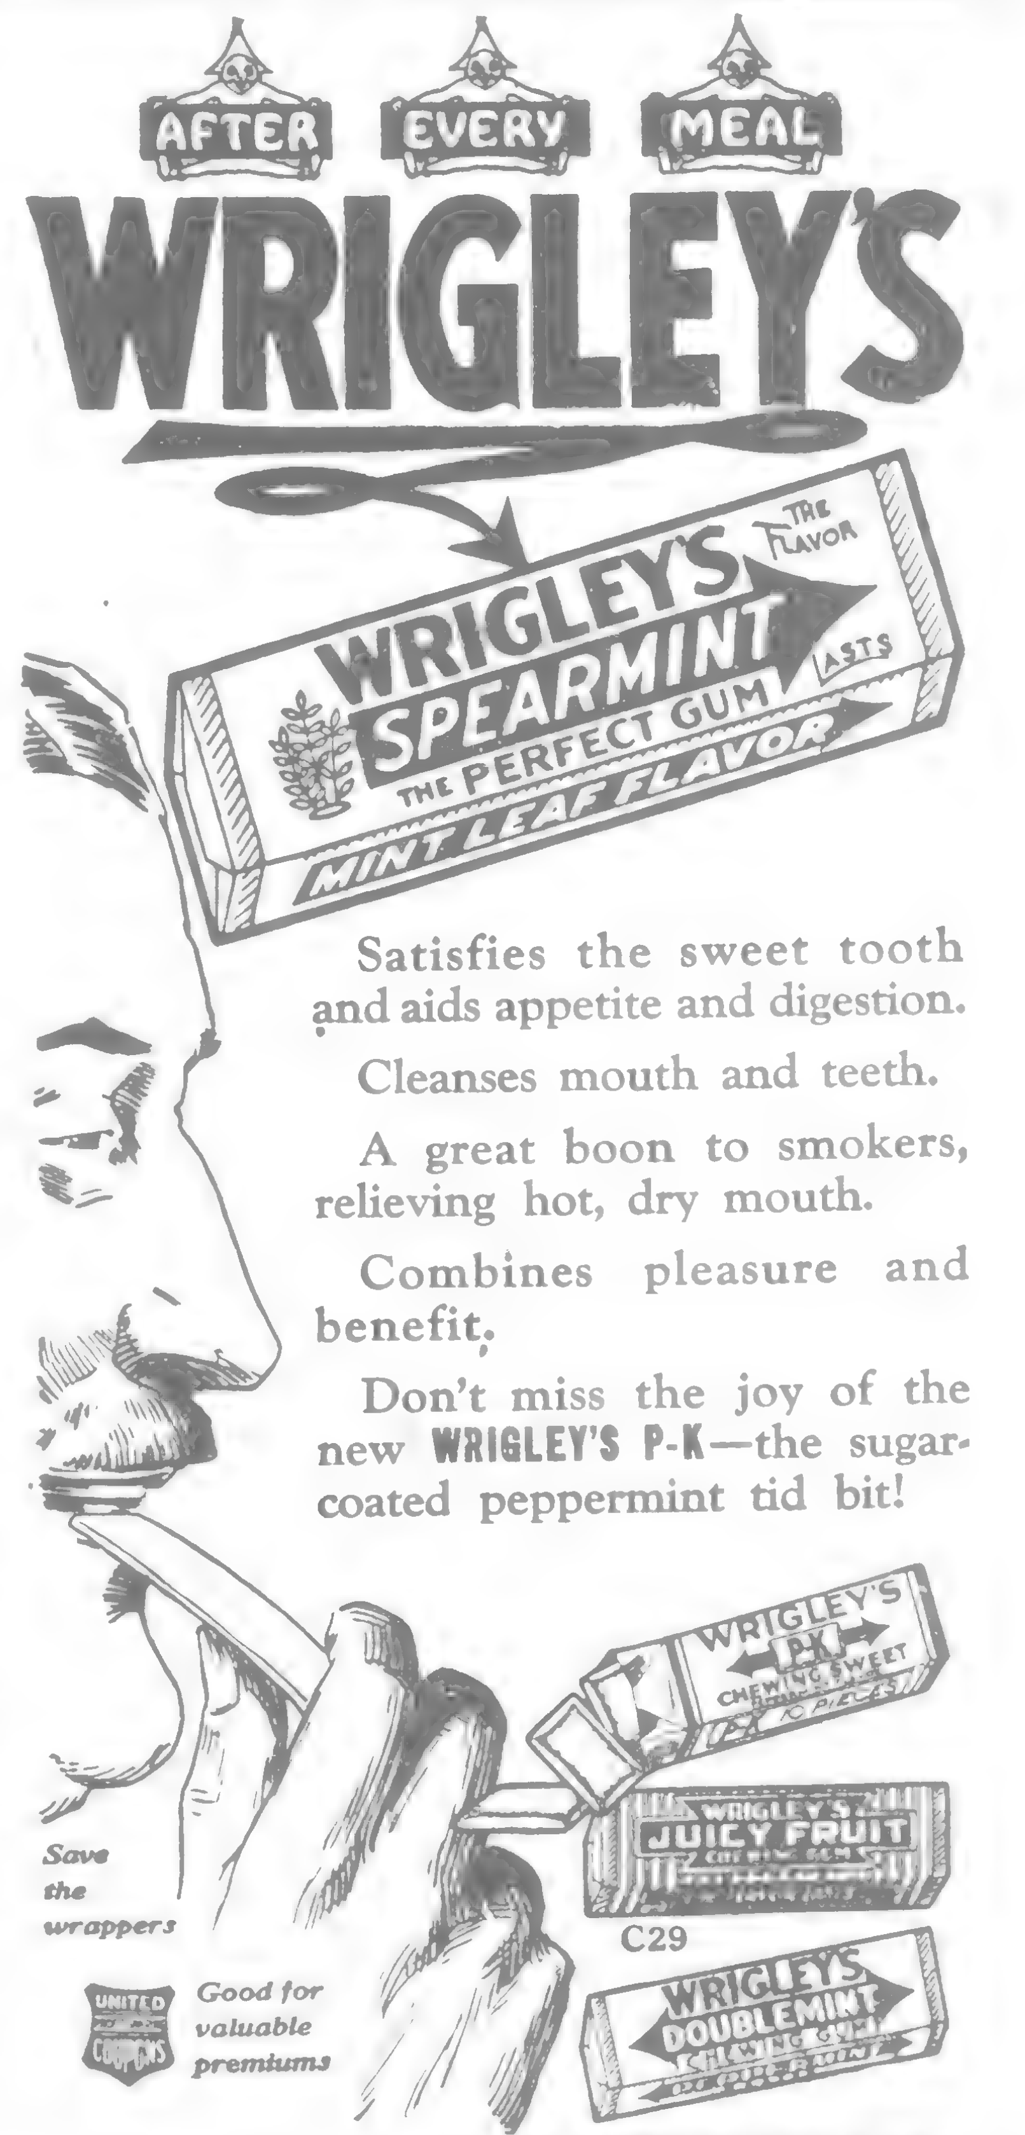
The Heathen Come to Light.

A Wisconsin newspaper, the Boston Transcript says, reports the following:

The young people here have a new game called "Christianity." Here is how they play it: The Christians, who are the girls, get one one side, and the boys on the other are the heathen; then the heathen cross over and embrace Christianity. It has become very popular.

One who is "a natural born leader" should try to let the people recognize it first.

Some men are born great and some are born ingrates.



Satisfies the sweet tooth and aids appetite and digestion.

Cleanses mouth and teeth.

A great boon to smokers, relieving hot, dry mouth.

Combines pleasure and benefit.

Don't miss the joy of the new WRIGLEY'S P-K—the sugar-coated peppermint tid bit!

Save the wrappers

Good for valuable premiums

NOT BEGINNING OF ROMANCE

Beautiful Girl Mistaken in Thinking She Had Made Impression on Attractive Stranger.

They sat together; total strangers, on the narrow seat of a Fifth avenue bus.

She was beautiful and conscious of it. And she felt his eyes upon her. She turned her lovely head and met his gaze. He was good to look upon, dark and virile, and in his clear eyes was a look of question and pleading.

She turned away, her young blood thrilling with the premonition of romance and adventure.

Again she felt his longing but hesitant gaze fixed upon her averted face. She flashed him a fleeting look of encouragement.

Emboldened, he bent toward her, his eager breath fanning her flushed cheek and whispered, hoarsely:

"Say, can't you move over, lady, and gimme some more room?"—Judge.

Paradoxical Way.

"How are you going to learn to drive your motorcar?" "I'm going to employ a coach."

We believe it generally understood that Opportunity never calls you up by telephone.

PISO'S
SAFE AND SANE
for Coughs & Colds
This syrup is different from all others. Quick relief. No opiates. 35c everywhere

Kissing Custom Centuries Ago.

Three hundred years ago it was a sign of hospitality for the lady of the house to welcome the men guests in her husband's presence with a kiss. It might be on lips, forehead or cheek. An interesting reference to the freedom of kissing in olden times is introduced by Sir Walter Scott in "The Fair Maid of Perth," where one of the characters says: "Thou knowest, the maiden who ventures to kiss a sleeping man, wins of him a pair of gloves."—Philadelphi Ledger.

An Even Break.

"She's a girl after his own heart, Hunter says."

"Yes, and he's a man after her money."

"But you know it's whispered on the quiet that she hasn't any money."

"Well, it's a notorious fact that he hasn't any heart."—Boston Transcript.

Quite often, one who is behind the times in the fashions is right up to date in his intellect.

Why does any healthy person want to be kicked into wakefulness in the morning?

Many people feel that they have to be agitated into wakefulness in the morning. They think that without the tea or coffee they take in the morning that they will not be able to meet the tasks and duties of the day.

Nothing could be more false than this reasoning. Any doctor can tell you this. For a healthy body does not require a stimulant. It gets all the stimulant it needs from food.

The thein and caffeine found in tea and coffee are irritating to the heart and nervous system. They jolt the nerves into undue activity. The result is a reaction. This is why regular tea and coffee drinkers think they must have their stimulant the first thing in the morning to wind them up for the day.

If you will stop using tea and coffee for a week, and drink Postum, the pure cereal beverage instead, it will give Nature an opportunity to rid the system of the irritating substances that harass your nerves, upset digestion, increase your heart action, and make you nervous and irritable.

Many people who have tried Postum say that inside of a week they wake in the morning without that "all gone" feeling that they used to have, and are full of energy, strength and endurance.

Order Postum from your grocer today, and make it according to directions. Your first sip of Postum will surprise and please you.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Postum for Health—"There's a Reason"

Made by Postum Cereal Co., Inc., Battle Creek, Mich.

FEBRUARY

The Most Sensational Sale Ever Given By This Store

A Vest Pocket Safety Razor, 39c

Very similar to the Gillett; in fact, you use the Gillette blades in this razor and get same satisfaction as if you had the $5 original. Packed in a vest pocket case, detachable and two-piece handles.

While 300 last 39c

The last of January found us with the smallest stock we have had in years. During the past two weeks we have made what we consider the greatest purchase ever made by this store from Hart Schaffner & Marx, Wilson Bros., Kalamazoo Pant Co., and Swartz Yaffee & Co. We have in our store today more Overcoats made from such materials as De Montagnacs from Sedan, France; Crombies from Aberdeen, Scotland, and Carr Meltons and Brooks Kerseys from England than we have had before all together during the past 7 years.

If you want to wear the finest Overcoat that money will buy you'll want one of these Overcoats at $55.00.

This Entire Purchase of Hart Shafftner & Marx

OVERCOATS

Will Be Sold at These Prices

$35 - $45 - $55

Other Coats

$10, $15.00, $19.50, $24.50 and $29.50

SUITS

AT FOUR PRICES

$14.50 - $19.50 - $29.50
$34.50

All Other Suits 1-5 Off.

Furnishing Goods

At prices that will make some people think that we probably stole the merchandise.

Shirts

15 Dozen TUB SILK SHIRTS
While They Last
$2.95

20 Dozen SILK SHIRTS
Will be Sold at $3.95

40 Dozen $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50 SHIRTS
95c

30 Dozen $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 SHIRTS
$1.95

Hosiery

200 Dozen 50c WOOL HOSE
Will be Sold at
29c a Pair
Or 4 Pair for $1.00

20 Dozen $1.50 WILSON BROS. FANCY HOSE
Will Go at
49c

40 Dozen 75c Silk and Fiber HOSE
Slightly Imperfect
35c
Or 3 Pair for $1.00

25 Dozen 75c Wilson Bros. Silk and Wool HOSE
3 Pair for $2.00

A MOST SENSATIONAL SALE
—of—

Underwear

Our buyer took over 400 dozen suits of Wilson Brothers fine wool and cotton underwear. 150 dozen of a $5.00 union suit we were told might occasionally have a garment with a little oil spot. We took no chances and had them all stamped seconds and, offer them to you at $2.00 and will say if you find one with an oil spot, do not keep it.

125 DOZEN
Of Wilson Brothers finest $6 worsted and cotton union suits will be sold at $3.50.

Wilson Bros. $1.50 Combed Yarn Cotton Ribbed SHIRTS and DRAWERS
90c
a Garment, or $1.75 the Suit

52 dozen "Gilt Edge" Mercerized Stripe Union Suits	$1.45
125 dozen Wilson Bros. $1.50 Light Weight Union Suits	95c
Wilson Bros. $1.50 White Outing Flannel Night Shirts	95c
10 dozen $2 All-Silk Four-in-Hand Ties, will go at	$1.15
25 dozen colored border and initial Handkerchiefs, 10c; 3 for	25c
100 dozen Lion $2 Madras Shirts, while they last	$1.15

12 Dozen $3.00 and $3.50 V-Neck and Shawl Collar
Sweaters
$1.95

[illegible]

Boys' Wearables

That are included in this wonderful sale.

250 Boys' Knicker Suits

At Three Prices

$2.75 - $4.75 - $6.75

Sizes 7 to 18 years. Some have two pair trousers.

75 Boys' Overcoats

In sizes 10 to 18 years—all are fine garments, this season's styles. There are coats in the lot that formerly sold up to $25. While they last—

$3.75, $6.75, $9.75, $12.75

250 Boy's Mackinaws

Made from fine heavy weight materials; have convertible collars, full belts, and many of them have muff pockets; size 6 to 19 years. Your choice

$2.75 - $4.75 - $6.75

190 Wool and Corduroy button-to-the-neck

Novelty Suits at $1.79

Mostly sizes 2½ to 6 years—a few 7 and 8-year sizes.

3 Lots Children's Overcoats, $2.75, $4.75, $6.75
3 Dozen Boys' Shirts, 19c
3 Dozen Wash Suits, 79c
5 Dozen Boys' $1.50 Blouses, 29c
Mostly Large Sizes
[illegible] Dozen ¾-Length Sport Hose, 39c

3,000 Pairs of the Famous Kalamazoo

Trousers

—Bought at prices that hardly represent the cost of material and labor, will be sold during this sensational value-giving sale at—

$2 to $8.50

or $1.50 to $3.50 Underpriced

$9.75

Will buy the finest worsted and serge trousers in our store, including our entire stock of Hart Schaffner & Marx finest worsted.

25 dozen $2.50 Flannel Shirts, all sizes, 14 to 20, will sell for	$1.95
10 dozen $1.50 khaki color cotton flannel shirts, while they last	50c
Paperhangers' and Painters' white overalls and jackets, will sell at	85c
Phoenix and Randm Railroad Shirts, with two separate collars	$1.25
Signal Railroad Shirts, plain and polka dots	$1.75
50 dozen Blue Work Shirts, collar attached	59c

Overalls 1.00

Our entire stock of heavy white back Overalls, all sizes up to 50, will sell at $1.00 a pair except Winona and Carhartt, which are $1.50.

All Spaide and Moore blue, gray and gray stripe work shirts, 75c; black sateen, black twill and Big One work shirts will sell at $1.00

75c Non-Elastic Suspenders
15c a Pair
Or 2 Pair for 25c

10 Dozen
Dress Gloves
$2.50 and $3.00 Quality
$1.50

10 Dozen $1.50
Dress Gloves
$1.00

[illegible]
HATS
[illegible]
$2.00

All Fur Caps
[illegible]

All Leather Sets
[illegible]

[illegible] Gauntlet
75c Gloves
39c

[illegible]
Black and Brown Leather
BAGS
$3.25

150 Dozen
Children's Hose
15c a Pair
[illegible]

Choice of 200 Work Vests, $5, $6, and $7.50 Grade for $3.75 --150 Waterproof Raincoats Sell at $7.50

250 pair Men's and Young Men's $10 and $11 Shoes will go at $6.95—All other Shoes 1-5 off

The Store That Does Things

PATTERSON-FLETCHER CO.

Wayne and Harrison Streets

FEBRUARY

Are you in Earnest?

Some people say they simply cannot save money. Other people—who often have smaller incomes—find a joy in regular weekly saving.

The fact is, anyone can save money who is really in earnest about it. Take the matter seriously. Who benefits from your thrift? Who else but yourself?

The man with a growing savings account acquires confidence in himself, and a happy, fearless attitude towards the future.

One dollar or more opens an interest bearing account in this big, friendly bank.

☞ "Teach your dollars to have more cents." ☜

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W. Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

is often caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE has been successful in the treatment of Catarrh for over Forty Years.

Sold by all druggists.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

PATTERSON-FLETCHER SECURE GREAT PURCHASE OF FINE OVERCOATS

Last week Mr. Fletcher [illegible]

[illegible]

SPENCERVILLE

Quarterly conference will be held Saturday afternoon, Feb. 18, at the Methodist church.

Mrs. Kate House left Monday to spend a week visiting Frank Hour and wife south of town.

Mrs. Ethel Clugston is improving nicely after her recent operation.

Concord, Newville and Spencer township school institute was held at the school house Saturday.

Tithing Week will be observed by the Methodist congregation, this week.

The C C Club will be entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ashur Culp.

Mary White, who has been ill was able to resume her work at the Beams & Co., Monday morning

Mrs. Cora Cupp and daughter Elnor, of Harlan, were Monday dinner guests of Joseph Webb and wife.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of the M. E. church will meet at the home of Mrs. R. U Bowser, this afternoon.

Mrs. Henry Beams will act as hostess to the Women's Missionary Society of the Lutheran Church, this afternoon.

Miss Elizabeth Thorne left Saturday for Ft. Wayne, where she will help care for her uncle and aunt, Rev. and Mrs. [illegible] who are ill.

[illegible]

For Sale at public auction: Used Ford autos, tractors, and accessories at Silberg's Garage on Sat., Feb. 18.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs Thorne of this place at the Hope Methodist hospital at Ft. Wayne, Thursday Dec. 8, a son.

Mrs. Francis Chapman and children and Mrs. Ethel Webb and daughters were last Sunday guests of Jay Chapman and wife of Fort Wayne.

Burl Ensor and wife of Newville visited Sunday with Jack Beams and wife; also Dr. W. W. Carey of Ft. Wayne. Mrs. Beams is slowly improving.

On Friday evening the Auburn Tigers played Spencerville Skating Basket Ball team at the Community hall. The score was 41-8 in favor of the home team.

Obituary

DRAGGOO.

Lorentine (Gibford) Draggoo, daughter of Jeremiah and Charlotte Gibford, was born in Stark county, Ohio, July 14, 1846.

She came to Indiana in 1863, settling near Leo, later moving to Spencerville, then to Auburn, and last to the farm where she died on January 31, 1922, at the age of 75 years, 6 months and 17 days.

Her husband preceeded her in death by several years. She had four brothers—Hiram, James, Jerry and Isaiah, and one sister, Mrs. Cordelia Harney, all of whom are deceased.

Of the immediate family only one son, Fred, survives; he, with his wife, lives on the home place and cared for the mother during the past several years of her illness.

Funeral services were conducted from the house Thursday at one o'clock, Rev. C. O. Johnson officiating. Burial took place in the White City cemetery at Spencerville. E. R. Kinsey, funeral director.

Birthday Surprise

The friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Ray Harper on Monday evening, Jan. 30th, and helped him celebrate his birthday, those present being: Mr. and Mrs. Irvin White and family; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Watt and son Hubert; Thomas Farner; Miss Minnie Fredrick; Mr. and Mrs Wm Palmer and daughter Ethel; Saul Goldsmith; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Laux and family; Mr. and Mrs. Thayer Northrup and son Curtis; Mr. and Mrs. William Long; Miss Martha Lerch; Wm. Laux; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Hull and daughter Marie.

Ice cream and cake were served. All departed wishing Mr. Harper many more happy birthdays.

St. Joe Locals

Mrs Mildred Caw was a Friday evening guest of Mrs. Alice Gee.

Mrs. John Betz spent Wednesday at Ft Wayne.

Paul [illegible] was a Ft. Wayne [illegible] Tuesday.

Wm. Price, who is making a stay [illegible] of his brother, C. E. Price, went to Lagrange, Saturday, for a short visit.

[illegible]

PUBLIC SALE

OF

FORD CARS

AND

Tractors

-On- Saturday, Feb. 18, 1922 -At- 10 a. m.

BIG FREE ATTRACTIONS

LaDELLE, the Great Magician
HAROLD F. HOYE, Black-face Comedian
FLORENCE BELLE, Noted Singer and Pianist
All of the Palace bill at Fort Wayne

FREE Lunch Served: Hot Coffee, Doughnuts

16 AUTOMOBILES and Two Tractors to be SOLD at AUCTION.

Silberg's Garage, SPENCERVILLE, Ind.

If you are feeling badly, put your troubles away by taking Tanlac. Sold at Dr. Sheffer's.

Lee O. Tustison, of Defiance, and Earl Tustison, of Hicksville, spent from Saturday until Monday night guests of their parents, Chas. Tustison and wife.

Tanlac is well advertised, but advertising alone could not have produced Tanlac's popularity. It had to have merit. Sheffer's.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Curie spent the week-end visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boyle at Norwalk, Ohio. Mrs. Curie and Mrs. Boyle are sisters.

Abner Trostle, of east of town, has been granted a pension of $12 a month, according to an announcement of the pension bureau at Washington, Monday. Mr. Trortle is a veteran of Spanish-American War.

The date of the annual convention of the Northern Indiana Industrial and Volunteers Firemen's association was set for June 28 and 29, at Winchester at the annual meeting of the officers of the organization at Winchester, Monday night.

Auburn—R. E McCellan of Auburn was seriously injured Friday night in an auto accident. He was returning to Auburn from a business trip and in the act of turning a street corner at Waterloo the wheels locked, causing the car which he was driving to skid and the side hitting a tree and overturning the car, pinning Mr. McCellan underneath. With aid he was freed and upon examination it was found that he had received a slight concussion of the brain besides injuries to the chest. Mr. McCellan is the Standard Oil man for this district. He will not be able to care for his work for some time now.

"Dutch Auction" at Bishop-McBride Co., Auburn, Ind.

The firm of Bishop-McBride Company are holding this week and next what is called a "Dutch Auction" on all Winter Coats and Suits.

The firm does not claim to be the originator of the idea which has been successfully tried out by some of the larger stores. The idea is to deduct 5% each day from the former day's price—the last day of course being the lowest price.

Many of the choice garments go at the first part of the sale. The "Dutch Auction" got a very good start the first day, Saturday. One of the very first customers Monday morning called for a Coat she saw Saturday, fearing some one would get it today if she did not get it early this morning. The interest increases as the "Dutch Auction" progresses.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	89	$ 4.79
M. P	66	6.35
Lutheran	87	4.66
M. E. Spencer	64	3.17
Lutheran	60	4.50
Coburntown	65	2.85
Newville U. B.	70	25.00
Christian	81	2.95
Concord	39	1.45

no tax now
LUDEN'S
menthol cough drops
price 5¢ straight
GIVE QUICK RELIEF
Famous Yellow Package—Sold the world over 53

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE NOTARY PUBLIC

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

MEN'S AND BOYS' OUTFITTERS

[illegible] STREET

Fort Wayne, Ind.

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognized Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

X.

JUST KEPT GROWING

The origins of these antiquated, cumbersome, costly, inefficient pieces of the national machinery that we call the executive departments show how any establishment if well watered with government money will expand and hold together, no matter how conflicting and incongruous its functions. Hardly one of these great business establishments—for that is what they are—was planned. As they are today they just happened.

Take the Department of Agriculture, for example, one of the greatest and most complex and widespreading of all the departments. It is in closer touch and more directly affects the greatest number of people in the United States than any other branch of the government with the possible exception of the post office. It began in 1839 with an appropriation of $1,000, taken from the patent funds for the distribution of free seeds and the collection of agricultural statistics by the patent office, then a bureau in the State department. Now look at the darned thing. It is all over the place.

The title of the department indicates its most important field of activities, but its functions have been extended to include the whole range of rural industry and some branches of administration only very indirectly related to agricultural interests. For about 60 years subsequent to the Revolution the general interests of agriculture were left almost entirely to individual initiative. Federal activity was confined to relatively narrow limits and was merely sporadic. Soon after the national government was organized some attempts were made to establish a board of agriculture; but neither the first proposal in 1796 nor a second effort in 1817 was successful.

Shortly after the Revolution, following the example of Benjamin Franklin while in England, as agent of the colony of Pennsylvania during the years 1764 to 1775, American consuls and naval officers began the practice of sending home foreign seeds and cuttings for new crops, and of aiding in the introduction into the United States of new breeds of domestic animals. Even such small governmental participation was, in the beginning, rather extra-official.

In 1836 the commissioner of patents, one H. L. Ellsworth, began the distribution of considerable quantities of seeds and plants received from government representatives in foreign countries; and three years later through his influence an appropriation of $1,000 was made for the purpose of procuring and distributing seeds of new plants, carrying agricultural investigations and collecting agricultural statistics. This was the historic beginning of the much-talked-about free seed distribution.

By an act of congress in May, 1862, since generally called the organic act, the activities of the government affecting agriculture were placed under a separate and distinct organization known as the Department of Agriculture, in charge of a commissioner of agriculture. It did not rank, however, with the other executive departments, and the commissioner was not entitled to a seat in the President's cabinet. Isaac Newton, chief of the agricultural section in the patent office, was appointed the first commissioner of agriculture. Other officers provided by the organic act included a statistician, a chemist, an entomologist and a superintendent of the propagating garden and experimental farm.

The chrysalis was now ready to be broken. In 1889 the Department of Agriculture was elevated to the rank of the other executive departments and its commissioner was made secretary of agriculture with a seat in the President's cabinet. This was in Grover Cleveland's administration. In honor of its new rank a few more functions were taken on.

But that's enough detail. It kept on growing. Beginning with an appropriation of $1,000 and two or three clerks, the department had, in 1910, employees to the number of 12,480, and an appropriation of $12,995,036. Five years later the appropriation had grown to $19,865,832 and the employees to 16,223. The employees in May, 1920, numbered 18,098 and the appropriation given by congress for the fiscal year 1921 was $31,475,368.

The department has increased its cost of living in 82 years from a mere $1,000—that is, $83.33 a month—to more than $31,000,000 a year—$2,622,947.38 every month. That shows as clearly and as sharply as it can be shown how the high cost of government living affects your own cost of living.

We, you and I, paid out of our savings and earnings every red cent of that increase from $1,000 a year to more than $31,000,000. It may have been well spent. We probably got a run for our money; but nobody knows, except in a general way. We have a right to know. It is simply fatheadedness on our part not to find out.

HAPHAZARD EXTENSION

The Department of Agriculture is one instance of how governmental establishments grow and spread and extend their activities, once they get started. The bureau of fisheries, in the Department of Commerce, is another. It had a modest beginning, and not so very long ago. Prior to 1871 there was no branch of the federal government especially charged with the consideration of fishery affairs.

Several of the states had established fish commissions and these state authorities, supported by private interests, began to agitate for a national bureau devoted to fishery interests.

So it came about that by 1871 congress was ready to yield and begin to make appropriations. The first one was for $5,000 and provided for a commissioner of fish and fisheries to prosecute investigations and inquiries "with the view of ascertaining whether any and what diminution in the number of food fishes of the coast and in the lakes of the United States has taken place; and also whether any and what protective, prohibitory or precautionary measures should be adopted in the premises; and shall report upon the same to congress."

The commissioner was to draw no pay, for it was provided by congress in the same joint resolution that he should be a civil officer of the government, of proved scientific and practical acquaintance with the fishes of the coast, who should serve without additional compensation. The then assistant secretary of the Smithsonian institution, [illegible]

[illegible] biological stations had an aggregate area of over 12,000 acres, with a value of $240,000. The improvements and equipment at these stations represented an investment of more than $1,000,000. Other property of the bureau at that time included four seagoing steam and sail vessels, 20 steam launches and 150 small sail, power and rowboats, which with equipment had a value of $300,000. Its six fish-transportation cars were valued at $45,000. Indeed, the total investment of the government in fishery-service property ran to about $1,585,000. That was back in 1909.

Well, it hasn't stopped growing; bigger and busier than ever, as the advertisements say. The appropriation by congress for the fiscal year 1919 was $1,188,140, and for 1921, $1,207,110. Besides what congress gave, the President allotted in 1918 and 1919, out of his private fund "for the national security and defense," $160,000. With the years of its growth and increasing funds the bureau had taken on many new functions and activities.

Until recently the bureau was administering to the best of its ability the laws relating to the terrestrial and arboreal fur bearers of Alaska, but the duty was incongruous to its legitimate functions. [illegible] of foxes does not constitute a fishery. [illegible]

[illegible]

Hoosier News Briefly Told

Valparaiso.—It cost Porter county an average of $311.43 a mile in 1921 to keep the roads in the county in proper condition, according to data collected from records at the county auditor's office at Valparaiso. This included labor, materials and salaries of county and district superintendents. There are 350 miles of improved highway in the county, not including state highways. The total amount expended last year on the roads was $109,000. The average cost a mile of building new roads was $15,000. The high cost of maintenance is ascribed to the high cost of stone used in the repair work and the large amount of traffic from Chicago and environs.

Indianapolis.—Revision of oil inspection laws by the Indiana legislature to eliminate what was termed "political nonsense" in the analysis and rating of oil products of Indiana jobbers, was recommended at the quarterly meeting of the Indiana Oil Jobbers' association at Indianapolis. Under the present regulations, the job of inspecting oils in Indiana was declared to be inefficient, inspectors often being assigned to the work who were incompetent or who gave indorsements or disqualification to oil products according to their whims, or according to the degree of friendship with officers of the concerns.

Indianapolis.—Simultaneously with the public demonstration against the public service commission, the utilities body ordered a decrease in gas rates of the Elkhart Gas and Fuel company, one of the companies involved in the Indiana Electric corporation merger. Rates were ordered cut, ranging from a reduction from $1.50 to $1.35 per 1,000 cubic feet for the first 15,000 consumed, to a cut from $1.15 to $1 for all over 200,000 cubic feet. The demonstration by a crowd estimated to be composed of 12,000 persons recently was staged at the statehouse in protest against the existence of the public service commission.

Greenfield.—The Hancock county grand jury returned an indictment charging first degree murder against Mrs. Clara Carl, of Greenfield, in connection with the death of Frank B. Carl, her husband, at Greenfield last September. Mrs. Carl was indicted recently by the same grand jury for the killing of her father-in-law, Alonzo B. Carl, whose death occurred at his son's home last August. Both indictments were the result of exhaustive examination of the viscera of both bodies, in which arsenic was found.

Indianapolis.—Protest against a bill introduced in the congress providing for a division of the state of Indiana into two federal court districts, and for creation of a new federal judgeship, was made in letters sent out by the Indiana Real Estate association to constituent boards over the state. The letter recommended that communications be sent to the chairman of the judiciary committee of the house and to the congressman in each district, opposing the proposed measure.

Indianapolis.—About 2,000 manuscripts have been received from the first of the teachers' examinations held a few days ago at Indianapolis, the superintendent of the division of licensing of the state department of instruction announced. This is the largest number of manuscripts received in many years, he said. Examinations are held the last Saturday of every month from January to October, excepting February and September.

South Bend.—Eight Notre Dame athletes voluntarily confessed to Father William Carey, chairman of the athletic board, and Knute Rockne, football coach, that they had played in the semiprofessional football game at Taylorville, Ill., November 27, 1921, with the Carlinville (Ill.) team. They were immediately disqualified from further athletic competition at Notre Dame.

Muncie.—The banking situation in Dunkirk, caused by the Citizens' State bank closing its doors a few days ago, has been cleared by the absorption of that institution by the First State bank of Dunkirk, which assumes all the liabilities and assets of the Citizens' bank. The merged bank opened its doors and paid off all depositors of the Citizens' bank who asked for money.

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—A review of sales of real estate and of other property owned by farmers and on which they pay taxes will be conducted in every county in Indiana under the auspices of the county organization of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' associations, beginning February 18. The presidents of the county organization will bring the results of the reviews to Indianapolis, to be studied at a meeting of the whole group, with officers of the state body and of the state board of tax commissioners, February 23. The undertaking is intended to help the state board of tax commissioners to arrive at levies that are just to the farmer. The decision to carry out the plan was reached by the board of directors of the state federation.

Terre Haute.—As a result of trips into the Kansas coal fields by committees from districts No. 11 and No. 12, United Mine Workers of America, to investigate and report on the situation there, controversies have arisen between the two districts. In a statement issued at headquarters of district No. 11, comprising the bituminous coal fields in Indiana, John L. Hessler of Terre Haute, president, calls attention to the fact that the purported statements complained of by the committee of district No. 12, composed of Illinois men, and which that committee understood were contained in the reports of the committee recently sent by President Hessler from district No. 11, are not altogether true.

Indianapolis.—In order that all possible service may be extended to all county apiarists of Indiana, the division of entomology of the state conservation department proposes to extend its work into each county of the state by sending a state inspector to attend all county beekeepers' meetings. In 1921 a total of 22,000 bee colonies were inspected, and only 4.8 per cent were infected with either American or European foulbrood, compared with 14.9 per cent diseased colonies four years ago. Intensive inspection and employment of proper methods to fight the disease will successfully eradicate it, the state entomologist asserts.

Kokomo.—At a meeting of the officers and directors of the Howard County Farmers' Federation and the presidents of various township associations in the county, it was voted to hold one-day farm accounting schools in each township of the county. Other decisions made were: To pool the wool of members of the federation to sell direct to the manufacturer; to establish a county seed corn testing station; to buy a carload or more of certified seed potatoes, and to hold two meetings to explain to the farmers the meaning of the seed inspection law passed by the 1921 state legislature.

Indianapolis.—The Indiana coal division of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad company will be purchased by the McGuire-Cummings Manufacturing company of Paris, Ill., according to word received by Commissioner George Barnard of the public service commission. The company will pay $450,000 for the line and will operate it with light equipment. Commissioner Barnard has been active in preventing the abandonment of the road, which was proposed some time ago.

Marion.—The result of the perfect package campaign held during the month of November by the postoffice department, made public recently, shows Marion received a rating of 99.98 per cent, which was the highest of any Indiana city, and was one of only two cities in the United States in Group C, including cities of 2[illegible]000, that received this per cent. The campaign concerned the proper mailing of packages, so as to insure their speedy and safe deliveries.

Evansville.—The Illinois Central railroad is preparing to discontinue a steam-drawn train now operating between Stewartsville, a town on the main line between Evansville, Peoria and New Harmony. This branch line has been in operation ever since the Evansville & Peoria division was built, more than thirty years ago. The new motor driven locomotive to be used is said to have regular automobile wheels fitted with flanges to keep the engine on the track.

[illegible] S. Reiter, judge of the [illegible] Hammond, sustained the [illegible] of the state law which gives cities of the second class, in which there is no higher than a city court, jurisdiction [illegible] up to [illegible] mortgages and chattel [illegible]

[illegible]

THIN FRAIL PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE TANLAC

Hundreds of Men and Women All Over America Appear To Be Physical Wrecks Simply Because Their Systems Are Starving for Nourishment.

There are hundreds of thin, run-down, nervous men and women all over the United States who should be strong, sturdy and vigorous, with rich, red blood tingling through their veins and feeling brimful of life and energy, if they would only profit by the experience of others all over the United States and Canada, and assist nature to digest the food they eat, by simply taking Tanlac.

Millions of people have not only been relieved of the most obstinate forms of dyspepsia and indigestion by Tanlac after other remedies have failed, but large numbers of them have reported a remarkable and rapid increase in weight and a return to normal health and strength by its use.

In fact, so phenomenal have been the gains in weight by thin, frail people through the use of Tanlac that this remarkable preparation is now being proclaimed everywhere as the World's Greatest Tonic.

The food people eat does them absolutely no good unless they digest it properly. When you suffer from indigestion and other forms of stomach trouble, the food does you harm instead of good, because food which is not digested stays in the stomach and ferments, causing pains, swelling, gas on stomach, shortness of breath, bad taste in the mouth, dizziness and many other disagreeable symptoms. If this condition is permitted to run on for an indefinite period the entire system becomes saturated with poisons, the patient becomes thin and pale and in time various complications are apt to result.

Tanlac is a powerful reconstructive tonic and quickly overcomes this condition by aiding nature to eliminate the impurities from the system in a natural way and enable the vital organs to properly perform their functions. That is why it is called Nature's Medicine.

In fact, there is not a single portion of the body that is not benefited by the helpful action of Tanlac, which begins its work by stimulating the digestive and assimilative organs, thereby enriching the blood and invigorating the entire system. Next, it enables the weak, worn-out stomach to thoroughly digest its food and convert the nourishing elements into bone, blood and muscle. The result is you feel strong, sturdy and well with the proper amount of flesh, as Nature intended. Sold by all good druggists.

Whom Satan would destroy he first [illegible]

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Better a good-paying job than a low-salaried position.

Shave With Cuticura Soap

And double your razor efficiency as well as promote skin purity, skin comfort and skin health. No mug, no slimy soap, no germs, no waste, no irritation even when shaved twice daily. One soap for all uses—shaving bathing and shampooing.—Advertisement.

Clarification.

"Did you make your ideas perfectly clear to your auditors?"

"If I did," rejoined Senator Sorghum, thoughtfully, "I hope some of 'em will take the trouble to drop around and explain 'em to me."

What a lot of heartache is caused needlessly!

If you use Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry, you will not be troubled by those tiny rust spots, often caused by inferior bluing. Try it and see. —Advertisement.

People in a hurry will agree with you, anyway.

SHE DYED A SWEATER, SKIRT AND CHILD'S COAT WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her worn, shabby dresses, skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything, even if she has never dyed before. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is sure because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to spot, fade, streak, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.—advertisement.

Beware the friend without discretion.

Genuine
BAYER
BAYER
ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache	Rheumatism
Toothache	Neuralgia	Neuritis
Earache	Lumbago	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer [illegible]

WESTERN CANADA
Land of Prosperity

FEBRUARY

Paris Approves Tailored Suits

The smartly dressed Parisienne is faithful to her recent love—the tailored suit, declares a Paris correspondent of the New York Tribune. Last spring there was an amazing vogue for the mannish tailored suit. It was astonishing to see this type of dress become such a craze with French women, for they never have been advocates of the severe outdoor costume beloved by the women of England and America. So great was the craze for the gray tailored suit in Paris last spring that it became almost a uniform.

Now a new element has entered into the suit—a feminine element—and while the suit retains its simplicity it has lost its severity. Jackets have become vague in outline and with true coquetry the Parisienne often wears a picturesque well-trimmed hat with these tailored suits.

Russian blouse styles are very successful. There is a youthfulness to suits having this outline that no woman can afford to overlook unless she be very young indeed.

Basques With Russian Blouse Suits.

Jenny, always noted for her youthful models, is having remarkable success with her Russian blouse suits trimmed with fur and worn with tunic blouses of matching color which are long enough to show below the bottom of the jackets. One of her best models, strangely enough, has an American name—Boston. This suit has been having an enormous success in Paris because of its becomingness of outline and its smart and interesting details.

What appears to be a band of embroidery around the skirt is really the edge of the tunic blouse. This blouse is such a usable model not only when worn with this suit—which, minus the fur, will make one of the best designs for the spring season—but as a separate blouse.

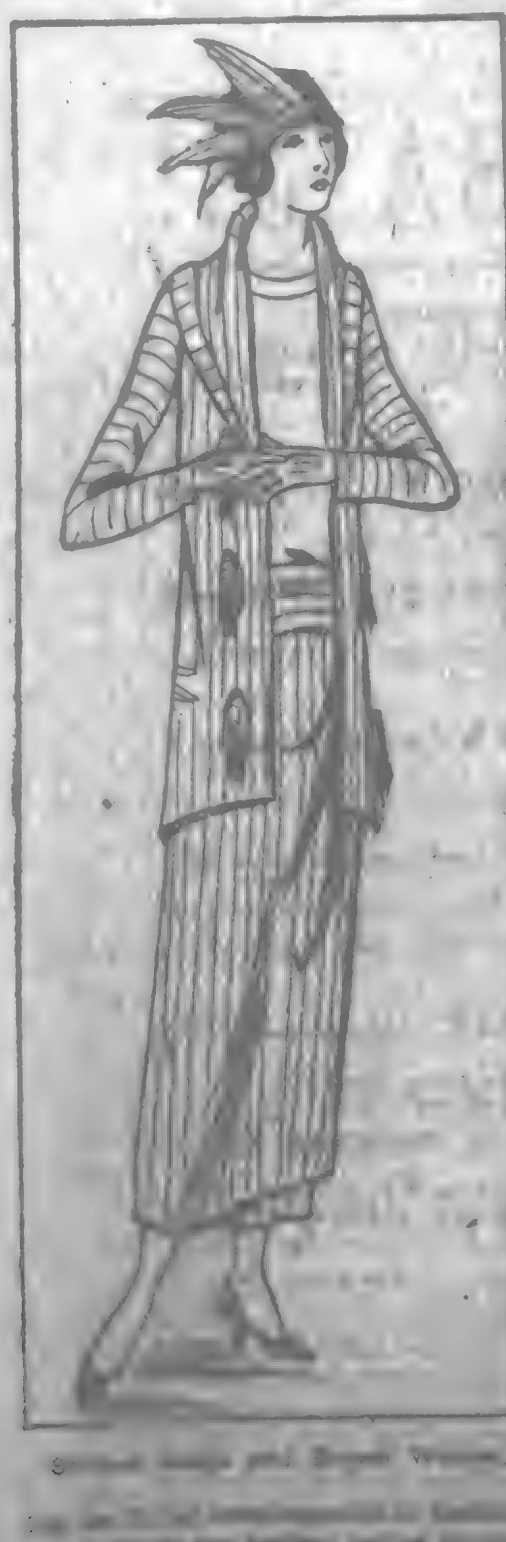
One of Jean Patou's best liked Russian blouse styles is in his new color, a soft sage green. This maker's preference for green is so marked that he is using lamb's wool dyed in this shade as a trimming for many of his smartest Russian blouse suits.

Velours Model of Indefinite Outline.

Color is becoming a factor with various clever dressmakers as a means of setting their own particular seal on their models. The Madeleine blue, affected by Madeleine et Madeleine in the autumn, has become widely known. These makers have announced their intention of bringing out a new shade each season and giving it prominence throughout their line.

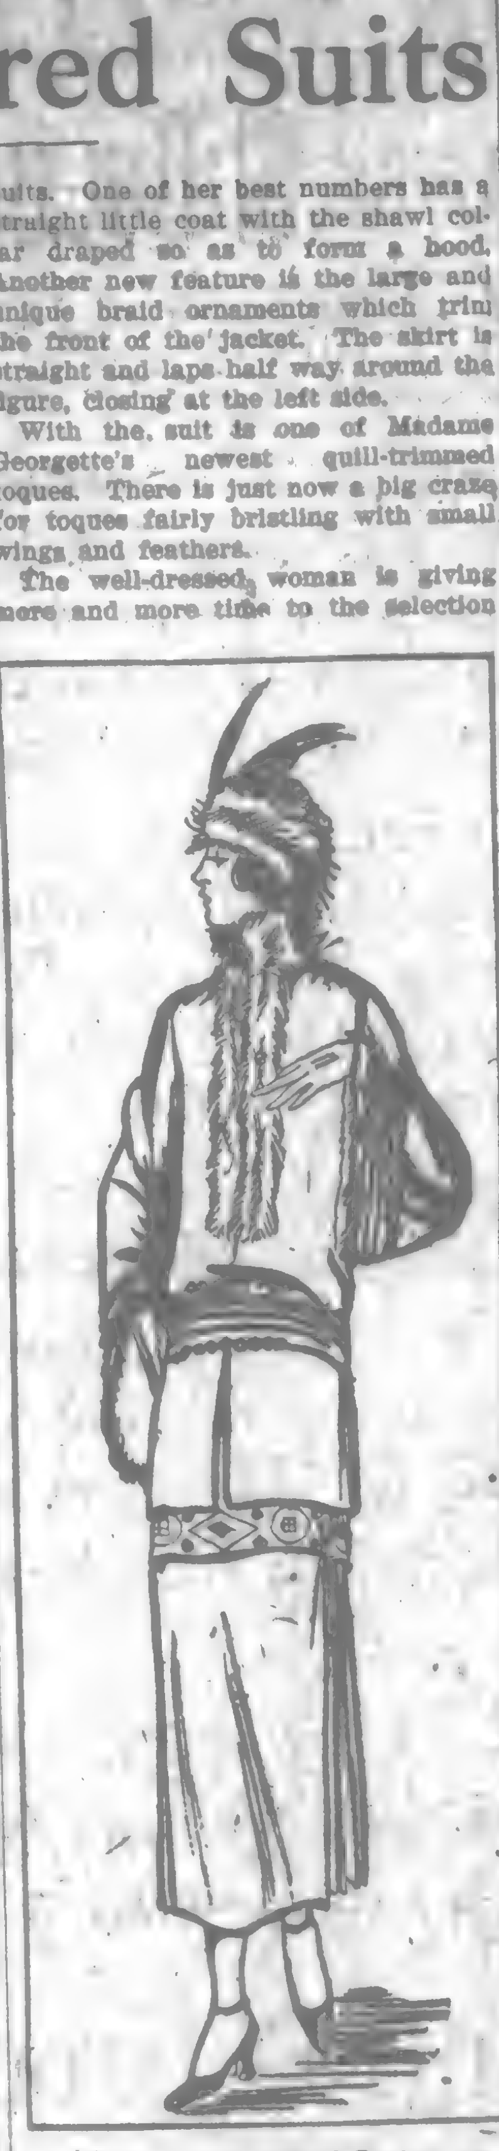
For the mid-season they are featuring a suit known as Certainement, developed in this shade of blue broadcloth. It is trimmed with gray Australian opossum fur, the fur forming not only the big collar and cuffs but wide, floating panels at the sides of the jacket.

Cheruit makes a beautiful model in brown velours de laine with a loose jacket having the indefinite outline so greatly desired in tailored suits showing [illegible]



[illegible]

[illegible]



The Model Named Boston.

suits. One of her best numbers has a straight little coat with the shawl collar draped so as to form a hood. Another new feature is the large and unique braid ornaments which trim the front of the jacket. The skirt is straight and laps half way around the figure, closing at the left side.

With the suit is one of Madame Georgette's newest quill-trimmed toques. There is just now a big craze for toques fairly bristling with small wings and feathers.

The well-dressed woman is giving more and more time to the selection of her hats. She spends as much time in choosing her hat or her handbag as she does in buying her costume.

Many of the new spring suits will have metal or composition girdles designed to match the cloth from which they are made. This will be especially true of the suits of the new Rodier fabrics, the girles harmonizing with the patterns and the colorings in the cloth. This is a very new idea and one which will be extensively featured in spring models.

An amazing number of wide-skirted dresses have made their appearance in the last few weeks. Earlier in the season this type of dress was seen to a considerable extent; but it did not play a major role, as it does now. So rapid has been its growth that it seems as though a changed silhouette had sprung up overnight.

The theater always has a great bearing on dress. The clothes seen on the stage reflect the mode and have a greater influence on costume than the casual observer realizes. Both the Paris and American stages are now featuring the full-skirted dress, and it is to these sources that we may attribute its renaissance.

Designers permit great latitude in the outline of these bouffant skirts, and it is interesting to observe the different versions and interpretations of this mode. It makes little difference whether the hoop or extended portion of the skirt be at the hem line, at the half way mark or at the hips. Each dressmaker has a slightly different interpretation.

Deep Pointed Scallops.

A typical version is a model with deep pointed scallops at the hem. The points sweep the ground, while the cut-away portion is so extreme that a short effect is ingeniously produced. This frock is seen on the American stage developed in [illegible] The tight-[illegible] sleeveless, is [illegible] the waist [illegible] tha which [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 12

ELISHA AND THE SHUNAMMITE WOMAN

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 4:8-37.

GOLDEN TEXT—Verily, verily, I say unto you, the hour is coming, and now is, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear shall live.—John 5:25.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—John 11:1-46.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Elisha Brings a Boy to Life.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How Elisha Brought a Boy to Life.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Elisha Helping in a Home.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Our Ministry of Comfort and Help.

I. The Shunammite's Hospitality to Elisha (vv. 8-11).

1. Its occasion (v. 8). A wealthy woman of Shunem, observing that Elisha passed continually by her house in his journeys, was moved with compassion toward him. She determined according to her ability to supply his needs.

2. Its nature (vv. 8-11). "She constrained him to eat bread" (vv. 8, 9). As a result of her earnest entreaty, as often as he passed by her house he turned in to eat bread. She received a prophet in the name of a prophet.

II. Elisha Endeavors to Repay Her Kindness (vv. 12-17).

1. He offers to ask a favor from the king or head of the army (v. 13). This offer implies that Elisha had influence at the royal court. The woman's reply shows her truly to be a great woman. She did not desire to change the calm and quiet of her home for a place even in the royal court. Her answer also shows that her motive in extending generosity to the prophet was entirely unselfish, purely because he was God's prophet.

2. Elisha announces the giving of a son to her (vv. 16, 17). Through inquiry of Gehazi it was discovered that this woman was childless. So the prophet made known to her that in about a year from that time she should experience the joy of a mother.

III. The Coming of Sorrow to the Shunammite's Home (vv. 18-21).

The child which brought joy to her home was suddenly taken away. How many homes are like this! Scarcely do we begin to enjoy life until death enters and snatches away some loved one. The cause of his death was probably sunstroke, for the heat of the sun at harvest time in this country is very intense. When the boy complained of his head, the father sent him home to his mother. By noon the child died and the mother laid him upon the bed of the man of God. Faith prompted her to do this. She did not make preparation for burial, but for restoration to life (Heb. 11:35).

IV. The Mother Goes to Elisha (vv. 22-28).

When one is in trouble or sorrow the best place to go is to the man of God who is able to give counsel and comfort. Happy is the one who in the days of prosperity and sunshine has so related himself to God and His prophets that he can have help and sympathy in time of trouble.

1. She took hold of Elisha's feet (v. 27). This was the eastern way of enforcing a petition. She passed by Gehazi. She would not be content with the servant when the master could be reached.

2. She chided the prophet (v. 28). "Did I desire a son?" This implies that it would have been better not to have had a child than to have lost him so soon.

V. The Child Restored (vv. 29-37).

1. Gehazi's fruitless errand (vv. 29-31). He hurried away and placed the prophet's staff upon the child's face, but it did not revive. Perhaps the fault lay in Gehazi—his lack of faith. The woman seemed to perceive his lack; she would not trust him. She would not go until Elisha was willing to go along. This fruitless errand of Gehazi shows the [illegible] of the forms of [illegible] used by those who have [illegible]

2. [illegible] (vv. 32-37). [illegible]

[illegible]

True Detective Stories

THE SECRET OF HOLMEHURST

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THE discovery of the body of B. F. Perry in his home at 1316 Callowhill street, Philadelphia, by a man who had come in to see about securing a patent, did not cause any sensation at the time, for the coroner's jury gave a speedy verdict of "death from accidental causes." There was clear evidence that some sort of an explosion had taken place. A shattered bottle which had manifestly contained some sort of inflammable material, a broken pipe filled with partly burned tobacco and a charred match, lay beside the body.

An autopsy showed that Perry had died from congestion of the lungs caused by the inhaling of flames or chloroform, the latter having presumably formed the contents of the broken bottle. So, as there were no claimants for the body and no estate, Perry's remains were interred in the Potter's field. There they would have remained undisturbed if it had not been for the evidence of a convict in the St. Louis prison.

Shortly after Perry's death, the Philadelphia branch of the Fidelity Insurance company received a letter from Jephtha D. Howe, an attorney in St. Louis, stating that "B. F. Perry" was really Benjamin F. Pitezel, who had carried a $10,000 life insurance with the Fidelity company. The only person who could be found to identify the body was a man named H. H. Holmes, of Wilmette, Ill., who willingly came to Philadelphia to superintend the exhuming of the body. Holmes and Howe met in the office of the company, presumably as strangers, and the former clearly identified the body of the dead man as that of his friend, Pitezel. Satisfied, the insurance company paid the insurance to Howe, Pitezel's attorney, and reimbursed Holmes for his expenses.

The details of the case were reported in the St. Louis newspapers, and a few days later, Marion Hedgspeth, a convict serving a sentence for train robbery, informed the governor of the prison that he would like to give him some information which he considered most important.

"If you will examine the records of the prison," said Hedgspeth, "you will find that there was a man here last summer by the name of H. H. Howard. He was in for fraud, I think, but was released on bail. While he was here, Howard asked me if I knew any lawyer whom I could recommend in connection with a swindling scheme which he had in mind—a plan which ought to net at least $10,000 without any trouble. He promised me $500 for my information and I gave him the lawyer's name, but I never got my five hundred."

"The name of the lawyer I recommended to 'Howard' was Jephtha D. Howe and 'Howard' is undoubtedly the man named Holmes who is mixed up with that insurance case in Philadelphia! The details of the case agree exactly with the scheme, as Howard outlined it to me last summer."

As soon as this information reached Philadelphia, the insurance company detailed an experienced detective named Geyer to arrest Holmes and to investigate his antecedents, for it was clear that Pitezel had not met his death through accident, but had been deliberately murdered. After a month's search, Holmes was traced to New England and finally arrested.

This, however, proved to be practically the beginning of the case for, the further back Geyer went into Holmes' history, the more gruesome details he discovered. In endeavoring to find out what had become of Mrs. Pitezel and her five children, Geyer found in the cellar of a house in Toronto—a house rented by Holmes under the name of Cunning—the bodies of two children later identified as Alice and Etta Pitezel. From Toronto the trail led to Indianapolis, by way of Detroit and Cincinnati, and it was in Indianapolis that Geyer discovered the body of Howard Pitezel, aged ten, jammed into the [illegible] in a house [illegible] time [illegible] to the [illegible]

It was [illegible] through [illegible] came [illegible]

[illegible]

A MESSAGE TO TIRED, SICK FOLKS

Don't Drag Through Life Half Sick and Half Well. Take This Advice.

Go to your druggist and ask him for Gude's Pepto-Mangan and take it with your meals for a few weeks and see how your health improves.

If you are pale, tired, lack ambition and vigor, you know yourself that if you had plenty of red blood that you would not feel tired and half sick all the time. The only sure foundation of permanent health is good blood. Gude's Pepto-Mangan builds up your blood with a form of iron that gets into your system quickly. It is wonderful. You will like it and it will make you feel so well and strong. Life will be worth living again. Try it and you will thank us for telling you about it. Druggists sell Gude's Pepto-Mangan in both liquid and tablet form. Advertisement.

The stern man isn't always behind in his business.

IN BUYING ASPIRIN ALWAYS SAY "BAYER"

Look for the Name "Bayer" on Tablets, Then You Need Never Worry.

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" can be taken safely for Colds, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Rheumatism, Joint Pains, Neuritis, and Pain generally.

To get quick relief follow carefully the safe and proper directions in each unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin." This package is plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross."

The "Bayer Cross" means the genuine, world-famous Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years.—Advertisement.

It's impossible to buy a friend that is worth the price.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION
6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS
25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

"I heartily recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills as I have taken them for some time and can truly say that they were a benefit to me. I also believe they will help anybody who has kidney trouble of any kind." Signed, F. C. CHASE, Welcome Lake, Pa.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS have been recommended by good druggists for over two generations. Insist on getting only the genuine DODD'S—three D's in name. If your druggist is not supplied—send 60c. for large box to DODD'S MEDICINE CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Mild Laxative — Diamond Dinner Pills — Never Gripe

How're Your Nerves?

What This Woman Says is of Vital Interest to You.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—"As a strengthening medicine Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is excellent. After I had an operation I was so very weak and rundown that I just could not seem to get strong. My whole nervous system was affected. I took the Prescription and found it very beneficial as a tonic and builder of the nervous system. I gained in strength and felt better in every way after taking it."—Mrs. Fred Baker, 911 Pitcher St.

Your health is most important to you. It's easily improved. Just ask your nearest druggist for this Prescription of Dr. Pierce's in tablet or liquid form. Send 10c for trial package to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., or write for free medical advice.

CURES COLDS IN A DAY
AT ALL DRUG STORES
HILL'S CASCARA QUININE BROMIDE
PRICE 30 CENTS
World's standard cold and la grippe remedy. Demand red box bearing Mr. Hill's portrait and signature.
W. H. HILL CO., DETROIT

You'll Smile Too
when you know the Comfort and easy stretch of Nu-Way or EXCELLO RUBBERLESS SUSPENDERS
Guaranteed One Year—Price 75¢
Always insist on NU-WAY or EXCELLO Guaranteed Suspenders, Garters and Hose Supporters.
Ask Your Dealer If he hasn't them send direct, giving dealer's name
Accept no substitutes—Look for name on buckles
Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co., Mfrs., Adrian, Mich

Liggett & Myers
KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as "that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

Ford Owners
Save 25 cts. on your timer shell. Send your old shell and 35 cents. We rebuild, return and guarantee satisfaction.
Economy Electric Co., Cheboygan, Mich.

Don't Cut Out a Shoe Boil, Capped Hock or Bursitis for will reduce them and leave no blemishes. Stops lameness promptly. Does not blister or remove the hair, and horse can be worked. $2.50 a bottle delivered. Book 6 A free.
ABSORBINE
W. F. Young, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

Strawberry Plants: Standard & everbearing. Illus. catalog describing 10 best varieties, free. Hampton & Sons, R. 3, Bangor, Mich.

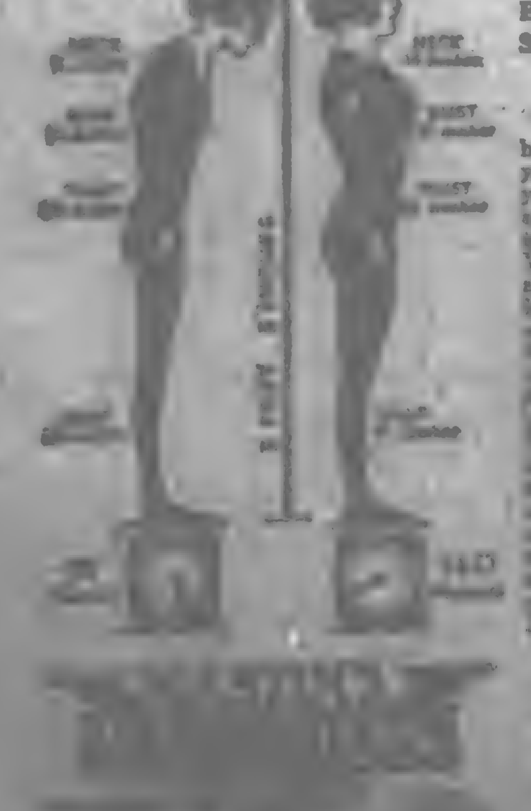
CANDY—ALL KINDS
Learn how to make it in your own home. My book teaches you how. My recipes are absolutely reliable, failure is impossible. For particulars write MARGERY A. RICKER, Dept. 3, Lynbrook, Long Island, N. Y.

California Property—Homesites with income. View of beautiful bay, ocean, mountains. Ideal balmy climate. Wonderful income features. Fine investment. Restricted. $200 up, easy terms. R. S. Otto, 669 P.E.Bldg., Los Angeles.

How Yeast Vitamon Tablets Put On Firm Flesh

Strengthen The Nerves and Invigorate The Body—Easy And Economical To Take—Results Surprisingly Quick.

If you want to put some firm healthy [illegible]



[illegible] VITAMON

FEBRUARY

--Dr.--

J. W. Hartzog

Eye-Sight SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist Office, St. Joe, Ind.,

Friday, FEBRUARY 10th

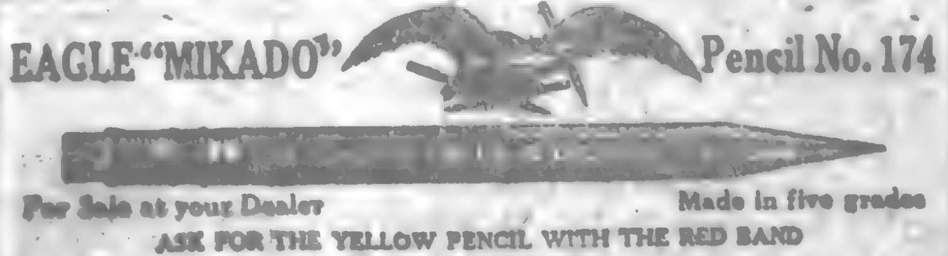
If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL

BAD BREATH

DO YOU WANT your friends to avoid you? They will certainly do so when your breath is bad. There is no excuse for anyone having a bad breath. It is caused by disorders of the stomach which can be corrected by taking Chamberlain's Tablets. Many have been permanently cured of stomach troubles by the use of these tablets after years of suffering. Price 25 cents per bottle.

Chamberlain's Tablets



EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174

For Sale at your Dealer — Made in five grades

ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND

EAGLE MIKADO

EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

CHIROPRACTIC

The Pinch hitter in the HEALTH GAME

Acute and Chronic diseases, Men, Women and Children restored to health by Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments.

ERNEST O. FULLER, D. C.

CHIROPRACTOR

Auburn, Ind., Phone 235 W.
Waterloo, Ind., Phone 211.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Mrs. Gladys Murphy and son Derrell, spent last week with her parents, Wm. Sauers and wife.

George Brown and family, of Auburn, visited Saturday and Sunday with J. D. Brown.

Alvin Walker and family, Mrs. G. W. Palmer and Irving Ginther, of Ft. Wayne, were Sunday guests in the E. S. Ginther home.

COBURN'S CORNERS

Mark Shull and family were last Sunday guests of Mrs. Eva Shull.

Mrs. Ernest Jenkins was a week-end guest in the Ella Wilmot home.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude Laub and family spent Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Blaker, Butler.

Miss Katherine Shull of St. Joe was a guest of Miss Portia Hadsell last Sunday.

W. W. Wilder and son, Lehr, attended teachers' meeting at Antwerp, [illegible].

Mrs. Matie Gee, son Fred, and [illegible] were guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Gee of St. Joe, Sunday afternoon.

Rev. [illegible] gave an earnest [illegible]

[illegible]

The Deluceny family from near Hicksville are new occupants of the Walter Abel farm west of Corners.

The remains of the late Ephraim Wade, whose death occurred at Petoskey, Mich., were interred in the Alton cemetery, Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Fred Hart entertained the R. H. C. last Thursday in a meeting of many interesting features. Cake and fruit salad, coffee, doughnuts and pickles were served.

Mr. and Mrs. Kel. Hart, daughter, Elizabeth, and Mr. and Mrs. George Hart were guests at the Dr. Shook home at Spencerville, Saturday evening.

The Ladies' Aid will meet with Mrs. Fred Hart in an all-day meeting and pot-luck dinner on Friday last for a comfort-knotting. Each member is requested to bring their needles, thimble and scissors.

Prevailing conditions in health of Mrs. Charles Tustison have demanded an operation, which will be undergone at the Amaden hospital at Hicksville, this week. She was removed to the hospital last Tuesday.

Word was received here Tuesday morning of the death of Mrs. Melvina Alton of Elmwood, Neb., a former resident here. Death came Monday morning. She was a sister of Mrs. Alice Hart. Funeral services will be held today.

NEWS OF THE TOWN

Try a NEWS want ad--It Pays.

Valentine cards at News office.

Bennett Leighty is on the sick list with a siege of the grippe.

C. C. Bassett and Claire Coburn were Hicksville visitors, Monday.

I. S. Hadsell of Hicksville was a St. Joe visitor Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kees and son Dean spent last Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kees.

Merritt Sechler spent from Friday until Tuesday at Indianapolis visiting friends.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Jacob Baker and daughter, Mrs. Matie Gee, were afternoon callers of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Gee, Sunday.

Fred Randall and family, of Harlan, were Friday guests of William Randall and family.

Anyone wanting baby chickens hatched, see Mrs. Ora Wilmot, St. Joe.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Keesler and children were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Storer.

Among those on the sick list are Sam Mumaw, Mrs. Silas Reasoner and little Miss Beulah Storer.

Byron Widney and wife spent Sunday afternoon with Silas Reasoner and wife.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Ott Widney and wife, of Hicksville, were Sunday afternoon guests in the B. E. Widney home.

Dan Myers and family were Sunday afternoon guests of Mrs. Ruth Gorrell at Spencerville.

Willis Wilcox, wife and baby, of Auburn, came [illegible] for a few days visit with her parents, Chas. Cochran and wife.

Mrs. [illegible] and daughter [illegible] and son [illegible] and Floyd Ridgway were [illegible]

[illegible]

WHAT Mr. HELLER Did in Business Hursh Will do.

Next FRIDAY and SATURDAY, FEB. 10-11

we will begin to do what HELLER did by selling our entire stock at near COST PRICES. We have a Large Stock of SHOES, RUBBERS and ARCTICS for the whole family, which will go at convincing prices. This stock is new, of first quality, and we invite your inspection of prices and the quality of our goods.

In addition to the above mentioned we will close out our DRY GOODS, consisting of Outing, Percales, Muslin, Sateen, Ticking, Blue Dresses, Pillow Tubing at Eye-Opening Prices; GROCERIES will be sold too, including Flour of all kinds, and Canned Fruits at Low Prices. Be there with a hay rack.

We will shove our counters back to the wall to make room for the rush. There will be plenty of clerks to wait on you.

Doors to be opened at 8:15 in the morning to give all a fair chance. Bring in your Butter and Eggs and receive the Highest Prices. All goods must sell for CASH, as we need the money.

Space is too small to list the Low Prices here, but as examples read these:

Men's Work Shoes, $2.75 Our Overalls, 97c and $1.23

Men's Heavy Shirts, 69c Women's Aprons, 89c

Children's Shoes, $1.87 Boys' Shoes, 2.60 and 2.15

—The Central Grocery—

H. G. HURSH, Proprietor, St. Joe, Indiana

Mrs. Neva Hursh visited friends in Ft. Wayne and Garrett, last week.

Ed Miser and family were Waterloo visitors, Saturday.

Ralph Brown and wife moved to Auburn, the first of the week.

The Filo family moved back to Ft. Wayne, the first of the week.

Leon Sechler, wife and son Edward, spent Thursday and Friday at Ft. Wayne visiting relatives.

Mrs. C. C. Curie, who has been ill the past week or so, is improving.

Will Koch and wife were Sunday dinner guests of Clay Coburn and family.

Mrs. Cordelia Wade, of Petoskey, Mich., will be the guest of relatives in this vicinity for the coming month.

Mrs. Ella Patterson had as Sunday dinner guests, Rev. A. [illegible]man, of [illegible] and M. T. Bishop and wife.

C. J. [illegible] of [illegible]ville, spent a few days [illegible] week as guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. S[illegible].

Miss [illegible] Sechler, who has been [illegible], is improving.

[illegible]

The following ladies went to Ft. Wayne, Thursday evening, and attended the concert given by St. Olaf Choir at the Palace Theatre—Miss Grace Leighty, and the Mesdames Blanche Leighty, Ella Patterson, Lora Leighty, Jennie Sechler and Flossie Mavis, the latter from Hicksville.

I. S. Hadsell, wife and daughter Maurine, and Mrs. Cordelia Hadsell, of Hicksville, and M. J. Hadsell and wife, were Monday evening guests of Saxe Hadsell and family.

PUBLIC SALE!

We will sell at public sale on what is known as the old Partee farm, back of the Horn school house, or the Springfield No. 3 school house, 3 miles south of Spencerville, 1 mile east and 3 miles north of Grabill, on

Monday, February 13, '22

Commencing at 10 o'clock, the following:

2—Two Head of HORSES—2

Bay mare, 11 years old, weight 1550; dark mare, 10 years old, weight 1450.

1—One COW—1

Guernsey cow, 7 years old, will be fresh March 1st.

21—HOGS—21

Brood sow, farrow Dec. 24th, six fine pigs; brood sow, farrow Feb. [illegible], [illegible] fine pigs; brood sow, farrow Feb. [illegible], [illegible] fine pigs; 1 gilt, weight [illegible].

50—Good Laying HENS—50

FARM MACHINERY

Fordson tractor and Oliver [illegible] binder, 7-ft. cut; McCormick mower, [illegible]

[illegible]

FEBRUARY

L 91

St. Joe News Supplement Thursday, February 9, 1922

High School Alumni Meet

The Alumni of the St. Joe High school met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Scholes Thursday evening, January 26th.

Election of officers for the next year was the purpose of the meeting and it resulted as follows:

Clark Scholes, '14, president.
William Quance, '18, vice-pres.
Marjorie Curie, '21, secretary.
Roy Maxwell, '09, treasurer.

Here are the names of the early members of the Alumni and the year in which they graduated:

Ray Sheffer, '99, (deceased).
Walter Ulm, '99,)deceased).
Lee O. Tustison, '00.
Dessa Reasoner-Potter, '00.
Mary Wiers-Bachtel, '00.
John Dilley, '00.
Ora Wilmot, '01.
Nellie Heatherington-Startsman, '01.
Esther Baker-Bowman, '01.
Mae Leighty-Openlander, '01.
Lora Hull-Leighty, '02.
Delphia Hamilton-Provines, '02.
John D. Milliman, '02.
Edward Earl Sherer, '02.
Maud Scholes-Debner, '03.
Nellie Scholes-Ulm, '03.
Meritt Sechler, '03.
Bert Woodcox, '03, (deceased).
Deo Dermott, '03.
Robert Ulm, '03.
Craig Sheffer, '03.
Ethel Green, '04.
Edith Widney, '04.
Mary Dilley-Baker, '04.
Esther Hallabaugh, '04.
Grace Wiers, '04.
Lela Shilling-Northrup, '04
Della May, '04
Edna Koch-Moudy, '04, (dec'd)
Pearl Hendricks-Pervine, '04
Lester Curie, '04.
Roscoe Barney, '04, (deceased).
Sylva Hallabaugh-Ginther, '05
Fuchsia Hadsell-McPherson, '05.
Ethel Berry, '05, (deceased).
Dale Widney, '05.
Bessie Bartlett, '06.
Grace Sechler-Dilley, '06
Hazel Berry-Steward, '06.
Josephine Howey, '06
Elgin Curie, '06.
Elgin Woodcox, '06.
Clarence Walter, '06.

"To be continued next week"

Subscription News.

The Western Union Tel. Co., formerly located here; Mrs. William Sommers, C. L. Brinker, and D. C. McCann are new subscribers to The News.

It often happens. Can't do without it. Not long ago one of our old subscribers came in and asked that his paper be transferred to a friend, and he would do without. The rate was paid and the change made. A week later this person made another call and ordered the paper sent to him again, stating that the family had missed it so much in just one week that he would subscribe for another year.

Last week, a mother ordered the News sent to a daughter for one year as a birthday present. The same day the husband of this same daughter called in and ask that we send the paper to them for a year beginning immediately. Well, this demanded an explanation, which was gladly made. Rushing calls, but we are glad to care for you.

Sixty-five divorce suits were filed and only fifty-six marriage licenses were issued in the office of County Clerk Kent Sweet during the month of January. It was the first time in the history of Allen county that divorce suits were more numerous than marriages in any month.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an addjtional $8000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years,
$12.50 a month for five years,
$6.25 a month for ten years,

If Permanently and Totaly Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of 60, Premiums on this policy will cease and the Company will pay you $25 a month as long as you live, and at you death the full $2500 will be paid to your beneficiary.

Full particuliars of this Perfect Policy given upon request by

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Obituary of Emanuel D. Hendricks

Emanuel D. Hendricks, son of Samuel K. and Martha Hendricks, was born in Paulding county, Ohio, September 20, 1853, and died January 18, 1922, aged 68 years, 3 months and 28 days.

His boyhood days were spent in Paulding and Williams counties, Ohio. Fifty years ago, in early manhood, he came to DeKalb county, Ind., where he has since resided. He lived at Butler and St. Joe before coming to Auburn in 1914.

In 1884 he was married to Mary Davis. To this union one daughter was born. This daughter, Mrs. Pearl Purvine, resides at Montgomery, Mich. The home was broken in 1887 when his companion passed to the great beyond.

In 1890 he was married to Sarah E. Wineland. One son, Simon, who still resides at home, was born to this union.

Besides his wife and son at home and the daughter, Mrs. Purvine of Montgomery, Mich., he leaves three brothers, Samuel of White Pigeon, Mich., Henry O. of Upland, Nebr., and Salathiel of Ashland, Nebr., and one sister, Martha J. Gibbens of Campbell, Nebr. Three brothers, Joel, Andrew and George, and four sisters, May, Margaret, Catherine and Sarah preceded him to the home of the soul.

He confessed his faith in Christ and became a member of the Church of Christ at Butler, Ind., in 1888. He was a member of the Church of Christ of Auburn at the time of his departure, and was faithful to all his Christian duties as long as his strength would permit and interested in all its activities to the last.

Brother Hendricks was honored by all who knew him for his sincerity and loyalty to the highest ideals of life. We will truly miss him in the home and church life of the Auburn Church of Christ. The body was laid to rest in Riverside cemetery, St. Joe.

Report of Coroner's Inquest

The report of his inquest into the death of the late William Orr, who was burned to death in the barn at his home Tuesday night, was filed Thursday in the office of County Clerk C. E. McClintock, by Coroner W. H. Ettinger, of Waterloo.

Mrs. Blanch Huls, wife of the tenant on the farm, testified that Mr. Orr went to the barn about 5:45 o'clock with a lantern and about 6 o'clock she saw the barn afire. She heard an explosion immediately thereafter.

James Clayton Huls, the tenant, stated he had resided with Mr. Orr since December 1921. Previously he had lived at Georgetown, Allen county, and at Fostoria, Ohio. He was at Harlan at the time of the fire having gone there about 3:10 that afternoon and returning at 6:45. He has been farming all his life and he entered Mr. Orr's employ after Mr. Orr offered him the job. He and Mr. Orr painted the interior of the barn Tuesday with kerosene oil for the prevention of lice, he stated.

Stearl E. Wade was the only other witness at the inquest. He testified that he arrived at the scene of the fire about 6:40. Thirty minutes later he could see the body of Mr. Orr in the barn and he seemed to be on his knees. Mr. Wade stated he heard two explosions.

Mr. Ettinger found that Mr. Orr was seventy-[illegible] years old.

Warning to Drivers Of School Hacks

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 4.—Several recent accidents in which steam trains and electric interurban cars have struck school hacks loaded with pupils has caused the state board of education to again emphasize to drivers of school hacks the importance of observing the law, which requires that all such vehicles must be stopped on approaching and before crossing railroad tracks and electric lines.

A repetition of the tragedy in which six children in a school hack were killed by a Pennsylvania train near Van Wert, Ohio, recently came near duplication at a crossing in Akron, Ind., where a hack conveying nine school children was struck by a Winona interurban car. The vehicle was badly damaged, but the children all escaped injury.

Flag Etiquette

February is our patriotic month. Reverence for the flag is one way of showing our patriotism toward the country for which our flag is the outward symbol.

When to Fly the Flag

Lincoln's Birthday, Feb. 12; Washington's Birthday, Feb. 22; Memorial Day, May 30; Flag Day, June 14; Independence Day, July 4; Armistice Day, Nov. 11.

On Memorial Day the flag should be flown at half-mast. When the flag is displayed at half-mast, it is lowered to that position from the top. When finally lowered, it should be first run to the top; then lowered in the usual way.

Respect for the Colors

Whenever or wherever the Star Spangled Banner is played or sung, spectators should rise to their feet and remain standing throughout the time the music is being played. Men and boys should remove their hats. If in the rain or cold the hat may again be donned, but it should be lifted at least to show respect.

Whenever the flag is hoisted, those who are spectators should stand and raise the hand to the brow in salute.

When the flag is passing in parade, spectators on the sidewalks should halt and stand at salute. If sitting, they should rise.

It is recommended that the flag should not be taken out until after sunrise and that it should be taken in at sunset.—(Elizabeth Jaia.

Koch Is Acquitted

Whether John Koch or Abram Culbertson was the aggressor in a fight staged here last December 2, and whether Mr. Culbertson's wounds were produced when Mr. Koch jabbed him with a pitchfork or while Mr. Koch was simply trying to protect himself with the fork, were problems submitted to the jury in the DeKalb circuit court last Monday and Tuesday.

The evidence indicated that Mr. Koch and Mr. Culbertson both were hurt. Each blamed the other for precipitating the encounter. After it was all over, each filed charges against the other. Mr. Culbertson paid a fine in justice court for assault and battery and Mr. Koch was indicted by the grand jury on a charge of assault. A noteworthy fact about the case is that both men are well up in years, being about sixty-six years old. They went to school together more than half a century ago and they are cousins by marriage.

The state was represented by Prosecuting Attorney T. P. French, Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Charles S. Smith and Capt. W. D. Stump, the latter being Mr. Culbertson's personal counsel. James E. Pomeroy was attorney for Mr. Koch.

The jury retired at 11:15 o'clock Tuesday, and at 2:15 it returned a verdict of not guilty. Nine ballots were taken ranging from 9 to 3 in favor of the defendant to a final vote of acquittal.

Local Briefs

Victor White, son of Mrs. Pearl White, formerly of St. Joe, now of Springfield, Ohio, who has been with the American Army of Occupation in Germany since the end of the world's war, has returned to the States recently. Edwin, his brother, who has been serving in the U. S Marines at different points for the past eighteen months is now located permanently at [illegible], Va. Each are [illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. O. C. McCann [illegible] hop, of Spencerville; Ross Bishop and family, of Hopewell, and Geo. McCann and family, of Auburn. Mrs. George Wade called in the evening. The occasion was to celebrate the birthday of the host and a granddaughter, Miss Pauline McCann. It was a most happy day for all.

Edith Widney spent a couple of days the latter part of the week, visiting Coburntown friends Tuesday of this week she was a guest of Roy Koch and wife.

Among those from out-of-town who attended the funeral services of Ephriam Wade held at the Wm. Brown home, Friday afternoon, besides his family, Mrs. Wade and son Ross, of Petoskey, Mich., and Mrs. Stella Ferguson and daughter Maxine, of Kalamazoo, were Ben and William Wade, of Meridian, Mich; Mrs. Myrtle Cole, of Hillsdale, Mich.; Mrs. Jessie Benjamin, of Peru; Mannie Scott and wife, Estell Coburn and wife, and Cal Coburn, all of Hicksville; Lloyd Wade, of Spencerville; Cliff Wade, of Claypool; S. A. Coburn and wife, Paul Perry and wife, and Mrs. Edna Jenkins, of Auburn; and Mrs. Audrey Wilmot, of Ft. Wayne.

Fire damaged the home of Dr. E. O. Fuller, of Waterloo, one day last week, to the extent of nearly $600. The blaze was extinguished as soon as the fire company could arrive, but the alarm was not sent in until after the fire had a good start. It is supposed that the hot fire in the furnace caused the wood work next to the chimney to ignite.

Auburn—The Loyal Order of Moose lodge have purchased a site on East Ninth street and they are intending to erect a strictly modern two-story building, the first floor to be used as a business room and the second floor exclusively for lodge purposes.

Butler—For the first nine months of operation of the National Dairy Co.'s milk condensing plant at Butler, the management reports that 2,000,[illegible] pounds of milk have been received. Over $60,000 have been paid out to patrons for produce. The average price has been $1.75 per cwt. for milk testing 3.5 per ct. butter fat. Jack Beams of Spencerville was one of the leading patrons, receiving $[illegible].

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

--Farmers--
and others when you attend the
Short Course Meeting
in St. Joe be sure to call at the News Office
for your Job Printing, if you need cards, etc.

MICKIE SAYS

NEWSPAPERS DON'T NEVER MAKE NO EXORBITANT PROFITS SO THEY GOTTA HAVE ALL TH MONEY THE'S COMIN' TO THEM, SO IF YOU OWE US ANYTHIN', WE'D SHORE ADMIRE TO HAVE IT NOW! THANK YOU!

Some Aspects of the Farmers' Problems

By BERNARD M. BARUCH

(Reprinted from Atlantic Monthly)

I

The whole rural world is in a ferment of unrest, and there is an unparalleled volume and intensity of determined, if not angry, protest, and an ominous swarming of occupational conferences, interest groupings, political movements and propaganda. Such a turmoil cannot but arrest our attention. Indeed, it demands our careful study and examination. It is not likely that six million aloof and ruggedly independent men have come together and banded themselves into active unions, societies, farm bureaus, and so forth, for no sufficient cause.

Investigation of the subject conclusively proves that, while there is much overstatement of grievances and misconception of remedies, the farmers are right in complaining of wrongs long endured, and right in holding that it is feasible to relieve their ills with benefit to the rest of the community. This being the case of an industry that contributes, in the raw material form alone, about one-third of the national annual wealth production and is the means of livelihood of about 49 per cent of the population, it is obvious that the subject is one of grave concern. Not only do the farmers make up one-half of the nation, but the well-being of the other half depends upon them.

So long as we have nations, a wise political economy will aim at a large degree of national self-sufficiency and self-containment. Rome fell when the food supply was too far removed from the belly. Like her, we shall destroy our own agriculture and extend our sources of food distantly and precariously, if we do not see to it that our farmers are well and fairly paid for their services. The farm gives the nation men as well as food. Cities derive their vitality and are forever renewed from the country, but an impoverished countryside exports intelligence and retains unintelligence. Only the lower grades of mentality and character will remain on, or seek, the farm, unless agriculture is capable of being pursued with contentment and adequate compensation. Hence, to embitter and impoverish the farmer is to dry up and contaminate the vital sources of the nation.

The war showed convincingly how dependent the nation is on the full productivity of the farms. Despite herculean efforts, agricultural production kept only a few weeks or months ahead of consumption, and that only by increasing the acreage of certain staple crops at the cost of reducing that of others. We ought not to forget that lesson when we ponder on the farmer's problems. They are truly common problems, and there should be no attempt to deal with them as if they were purely selfish demands of a clear-cut group, antagonistic to the rest of the community. Rather should we consider agriculture in the light of broad national policy, just as we consider oil, coal, steel, dyestuffs, and so forth, as sinews of national strength. Our growing population and a higher standard of living demand increasing food supplies, and more wool, cotton, hides, and the rest. With the disappearance of free or cheap fertile land, additional acreage and increased yields can come only from costly effort. This we need not expect from an impoverished or unhappy rural population.

It will not do to take a narrow view of the rural discontent, or to appraise it from the standpoint of yesterday. This is peculiarly an age of flux and change and new deals. Because a thing always has been so no longer means that it is righteous, or always shall be so. More, perhaps, than ever before, there is a widespread feeling that all human relations can be improved by taking thought, and that it is not becoming for the reasoning animal to leave his destiny largely to chance and natural incidence.

Prudent and orderly adjustment of production and distribution in accordance with consumption is recognized as wise management in every business but that of farming. Yet, I venture to say, there is no other industry in which it is so important to the public—to the city-dweller—that production should be sure, steady, and increasing, and that distribution should be in proportion to the need. The unorganized farmers naturally act blindly and impulsively and, in consequence, surfeit and dearth, accompanied by disconcerting price-variations, harass the consumer. One year potatoes rot in the fields because of excess production, and there is a scarcity of the things that have been displaced to make way for the expansion of the potato acreage; next year the punished farmers mass their fields on some other crop, and potatoes enter the class of luxuries; and so on.

Agriculture is the greatest and fundamentally the most important of our American industries. The cities are but the branches of the tree of national life, the roots of which go deeply into the land. We all flourish or decline with the farmer. [illegible] of their inability to meet mortgages or to pay current bills, and how, seeking relief from their ills, they are planning to form pools, inaugurate farmers' strikes, and demand legislation abolishing grain exchanges, private cattle markets, and the like, we ought not hastily to brand them as economic heretics and highwaymen, and hurl at them the charge of being seekers of special privilege. Rather, we should ask if their trouble is not ours, and see what can be done to improve the situation. Purely from self-interest, if for no higher motive, we should help them. All of us want to get back permanently to "normalcy;" but is it reasonable to hope for that condition unless our greatest and most basic industry can be put on a sound and solid permanent foundation? The farmers are not entitled to special privileges; but are they not right in demanding that they be placed on an equal footing with the buyers of their products and with other industries?

II

Let us, then, consider some of the farmer's grievances, and see how far they are real. In doing so, we should remember that, while there have been, and still are, instances of purposeful abuse, the subject should not be approached with any general imputation to existing distributive agencies of deliberately intentional oppression, but rather with the conception that the marketing of farm products has not been modernized.

An ancient evil, and a persistent one, is the undergrading of farm products, with the result that what the farmers sell as of one quality is resold as of a higher. That this sort of chicanery should persist on any important scale in these days of business integrity would seem almost incredible, but there is much evidence that it does so persist. Even as I write, the newspapers announce the suspension of several firms from the New York Produce Exchange for exporting to Germany as No. 2 wheat a whole shipload of grossly inferior wheat mixed with oats, chaff and the like.

Another evil is that of [illegible] weighing of farm products, which, it is charged, is sometimes a matter of dishonest intention and sometimes of protective policy on the part of the local buyer, who fears that he may "weigh out" more than he "weighs in."

A greater grievance is that at present the field farmer has little or no control over the time and conditions of marketing his products, with the result that he is often underpaid for his products and usually overcharged for marketing service. The difference between what the farmer receives and what the consumer pays often exceeds all possibility of justification. To cite a single illustration. Last year, according to figures attested by the railways and the growers, Georgia watermelon-raisers received on the average 7.5 cents for a melon, the railroads got 12.7 cents for carrying it to Baltimore and the consumer paid one dollar, leaving 79.8 cents for the service of marketing and its risks, as against 20.2 cents for growing and transporting. The hard annals of farm-life are replete with such commentaries on the crudeness of present practices.

Nature prescribes that the farmer's "goods" must be finished within two or three months of the year, while financial and storage limitations generally compel him to sell them at the same time. As a rule, other industries are in a continuous process of finishing goods for the market; they distribute as they produce, and they can curtail production without too great injury to themselves or the community; but if the farmer restricts his output, it is with disastrous consequences, both to himself and to the community.

The average farmer is busy with production for the major part of the year, and has nothing to sell. The bulk of his output comes on the market at once. Because of lack of storage facilities and of financial support the farmer cannot carry his goods through the year and dispose of them as they are currently needed. In the great majority of cases, farmers have to entrust storage—in warehouses and elevators—and the financial carrying of their products to others.

Farm products are generally marketed at a time when there is a congestion of both transportation and finance—when cars and money are scarce. The outcome, in many instances, is that the farmers not only sell under pressure, and therefore at a disadvantage, but are compelled to take further reductions in net returns, in order to meet the charges for the service of storing, transporting, handling, and ultimate marketing—which charges [illegible]

FEBRUARY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, FEB. 16, 1922 .7

—WHY—

PAY HIGH PRICES?

When you can buy

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suits at	$26.25
Club Clothes at	$10 to 18.75
Overcoats at	$10 to 25.00
Heavy Cotton Underwear (the suit) at	$1.15
Heavy Cotton Sweaters, with collar at	95c
Solid Leather Shoes at	$2.45
Heavy Blue Work Shirts at	65c
Sheep Skin Coats at	$6.00

All our Winter Clothing and Underwear at 1-4 OFF

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

The Coal That gives satisfaction is the COAL to buy. Every pound of our Hocking Valley and Buffalo White Ash is a pound of satisfaction. There are cheaper Coals but not as satisfactory. Order now and get the Best that money will buy.

Tankage--Cotton Seed Meal--Oil Meal--Bran and Middlinfis--Armour's Hog and Stock Feeds.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Be Careful and Systematic!

People who pay their bills by check get a reputation for being careful and systematic in their business dealings. Such a reputation means much in the establishment of credit. It costs no more to pay your money out by check than it does to use the hard cash, and you have the advantage of having it in a place that is absolutely safe.

To have MONEY in the bank is of itself a valuable asset in the establishment of credit; and it is possible to practically everyone without one cent of cost; it takes no more money to do business by the checking method than it does by the cash-in-hand method.

We invite you to open a checking account with us. We will help you to make your account a real convenience.

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

FARMERS' SHORT COURSE

Short Course at St. JOE Tuesday and Wednesday of Next Week

Program for Men:

TUESDAY, FEB. 21
MORNING SESSION
9:40—10:35
Feeding for Winter Eggs...L. L. Jones
10:45—12:00
Selecting Hogs for Breeding and Feeding (Hogs will be brought into classroom)..........J. W. Schwab
AFTERNOON SESSION
1:20—2:20
Farm Poultry Management (Housing equipment)................L. L. Jones
2:30—3:45
Placing a Ring of Hogs by the Class (a new set of hogs brought in) J. W. Schwab
EVENING SESSION
7:30
Cornet Quartette, Johnson, Perkins, Daily, Johnson
Reading..................Miss Garnett Wyatt
Chorus—"Italia" ....Choral Society
Play—"Rip VanWinkle"............School
Cornet Quartette, Johnson, Perkins, Daily, Johnson
Lecture—More about Profitable Poultry Raising (Illustrated)..L. L. Jones
Chorus ....Choral Society

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 22
MORNING SESSION
9:40—10:45
Hatching and Rearing Chicks L. L. Jones
10:50—11:50
Feeding Hogs to the Best Advantage (Rations weighed and discussed)..........................J. W. Schwab
AFTERNOON SESSION
1:20—2:30
Utility Poultry Judging (a dozen birds used for demonstrations) L. L. Jones
2:40—3:50
A Study of the Standards for Sizing Up Seed and Show Corn..G. M. Frier (Corn will be used to demonstrate with)
EVENING SESSION
7:30
Music ....Tri-Mu Orchestra
Reading.........................Miss Nellie Shull
Vocal Solo...............Miss Letieth Yeiser
Play ...."The Assessor"
Male Quartette ....Selections
Lecture—Light on Live Stock Problems ....J. W. Schwab
Music ....Tri-Mu Orchestra

Program for Women

TUESDAY, FEB. 21
MORNING SESSION
9:40—10:35
Poultry ....(Same as for Men)
10:45—12:00
Selecting Food for a Well-Balanced Meal ....Miss Boston
AFTERNOON SESSION
1:20—2:20
Poultry ....(Same as for Men)
2:30—3:45
Home Conveniences and Home Furnishings (lectured demonstration) Miss Boston
EVENING SESSION
7:30
(See Men's Program)

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 22
MORNING SESSION
9:40—10:45
Poultry ....(Same as for Men)
10:50—11:50
Setting the Table and Serving a Meal (demonstration)....Miss Boston AFTERNOON SESSION
1:20—2:30
Poultry ....(Same as for Men)
2:40—3:50
Short cuts in Sewing and Hand Decoration on Clothing (lecture demonstration) ....Miss Boston
EVENING SESSION
7:30
(See Men's Program)

Note:—Mrs. Waltz, Chairman of the Home Economics Committee for the Short Course, asks that women bring dish and tasting spoon, and cloth, needle and thread, for they will need them in their classes

February 13, 1922.
Rev. C. O. Johnson,
St. Joe, Indiana.

Dear Rev. Johnson:—

Please note that everywhere that Short Courses have been given with only one or two exceptions, demonstration and lecture rooms have been full and overflowing. [illegible] as you can so that you can take care of everybody and give everybody the best possible chance to get the good things that our people have to offer.

In Miss Boston, Jones and Schwab, you have the very pick of our staff. I hope your people have no difficulty in hearing them to good advantage.

Our advance man will, I expect, come to you Monday morning, the other four of us will come Monday evening. I expect to be with you on Tuesday and part of Wednesday. I am likely to have to change my corn period to Wednesday morning, putting one of Schwab's periods down in its place. This I take it will make no particular disturbance.

I look for an attendance at St. Joe that will not fall below the average for this season, which now is in the vicinity of 1200.

Very truly yours,
G. M. Frier,
Associate in Charge of Short Courses and Exhibits.

Don't forget the big Benefit Play, Monday night, before the Short Course. "Under Blue Skies" will be given at the Widney Opera House. See advertisment on another page.

Special Meeting! Farmers

The Farmers' Federation of Concord township are making special preparations to render a very instructive and entertaining program at the High School building, Friday evening, Feb. 17, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

The Choral Society of St. Joe will furnish the music.

These folks have been doing fine work in vocal music for several months, and their part of the program will be a great treat.

Some humorous recitations in dialect and other speaking and readings will be given; also three short talks on Federation work by competent persons will be heard.

Refreshments will be served after the program; all free.

Come and bring the whole family and help to have a profitable meeting. Committee.

Wins From Flint; Looses To Auhurn

The local High School boys won in hard fought games from the speedy Flint High School teams here Friday. The game of the seconds ended with a score of 24 and 8. Morr had 6 field goals and 3 free throws to his credit.

The game of the first teams was a thriller. At the end of the first half it seemed evident that the locals must loose to the visitors for the score stood 15 to 11 in favor of the latters. The Flint five seemed too have things all their own way. Their flashy team work would haye to be broke up in order for St. Joe to win.

And true to their colors the home boys came back after the intermission with a spurt of winning that gave them the lead and that once gained it was easy to advance hurriedly and hold their opponents at the low score of 27 while they jumped up to 36. Waite starred [illegible] basketing 12 points while [illegible] pulled 16 points for his team.

At Auburn, Saturday night the High School boys lost [illegible] to accomplish much the first half which ended with a score of 16 to 6 to Auburn's favor.

The last half the St. Joe team, usinn all the same men, gave the Abburn boys a ragged chase and held them to three points while they crawled up to 14. However, Auburn was too far in the lead to be caught up with, and the game ended with the score standing 19 to 14.

Auburn in their report to the Ft Wayne papers stated that they used their entire second team through out the entire game. This is not possible, and had they had any [illegible] they would have [illegible] the game had lasted a few more minutes.

[illegible] game on [illegible] Feb. [illegible] at the [illegible]

St. Joe Garage

Boost St. Joe

Some prices you should note Columbian Hot Shot Batteries--- Four Cells. This Week Only	$2.00
30x3½ Non Skid United States Tire. This Week Only	$10.45
30x3½ United States Grey Tube. This Week Only	$1.95
30x3½ United States Royal Tube This Week Only	$2.48
Alcohol Highest Test Gal. Cans This Week Only	75c

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 95.

It will now be possible to haul freight and express for the public as well as passengers.

The GRAY Line.
The Name that stands for Stability

6 per ct.

Money to Lend on Farms

LOANS to be secured by First Mortgage for not to exceed 40% value of land alone, excluding improvements.

LOANS for more than 40% of land value at 7%

Call at our office for complete information about our conditions and terms, which are attractive.

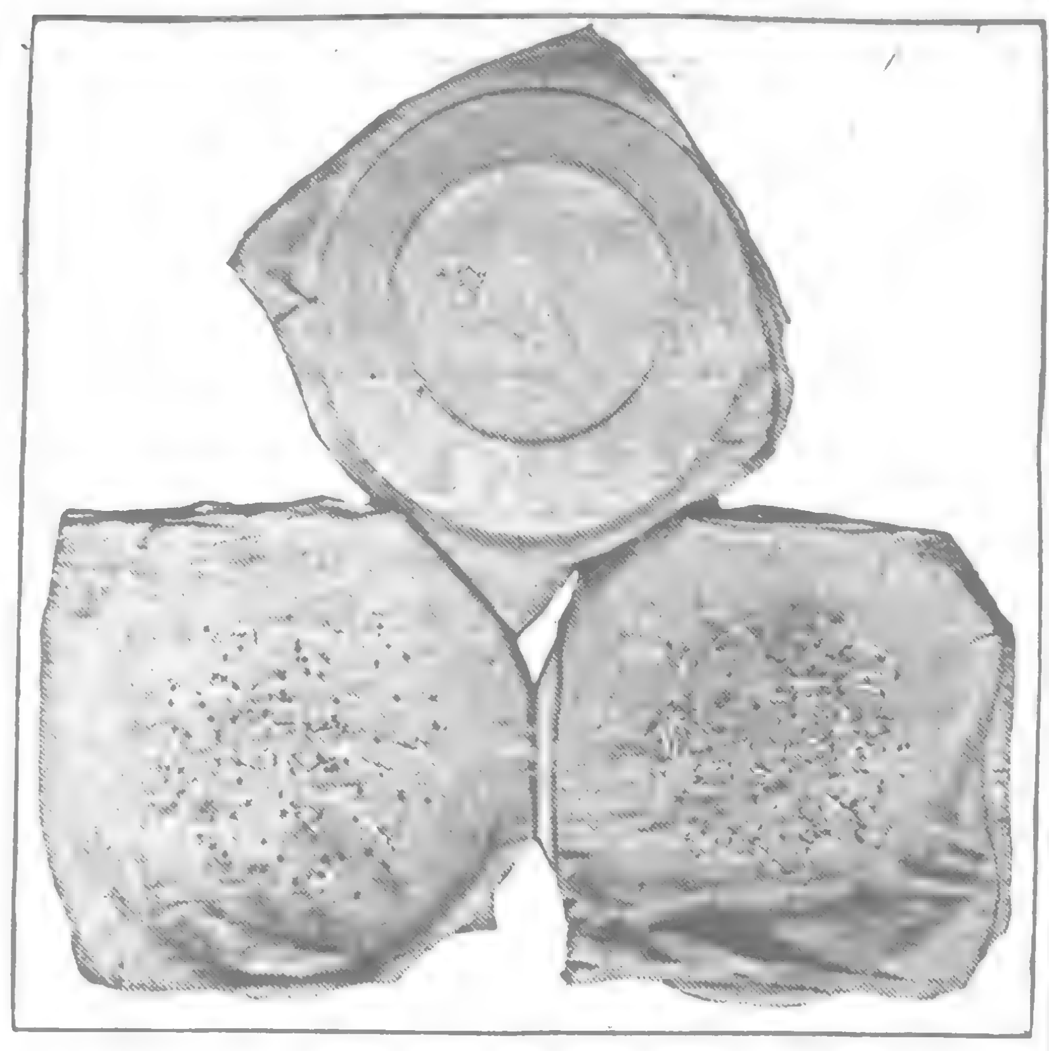
The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.
Established 1860

--Farmers--
and others when you attend the Short Course Meeting in St. Joe be sure to call at the News Office for your Job Printing, if you need cards, etc.

CALL
at the News office for sample copies of The ST. JOE NEWS
Read it once, you will become a subscriber

FEBRUARY

CONSIDERABLE CARE NEEDED IN SELECTING CLOVER FOR SEEDING



Simple Tester for Small Seeds.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Red clover has been styled the corner stone of agriculture in the North Central and Eastern states.

Many farmers begin laying the corner stone as early as February, when it is customary in many sections to sow red clover on the surface of the snow, so that it will sink into the soil with the first thaw in the spring. Red clover is hardy, and is not injured by ordinary cold; and the fact that it can be sown at a season when work on the farm is comparatively light adds to the economy of its cultivation.

The first important point to be observed is the selection of good seed, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. Considerable care should be used in this respect well in advance of the time of seeding. This is particularly true at present, when a large proportion of the red clover seed used in the United States comes from abroad. If poor seed is used the expected crop may be a partial or total failure.

Good Seed Is Plump.

Good red clover seed is plump or well filled, bright with a slight luster, the color of individual seeds ranging from violet to light yellow. The individual seeds should be at least medium sized and fairly uniform, free of adulterants of any kind and from seeds of noxious weeds.

Home-grown seed is desirable, especially in the North, because it is almost certain to be adapted to local conditions. If it is not available, samples should be obtained from reliable dealers. These should be examined for adulterants, weed seeds, and shriveled seeds. They should also be tested for germination before purchasing in quantity.

In the absence of more accurate methods an estimate should be made of the proportion of true red clover seed and of weed seeds and other impurities. From the red clover seed separated from all impurities, a counted number, as 100, should be taken just as they come. These seeds should be placed between layers of moistened cloth or paper or merely covered in a bed of sand or light soil. A dinner plate, covered with another, is a suitable germinating receptacle. It can be kept in the living room, at a temperature between 65 and 85 degrees. Between the third and sixth days the sprouting ability of the seeds should be shown.

It should be borne in mind that the sowing value of the seed is represented by the amount of true clover which will germinate with reasonable promptness. Thus, if four-fifths of a sample is pure clover, and only four-fifths will sprout, then only three-fifths, or 60 per cent, of the original seed as offered will grow. Thus, the germinating test has an important bearing on the worth of seed offered to the farmer.

Protects American Farmers.

A seed-testing service is maintained by the United States Department of Agriculture, where 29,638 samples of various seeds were examined and tested in the last fiscal year—16,442 in Washington and 13,196 in the five branch seed-testing stations. Similar service is offered by the various state experiment stations. The department also exercises a strict inspection service over field seeds brought from foreign countries, and last year 5,000,000 pounds of various seeds were rejected or held for cleaning before being allowed to be offered to American farmers.

Nevertheless, the closest scrutiny is necessary on the part of the farmer who desires a good stand of clover, either as a forage crop or to turn under for the improvement of his soil.

It is important that the testing of seed be done early enough that a sufficient supply of pure seed can be purchased in time for use; and if seed is to be sent to one of the government or state testing laboratories, at least two weeks should be allowed.

PRODUCE MOHAIR PROFITABLY

Breeders Are Gradually Increasing Qualities of Their Animals and Improving Hair.

Although the Angora goat is not very well known generally in this country, in spite of its popularity in certain regions in the West, one of its products, mohair, is used in the manufacture of many fabrics and is known to nearly everyone. The production of mohair has increased rapidly, and the annual clip is now about 6,000,000 pounds. Approximately an equal quantity is imported each year, but it is the opinion of the United States Department of Agriculture that with millions of acres adapted to goat raising, and with breeders gradually increasing the shearing qualities of their animals and improving the hair, American farmers can profitably produce all the mohair needed by our manufacturers. There has been a constant increase in the use of mohair for suit linings and for cloth for summer suits for men. It is still used to about the same extent as heretofore for car upholstering, portiere, robes, rugs, braids and artificial furs.

CURE PEA-SICK LAND BY PROPER ROTATION

Root Rot Is Present in All of Larger Areas.

Disease Lives in Soil and Becomes More Destructive Each Season—Varieties Resistant to Ailment Being Grown.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Where the crop of peas grown for canning or truck market purposes the past season has shown root rot, the United States Department of Agriculture advises planning for a long rotation of other crops, beginning with the next season, to rid the soil of the disease. A four-year rotation is sometimes effective, but cases have been met, both in the East and in the Central states, where even a longer rotation has proved insufficient.

Investigations by the department during the past three years have shown that root rot of peas is present in all of the larger pea-growing areas east of the Mississippi, and to some extent in Montana and Utah. The disease lives in the soil and becomes more destructive each year that peas are grown on infested land, soon reducing the crop to such an extent as to make it unprofitable. It is distributed by the custom prevalent in some sections of transferring soil from old fields to new ones to carry the [illegible] bacteria, and by wind [illegible]

The area of pea-sick land is widening each year. It is particularly important that the large seed-growing regions of the West, which have remained free of the disease up to the present time, be protected from it by the practice of proper rotation.

The department is breeding varieties of peas resistant to root rot, but some time must elapse before there can be any assurance that the commercial growers' problem can be solved in this way.

WORK PLANS ARE IMPORTANT

Farmer Should Know Beforehand What He Is Going to Do and What He Is Doing It With.

Method in doing farm work is very important. The farmer who knows exactly what he is going to do in the morning when he arises, how he is to do it, and what he is to do it with, will always accomplish something worth while that day. The worker who has "hazy" ideas, indefinite plans and undecided steps will never do much.

Everything undertaken in farming should have serious [illegible] and women who farm [illegible] home in order [illegible] businesslike and work [illegible] way. Half-hearted [illegible] worker and [illegible]

Plans are [illegible]

Summer Clothes Now on Display

Silly, it almost seems, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, during a snow storm to be thinking and writing about summer clothes and fashions. Still that is the way styles have of forcing themselves upon the public gaze. The shops are full of summer things. The salesgirls have begun to think and to sell straw hats and organdie dresses. So what can a poor season do, except to snow as though to insist that it must have its fling!

At any rate the warmer weather that will some day come promises many things in the way of lovely frocks, which now many people are buying to take along to Southern climes. A survey of them must of necessity reveal to us the salient features of what will be the popular new frocks for spring, and as designs which perfect an existing silhouette they make us wonder at the eminence they have achieved.

Paris sends us by far the prettiest of the real summery frocks. They are resplendent with handwork which is not at all lavish or ornate in its appearance. It is intricate and beautiful and carefully done by the cleverest fingers in all the world. It is just a matter of pulling the threads and then working in drawn work stitches—or of winding folded strips of the frock's material into medallions and insertions that trim the frocks most cleverly. In other words, they are making the trimmings in their own hands and, when they condescend to use lace in any way, it is only in the narrowest varieties of heavy and light weight chiffons with cotton voiles to make another sort of frock. There are plenty of taffetas used in the afternoon gowns for the younger and for the older women.

Organdies in Evidence.

Fascinating summer frocks, now wending their southward ways, have come from Paris to deck the forms of rials. There will be a series of round medallions used all around the hem of a skirt, making the transparent ending of the skirt by their associated patterns. There will be other arrangements of the folds to hold the beginnings of floating sleeves. Others will be placed artistically over the hips to begin the fullness of the skirt. Others will be posed over the shoulders, or there will be an arrangement of lines about the neck line and sleeves to provide the usual sort of finish. In every conceivable way these pieces of handwork are distributed over the summer frocks, making them entirely new and inspiring creations.

They will be copied here in one way or another, but we can never do what the French women have done so beautifully—first, because the cost of labor is too enormous, and, secondly, because we have not the patience nor the time nor the art to put into building beautiful dresses of this sort that will fade so soon.

Another thing that is apparent on these French dresses is the arrangement of cotton buttons or beads as they call them. They are white and cream, and they are guaranteed to leave the laundry as cheerfully as they enter its precincts. They are put on in nice little patterns. They are not gathered together in all-over embroideries, as has been the custom with beads, but they are arranged in even rows or in series of triangles or squares, which are repeated often enough to make an interesting pattern.

Cotton Voile in Yellow.

More often they are used on frocks of cotton voile, for it is with that texture they seem to harmonize best. There is a cotton voile dress in a clear shade of yellow. It is of the straight, one-piece variety, hanging from the shoulders. In groups, across the front and back, delicate side pleats are laid, while in open spaces between these pleats small triangles of the Sample of Taffeta Applique Roses on Tucked and Plaited Chiffon Frock. Embroidered Motifs in Bright Red and Green Placed in Centers of Tucked Squares on White Voile Dress.

American women. They exhibit the handicraft of an older civilization which the women here are privileged to carry off.

The strips of organdie used to make those medallion patterns are folded and pressed into place. Organdie has a delightful way, you know, of staying where it is put—that is, in this one particular. Then these strips are taken in the hand and shaped into patterns, which are held in place by a spider-web sort of an arrangement of stitches. And, of course, it takes the French women to vary the idea, and elaborate upon it.

There is one organdie frock in a rose pink (and, oh, what colors they do have in this market—they are growing more vivid every day) with rounded medallions sewed around the skirt as a sort of a midway border. Then, encircling the edges of these medallions are attached double rows of petals, ovally shaped and picoted on their edges. They succeed in making large roses for decorations. How clever the designer has proved himself in this instance. He knew that organdie must curl from its very nature—that it could do nothing else, in all sincerity. [illegible] voile are placed to hold the edges together. And at each point of each triangle there is fastened one of the little cotton beads. That is all the trimming there is to the gown, except that around the waist is tied a glowing bit of ribbon, quite wide and striped with yellow and white.

[illegible]

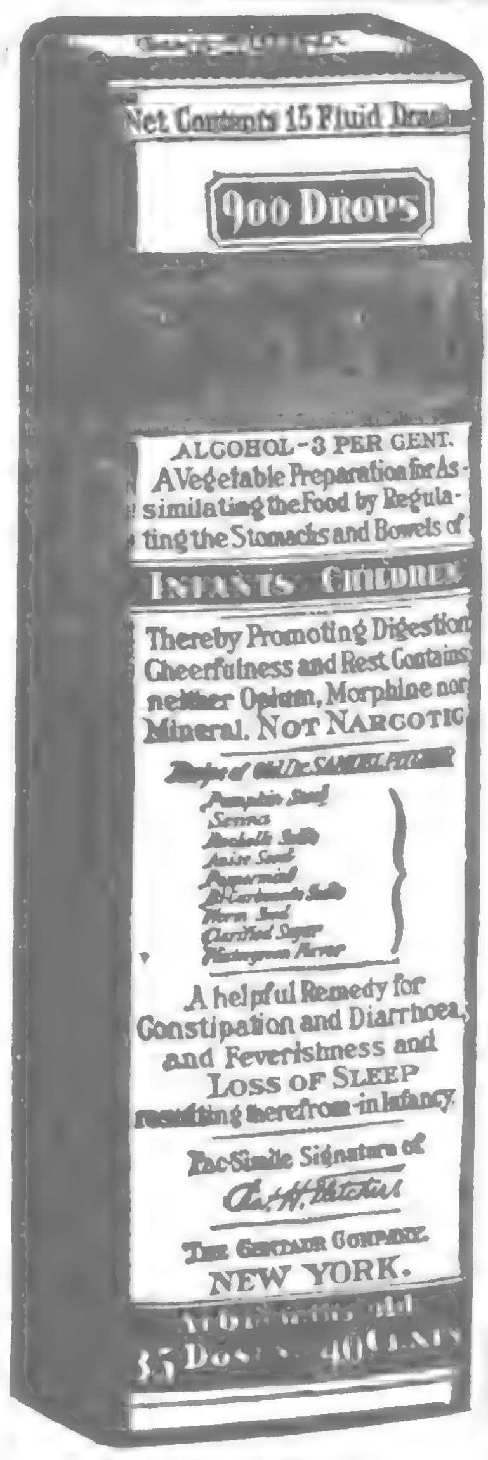
The colors are the most brilliantly attractive of all the features of these summer frocks. We are getting away from black and pure white, or so the visualizers of fashion tell us. And once again it becomes our privilege to glory in the wearing of colors—colors which, by reason of the perfected dyes, are much more lovely than they have been at any time in the past. Yellow certainly will be one of the coming season's color sensations.

Many Dresses Have No Hems.

Many of these summer dresses have no hems at all, but are simply finished with a binding of the material that makes the gown. It is a new sort of finish, which has been used a lot upon crepe dresses this winter, but which looks even more attractive on the more transparent materials.

Sleeves are either very wide and floppy, or else they seem to disappear from adult attention. There are any [illegible]



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
ALCOHOL-3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea, and Feverishness and Loss of Sleep resulting therefrom in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES 40 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria

Always Bears the Signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

SPOHN'S DISTEMPER COMPOUND

is indispensable in treating

Influenza, Distemper, Coughs and Colds

so prevalent among horses and mules at this season of the year. For nearly thirty years "SPOHN'S" has been given to prevent these diseases, as well as to relieve and cure them. An occasional dose "conditions" your horse and keeps disease away. As a remedy for cases actually suffering, "SPOHN'S" is quick and certain. 60 cents and $1.20 per bottle at drug stores.

SPOHN MEDICAL COMPANY GOSHEN, INDIANA

It's all right for a man to speak right out in meeting, provided he knows when to stop.

A swan is not as vain as it looks; it doesn't care for appearances when it dives.

Never borrow trouble for the purpose of lending it to others.

Dinners used to be the kind worth ringing a dinner bell for.

Genuine

BAYER

Bayer-Tablets Aspirin
The Bayer Company Inc.
117 Hudson St.

ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Colds Headache Rheumatism
Toothache Neuralgia Neuritis
Earache Lumbago Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.

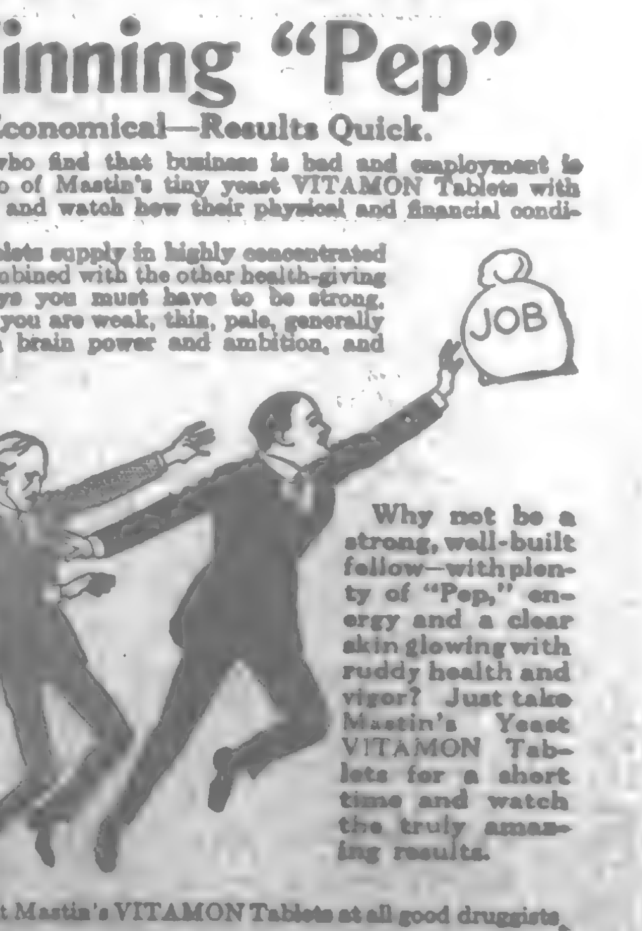
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Take Yeast Vitamon Tablets To Get Job-Winning "Pep"

Easy and Economical—Results Quick.

Thin, run-down folks who find that business is bad and employment is scarce should try taking two of Mastin's tiny yeast VITAMON Tablets with their meals for a short time and watch how their physical and financial conditions improve.



Mastin's VITAMON Tablets supply in highly concentrated form true yeast-vitamines combined with the other health-giving vitamines which Science says you must have to be strong, well and fully developed. If you are weak, thin, pale, generally run-down, or feel lacking in brain power and ambition, and want that firm flesh "pep" which gets the money, you surely need some of these precious vitamines in your system at once. Mastin's VITAMON mixes with your food, helps it to digest and supplies just what your body needs to feed and nourish the shrunken tissues, the worn-out nerves, the thin blood and the starved brain. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish like magic under this healthful influence. Mastin's VITAMON Tablets will not cause gas and they help to correct [illegible]. They are easy and economical to take. Be sure to remember the name—Mastin's VI-TA-MON. You can get Mastin's VITAMON Tablets at all good druggists.

Why not be a strong, well-built fellow—with plenty of "Pep," energy and a clear skin glowing with ruddy health and vigor? Just take Mastin's Yeast VITAMON Tablets for a short time and watch the truly amazing results.

MASTIN'S VITAMON

Are Positively Guaranteed to Put On Firm Flesh, Clear the Skin and Increase Energy When Taken With Every Meal or Money Back

MASTINS VITAMON

A SWEET LITTLE BABY BOY

Makes a Bright Spot in Every Home. A Comfort in Years to Come

Park Rapids, Minnesota.—"I have taken your medicine — Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound — when I was a girl for pains and before and after my marriage. I now have a sweet little baby boy and will send you his picture if you wish to publish it. My sisters also take your medicine and find it a great help, and I recommend it to those who suffer before their babies are born." — Mrs. WM. JOHNSON, Box 155, Park Rapids, Minn.

To marry and arrive at middle age without children is a great disappointment to many women. Think of the joy and comfort other women have in their children as they grow older.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped to bring great happiness to many families by restoring women to health. Often the childless home is due to a run down condition of the wife, which may be helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It brought health and happiness into the home of Mrs. Johnson. Why not to yours?

SQUEEZED TO DEATH

When the body begins to stiffen and movement becomes painful it is usually an indication that the kidneys are out of order. Keep these organs healthy by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles. Famous since 1696. Take regularly and keep in good health. In three sizes, all druggists. Guaranteed as represented. Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

AS SURE AS DAWN BRINGS A NEW DAY

HILL'S CASCARA QUININE BROMIDE

AT ALL DRUG STORES

Will Break That Cold and Make You Fit Tomorrow

PRICE 30 CENTS

W. H. HILL CO., DETROIT.

Garfield Tea Was Your Grandmother's Remedy

For every stomach and intestinal ill. This good old-fashioned herb home remedy for constipation, stomach ills and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicine than in your grandmother's day.

Make $100 a Week

Retail Rawleigh's Good Health Spices, Flavors, Cocoa, Household Medicines, Toilet Preparations, Etc. 140 useful, everyday necessities sold on time, lowest wholesale price. On market 33 years; used by millions. Favorably known all over America. Largest company in the world. Easy to build permanent, big-paying business; no experience, practically no capital needed. Pleasant, healthful, outdoor work $2000-$5000 or more a year. Free advertising and sales helps. Ask for particulars; give age, occupation, references.

THE W. T. RAWLEIGH COMPANY
421 Liberty St. Freeport, Ill.

ITCH!

Money back without question if HUNT'S GUARANTEED SKIN DISEASE REMEDIES (Hunt's Salve and Soap), fail in the treatment of Itch, Eczema, Ringworm, Tetter or other itching skin diseases. Try this treatment at our risk. Sold by all reliable druggists. A. B. Richards Medicine Co., Sherman, Texas

A nuisance and a man with a grievance are much the same.

DYED HER DRAPERIES, SKIRT AND A SWEATER WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can dye or tint faded, shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, sweaters, stockings, hangings, draperies, everything like new. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed, even if you have never dyed before. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade, or run. So easy to use.—advertisement.

If a woman didn't have a better opinion of a man than he deserves she would never fall in love with him.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS

True Detective Stories

SHADOW OF EVIL

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

"I'LL be back in a few minutes," said Henry Goudie, cashier of the Bank of Liverpool, to one of his associates. "I'm just going across the street to get a bite of lunch."

An hour later the officials of the bank began to wonder where Goudie was, but the fact that his hat still remained upon its accustomed peg indicated that the cashier wasn't far away, and that he would soon return. But at the closing hour that afternoon Goudie was still missing—and when an auditor went over his books it was discovered that a hundred and seventy-five thousand pounds (some $850,000) had also disappeared!

Inquiry at the house where Goudie had lodged failed to bring to light any trace of the missing cashier, who had left home that morning as usual, apparently without any intention of being away over night. His clothes were in their accustomed position, and even his toilet articles were untouched. In fact, if it hadn't been for the disappearance of the money from the bank, the police would have searched the hospitals, on the theory that Goudie had met with an accident.

But, as Frank Freost, superintendent of Scotland Yard, pointed out, it was hardly likely that a bank official and $850,000 would vanish at one and the same time without some connection between the two events.

"As luck would have it," continued Froest, one of the ablest detectives in England, "Goudie has chosen the simplest manner in which to make his escape—the easiest from his point of view and the most difficult from the standpoint of the police. It is comparatively simple to find a man who lays his plans in advance. You can usually trace his baggage or his railway tickets. But Goudie just walked out to lunch and lost himself somewhere. He left only one clue behind him—his hat.

Therefore, working on the assumption that a hatless man would be quite conspicuous, and that Goudie, knowing this, would immediately purchase another hat, Freost made the rounds of the shops near the Liverpool bank. From the clerk in one of them he obtained the information that a man answering to the description of the missing cashier had purchased a cloth cap of a distinctive pattern only a few moments after noon on the day that Goudie vanished.

By means of this clue and a detailed report on Goudie's appearance, Freost soon had every man connected with Scotland Yard searching for the absconding cashier. But it was several weeks before he was located and captured in a lodging house in the north of England.

However, the arrest of the man who looted the Bank of Liverpool did not by any means close the case.

Even before he was discovered, Freost had found out that Goudie had been in the habit of playing the races—patronzing a clique of "hand-book men," who had played upon his cupidity in such a manner that they, and not he, had secured the benefits of his dishonesty. In order to recover the money, Freost therefore had to round up the members of this gambling ring and force them to disgorge.

It developed that the leader of the organization, sensing a way in which to make a lot of money, without running any risk, had approached Goudie with an account of a "fixed race" which was to be run at Epsom Downs, and that the cashier, believing that he could clean up a fortune in a single day, had taken twenty-five thousand pounds from the bank, falsifying the accounts to conceal the shortage. The man's credulity is evident from the fact that he placed the money at odds of 20 to 1, which meant that he stood to win half a million pounds, or $2,500,000 if his horse came in first. Of course, no bookmaker could afford to pay a bet of this size—but Goudie overlooked this fact and cheerfully wagered his "borrowed" capital. The horse naturally failed to win, and, in an effort to recoup his losses, the cashier commenced systematically to loot the bank's funds.

One of the odd features of the case which Freost discovered, by blind luck, Goudie one day placed a big bet on a horse that won. When he went to collect his bet, with the firm intention of squaring his accounts with the bank, he was casually informed that the wager had not been placed in time, and he was advised to put it on another "sure tip," which lost. When his defalcations reached a point when it was hopeless to attempt further concealment from the bank authorities, Gouldie "went out to lunch."

It didn't take Freost long to discover that, in planning a round-up of the gambling gang he was tackling one of the most difficult jobs of his career.

One by one Freost picked up the various threads of the tangled case. One by one he followed the various clues, at least one of which led to the suicide of a member of the bookmakers' clique. [illegible]

BETTER ROADS

WAR MOTORS FOR ROAD WORK

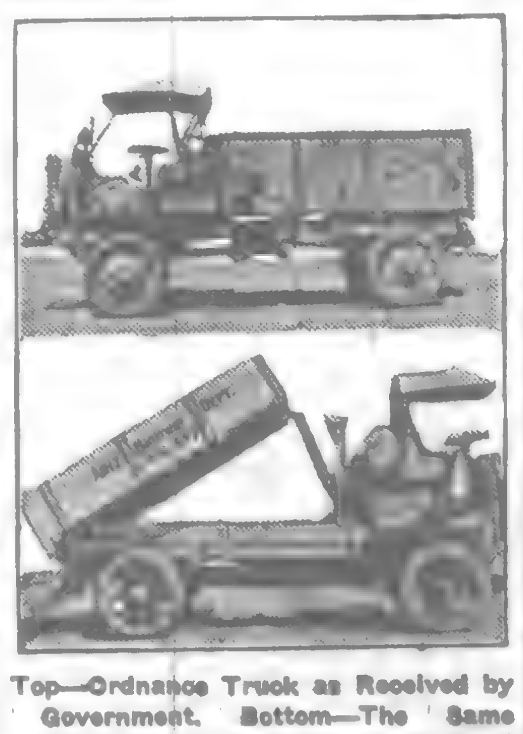
Vehicles Comprise Virtually All of Surplus Cars Turned Over by War Department.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

More than 27,000 motor vehicles have been distributed by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture among the various states for road-building purposes. Up to October 31 a total of 27,198 had been so distributed, including 1,800 retained by the Department of Agriculture for use on roads in the national forests and in connection with the administration of the federal aid act. These comprise virtually all the surplus motor vehicles turned over to the Department of Agriculture by the War department to be distributed under the Wadsworth-Kahn act among the states for road-building purposes. These vehicles, consisting mostly of motortrucks, are a part of the war materials originally intended for use in France.

The number of motor vehicles distributed to the states up to October 31 was as follows:

	Trucks	Autos	Total Vehic's
Alabama	440	[illegible]	545
Arizona	352	25	377
Arkanas	414	68	482
California	716	133	849
Colorado	403	57	460
Connecticut	153	24	177
Delaware	50	12	62
Florida	239	56	295
Georgia	581	159	740
Idaho	271	32	303
Illinois	1,006	109	1,175
Indiana	629	115	744
Iowa	679	93	772
Kansas	724	106	830
Kentucky	444	75	519
Louisiana	292	49	341
Maine	177	34	211
Maryland	211	26	237
Massachusetts	212	61	273
Michigan	710	121	831
Minnesota	617	84	701
Mississippi	414	70	484
Missouri	797	[illegible]	908
Montana	407	[illegible]	471
Nebraska	447	85	532
Nevada	299	96	395
New Hampshire	105	16	121
New Jersey	299	73	372
New Mexico	352	50	402
New York	1,132	162	1,294
North Carolina	620	112	732
North Dakota	341	46	387
Ohio	845	140	984
Oklahoma	479	59	538
Oregon	314	34	348
Pennsylvania	837	136	973
Rhode Island	57	10	67
South Carolina	355	64	419
South Dakota	380	60	440
Tennessee	488	94	582
Texas	1,321	203	1,524
Utah	238	23	261
Vermont	106	12	118
Virginia	420	76	496
Washington	357	68	425
West Virginia	487	49	536
Wisconsin	581	102	683
Wyoming	329	28	357
Dept. of Ag.	1,303	497	1,800
Total	23,110	4,088	27,198



Top—Ordnance Truck as Received by Government. Bottom—The Same Body as Converted by Arizona Road Department for Highway Work.

CONCRETE ROAD MATERIALS

Engineers Making Experiments to Determine Just What Are Best and Right Proportions.

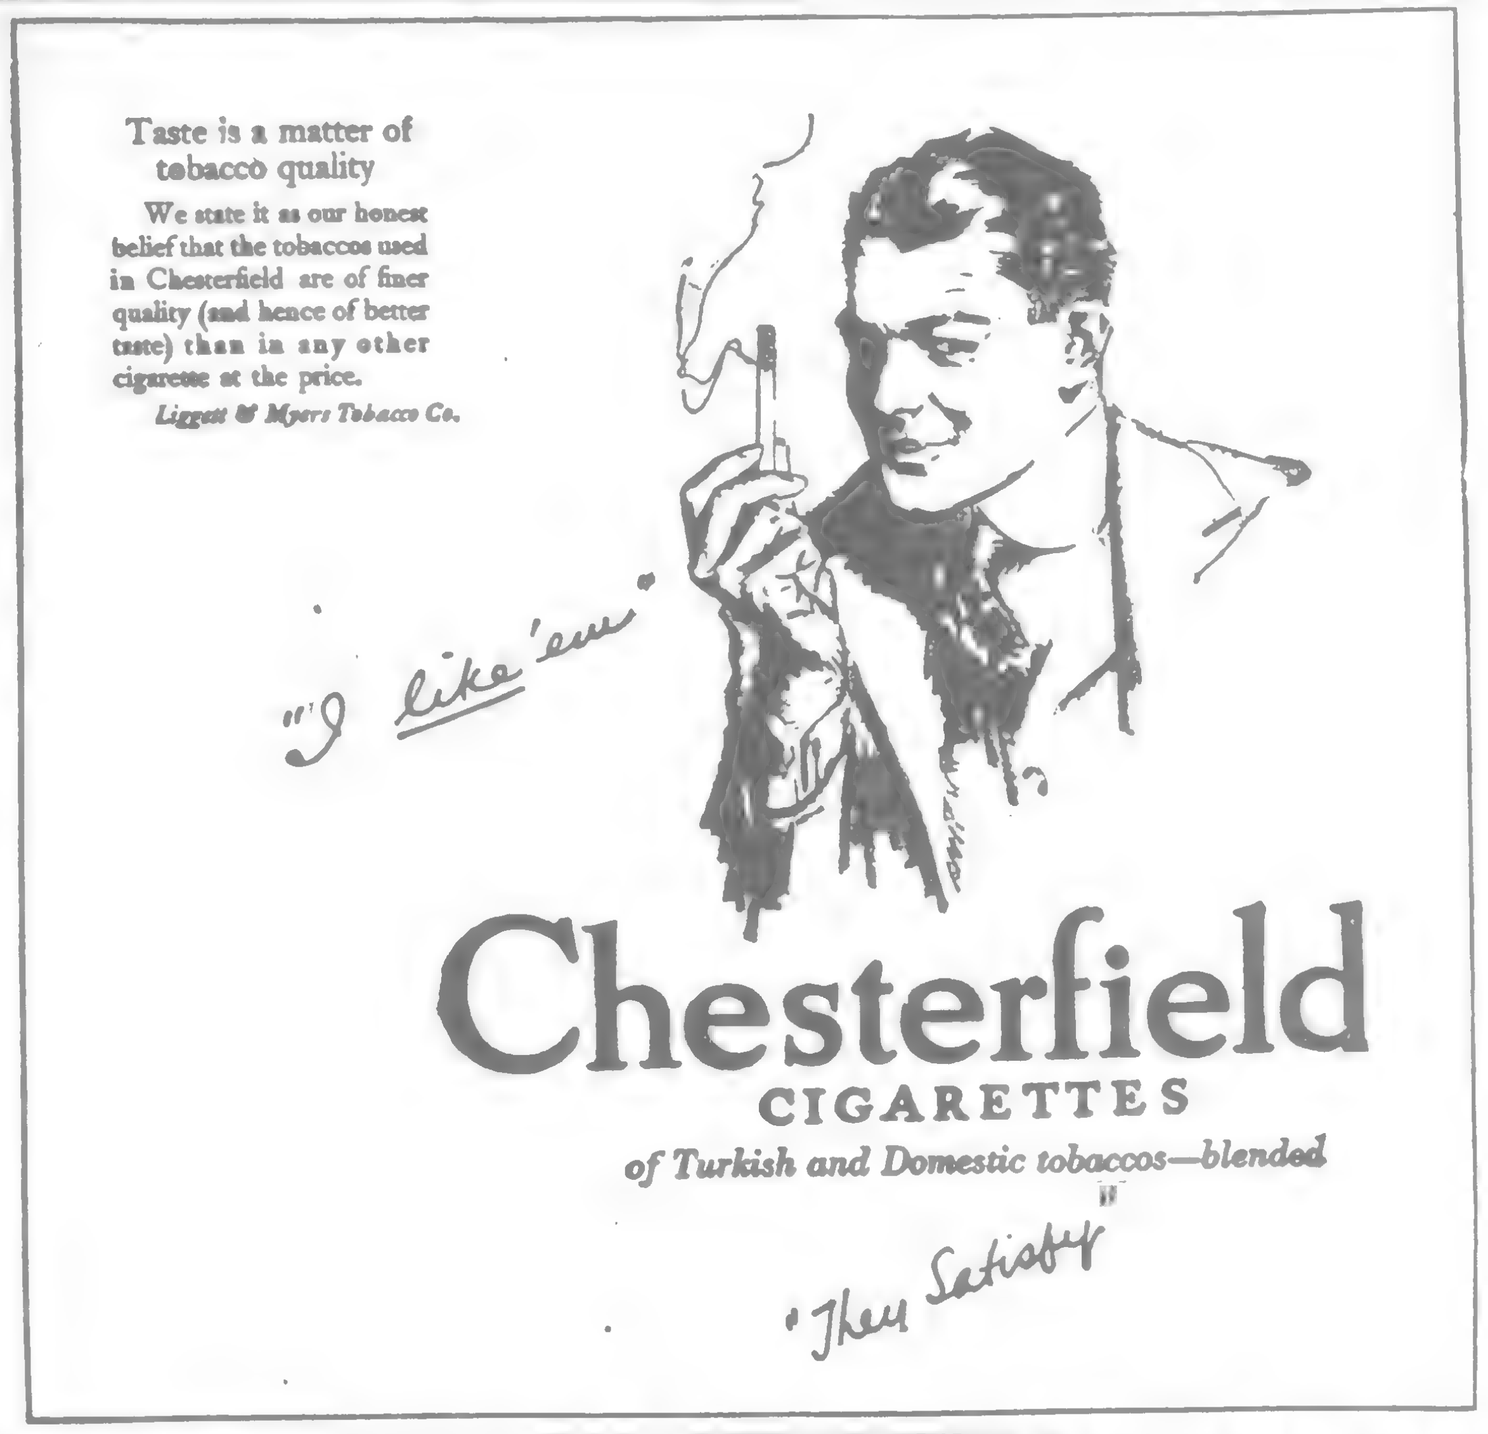
Experiments to determine just what kinds of materials are best for concrete, and in what proportions to mix them so that they will wear well in a road, are being made by engineers of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. An apparatus will be used that consists of heavy steel wheels which, guided by a mechanical arrangement, roll continuously back and forth over the pavement.

More than forty different sections of concrete pavement, each ten feet long, will be laid. Materials from many different parts of the country are being shipped to the government experiment farm at Arlington, Va., near Washington. They will be mixed with varying quantities of cement and water to determine which is best. Experience has shown that there is a measurable amount of wear of the surface of a concrete road each year.

Good Roads in California.

California, already a [illegible] for motor tourists, is [illegible] on its good roads [illegible] tend its roads over [illegible] of many states.

[illegible]



Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

When you hear one woman speak of another as being just her age, the chances are she isn't.

Cuticura for Sore Hands.

Soak hands on retiring in the hot suds of Cuticura Soap, dry and rub in Cuticura Ointment. Remove surplus Ointment with tissue paper. This is only one of the things Cuticura will do if Soap, Ointment and Talcum are used for all toilet purposes.—Advertisement.

BLACKMANS MEDICATED SALT BRICK

STOCK LICK IT for HORSES, CATTLE, SHEEP & HOGS

STOCK LIKE IT DROP BRICK IN FEED BOX

CONTAINS COPPERAS FOR WORMS, SULPHUR FOR THE BLOOD, SALTPETER FOR THE KIDNEYS, NUX VOMICA, A TONIC AND PURE DAIRY SALT. USED BY VETERINARIANS 12 YEARS. NO DOSING. ASK YOUR DEALER FOR BLACKMAN'S OR WRITE

BLACKMAN STOCK REMEDY COMPANY Chattanooga, Tenn.

CONCERN WAS FOR MOTHER

Of Course Little Frank Was Not the Least Bit Afraid of the Darkness.

The family has moved from a gas-lighted house to one where there is electricity, and baby Frank, standing on tip toe, can just reach the two push buttons inside the rooms. They are a source of great amusement and he never fails to press them whenever he passes.

A few nights ago his mother came from the upper rooms and announced bedtime. Little Florence ran upstairs immediately. Frank, up to his usual tricks, pushed the button, and off went the light. The overwhelming darkness frightened the little fellow. After a minute he asked: "Mother, are you there?" "Yes, dear," said his amused mother. Another pause. "Mother, are you 'fraid?"

"No, dear, are you?"

"No, I ain't 'fraid, but you better put the light on. I'm 'fraid you will be 'fraid."

A Sure Remedy.

A certain young doctor will have to improve his methods or he will never have enough patients to maintain himself. A woman came in to see him a few days ago. She looked haggard and pale.

"Well, madam," he said, "what is it?"

"I'm troubled with insomnia," she sighed. "What shall I do for it?"

"Sleep it off, madam; sleep it off," he advised.

Most men who threaten to bring a lawsuit know all the time that they won't.

UNUSED TO EVENING DINNER

Grownup Recalls Embarrassing Incident Which Occurred in Her Childhood Days.

As a child in our family I was accustomed to having dinner at noon and a light supper in the evening, because there were several of us, and my mother considered it too harmful to have a heavy meal at night.

We had as a friend a woman who lived several blocks away. One day she called to me as I was returning from school and asked my two brothers and me to come to dinner the next day.

The following day the three of us went to her house at noon. She looked a little surprised as we came, but said nothing. After about a half an hour we wondered when we were to have dinner. She asked me why we were back from school so early that noon.

"We came to dinner," I said.

She smiled and said, "My dear, we have dinner this evening."

I called to my two brothers, and fled in embarrassment.—Exchange.

Michigan Game Refuges.

Game refuges and breeding grounds established in 1921 by the Michigan state conservation department total 25,000 acres. They are located in Midland, Gladwin, Emmet and Otsego counties. Particular attention has been given in these areas to the distribution and establishment of the Chinese ring-necked pheasant.

Uncle Eben.

"De availability of a friend in need," said Uncle Eben, "is liable to depend on whether you or him is doin' de needin'."

No Astigmatism There.

"Helen thinks the oculist is just about perfect."

"Her eye-deal man, I suppose."

For your daughter's sake, use Red Cross Ball Blue in the laundry. She will then have that dainty, well-groomed appearance that girls admire.—Advertisement.

Galvanizing Brass and Copper.

Copper and brass may be coated with metallic zinc in the following manner: Place finely divided zinc in a nonmetallic vessel, and cover it with a concentrated solution of sal ammoniac. This is heated to the boiling point, and the copper or brass articles are introduced. A few minutes in the boiling bath will suffice to produce a firm and brilliant covering over the surface of the work. The zinc can be reduced to the requisite fineness by pouring the melted metal into an iron mortar and pounding it with an iron pestle until the solid mass has been granulated to the desired fineness.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Fast World.

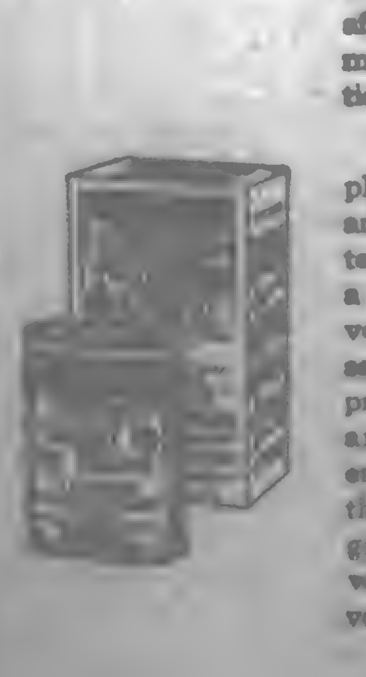
Children tinkering with wireless telephony and toy moving picture outfits, make us grown-ups realize that we'll have to double our steps to keep pace with the world.

Some nursery movie films are sold as low as a cent a foot. The price ranges up to ten cents a foot for films that can't catch fire or explode.

Do you remember the first movie you saw—how it thrilled you? The scientific marvel of yesterday is the toy of today.

If it keeps on we'll be getting old-fashioned every 24 hours.—Chicago Post.

To win a race a Jockey doesn't put extra weight on the horse that helps him succeed



No man or woman who wants to succeed in the race of life can afford the handicap of headaches, insomnia, indigestion and debility. Nor can they afford to take anything that may keep up a continual irritation of the nervous system.

Yet this is what many people do who drink excessive amounts of tea or coffee. For tea and coffee contain caffeine, a substance that is sometimes very injurious. Many doctors say that caffeine raises the blood pressure, irritates the kidneys, and over-stimulates the entire nervous system. Also that it is especially bad for growing children, or for any one who has any tendency to nervousness or insomnia.

If you want to avoid a possible cause of headache, insomnia, or nervousness, it might be well to stop taking tea and coffee for awhile, and drink rich, satisfying Postum, instead.

Postum is a delicately-roasted, pure cereal beverage—delicious and wholesome.

Order Postum from your grocer today. Drink this fragrant, healthful beverage for awhile, and see if you will not feel brighter, more active, and more resistant to fatigue—as so many thousands of others have felt.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) made instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.

Postum for Health—"There's a Reason"

Made by Postum Cereal Co., Inc., Battle Creek, Mich.

FEBRUARY

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

The Ford is my auto; I shall not want—another; it maketh me to lie down beneath it; it soreth my soul; it leadeth me in the path of ridicule, for its name sake. Yea, though I ride through the valleys, I am towed up the hill; I fear much evil. My rod and my engine discomfort me; I anneint my tires with patches and I repair my blow-outs in the presence of my enemies; surely if this thing follows me all the days of my life I shall dwell in the poor-house forever.—Shirley Warsop.

—‡—‡—‡—

"Tell me not in mournful numbers, advertising is a dream; for the business man who slumbers, has no chance to skim the cream. Life is real! Life is earnest! Competition's something fierce, if for dividends thou yearnest, learn the parry thrust and pierce. In the business field of battle, mollycoddles have no place; be not like dumb cattle driven, be a live one in the race. Lives of great men all remind us, we must bring the bacon home, and departing leave behind us, foot-prints on anothers's dome. Let us then keep up and doing, otherwise we may be done; still achieving, still pursuing—advertise and get the mon."

—‡—‡—‡—

Unique Question Raised.

Can Anyone Recall a Detective Story in the Bible?

Since The News has been running the series, "True Detective Stories" the question has come up as to whether or not the Bible contains any detective stories. The Great Book is commonly conceded to have recorded just about every human emotion and experience, and no doubt many readers of the "True Detective Stories" series will now try to recall whether or not they have read in the Bible what might be compared to the modern detective story.

At any rate, the series now being published in The News has afforded rare entertainment to many of its readers, and those who have not enjoyed these stories should take advantage of the opportunity.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $3000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years.
$12.50 a month for five years.
$6.25 a month for ten years.

If Permanently and Totally Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of [illegible]

[illegible]

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

F. D. TOPE & CO.

CLEARANCE SALE

Commencing Saturday, FEB. 18 Ending Saturday, FEB. 25

We are reducing our Stock and are able to offer our Entire Line of Goods at EXCEEDINGLY LOW PRICES

Dry Goods

$6.00 Bed Blankets	$5.29
$5.00 Bed Blankets	$3.98
$3.50 Bed Blankets	$2.98
$2.75 Bed Blankets	$2.38
$1.25 Baby Blankets	98c
$11.00 Raincoats at	$6.98
$7.00 Coats at	$4.98
$5.00 Coats at	$3.98
$1.50 Serge per yd.	$1.19
$1.50 Flannel pr. yd.	$1.19
50c Merc. Poplin at	43c
Flannelette at 17c	21c
Outing at	17c

SHOES

1 lot of Shoes	$3.98
1 lot of Shoes at	$2.69
1 lot of Shoes at	$1.00

10 per ct. OFF on ALL RUBBERS

KABO Corsets at Reduced Price.

$1.00 Child's Jumper Dresses 89c

Groceries

Silver Dust Flour	$1.19
Sugar, 5 lbs.	29c
Crackers per lb.	13c
Palmolive Soap, 3 for	25c
Galvanic Soap, 12 for	53c
Wilson Sausage, 1 1-2 lb. can	39c
Sniders's Honey	39c
Jams per jar	27c
Jelly, 3 for	35c

Groceries

50c Maple Syrup	38c
Tomatoes, 2 cans for	25c
Corn, 2 cans for	25c
Peas, 2 cans for	25c
Metrox Silver Cleaner	19c
Red Kidney Beans, 6 lbs	25c

Don't Fail to Attend this SALE and get GOODS at LOW Prices.

New Arrival of LADIES' SPRING HOUSE DRESSES and APRONS up-to-date Styles and at Prices that are Right.

F. D. TOPE & CO., = = St. Joe, Indiana

High School Alumni

(Cntinued from last week)

Vere Copp-Stout, '07.
Blanch Woodcock, '07.
Ralph Patterson, '07.
Ray Herrick, '07.
Flossie Copp-Widney, '08.
Ethel Leighty-Cheek, '08.
Grace Kain-Robertson, '08
Laura Woodcox-Burley, '08.
Mary Scholes-Erickson, '08
Roy Maxwell, '09.
Lena Coburn Meek, '09.
Helen Patterson Hull, '09.
Hazel Perry-Herrick, '09.
Herbert Sherer, '09.
Franc Rhodenbaugh-Wiers, '10.
Gladys Kain, '10.
Edna Walter, '10
Alta Brock, '10, (deceased)
Adrian Washler, '10.
Fred Craull, '10.
Merritt Maxwell, '10.
Ralph Sechler, '11.
Paul Curie, '11.
Bessie Kinsey-Willet, '12.
Gray Woodcox, '14.

(To be continued)

Sunday School Report.

[illegible]

Notice of Administration

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned has been appointed by the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, Administrator of the Estate of William J. Orr, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

CLYDE E. HART,
Administrator.

Feb. 11, 1922.
J. E. Pomeroy, Attorney.

Amendment to the Postal Laws and Regulations

Office of the Postmaster General,
Washington, January 26, 1922.
Order No. 7[illegible]

Section 736, Postal Laws and Regulations, 1913, is amended to read as follows:

In all cases of impassable roads, bad condition of the roads, [illegible]

What God Says.

Children, obey your parents in the Lord, for this is right.

Honor thy father and mother which is the first commandment with promise, that it may be well with thee and thou mayest live long on the earth.

HERE AND THERE

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bassett spent Wednesday with Al Martin and family.

Mrs. Bessie Andie, of Auburn, spent over Sunday with Dan Myers and family.

R. D. Herrick and family were Saturday and Sunday guests of his parents, Orange Herrick and wife.

You should hear those short speeches and some recitations by home talent, Friday evening, Feb. 17.

[illegible]

PUBLIC SALE!

I will sell at Public Sale at my residence at Spencerville, Ind.,

Saturday, Feb. 25th, 1922

Commencing at 10 o'clock, the following:

9 — Head of Milk Cows — 9

Holstein cow, four years old, will be fresh the first of March; Jersey cow, 7 years old, will be fresh in April, about the 10th; Holstein cow, 6 years old, was fresh Dec. 20th, giving a large flow of milk; Jersey and Holstein cow, coming 3 yrs. old, was fresh Dec. 25, giving a large flow of milk; Holstein and Jersey cow, 7 yrs old, was fresh April last, giving now 6 gal. milk per day; Jersey cow, 7 yrs. old, was fresh in Dec., giving a large flow of milk; Durham cow, 3 yrs. old, was fresh in July, giving full flow of milk; Durham cow, 3 yrs. old, was fresh October 1st, giving full flow of milk; Jersey cow, 6 years old, was fresh Oct. 1st, giving full flow of milk. The above cows are all good ones and in good condition.

23 — Head of Sheep — 23

Good breeding ewes; 14 coming 2 yrs. old, 8 of them 3 and 4 years old; 1 ram, 2 years old.

CHICKENS—200 hens, consisting of Leghorns, Rhode Island Reds, Plymouth Rocks and White Rocks.

AUTOMOBILE—Ford Roadster in good condition.

GRAIN—300 bu. of good corn in the crib; 50 bu. oats in bin.

MISCELLANEOUS — DeLaval Cream Separator, No. 12; gasoline engine, 2½ h. p.; pump jack; new player piano, 88 note auto action; new Victrola with 25 records; and Malleable steel range, nearly new, in good condition.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE—Of all kinds, consisting of tables, chairs, marble-top stands, wood stands, beds, rugs, 9x12, and carpets; Morris chair, rockers in leather and plush; [illegible], lace curtains, side board, trunks, dressers, sewing machine, folding leather Davenport, bureaus, sinks, vinegar [illegible], iron kettle, saws, axes, [illegible] chains, post [illegible], blocks, corn sheller, [illegible], egg cases, [illegible], crockery, book cases, [illegible], hoes, [illegible], bag truck and many other articles too numerous [illegible]

Warm Lunch Will Be Served.

[illegible] TERMS.

JACK BEAMS.

[illegible]

FEBRUARY

Are you in Earnest?

Some people say they simply cannot save money. Other people—who often have smaller incomes—find a joy in regular weekly saving.

The fact is, anyone can save money who is really in earnest about it. Take the matter seriously. Who benefits from your thrift? Who else but yourself?

The man with a growing savings account acquires confidence in himself, and a happy, fearless attitude towards the future.

One dollar or more opens an interest bearing account in this big, friendly bank.

"Teach your dollars to have more cents."

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

Spencer Township Farmers' Federation will meet at the Coburntown school house, Friday evening, Feb. 17, at 7:30. Special business for members.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Silberg and daughter Orpha, spent Thursday with Frank Steward and family, of Garrett. In the afternoon Mr. Silberg attended a Ford agents meeting at Kendallville.

Mrs. W. P. Steward was taken to the Hope-Methodist Hospital at Ft. Wayne, last Wednesday, and underwent an operation for appendicitis. She is getting along fine at this writing.

The Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Church met at the home of Mrs. R. U. Bowser, last Thursday afternoon, and made arrangement to hold their mite-box opening on Sunday evening, Feb. 26th.

Mr. and Mrs W. F. Rhoades and daughter Doris spent Sunday the guests of the former's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Vinton Miller, and family, east of town.

Mr. and Mrs. Joel Betz and Mrs. Kate House spent Friday, Saturday and Sunday the guests of the former's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Perking and family, Mrs. Harlan.

Rev. Steffy, pastor of the Lutheran Church, suffered a severe hemorrhage while on his way to St. Joe, last Thursday morning. He is doing as well as can be expected at this writing.

Miss Lucy Zimmerman, who was a patient at the Hope-Methodist Hospital at Ft. Wayne, was able to be taken to the home of her sister recently. Mrs. Clugston, who was also a patient at the same hospital, was taken to the home of her parents, Wednesday.

To Sell Fine Cows.

The nine milk cows which constituted the herd from which Jack Beams of Spencerville has been selling so much milk in the past few months will be sold at public auction at Mr. Beams's residence on Saturday, February 25. Each of these cows are extra good for milk production. Seven of them are giving a good flow now, one of them gives 6 gallons each day. Two of the nine head are not giving milk at the present time but are to be fresh, one by March 1st., and the other by April 10th.

They have had good care and are in the best of condition. Surely any one needing good cows will not loose time in buying of these. One of the five leading sellers to the Butler milk condensory for the first nine months of its business which ended in January was Jack Beams. The test of the milk he sold was above the average.

Sale to begin at 10:00 a. m. Don't forget the date.

Obituary

[illegible] was born in [illegible] DeKalb county, Ind., [illegible] and died at her [illegible] aged 77 years, [illegible] days.

[illegible]

SECOND ANNUAL

PUBLIC SALE

OF

FORD CARS

AND

Tractors

-On- Saturday, Feb. 18, 1922 -At- 9 a. m.

BIG FREE ATTRACTIONS

LaDELLE, the Great Magician

HAROLD F. HOYE, Black-face Comedian

FLORENCE BELLE, Noted Singer and Pianist

All the above people are from the Palace Theatre at Ft. Wayne. A real treat. First Show will begin at 9:00 o'clock and second show to follow the Big Auction.

FREE Lunch Served: Hot Coffee, Doughnuts

16 AUTOMOBILES and Two Tractors to be SOLD at AUCTION.

Silberg's Garage, SPENCERVILLE, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

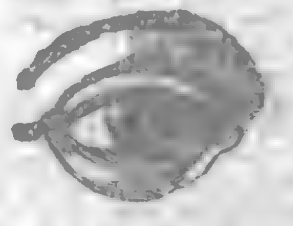
OFFICE and HOSPITAL

SPENCERVILLE, - IND.

Phones—Office No. 7

F. W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician



Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,

Butler, Indiana.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

is often caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE will do what we claim for it—rid your system of Catarrh or Deafness caused by Catarrh. [illegible] Forty Years.

Sold by all druggists.

F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

SPENCERVILLE

Mrs. John Timmerman is confined to her home by sickness.

Born to Mr and Mrs. Ralph Furney, of the County Line, a daughter, recently.

[illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman were Friday guests of Chas. Stotler and family of Harlan.

Mrs. Vern Wilmot spent last week the guest of her sister, Mrs. George Baker, of Hillsdale, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Billman and Mrs. Claude Hafner spent last Saturday at Ft. Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Markle and Samuel Markle assisted Verna Kelley in keeping his birthday anniversary on Friday.

Joseph Webb and wife visited their son, Clinton Webb and family, of Montgomery, Mich., several days last week.

Mrs. James Vallien and children were Saturday guests of the lady's sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Orla Woodring and family of Newville.

Used Ford automobiles, Tractors, and accessories will be sold at Public Auction at Silberg,s garage, Saturday Feb. 18.

Mrs. Ashar Culp very pleasantly entertained the members of the C C Club and one guest, Mrs. Kate Rummell, at her home, Friday afternoon.

Quarterly Conference will be held at the M. E. Church, next Sunday. The business meeting will be held on Saturday afternoon at the church.

[illegible]

Three sisters—Mrs. Anna Rickett of Newville, Ind.; Jane Hull of Concord, Indiana, and Tillie Sheldon of Johnsonburg, Pa., one brother, M. E. Wasson of Watsonville, Cal.; four grand-children, and one great-grand-child.

Funeral services were held on a recent Wednesday from the Shower's corner U. B. church, with interment in the cemetery at Sedan, Rev. W. A. Settie of Waterloo officiating; Roscoe Walters, funeral director.

Pleasantly Entertained

Mrs. Erin White was very pleasantly entertained one evening recently when the neighbors gathered to remind her of her birthday.

Those present were: Cecil Shilling, wife and sons; Orange Herrick and wife, Israel Layman and family, Curtis Hursey, wife and son; Mrs. Ella Hughes and two children, Dan Hursey, Mrs. Bertha Majors, Mrs Jane Hull and son, Mrs Jas. Goings and two daughters, little Miss Winifred Harfex and P. Poince.

For Sale at public auction: Used Ford autos, tractors, and accessories at Silberg's Garage on Sat., Feb. 18.

Wit.

Officer—"What's the matter, little girl?"

Child—"Iv'e lost my mamma."

Officer—"Why didn't you hold on to her skirts?"

Child—"I tried to but I couldn't reach them."

NEWS OF THE TOWN

Dean, the little son of George Kees and wife, has been ill several days.

Musie Woodcox and son Orla, spent Friday and Saturday guests of Mrs. Beeks Erick at Ft. Wayne.

Bay mare colt coming 3 years old, for sale. Well boned.
Keith Yeiser.

Carl Perkins and Harvey Hull were Sunnay dinner guests of F. R. Bowman and wife.

Mrs. H. E. Randall and little son Harry, Jr., who have been on the sick list, are improving.

F. M. Monroe and wife entertained at dinner, Tuesday, Mrs. Mike Quinn, of Ft. Wayne; Mrs. George Kinsey and Mrs. Chas. Cochran.

The DeKalb Teachers' Association will meet at Waterloo, Saturday, Feb. [illegible], in the U B. church. It is to be an all day meeting. [illegible] E. Maxwell, Supt., of the St. Joe Schools, and Miss Bertha [illegible]burg, Supt., of the Spencerville schools, have a part in the program.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House

AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office, Both Phones

H O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE

West Seventh Street

AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE NOTARY PUBLIC

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
Fort Wayne, Ind.

FEBRUARY

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognized Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

XI.

OUR COSTLY NEGLIGENCE

"Co-ordination" is a tired, haggard, nervous wreck of a word that was nearly worked to death at Washington during the early days of the war. It was the first of the dollar-a-year words to come forward to do war work, and it was worn to a frazzle. I hate to drag the poor wan thing out from the quiet retreat in my dictionary where it has been resting and recuperating, but I must say that this lack of co-ordination, lack of organization, duplication, inefficiency, waste, and haphazard hodge-podge structure of the national governmental machine is no secret to those at Washington, who run and manage it for us, and who are even more directly responsible than we are for the condition into which it has fallen.

I submit pleas of avoidance and confession from both Democrats and Republicans. It is not a matter of politics. It is a matter of proved and confessed negligence on the part of the men we have hired to run the machine, and have kept year after year in places of trust and power and responsibility. They haven't kept up the plant. The form of organization is grotesquely inadequate. The morale of the working force is badly impaired, as I have set forth at length in previous articles. We have paid the price for this, grossly and hugely, in money and in poor service. This has been costly negligence on our part.

I said I had confessions. Here they are, Reed Smoot, Republican and a senator from Utah, speaking:

> The administrative branches of the government have undergone no fundamental change since the organization was devised by Alexander Hamilton.
>
> No other government in the world could have gone on as ours has done, and paid the bills involved in our wasteful methods of administration. We have been able to do it because this country has had resources and wealth unparalleled. But the war has brought us at last to realize that these will not last always. We need a complete survey of the whole situation de novo by a committee of men willing to recognize that it is a task of day and night for a year, and very likely, two years. . . .
>
> There is endless duplication of work among different departments, and even in the same department. . . . It is the same through all the government functions, and now, when the burden of carrying our enormous debt is weighing on the people, we can no longer neglect to give it consideration.

When he said these things, Mr. Smoot was urging a concrete proposal to bring about the reformation so badly needed.

And now Franklin D. Roosevelt, for seven years assistant secretary of the navy and recently the Democratic candidate for vice president:

> The entire system of relationship which exists between congress and the executive departments is fundamentally wrong. Let me illustrate: I made an offer one spring to the appropriations committees of both house and senate, telling them that I would tomorrow discharge 15 per cent of the employees of the Navy department if they, the committees, would give me complete authority to take one-half of the salaries of the employees so discharged and add it to the salaries of the other 85 per cent of the employees still left in the department. . . . Of course, however, under the present system congress would not think of giving executive discretion of this kind.
>
> Congress, for various reasons, has so tied the hands of the executive officers of the government that they have no discretion in the fundamental questions of employment. . . . My own wonder is that, considering the existing circumstances, the employees of the government are as efficient as they actually are. Congress legislates for every minute item of employment. . . . There is a lot of work being done in other departments which ought properly to be under the Navy department, and in the same way there is a lot of work done by the Navy department which could perfectly properly be transferred to other departments.
>
> After seven years down here in an executive position . . . I cannot help the conclusion that our governmental methods are cumbersome and wasteful. The first improvement must come in what is, after all, the source of governmental activities—that is, the legislative branch. . . . This must come from congress. We need also a reclassification and redistribution of the work of the executive departments. This can only come if congress, working in accord with itself and with the executives, will discuss the whole question simultaneously and not merely piecemeal.

Well, there you are! A Republican who has been in the legislative branch of the government for seventeen years, and a Democrat who has been in the executive branch for seven years, both telling the same story of how badly the national business is managed.

The odd thing about it is that our agents and representatives at Washington who let this waste and inefficiency run on, year after year, pay no penalty. We pay the piper to the tune of millions and billions—literally that much. And the condition will endure until we make a real roar about it. Congress increasingly shakes its head over the situation and brings in various proposals of reform, and says how wrong it all is; but lacking a lively, inflamed public pressure, nothing gets done.

WE'RE COLD TO REFORMS

We have not had in our time a President who was a business man or who had close acquaintance with business methods. The Chief Executives have, for the most part, not been executives as that term is now understood. Anything but. They regarded the governmental machine as one regards a hired motor car—a piece of mechanism in which to get somewhere, and with no thought of its power-transmission system or economy of operation.

Mr. Taft did sense the fact that he was at the head of an organization whose activities are almost as varied as those of the entire business world. Mr. Harding, I believe, shares this feeling.

As Mr. Taft pointed out, this great organization has never been studied in detail as one piece of administrative mechanism. No comprehensive effort has been made, until very recently, to list its many activities or to group them in such a way as to present a clear picture of what the government is doing. No satisfactory statement has ever been published of the financial transactions of the government as a whole. With large interests at stake congress and the executive have never had all the information which should be currently available if the most intelligent direction is to be given to the daily national business.

Congress, the President and the ad[illegible] officers have been at[illegible] to discharge their duties [illegible] full information as to [illegible] through which the work [illegible] government is being performed. [illegible] services, agencies, bureaus [illegible], have been created one by [illegible] have seemed to [illegible] little or no reference [illegible] of organization of the gov[illegible] as a whole.

[illegible]

[illegible] economy and efficiency commission was very conservative and cautious. It took Mr. Taft's view that the problem of good administration is not one that can be solved at one time. It is a continuously present one. This commission, made up of excellent men, suggested that the revenue-cutter service be abolished and its activities be taken over by other services. It was estimated that by so doing a saving of not less than $1,000,000 could be made.

Another report recommended that the lighthouse and life-saving services be administered by a single bureau instead of as at that time, by two bureaus located in different departments. It was estimated that this consolidation would result in a saving of not less than $100,000 yearly.

The abolition of the returns office of the Interior department was recommended, at an estimated direct saving of about $25,000 a year, in addition to a large indirect economy in the reduction of work to be performed in the several offices.

The consolidation of the six auditing offices of the treasury and the inclusion in the auditing system of the seven naval officers who audited customs accounts at the principal ports was urged. The change was expected to produce an immediate saving of at least $1[illegible] yearly.

From this modest start other changes and reforms and savings were to be made.

But we weren't interested in the [illegible]

[illegible]

INDIANA State News

Muncie.—The Muncie real estate board formally has condemned the bill now before the congress to establish a second federal court in Indiana. In resolutions adopted it was said that the board regards another federal court as unneccessary and that the $200,000 additional expense annually would be a needless burden on the taxpayers.

Hammond. — Announcement was made at Hammond that the Inland Steel company at East Chicago will start its new rail mill March 1. It will place the plant on a 70 per cent production basis. The mill will have a capacity of approximately 15,000 tons of finished rails a day. The company expects to have 200,000 tons of rail orders booked before March 1.

Columbus.—Four great-grandfathers are rivals for the affection of the nine-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Christmas, of Newbern. The great grandfathers are all well and each one carries a picture of the child. Both Mr. Christman and Mrs. Christman have living grandfathers on both their father's and mother's side of the house, thus giving the baby the quartet of great-grandfathers.

Brazil.—Mrs. Myrtle Foster, of Terre Haute, pleaded guilty on a charge of arson in Clay circuit court at Brazil, and was sentenced to serve two to twenty-one years in the Indiana Woman's prison. Mrs. Foster was charged with murder and arson in connection with the death of a Terre Haute fireman, killed while fighting a fire started by Mrs. Foster. The murder charge was dropped.

Indianapolis.—U. S. Lesh, attorney-general of Indiana, said that he is of the opinion that the conference of Governor McCray, the state highway commission, its director and himself with representatives of cement companies held recently "disclosed unmistakably" that the conditions surrounding the cement bids offered to the highway department a few days ago by three cement companies give some evidence of an illegal combine under both state and federal laws.

Edinburg.—Hogs may again be harbored within the corporate limits of Edinburg, for the town board has made good its campaign pledge to repeal an ordinance forbidding the keeping of hogs within the limits of the town. The ordinance was passed by the previous town board and was the main issue in the town election last fall. The advocates of the open door for swine were swept into office by a substantial vote, and many residents of the town began building pig stys in preparation for raising their own pork.

Indianapolis.—The fish and game division of the state conservation department has sent a questionnaire to members of 130 organized fish and game protective associations of Indiana in order to compile data on the best places in the state for hunting and fishing. The data will be arranged according to counties, the chief of the division said, and it will be printed in pamphlets and distributed without charge by the conservation department. The information will be such that anyone interested in outdoor recreation or sport may learn the advantages and facilities of each county in the state.

Indianapolis.—During the ten years Indiana has engaged in propagating fish for restocking public waters, the sum of $184,438.24 has been spent, the chief of the fish and game division of the state conservation department, has announced. The state, at four hatcheries, has propagated 38,984,000 baby fish which were planted in public waters. The average cost of each fish so produced was about four-tenths of a cent, including bass, which, if obtained from commercial fisheries, cost 10 cents each at the fingerling stage. A total of 2,161,051 bass have been planted in the waters of the state in the last decade.

Indianapolis.—The state highway commission is preparing a map of the primary and secondary road systems of the state to send to the federal government, assistant chief engineer of the commission said. The map is being prepared [illegible]

[illegible]

Letts.—Gas rates at Letts soon will drop from 60 to 50 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. The Letts Gas and Oil company recently petitioned the public service commission for authority to make the decrease and the commission granted the petition forthwith. The gas is a natural product.

Indianapolis.—The state highway commission plans, during 1922, the building of new bridges and the repair of many old ones on state aid roads at a total cost of approximately $370,000. The proposed work will be in 55 state aid projects and 65 federal aid jobs. The state aid bridge projects are situated in 26 counties. The smallest project is a 16-foot span and the largest is a 600-foot crossing, or about six spans.

Laporte.—The Camp Roosevelt association of Muskegon, Mich., has leased Interlaken school, which is situated seven miles east of Laporte, and this summer will conduct a camp for six weeks for about 1,500 boys, according to an announcement by the commanding officer. The school is sponsored by Captain Beals, Peter A. Mortenson, superintendent of the Chicago schools, and Angus Hibbard, all of Chicago.

Lafayette.—Plans for the Purdue Union building having been approved by the board of governors and the university trustees, contract for the erection of the new building on the campus will be let in the next few weeks. The Union building, which is to be a clubhouse for students and alumni, will occupy a desirable site at the southeast corner of the campus and it will cost $1,250,000, nearly $850,000 having been subscribed by Purdue alumni in the last few years. It is hoped to have the cornerstone laying in "Gala week" next June.

Indianapolis.—"There is nothing in the 1921 teacher pension law which authorizes the board of trustees of the pension fund to pay anything back to teachers who have paid a part of their annual dues and then canceled their their teaching contracts and cease to be teachers," says U. S. Lesh, attorney-general, in an opinion he has submitted to the secretary of the trustees' board. The opinion points out that the teachers must contribute to the fund. The law lays down certain provisions for withdrawal of payments after one year.

Rushville.—The law moved swiftly in the case of Charles Sorrell, who was taken to the state prison to begin serving a 99-year sentence for the murder of Fred Wachendorf, a policeman. The grand jury after a short investigation returned a murder indictment. Less than an hour later, with only two or three courthouse attaches present, Sorrell was arraigned before Judge Sparks. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced immediately. Sorrell killed the policeman because of a grudge over Wachendorf's success in getting the patrolman's job which he desired.

Indianapolis.—Leo Todd, a workman, is entitled to keep $1,825 in gold which he found while digging a cellar on a farm in Henry county, according to a decision of the Appellate court sustaining the judgment of the Henry circuit court. Clara Freeman Vickery, administrator of the estate of Henry C. Freeman, to whom the farm belonged before it was bought by Hardin, brought suit to obtain the money. Hardin also claimed the treasure. The court found that the decision of the lower court in awarding the money to the workman was equitable.

Indianapolis.—Five months of steady work for 1,000 men will be provided by the proposed building program of the state board of agriculture calling for the expenditure of $350,000 to $500,000, according to the secretary of the board. Work will begin March 15 and continue until mid-August or early September. Definite announcement of the board's plans have been withheld pending the closing of the $1,000,000 bond sale by the board, which would provide funds for the building projects. The tentative bid of a Chicago company, offering a premium for the bonds, has been accepted. Three new buildings and one big addition is the proposed building program designed to give Indiana an up-to-date plant for holding the state fairs.

Indianapolis.—A United States census report, as quoted in Indiana papers, which valued the products from mines, quarries and wells in Indiana during a year at $52,840,262, is de[illegible] unfair to the state because it [illegible] only about half the value [illegible] mineral products, Dr. W. N. Logan, [illegible] geologist of the conservation department, said. Doctor Logan [illegible] that in 1920 Indiana produced [illegible] tons of coal, [illegible] a value of at least $2 a ton at the mine, making the total [illegible] Indiana coal for that year, [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 19

ELISHA AND NAAMAN THE SYRIAN

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 5:1-27.

GOLDEN TEXT—Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases.—Ps. 103:2, 3.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Luke 4:16-30; 5:12-16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Little Girl Helping.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Young Girl's Service.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Elisha Helping a Foreigner.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Overcome National and Racial Prejudices.

I. Naaman's Fatal Defect (v. 1).

He was a great man, but a leper. He was held in high esteem by the king, because through him the Syrians had been delivered from their enemies. He was not only a capable general, but was a very brave man—valorous. Every unregenerate man, regardless of his gifts and possessions, has this one fatal defect. He may be a mighty warrior, a great orator, a gifted writer, a man of profound learning, an honorable statesman, but if he is an unbeliever in Christ, he is a lost sinner—a leper. Leprosy is a type of sin. Note its characteristics:

Loathsome, hereditary, infectious, separating, destructive, deceitful, incurable by man.

II. The Faithful Witness (vv. 2-4).

This was a Jewish maid who had been captured by marauding Syrian troops who made frequent incursions into Israel's land for the purpose of plunder. Daniel at a later date was carried away captive, and he likewise was used of God to bless many. Joseph is another example of one who was put into a hard place, but became a blessing to others, even to the saving of his brothers, who sold him. This Jewish maid pointed out to this great man the One who could heal him. Many are the persons who have been pointed to Christ as the Healer of souls by children.

III. Naaman Seeking the Healer (vv. 5-9).

1. He goes with a letter of introduction and great gifts (v. 5). In the East valuable gifts are taken along when in quest of some favor. In this case the value was perhaps $80,000.

2. He goes to the wrong place (vv. 6, 7). The maid did not suggest that if Naaman would be with the king he would be recovered of his leprosy, but with the prophet of God. We should be very careful that we go to the right place with our troubles and sins. Neither the king's power nor Naaman's money could avail anything in this case. The prophet of God can bring greater blessing than kings and rich men.

3. Naaman at the door of Elisha (vv. 8, 9). Elisha, upon learning of the king's embarrassment, sent to him, saying, "Let him come now to me." Naaman appeared before Elisha's door in great splendor. He did not come as a suppliant, but as one who could pay a goodly sum for healing.

IV. Naaman Healed (vv. 10-15).

1. Elisha's message (v. 10). Go wash in Jordan seven times.

2. Naaman's anger (vv. 11, 12). He thought that Elisha should have shown deference to him. People today think that their rank and wealth entitle them to different treatment by God. They turn away from the humble way of the Cross, God's method of salvation. Rich and poor, high and low are alike in God's sight. Reasonings of the flesh must be supplanted by the obedience of faith.

3. Naaman's obedience (vv. 13, 14). Through the earnest entreaty of his servants his pride and prejudice were overcome, and he did what the prophet commanded. The result of his obedience was that his flesh "came again as the flesh of a little child."

4. Naaman acknowledges Jehovah (v. 15). After his cleansing he came again to the prophet and said, "Now I know that there is no God in all the earth, but in Israel." The vital point of teaching in this lesson is how nearly Naaman missed being healed. The three enemies which almost kept him from being healed were: (1) Pride (v. 11). He was insulted because the man of God did not come out to such a distinguished man as he was. (2) Preconceived opinion (v. 11). "I thought." Many sinners procrastinate because they have preconceived opinions as to how God ought to save. (3) [illegible] (v. 12). Rivers of Damascus are better than Jordan. [illegible] are lost by these [illegible] God has provided only one way [illegible] their sins—the way of the Cross.

[illegible]

[illegible]

HOW'S YOUR LIVER ?

Health is Kept, if You Observe This :

Metamora, Ind.—"I have taken Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets for constipation and can say I have been greatly benefited.

"My husband suffers with hemorrhoids and he would not be without the Pleasant Pellets in the house. They surely do what is claimed for them and I could recommend them to anyone who needs a reliable remedy for constipation."—Mrs. C. Rust, Rt. 1, Box 25L.

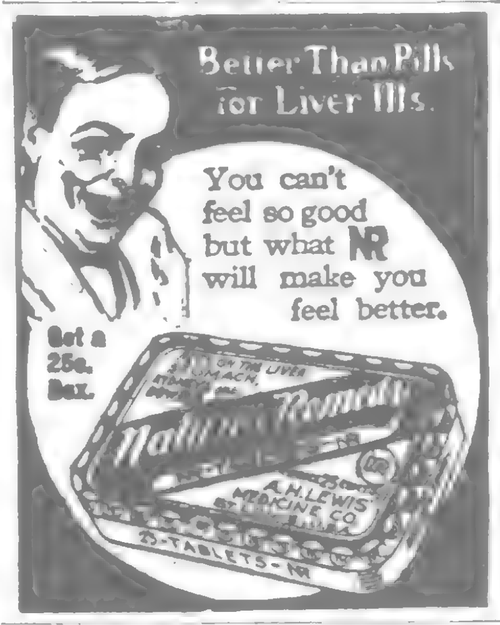
Keep well by obtaining now a handy pocket vial of Pleasant Pellets at your nearest drug store.

for that COUGH!

KEMP'S BALSAM

Pleasant to take

Children like it



Better Than Pills for Liver Ills.

You can't feel so good but what NR will make you feel better.

Get a 25c. Box.

CANDY—ALL KINDS

Learn how to make it in your own home. My book teaches you how. My recipes are absolutely reliable, failure is impossible. For particulars write MARGERY A. RICKER, Dept. 3, Lynbrook, Long Island, N. Y.

A MELLOW, MUSICAL

Speaking voice can easily be acquired by anyone. Prof. Holme's book tells how. One dollar postpaid. Particulars free

GLOVER PUBLISHING COMPANY

Box 37, N. S. - Pittsburgh, Pa.

The Best Way to Buy a Farm

Farms in the South as productive as Western farms can be bought at low prices and bring bigger net profits owing to mild climate and good markets. Unusual opportunities for dairy farming. Study these conditions before buying. Good farms can be rented for a year with option to buy at a fixed price. Full information free. Write J. C. WILLIAMS, Manager, Southern Railway Development Service, Washington, D. C.

Since Women Smoke.

Pandora opened her box.

"Christmas cigars," she explained briefly.

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription.

Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Frenzieder Finance.

Roberts—What's the matter? Finances bothering you?

Richard—Yes; I owe Rogers $5, and today I've got it, and he knows I've got it, and he knows I know he knows I've got it.—American Legion Weekly.

Red Cross Ball Blue should be used in every home. It makes clothes white as snow and never injures the fabric. All good grocers.—Advertisement.

Could Afford the Best.

Salesman—"I suppose it's a grand piano you require, madam." Mrs. Newrich—"Grand! I want a magnificent one."

An excuse will serve when you haven't a mind to do a thing.

Lloyd LOOM Products

Ask Your Local Dealer

Write Now for 32-Page Illustrated Booklet

[illegible]

Cuticura Talcum is Fragrant and Very Healthful

[illegible]

FEBRUARY

The GREEN PEA PIRATES

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "WEBSTER-MAN'S MAN," "THE VALLEY of the GIANTS," Etc.

Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne

CHAPTER XIII—Continued.

—14—

A Jacob's ladder was hanging over the side of the schooner as the canoe shot in under her lee quarter, and half a minute later the expectant Neils stepped upon her deck. A tall dark man, wearing an ancient palmleaf hat, sat smoking on the hatch coaming, and him Neils Halvorsen addressed.

"Aye bane want to see Cap'n Scraggs," he said.

The tall dark man stood erect and cast a quick, questioning look at Neils Halvorsen. He hesitated before he made answer.

"What do you want?" he asked deliberately, and there was a subtle menace in his tones. As for Neils Halvorsen, thinking only of the surprise he had in store for his old employer, he replied evasively:

"Aye bane want job."

"Well, I'm Captain Scraggs, and I haven't any job for you. Get off my boat and wait until you're invited before you come aboard again."

For nearly a minute Neils Halvorsen stared open-mouthed at the spurious Captain Scraggs, while slowly there sifted through his brain the notion that he had happened across the track of a deep and bloody mystery of the seas. There was "something rotten in Denmark." Of that Neils Halvorsen was certain. More he could not be certain of until he had paved the way for a complete investigation, and as a preliminary step toward that end he clinched his fist and sprang swiftly toward the bogus skipper.

"Aye tank you bane d—a liar," he muttered, and struck home, straight and true, to the point of the jaw. The man went down, and in an instant Neils was on top of him. Off came the sailor's belt, the hands of the half-stunned man were quickly tied behind him, and before he had time to realize what had happened Neils had cut a length of cord from a trailing halyard and tied his feet securely, after which he gagged him securely with his bandana handkerchief.

A quick circuit of the ship convinced Neils Halvorsen that the remainder of the dastard crew were evidently ashore, so he descended to the cabin in search of further evidence of crime. He was quite prepared to find Captain Scraggs' master's certificate in its familiar oaken frame, hanging on the cabin wall, but he was dumfounded to observe, hanging on the wall in a similar and equally familiar frame, the certificate of Adelbert P. Gibney as first mate of steam or sail, any ocean and any tonnage. But still a third framed certificate hung on the wall, and Neils again scratched his head when he read the wording that set forth the legal qualifications of Bartholomew McGuffey to hold down a job as chief engineer of coastwise vessels up to 1,200 tons net register.

It was patent, even to the dull-witted Swede, that there had been foul play somewhere, and the schooner's log, lying open on the table, seemed to offer the first means at hand for a solution of the mystery. Eagerly Neils turned to the last entry. It was not in Captain Scraggs' handwriting, and contained nothing more interesting than the stereotyped reports of daily observations, currents, weather conditions, etc., including a notation of arrival that day at Honolulu. Slowly Halvorsen turned the leaves backward, until at last he was rewarded by a glimpse of a different handwriting. It was the last entry under that particular handwriting, and read as follows:

"June 21, 19—. Took an observation at noon, and find that we are in 20—48 S., 178—4 W. At this rate should lift Tuvana-tholo early this afternoon. All hands well and looking forward to the fun at Tuvana. Bent a new flying jib this morning and had the king and Tabu-Tabu holystone the deck. A. P. GIBNEY."

Neils Halvorsen sat down to think, and after several minutes of this unusual exercise it appeared to the Swede that he had stumbled upon a clue to the situation. The last entry in the log kept by Mr. Gibney was under date of June [illegible] eleven days ago, and on that date Mr. Gibney had been looking forward to some fun at Tuvana-tholo. Now where was that island, and what kind of a place was it?

[illegible]

by some sixth sailor sense Neils Halvorsen became convinced that his old friends of the vegetable trade were marooned. They had gone ashore for some kind of a frolic, and the crew had stolen the schooner and left them to their fate, believing that the castaways would never be heard from and that dead men tell no tales.

He rushed on deck, carried his prisoner down into the cabin, and locked the door on him. A minute later he was clinging to the Jacob's ladder, the canoe shot in to the side of the vessel at his gruff command and passed on shoreward without missing a stroke of the paddle. An hour later, accompanied by three Kanaka sailors picked up at random along the water front, Neils Halvorsen was pulled out to the Maggie II. Her crew had not returned and the bogus captain was still triced hard and fast in the cabin.

The Swede did not bother to investigate in detail the food and water supply. A hasty round of the schooner convinced him that she had at least a month's supply of food and water. Only one thought surged through his mind, and that was the awful necessity for haste. The anchor came in with a rush, the Kanaka boys chanting a song that sounded to Neils like a funeral dirge, and Neils went below and turned the gasoline engines wide open. The Maggie II swung around and with a long streak of opalescent foam trailing behind her swung down the bay and faded at last in the ghostly moonlight beyond Diamond head; after which Neils Halvorsen, with murder in his eye and a tarred rope's end in his horny fist, went down into the cabin and talked to the man who posed as Captain Scraggs. In the end he got a confession. Fifteen minutes later he emerged, smiling grimly, gave the Kanaka boy at the wheel the course, and turned in to sleep the sleep of the conscience-free and the weary.

* * * * * * *

Darkness was creeping over the beach at Tuvana-tholo before Mr. Gibney could smother the despair in his heart sufficient to spur his jaded imagination to working order. For nearly an hour the three castaways had sat on the beach in dumb horror, gazing seaward. They were not alone in this, for a little further up the beach the two Fiji islanders sat huddled on their haunches, gazing stupidly first at the horizon and then at their white captors. It was the sight of these two worthies that spurred Mr. Gibney's torpid brain to action.

"Didn't you say, Mac, that when we left these two cannibals alone on this island that it would develop into a case of dog eat dog or somethin' of that nature?"

Captain Scraggs sprang to his feet, his face white with a new terror. However, he had endured so much since embarking with Mr. Gibney on a life of wild adventure that his nerves had become rather [illegible]

Carried His Prisoner Down Into the Cabin.

emy, and the enemy fled in wild disorder, pursued by the syndicate. After a chase of half a mile Mr. Gibney led his cohorts back to the beach.

"Let's build a fire—not that we need it, but just for company—and sleep till mornin'. By that time my imagination'll be in workin' order and I'll scheme a breakfast out of this Godforsaken hole."

At the first hint of dawn Mr. Gibney, true to his promise, was up and scouting for breakfast. He found some gooneys on a rocky crag and killed half a dozen of them with a club. On his way back to camp he discovered a few handfuls of sea salt in a crevice between some rocks, and the syndicate breakfasted an hour later on roast gooney. It was oily and fishy but an excellent substitute for nothing at all, and the syndicate was grateful. The breakfast would have been cheerful, in fact, if Captain Scraggs had not made repeated reference to his excessive thirst. McGuffey lost patience before the meal was over, and cuffed Captain Scraggs, who thereupon subsided with tears in his eyes. This hurt McGuffey. It was like salt in a fresh wound, so he patted the skipper on the back and humbly asked his pardon. Captain Scraggs forgave him and murmured something about death making them all equal.

"The next business before the syndicate," announced Mr. Gibney, "is a search of this island for water."

They searched all forenoon. At intervals they caught glimpses of the two cannibals skulking behind sand-dunes, but they found no water. Toward the center of the island, however, the soil was less barren, and here a grove of coconut palms lifted their tufted crests invitingly.

"We will camp in this grove," said the commodore, "and keep guard over these green coconuts. There must be nearly a hundred of them and I notice a little taro root here and there. As those coconuts are full of milk, that insures us life for a week or two if we go on a short ration. By bathin' several times a day we can keep down our thirst some and perhaps it'll rain."

"What if it does?" snapped Captain Scraggs bitterly. "We ain't got nothin' but our hats to catch it in."

"Well, then, Scraggsy, old stick-in-the mud," replied the commodore quizzically, "it's a cinch you'll go thirsty. Your hat looks like a cullender."

Captain Scraggs choked with rage, and Mr. Gibney, springing at the nearest palm, shinned to the top of it in the most approved sailor fashion. A moment later, instead of coconuts, rich unctuous curses began to descend on McGuffey and Scraggs.

"Gib, my dear boy," inquired Scraggs, "whatever is the matter of you?"

"That hound Tabu-Tabu's been strippin' our coconut grove," roared the commodore. "He must have spent half the night up in these trees."

"Thank the Lord they didn't take 'em all," said McGuffey piously. "Chuck me down a nut, Gib," said Captain Scraggs. "I'm famished."

In conformity with the commodore's plans, the castaways made camp in the grove. For a week they subsisted on gooneys, taro root, coconuts and coconut milk, and a sea-turtle which Scraggs found wandering on the beach. This suggested turtle eggs to Mr. Gibney, and a change of diet resulted. Nevertheless, the unaccustomed food, poorly cooked as it was, and the lack of water, told cruelly on them, and their strength failed rapidly.

At the end of a week, all hands were troubled with indigestion and McGuffey developed a low fever. They had lost much flesh and were a white, haggard-looking trio. On the afternoon of the tenth day on the island the sky clouded up and Mr. McGuffey predicted a williwaw. Captain Scraggs inquired feebly if it was good to eat.

That night it rained, and to the great joy of the marooned mariners Mr. Gibney discovered, in the center of a big [illegible] rock, a natural reservoir that held about [illegible] gallons of water. [illegible] fifth day Captain Scraggs fainted twice. On the twenty-sixth day McGuffey crawled into the shadow of a stunted mimosa bush and started to pray!

It was the finish. The commodore knew it, and sat with bowed head in his gaunt arms, wondering, wondering. Slowly his body began to sway; he muttered something, slid forward on his face, and lay still. And as he lay there on the threshold of the unknown he dreamed that the Maggie II came into view around the headland, a bone in her teeth and every stitch of canvas flying. He saw her luff up into the wind and hang there shivering; a moment later her sails came down by the run, and he saw a little splash under her port bow as her hook took bottom. There was a commotion on decks, and then to Mr. Gibney's dying ears came faintly the shouts and songs of the black boys as a whaleboat shot into the breakers and pulled swiftly toward the beach. Mr. Gibney dreamed that a white man sat in the stern sheets of this whaleboat, and as the boat touched the beach it seemed to Mr. Gibney that this man sprang ashore and ran swiftly toward him. And—Mr. Gibney twisted his suffering lips into a wry smile as he realized the oddities of this mirage—it seemed to him that this visionary white man bore a striking resemblance to Neils Halvorsen. Neils Halvorsen, of all men! Old Neils, "the squarehead" deckhand of the green-pea trade! Dull, bowlegged Neils, with his lost dog smile and his—

Mr. Gibney rubbed his eyes feebly and half staggered to his feet. What was that? A shout? Without doubt he had heard a sound that was not the moaning of their remorseless prison-keeper, the sea. And—

"Hands off," shrieked Mr. Gibney and struck feebly at the imaginary figure rushing toward him. No use. He felt himself swept into strong arms and carried an immeasurable distance down the beach. Then somebody threw water in his face and pressed a drink of brandy and sweet water to his parched lips. His swimming senses rallied a moment, and he discovered that he was lying in the bottom of a whaleboat. McGuffey lay beside him, and on a thwart in front of him sat good old Neils Halvorsen with Captain Scraggs' head on his knees. As Mr. Gibney looked at this strange tableau Captain Scraggs opened his eyes, glanced up at Neils Halvorsen, and spoke:

"Why if it ain't old squarehead Neils," he muttered wonderingly. "If it ain't Neils, I'll go to hades or some other seaport." He closed his eyes again and subsided into a sort of lethargy, for he was content. He knew he was saved.

Mr. Gibney rolled over, and, struggling to his knees, leaned over McGuffey and peered into his drawn face.

"Mac, old shipmate! Mac, speak to me. Are you alive?"

B. McGuffey, Esquire, opened a pair of glazed eyes and stared at the commodore.

"Did we lick 'em?" he whispered. "The last I remember the king was puttin' it all over Scraggsy. And that Tabu boy—was—no slouch." McGuffey paused, and glanced warily around the boat, while a dawning horror appeared in his sunken eyes. "Go back, Neils—go back—for God's sake. There's two niggers—still—on the—island. Bring—'em some—water. They're cannibals—Neils, but never—mind. Get them—aboard—the poor devils—if they're living. I—wouldn't leave a—crocodile on that—hell hole, if I could—help it."

An hour later the Robinson Crusoe syndicate, including the man Friday and the Goat, were safe aboard the Maggie II, and Neils Halvorsen, with the tears streaming down his bronzed cheeks, was sparingly doling out to them a mixture of brandy and water. And when the syndicate was strong enough to be allowed all the water it wanted, Neils Halvorsen propped them up on deck and told the story. When he had finished, Captain Scraggs turned to Mr. Gibney.

"Gib, my dear boy," he said, "make a motion."

"I move," said the commodore, "that we set Tabu-Tabu and the king down on the first inhabited island we can find. They've suffered enough. And I further move that we readjust the ownership of the Maggie II syndicate and cut the best Swede on earth in on a quarter of the profits."

"Second the motion," said McGuffey.

"Carried," said Captain Scraggs.

CHAPTER XIV.

The lookout on the power schooner Maggie II had sighted Diamond head before Commodore Adelbert P. Gibney, Captain Phineas P. Scraggs and Engineer Bartholomew McGuffey were enabled to compose, in all sincerity (or at least with as much [illegible]

[illegible]

"We got a quorum without him, an' besides this business is just between us three."

"Meetin'll come to order." The commodore tapped the hot deck with his bare heel twice. "Haul away, Mac."

"I move you, gentlemen, that it be the sense o' this meetin' that B. McGuffey, Esquire, be an' he is hereby app'inted a committee o' one to lam the everlastin' daylights out o' that sinful former chief mate o' ourn for abandonin' the syndicate to a horrible death on that there desert island. Do I hear a second to that motion?"

"Second the motion," chirped Captain Scraggs.

"The motion's denied," announced Mr. Gibney firmly.

"Now, looky here, Gib, that ain't fair. Didn't you fight Tabu-Tabu an' didn't Scraggsy fight the king o' Kandavu? I ain't had no fightin' this entire v'yage an' I did cal'late to lick that doggone mate."

"Mac, it can't be done nohow."

"Oh, it can't, eh? Well, I'll just bet you two boys my interest in the syndicate—"

"It ain't that, Mac, it ain't that. Nobody's doubtin' your natural ability to mop him up. But it ain't policy. You wasn't sore agin 'em cannibal savages, was you? You made Neils go back an' save 'em, an' it took us two days to beat up to the first inhabited island an' drop 'em off—"

"But a cannibal's like a dumb beast, Gib. He ain't responsible. This mate knows better."

"Ah!" Mr. Gibney leveled a horny forefinger at the engineer. "That's where you hit the nail on the head. He's too fly, and there's only two ways to keep him from flyin' away with us. The first is to feed him to the sharks and the second is to treat him like a long-lost brother. I know he ought to be hove overboard, but I ain't got the heart to kill him in cold blood. Consequently, we got to let the villain live, an' if you go to beatin' him up, Mac, you'll make him sore an' he'll peach on us when we get to Honolulu. If us three could get back to San Francisco with clean hands, I'd say lick the beggar an' lick him for fair. But we got to remember that this mate was one o' the original filibuster crew o' the old Maggie I. The day we tackled the Mexican navy an' took this power schooner away from 'em, we put ourselves forty fathom plumb outside the law, an' this mate was present an' knows it. We've changed the vessel's name an' rig, an' doctored up the old Maggie's papers to suit the Maggie II, an' we've give her a new dress. But at that, it's hard to disguise a ship in a live port, an' the secret service agents o' the Mexican government may be a-layin' for us in San Francisco; and with this here mate agin us an' ready to turn state's evidence, we're pirates under the law, an' it don't take much imagination to see three pirates swingin' from the same yard-arm. No, sir, Mac. I ain't got no wish, now that we're fixed nice an' comfortable with the world's goods, to be hung for a pirate in the mere shank o' my youth. Why, I ain't fifty year old yet."

It Was the Finish. The Commodore Knew It.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

SALT WATER MORE BUOYANT

Fact That Is Well Known to Mariners May Be News to Some of Our Readers.

A boy dropped a ball into a small hole and could not get it out, so he poured water into the hole, thinking the ball would float to the surface. As the [illegible]

[illegible]

GOOD HEALTH OF CHILDREN FROM RICH BLOOD

Health, Strength and Vigor Built Up By Gude's Pepto-Mangan.

You see one child strong and robust; another child pale and thin. One eats practically the same foods and takes the same exercise as the other. What is the difference? Nearly always it's a difference in the quality of the blood. The strong child has rich, red blood and plenty of it. You love to see him eat so heartily. If your child is thin and weak, give him Gude's Pepto-Mangan to build up the blood and see the difference between a sickly, unhappy childhood and a bouncing, healthy childhood.

Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan at your druggist's in liquid or tablet form. Be sure it's the genuine. Advertisement.

Same Symptoms.

Simpson (greeting his old friend)—Why, Jones, it's ages since I saw you last. Married now, aren't you?

Jones—No, no, old man, it's not that. Just business worry and nerves.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Easily Figured.

Nip—What's the difference between a dance and a dawnce?

Tuck—About four bucks.

The man who takes unto himself a better half should be prepared for better or for worse.

Back Bad Since the Grip?

Has a cold or grip sapped your strength? Do you suffer constant backache, feel nervous and depressed? Then look to your kidneys! Many cases of kidney trouble are the result of infectious disease. The kidneys have broken down under the strain of filtering disease-created poisons from the blood. That's why a cold or grip often leaves backache, headaches, dizzy spells and irregular kidney action. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Indiana Case

Ora Parker, 466 Garden St., Kendallville, Ind., says: "My back ached and pained dreadfully and every time I stooped I could hardly straighten up. I also had considerable bladder trouble and my kidneys acted too freely most of the time. I used different remedies without benefit. Doan's Kidney Pills, however, cured me."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

TO KILL RATS and MICE

Always use the genuine

STEARNS' ELECTRIC RAT & ROACH PASTE

It forces these pests to run from the building for water and fresh air.

Ready for Use—Better Than Traps

[illegible]

U. S. Government buys it.

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

[illegible]

FEBRUARY

AN EXTRAORDINARY ANNOUNCEMENT

You can now buy the most dependable general purpose and guaranteed TRACTOR on the market today, at the followig unheard of prices:

TITAN, 10-20 h.p. $700 complete with 3 bottom plows or International TRACTOR disc harrow and with platform, fenders, lugs, belt, pulleys, and governors. You are backed by the Largest Manufacturers of TRACTORS and Implements in the world.

The International 8-16 with the same equipment, but with 2-bottom plow, instead of 3 $670

Practically speaking the TITAN 10-20 alone would cost you only about........ $500

And the 8-16 about $470 Why buy the cheaper experiments when you can purchase a guaranteed one for about the same money with more power and guaranteed reliability?

Come and talk the proposition over with us; we eliminate your taking any chance.

A carload of Farm Fence and a carload of the best white Cedar Posts You ever saw at pre-war Prices. We guarantee a saving to you.

A Special Proposition now on Primrose Cream Separators and International Manure Spreaders.

Our Prices are Lower while the Quality is Maintained

And GUARANTEED.

WILLIAM CURIE, . : . St. Joe, Indiana

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE

Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

no tax now

LUDEN'S

menthol cough drops

price 5¢ straight

GIVE QUICK RELIEF

Famous Yellow Package—[illegible]

53

St. Joe Locals

Edith Widney spent Tuesday a guest of Mrs Pluma Hamilton.

For Sale:—Good milk cow. Call of [illegible] Wm. Sommers, St Joe [illegible].

[illegible] and wife, of Wa[illegible], were Sunday guests of Wm [illegible].

[illegible]

Anyone wanting baby chickens hatched, see Mrs. Ora Wilmot, St. Joe.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Monroe Dill, of Pierceton, spent Sunday night and Monday as a guest of his sister, Mrs. C. R. Price and husband.

It is astonishing how quickly Tanlac will produce results; you usually feel better from the very first dose. Sold by Dr. Shefler.

Mr. and Mrs. Golden Benninghoff and little son, of Ft. Wayne; and Mrs. W. P. English, of Chicago spent Sunday in the home of B. S. Bowman and wife.

Farmers, hear the singing of the Choral Society and others, and Bender VonLiverwurst's discussion on "der oldest subject known" at the School Bldg., Friday evening this week.

The Misses Florence Williams and Dorothea Scholes, and Messrs. Chas. Bassett and Jack Pullen spent Sunday afternoon as guests of Emmett Eppler and wife, of Ft Wayne.

Charles Tustison, who is staying in Hicksville to be near his wife who is a patient at the [illegible] hospital, spent Monday afternoon at home. [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe High School Notes.

FRESHMEN.

The Freshmen Manual Training class are not working in the shop now, as a result of being out of lumber.

We are now learning the fifth declension of nouns. This is the last one, and we are all rejoicing.

The Freshmen now have $5.50 in their class treasury. H. M.

SOPHOMORE.

After much effort the Sophomores have succeeded in winning the spelling race. As a result of honest effort, and some private coaching, we are in the lead with an average of over 94%. Our motto seems to be practical in this case, "Climb Though the Rocks be Rugged." R. J.

JUNIOR.

Mrs. Victor Brown, formerly Miss Anna Hart, has returned to school, to resume her school work

At a Junior class meeting last week the class selected the following class motto: "Education comes in CANS and not in can'ts." The class flower is the "Lily," and the colors are "Green and White." Miss [illegible], our class sponsor, presided at the meeting. J. H.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Sophomores, 94.2
Seniors, 94.2
Sixth grade, 93
Freshmen, 92 6
Fifth grade, 91
Juniors, 84.6

There will be no show next Saturday night on account of the game with Auburn.

Our boys' and girls' teams go to Hudson next Friday night to play Ashley.

The Athletic Association received word that our team is to participate in the tournament at Angola this year.

The St. Joe schools are planning a program to be given about the middle of March.

Church Anniversary

On Sunday, February 19, 1922, the Church of Christ at Coburn's corners will celebrate the eighty-fifth (85) anniversary of the organization of the church at that place. There were eleven charter members, namely, Benjamin Alton, Sen., and Fannie, his wife; Benjamin Alton, Jr., and [illegible] Dew Alton, sons; John F. [illegible] and Minerva, his wife; [illegible] and Hannah, his wife; [illegible]; Samuel Headley and [illegible].

A [illegible] will be served at the [illegible] and the program for the [illegible] will be in charge of Mrs. [illegible]. [illegible]

[illegible]

--Dr.--

HARTZOG EYE SIGHT SPECIALIST

J. W. Hartzog

Eye-Sight SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist Office, St. Joe, Ind.,

Friday, FEBRUARY 24th

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL.

Song, Blest be the tie that Binds, congregation.

Scripture reading and prayer by Rev. R. B. Dailey.

Song, How firm a Foundation, congregation.

Talks and songs by the children, the grand-children, great-grand-children great great grand children, and great-great-great grand children of the charter members.

Song by congregation.

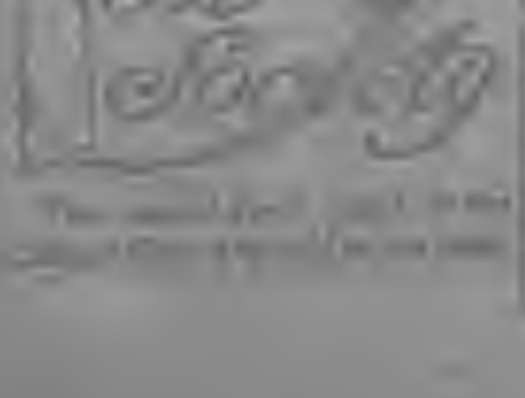
Recitation, Mrs. John B. Dixon.

Address, John B. Dixon.

Song, Nearer to Thee, congregation.

Benediction.

The public is cordially invited.



[illegible] ment of the Lutheran Church, Wednesday night, Feb. 8 The event was a six o'clock luncheon. The following numbers were given: Cornet solo, Louetta Daily; Vocal solo, Floyd Reasoner; Reading, "The New Baby," Margaret Elnor Hamilton. Miss Lenore Moore gave a march for the Promenade for partners. Members, their families and guests numbering fifty-one were all seated at the tables where they did justice to a bountiful pot-luck. Each one was then given a comic valentine [illegible]. Favors were [illegible] valentines.

Notice.

[illegible]

FEBRUARY

L 91

Supplement to the St. Joe News

COBURN'S CORNERS

O. J. Baker, Mrs Matie Gee and son, spent Sunday in Auburn.

Chas. and Ray Inlow were business visitors in Auburn, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Conine were last Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Rel. Hart.

Miss Vern Ward was a week-end guest of her mother, Mrs. Cecil Shilling.

Philip Smith and wife, John Milliman, wife and children, were last Sunday guests at the Henry Milliman home.

CHICKEN PIE DINMER will be served in the basement of the Lutheran Church on Tuesday of the Farmer's Short Course. Price 35 cents.

W. P. Coburn is suffering an attack of the grip. Other members of the family, including the daughter, Mrs. Glen Shaffer, and children, are convalescent from same malady.

"We have sold 97,000 bottles of Tanlac and have never had a single complaint."–Jacobs' Pharmacy, Atlanta, Ga. Sold by Dr. Sheffer.

Mrs. Will Sommers was guest at a dinner given in honor of her birthday at the home of her parents in Spencerville, last Wednesday. R P. Moffet and wife were guests at the Sommers home at the supper hour.

Mesdames Mattie Hart, Dora Wilder, Gladys Hart, Dale Hart, Cora Waltz and Emma Hart were guests of the Coletown Ladies' Aid in an all-day meeting, Wednesday last, held at the home of Mrs. Lena Pierman.

The pot-luck dinner and comfort-knotting held at the home of Mrs. Fred Hart was well attended by the Ladies' Aid, in a meeting both pleasant and profitable. Mesdames Daily, Place and Northrup of St. Joe were also present. At the business session, Mrs. Dale Hart was elected secretary to fill the resignation of Mrs Baker.

The eighty-sixth anniversary of the founding of the Coburn corners church will be celebrated next Sunday at the church in an all-day meeting. A pot-luck dinner will be served and the day's program will be in charge of Mrs. Emma Hart. The participators of the program are descendants of charter members. Rev. John Dickson of Hicksville will preach in the afternoon. The public is cordially invited.

Glen Hart was host last Thursday evening to the Senior class and teachers of the Spencerville High school. Prof. Roscoe Walters, Superintendent Miss Bertha Thornburg and Miss Ida Reed, in a valentine social of neat and appropriate appointments. Each member of the class brought a guest and the attendance numbered 34. After an evening given to music, games, valentine exchanges and contests conducted by the host, Mrs. Hart and Mrs. Baker served a dainty luncheon of sandwiches, pickles cake and marshmallow pudding. The favors, presented, were heart shaped valentines of unique folder design.

Charles Tustison, who has been staying at Hicksville, since his wife was removed to the hospital at that place, was home between trains, on Monday, and reports the condition of Mrs. Tustison exceptionally favorable. Rapid improvement is expected each day, now, and the many friends are wishing her a speedy and complete recovery. The Willard Williams family is occupying the Tustison property during their absence.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Vivian Murphy was on the sick list last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Less Sebring and son Paul spent Saturday night and Sunday with their daughter, Mrs. Vera Jackson.

Mrs. Leysher and grandson Dean Keese spent last Wednesday with her mother, sister and family, Mrs. C. Jackson.

WIRES CARRIED BELL'S TONE

Ingenious Idea Saved Time and Expense to Committee Charged With Making a Selection.

Selling a church bell by long-distance telephone seems to be going the mail order houses one better, but that's what a Troy (N. Y.) bell company actually did recently when a prospective customer called up from Boston.

He was chairman of a committee appointed to select a bell for a church in one of the suburbs of Boston, and called up to arrange for his committee to visit the bell company's sales room at Troy. While on the wire, however, he happened to hear one of the bells toll, and the telephone transmitted the sound so clearly and distinctly that he at once suggested that instead of making the trip to Troy the committee select a bell of the desired tone by listening to it over the telephone.

Accordingly, the committee gathered at the chairman's office in Boston at the appointed time, and, according to arrangement, the bell company at Troy demonstrated the tolling of its bells over the long-distance telephone. After listening to several bells the committee selected one with which they were thoroughly satisfied, and saved the expense of a trip.

World's Great Rivers.

"There are comparatively few rivers whose exact lengths are known," says Director Otis of the United States geological survey. The survey, however, issues a list compiled by it of lengths of the principal rivers of the world, which it says "is probably as nearly accurate as any other to be had." The United States has the distinction of containing within its borders the longest river system of the world—the Mississippi-Missouri—the Mississippi, from its extreme source, measuring 2,486 miles, the Missouri from its extreme source 2,945 miles, the Mississippi-Missouri 4,221 miles. Other great rivers are the Nile, Africa, 4,000 miles; Amazon, Brazil, 3,900; Ob, Siberia, 3,200; Yangtze-Kiang, China, 3,100; Amur, China, 3,900; Kongo, Africa, 2,900; Yenisei, Siberia, 2,800; Hwang, China, 2,700; Lena, Siberia, 2,600; Murray-Darling, Australia, 2,310, and Yukon, Alaska and Canada, 2,300.

New Discovery.

Emulating the study of the teakettle by James Watt which resulted in the invention of the steam engine, two Newark (N. J.) men accomplished what is claimed to be remarkable progress in the construction of steam boilers through a study of the coffee percolator, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The water, instead of being heated in large quantities, is boiled, a gallon at a time, in a flat receptacle just over the fire pot. The water being only one-quarter inch deep, quickly becomes steam. The excess of water drips down on a lower set of similar plates. The saving in fuel is said to be considerable.

Balancing It.

A foreman was one day having a walk round the job just before knocking off time when he found Mike Cassidy putting on his coat in preparation for setting off home.

"Now, then, Mike," asked the foreman, "why are you getting ready to go now? It is half an hour before time."

"Well, foreman," answered Mike, "you see, it's like this 'ere. I have to get up at six o'clock to be here by seven o'clock, and so I did not think that there was any harm in getting ready half an hour before the time to go home."—London Answers.

WHY THE TERM "DOUGHBOY"?

Origin of That and Other Nicknames Applied to American Army Forces Somewhat Obscure.

The reason and origin of the nickname "doughboy" as applied to infantry soldiers in the American army baffle lexicographers and soldiers. Col. James A. Moss, a military author, famous for his writings on the customs and courtesies of the service, once undertook to explain the reason for calling foot troops "doughboys." Colonel Moss writes:

"Doughboy. The following versions are given of the derivation of the expression 'doughboy' as meaning infantryman:

"First. In olden times when infantrymen used to clean their white trimmings with pipe clay, if caught in the rain the whiting would run, forming a kind of dough; hence the sobriquet, 'doughboy.'

"Second. The tramp of infantrymen marching in the mud sounds as if their shoes were being worked and pressed in 'dough.'

"Third. From 'adobe' (mud), contracted 'dobie'; the idea being infantrymen are soldiers who have to march in the mud; hence the expressions used in the early sixties and seventies in referring to infantrymen, as 'dobie crushers,' 'dobie makers' and 'mud crushers.'

"Fourth. However, some infantrymen think they are called 'doughboys' because they are always 'kneaded' (needed), while other oldtime infantrymen think they are so called because they are the 'flower' (flour) of the army.

Probably loyal infantrymen think this for the same reason that good artillerymen say they are called 'wagon soldiers' because they are the ones who always deliver the goods.'"

WANT MORE THAN EFFICIENCY

Simplicity of "Home of Future" Draws Criticism From St. Louis Newspaper Writer.

We are told that "the new American home is now discernible. It is not the spacious ten or 12-room domicile, flanked with ample grounds and restful trees, that the pioneers knew. It is an efficiency home of one room, with concealed bed, a restaurant below and a common nursery. Everything is given over to experts. American love of ease now sits enthroned in this compact, one-room efficiency home." It seems to us that this efficiency home should be especially popular with adults and celibates; although where the community nursery—still quite infrequent—is provided with all its appurtenances for promoting play and a devoted "play nurse" in charge, it should also have a great attraction for families. Also from year to year we find improvements added to these new-fashioned city homes. It is true that society may be in a transition stage and that the conveniences emerge into the perfect domiciliary millennium when every adult human being will be housed in the stately marble halls dreamt of in "The Bohemian Girl," though minus the vassals and serfs. This free country is too free for that. It is a fact now that each individual, in many instances, is limited to 14 by 16 feet in his abode, with a few convenient accessory cubbies, but is that permanent? With all the resources of civilization, we hope for individual suites of parlors, eventually—large enough for a grand piano and in the center of each parlor, a tete-a-tete or a marble statue; or whatever you choose. Are we to be forever content with mere "efficiency"?—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

"TO EVERY MAN HIS GHOST"

Egyptians Firmly Believe That Each Individual Is Accompanied by Shadowy Counterpart.

"The Egyptians believe, even to this day, that every man has a ghost," says Prof. George A. Reisner, recently returned from Egypt with the Harvard expedition.

"Statues of several thousand years ago picture the Egyptian man with his ghost. But the woman wasn't considered important enough to have one. She was the man's wife, and that was considered sufficient honor for her.

"The men took very good care of their ghosts. At regular intervals they went to the room where the ghost was supposed to live and placed food offerings there for him to eat. These consisted of bread, onions and beer. It was necessary to repeat some magic phrases which had the effect of changing the physical nature of the food so that it would be fit for consumption by a spiritual being.

"When a man died he became identified with his ghost. On the inside of the Egyptian's coffin a black, zigzag line was traced to represent the course which the deceased must take through the underworld. At each turn of the path was a warning of the danger to be looked for at that particular point and directions for avoiding it."

Surveyors Aided by Wireless.

Wireless telegraph is to be used for the first time for geographical survey work by the Anglo-French military commission, which has been appointed to carry out the work of delimitating the frontier of the Soudan and French Equatorial Africa.

The commission will probably be absent for some two years, and for the greater part of its mission, will work in hitherto unexplored districts of Africa. They have to establish a frontier line 2,170 miles long, of which nearly 1,000 miles runs across the most arid part of the Sahara desert.

During the work of frontier delimitation the mission will receive at regular intervals every day wire time messages from Paris, which will enable them to fix their position with great accuracy. The mission has been jointly organized by the two governments.

What Did Mother Say?

In the parlor of the Tabernacle Christian church at Columbus there hangs a picture of the Rev. W. H. Book, pastor of the church. The picture was made more than a decade ago and shows Mr. Book with rather long, curly hair. Recently Henrietta Boyle, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Boyle, of Columbus, was in the room with her mother, the minister and a group of church members. She caught sight of the picture and regarded it intently. Her face became more and more serious as she looked. Finally, she spoke in an awe-stricken voice. "Mother," she said, "Is that a sure enough photograph of Abraham?"—Indianapolis News.

Long Drawn Out Kansas Farm.

The sale of a strip of land five feet wide and two miles long is unusual and becomes a matter of record that has not been equaled in this country. The land lies along the Meriden road north of Salina. It is the intention to set out trees to shade the driveway of the Meriden road through the county, making the widening of this particular part of the road necessary. The land purchased by the county totals thirty-one acres.—Salina News in Toledo Capital.

Don't forget the Short Course at St. Joe next week.

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174
For Sale at your Dealer
Made in five grades
ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND
EAGLE MIKADO
EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

"Under Blue Skies,"
A 4-Act Comedy Drama, given by the St. Joe Dramatic Co.,
MON. Evening, FEB. 20
at 7:30
WIDNEY OPERA HOUSE
ADMISSION 25 and 35 cents
[illegible]
IT CAN'T BE BEAT

Huber Opera House
Hicksville, Ohio
ON Monday FEB. 20 ONE Night Only
The BIG Musical Comedy Sensation
"Bringing up Father in Wall Street"
The Laugh Show of the World.
30 PEOPLE--Mostly Girls
CAR LOAD OF SCENERY.
NOT A MOVING PICTURE
Prices: 25c, 50c, 75c, $1.00
War Tax Extra. Seats now on sale at Murphy's Jewelry Store.
Note---Curtain rises at 8:30. No one seated during an act.

Constipation
THERE IS NOTHING equal to Chamberlain's Tablets for constipation. When the proper dose is taken their action is so agreeable and so natural that you do not realize that it is the effect of a medicine. These tablets possess tonic properties that aid in establishing a natural and regular action of the bowels. Chamberlain's Tablets have cured many cases of chronic constipation.
Chamberlain's Tablets

BEDTIME STORIES for the Children
CURRENT EVENTS and EDITORIALS
STORIES and HOME HELPS for Mother for ALL
Serials and 100 Features
Live Boys always like the things to DO and to MAKE and STORIES of ADVENTURE and SPORT

52 issues a year—not 12
Start a year Today
The Youth's Companion
should be in every home which demands "only the Best." Live boys and girls, and their fathers and mothers, always find The Companion
Reliable, Entertaining and Up-to-Date.
Hundreds of Short Stories, Serial Stories, Editorials, Articles, Poetry, Nature and Science, Current Events, Doctor's Corner, Receipts, Stamps to Stick, Games, Sports, Puzzles, "How-to-Make" Pages, Suggestions for Home Efficiency and Economy.
Costs LESS THAN Five Cents a Week
OFFER No. 1
1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues for 1922
2. All remaining Weekly 1921 issues; also
3. The 1922 Companion Home Calendar
All for $2.50
OFFER A
1. The Youth's Companion for 1922 . . . . $2.50
Including all of Offer No. 1
2. McCall's Magazine $1.00
The best Fashion Magazine for women readers
All for $3.00
Check your choice and send this coupon with your remittance to the PUBLISHERS OF THIS PAPER, or to THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.
SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE

Every Boy Wants It
If you could realize how much that boy of yours, or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well-balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through—and its influence is of the best.
THE AMERICAN BOY
"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"
In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.
Price Reduced
THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. [illegible]
[illegible]

THE ST. JOE NEWS, ST. JOE, INDIANA

Official Visit

Recently we visited the Irene Byron Sanitorium in interest of the DeKalb county patients. We have 11 beds occupied at this time—six from Auburn, four from Garrett, and one from St. Joe.

The patients are doing well—of the five children from Auburn, three will prouably be sent home in the Spring as arrested cases. Patients are contented and pleased with the treatment. The aim of the management is to make the patients content and happy.

Two young farmers, one from Wilmington and one from Spencer townships, were patients for about four months last summer, and they are home now practically cured They are feeling fine and well pleased that they were saved from a sure death from tuberculosis.

Dr. Eric Crull, Superintendent, was present at the time of our visit Dr. Croll has a vision of making Irene Byron Sanitorium the greatest and most uptodate T.B sanitorium in the U.S. DeKalb county should be grateful for such an opportunity to take care of those who are unfortunate to be afflcted with this most dreaded and insiduous disease.

J. Y. W. McClellan,
Official Visitor.

Christian Church Notes

Preaching services were very well attended Sunday evening The pastor, R. B. Daily, will preach next Sunday morning.

The Martha Society will meet Thursday afternoon. There will be work, so bring thimbles and shears.

Thursday evening, A. C. Shaw, pastor of the Auburn Church of Christ, will give an illustrated lecture and songs, ninty pictures will be shown. This will be an interesting and instructive lecture and the house should be filled. A free will offering will be taken.

A very interesting Workers Conference was held immediatly after Communion, Sunday morning, H. C. Borthwick had charge of the educational part of the program, he being superintendent of this department. Mrs. Belle Woodcox gave a talk on "Personal Evangelism" and Mrs. Eva Sheffer talked on "Missions," both being very interesting. Mr. Borthwick then gave an illustrated talk on the influence "The teacher has on the mind and heart of the pupil." Mrs. Ada Bassett had charge of the business period and several things were suggested for the betterment of the school. Nearly the entire school remained for this conference. These conferences will be held regularly each month the first Sunday morning on which no preaching occurrs. Reports from the various departments will be given next month.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Many foreign countries are clamoring for Tanlac. Its fame is world-wide. Sold by Sheffer.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Harry Morr, of Chicago, was at home visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Morr of Concord, Saturday and Sunday.

Floyd Ridgway and mother, Mrs. Belle Ridgway, were Sunday dinner guests of Grover Curie and family.

Spencer Township Farmers' Federation will meet at the Coburntown school house, Friday evening, Feb. 17, at 7:30. Special business for members.

Mrs. J. C. F. Abel attended the funeral of her [illegible] mother, Mrs. [illegible] held Thursday at [illegible] and Mrs. [illegible] Thursday [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] Peru.

Patterson-Fletcher Co's

Sensational Sale

of

Fine Cothing, Odd Trousers and Furnishings

Offers the Greatest Values Ever Given by This Store

Our Entire Stock of Overcoats

Will Go at These Prices

$10, $15, $19.50, $24.50, $29.50

and Hart Schaffner & Marx Overcoats

$35, $45, $55

The Finest Overcoats That Money Will Buy

Over 600 Suits at four prices $14.50, $19.50, $24.50, $29.50

Sensational Specials for the Workingman

100 pairs of $3.00 wool filled Kentucky Jean Trousers are marked	$1.75
200 pairs of Kalamazoo $4.00 Worsted Trousers aremarked at	$2.00
250 pairs of Kalamazoo $4.00 Worsted and good weight All-Wool Trousers are marked	$2.50
250 pairs of Reading $3.50 heavy weight Trousers are marked at	$2.50
130 pairs of Kalamazoo Corduroy Trousers are marked	$3.50
500 pairs of Kalamazoo $6.00 and $6.50 Worsted and Scotch Trousers are marked	$4.00
100 pairs of Kalamazoo $5.50 pure Worsted Blue Serge are marked	$4.00
450 pairs of Kalamazoo $7.00 and $7.50 Worsted, Scotch and Cassimere are marked	$5.00
100 pairs of Kalamazoo famous $6.00 Gray Serge Trousers are marked	$5.00
100 pairs of Kalamazoo $6.50 and $7.00 Blue Serge Trousers are marked	$5.00
Over 800 pairs of the Kalamazoo finest Trousers are marked at	$6.50 and $8.50
And the choice of any of our Hart Schaffner & Marx Trousers at	$9.75

All Sizes 27 Waist to 56—We Can Fit You!

25 dozen $2.50 Flannel Shirts, sizes 14 to 20, are marked	$1.95
Phoenix and Rauh Mac Railroad Shirts with two separate collars are marked	$1.25
Signal Railroad Shirts are	$1.75
200 dozen of the famous Moore Work Shirts with patent sleeves are	75c
50 dozen Blue Work Shirts are marked	59c
Painters' White Overalls are	85c
60 dozen White Back Overalls, in all sizes up to 50, are	$1.00
And the "Winona" and "Carrhartt" 220 White Back Overalls are	$1.50

Underwear

At These Low Prices

Our buyer took over 400 dozen suits of Wilson Brothers fine wool and cotton underwear. 150 dozen of a $5.00 union suit we were told might occasionally have a garment with a little oil spot. We took no chances and had them all stamped seconds and offer them to you at $1.60 and will say if you find one with an oil spot, do not keep it.

125 DOZEN
Of Wilson Brothers finest $6 worsted and cotton union suits will be sold at $3.50.

Wilson Bros. $1.50 Combed Yarn Cotton Ribbed SHIRTS and DRAWERS
90c
a Garment, or $1.75 the Suit

Hosiery

200 Dozen 50c WOOL HOSE Will be Sold at 29c a Pair
Or 4 Pair for $1.00

20 Dozen $1.50 WILSON BROS. FANCY HOSE Will Go at
49c

40 Dozen 75c Silk and Fiber HOSE Slightly Imperfect
35c
Or 3 Pair for $1.00

25 [illegible] Wilson Bros. [illegible] Wool HOSE
3 Pair for $2.00

Shirts

At Four Special Prices

15 Dozen TUB SILK SHIRTS While They Last
$2.95

20 Dozen SILK SHIRTS Will be Sold at
$3.95

40 Dozen $1.50, $2.00 and $2.50 SHIRTS
95c

30 Dozen $3.00, $3.50 and $4.00 SHIRTS
$1.95

[illegible] dozen "[illegible]" [illegible] Union Suits	$1.45
[illegible] Wilson Bros. $1.50 Light Weight Union Suits	95c
Wilson Bros. $1.50 White [illegible] Union Suits	95c
[illegible] Dozen $2 All-Silk Four-in-Hand Ties, will go at	$1.15
[illegible] dozen colored border and initial Handkerchiefs, [illegible]	25c
[illegible]	$1.15

PATTERSON-FLETCHER CO.

FEBRUARY

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI | ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, FEB. 23, 1922 | NO. 8

—WHY—

PAY HIGH PRICES?

When you can buy

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suits at $26.25
Club Clothes at .... $10 to 18.75
Overcoats at .... $10 to 25.00
Heavy Cotton Underwear (the suit) at $1.15
Heavy Cotton Sweaters, with collar at 95c
Solid Leather Shoes at $2.45
Heavy Blue Work Shirts at 65c
Sheep Skin Coats at $6.00

All our Winter Clothing and Underwear at 1-4 OFF

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

The Coal That gives satisfaction is the COAL to buy. Every pound of our Hocking Valley and Buffalo White Ash is a pound of satisfaction. There are cheaper Coals but not as satisfactory. Order now and get the Best that money will buy.

Tankage--Cotton Seed Meal--Oil Meal--Bran and Middlinfis--Armour's Hog and Stock Feeds.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Be Careful and Systematic!

People who pay their bills by check get a reputation for being careful and systematic in their business dealings. Such a reputation means much in the establishment of credit. It costs no more to pay your money out by check than it does to use the hard cash, and you have the advantage of having it in a place that is absolutely safe.

To have MONEY in the bank is of itself a valuable asset in the establishment of credit, [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Has Entertaining Program

Last Friday evening at the St. Joe school building, the Concord township Farmers' Federation held their monthly meeting. And instead of it being of the usual get-together-and-talk-and plan nature a fine program had been arranged by the president, F. E. Johnson, and given to a large crowd of both country and town folks.

The weather was fine, the lights were on, (for once,) and everything favored people to come and fill every seat and all standing room in the large assembly hall of the building. Even County Agent Repp, of Auburn, was present, and people interested in current farm problems from joining townships came to get something worth while.

The program, as it was so splendidly rendered, showed that much time and effort had been spent in preparing it, both on the part of the entertainment committee for arranging the program and those who took part in it. Pres. Johnson was in charge. The St. Joe Choral Society, under the leadership of Mrs. Roy Koch, is to be complimented and thanked for the way it helped make this meeting a great success in its some three or four selections of singing; also the Male quartette and the Ladies quartette for their parts; Mrs. H. C. Borthwick and Miss Hilda Koch for their solos; Mr. H. M. Widney for his short address on "The Signs of the Times" in which he brought out many facts pretaining to the many perplexing problems of the farmer, some of which the federal law-makers are now wrestling with down at Washington; H. O. Waltz, Carl Carpenter and Co. Agt. Repp for their short talks; Miss Marguerite Hamilton for her recitations; Miss Elma Lawson for her recitations also; and Miss Borthwick for her recitation on Farmers' Federation, the latter part of which was in the way of a toast to President Johnson, and which is worth printing. It runs:

So a toast to Mr. Johnson,
Loyal, faithful, real true blue,
President of Concord township;
We extend our thanks to you.
May your life be long and happy,
Friend and foe alike behave.
May you live to eat the rooster
That goes scratching on your grave.

Of course to this Mr. Johnson gave a few remarks in response. Remarks were asked for and few minutes of discussion followed. Then it was announced that all were invited to the domestic science room in the basement, where refreshments would be served. All accepted the invitation and they found sandwiches, ice cream, wafers and coffee all prepared and ready to be served by the ladies.

This certainly was a rare treat and Mr. Johnson promises that more such enthusiastic and helpful meetings are to follow. More farmers should learn of the good of the Farmers' Federation, become active members, and help put to the front some of the good issues the organisation is trying to have considered.

St. Joe High Defeats Auburn

The local high school basket ball team defeated the Auburn high school team in a game Saturday night on the local court. It was a hotly contested game from start to finish, full of thrills and excitement.

Auburn came with its full squad of men, fifteen in number, prepared to win if the number of players counted any thing. The game started of with a snap and the score-keeper was soon registering points for the home team. In the second minute of the game, Wade, center for St. Joe, was compelled to call time for a sprained ankle. But, although, his ankle pained him fearfully, after it had been tightly bandaged, he went back to the pivot and figured strong with his team. Auburn was unable to gain the lead or even make [illegible] tell anything straight. He blamed their loss on the poor light, small gym floor, and low ceiling, but as sure as anything the local floor is ever point as good as the Auburn floor except that it is not new. He further stated that he run in all substitutes, saving all his good men for some time in the future, but here is the facts. Auburn played the best men they had—but that isn't saying much. The only reason evident for their making so many substitutions was that they only had one or two men who are able to play 40 minutes of hard playing like they were forced to do here last Saturday night.

[illegible]

Life of Wm. Orr

William Orr lived in Dwight, Ill., about seventeen years ago. For two years he lived with his brother, George Orr, deceased, and family in Dwight. Prior to that time he lived on his farm in Round Grove township now owned by Mr. C. A. Scott. He farmed many years in Round Grove township. For several years he was connected with the firm of George Orr & Company, buying grain at Wilson, Ill. He and his brother, George Orr, built the first elevator at Wilson.

Deceased made a visit here last December. He remained five days to visit relatives and friends. At that time he was in good health and cheerful spirits.

He was a highly respected citizen by all who knew him. Quiet, contented and peaceful he easily made friends with all acquaintances.

Since his visit here in December his health had not been so good. He had a stroke of paralysis some years ago and had never been in the best of health since although he complained little of ill feeling. He was 70 years of age and never married.

A half-brother, Chares Miller, living at Tyrell, Ohio, was notified of his brothers fate but being ill was unable to go to Spencerville, Ind., or attend the funeral services.

The remains were brought here for burial, arriving over the Alton, Thursday noon.

Funeral services were held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Jane Orr.

County Road Meeting

A conference between the county commissioners of DeKalb county and the township trustees was held in Auburn Thursday to make a road building program for the year that will obtain the best results for the county.

Commissioner Lloyd W. Yeiser explained that the more heavily traveled roads will require more work than others, but that the road superintendent will endeavor to make the specifications as uniform as possible throughout the county. Mr. Yeiser commented that a considerable part of the county road fund will be used to maintain the county roads, as there is no use to build roads unless they are properly maintained; and that the entire $75,000 available this year could be used in that way, and not a cent wasted.

Percy A. Walker and Ross Abel, trustees of Spencer and Newville townships, proposed a county road east and west through their townships. Mr. Walker said much of the work of grading would be donated.

Frank R. Bowman, trustee of Concord township, could not be present, but Mr. Yeiser suggested that a three-mile link is needed in Concord to give residents of the northeast part of the county an outlet to Fort Wayne, connecting with the Shutt and Leighty road.

Club Guest Night

[illegible] evening, February 15, the [illegible] of St. Joe entertained [illegible]

[illegible]

Sechler, Curie, Koch

The program ended with a very realistic and affecting "Pageant of Life," consisting of living pictures, portrayed by sketches of verse and music. A very delicious buffet luncheon was then served in two courses.

The "Heart" and "Hatchet" was a pleasing feature of the ice cream and cake. The centerpiece and favors were very artistic and cleverly designed and lent to the beauty of the table appointments.

The evenings program was much appreciated, and we think all could agree with the poet in these lines:

A day for toil, an hour for sport
But for friends, life is too short.
(Emerson)

ST. JOE GARAGE-Boost St. Joe

IT'S HIGH TIME

you were making arrangements to have your automobile overhauled if you expect to get the maximum amount of pleasure and satisfaction the coming spring and summer seasons.

Delays always means disappointment. No one can tell just what conditions exist until the working parts of your automobile have been examined. Some may be broken. Some worn out. In either case they must be replaced. This requires time and the amount of it depends, to a large extent, on the model of your automobile.

These blustery days are just the days to do "waiting" jobs. Later when the sun will be shining every day, you'll be ready. A modern shop and competent workmen await your pleasure.

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 95.

6 per ct.

Money to Lend on Farms

LOANS to be secured by First Mortgage for not to exceed 40% value of land alone, excluding improvements.

LOANS for more than 40% of land value at 7%

Call at our office for complete information about our conditions and terms, which are attractive.

The Straus Brothers Company,

LIGONIER, INDIANA.
Established 1860

St. Joe High School Notes.

FRESHMEN.

The Algebra class have now started work on fractions.

The Freshmen devoted their English period Monday morning to the study of parlimentary rules in regard to business meetings. We expect to conduct our class meetings with more system from now on.

The mechanical drawing class are making some good drawings. H. M.

SOPHOMORE.

The Sophomore English class has [illegible] the study of the classic, "[illegible]." It has proven a very interesting study.

[illegible]

"Blue Monday" was made still more blue by an unexpected test in English. J. K.

SENIOR.

Strenous efforts are being made for the publication of an annual this year by the Senior class. Subscription blanks are being circulated throughout the community for assignment. We solicit your help and cooperation.

The fourth number of the lecture course will be given on Wednesday evening, Mar. 1, at the Methodist church. The entertainment will be given by "The Schubert Ladies' Quartet." Remember the date, March 1st.

Spelling grades for the past week:

Seventh year, 98.8
Eighth year, 95.2
Fifth year, 90.4
Sophomores, 89
Freshmen, 88
Sixth grade, 86.06%
Seniors, 77.2-3
Juniors, 77.1-13

Guardians Named.

James Farver was recently appointed guardian of Jno W. Means. Mr. Means is 71 years old and is permanently disabled because of paralysis.

In making the appointment of a guardian, Judge Dan M Link acted upon a petition filed by Irene M. [illegible], whose attorney is J. E. [illegible]. Mr. Means owns personal property of the value of [illegible]

New Frocks for the Mid-Season

There is no one moment in the course of a whole year when a new, fresh frock looks more delightful than it does just about now, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times. That is because, perhaps, it stands in a class by itself. All the nice, provident, thorough-going people have their winter wardrobes and are wearing them, and are satisfied with them. They look forward to spring—the correct time to wear new clothes. But here and there one sees a totally new frock that suits the season, has a new note of design, and that has given an unmistakable inspiration to its wearer.

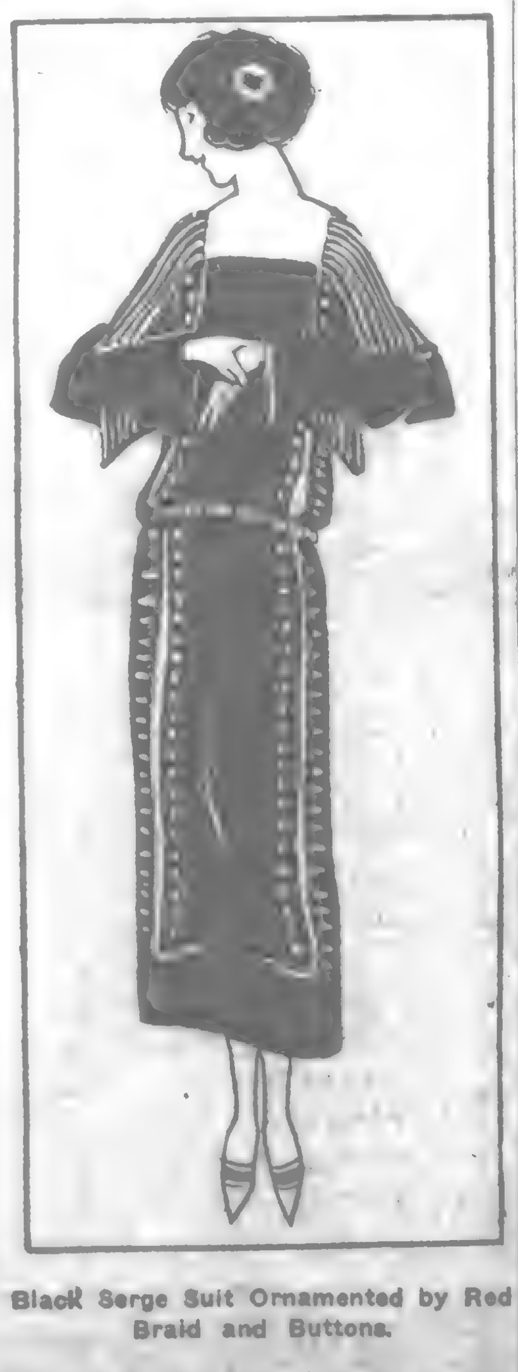
About these midseason gowns there is also that accentuated note of individuality which the height-of-the-season creations sometimes lack. These in-between affairs are constructed with a certain single purpose in view. They are done without the press of time behind them. They show the result of more leisure. They are more expressive in consequence.

The frocks now, at this particular moment, being created have much about them that is new, while in other respects they are so faithful to the tradition of the last five years that one wonders how they can keep up the pace. But it is astonishing how far detail can go to change utterly the appearance of a frock. The silhouette for the most part remains as it has been. Of course, we have the elongated lines—lengthened as far as the individuality of the figure will permit. But in other respects the large, outlines of the frock are essentially the same.

Distinguished by Individuality.

Among recent importations are new models distinguished by their pronounced individuality. The outlines of them are straight and comparatively long, but the trimmings are the fine points of interest. The cut of the sleeves (for all sleeves are expressionful these days), the arrangement of the facings and outside edge trimmings, the spots of embroidery, the rows of buttons all contribute to that effect of novelty for which all the woman world is eternally searching, no matter how individuals among the sex may protest to the contrary.

The black dress is one of those daytime dresses made of serge. And an interesting point is that the French designers are using a great deal of black serge just now, instead of the long overworked dark blue. This dress is trimmed with red braid and red buttons in a most effective manner. In the places where the skirt and bodice are slashed there are bindings of the braid and long, close rows of the buttons. Over the shoulders and inserted in the cuffs are more patterns of the narrow braid, and the belt is one of those fascinating combinations of rings of steel, squares of red leather and infinitesimal bits of chain banded together.



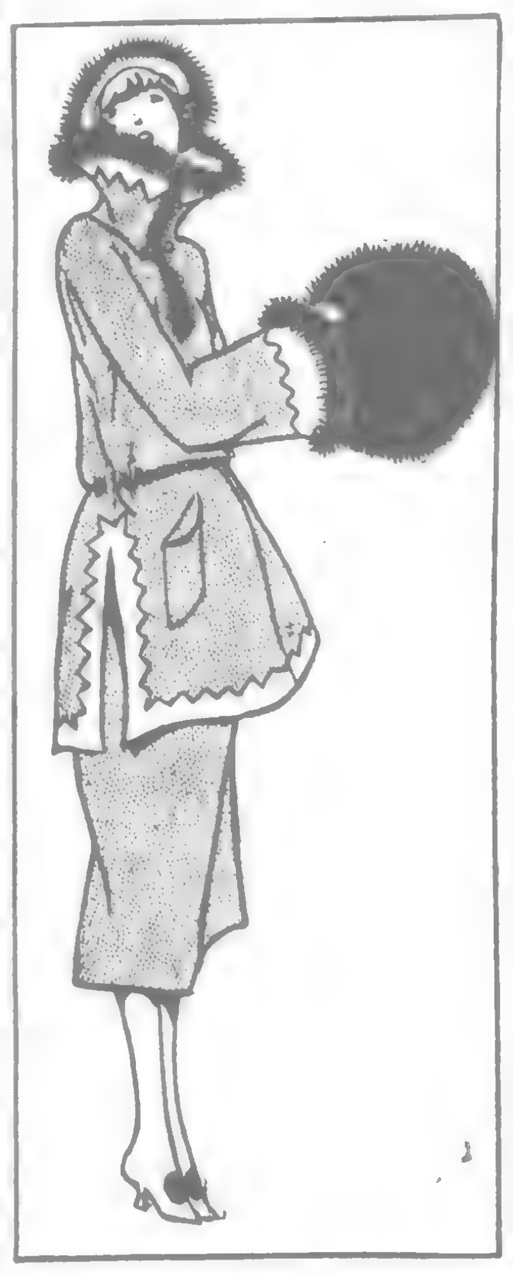
Black Serge Suit Ornamented by Red Braid and Buttons.

The process of applying red to a dark wool frock is not one easy of accomplishment. But the French are the people who know how to practice just enough restraint in the thing to make the dress a work of art. If there had been one-quarter of a yard more of red upon this frock its style would have been spoiled. The stopping place was reached just as the maximum of effect had been gained.

This dress is of the one-piece variety in its latest [illegible]. There is the long waist, the longer [illegible] [illegible] three features are [illegible] [illegible] during the last season, but [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] them, too. And now for a season in which we shall demonstrate our preferences by producing dresses that more and more perfect the lines which have made themselves popular with the feminine public.

The suit has suffered a decline which it does not at all like. This sort of garment has been accustomed to be the first choice of woman for so many seasons that it now resents being pushed into the background as a secondary consideration, after the coat and dress have had their fling.

The suit shows a tendency to step out of the hackneyed class, and to demonstrate itself an individual garment along with all the rest of the productions of the season. The fabric used is a heavy gray wool perlaine, which really is a sort of glorified cheviot, very wooly and thick. Then the border, which is the mark of distinction, is done in a pattern cut out of red flannel and edged with a banding of narrow black fur. It competes most unsatisfactorily, beyond a doubt, with any dress or coat of the day, and there is no denying the fact that, for some women and for some occasions, the suit is the very best sort of attire that can be found.



Suit of Gray Perlaine Trimmed With Border of Red.

Moreover, the suit is peculiarly becoming—especially this sort of dressy French suit. There is a slimness and a chic about it which cannot be approached by any other combination of outdoor clothes. And there are certain women, no matter what the general trend of fashion may be, who will stick to this expression through every change.

Has Full and Loose Sleeves.

This suit has the full and loose sleeves which characterize the latest frocks. It has the rather long peplum for the coat, which brings it into the street-dress class, and it has the high collar which, most certainly, is one of the distinguished features of the outdoor dresses of the present time.

They say that in Paris the muff has been revived and received with great avidity this winter season. If so, we may look for it as a salient part of our next winter's fashions. Certainly it adds a touch to a suit of this sort which cannot be gained in any other way, and it provides, too, that suggestion of warmth without which the suit would be totally impractical.

Another model is a street dress, or coat dress, as they are sometimes called. It is made from a checked blue and red velour with patches of embroidery for trimming. The background of the material is a dark blue, and then the check of red runs through it outlined by a fine pin stripe. The embroidery is done with dark, rich tones upon a blue background.

The cuffs on this dress are its center of interest, for they give that width to the silhouette at the place where it is most necessary if the model is to take a notable place in the fashions of the day. Sleeves of this character are more or less hard to manage gracefully, but when one acquires the trick of the thing the result more than pays for the trouble involved in learning. Except with a privileged few, the management of big sleeves does not come as a natural born right. More clumsiness can be exhibited in this respect than in many others. But once their handling has become a secure thing in one's mind why then there follows a satisfaction in wearing the garment which is a total surprise.

[illegible]

[illegible]

GOOD ROADS

TO EXPEDITE ROAD BUILDING

Bureau of Public Roads Prepared to Approve Projects Without Unnecessary Delay.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

To relieve the unemployment situation, the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, is prepared to do everything possible to expedite federal-aid road-building projects that can provide work or that will shorten the season of inactivity in road building in the northern states. Projects will be approved without delay for the building of roads which the states and the district engineers of the department agree will come within the federal-aid program.

There is available at the present time an unexpended balance from the old federal-aid appropriation of $53,702,000 in federal-aid funds yet to be apportioned among the states. In addition, under the law passed November 9 last, the sum of $24,375,000 became available at once and there also became available January 1, $48,750,000, a total of $126,827,000.

In approving projects under the recent law the department will keep uppermost in mind the provision of the 1921 law which states that: "the secretary of agriculture shall give preference to such projects as will expedite the completion of an adequate and connected system of highways, interstate in character." At the same time the importance of local traffic will not be minimized. To care for that class of traffic will always be in general, the first objective of highway improvement. Wherever possible a choice of highway will be made which, regardless of the order of improvement, will eventually join into a well-conceived network, crossing both county and state boundaries. Thus, while the immediate needs of a state or district may determine priority of construction, each new link will bring nearer the completion of the system as a whole.

Each district engineer of the department is fully informed as to the procedure for interim projects, which is so simplified that if important projects are chosen in good faith there will be no delay in obtaining approval for them.

Plans for the coming road-building season are under preliminary consideration. In the western states the major lines of highways will be fixed largely by topography. In many instances long routes will be determined by single strategic points, such as a mountain pass. Because of this necessity, the department is desirous of having the states affected reach agreements as to their plans which will be based on the future service that is to be rendered, not only to the local but also to the interstate and national traffic.

A Country Road Greatly in Need of Attention.

The department hopes that it will not be required to take over a single mile of highway for maintenance. That is the function of the state, once the road is built with the aid of federal funds. But the responsibility for maintenance is imposed by the law upon the department and this provision of the law will be enforced to the letter.

The department will not consider that the states are living up to the maintenance requirements of the act until they establish a system of patrol of some form that places direct and continuous responsibility upon some one for the condition of each mile of road. The word "patrol" is not used in the technical sense to distinguish it from the so-called "gang" system; but rather to designate the proper combination of patrol and gang systems to meet the particular requirements of each state.

The department will proceed under the provisions of the act on the assumption that each state will [illegible] the mutual [illegible] imposed upon the state and [illegible] the federal organizations and will bring its operations at once into harmony with all its provisions.

STRIVE TO MAKE ROADS SAFE

[illegible]

[illegible]

True Detective Stories

MASTER CRIMINAL

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

SHORTLY after Allan Pinkerton founded the detective agency which was destined to be feared by so many criminals, a number of banks and financial institutions throughout the country were made the victims of a particularly clever gang of crooks headed by Walter Eastman Sheridan, the man whom Pinkerton in his memoirs declares was the cleverest criminal he ever tracked.

The operations of the Sheridan organization were marked by a simplicity which was almost startling. Their favorite trick was to plant one of their members in a line leading to the window of the receiving teller of a prominent bank shortly before the closing hour. The man so planted would take up a position behind someone who held in his hands a large roll of bills, and would wait until the depositor had almost reached the window. Then he would tap him on the shoulder, call his attention to a bill which "he had dropped on the floor," and the man would naturally stoop to pick it up, in nine cases out of ten placing his money on the teller's shelf as he bent over. The criminal would then snatch the money and make off.

While the hauls secured in this manner were, of course, of varying sizes, Sheridan and his men picked up $75,000 as the result of less than five minutes' work at a Baltimore bank.

After several other coups of a similar nature, Sheridan tried the same game at the First National bank of Springfield, Ill., but was arrested. He promptly skipped his bail, however, and the next that Pinkerton heard of him was when he assisted at the robbery of a Cleveland bank which netted the gang some $40,000. This was followed by a raid upon the Mechanics' bank of Scranton, Pa., where Sheridan and one of his men got away with $30,000 worth of negotiable bonds.

His next exploit—one which took more than four months of careful planning—was the looting of the Falls City Tobacco bank in Louisville, Ky., when upwards of $300,000 was secured.

As a result of these operations, together with the shrewd manner in which he had invested his money, Sheridan was worth fully $250,000.

Feeling certain that his past exploits had left no clue to his connection with the robberies, and having obtained his acquittal of the only charge on which he had been arrested, Sheridan joined in a series of the most gigantic frauds ever known in America—the issuance of bonds purporting to be worth more than $5,000,000. These forgeries were so cleverly executed as to deceive even the officers of the companies involved, and the discovery of the swindle ruined scores of Wall street brokers and private investors.

On the eve of the day on which the bubble burst, Sheridan quietly cashed all his assets, closed his office at No. 60 Broadway, and sailed for Belgium, which at that time provided a safe refuge from extradition. Had he remained there, he would have died a free man. But he could not resist the lure of gambling with the law, and he slipped back into America under the name of William A. Stewart, establishing himself in business in Denver, and finally opening a bank of his own in Rosita, Colo.

Even up to this time Pinkerton had no idea that the master criminal had returned to the states. Pinkerton, however, chanced to have business which carried him into the mining districts of Colorado, and it was on the streets of Denver that he came face to face with the man whom he was certain was Sheridan.

Investigation developed the fact that "Stewart" had been leading an apparently upright and honest life, and beyond his arrival in Denver shortly after Sheridan had left Brussels, there was nothing to connect him with the bank robber and bond forger.

Realizing that identification under the circumstances would be extremely difficult, Pinkerton determined to resort to a ruse which would serve a double purpose—that of proving whether Stewart and Sheridan were one and the same man, and at the same time implicating him, if guilty, in the planning of a new crime. Accordingly, Pinkerton sent two of his best men to Colorado with instructions to make the acquaintance of the bank president at Rosita, and finally to lay before him the details of a huge swindle which they were supposed to be planning.

"If Stewart is really honest," argued the detective, "he will not listen to such a proposal. But if he is the man I think he is, he will not be able to resist the bait, and will come to [illegible] in the fraud."

[illegible]

WRIGLEY'S

AFTER EVERY MEAL

Select your food wisely, chew it well, and—use WRIGLEY'S after every meal.

Your stomach will thank you.

It is both a benefit and a treat—good, and good for you.

And, best of all, the cost is small.

TRY THIS NEW ONE

Sugar jacket "melts in your mouth" and gum center remains to give you all the usual Wrigley's benefits.

C40

WRIGLEY'S
P.K
CHEWING SWEET
WRIGLEY'S
JUICY FRUIT
CHEWING GUM
WRIGLEY'S
SPEARMINT
THE PERFECT GUM
MINT LEAF FLAVOR
Save the Wrappers
WRIGLEY'S
DOUBLEMINT
CHEWING GUM
PEPPERMINT
Wrigley's Wrappers are
UNITED COUPONS
Good for Valuable Premiums

Unromantic Age.

"Remember when you used to whisper sweet nothings in your girl's ear?"

"Yes; she couldn't hear them now for her ear puffs; it takes the toot of a waiting automobile to attract a girl's attention nowadays."—Boston Transcript.

Fresh, sweet, white, dainty clothes for baby, if you use Red Cross Ball Blue. Never streaks or injures them. All good grocers sell it.—Advertisement.

It is usually the alimony a man has to pay that makes him figure in a divorce suit.

A face that cannot smile is seldom worth while.

Scotch Thrift.

Donald MacTavish lay a-dying. He had been all day about it, and his wife, who had watched with patient expectancy since early morn, began to feel the call of her neglected household duties.

"Aweel, Don," she said, as she moved the light to the table by his bed. "I mus' gang along to the kitchen the noo. Ye'll no be takin' yer departure afore I come back. But if ye should, ye'll not forget to blow out the candle afore ye dee, will ye?"—Pictorial Review.

The honeymoon often ends with the groom's last quarter.

No girl appreciates a lover who is unable to hold his own.

Western Canada Offers Health and Wealth

and has brought contentment and happiness to thousands of home seekers and their families who have settled on her FREE homesteads or bought land at attractive prices. They have established their own homes and secured prosperity and independence.

In the great grain-growing sections of the prairie provinces there is still to be had on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in Western Canada have raised crops in a single [illegible] worth more than the whole cost of their land. Healthful climate, good neighbors, churches, schools, rural telephone, excellent markets and shipping facilities. The climate and soil offer inducements for almost every branch of agriculture. The advantages for

Dairying, Mixed Farming and Stock Raising make a tremendous appeal to industrious settlers wishing to improve their circumstances.

For illustrated literature, maps, description of farm opportunities in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, reduced railway rates, etc., write

W. S. NETHERY, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, Ohio; M. J. JOHNSTONE, 215 Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Indiana

Authorized Agent, Dept. of Immigration and Colonization, Dominion of Canada

160 ACRE FARMS
FREE

Growing Children

are often troubled with Feverishness, Constipation, Headache, Stomach troubles, Teething disorders and Worms. At such times thousands of Mothers use and find they give certain relief. They tend to [illegible]. [illegible] the stomach [illegible] and give healthful sleep. Easy to give and [illegible]. Used by Mothers for over 30 years.

MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS for CHILDREN

[illegible] Substitute for [illegible]

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.Advertisement

Reason In His Madness.

"John, your face looks terribly battered up," said the teacher to John, age seven. "You haven't been fighting on the way to school, have you?" she inquired.

"No," said John, "we moved yesterday and I had to carry the cat."

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Unkind Supposition.

Jud Tunkins says the man who started the story about George Washington not being able to tell a falsehood was probably looking for some kind of an appointment under Washington's administration.

DYED HER SKIRT, DRESS, SWEATER AND DRAPERIES WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her worn, shabby dresses, skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything, even if she has never dyed before. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is sure because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to spot, fade, streak or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.—advertisement.

Had the Chance, All Right.

"It's lucky dar wasn' no submarines when Noah sailed de ark," said Uncle Eben. "If dey wus some o' dem wicked neighbors would have sent one out an' blowed up de intire animal kingdom."

A Beautiful Woman is Always a Well Woman

Springfield, Ohio—"I wish to say a few words in regard to Dr. Pierce's medicines. I was troubled with feminine disorders, and was generally rundown. Every one thought I would have tuberculosis. I had a cough and fainting spells. Thru my sister I heard of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Golden Medical Discovery. I took them faithfully and gradually I gained. My cough disappeared and I put on flesh and got strong again. I took no other medicine at the time. I am perfectly satisfied with Dr. Pierce's medicines and can say they can be relied upon."—Mrs. Anna Rheinheimer, 725 W. Main St.

Dr. Pierce's famous remedies can be procured of your neighborhood druggist in tablets or liquid, and you can have confidential medical advice free by writing Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

NR

TONIGHT,

Tomorrow Alright

[illegible]

Seen and Heard In Indiana

Indianapolis.—A health exposition is to be held in Indianapolis in May, at which exhibits will be presented by more than 100 health education organizations throughout the United States.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray has reappointed John L. Moorman, of Knox, to the board of trustees of the State Prison and Mrs. Nevada M. Duncan, of Cloverdale, to the board of trustees of the State Sanatorium. Mrs. Duncan is the wife of Estes Duncan, state senator, who now is secretary of the board of trustees of the state teachers' pension fund.

Indianapolis.—Plans for the state convention of the Indiana League of Women Voters were made at the February meeting of the board of directors at Indianapolis. The dates were changed to May 9, 10 and 11. It will be held at Terre Haute. A meeting of the board of directors Tuesday afternoon, May 9, will precede the formal opening Tuesday evening, when national speakers will be present.

Lafayette.—Indiana ranks twelfth in total number of cattle and tenth in purebred registered dairy cattle in the United States. There are 946,401 dairy cattle in Indiana, of which 727,000 are of milking age. There are 21,115 purebred registered dairy cattle, or 2.33 per cent of all dairy cattle in the state. In the north central states, including Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin there are 289,859 purebred registered dairy cattle, which is 5.8 per cent of the total number of dairy cattle listed.

Connersville.—Asserting that the financial situation in the United States does not justify at present the giving of a bonus to former soldiers of the World war, the Fayette county farm bureau adopted a resolution opposing the plan. The action was taken at a county conference in Connersville of the officials of all township units and they also advised a 30 per cent reduction in the appraised valuation of farm land and expressed a determination to bring about a reduction in taxes.

Indianapolis.—Development of agricultural interests in southern Indiana will be discussed at a conference of farmers of five counties with Governor McCray and representatives of Purdue university at Huntingburg, February 28. Farmers from Crawford, Perry, Wardick, Dubois and Pike counties will attend the meeting. The governor has asked the advisory committee of the Purdue experiment station to give special attention to the needs of farmers in southern Indiana. Development of the poultry and dairy interests will be discussed at the meeting. A proposal for the university to establish model farms in the district will also be considered.

Petersburg.—Ideal sugar water weather has caused a number of camps in Pike county to open. This season's output is expected to be much larger than last year's run. A camp, three miles west of Petersburg, has been operating for some time, and the run has already exceeded last year's output. Farmers are still holding their wheat and corn. Many farmers now believe wheat will advance to $1.50 a bushel by April 1. Little corn is being sold, and then only to feeders who are paying from 5 cents to 10 cents more a bushel than the market price. The corn cribs in Pike county are full of corn, and nearly all farmers have engaged in stock raising and are feeding their surplus corn. Carloads of cattle and feeding hogs are being shipped to this county, and there are more feeding cattle and hogs in Pike county now then in years.

Lafayette.—Seventeen Indiana dairymen have herds which qualified for the 300-pound cow club last year, according to announcement made by E. A. Gannon, of the dairy extension staff of Purdue university, who has charge of the cow testing association work. Of the 17, four won gold medals for having seven or more cows which produced 500 pounds of butterfat or more during the pear; three won silver medals for a herd of eight or more in the 400-pound class, and ten won the bronze medals with ten or more cows each producing more than 300 pounds each. For the second year, the Gossard breeding estates, Martinsville, was in the 500-pound class, or among the gold medal winners, with 17 head of Ayrshires. At Purdue university, 12 head of the herd composed of the four leading dairy breeds jumped from 400 to the 500-pound class; J. A. [illegible] Jerseys in the [illegible] M. Bottema & [illegible]

[illegible]

Seymour.—A collection of coins, totaling about $30, many of which were green with age, were deposited in the Seymour National bank a few days ago. The coins were made in the early part of the Eighteenth century.

Evansville.—The new Evansville city directory, which will be ready for distribution in a few days, will contain approximately 48,000 names, giving the city an estimated population of 96,000 This is an increase of several thousand names over last year.

Greensburg.—The trustees of the Southeastern Indiana Hospital for the Insane at Madison have closed a deal for 163 acres of land which adjoins the state's holdings of 1,400 acres and has on it 2,000 bearing apple trees, 600 young peach trees and also 500 young apple and 300 young peach trees, an acre of strawberries and an acre of raspberries. The price paid by the state was $25,000.

Washington.—Indiana postmasters have been confirmed by the senate as follows: Charles E. Combs, Bloomfield; Elisha A. McGinnis, Clayton; Maude E. Mitchell, Ellettsville; Lorinda Guy, Etna Green; Moody La Katter, Huntingburg; Ben H. Sink, Jasonville and Athur F. Saylor, New Paris. The civil service commission has designated March 14 as the date of examination for the selection of postmasters at Liberty and Lagrange.

Petersburg.—Otho Dorsey, thirty-one years old, a farmer, was arrested at Petersburg as a suspect in the murder near here of Lon Bement and the fatal wounding of Turner Willis. Dorsey's arrest followed statements by Mrs. John Willis, mother of one of the dead men, that she saw Dorsey near the scene of the crime shortly before the bodies were found. Bloodhounds are also said to have taken a trail from the scene direct to the Dorsey home.

Indianapolis.—Boys and girls who are interested in religion, but who are not interested in the sermons, hymns and prayers of a regular church service, are now being provided with services of their own in a number of churches in Indiana. Children from ten to fourteen years old are thus cared for. The chief features of the junior church are a regular order of service, a junior church choir, junior ushers and junior officials. The only one not a junior is the pastor.

Indianapolis.—Issuing automobile licenses in the office of the secretary of state, took a sudden spurt the past week. Licenses have been going out the delivery windows at the rate of 1,000 a day, and mail orders approximate 2,000 a day, said the superintendent of the automobile division. Police are to begin to arrest persons for not having 1922 licenses. The law requires the licenses by January 1, and while the authorities everywhere in the state have been lenient, they propose to draw the lines from now on.

Laporte.—State and federal prohibition officers have placed the seal of the United States government upon the property of the Atlas Brewing company at Laporte. The brewery was raided a short time ago when more than 11,000 gallons of beer, said to be around 4 per cent alcohol, was found. Officials declared that the placing of seals indicates that the government will sell the plant. Several mortgages are held against the buildings, and these will be settled by federal authorities. The brewery was the property of Chicago capitalists. Seizure of the plant came when it was learned additional beer had been made and sold since the raid of the place.

Muncie.—Ball Brothers, Muncie manufacturers, announced a gift of $1,000,000 to public institutions, the money to be immediately available for the purposes intended. It was the largest single distribution of money for public purposes that these men ever have made, although their aggregate gifts of the kind in the past perhaps total as much more. The money is to be expended as follows: To the eastern division of the Indiana State Normal school, Muncie, $250,000 for additional buildings. For a public auditorium in Muncie, $150,000. To the Muncie Young Men's Christian association as a permanent endowment, $100,000. To Hillsdale College, Hillsdale, Mich., as an endowment, $100,000. To the proposed James Whitcomb Riley Memorial hospital for children at Indianapolis, [illegible]. To the Delaware County Tuberculosis association as an endowment for the care and treatment of those afflicted with tuberculosis and for the prevention of the disease, [illegible] building fund of the [illegible] Temple, [illegible]

[illegible]

SHE LOOKS SO WELL AND HAPPY

See the rich, red blood, the sign of health, showing in her lovely cheeks.

Some women have naturally beautiful complexions that tell you there is plenty of richness in their blood. Their figures become well formed, supple, rounded, and graceful. Those are the results of rich, red blood, and plenty of it. There is no need of being thin and scrawny from poor blood. Get a few bottles of Gude's Pepto-Mangan—take it with your meals for a few weeks. It will give you plenty of red blood. By building up the blood, you give the entire system a chance to restore itself naturally, and that brings natural bloom and beauty and all the effects and joys of good health. Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan at your druggist's in liquid or tablet form. Advertisement.

A blush also is not beautiful because it overdoes it.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Ingenuity is what a man would need in trying to tan the hide of a dog with his bark.

Cuticura Soothes Baby Rashes

That itch and burn, by hot baths of Cuticura Soap followed by gentle anointings of Cuticura Ointment. Nothing better, purer, sweeter, especially if a little of the fragrant Cuticura Talcum is dusted on at the finish. 25c each.—Advertisement.

MORE THAN SHE COULD STAND

Most People Will Be Inclined to Sympathize With Complaint Made by Young Mother.

The Woman was surprised and distressed when she stopped in to see the young mother the other day to find that usually cheerful little person with tear-stained cheeks.

"Jim and I have simply got to have a little place of our own," wailed the young mother, in answer to the Woman's unspoken question. "Jim's mother is a dear, and I love her, but now the baby has come we simply can't live together."

"Don't you agree about the way to bring up children?" queried the Woman, with wisdom born of the experience of her friends.

"Oh, it isn't that," almost sobbed the young mother. "But she seems to think the baby belongs to her. She calls him mamma's boy, and the other day, after she had been cuddling him, she passed him over to me and said, 'Go to auntie.'"—Chicago Journal.

New Use for Old Clock.

Little brass or fancy clocks, which were very popular a while back, but which have lost their "going" powers and stay stopped, the face indicating a time that is wholly wrong all the time, can be saved for a new purpose by taking out the glass crystal with ease, inserting a picture and pressing it back in. Thus the little clock will be transformed into a picture frame and its prettiness will still adorn the mantel shelf.

A kick against fate is often but an apology for laziness.

Genuine

BAYER

ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Colds
Toothache
Earache

Headache
Neuralgia
Lumbago

Rheumatism
Neuritis
Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Shining-up Days Are Here, Use

E-Z STOVE POLISH

Its Shine is Wonderful

Save the coupons for kitchen aprons. Martin & Martin, Mfrs., Chicago

You'll Smile Too when you know the Comfort and Easy Stretch of Nu-Way or EXCELLO RUBBERLESS SUSPENDERS

Guaranteed One Year—Price 75¢

Always insist on NU-WAY or EXCELLO Guaranteed Suspenders, Garters and Hose Supporters.

Ask Your Dealer If he hasn't them, send direct, giving dealer's name. Accept no substitutes—look for name on buckles

Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co., Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.

The Best Way to Buy a Farm

Farms in the South as productive as Western farms can be bought at low prices and bring bigger net profits owing to mild climate and good markets. Unusual opportunities for dairy farming. Study these conditions before buying. Good farms can be rented for a year with option to buy at a fixed price. Full information free. Write J. C. WILLIAMS, Manager, Southern Railway Development Service, Washington, D. C.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITY

Collection specialists earn big money. Large profits from small capital. Earn while you learn. Complete Course of Instructions, including series of collection letters. Collection Service, Arcade Bldg., Rome, N. Y.

You Can Make $15 Every Day Easy; spare, whole time. Sell direct or take orders. We deliver. Wholesale prices, literature free. EDDIE VAN, 75 W Van Buren, CHICAGO.

LIVE WIRE Sales Managers Wanted for a snappy proposition. ONCEOVER SPECIALTY HOUSE, 124 N. 14th St., New Castle, Ind.

MERELY MONKEYS, AFTER ALL

Scientists Unduly Agitated Over the Reported Discovery of New Human Race in India.

Recently there was announced the discovery of a new human race in the Himalaya mountains. They were the "abominable men of the snows," particularly hideous, haired ferocious beings, of whom an explorer had revealed traces.

Well, these abominable men, says the Petit Parisien, are no men at all, but big monkeys, already known by science. One of them can be seen in the galleries of the museum. To tell the truth this langur (such is its name) is stuffed, which, however, does not prevent its having been alive and its having come from the regions of the Himalayas, where its fellows are living in numerous troops.

This revelation, so unpleasant for the manufacturers of prodigious adventures, comes from Mr. Goodwin-Austin, who has given in La Nature the most complete details about this monkey of Tibet, which for a moment was promoted to the superior rank of man.—New York Tribune.

Medical Aid for French Children.

Thousands of French children in Paris, Lille, Roubai, Turcoing, Cambrai, Douai and Valenciennes, received medical assistance from the child health exposition of the American Red Cross, which has just completed a five months' tour of the more important cities of France. Nearly every department of child welfare was covered by the work. Attendance at the exposition averaged 5,000 persons daily. Local physicians in the cities visited donated their services.

Football made safer might also be made more comprehensible to untrained spectators.

ISLANDERS SHOULD BE HAPPY

Fortunate Inhabitants of Lundy Altogether Free From Visitations of the Tax Collector.

The stipend of £60 ($300) a year offered by the ecclesiastical commissioners to any clergyman disposed to take spiritual charge of Lundy island seems a fair one, in view of the fact that the island measures only three and a half miles by one mile and numbers barely two hundred inhabitants.

The people of Lundy pay neither rates nor taxes; there are no poor, because all the inhabitants have work found for them; and there are no police, because there are no law-breakers. Lundy has twice been in the hands of foreigners—once when captured by a band of Turkish pirates, and again, in the time of William III, when French privateers gained temporary possession.—London Tit-Bits.

Watches With Two-Hour Hands.

The latest fad is the timepiece with two-hour hands. The commuters started it, that they might have railroad time and daylight saving time before them at a glance; but the girls with lovers in foreign parts are calling for watches that enable them to visualize what "he" is doing in London or elsewhere. One such call was for a watch showing the time here and in Shanghai.—Scientific American.

Trims Him.

"Trim little craft, that wife of yours, old man." "Craft? Well, she's a revenue cutter, anyway."

There is joy in anticipation because reason remains silent.

Save the bird in hand—
The others may be hard to catch

[illegible]

Grape-Nuts—the Body Builder

"There's a Reason"

[illegible]

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	94	$ 5.22
M. P	56	2.94
Lutheran	65	4.32
M. E. Spencer	69	3.90
Lutheran	81	6.05
Coburntown	61	11.40
Newville U. B.	66	2.74
Christian	115	4.28
Rehoboth	50	3.97

Local Briefs

Fred Hart of Coburntown is a new subscriber to the News.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kees were Sunday guests of their son George and family.

Mr. and Mrs. William Randall, Mrs. H. E. Randall and two children motored to Waterloo, Sunday, where they spent the day with relatives. The latter Mrs. Randall and little son remained to spend the week.

Ed. News: Enclosed find check for $3 00 to apply on my subscription to the News. We still enjoy hearing from the old home town.

M. E. Olds.

Sorrowing widows, coy old maids and buncoed bachelors have formed an organization at Peru, Ind., to break the spell of loneliness. The new organization is to be known as the "Order of Widows, Widowers, Maids and Bachelors." There are thirty members.

We are pleased to publish your items, in fact that is one of our purposes as publishers, but we ask that the items be written out plain and sent in early enough in the week to enable us to get them ready to print on Wednesday of each week.

Mrs. Peter Kosht of Butler was in town one day last week. While here she called at the News office and renewed her subscription for a year, and also renewed the one of her brother's, D. R. Grabill, of Lake Co., Lake Michigan. That's the spirit.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $3000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years,
$12.50 a month for five years,
$6.25 a month for ten years,

If Permanently and Totally Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of [illegible] Premiums on this policy will cease and the Company will pay you $[illegible] a month, as long as you [illegible] the [illegible] your [illegible].

[illegible]

J. C. [illegible]

Short Course Goes Fine

Wednesday p. m.—The free farmers' short course going on here has met with splendid success. The play on Monday night was well attended, the receipts being $98.00 at the door.

Tuesday the weather kept many from attending, but all the class sessions were well supported.

Tuesday night the opera house was packed to its greatest capacity, and a very pleasing and instructive program was given.

Today the crowds are larger for the weather is more favorable. The bad roads however shortens the radius from which people are to come.

A complete report of the meeting will be published in next week's issue of the News.

St. Joe Locals

The Rev. Mr. Gerhart, of Springfield, Ohio, Field Secretary, preached Sunday morning at the Lutheran church in place of the regular pastor, Rev. S. D. Steffy, who has been ill for several days, but who is improving.

Mrs. John Winsland is on the sick list.

Mrs. Jennie White, of Ft. Wayne, spent from Tuesday until Friday of last week, a guest of her uncle, Frank Terman, and wife.

Mrs. Silas Reasoper, residing northeast of town, suffered a stroke of paralysis, Friday, but is improving. Mrs. Reasoner has been suffering from heart trouble for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Woodcox, daughter Martha and son Malcolm spent Sunday afternoon guests of the former's brother Grady and family, northeast of town.

Mrs. C. C. Curie has been quite ill for several days with the flu.

The Misses Helen Smith and Venus Shults were Fort Wayne visitors, Saturday.

H. H. Todd, who is working in Fort Wayne, spent over Sunday here with his family.

Merritt Sechler entertained Mr. and Mr. Wm. Stames, Jr., at Sunday dinner.

E. R. Kinsey and family and George Swineford were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Pepple and others at Auburn.

Jacob Sechler spent Saturday, a guest of his sister, Mrs. Jacob Baits, and husband, at Spencerville.

The Coburntown Ladies' Aid will meet this afternoon (Thursday) with Mrs. Wilson Beaber, and the members are requested to bring needles and thimbles for there will be work.

John Bets has purchased the property and store building in which he now has his restaurant, from Mrs. W. C. Patterson. The deal was made Wednesday, Feb. 15.

FREIGHT HANDLING IN EUROPE

Countries Succeed in Avoiding Some of Our Problems With Canals and Small Cars.

This discussion of what Europe can teach us would not be complete without a reference to their large canal boats and small freight cars, observes W. C. Gregg in an article in the Outlook.

Their canals were developed centuries ago, long before railway problems were known. They form a network all over Europe, and with the standard canal boat between two and three hundred feet long, they move immense quantities of [illegible] at low costs, especially [illegible] material. They [illegible] horses, [illegible] men and women [illegible] to what seems an impossible load and move it for miles.

There is no question about the cheapness of such transportation, [illegible] ed debt is the [illegible].

[illegible]

NEWVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Platter are the happy parents of a little daughter, born recently.

Mrs. George Oberlin is quite ill with serious stomach trouble.

Dewey Miller and wife were last Sunday guests of the latter's sister, Mrs. Gertrude Watson and husband of near Spencerville.

Malcolm Richmond and wife entertained a card party recently.

Mr. Denham, Jr., and sister, Miss Denham, of Edgerton, who were to conduct the services at the Christian church last Sunday did not get here on account of the bad weather and bad roads.

Gerald Oberlin did not get home last week from the Garrett hospital as was expected. He was taken worse and had to remain a few days longer.

Mr. Perkins, living about 1½ miles southeast of Newville, suffered a stroke of paralysis recently and also had the second stroke. He is very low at this writing.

To Foreclose Mortgage on Concord Twp. Farm

After hearing the suit of John W and Sarah M. Lawhead against Charles E. M. Walker et al, in the DeKalb circuit court, Judge Link recently entered a judgment in favor of the plaintiffs against Charles E. M. and Nancy R. B. Walker in the sum of $7,512.03, representing principal and interest, and $340 attorney's fees. The court also ordered the mortgage foreclosed.

Judgment was also entered against Walker in favor of Wilson Koch for the sum of $102 36 on a mechanics lein, and another judgment is in favor of Wm. Curie for $345.83, also on a mechanics lien. The land is located in Concord township.

Notice of Administration

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned has been appointed by the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, Administrator of the Estate of William J. Orr, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

CLYDE E. HART,
Administrator.

Feb. 11, 1922.
J. E. Pomeroy, Attorney.

High School Alumni

(Cntinued from last week)

Marie Leighty-Draggoo, '14.
Flossie [illegible]echler-Mavis, '14.
Clark [illegible]es, '14.
Lloyd C[illegible]urn, '14.
Letha Kain, '15, (deceased)
Darrel Carpenter, '15.
Roy Haffey, '15.
Carl Carpenter, '16.
Harry Kinsey, '16.
Paul Maxwell, '16.
Agnes [illegible], '16
Cecile [illegible], '16
[illegible], '16.
[illegible], '16
[illegible], '16.
[illegible], '17.
[illegible], '17.
[illegible]

Washington and Valentine SOCIAL

[illegible]

Mrs. Geo. Hart, Mrs. Clay Coburn, Mrs. Byron Widney, and Mrs. Kel Hart, last Thursday, in an all-day meeting. Decorative appointments were carried out in a color scheme of pinks and white. Valentine hearts added to the beauty of the rooms, while the tables were attractively graced with pink and white carnations.

After the enjoyable feast at noontime, served cafeteria style, the business session followed, interspersed with interesting features of a program nature, conducted by the president, Mrs. Dora Wilder.

A tribute to Washington was given by each member in response at roll call.

After music, readings and discussions, the afternoon was given to a continuous round of pleasure—the predominating humorous feature being the hostess' novel method of evoking impromptu speeches from each one present.

Favors were presented by Mrs. Wilder—small variously tinted paper hatchets.

A standing vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Widney in appreciation of the day's pleasure.

COLETOWN

[illegible]

TO THE FARMERS

No one realizes more than we do that 1921 was not a real profitable year for the farmer. 24c oats, 40c corn, $1.00 wheat, and 6c hogs did not give the farmer a chance to lay up money. 1922 is looking very much better. Grain is about 40 per cent higher and hogs up a couple of cents; and taking into consideration what you can get here during the next ten days, or until March, every bushel of wheat is worth over $2.00.

We have taken 221 of our fine all-wool double breasted Ulsterettes and single breasted Dress Overcoats (most of them are our Marx made coats), not a coat in the line that is not worth $30, and we have marked them all at one price—

$15.00

Come and take your choice. We guarantee every coat all wool, fast color and well tailored.

Come Any Day Before March 1

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

Wayne and Harrison
Fort Wayne, Ind.

PUBLIC SALE!

I will sell at Public Sale at my farm at Hurshtown, 3 miles northeast of Leo, 4 miles southwest of Spencerville, and 3 miles north of Grabill, on the Ft. Wayne road, on Saturday, Mar. 4th, 1922,

Commencing at 10 o'clock, the following:

2 — Head of HORSES — 2
Bay horse, 14 yrs. old, weight 1400 lbs.; Brown horse, 15 yrs. old, weight 1400 lbs. Sound and good workers.

3 — Head of Cattle — 3
Extra good gentle cow, part Jersey, 7 years old, will be fresh May 1st; Holstein cow, 6 yrs. old, to be fresh by day of sale; Holstein-Durham cow, 6 years old, to be fresh by day of sale.

22 — Head of Sheep — 22
17 breeding ewes, 2 and 3 years old, extra quality; 4 yearling lambs and 1 buck.

1 — HOG — 1
One Pure-bred Duroc sow, double immune to farrow middle of March.

POULTRY—66 pure bred buff Wyandotte pullets, and five cockerels.

HAY—3 tons pure timothy hay.

FARM IMPLEMENTS—Three-inch wagon with box complete, Dane hay loader, Keystone side delivery rake, six-foot cut McCormick mower, 1-foot lift John Deere riding plow as good as new, walking plow, Ohio riding corn cultivator, 1 hay rack, spring-tooth drag, spike-tooth lever drag, set new 1½ yd. gravel boards, set heavy work harness, set single harness, top buggy, 1 set extra heavy leather fly-nets, 250-egg Columbia incubator, 100-egg Simplicity incubator, and numerous other articles. USUAL TERMS.

Lunch served by Ladies' Aid of Leo.

Henry Goldsmith.

[illegible] & McNamara, Aucts. Will Erick, Clerk.

[illegible]

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

[illegible]

Are you in Earnest?

Some people say they simply cannot save money. Other people—who often have smaller incomes--find a joy in regular weekly saving.

The fact is, anyone can save money who is really in earnest about it. Take the matter seriously. Who benefits from your thrift? Who else but yourself?

The man with a growing savings account acquires confidence in himself, and a happy, fearless attitude towards the future.

One dollar or more opens an interest bearing account in this big, friendly bank.

"Teach your dollars to have more cents."

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropracter Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

SPENCERVILLE

Mrs. Ashur Culp and children spent Sunday with Rev. Uphoff and family.

Moses Oberholtzer and son Walter were Saturday guests in the B. F. Markle home.

Absolute merit and merit alone is responsible for Tanlac's phenomenal and unprecedented success. B. S. Sheffer's.

The Ladies' Guild of the M. E. church will be entertained at home of Mrs. Louie Beam on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Stella Goldsmith left Monday for Laporte, Ind., to fill an appointment with the farmers' bureau. This is her last week for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Vol Hay, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman spent Sunday the guests of the former's daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Vernie Kelley and family east of town.

The Economic club was entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Chas. Fry of Coburntown. The committee, Mrs. Hattie Waltz, Mrs. Gertie Wasson and Mrs. Ethel Bowser demonstrated certain draperies, linoleum and wall paper. One guest, Mrs. Ruth Gorroll, was present.

The Coolidge Store

Along with the Spring season comes mud and with the mud comes the need of good SHOES and RUBBERS.

These good SHOES and RUBBERS can be bought here at reasonable prices any day, but for

SATURDAY SPECIAL

[illegible] SHOES and RUBBERS
At SPECIAL Prices

Watch this space for Specials Next Week

D. COOLIDGE Spencerville, Ind

Rolla Moffit of Auburn was a Monday dinner guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Baltz.

Mrs. J. B. Sommers left Friday last to visit her sister and husband, B. O. Schlatter, and other relatives, at Ft. Wayne.

Mrs. Gertrude Markle and children and Mrs. Frank Wertman were Saturday afternoon guests of Mrs. Hattie Beams.

The ladies of Lutheran church very pleasantly entertained fathers and sons at a banquet Wednesday in the basement of the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman entertained guests Friday evening in honor of their wedding anniversary. They served refreshments of ice cream, cake and candy.

Miss Mary Pervines was a weekend guest of her sister at Auburn

Mrs. Kate House left Saturday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Abe Furnish and other relatives at Ft. Wayne, and left Wednesday for Burlington, Mich., to spend a few weeks with her brothers, Charles and Wilbur Boston, and families.

Little Jack Allan, the nine-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Allen, very quietly passed away Saturday morning at 9:00 o'clock at the family home of heart trouble. Little Jack and his sister Emma were taken sick over two mgnths ago of the same disease Emma died six weeks ago, and Saturday last Jack too passed away.

News was received here Sunday by Mrs. Sophia Miller of the sudden death of her father, Mr. E. F. Walker, aged 82 years, on Saturday afternoon at Long Beach, Cal. Mr. Walker had spent his winters in California for several years and left in October. He leaves six children—Percy Walker of Coburntown; Mrs. Sophia Miller of this place; Mrs Jennie Murphy of Long Beach, Cal; Miss Rose Walker of Los Angeles, Cal.; Roy Walker of Fort Wayne; Dr. Fred Walker of Peoria, Ill. The body was shipped here. The funeral was held at Scipio, and the burial in Scipio cemetery.

$4980 AUCTION SALE.

Last Saturday at his garage in Spencerville, Frank Silberg sold at auction seventeen used automobiles, two tractors and a hay press. The cars sold very readily and all buyers are satisfied with good bargains. The amount of the sale reached $4980.

A free entertainment was staged before that sale started and also after the sale, which proved to be a real treat to the large crowd which was estimated at 1150 people.

Mr. Silberg also made sales of three new Ford cars and four tractors on that day.

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor, subject to your will at the May primaries. L. W. Yeiser.

Obituary

Jack W[illegible] Allen, [illegible] son of Wm. and [illegible] was [illegible] in Spencerville [illegible]

[illegible]

Only about six weeks ago his little sister Emma passed out of this life to be with Jesus, and to beckon for little Jack to come too.

Every heart in the community goes out in deep and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family.

You have lost a child? No, he is not lost. Like a star, which when going out of sight does not die or vanish, but shines in another hemisphere; he shines in heaven, and may light you thitherward.

Funeral services were held from the M. E. church at Spencerville, on Monday, Feb. 20th, at 2 p. m., with Rev. A. F. Uphoff officiating; Roscoe Walter funeral director, with interment in White City cemetery.

Card of Thanks.

We take this manner of thanking our dear friends and neighbors for their help and sympathy during the sickness and death of this, another of our children, who have been taken to the world above so recently. Wm. Allen and family.

Jackson Twp. Couple Married.

At the parsonage at Butler Center at 2:45 o'clock, last Thursday afternoon, occurred the marriage of Ray O. Armstrong and Miss Verna E. Warstler. The bride and groom are popular young people of Jackson township. The groom is the son of Mr and Mrs. E. J. Armstrong. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva Warstler of Jackson township.

Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong will make their home on a farm in Jackson township.

Their many friends and members of Rehobeth church and Sunday School join in wishing them a prosperous journey through life. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. R. Elson.

Celebrates Anniversary.

The Coburntown Christian Church celebrated its 85th., anniversary last Sunday in the finest all day meeting ever held there. People from far and near who are some decendants of the charter members of the organisation of the church 85 years ago, came to help enjoy the day and take part in the meeting.

After the morning bible school a bounteous pot luck dinner was served in the basement. At one o'clo k every one took his place in the auditorium, and Mrs. J. W. Hart called the meeting to order.

Marshall Hadsell had charge of the singing and Mrs, Fannie Smith served as pianist. Short talks were given by various persons on the history of their respective families. Recitations and songs were rendered all by direct decendants of charter members.

The meeting was so extremely interesting that the entire afternoon was spent in such a way. In fact many of the talks had to be abreviated so that all could be heard.

There are only four children of the eleven charter members of the church. Mrs. B. S. Sheffer, of St. Joe, is one of those and she was present to give a most striking talk. She is a daughter of James Hadsell.

Could there be enough space we could give a lengthy and interesting account of this meeting but it is not possible this week.

Eleven faithful disciples together came
For prayer and praise eighty-five years ago;
Organized the Church of Christ in His dear name
In the little log cabin on the bank of the old St. Joe.

Their cares were many in this wilderness land
And progress to them seemed very slow,
But they worked with brave heart and willing hand,
In their little log cabin on the bank of the old St. Joe.

In the course of time other settlers came
Who wanted the primitive gospel to know;
On the first day of the week they met in the master's name
In the little log cabin on the bank of the old St. Joe.

With the zeal of these loyal men laboring there
The church in numbers continued to grow.
Spreading its branches both far and near
From the little log cabin on the bank of the old St. Joe.

This teaches us a lesson most complete,
Large things from small beginnings grew,
If we work in line and union at Jesus' feet,
In the little log cabin on the bank of the old St. Joe.

The Chuach of Christ will always stand
Through rains descend and winds do blow
Built on the rock and not on the sand
In the little log caoin on the bank of the old St. Joe.
—Mrs. J. W. Hart.

Report of Teachers Exams.

The reports of the January state teachers' examination in Indiana, filed with the state board of education show there is a big increase in the number of candidates for positions as teachers in Indiana schools. A total of 4,218 persons participated in the first of the 1922 examinations, as compared with 2,875 a year ago. The increase was 1,343, or almost 50 per cent. Most of the persons taking the examinations sought licenses to teach in the grade schools, the number of these candidates being 2,255; and those taking the high school examinations numbered 1,175, while 413 others sought to qualify as supervisors of music, art or other special subjects. In addition, 375 teachers sought to make up back high school credits.

Seed CORN in POOR CONDITION

Reports coming in from various parts of the state of Indiana show that the seed condition this year is very poor. Ohio reports the same situation. Tests of thousands of seed ears conducted at Ohio State University show more than 50 per cent of Ohio's corn is infested with root rot. In Butler county they have two large 2200-ear testers running. Results are almost identical with those found at the University.

Last year in DeKalb county about 7000 ears were tested. Records at hand show that 21 per cent had root rot. Root rot is a serious disease. It is estimated that it decreases the annual corn crop in the United States 10 per cent. So if all other conditions were right, and you planted ten acres, you would harvest only nine acres.

Miss Stella Hull, of Ft. Wayne, spent over Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Hull.

MICKIE SAYS
PLEASE, FER GOSH SAKE, DONT WAIT TILL YA ONLY GOT ONE ENVELOPE LEFT BEFORE YA ORDER MORE! WE KIN GIT SOME OUT RITE OFF, BUT SUMTIMES WE SURE GIT FED UP ON 'RUSH JOBS
Subscribe for the Home Paper
CHARLES SUGHROE

MANY FAST DAYS IN YEAR

Greek Church Insists on Rigorous Observance of Recognized Periods of Abstinence.

More strict than any other church in its observance of fast days, the Greek Church also is more rigorous in its fasting than other churches. The Lenten faster must abstain not only from flesh, but must do without fish, eggs, butter, cheese and even the oil which is so much a part of Greek cooking. During Holy week the orthodox Greeks eat hardly anything but bread.

As soon as Lent approaches—the Greek fast, it is called—the shops where food is sold are decorated with evergreen, and the Lenten fare is temptingly displayed. As the Greeks do not consider shellfish either meat or fish, crabs, lobsters and other crustaceans are sold and eaten with particular relish.

The longest fasting time for the Greeks is "The Great Fast," which lasts 48 days.

The next longest fast is of 40 days. It begins Nov. 15 and ends the day before the great feast of Christmas.

During August there are 15 days of fasting.

Beginning the Monday after the first Sunday after Pentecost, until June 20, is the next longest fast. This year it was 10 full days.

Add to these long fasts six scattered fasts of one day each, and there is a total of 119 fast days which orthodox Greeks and all visitors must observe each year.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

[illegible] Calhoun Street

Fort Wayne, Ind.

FEBRUARY

FARMERS URGED TO RAISE GEESE AS FOWLS FURNISH TABLE MEAT

Geese Need Little Feed Outside of Pasture During Greater Part of Year.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

During the holiday season, when the unctuous goose graces the largest available platter, is the time to think of the advisability of growing a bunch of these profitable birds for the tables that will be spread for hungry families another year. The goose population in the United States has been on the decline in recent years, but the United States Department of Agriculture expresses the opinion that there are many farms on which a few can be raised on pasture and other feed that will scarcely be missed. Although the demand for feathers is not what it once was, and the eggs are not in demand for cooking, these birds are worth while as producers of delicious meat. The objection has been raised that the meat is too oily, but this condition is largely due to improper cooking, to failure to remove the surplus fat of the abdominal cavity, and to not skimming off the grease while cooking.

Grass Furnishes Bulk of Feed.

Where there is low, rough pasture land with a natural supply of water, geese can be raised at a profit. They are generally quite free from disease and all insect pests, but they are occasionally affected by the diseases common to poultry. Grass makes up the bulk of the feed and it is doubtful whether it pays to raise them if good grass range is not available. A body of water where they can swim is considered essential during the breeding season and is a good thing during the rest of the year.

The market is not so general as for chickens, but the demand and the price are unusually good in localities where goose fattening is conducted on a large scale. However, a few geese are desirable on many farms where there is no such market. Except in winter and during stormy weather, mature geese have little need for a house. Breeders in the North, and some in the South, use a shed open to the south as a protection in winter. Coops, barrels or other shelter are needed by goslings. The houses may be kept clean by supplying plenty of straw for bedding.

From 4 to 25 geese may be pastured on an acre of land, the number depending upon the quality of the pasture. Ten geese to the acre is a fair average. Free range should be used wherever possible. In the South many people use geese to help in keeping down the weeds in the cotton fields.

Along about the first of February geese should get a ration suitable for egg production so that goslings may be hatched at about the time the first pasture is available. Nests may be made on the floor of the house, or in large boxes, barrels or other shelters. It is desirable to collect the eggs daily and to keep them in a cool place where the contents will not evaporate too rapidly; if kept for some time they may be stored in loose bran.

The first eggs are usually set under hens, while the last ones the goose lays may be hatched either under hens or under the goose if she goes broody. If the eggs are not removed from the nest where she is laying she will usually stop laying sooner than if they are taken away daily. The sitters may be broken up if they are confined to a slat-bottom coop, with water to drink but no feed, for two to four days.

Some breeders prefer to raise all the goslings with hens, as geese sometimes become difficult to manage when allowed to hatch and rear their young. Hens used for hatching goose eggs must be dusted with insect powder and have good attention as the period of incubation for goose eggs is longer than for chicken eggs. Goose eggs may be hatched in incubators and the gosling raised in brooders, but this is not a common practice.

From 28 to 30 days are required to hatch goose eggs. Moisture should be added after the first week if the eggs are set under hens or in incubators, warm water being sprinkled on the eggs or the nest. [illegible]

[illegible]

lowed to go into the water until several days old. In mild weather they will be able to look after themselves when seven to ten days old. Coops with board floors are desirable for goslings and they should be protected from their enemies and looked after in case they get lost in their wanderings about the farm.

Feeding the Young Birds.

Goslings do not feed until they are 24 to 36 hours old, when they may be fed any of the mashes recommended for chickens or for ducklings, or a mash or dough of two-thirds shorts or middlings and one-third corn meal, which after six weeks may be made equal parts shorts and corn meal and 5 per cent beef scrap. Bread and milk is also an excellent feed for goslings. Fine grit is needed and may be provided by using 5 per cent of sharp sand in the mash, or by keeping it before them in a hopper.

If goslings are to be fattened give them a ration of one-third shorts and two-thirds corn meal by weight, with 5 per cent of beef scrap added, and a feed of corn at night.

In February, when the feeding for eggs is begun, a ration made up of one pound of corn meal, one of bran, one of middlings or low-grade flour, and 10 per cent of beef scrap, which is fed in the morning, and equal parts of corn and wheat, or corn alone, fed at night, will produce good results. Grit and oyster shell may be provided at all times, but they are essential during the laying period. In winter and at other times when there is no good pasture available, geese may be given roughages such as cut clover, hay, alfalfa, silage, cabbage, mangels, or any waste vegetables.

PEAS REQUIRE MUCH SPACE

Smooth Varieties May Be Sown Early or as Soon as Ground Is in Shape to Work.

Peas are not adapted to growing in very small gardens, as they require much space. Most gardeners, however, insist upon having a few short rows of peas in their gardens. In large gardens enough peas should be planted to provide surplus for canning. The smooth varieties may be sown very early or just as soon as the ground is in shape to work in the spring. The wrinkled varieties should not be sown until the ground has warmed slightly. Some of the dwarf varieties can be grown without supports, but the larger growing sorts require brush, a wire trellis or some form of support. The old-fashioned English sugar pea on good soil will grow to a height of 5 or 6 feet and produce peas until midsummer. It should be borne in mind that under ordinary conditions peas do not withstand great heat, and that they must produce their crop before midsummer.—United States Department of Agriculture.

WOOD ASHES MOST VALUABLE

Those Produced by Burning Hardwoods Like Hickory or Oak Contain Much Potash.

The use of coal ashes is permissible on heavy clay soils. However, they should be screened and all coarse cinders removed before being applied, and then should be spread evenly over the surface and thoroughly mixed with the soil as deep as it is plowed or spaded. Coal ashes have little value as fertilizer, their use being mainly to loosen the soil and make it more workable. Wood ashes, especially those produced by burning hardwoods like hickory, maple, or oak, frequently contain as high as 7 per cent potash, and are valuable fertilizers. Those produced from burning soft woods such as pine, and also hardwood ashes that have been exposed to the weather, have comparatively little value as fertilizer. [illegible]

KEEP FOWLS FROM [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognized Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

XII.

WHY GOOD MEN QUIT

Go today into the Treasury department, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Commerce, or into any other establishment of the government doing important technical work, and they will tell you that their chief difficulty is to retain competent employees in the supervisory and technical positions. Their turnover is abnormally high in these positions.

Every day men leave the service to accept private employment at materially increased salaries, so that the departments are continuously going through a process of selecting and training executives and technical employees, only to lose them, as they become really valuable, on account of the inadequacy of their compensation.

The second factor which contributes to the present ineffectiveness of the government as a business establishment is found in the improper organization of the executive branch of the government for effective service. You are familiar, at least in a general way, with the defects of the present administrative machinery.

You know for example, that the Interior department now has jurisdiction over a great number of bureaus of a miscellaneous character that have nothing to do with each other or with the functions which the Interior department was originally established to perform.

You know that many agencies have been located in the Treasury department, the great fiscal department of the government, which are purely nonfiscal in character, such as the coast guard, the public health service, the supervising architect's office and the bureau of war risk insurance.

You know that the great bulk of the civil public works of the government are executed under the supervision of the War department, although the bureau of public roads is located in the Department of Agriculture, and the reclamation service in the Department of the Interior.

You know, furthermore, of the independent existence outside the jurisdiction of any of the great executive departments of some 40-odd boards, commissions, offices and bureaus.

These are merely examples of a condition that would require volumes to describe fully, but it is generally known that the executive branch of the government is at the present time illogically and uneconomically organized in many important particulars.

It should be remembered, however, that even with an ideal personnel and a perfect organization it is doubtful if the high degree of economy and efficiency that characterizes private business can ever be attained in the government offices. This is so because economies made by government officials are not transformed into dividends for themselves as they are in private business.

There is an impression in congress and throughout the country that men of great ability are not found in government service; that the salaries are not sufficient to attract and hold them. On the contrary, there are a great many people of distinguished ability in the government service. One is more and more impressed by that fact, especially since the war sent to Washington so many men of large means and famous names with whom the government employees could be compared. The comparison was time and again to the advantage of the government employee. But the salaries are not the attraction; it is the work itself. This is well understood by some eminent observers of public life. Secretary of State Hughes declared himself as follows before the advisory committees of the war risk insurance bureau:

> It has been my experience that with the higher officers, the officers of greater institutions, where efficiency is rewarded by public representation—while the field is a limited one because of the great opportunity to men of ability—it is still entirely possible to draw to the public service men of great ability and distinction, because of the desire to render public service, and the number of men who are available for that purpose, while relatively small, is still sufficient if the appointing officer wants men of that class. In order to obtain them, however, he must give a free field. He must not interfere as to political action to control administration tendencies and must permit them to be given the reward which a well-conducted office of importance will give to its incumbent in the public estimation.
>
> Now the difficulty increases when you pass those heads that get the credit and come to the technical expert who has got to do the regular work and upon whose efficiency the operation of the department finally depends. These men are little known. The public hasn't time even to learn their names. They are interested in work to a degree of being willing to make sacrifices.
>
> There is active competition for men of brains and great ability of that sort, and the government will never be served unless it pays the price for those men. Now I think that is a plain situation. You may be able to get a director in the bureau of war risk insurance for $5,000 a year, or for nothing at all, but you cannot get an actuary. You cannot get insurance men. You cannot get superintendents. That would be my judgment.

VIEW OF THE EMPLOYEE

The obvious solution of the government's employment problem is the standardization and readjustment of salaries. To be scientific, such readjustment must rest upon a careful reclassification of the service. Conditions are very different now, both in regard to the functions of offices and the cost of living, from what they were when positions in the government service were first classified and salaries assigned to those positions.

It struck me that an interested party in this inquiry into how the government conducts its business was the employee himself. He ought to know from actual daily experience something about the mechanism of the national business and the relations between the working force and employer.

It was clearly impossible to talk to the more than 500,000 men and women who work for the government, but I learned that between 50,000 and 60,000 of them are banded together in an association called the National Federation of Federal Employees. It is a regular labor union, and is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor. It includes all classes of government workers, technical and scientific men, as well as clerks and unskilled workers.

I asked the president of this employees' union, Luther C. Steward, if he and his associates were authorized to speak for all its membership. He assured me that they were.

So I asked him to tell me about the [illegible] of government employment and how the [illegible]

I am glad I did, for what he told me [illegible]

[illegible]

The employees are recruited under a law which provides a test of qualifications, and probably nine-tenths of the rank and file have satisfactorily passed the entrance test. But the better positions, say from $3,000 upward, are usually occupied by political appointees. Another considerable group of employees get their appointments by executive order, waiving civil-service tests of fitness.

The newcomer in the service, therefore, finds himself up against a minimum of opportunity for promotion, with the disheartening knowledge that the advancement which is earned by competence is all too likely to be given to the friend or political supporter of some congressman or executive who wishes to pay a political debt. And the employee is subject to dismissal at the will of the executive of his department, unless he can bring sufficient political influence to bear.

In other words, the civil-service law is not backed up by enforcing power in the Civil Service commission. It merely recruits the applicants for entrance. Thereafter the employee's fate is largely a matter of his own luck and negative passive merit. There is no system by which he may be fitted to the job, and no protection against dismissal, unless the employee himself can show that the reason is political or religious. "For the good of the service," as the law reads, covers every other charge which the executive official may bring. There is no court of appeal.

Such is the oppressive, incentiveless, [illegible] atmosphere of the government service. It stifles initiative, [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR FEBRUARY 26

ELISHA'S HEAVENLY DEFENDERS

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 6:8-23.

GOLDEN TEXT—The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear Him, and delivereth them.—Ps. 34:7.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Dan. 6:1-23; Heb. 1:14; 11:27.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Takes Care of Elisha.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Elisha and the Armies of Jehovah.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Our Unseen Defenders.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Faith in the Unseen Can Do for Us.

I. The Syrian King Sorely Troubled (vv. 8-12).

1. The King's plan. (v. 8). His method was a kind of guerrilla warfare—armed bands made incursions into the enemy's territory. He determined as to where camps should be located so as to intercept Israel's army. His plan was clever, but his great mistake was that he left God out of his calculations. There is one place where all plans and movements are known (Heb. 4:13).

2. The enemy's movements disclosed (v. 9). The man of God, knowing the enemy's movements, was able to tell the king about them. Elisha's advice was more than a match for the wily plans of the shrewd Ben-hadad. Israel's safety lay more in the man of God than in their warriors.

3. The king of Israel heeded Elisha's word (v. 10). This was true wisdom. By obeying the prophet's words he saved himself and army many times. Those who are truly wise heed the divine warnings.

4. The Syrian king's perplexity (vv. 11, 12). In his perplexity he assembled his servants and demanded that the traitor be made known. He believed that some were playing into the hands of the enemy; therefore he would put an end to the treachery. This was denied, and one of his servants declared that the king's movements were reported by Elisha the prophet, even telling to the king of Israel what Ben-hadad spake in his bedchamber. Ben-hadad was worried not because of his sins, but because his plans miscarried.

II. The Syrian King Tries to Trap Elisha (vv. 13-18).

1. He sent an army to capture him (vv. 13, 14). Upon learning that Elisha was making known his actions, he determined to put an end to the matter by trapping him and making him a prisoner. How foolish to put human cunning against divine wisdom. Horses and chariots are useless when God is against us. God's purposes cannot be thwarted. If God be for us, who can be against us?

2. Elisha's servant frightened (v. 15). When he awoke one morning he saw that an armed host was encamping about the city. Viewed from the human standpoint, we do not wonder that he was affrighted.

3. Elisha's encouragement (v. 16). He assured his servant that, though they were surrounded by the Syrian army, there was a mightier host of heavenly defenders round about them. Elisha did not shut his eyes to the real danger, but looked to the helpers of God watching about them.

4. Elisha's prayer (v. 17). He asked that the Lord would open the eyes of his servant so as to see spiritual things. When the Lord opened the eyes of the young man he saw that "the mountain was full of horses and chariots of fire round about Elisha." Round about us all the while are angels guarding us from danger.

5. The Syrians smitten with blindness (v. 18). The same God who opened the eyes of the young man, blinded the eyes of the Syrians. God deals with men according to their moral attitude. When men will not have the light, God sends darkness.

III. The Syrian Army Trapped (vv. 19-23).

The would-be trappers are now trapped.

1. Army led by the man sought by them (vv. 19, 20). Elisha led them to Samaria and asked the Lord to open their eyes. When their eyes were open they saw the man whom they sought, but not at the place where they sought him. Instead of seeing him at Dothan as they expected, they saw him in Samaria.

2. The generous treatment of the Syrians (vv. 21-23). The king of Israel wanted to smite the captives, but Elisha forbade him and ordered instead that they should be fed and sent back to their master.

3. Peace between the nations (v. 23). The mercy shown to the Syrians had such a profound effect upon them that they came no more to make war upon Israel. What a fine thing if we could have such [illegible] shown today!

[illegible] Thanks to God.

[illegible] the night, so that we [illegible] for we ought to [illegible] night, in order [illegible] . . . . We [illegible]

[illegible]

DOES LAUNDRY WORK AND HOUSEWORK TOO

Surprised to Find Herself Feeling So Well

Taunton, Mass.—"I used to have pains in my back and legs so badly, with other troubles that women sometimes have, that my doctor ordered me to stay in bed a week in every month. It didn't do me much good, so one day after talking with a friend who took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for about the same troubles I had, I thought I would try it also. I find that I can work in the laundry all through the time and do my housework, too. Last month I was so surprised at myself to be up and around and feeling so good while before I used to feel completely lifeless. I have told some of the girls who work with me and have such troubles to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I tell them how it has helped me. You can use my testimonial for the good of others."—Mrs. BLANCHE SILVIA, 59 Grant St., Taunton, Mass.

It's the same story—one friend telling another of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

SLOW DEATH

Aches, pains, nervousness, difficulty in urinating, often mean serious disorders. The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

bring quick relief and often ward off deadly diseases. Known as the national remedy of Holland for more than 200 years. All druggists, in three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

Hard Luck.

"I took my wife to the opera last night."

"Did she enjoy it?"

"She wanted me to demand my money back. Half the people whose names were on the program as boxholders were not there at all."—Exchange.

ASPIRIN INTRODUCED BY "BAYER" IN 1900

Look for Name "Bayer" on the Tablets, Then You Need Never Worry.

If you want the true, world-famous Aspirin, as prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, you must ask for "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin."

The name "Bayer" is stamped on each tablet and appears on each package for your protection against imitations.—Advertisement.

Explaining.

Getting in at 3 a. m. he wandered into the parlor.

His wife came to the head of the stairs.

"What are you doing up at this hour?" she demanded.

"Just considering having the house wired for wireless," was his happy thought.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION

6 BELLANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

[illegible]

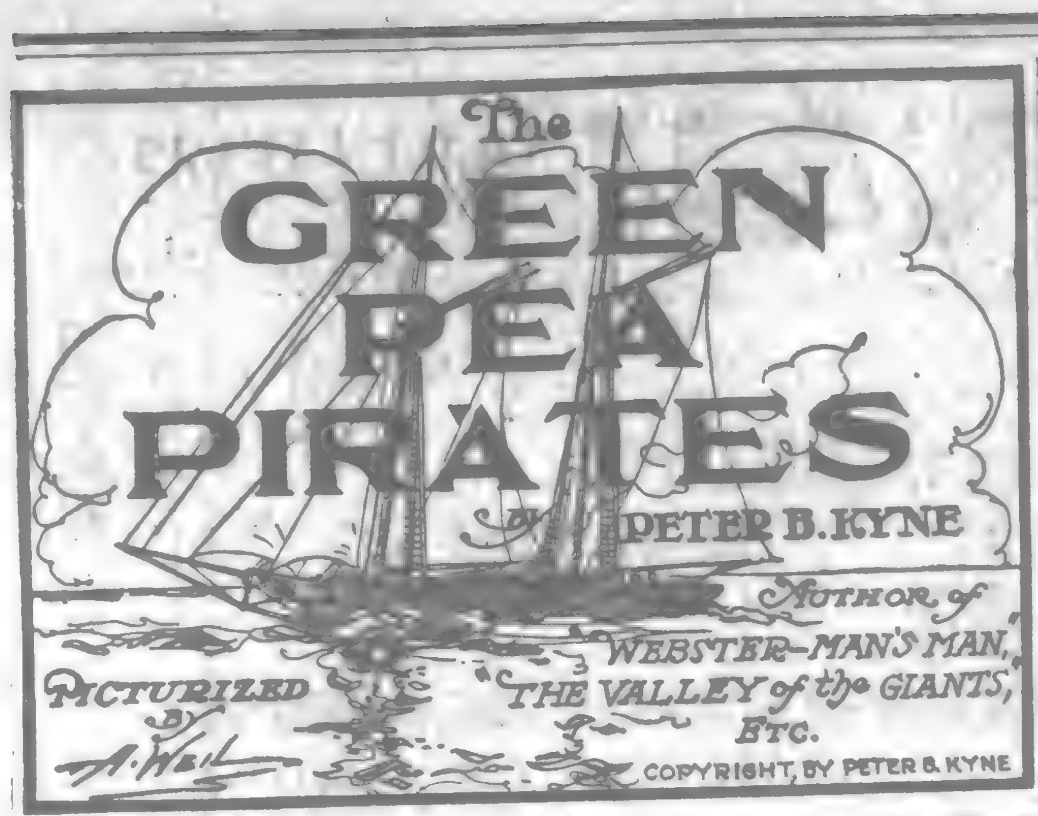
[illegible] — LA GRIPPE

[illegible]

Cuticura Soap
The Velvet Touch
For the Skin

[illegible]

FEBRUARY



CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

—15—

"By the tail o' the Great Sacred Bull," chattered Scraggs. "Gib's right."

McGuffey was plainly disappointed. "I hadn't thought o' that at all Gib. I been cherishin' the thought o' lammin' the whey out'n that mate, but if you say so I'll give up the idee. But if bringin' the Maggie II into home waters is invitin' death, what in blue blazes're we goin' to do with her?"

Mr. Gibney smiled—an arch, cunning smile. "We'll give her to that murderin' mate, free gratis."

Captain Scraggs bounded out of his chair, struck the hot deck with his bare feet, cursed, and hopped back into the chair again. McGuffey stared incredulously. "Gib, my dear boy," quavered Scraggs, "say that agin."

"Yes," continued the commodore placidly, "we'll just get shet o' her peaceable like by givin' her to this mate. Don't forget, Scraggsy, old tarpot, that this mate's been passin' himself off for you in Honolulu, an' if there's ever an investigation, the trail leads to the Maggie II. This mate's admitted being Captain Scraggs, an' if he's found with the schooner in his possession it'll take a heap o' evidence for him to prove that he ain't Captain Scraggs. We'll just keep this here mate in the brig while we're disposing of our black coral, pearl, shell and copra in Honolulu, an' then, when we've cleaned up, an' got our passages booked for San Francisco—"

"But who says we're goin' back to San Francisco?" cut in McGuffey.

"Why, where else would men with money in their pockets head for, you oil-soaked piece of ignorance? Ain't you had enough adventure to do you a spell?" demanded Captain Scraggs. "Me an' Gib's for goin' back to San Francisco, so shut up. If you got any objection, you're outvoted two to one in the syndicate."

McGuffey subsided, growling, and Mr. Gibney continued:

"When we're ready to leave Honolulu, we'll bring this mate on deck, make him a kind Christian talk an' give him the Maggie II with the compliments o' the syndicate. He'll think our sufferin's on that island has touched us with religion an' he'll be so tickled he'll keep his mouth shut. Then, with all three of us safe an' out o' the mess, an' the evidence off our hands, we'll clear out for Gawd's country an' look around for some sort of a profitable investment."

The commodore sighed. "She's a love of a boat an' it breaks my heart to give up the only command I've ever had, but the fact is, Mac, her possession by us is dangerous, an' we don't need her, an' we can't sell her because her record's got blurs on it. We can't convey a clean an' satisfactory title. Anyhow, she didn't cost us a cent an' there ain't no real financial loss if we give her to this mate. He'd be glad to get her if she had yellow jack aboard, an' if he's caught with her he'll have to do the explainin'. When you're caught with the goods in your possession, Mac, it makes the explainin' all the harder. Besides, we're three to one, an' if it comes to a show-down later we can outswear the mate."

Captain Scraggs picked his snaggle teeth with the little blade of his jackknife and cogitated a minute.

"Well," he announced presently, "far be it from me to fly in the face o' a felon's death. I've made a heap o' money, follerin' Gib's advice, an' bust my bob-stay if I don't stay put on this. Gib, it's your lead."

"Well, I'll follow suit. Gib's got all the trumps," acquiesced the engineer. "We got plenty o' dough an' no board bills comin' due, so we'll loaf alongshore until Gib digs up somethin' good."

"How about Neils?" queried Captain Scraggs. "Do we [illegible] to let that ex-deckhand in on our fortunes?"

"If Neils Halvorsen had asked you that question [illegible] to rescue you the day [illegible] o' there on that [illegible], wouldn't you have said yes?"

[illegible]

might swear that the real Phineas Scraggs, filibuster, had been in Honolulu on a certain date. The Kanaka crew of the schooner Mr. Gibney managed to ship with an old shipmaster friend bound for New Guinea, so their testimony was out of the way for a while, at least.

When the Maggie II was finally discharged and the proceeds of her rich cargo nestled, in crisp bills of large denomination, in a money belt under Mr. Gibney's armpits and next his rascally skin, he purchased tickets under assumed names for himself, Scraggs, McGuffey and Halvorsen on the liner Hilonian, due to sail at noon next day.

These details attended to, the Maggie II backed away from the dock under her own power and cast anchor off the quarantine station. The mate was then brought on deck and made to confront the syndicate.

"It appears, my man," the commodore began, "that you was too anxious to horn in on the profits o' this expedition, so in a moment o' human weakness you did your employers an evil deed. We had it all figgered out to feed you to the sharks on the way home, because dead men tell no tales, but our sufferin's on that island has caused us all to look with a milder eye on mere human shortcomin's. The Good Book says: 'Forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those what trespass agin us,' an' I ain't ashamed to admit that you owe your wicked life to the fact that Scraggsy's got religion an' McGuffey ain't much better. But we got all the money we need an' we're goin' to Europe to enjoy it, so before we go we're goin' to pass sentence upon you. It is the verdict o' the court that we present you with the power schooner Maggie II free gratis, an' that you accept the same in the same friendly sperrit in which it is tendered. Havin' a schooner o' your own from now on, you won't be tempted to steal one an' commit wholesale murder a-doin' it. You're forgiven, man. Take the Maggie II with our blessin', organize a comp'ny, an' go back to Kandavu an' make some money for yourself. Scraggsy, are you a-willin' to prove that you've given this errin' mate complete forgiveness by shakin' hands with him?"

"I forgive him freely," said Captain Scraggs, "an' here's my fin on it."

The unfortunate mate hung his head. He was much moved.

"You don't mean it, sir, do you?" he faltered.

"I hope I may never see the back o' my neck if I don't," replied the skipper.

"Surest thing you know, brother," shouted Mr. McGuffey and swatted the deluded mate between the shoulders.

The [illegible] Hung His Head. [illegible]

[illegible]

bless himself with. Scraggsy, old tarpot, if we're goin' to turn over a new leaf an' be Christians, let's sail under a full cloud o' canvas."

"By Neptune, that's so, Gib. This feller did us an awful dirty trick, but at the same time there ain't a cowardly bone in his hull carcass. I ain't forgot how he stood to the guns that day off the Coronados when we was attacked by the Mexicans."

"Stake the feller, Gib," advised McGuffey, and wiped away a vagrant tear. He was quite overcome at his own generosity and the manner in which it had touched the hard heart of the iniquitous mate.

Mr. Gibney laid five one-hundred-dollar bills in the mate's palm.

"Good-by," he said gently, "an' see if you can't be as much of a man an' as good a sport hereafter as them you've wronged an' who's forgive you fully and freely."

One by one the three freebooters of the green-pea trade pumped the stricken mate's hand, tossed him a scrap of advice, and went overside into the small boat which was to take them ashore. It was a solemn parting and Mr. Gibney and McGuffey were snuffling audibly.

The next day, as the Hilonian steamed out of the harbor, bearing the syndicate back to San Francisco, they looked across at the little Maggie II for the last time, and observed that the mate was on deck, superintending three Kanaka sailors who were hoisting supplies aboard from a bumboat.

Commodore Gibney bade his first command a misty farewell.

"Good-by, little ship," he yelled and waved his hand. "Gawd! You was a witch in a light wind."

Seven days after leaving Honolulu, the Hilonian steamed into San Francisco bay. The syndicate could not wait until she had tied up at her dock, and the minute the steamer had passed quarantine Mr. Gibney hailed a passing launch. Bag and baggage the happy quartette descended to the launch and landed at Meiggs wharf. Mr. Gibney stepped into the wharfinger's office and requested permission to use the telephone.

"What's up, Gib?" demanded Captain Scraggs.

"I want to 'phone for a automobile to come down an' snake us up town in style. This syndicate ain't a-goin' to come rampin' home to Gawd's country lookin' like a lot o' Eyetalian peddlers. We're goin' to the best hotel an' we're goin' in style."

With the assistance of the wharfinger an automobile was summoned, and in due course the members of the syndicate found themselves ensconced in a fashionable suite in San Francisco's most fashionable hotel. Mr. Gibney stored the syndicate's pearls in the hotel safe, deposited an emergency roll with the hotel clerk, and banked the balance of the company funds in the names of all four; after which the syndicate gave itself up to a period of joy unconfined.

At the end of a week of riot and revelry Mr. Gibney revived sufficiently to muster all hands and lead them to a Turkish bath. Two days in the bath restored them wonderfully, and when the worthy commodore eventually got them back to the hotel he announced that henceforth the lid was on—and on tight. Captain Scraggs, who was hard to manage in his cups and the most prodigal of prodigals with steam up to a certain pressure, demurred at this.

"No more sky-larkin', Scraggsy, you old cut-up," Mr. Gibney ordered. "We had our good time comin' after all that we've been through, but it's time to get down to business agin. Riches has wings, Scraggsy, old salamander, an' even if we are ashore, I'm still the commodore. Now, set around an' we'll hold a meetin'."

He banged the chiffonier with his great fist. "Meetin' o' the Maggie syndicate," he announced. "Meetin'll come to order. The first business before the meetin' is a call for volunteers to furnish a money-makin' idee for the syndicate."

Neils Halvorsen shook his sorrel head. He had no ideas. B. McGuffey, Esquire, shook his head also. Captain Scraggs wanted to sing.

"I see it's up to me to suggest somethin'." Mr. Gibney smiled benignly, as if a money-making idea was the easiest thing on earth to produce. "The last thing I remember before we went to that Turkish bath was as four of us [illegible] a fortune teller an' havin' our fortunes told, past, present an' future, for a dollar a throw. Anybody here remember what his fortune was?"

It appeared that no one remembered, not even Mr. Gibney. He therefore continued:

"The chair will appoint Mr. McGuffey an' himself a committee o' two to wait on one o' these here clairvoyants an' have their fortunes told [illegible]."

[illegible], who was as superstitious [illegible] must have meant Scraggsy or Neils, both bein' blondes—an' she come out of her trance shiverin' an' shakin'.

[illegible]

"'Your fortune lies at sea, my friend,' she kept on sayin'. 'Go forth an' seek it.'

"'Gimme the longitude an' latitude, maam,' I says, 'an' I'll go out.'

"'Look in the shippin' news in the papers tomorrower,' she pipes up. 'Five dollars, please.'"

"You didn't give her five dollars, did you?" gasped Captain Scraggs. "Why, Gib, my dear boy, I thought you was sober."

"So I was."

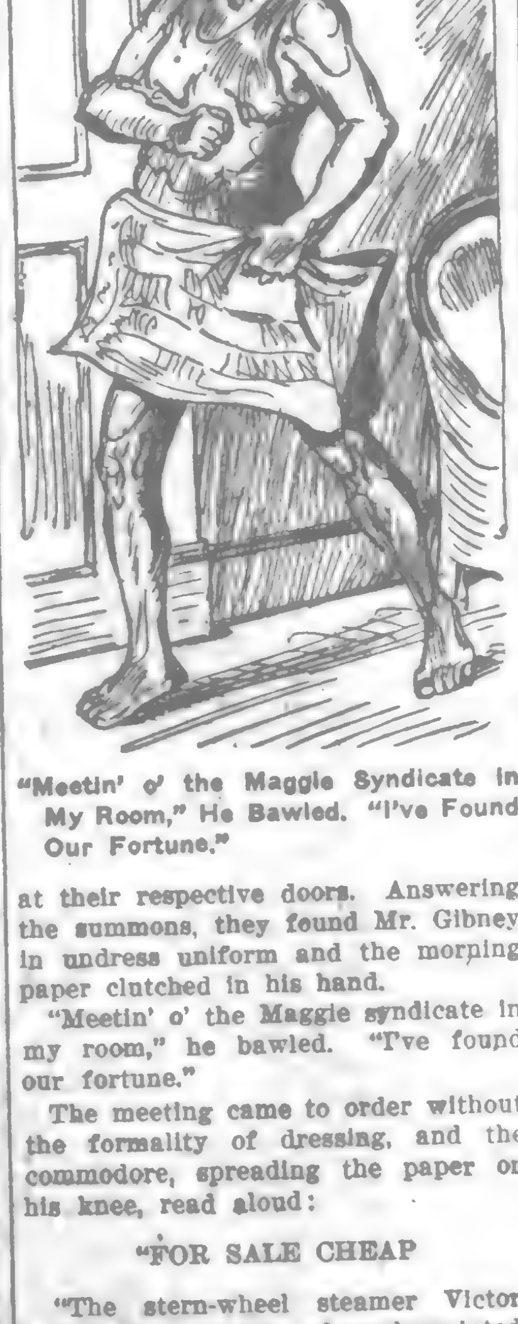
"Then, Gib, all I got to say is that you're a sucker. You want to consult the rest of us before you go throwin' away the funds o' the syndicate on such tom-fool idees as—"

McGuffey saw a storm gathering on Mr. Gibney's brows, and hastened to intervene.

"Meetin's adjourned," he announced, "pendin' the issue o' the papers tomorrow mornin'. Scraggsy, you oughter j'ine the Band o' Hope. You're ugly when you got a drink in you."

Neils Halvorsen interfered to beg a cigar of Mr. Gibney and the affair passed over.

At six o'clock the following morning the numbers of the syndicate were awakened by a prodigious pounding at their respective doors. Answering the summons, they found Mr. Gibney in undress uniform and the morning paper clutched in his hand.



"Meetin' o' the Maggie Syndicate in My Room," He Bawled. "I've Found Our Fortune."

"Meetin' o' the Maggie syndicate in my room," he bawled. "I've found our fortune."

The meeting came to order without the formality of dressing, and the commodore, spreading the paper on his knee, read aloud:

"FOR SALE CHEAP

"The stern-wheel steamer Victor, well found, staunch and newly painted. Boilers and engines in excellent shape. Vessel must be sold to close out an estate. Address John Coakley, Jackson Street wharf."

"How d'ye know she's a fortune, Gib?" McGuffey demanded. "Lemme look at her engines before you get excited."

"I ain't saying she is," Mr. Gibney retorted testily. "Lemme finish readin'!" He continued:

"REPORTS PASSING DERELICT

"The steam schooner Arethusa, Grays Harbor to Oakland Long wharf, reports passing a derelict schooner twenty miles off Point Reyes at six o'clock last night. The derelict was down by the head, and her rail just showed above the water. It was impossible to learn her identity.

"The presence of this derelict in the steamer lanes to North Pacific ports is a distinct menace to navigation, and it is probable that a revenue cutter will be dispatched today to search for the [illegible] and either tow her into port or destroy her."

"[illegible] o' the syndicate, them's the [illegible] in the shippin' [illegible]. The question is, in which lies our fortune?"

[illegible] giving it as his [illegible] fortune-telling [illegible] and [illegible] lay at sea. [illegible] How else, then, could the prophecy be interpreted?

"Well, this steamer Victor isn't ex[illegible] after that there derelict before the revenue cutter gets her an' blows her out o' the path o' commerce with a stick o' dynamite."

[illegible]

Forthwith Mr. Gibney and Neils, after snatching a hasty breakfast, departed for the waterfront, where they chartered a tug for three days and put to sea. At about ten o'clock Captain Scraggs and McGuffey strolled leisurely down to Jackson street wharf to inspect the Victor. By noon they had completed a most satisfactory inspection of the steamer's hull and boilers, and bought her in for seven thousand dollars. Captain Scraggs was delighted. He said she was worth ten thousand. Already he had decided that heavy and profitable freights awaited the syndicate along the Sacramento river, where the farmers and orchardists had been for years the victims of a monopoly and a gentlemen's agreement between the two steamboat lines that plied between Sacramento, Stockton and San Francisco.

On the afternoon of the third day Mr. Gibney and Neils Halvorsen returned from sea. They were unutterably weary and hollow-eyed for lack of sleep.

"Well, I suppose you two suckers found that derelict," challenged McGuffey.

"Yep. Found her an' got a line aboard an' towed her in, an' it was a tough job. She's layin' over on the Berkeley tide flats, an' at lowtide tomorrow we'll go over an' find out what we've got. Don't even know her name yet. She's practically submerged."

"I think you was awful foolish, Gib, buyin' a pig in a poke that way. I don't believe in goin' in blind. Me an' Mac's bought a real ship. We own the Victor."

"I'm dead on my feet," growled the commodore, and jumping into bed he refused to discuss the matter further and was sound asleep in a jiffy.

Mr. Gibney was up bright and early and aroused the syndicate to action. The tide would be at its lowest ebb at nine thirty-one and the commodore figured that his fortune would be lying well exposed on the Berkeley tide flats. He engaged a diver and a small gasoline launch, and after an early breakfast in a chophouse on the Embarcadero they started for the wreck.

They were within half a mile of it, heading right into the eye of the wind, when Captain Scraggs and McGuffey stood erect in the launch simultaneously and sniffed like a pair of—well, sea dogs.

"Dead whale," suggested McGuffey.

"I hope it ain't Gib's fortune," replied Scraggs drily.

"Shut up," bellowed Mr. Gibney. He was sniffing himself by this time, for as the launch swiftly approached the derelict the unpleasant odor became more pronounced.

"Betcher that schooner was in collision with a steamer," Captain Scraggs announced. "She was cut down right through the fo'castle with the watch below sound asleep, an' this here fragrance appeals to me as a sure sign of a job for the coroner."

Mr. Gibney's eyes flashed, but he made no reply. They had rounded the schooner's stern now, and her name was visible.

"Schooner Kadiak, Seattle," read Scraggs. "Little old three sticker a thousand years old an' cut clear through just abaft the foremast. McGuffey, you don't s'pose this here's a pirate craft an' just bulgin' with gold."

"Sure," retorted the engineer with a slow wink, "tainted wealth."

Mr. Gibney could stand their hackling no longer. "Looky here, you two," he bawled out angrily. "I got a hunch I picked up a lemon, but I'm a-willin' to tackle the deal with Neils if you two think I didn't do right by the syndicate a-runnin' up a bill of expense towin' this craft into port. I ain't goin' to stand for no kiddin', even if we are in a five-hundred-dollar towage bill. Man is human an' bound to make mistakes."

"Don't kid the commodore, Scraggsy. This aromer o' roses is more'n a strong man can stand, so cut out the josh."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

WIG TOO SMALL FOR FRANKLIN

Representative From the New America Had to Appear Before French King in Bald Pate.

Benjamin Franklin was about to be presented to the French king on the occasion of his first visit to France in the capacity of representative from the new America. The court custom of the time demanded that one going to an audience with the king must wear a wig of the proper fashion. A count, who had Franklin in tow, sent a wigmaker the day before to take Franklin's measure and fit him out for the audience. The wigmaker arrived at Franklin's lodgings, measured the poll of the great American fore and aft and around and about and [illegible] his departure. An hour before [illegible]

[illegible]

I Eat, Sleep, Work and Feel Better Than in Twenty Years---I Owe This Entirely to

TANLAC

It has made a new man out of me. This experience, related by E. C. Bayne, contractor, of 124 South Honore St., Chicago, may be your experience also if you take Tanlac, the world's most famous system builder. Feel fine, as nature intends you to feel. Get Tanlac today. At all good druggists.

ABSORBINE

will reduce inflamed, swollen Joints, Sprains, Bruises, Soft Bunches; Heals Boils, Poll Evil, Quittor, Fistula and infected sores quickly as it is a positive antiseptic and germicide. Pleasant to use; does not blister or remove the hair, and you can work the horse. $2.50 per bottle delivered.

Book 7 A free.

W. F. YOUNG, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

for that COUGH!
KEMP'S BALSAM
Pleasant to take
Children like it

Without Notice.

He (reading paper)—Here's a note about an accident at White's house. The servant girl put some gunpowder in the fire and she was blown through the roof.

She (sympathetically)—Poor Mrs. White has so much trouble with her girls. That makes the fourth that's left her without giving notice.

"O Happy Day" sang the laundress as she hung the snowy wash on the line. It was a "happy day" because she used Red Cross Ball Blue.—Advertisement.

Almost Nothing at All.

Voice (over the telephone)—What's going on tonight, Biffkins?

Biffkins—Very little. My wife's dressing for the ball.—Wayside Tales.

In marriage he who hesitates is—bossed.

NURSE BEDRIDDEN WITH RHEUMATISM, PRAISES DODD'S.

After trying prescription after prescription—just about ready to give up all hope—Mrs. Martha Hamilton, a prominent nurse of Liberty Hall, Tenn., turned to Dodd's Kidney Pills for relief.

Mrs. Hamilton writes the following: "Am glad to say your Kidney Pills did wonders. They relieved me of rheumatism on account of which I could not walk at times. I used several kinds of medicine, but Dodd's Pills beat them all. Am a nurse in a sanitarium and feel fine and dandy."

Doctors and nurses realize the close connection between weak kidneys and rheumatism. If you suffer the torments of rheumatism and kindred ills, strengthen the kidneys with DODD'S, the old reliable Kidney Pill, used more than two generations and relieving thousands and thousands of sufferers. Get the genuine DODD'S—three D's in name—at your druggist or direct from Dodd's Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y.—a large box costs but 60 cents.

INFLUENZA!
Be on the Safe Side
Kill It Before It Kills You

LANGLEY'S
[illegible]
GILLET GREASE
[illegible]
FOR COUGHS COLDS BRONCHITIS ETC.
"IT PENETRATES"
"YOUR GRANDMOTHER USED IT"
LANGLEY CHEMICAL CO.
ST. [illegible]

[illegible]

PISO'S
[illegible]
for Coughs & Colds
[illegible]

FEBRUARY

AN EXTRAORDINARY ANNOUNCEMENT

You can now buy the most dependable general purpose and guaranteed TRACTOR on the market today, at the followig unheard of prices:

TITAN, 10-20 h.p. $700 complete with 3 bottom plows or International TRACTOR disc harrow and with platform, fenders, lugs, belt, pulleys, and governors. You are backed by the Largest Manufacturers of TRACTORS and Implements in the world.

The International 8-16 with the same equipment, but with 2-bottom plow, instead of 3 $670

Practically speaking the TITAN 10-20 alone would cost you only about...... $500

And the 8-16 about $470 Why buy the cheaper experiments when you can purchase a guaranteed one for about the same money with more power and guaranteed reliability?

Come and talk the proposition over with us; we eliminate your taking any chance

A carload of Farm Fence and a carload of the best white Cedar Posts You ever saw at pre-war Prices. We guarantee a saving to you.

A Special Proposition now on Primrose Cream Separators and International Manure Spreaders.

Our Prices are Lower while the Quality is Maintained And GUARANTEED.

WILLIAM CURIE, . : . St. Joe, Indiana

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

no tax now
LUDEN'S
menthol
cough drops
price 5¢ straight
GIVE QUICK RELIEF
Famous Yellow Package—
53

NEWS OF THE TOWN

Rev. R. B. Daily, Reed [illegible] and Harry Hursh were Ft. Wayne visitors, Monday.

H. M. Widney and wife [illegible] at Auburn guests of their [illegible] Widney and wife.

[illegible]

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Mrs. Pluma Hamilton and daughter, Margaret Elnor, were Saturday guests of Edith Widney.

We like to sell Tanlac because it satisfies our customers. Sheffer's Drug store.

Harry Randall left the middle of the past week for Ottawa, Ohio, where he has a position as repairman in a garage.

Eugene Cook, of near Cedarville, spent Monday afternoon calling on his cousins, Mesdames Anna Koch and Nan Lysher.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway spent Thursday at Auburn a guest of her daughter, Mrs. Abe Mason and family.

Mrs. Alice Gee will be hostess to the W. C. T. U., Friday afternoon. An interesting program is being prepared.

Mrs. Cal Chorpenning came Tuesday night from Garrett to spend several days in the George Kees home.

For Sale—Pure bred Plymouth and white Wyandotte eggs.—Buren Houcks, Butler, Indiana Route 4.

J. R. Culbertson has sold his home at Orangeville and is going to move to St. Joe in the near future where he has rented the [illegible] property.

[illegible]

Tanlac is one medicine that does what they say it will do. Dr. Sheffer's drug store.

S. L. Widney is visiting his niece, Mrs. Mayville Ludwick Lockhart at Lexington, Ohio, for a few days.

One hundred and twenty-six thousand officers and men are now enrolled in the National Guard of the United States.

Darwin Frye, wife and daughter Virginia, who have been visiting in the Abe Mason home at Auburn spent over Sunday here with their parents, Charles Frye and wife, and Mrs. Belle Ridgway.

In a recent showing at the Indiana Butter Manufacturers Association ar Purdue University, Schlosser Bros., took the four highest scores. These winnings will bring to Schlosser Bros., the State Silver Cup.

C. C. Woodcox and C. P. Bassett had a narrow escape from injury Monday forenoon, while driving in an Overland roadster to Ft. Wayne; when they hae passed through Spencerville, the left front spindle broke, the wheel ran off and the car skidded some forty feet before it could be stopped. Fortunately the car [illegible] turn and the men [illegible] injured in anyway.

Dr. E. O. [illegible]

[illegible]

R. D. Herrick began driving his taxi to Fort Wayne Monday, after a six weeks enforced vacation caused by being quarantined five weeks for smallpox.

Judge D. M. Link has reappointed Herman L. Brown of Auburn and Albert N. Thrush as jury commissioners for the DeKalb circuit court for the coming year. These men have served as commissioners during the entire time that Judge Link has been on the bench. The compensation for their sevices will amount to $36 a year.

Christian Church Notes

Preaching services next Sunday evening at 7:00; Christian Endeavor at 6:00. All are welcome.

The morning services will be in charge of the Loyal Boys and Girls Class. The Scripture lesson will be Mark 14: 1-31.

Miss Doris Hindman will entertain the Loyal Boys and Girls Class, Friday evening. A full attendance is desired. Be there by 7 o'clock.

The Personal Evangelist Class will meet Friday night with Mrs. Belle Woodcox.

Butler School Addition

[illegible]

--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight
SPECIALIST
of Ft. Wayne, Indiana
WILL BE AT
Dr Price's Dentist Office, St joe, Ind.,
Friday, FEBRUARY 24th

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174
For Sale at your Dealer
Made in five grades
ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND
EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

What God Says.

[illegible]

[illegible]

filed in the DeKalb circuit court by Eli M. Keener against Fred H. and Mary Donley.

According to the complaint the defendants on Dec. 27, [illegible] four notes of $[illegible] each payable to Harmon A. [illegible], bearing [illegible] per cent interest. [illegible]

MARCH

MARCH

L 91

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MAR. 2, 1922 NO. 9

—WHY—

PAY HIGH PRICES?

When you can buy

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suits at	$26.25
Club Clothes at	$10 to 18.75
Overcoats at	$10 to 25.00
Heavy Cotton Underwear (the suit) at	$1.15
Heavy Cotton Sweaters, with collar at	95c
Solid Leather Shoes at	$2.45
Heavy Blue Work Shirts at	65c
Sheep Skin Coats at	$6.00

All our Winter Clothing and Underwear at 1-4 OFF

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

The Coal That gives satisfaction is the COAL to buy. Every pound of our Hocking Valley and Buffalo White Ash is a pound of satisfaction. There are cheaper Coals but not as satisfactory. Order now and get the Best that money will buy.

Tankage--Cotton Seed Meal--Oil Meal--Bran and Middlings--Armour's Hog and Stock Feeds.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Let Us Be Your Bookkeeper

A checking account can be made a very convenient system of bookkeeping, commending itself especially to those people who feel that they do not have enough business to justify the keeping of an elaborate set of books. Your deposits can be made to represent your receipts, and your checks your expenditures. The stubs of your check book will be your record, which will require very little time to keep up to date.

We would be pleased to have you call and let us explain more fully the advantages of a checking account. [illegible] We can give you the names of people who have found checking business with us [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Report Concord Twp. Sunday Schools 1921

	Christian	St. Joe M. P.	Lutheran	Concord M. P.
Number of officers and teachers	15	14	14	26
Number of scholars	144	90	110	50
Total	159	104	124	76
Average attendance	77	72	80	54
	Boys-Girls	Boys-Girls	Boys-Girls	Boys-Girls
Enrollment by divisions, children	18 13	6 15	23 15	5 5
" " " young people	21 26	26 11	22 8	10 10
	Men-Wom.	Men-Wom.	Men-Wom.	Men-Wom.
Enrollment by divisions, adult	24 42	24 22	28 14	10 10
Cradle Roll	21	3	11	10
Home Department	4	3	12	7
No. yng. peoples classes chartered	2	4	2	2
No. adult classes chartered	3	2	4	3
No. doing teachers training work	16	0	1	2
No. additions to church from S. S.	17	3	7	0

All four schools are graded and equipped.

All four schools have regular missionary instruction and offering.

All four schools have Temperance instruction.

Three schools observed decision day.

Two schools met denominational requirements.

All four schools were represented in convention.

All made annual offering to township, county and state.

Christian and Lutheran schools graded 100%.

The St. Joe and Concord M. P.s graded 80%.

St. Joe M. P. did not have a teachers training class and did not meet denominational requirements—10% off for each. tional requirements—10% off for each.

Concord did not observe decision day and did not meet denominational requirements—10% off for each.

These points are easily reached and it is hoped these schools will make an effort to reach the 100% standard this year.

Farmers' Short Course A Big Success

St. Joe did not fall far short of other Indiana towns that put on Farmers' Short Courses this winter even though it is the smallest place to undertake such a thing. The Purdue men in charge stated their satisfaction of the whole affair as they left last Wednesday night following the final session; and they assurred us that St. Joe should feel confident that a second attempt for a Short Course would be readily considered.

The total registration reached the number of 750, which means that at least 750 different persons attended one or more of the sessions. Some, perhaps, were in attendance to only one of the meetings while many attended every session. The highest number of women attending any one of their sessions was 198; the highest number attending the Men's sessions was 200; and for the mixed meetings the number reached over 400.

The rain on Tuesday and the thaw made the roads very bad and people from a distance were compelled to stay away. Had it not been for this draw back it is certain that the registration would have reached 1,000 persons.

On Monday night, the only meeting for which admission was charged, the registration taken was for membership for the next year's Farmers' Institute, 285 cards were signed.

No one can deny having received some good from the splendid service given by Mr. Jones on Poultry; Mr. Schwab on Hogs; Mr. Frier on Corn; and Miss Boston on Home Economic subjects, for all talks and demonstrations were absolutely practical, and many new ideas were suggested. The interest was intense.

The hog demonstration held in the Garage under Mr. Schwab seemed of most interest, if any distinction [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank	5.00
C. O. Johnson, Donations	9.75
S. S. Widney, On Repairs	4.00
TOTAL	195.75

Expenditures:

Elgin Curie, Hall Rent	$ 31.00
St. Joe News, Programes	32.50
St. Joe News, Printing	25.00
Chas. Koch, Rooms	4.50
Lora Leighty, Rooms	3.00
Ada Berry, Rooms	1 00
G. M. Frier, Traveling expenses	8.68
L. G. Gardner, " "	10.49
LeRoy Jones, " "	9.89
J. W. Schwab, " "	9.89
Florence Boston, " "	8.52
Mrs. H. O. Waltz, Expenses	1.66
M. P. Church, "	7.50
Lutheran Church, "	7.50
St. Joe Dramatic Co., "	6.00
Vern Coburn & Gerald Kinsey, Work each $1.25	2.50
Morris Curie, Work	7.00
E. R. Kinsey, Material	5.00
Gerald Kinsey, work .50; F. D. Kinsey, work $1.50	2.00
A. E. Coburn, Work	2.03
B. & O., R. R., Express	1.78
J. H. Harter, Auto	2.00
TOTAL	$189.44
Mrs. F. R. Bowman, Sample plays	.91
	190.35
Lenore Moore, Material play	1.50
	191.85
BALANCE	$ 3.90

F. R. BOWMAN.

The various committees desire to thank everyone for their hearty cooperation in making this Short Course a grand success.

Choral Society to Give Easter Cantata

The Choral Society is preparing to render a cantata, "Easter Angels" by Fearis, on Easter, April 16th.

Rehearsals are being held each week on Tuesday evening at seven o'clock. The meeting next Tuesday evening will be held at the home of Mrs. Frank Bowman. The Society has accepted an invitation to sing at the Farmers' Federation on the evening of the 17th of March, at Widney's opera house.

The following comprise the membership of the Society, which is [illegible]:

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Baker, Mrs. [illegible], Mrs. Frank Bowman, Mrs. Frank Curie, Mrs. Paul Curie, Mrs. R. B. Daily, Mrs. Dermott, [illegible], Mrs. Ray [illegible], Mrs. Ed Leighty, Mrs. Fred Leighty, C. S. Johnson, Mrs. C. O. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Koch, [illegible], Merritt Sechler, [illegible] and Mrs. William [illegible], [illegible], [illegible] Tustison, [illegible] Widney, Mr. and Mrs. H. M. [illegible], Mrs. [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] AUDITOR

[illegible]

ST. JOE GARAGE: Boost St. Joe

IT'S HIGH TIME you were making arrangements to have your automobile overhauled if you expect to get the maximum amount of pleasure and satisfaction the coming spring and summer seasons.

Delays always means disappointment. No one can tell just what conditions exist until the working parts of your automobile have been examined. Some may be broken. Some worn out. In either case they must be replaced. This requires time and the amount of it depends, to a large extent, on the model of your automobile.

These blustery days are just the days to do "waiting" jobs. Later when the sun will be shining every day, you'll be ready. ☞ A modern shop and competent workmen await your pleasure.

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 95.

6 per ct.

Money to Lend on Farms

LOANS to be secured by First Mortgage for not to exceed 40% value of land alone, excluding improvements.

LOANS for more than 40% of land value at 7%

Call at our office for complete information about our conditions and terms, which are attractive.

The Straus Brothers Company,

LIGONIER, INDIANA. Established 1860

What God Says.

Keep thy tongue from evil and thy lips from speaking guile. Depart from evil and do good; seek peace and pursue it.

The face of the Lord is against them that do evil to cut off the rememberance of them from the earth.

Expresses Thanks.

I desire through The News to express my thanks and appreciation to my many friends and neighbors who remembered me in my sickness with beautiful flowers, cards and other rememberances. My health is fast improving.

Mrs. Chas. Tustison.

SALE IS CLOSING.

The PATTERSON - FLETCHER CO. at Fort Wayne is closing its [illegible] SALE this week [illegible] sensational bargains. [illegible] a Safety Razor [illegible] and a $1 [illegible]

[illegible]

"Action"

The High school will present this highly entertaining five-reel star production next Saturday night at the school building. We had an exceptionally good show last Saturday night, but a small crowd.

We also offer "Brownie's Baby Doll," a Jewel Comedy.

Admission 15 and 25c. Show begins at 7:30.

The Mill Is Running

The St. Joe saw-mill was set in motion Monday morning after a standstill of several months. The welcome whistle at the noon hour blasted forth in the old familiar way, making things seem like coming back to life.

E. P. Brown, who has been buying and hauling timber for a Fort Wayne firm, is running the mill and expects to keep it in operation until the large piles of logs now in the mill yard are all sawed.

The logs are sawed here only into rough plank lumber suitable for good shipping. It is then hauled to the Wabash tracks and shipped to Ft. Wayne.

It is probable that Mr. Brown will be buying more timber soon, [illegible]

[illegible]

MARCH

L 912

2076

Spring Hats in the Big Shops

If you want to see a fresh promise of spring and all the clothes that season brings with it, then walk on Fifth avenue and look at the bright new hats in the windows, advises a fashion writer in the New York Times. They at least are all ready and waiting for warmer days to come; and, in fact, they are even begging prettily to be worn right now. Many of them are so happily constructed that their materials seem to say: "Here is something more suitable for this time of year than the hat you have on." Now, you know, that is the most fatal sort of temptation. For who does not secretly long for a new hat at this season of the year?

The next most inspirational thing to do is to watch the models as they try on these brilliant new creations and see just exactly how they should be worn. For it is the posing of a hat, after all, that gives its true style; without its proper and destined angle it amounts to nothing; one must not only have courage and coin enough to buy new things in headgear, but one must then understand how to wear them effectively if the best appearance in the world is to be the outcome.

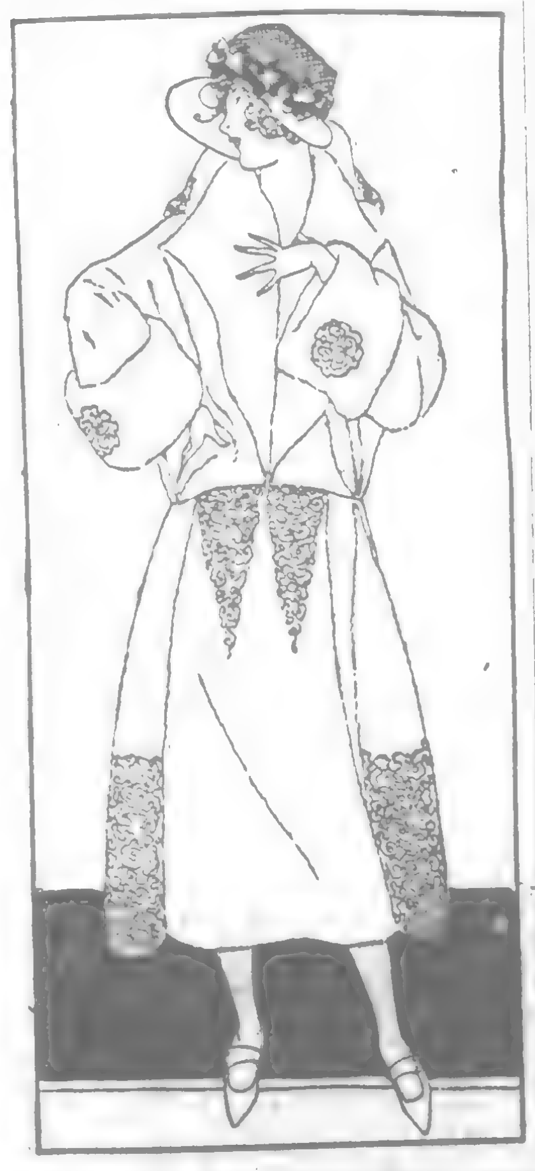
Almost Obscure the Eyes.

The new hats set straight over the eyes, but they manage almost to obscure the eyes nevertheless. At one time they contented themselves with obliterating from sight the right eye, but there is nothing of that partiality shown now. The newer hats push down over both eyes, regardless of whether they are right or left, and to the discretion of the wearer is left the decision of whether she shall be allowed to see her way clearly before her or not.

After they have attended to this little duty, which is a cast-iron ruling of the season, then the hats or turbans or toques or whatever they may be, go forth upon various ways of their own. Really they seem to be allowed the greatest amount of latitude about the shapes in which they shall appear.

They turn away from the face, many of them. It is a sharp, sure turning, but it does not stop at that. Having achieved the upward spread that it is sure to have, it then spreads on to the sides—down, or out, or drooping at the back. In some way or other the brim of the most modern of hats creates a sweep that is conspicuously appropriate.

The hats are neither small nor large, but most of them, just now, keep to a decided middle distance, making them vastly becoming to the average face. When they have any tendency to smallness, then their trimming in some way draws out the line and gives the silhouette of the hat a broader, more expensive appearance. There seems to be none of those ultra-tight little affairs which were popular for so long. They have something added always to give them more form and shape than those which hugged the head so tightly.



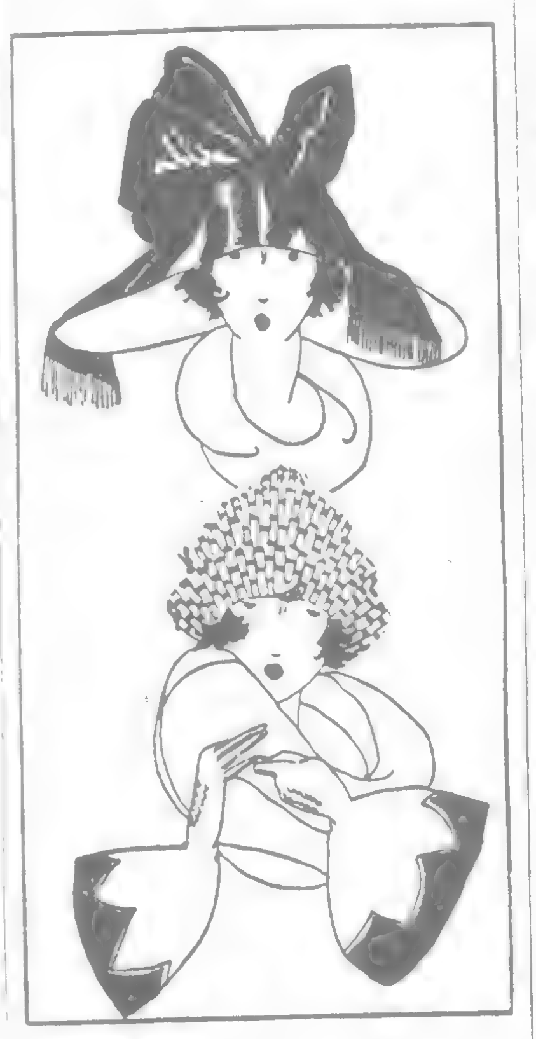
White Wool Embroidered Coat; Black and White Hat to Go With It.

The Matter of Trimmings.

It is in the matter of trimmings, perhaps, where the new hats excel and show their freshness. There is not much trimming, mind you—nothing resembling overcrowding—but what is there is so perfectly arranged and composed with the hat and its shape that it leaves nothing to be desired. While the trimming is in every way conspicuous, it is so rather because of its rarity and individualism than because of its overabundant quantity.

Ribbon, in bows and loops and ends, is one of the favored trimmings for the spring, and it certainly is pleasant to see this being used to so great an extent. Women always find ribbons becoming. They can be twisted and turned and puffed in so many fascinating ways that the hat with ribbon trimming inevitably becomes a flattering thing to wear. Then there is the new craze for moire, which brings with it a moire ribbon to be used on hats. One hat among the newer ones has a brim made entirely of this sort of ribbon, carelessly puffed into the crown to form a softly rolling brim. Over the left ear the brim disappears almost entirely and there two-wired pointed ends of the ribbon stick straight out into the air. The softly folded crown is then made in velvet and the hat is complete.

Another ribbon-trimmed hat shows a large and rolling brim, and is rather broader in proportion to most of the hats now seen. It is made of a lightish brown straw, and then it has a wide taffeta peach-colored ribbon drawn tightly over the facing of the brim toward the front, where at the brim's peak it is tied into a stiff, upward standing bow. It is a most unusual sort of hat and a very interesting one, though it is so decidedly new in character that one must have temerity to wear it as a pattern for the rest of the world to follow.



Example of Black Satin Bow on Picture Hat; Hat Made of Match Sticks in Red and Black.

Use of Grosgrain Ribbon.

Grosgrain ribbon is used to make whole, shaped brim turbans. It has so much body that almost anything can be done with it and many of the newer hats will be found to have their starting point in grosgrain, with a little straw to help them out. Some of these hats succeed in looking like miniature airplanes, so winglike are the arrangements of ribbon that float away at one side or the other, or sometimes from both sides, of the closely fitting crown.

Ribbon that is narrow and plaited and formed into various sorts of rosettes is another favorite type of trimming, and, like the grosgrain brims just described, these succeed in making the hat more or less, once they start out to trim it. A yellow hat of straw with quite a Chinese shape to it, pointing up over the eyes, has a series of black plaited rosettes arranged in regular succession around its brim.

Then satin ribbon is used in loops upon loops, drooping down at one side from hats that are stiff and unrelenting in all other directions. It is interesting to see these little, quite borderlike turbans suddenly take it into their heads to show all that squashy ribbon on one side, and, besides giving to the hat a jaunty quality to become the face, the ribbon carries out the design most gracefully.

Repeating the idea from many of the spring frocks, ribbon is again formed into points and semi-circles to trim the rounded brims of some of the hats. For instance, round the upward turning and round brim of a little red hat there was a row of red ribbon points peeping from behind the brim's edge. This made the hat, for there was no other form of trimming to be seen, and, while the ribbon was exactly the same tone as the straw of the hat, it had a decidedly decorative quality about it and gave the smartest sort of a look to the little novelty.

Other Styles of Hats.

A hat made of black satin had black satin ribbon drawn over its crown into two stiff bows, which jutted out at the right side. And another hat of the same foundation material had a stiff bow of black ribbon set across the back, so that its sweep showed from the front as an outline for that portion of the silhouette.

Beads are having a great opportunity as far as the newer spring hats are concerned. There is nothing obvious or at all passe about the way in which they are handled, but the rule seems to be that, if originality comes into the game at all, beads and dangles and spangles are quite the nicest thing to use. For instance, most of the beads used are large and ornamental and clear as crystal whether they are in colors or in pure white. There are loops of [illegible] over the ears or across the [illegible] or across the [illegible] about the hat.

GOOD HIGHWAYS

APPROVE HIGHWAY PROJECTS

Funds Aggregating $10,389,516.58 Allotted Toward Construction of Public Roads.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Construction of public roads continues rapidly. During the first quarter of the current fiscal year, or the three months ending September 30, highway projects in 38 states were approved and federal aid funds aggregating $10,389,516.58 were allotted toward their construction by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. Additional projects have been approved since September 30, and others are under consideration.

The length of the projects approved during the three months is 1,400 miles, exclusive of a number of important bridges which, when constructed, will measure slightly more than two miles in length, all told. Total cost of the approved projects is estimated at $25,353,848.39; total cost of the bridges at $1,478,146.77, bringing the grand total up to $26,831,994.72. Of this sum the states will pay about $16,500,000, or more than three-fifths of the total.

Up to the beginning of the current fiscal year the department has approved projects totaling 35,402 miles in length, costing approximately $587,321,323. Of the total cost of construction federal-aid funds had been allotted to the extent of $202,764,414. The foregoing figures cover mileage and cost of all roads approved by the department since the inception of federal aid. Considering the allotments since the beginning of the current fiscal year, the department has approved, from the inception of federal aid to September 30 last, roads totaling 36,802 miles in length and costing $614,153,318. Toward their construction the federal government has allotted a grand total of $213,153,931, or more than 34 per cent.

Projects approved during the three months ending September 30 are located in Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

Accidents Are to Be Expected at a Grade Crossing of This Kind.

Most of the mileage thus approved embraces graded earth, sand-clay and gravel roads. Of those types of roadway, the department approved projects totaling 1,044.7 miles. The cost of constructing these roads, comparatively small, will total $10,949,286.17 it is estimated, and of that sum a total of $4,388,995.62 has been allotted from federal-aid funds.

Various kinds of macadam roads, bituminous macadam predominating, total 90.45 miles in length. Construction of these roads will cost approximately $2,944,771.56, and of this sum federal-aid funds to the extent of $1,281,920.16 will be available under the department's approval.

Roads of the highest type to be constructed of concrete, bituminous concrete, brick and block, total 264.75 miles in length, and are estimated to cost $11,459,790.66. Toward their construction the government has allotted from federal-aid funds $4,012,646.35. The total estimated cost of the various bridges to be built incidental to construction of the highways is placed at $1,478,146.77, of which federal-aid funds of $710,954.45 are available.

To Undertake Survey.

The bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture will shortly undertake a survey of the mileage, cost, character of construction and general condition of the highways throughout the country.

Build Roads for People.

In deciding on the kind and quality of roads to be built, it would be well for the state authorities to keep in mind the fact that the roads are to be built for the people and not merely for the contractors.

[illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR MARCH 5

JEHOVAH'S MERCY TO A HEATHEN CITY

LESSON TEXT—Jonah 3:1-4:11.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.—Isa. 55:7.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Isa. 45:20-25; 49:5-7; Jonah 1:1-2:10; Mal. 1:10, 11; John 3:16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Sends Jonah on an Errand.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How God Spared a Wicked City.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jonah's Missionary Adventure.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Missionary Teaching of the Book of Jonah.

That the book of Jonah is historical we believe for the following reasons: First, its record and use in the Scriptures. That the writers of the Bible intended the impression of its historicity is without the shadow of a doubt. The suggestion that it is a parable is absolutely gratuitous. Second, the unbroken testimony of tradition among the Jews is that it is historic. Third, the testimony of Jesus Christ (Matt. 12:39-41). The words of Jesus Christ are final.

I. Jonah's Second Commission (vv. 1, 2).

When called the first time to go to Nineveh, he found the task too great for him. For his unfaithfulness, he was chastised. He repented and God restored his commission. The Lord said to him, "Preach the preaching that I bid thee" (v. 2). God knows how he wants His work done. Happy is the missionary, minister, Sunday-school teacher, who preaches God's Word just as He gave it.

II. Jonah's Preaching (vv. 3, 4).

1. His field (v. 3). "Nineveh was an exceeding great city." Not only was the city large, but its inhabitants were noted for their cruelty.

2. His message (v. 4). "Yet forty days and Nineveh shall be overthrown." This means that forty days were given by God for repentance ere the judgment would fall. God is long-suffering, not willing that any should perish, but that all should repent (II Pet. 3:9). Though He is merciful, yet there is a limitation to it. He says, "Yet forty days."

III. The Repentance of Nineveh (vv. 5-10).

1. They believed God (v. 5). They believed that God was speaking to them through the prophet about their sins and impending judgment.

2. They proclaimed a fast (vv. 5-8). The king and people joined sincerely in this movement. The call was for them to turn away from their sins. Their penitence was genuine, for they not merely put on sackcloth, the visible sign of mourning, but they cried to God (v. 8).

3. They reasoned that God would repent (v. 9). Though they had no assurance that God would have mercy, yet they reasoned that the sending of a prophet and the giving of a time before the fall of doom implied that God would be merciful if they repented. They were wise in so doing. We today know that God will have mercy if we repent (Acts 3:19). What utter folly to go on in sin in the face of the assurance that God will judge.

5. God's mercy shown (v. 10). "God saw their works that they turned from their evil way." God's eye is omniscient. Wherever there is a soul who is turning from sin in penitence, He sees. No one has ever wept over sin unnoticed by God. God rejoices when a sinner repents (Luke 15:10).

In the Book of Jonah we have portrayed the typical history of Israel:

"1. Jonah was called to a world mission, and so was Israel. (2) Jonah at first refused compliance with the divine purpose and plan, and so did Israel. (3) Jonah was punished by being cast into the sea, and so was Israel by being dispersed among the nations. (4) Jonah was not lost, but rather especially preserved during this part of his experience, and Israel is not being assimilated by the nations, but being kept for God. (5) Jonah, repentant and cast out by the fish, is restored to life and action again, and Israel, repentant and cast out by the nations, shall be restored to her former national position. (6) Jonah, obedient, goes upon his mission to Nineveh, and Israel obedient, shall ultimately engage in her original mission to the world. (7) Jonah is successful in that his message is acted upon to the salvation of Nineveh, so Israel shall be blessed in that she shall be used to the conversion of the whole world."—Dr. Gray's Commentary.

The Apostles Work Wonders.

And by the hands of the apostles were many signs and wonders wrought among the people. And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women.—Acts 5:12-14.

[illegible]

[illegible]

True Detective Stories

BOLAND, ALIAS GARDNER

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

When Hyman and Hess, dealers in cloaks and suits on State street, Albany, N. Y., sent a check for $38.77 to Reis and Blum, garment manufacturers in New York city, they didn't have the slightest idea that they were starting a chain of evidence which would land one of the cleverest crooks in America behind the bars.

A few days later, before the New York firm had had time to report the nonarrival of the check and thus permit Hyman and Hess to look into the matter, a young man came into the National Commercial bank in Albany and presented a check for $380, made out to "Bearer." The date on the check, filled in with a rubber stamp, corresponded to the day on which it was presented, and the man who handed it to the paying teller mentioned casually that the check "was to cover an option" and that he had to hurry back to New York in order to complete the transaction. The paying teller, feeling certain that the signature was genuine, cashed the check, and the man who had presented it walked out of the bank with $380 in his pocket.

When Hyman and Hess had their account balanced they found that they were exactly $380 short—for the original check had never reached its New York destination, but had been lifted out of the mail box by one of a gang of clever criminals, the body of the check erased with an ink eradicator and the date and amount filled in on top of the original signature.

"Only one man in the country could have done that and gotten away with it," growled George A. Fuller, assistant superintendent of the Pinkerton Detective agency, when the bank called the details of the case to his attention. "It's Boland's work!"

"Yes, Boland," replied Fuller. "Or Gardner, as he sometimes calls himself. He's got a regular organization for this sort of thing. Trains boys to loot the mail boxes, washes the checks with an acid preparation of his own invention, writes in a higher amount, makes them payable to 'Bearer,' and then another of his tools cashes them."

"If you know so much about the man," asked the amazed banker, "why hasn't he been arrested long before this?"

"It's easy enough to arrest a man," was Fuller's reply, "but it is sometimes very difficult to convict him. So far as the actual check-raising goes, Boland plays a lone hand. What's more, he pays his men well, and takes care of them if they happen to get caught. So far, none of 'em has turned state's evidence, and until they do—or until we catch Boland red-handed—there's nothing to do but be careful. We've got our eyes on him. He can't move without our knowing it."

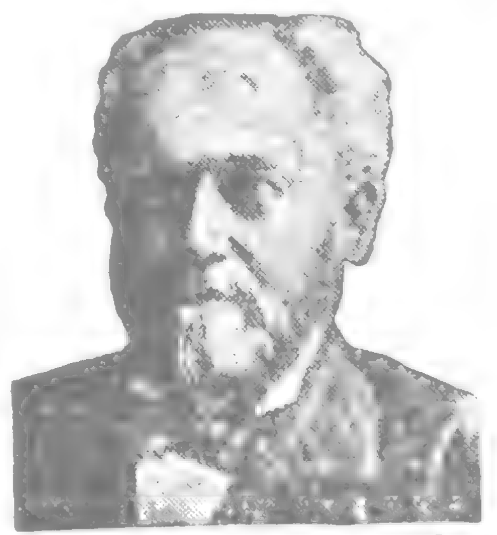
Warned by Hyman and Hess check that the Boland outfit was once more conducting operations in New York state, the Pinkerton man kept close watch on all persons suspected of belonging to the organizations, with the result that three men were arrested and sentenced to terms in prison. But all of them steadfastly refused to implicate the "man higher up."

Finally Boland and three of his associates were arrested in Boston, after Fuller had shadowed a boy whom he suspected of robbing a mail box. Dano, the boy, and Devine, another of the organization, drew short terms for petty larceny, but Boland escaped on account of a technicality, and moved to New York where he tried to continue his operations. But the New York police and particularly Commissioner George S. Dougherty, made things so difficult, that he was soon reduced to the expedient of securing checks wherever he could—a necessity which led to the fatal slip which Fuller had predicted.

Out of the mail box of an up-town apartment house, one of Boland's apprentices secured a check for $50, made out to a real estate company in payment of the rental for one of the apartments. It was child's play for Boland to wash off the original name and amount and to write in the words "Bearer" and "Two Hundred and Eleven Dollars." Once that was done, he had a perfectly good check (apparently) and he sent one of his men down to the bank on which the check was drawn, with minute instructions as to the cashing of it. But the cashier, being suspicious of a check of that size being made out to "Bearer"—particularly as he knew that the woman whose signature appeared upon it was very careful in her financial dealings—declined to cash it, and Boland's man returned with a story of having been watched and therefore very fearful to approach the paying window.

Boland, in a spirit of bravado, again altered the check, this time making it out in the name of "William Hath" and set forth to cash the check himself, something which he had never before attempted. One glance at the odd amount—$211.—and the recollection that a check of similar size had been presented that morning, payable to "Bearer," was enough to convince the paying teller that something was wrong. The Pinkertons were immediately notified and Boland was caught, [illegible]

[illegible]



FIFTY YEARS AGO

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce, who finally made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and moving to Buffalo, N. Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womankind. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged-down by weaknesses of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's [illegible] ite Prescription has entirely erad[illegible] their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called An-uric (for kidneys and backache), has been [illegible] cessfully used by many thousands [illegible] write Dr. Pierce of the benefits [illegible] ceived—that their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial pkg. of any of his remedies, or write for free medical advice.

We may put off doing unpleasant duties, but we never forget them.

THE MAN WHO LOOKS VIGOROUS

Good red blood is the only sure foundation of Permanent Health and Vigor.

Good color, bright eyes, [illegible] erect bearing are depe[illegible] red blood. If your blood [illegible] the mark your general [illegible] be. Late hours, eating the [illegible] working indoors, fatigue [illegible] blood. So many people [illegible] take exercise, yet never [illegible] prove in health. Gude's [illegible] taken regularly for a wh[illegible] blood that richness and [illegible] produces bounding health [illegible] It is a simple, natural way [illegible] and strong. Gude's Pepto[illegible] comes in liquid or tablets—at [illegible] druggist's. Advertisement.

The man who gets as large a salary as he thinks he deserves is overpaid.

DYED HER BABY'S COAT, A SKIRT AND CURTAINS WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her old, worn, faded things new. Even if she has never dyed before, she can put a new, rich color into shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything. Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.—Advertisement.

An old bachelor says that time is the only cure for lovesickness.

Mothers of the World

Mothers!! Write for 32-Page Booklet, "Mothers of the World"

Pat. Process Lloyd Loom Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture

Use This Coupon

The Lloyd Mfg. Company
(Heywood-Wakefield Co.)
Menominee, Mich.
(31)

The Lloyd Mfg. Co.
(Heywood-Wakefield Co.)
Dept. E
Menominee, Mich.
Please send me your booklet, "Mothers of the World."

Name..........
Street..........
City.......... State..........

AT ALL DRUG STORES
AT THE FIRST SIGN OF A COLD—USE
HILL'S CASCARA QUININE
WORLD'S Standard Cold and La Grippe remedy. Demand red box bearing Mr. Hill's portrait and signature.
W. H. HILL COMPANY, DETROIT
(101)
PRICE 30 CENTS

Shave With Cuticura Soap The New Way Without Mug

FOR SALE—MILD CLIMATE MARYLAND [illegible]
J. A. J[illegible] Md.

MARCH

L 91

INDIANA STATE NEWS

Indianapolis.—Organization of a state-wide purchasing agents' association is to be undertaken by the Indianapolis Purchasing Agents' association within the next 30 days, it was announced. Plans for the organization work were recently discussed at a meeting of the Indianapolis association. They call for visits to cities where organization meetings are to be held by a committee from the Indianapolis association. There are several hundred members of the national organization in Indiana, but Indianapolis has the only local association. After the local associations have been organized meetings will be held by the Indianapolis organization each month to be attended by representatives from all parts of the state.

Corydon.—Charles Dowden, Indiana State bank examiner, who has been investigating the condition of the Farmers' Savings and Trust company, which was operated in connection with the Corydon National bank, has found that the deposits amounted to about $170,000. He said the loss from bad loans will approximate $75,000. William H. Morgan, national bank examiner, still has charge of the Corydon National bank. The bank and trust company were closed a few days ago by the examiners. The shortge has been estimated at more than $340,000. Steps have been taken by Corydon business men to organize a state bank with a capital stock of at least $60,000.

Terre Haute.—The executive committee of the Indiana Bituminous Coal Operators' association, at a meeting in Terre Haute, decided that the Indiana operators would take part in a conference with representatives of the United Mine Workers at Cleveland March 2 only on condition that operators in other states express a willingness to participate in the meetings. The proposed conference is desired by the mine workers to make arrangements for a joint conference of miners and operators to negotiate a new wage agreement for the central competitive field. The present agreement ends March 31.

Indianapolis.—"The state will not build a mile of concrete road this year unless we get a lower cement price," Charles Zeigler, chairman of the state highway commission, has announced. The commission and Governor McCray conferred regarding what they should do about cement prices offered to the state by cement companies recently. The prices in a number of instances were identical and the state officials believe they are being held up by an illegal trust and have been investigating.

Newcastle.—Resolutions recommending the abolishment of the state board of tax commissioners were among those adopted by the Farmers' federation officers and county agents of the Eighth farm district, in session at Newcastle. Other resolutions expressed opposition to the teachers' minimum wage law and to a soldier bonus. William Bosson of Indianapolis was chairman of the resolutions committee.

Indianapolis.—Former Gov. James P. Goodrich sailed from New York to resume his work in connection with the American famine relief in Russia. He expects to remain abroad for a year. Mrs. Goodrich will pass much of the time in Paris, possibly later joining her husband in Russia. The ex-governor's trip to Russia is the second made since his retirement as Indiana's chief executive.

Elwood.—The Elwood park board gave approval to the conversion of the former Kramer land, the first park the city possessed, into a motor camping site for automobile tourists. City water and electric lights, with other improvements needed for such a place will be put in at once and the Hoosier Motor association of the state notified.

Ft. Wayne.—The Indiana Letter Carriers' association, in the final session of its annual convention at Ft. Wayne, elected the following officers: Lloyd Stough, Kokomo, president; Ben Wright, Evansville, vice-president; Henry Guyer, Ft Wayne, secretary, Edgar L. Minnich, Indianapolis, treasurer; Harry E. Young, of Richmond, chairman of the executive committee.

Marion.—An announcement that the next move of the Grant County Agricultural association would be appointment of committees in each of the 18 townships in the county to act as a check on unnecessary expenditure of township and county funds, was made by Lewis L. Needler, president of the organization, following a meeting regarding taxation.

Indianapolis.—Frank Hatfield of Evansville was unanimously elected governor of the Indiana district [illegible]

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—A committee, composed of a representative of each of the congressional districts in Indiana, to investigate conditions in the members' respective territories and report to the executive committee of the Indiana Federation of Farmers' associations, was appointed at a meeting in Indianapolis in officials and members of sixty-two of the ninety-two county farmers' organizations and the state board of tax commissioners. The meeting was called by the federation to discuss farm tax valuations with the tax board. The executive committee of the federation, after it hears the reports of the special committee, will make recommendations to the tax commissioners.

Lafayette.—Prediction that there will be no fruit in Indiana the coming year was made by Albert Miles of Marshall, Parke county, a farmer, who says he has forecasted accurately the fruit crop for the last 20 years. Miles has thus informed the Purdue university horticulturists. He bases his prediction on the fact that the wind blew from the south as the sun crossed the equator last September, which means an open winter and frosts in the spring, which, he says, will ruin the crop. J. H. Armington, state meteorologist, has notified the university men that he will spray his own orchard as usual and the university orchards will be handled as in an average year.

South Bend.—Boosting of rents on property in the South Bend business district has brought about a corresponding boost in tax valuations in South Bend. The assessor's office reported increases running from 20 to 100 per cent, and the result is that more than $4,000,000 in taxables have been filed for Portage township, which is the city of South Bend. On all properties, business and residence, a blanket increase of 25 per cent was levied before taking into consideration the increase in rentals. On properties improved after 1918 a blanket decrease of 20 per cent was made.

Franklin.—The Indiana redistricting act, passed by the 1921 legislature, in so far as it provided for a joint representative from Johnson and Marion counties, was set aside in a decision handed down by Judge Fremont Miller in the Johnson county Circuit court at Franklin. An appeal will be taken to the state Supreme court, it was said. Judge Miller overruled the demurrer of County Attorney Elba B. Branigan, Attorney-General U. S. Leah and attorneys representing the state and county committees. The suit was brought to test the validity of the act.

Evansville.—The directors of the Vanderburg county farm bureau are considering a proposition of putting the conuty marketing agencq on a sounder basis by providing a guarantee fund. The plan that probably will be adopted is that of depositing a note in a bank signed by several framers, which will serve as a guarantee for notes which the agent my write to pay for the car loads of material bought. The same plan is being carried out in Gibson county.

Columbus.—The political pot in Bartholomew county has been heated almost to the boiling point by the entrance of an unprecedented number of candidates into the race for nominations for county offices. More than two months before the primaries 53 candidates have announced. All seem to be conducting active campaigns. The office of representative to the state legislature appears to be the only one that is not much sought after.

Seymour.—The recent spring-like temperature at Seymour resulted in the announcement of the official opening of the season for the Seymour Association of Bare Heads. The organization has a membership of men who believe that sunshine and fresh air stimulate the growth of hair and even aid in recovering bald spots from which bushy locks long ago disappeared.

Terre Haute.—A new plant for the recovery of cattle feed has been put in operation with an opening production of a carload each day. The product being turned out resembles the old distiller's dried grains, both in general appearance and chemical analysis. Due to the present scarcity in distillers' dried grains, the new feed is in demand.

Princeton.—Three hundred and fifty men had a narrow escape from death when the main shaft of the Princeton mine of the Deep Vein Coal company caved in with a fall of hundreds of tons of earth, which had been loosened by recent thaws. The air rushed in with such force that many of the miners were knocked down, but none was fatally hurt.

Indianapolis.—Rehearing of the Indiana Electric Corporation merger case, which was asked in petitions filed by the cities of Indianapolis and Kokomo, was denied by the public service commission. The commission, in the original order, [illegible] the corporation to issue [illegible]

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

THE ALARM CLOCK

"At any rate, it isn't my fault," said the Alarm Clock to the watch which was lying on the bureau.

"What isn't your fault? I didn't know any one had blamed you for anything," said the Watch.

"Well, I haven't exactly been blamed for anything, but still I am grumbling about. You see, it is this way:

"There is a little English boy named Eugene, and every night he sets me at seven o'clock. That means, Watch, that I am set so I will ring at seven o'clock in the morning and wake him up.

"Never have I failed to do so. Never, Never. I ring at the hour I am set to ring at. That is the way the Alarm Clock does.

"The Alarm Clock does its duty as it is told. But to continue about this little boy named Eugene. He says evening after evening—in fact, I've never known him to miss an evening:

"'Now, I must get up early tomorrow morning. I have so much to do.'

"That is as far as it goes," said the Alarm Clock.

"As far as what goes?" asked the Clock.

"You don't mean that you don't go beyond that time, do you?" it asked.

"No, no," said the Alarm Clock. "I mean it is as far as it goes as Eugene is concerned. He sets me every night to go off at seven o'clock, as I've said.

"Every night he says that he must get up early the next morning. He calls seven o'clock early, by the way!

"And yet he never gets up at seven o'clock. That is the joke.

"One would think that at times he wouldn't bother to set me so early when he wasn't going to get up at that hour. But he has never yet failed to set me at seven o'clock, and yet he has never once arisen at that hour.

"Ah, but wait a moment," continued the Alarm Clock.

"I can't wait another moment," said the Watch. "For I have a reputation of keeping good time and I must keep it up. I am sorry, Alarm Clock, but I really cannot wait a moment."

"Every Night."

"Of course not, of course not," said the alarm Clock. "I didn't really mean for you to wait a moment. I meant that I had not quite told my story correctly and that I didn't want you to finish listening until I had finished telling."

"All right," said the Watch. "I am still listening."

"I said," the Alarm Clock went on, "that he had always set me at seven o'clock, and that he had never arisen at seven o'clock.

"The first part is quite true. But the second part isn't quite true."

"Has he ever gotten up at seven?" the watch asked.

"Yes," said the Alarm Clock. "He does it every morning."

"But, alarm clock," said the Watch, "you surprise me. First you say one thing in a very decided manner, and then you say another in just as decided a manner. Truly, Alarm Clock, I do not understand you. I fear you will upset my poor works if you talk like that and excite me so."

"I will explain," said the Alarm Clock.

"Every night he sets me to go off at seven o'clock."

"So you told me," said the Watch.

"And every morning he [illegible] seven and turns me [illegible] really gets up [illegible]

[illegible]

Ask Your Dealer or Decorator about the ALABASTINE OPALINE PROCESS

Beautiful walls! Harmonies never before imagined! A blending of tints and tones, a magic interweaving of colors which will transform your walls into a rich fabric unsurpassed in its charm and cheerfulness—and at a cost well within your means.

ANY good decorator can do the work—nearly all stores dealing in paints can supply the material—anyone can now afford to have Tiffanized walls formerly the exclusive privilege of the very wealthy.

Alabastine

Instead of Kalsomine or Wall Paper

All that is necessary is just Alabastine, the same nationally accepted wall tint which for forty years has been used in homes, apartments, offices and public buildings of all kinds — the same sanitary, durable, economical and artistic wall coating sold by the best stores and used by the best decorators. With Alabastine, regularly applied you get the exact color to match your rugs and draperies. Through the Alabastine-Opaline-Process you obtain a combination of colors most pleasing and satisfactory. Before decorating ask to see samples of the Alabastine-Opaline-Process.

The Alabastine Company
Grand Rapids, Michigan

Always think twice before purchasing anything offered at a sacrifice.

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

Every majority was once a minority.

WINS $5,000

Another big puzzle contest just started by Mr. E. J. Reefer. This fascinating puzzle game is all the rage. Everybody's playing it.

This is the biggest and most exciting puzzle contest of all. First Prize is $5,000. Second Prize is $2,500. 103 other big cash prizes. Yes, 105 in all! Win one of them. Contest is open to all. Costs nothing to try. The picture puzzle is free.

Amazing Health and Beauty Discovery

This great offer is made to introduce Reefer's Yeast Tablets, the great Vitamine Health Builders. Contain all three vitamines that enable you to get the right nourishment from the food you eat. Vitamines bring about a wonderful change in thin, nervous, run-down people. [illegible] properly nourished, all the [illegible] come back. Eyes [illegible] the color [illegible] through [illegible] No matter [illegible] you are, you need [illegible] Reefer's Yeast Tablets [illegible]

Get Puzzle Picture, FREE

[illegible] to buy Reefer's Yeast Tablets [illegible] this contest or win a prize. [illegible] letter "S" puzzle [illegible] big, clear picture free on request. [illegible] up. Send today to E. J. Reefer, [illegible] and Spruce Sts., Dept. 15F, Philadelphia, Pa.

Salt Your Stock the Blackman Way

DO YOU TAKE SALT with meals, or just fill up on salt once or TWICE A WEEK?

A few licks of BLACKMAN'S Tonic Salt should be a part of the daily diet of your live stock. It is medicated and will improve digestion, make the feed go further, and keep them in healthy condition. So simple, so easy. Just drop brick in feed-box—it will do the rest.

The Blackman Stock Remedy Co.
Chattanooga, Tenn.

The road of propaganda would be rougher if it wasn't for "they say."

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

He Knew Which.

"Now, tell me, which animals did you like the best, Johnny?" inquired the parent, after taking his small son to the zoo.

"The dangeroos," replied Johnny.

"You mean the kangaroos. I read the name on the board: 'These animals are dangerous.'"

For true blue, use Red Cross Ball Blue. Snowy-white clothes will be sure to result. Try it and you will always use it. All good grocers have it.—Advertisement.

Naturally.

Ethel—She swears she's never been kissed.

Clara—Is that why she swears?

Many a woman has lost an ardent admirer by marrying him.

NR

Get a 25¢ Box

Better than Pills For Liver Ills.

NR Tonight—Tomorrow Alright

The Best Way to Buy a Farm

Farms in the South as productive as Western farms can be bought at low prices and bring bigger net profits owing to mild climate and good markets. Unusual opportunities for dairy farming. Study these conditions before buying. Good farms can be rented for a year with option to buy at a fixed price. Full information free. Write J. C. WILLIAMS, Manager, Southern Railway Development Service, Washington, D. C.

Milk Is Cheaper, Why Pay the Same Price for Milk Cans?

Note special prices, subject to stock on hand; new cans, no seconds. Local Delivery Cans, 8 gal., 16 lbs., with heavy 2½ in. band on bottom, Special $2.50 each. Railroad Shipping Cans, 8 gal., 19¾ lb., heavy roll bottom, Special, $3.60 each. Ask for circular showing construction. We sell hardware by mail, specializing in milk cans, builders hardware, etc. Write us on your requirements. Hardware Sales Agcy., Dept. 15, North Chicago, Ill.

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Chesterfield
CIGARETTES
of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—blended
"They Satisfy"

MARCH

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year, - - - $1.50
Six Months, - - - .75
Three Months, - - - .40
One Month, - - - .15
Single Copy, - - - .05
(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	106	$ 5.51
M. P.	80	8.60
Lutheran	101	38.43
M. E. Spencer	78	5.65
Lutheran	99	4.92
Coburntown	76	2.61
Newville U. B.	72	3.06
Christian	94	3.00
Rehoboth	62	3.95
Concord	24	1.22

Notice To Income Taxpayers

Taxpayers have 15 days, not including Sundays, in which to file their income tax returns for the calendar year 1921. To avoid penalty, the return, accompanied by at least one-quarter of the tax, must be in the hands of the collector of internal revenue or a deputy collector on or before midnight of March 15th.

Returns may be mailed or filed in person at the office of the collector, Indianapolis, Indiana, and at the following branch offices: Terre Haute, Evansville, New Albany, Muncie, LaFayette, Logansport, Ft. Wayne, South Bend and Gary. Payment may be made by check, money order or in cash. If made at a branch office, payment should be by money order or check, to avoid danger of loss in transmission to the office of the collector.

Where in exceptional cases such as illness or absence, a taxpayer is unable to make a return within the time prescribed, an extension of not to exceed 30 days may be obtained upon application to the collector. Such extensions will be granted only when in the judgment of the collector, further time is needed for the making of an accurate return. Application for such extension must be made prior to March 15th.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $3000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years,
$12.50 a month for five years,
$6.25 a month for ten years.

If Permanently and Totally disabled by Accident [illegible]

[illegible]

J. C. [illegible]

Discussion Contest

DeDalb county high schools will join with more than 250 other commissioned high schools of Indiana in the annual State discussion contest conducted under the auspices of Indiana University during March and April.

Benj. Null, teacher of English in the Ft. Wayne High school, will be chairman of the discussion league in the twelfth district. He will plan for a district contest at which the person who will represent the 12th district in state contest at Bloomington will be chosen.

The subject to be discussed by the high school orators of Indiana this year is, "A Comprehensive Program for the Solution of the Imigration Problem." The pupils who participated in the discussion contests will have at their disposal not only the material published in current newspapers and magazines, but will be aided by material sent out to the various schools by Indiana University. Forty-five package libraries containing information on the subject of immigration, in all of its phases, will be distributed.

Mr. Null, as district chairman, will appoint chairmen of the contest for each county of his district. The county leaders will in turn name leaders in each commissioned high school of the county, and will arrange for a county contest on or before March 31st. The winnes in the county discussion will speak in competition with representatives of the other counties of the district or a district meet to be held April 7.

The culmination of the discussion contest occurs at Bloomington on April 23, when the thirteen district winners will seek state honors. Medals will be awarded the winners in the state meet.

More than 250 high schools will compete in the discussion league this year. Already 227 schools have entered.

The high school speakers will be expected to go into the question of immigration thoroughly, and to present their opinions upon the solution of the problem.

State Basket-Ball News

After the usual thrilling Indiana high school basketball season, during which fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers have followed the fortunes of the Hoosier youths with breathless interest, the home stretch looms in the offing with the glory of victory or the sting of defeat in sectional, regional and final State tournaments hanging in the balance.

The opening gun of what has come to be known as the Hoosier Athletic Classic will be fired in 32 cities of the State, Friday, Mar. 3, and games will continue through Mar. 4th. The following Saturday, Mar. 11, Indiana and Purdue Universities will entertain the winners of the sectional meets. On the following Friday and Saturday, Mar. 17 and 18, the regional champions will journey to Indianapolis for the final contests.

Speculation is rife as to whether or not the southern region of the State will be able to [illegible] over the [illegible]

[illegible]

anon winning three and Thornton one, while Montgomery county was a close second with three victories, two of which are credited to Wingate and one to Crawfordsville. Lafayette took the championship in 1916. The record since the State tournament was inaugurated in 1911 at Indiana University, where it has been held every year with two exceptions, is as follows: 1911–Crawfordsville; 1912–Lebanon; 1913–Wingate; 1914–Wingate; 1915–Thornton; 1916–Lafayette; 1917–Lebanon; 1918–Lebanon; 1919–Bloomington; 1920–Franklin; 1921–Franklin.

High School Alumni

(Continued from last week)

Merritt Milliman, '18.
William Quance, '18.
Blen Kain-Morr, '19.
Ima Scholes-Eppler, '19.
Carl Perkins, '19.
Floyd Roberts, '19.
Joe Shull, '19.
Gerald Kinsey, '19.
Virgil Perry, '19.
George Tustison, '19.
Kenneth Roberts, '20.
Donald Davis, '20.
Carson Culler, '20.
Coral Simanton, '20.
Mary Armstrong, '20.
Faye Hughes, '20.
Pauline Barney-Jordan, '20.
Garnett Wyatt, '20.
Lois Murphy, '20.
Clara Donley, '20.
Katherine Shull, '21.
Marjorie Curie, '21.
Portia Hadsell, '21.
Dorothy Bowman, '21.
Catharine Kinsey, '21.
Alma Lawson, '21.
Parlie Nicholls, '21.
Lileth Yeiser, '21.
Esther Johnson, '21.

NEWVILLE

The U. B ladies held a chicken pie social in the church basement Friday evening.

Harry Weaner, who has been quite poorly recently, is better at this writing.

Romeo Fusselman visited his mother, Mrs. Mary Mitchell, at Bluffton, Ind., recently.

Malcolm Richmond killed a hog for his family meat Saturday that weighed more than 500 lbs.

The baby daughter born to Guy Platter and wife, recently, weighed eleven pounds.

Judson Fee is moving to Mount Pleasant. We are sorry to lose those good people from our community.

A number of movings are set for the first week in March. This will be a muddy time if the mud don't dry up a little.

The mail carrier had to park his machine in the center of the road while he put the mail in some of the boxes, on account of the mud.

Mrs. Geo. [illegible] is seriously ill at this writing. [illegible] last week Gerald Oberlin was brought [illegible] the Sacred [illegible]

Miss Pr[illegible] has been seriously ill for [illegible] continues very low. [illegible]

[illegible]

HORSE IS FRIGHTENED.

While Dewey Miller and wife were driving home from Hicksville on Monday evening last the horse became frightened and ran away. After getting the animal checked she was in such terror that she croached down to the ground and was trembling and shaking, and it took some time to soothe her so she would stand up. Mr. and Mrs. Miller walked about two miles not daring to get into the buggy. What frightened the horse is a mystery to them as they saw nothing except two bright flashes of light which might have been the light from some machine on the road.

CONCORD

Mrs. Ira Bone went to Auburn, Friday, returning Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dell Draggoo and son Clifton spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jackson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone spent Sunday in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willie Keeler.

Ira Bone went to Waterloo as a delegate to the K. of P. convention Monday morning.

Ford Jackson and wife spent a few days lately with Holl Jackson and wife, the latter being sick.

Charles Moor and family entertained company Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Farver and family came Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ford Jackson spent Sunday evening with the latter's parents in Auburn, Mr. and Mrs. Sess Sebring.

Ollie Carper and family moved Wednesday on a farm west and south of Marver's church. We hate to lose them from our neighborhood, but as they go we wish them success in their new home.

Jack Sechler and family entertained his brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Argel Sechler, Sunday. Jack and family expects to move Tuesday from Abe Culbertson place, where he now lives, to six miles northeast of Butler, a good long ways to move on these bad roads.

Christian Church Notes

The Martha Society will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. R. B. Daily.

Preaching next Sunday morning by the pastor, R. B. Daily. Christian Endeavor at 6.00 p. m. Bible school at 9:30 a. m. Last Sunday we had a splendid Bible school with 106 being present.

Friday evening at the church, Rev. Mr. Shaw of Auburn, will give his illustrated lecture and songs, which was to have been given Feb. 16 but on account of no electric current had to be postponed. The lecture will be given Friday evening, sure, as a Delco lighting plant has been offered for use in case there is no current. It is [illegible] a large crowd will be present. [illegible] charges but a free will [illegible] will be taken.

The [illegible] Class [illegible] at the [illegible] class has been doing fine work for the past year and is looking forward to better times.

[illegible]

The people of the Christian Church gave a farewell reception for Mr. and Mrs. Reed Place and family Monday evening at the church. The following impromptu program being given with Frank Scholes, acting as Chairman—Music by the orchestra; Song, "Blest be the Tie;" Prayer, B S. Sheffer; Reading, "Thou Shalt not Kill" Miss Evelyn Knight; Reading, "If you Sing a Song as you go Along" Mrs. Belle Woodcox; The Sunday School, H. C. Borthwick; The Ladies Aid and Loyal Workers Class, Mrs. Eva Sheffer; The Church, Frank Scholes; Reading, "Bills in the Legislature"; music by orchestra. The program ended by a few songs by the congregation and music by orchestra. After the program a potluck lunch was served. The Place family have been constant attendants at the church for the past year and have endeared themselves to all with whom they came in contact and will be greatly missed. They moved back to the farm, Tuesday, near Coburn's Corners.

Better than Pills

YOU WILL NEVER wish to take another dose of pills after having once used Chamberlain's Tablets. They are easier and more pleasant to take, more gentle and mild in their action and more reliable. They leave the bowels in a natural condition, while the use of pills is often followed by severe constipation, requiring a constant increase in the dose. Every bottle guaranteed by your druggist.

Chamberlain's Tablets

W. C. T. U. NEWS

The new W. C. T. U. home for girls at Fort Wayne will be dedicated Tuesday. Rev. A. J. Folsom will deliver the address.

The W. C. T. U. held a very interesting meeting on anti-narcotics, Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alice Gee. Several interesting articles were read along this line. One guest Mrs. Neva Hursh besides the several members were present. A letter was read from Mrs. Tillie Hostetler, of Fort Wayne, was read asking donations of sheets, pillow slips, towels, kitchen utensils, etc., to help in the new W. C. T. U. home for girls at that place. Mrs. Lora Leighty and Mrs. Jeannie Sechler were appointed to see after this work as the local union is hoping to be able to send a nice box of articles to help in this good work. Any one desiring to help can leave their donation at the home of Mrs. R. B. Daily who will be hostess at the next meeting, March 24.

M. P. Church Notes

Special services will begin at the Methodist church on Thursday evening. At the mid week services until Easter special interest will be given to the study of the character of Jesus Christ. The subject this week will be "The Sympathy of Christ."

The general topic for the Sunday services will be "What Then"

A feature of the Sunday evening service will be a 15-minute talk by a layman, on some live topic. Sermon by the pastor. Let every member and friend of the church rally around these services during Lent, and help make them a success. 25-4-11-22.

Want Something?

Advertise for it in these columns

Do You

[illegible]

Public Sale.

On March 8th the undersigned will sell at public sale at Concord, at the home of D. Draggoo, live stock, farm implements, harness, a Ford Touring car, Model 19. See large bills now being posted for particulars.

D. Draggoo,
H. Krise,
Fred Draggoo.

Notice of Administration

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned has been appointed by the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, Administrator of the Estate of William J. Orr, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

CLYDE E. HART,
Administrator.

Feb. 11, 1922.
J. E. Pomeroy, Attorney.

Administrator's Sale

Estate of William J. Orr

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Admistrator of the estate of William J. Orr, deceased, late of Spencer township, will offer for sale at public out cry, at the late residence of said deceased, three miles east and one-half mile south of Spencerville, one and one-half miles south of Coburn's Corners, in Spencer Township, in DeKalb County, State of Indiana, on the personal property of said estate, consisting of one horse, six milch cows, four of these have calves by side, two will be fresh soon; six head of young cattle; thirty head of sheep, two tractors, the Bull and Waterloo Boy, one Emerson & Brant threshing grain separator, one McCormick corn shredder, one grain binder, one side delivery hay rake, one cream separator, one farm wagon and box, one Superior grain drill, tractor plows, hay tedder, buggy, cart, gasoline tank, sap-pails, spiles, syrup cans, harness machine, belts, cows, fanning mill, platform scales, plows, cultivators, drags, discs, gasoline engines, dump-boards, hog-house heater, hog-fountain, hog-feeder, and many other farm implements and tools.

Saturday, March 11, 1922

Also about 300 bushels of oats, one hundred bushels of rye, twenty bushels of wheat, 100 baskets of corn, and hundreds of others articles.

Sale to begin at ten o'clock a. m.

Terms of Sale—Sums of five dollars and under, cash in hand; over five dollars a credit of nine months, the purchaser giving a note with [illegible]

CLYDE E. HART

[illegible]

Are you in Earnest?

Some people say they simply cannot save money. Other people—who often have smaller incomes--find a joy in regular weekly saving.

The fact is, anyone can save money who is really in earnest about it. Take the matter seriously. Who benefits from your thrift? Who else but yourself?

The man with a growing savings account acquires confidence in himself, and a happy, fearless attitude towards the future.

One dollar or more opens an interest bearing account in this big, friendly bank.

"Teach your dollars to have more cents."

START A BANKING ACCOUNT
NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank
Capital Stock, - $25,000
Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

Let Us Print Your Sale Bills

SPENCERVILLE

Jerry Horn, residing south of town, is quite ill.

Miss Bertha Thornbrugh was unable to attend school Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Spitler spent Sunday the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wann of Harlan.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Life and son Vernon and Miss Margie Spitler were Sunday guests of Miss Zona Horn and brother Jerry.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. John Dove a daughter, and to Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Osborne on Thursday last a son.

The Mite box opening was held Sunday night at the M. E. church. The Live Wire class had charge of the singing and also gave a missionary play.

On Wednesday night the Huntertown first and second Girls' basket ball teams played at this place. The score was first team 50–10 in favor of Spencerville; second team 27–0, and girls team 19–3, both in favor of the local teams.

The Coolidge Store

Along with the Spring season comes mud and with the mud comes the need of good SHOES and RUBBERS.

Those good SHOES and RUBBERS can be bought here at reasonable prices any day, but for

SATURDAY SPECIAL
Those SHOES and RUBBERS
At SPECIAL Prices

Watch this space for Specials Every Week

D. COOLIDGE, Spencerville, Ind

BATTERIES

Don't throw them away, have them thoroughly examined just as a little repairing may make them as good as new. We do our work right and guarantee satisfaction. When you are in need of a New Battery try one of our

NO-LEAKOS

The same applies to Tires as it does to BATTERIES; if they are not too far gone have them vulcanized. A little repair will make many a Tire run for miles. ☞THE BEST OF NEW TIRES HERE.

Oils——Gasoline——Accessories

Furnish Tire and Battery Shop
R. E. Furnish, Proprietor, Phone 193
Spencerville, : : : : Indiana

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

If you are feeling all worn out, if you can't eat, sleep or work with any satisfaction, you need Tanlac. Sheffer's Drug store.

Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Markle and son Richard were on Saturday and Sunday last guests of Jerry Markle and son.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Hollabaugh and son Max were Sunday guests of the lady's father, Henry Goldsmith, of Hurshtown.

A number from this place went to Waterloo on Monday night to take the first degree in the K. of P. lodge. Garrett team had charge.

Glenn McNabb, who has been a patient at the Lutheran hospital at Ft. Wayne, for several weeks, was brought home Friday.

Mrs. Hazel Steward, who is a patient at a Fort Wayne hospital, will be able to return home the latter part of the week.

Paul Ettinger of Ft. Wayne was a Monday dinner guest at the home of his aunt and husband, Mr. and Mrs. R. U. Bowser.

Rev. Uphoff returned [illegible] Thursday after [illegible] Jones of New [illegible] in revival meetings.

[illegible]

[illegible]

Miss Florence Beams submitted to an operation for the removal of her tonsils Saturday at Ft. Wayne. Miss Beams was brought home on Sunday evening and is doing as well as can be expected.

The Ladies' guild of the M. E. church meet on Thursday afternoon in a social meeting. Several contests were enjoyed. Two guests were presents, Mrs. Mabel Erick and Mrs. Beulah Culp. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Louie Beam.

The C. C. club was pleasantly entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ethel Bowser. Two contests were enjoyed—Mrs. Jennie Walters and Mrs. Le Anna Steward winning prizes. One guest, Mrs. Gertrude Wasson, was present. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Jennie Walters.

Mrs. Norma James of Union City, Mich., came Thursday evening to attend the funeral of her grandfather, E. F. Walker, held Monday afternoon from the Scipio church. Mr. Walker died at Long Beach, Cal., on Saturday, Seb. 18. The body arrived here on Sunday evening of Feb. 26. Those from a distance to attend the funeral were: Mrs. Jennie Murphy, Long Beach, Cal.; Miss Rose Walker, Los Angeles, Cal.; Mr. and Mrs. Roy Walker, Fort Wayne; Dr. and Mrs. Fred Walker of Peoria, Ill.

Saturday night the Salem Center High school basket ball team played the High school team of this place. Only one-half the game was played owing to the visitors getting "cold feet" because they failed to locate our "star forward." The sorre was 15–7 in favor of locals.

COBURN'S CORNERS

Miss Minnie Walker was a Fort Wayne visitor Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Laney Gee were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Sommer.

Fred Hart, Chas. Inlow and Saxe Hadsell have opened their sugar camps for the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Inlow entertained the Monte Storer family at dinner Sunday.

Mrs. Will Price and little daughter, Margaret, were guests at the Saxe Hadsell home, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Dermott and children spent Sunday with Mrs. Cordelia Dermott and son Victor.

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Perry, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Donley and children were guests in the Ella Wilmot home, Sunday.

Mrs. Claude Laub and little son Lauren, spent a couple of days this week, at Butler, in the I. S. Hose and Fred Blaker homes.

Philip Smith was in Fort Wayne, Saturday, completing arrangements for his soldiers bonus, under the Michigan state law. He was assisted by the Red Cross society.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton and daughter Margaret, attended a family dinner at the Howard Northrup home, in St. Joe, Sunday, given as a birthday compliment to Mrs. Hamilton and Mrs. Thayer Northrup.

Mrs. Ella Wilmot left Monday for a few days visit with her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Jenkins at Auburn. She was accompanied by her sister Mrs. Cordelia Wade, who is enroute home to Petosky, via Kalamazoo.

Charles Tustison spent Sunday at the Amaden hospital at Hicksville, with his wife who is a patient there, and whose improved condition enables her to leave for the Earl Tustison home, where she will spend several days before returning home to this vicinity.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible]

Fort Wayne, Ind.

MARCH

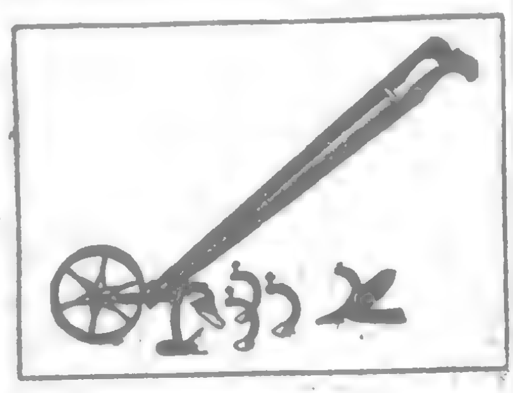
PROPER SOIL AND LOCATION FOR SEED BED OF BIG IMPORTANCE

When the Garden Is to Be Worked by Horses, the Rows Should Be Long and Straight.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

It is a good practice to reserve a small corner of the garden for a seed bed. Here, through special preparation of the soil it is possible to produce better plants than could otherwise be secured. The gardener can transplant from the seed bed to the garden, thus making the plants more stocky. The location of an outdoor seed bed should be such that it may be conveniently reached for watering, and it should be naturally protected from drying winds.

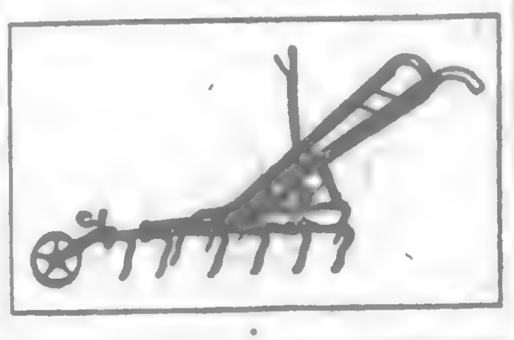
Good soil for a seed bed consists of one part of well-rotted manure, two parts of good garden loam or rotted sods, and one part of sharp, fine sand. The manure should be thoroughly rotted, but it should not have been exposed to the weather and the strength leached out of it. The addition of leaf mold or peat will tend to make the soil better adapted for seed-bed purposes. Mix all the ingredients together in a heap, stirring well with a shovel, after which the soil should be sifted and placed in boxes or in the bed ready for sowing the seed.



A Small Hand Cultivator; a Desirable Addition to the Garden Equipment.

Seed Sowing.

Garden seeds should always be sown in straight rows regardless of where the planting is made. If a flat or a window box is employed for starting early plants in a dwelling, the soil should be well firmed and then laid off in straight rows about 2 inches apart. The same method holds good for planting seeds in a hotbed, coldframe or bed in the garden, except that the rows should be farther apart than in the window box. By planting in straight rows the seedlings will be more uniform in size and shape, and thinning and cultivating will be more easily accomplished. In all cases where the soil of the seed bed is not too wet, it should be well firmed or pressed down before laying off and marking for sowing the seeds. After the seeds are sown and covered, the surface should again be firmed by means of a smooth board. Lima beans, melons, cucumbers and other garden crops may be started in berry baskets, on sod or in paper bands indoors, and the whole transferred to the garden when the weather permits, thus gaining considerable time. Thirty to fifty hills of extra-early potatoes may even be had by starting as many seed pieces in a box in the living room or in a hotbed and subsequently handling the plants the same as tomato plants.



A Good Type of Horse Cultivator, Well Suited to Garden Use.

Depth of Planting and Distance Apart.

No general rule can be given with regard to depth of planting, as different kinds of vegetables and different soils necessitate different practices. The smaller the seeds the shallower the covering should be. In heavy soils the covering should be lighter than in light soils. The following table gives the depth of planting of the various vegetable seeds, as well as the quantity of seeds or number of plants required for 100 feet of row and the distance apart for the rows and the plants in the rows:

Gardeners' Planting Table.

Quantity of seeds and number of plants required for 100 feet of row, depths of planting, and distance apart for rows and plants.

Kind of vegetable	Required for 100 feet of row		Depth for planting seed	Distance apart
				Rows		Plants in row
	Seed	Plants		Horse cultivation	Hand cultivation
			Inches	Feet
Asparagus	1 ounce	60 to 80	1 to 1½	3 to 4	3 feet	15 inches
Bean:
Bush	1 pint	....	1½ to 2	2½ to 3	2 feet	3 to 4 inches
Bush Lima	½ to 1 pint	....	1½ to 2	3	2½ feet	6 to 10 inches
Pole Lima	½ pint	....	1½ to 2	4	3 feet	3 to 4 feet
Beet	2 ounces	....	1 to 1½	2 to 2½	15 to 18 inches	4 to 6 inches
Cabbage	⅛ ounce	65 to 80	½	2½ to 3	2 to 2½ feet	14 to 18 inches
Carrot	1 ounce	....	½	2 to 2½	15 to 18 inches	3 to 4 inches
Cauliflower	⅛ ounce	60 to 75	½	2½ to 3	2 to 2½ feet	15 to 18 inches
Celery	⅛ ounce	200 to 250	⅛	3 to 4	18 to 24 inches	4 to 6 inches
Collard	¼ ounce	65 to 100	½	2 to 2½	18 to 24 inches	12 to 18 inches
Corn, sweet	¼ pint	....	2	3 to 3½	2½ to 3 feet	10 to 12 inches
Cucumber	½ ounce	....	1 to 1½	4 to 5	4 to 5 feet	15 inches
Eggplant	¼ ounce	60 to 70	½	3	2 to 2½ feet	18 to 24 inches
Kale	½ ounce	....	½	2½ to 3	18 to 24 inches	8 to 10 inches
Lettuce	½ ounce	125 to 200	½	2 to 2½	15 to 18 inches	6 to 10 inches
Melon:
Muskmelon	½ ounce	....	1 to 1½	5 to 6	5 to 6 feet	Drills, 18 in. Hills, 5 feet
Watermelon	1 ounce	....	1 to 2	8 to 10	8 to 10 feet	Drills, 2-3 ft. Hills, 8 feet
Okra	2 ounces	....	1 to 2	4	3 feet	2 feet
Onions:
Seed	1 ounce	....	½ to 1	2	15 inches	3 to 4 inches
Sets	1 quart	....	1 to 2	2	15 inches	3 to 4 inches
Parsley	¼ ounce	....	⅛	2	15 inches	3 to 4 inches
Parsnips	½ ounce	....	½ to 1	2 to 2½	15 to 18 inches	3 to 4 inches
Peas	1 to 2 pints	....	2 to 3	3 to 4	2½ to 3 feet	1 inch
Potato:
Irish	5 to 6 lbs.	....	4	2½ to 3	2 to 2½ feet	12 to 18 inches
Sweet	3 lbs.	75 (slips)	2 to 3	4 to 5	[illegible]	[illegible]
Radish	1 ounce	....	½ to 1	2	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1 ounce	....	½ to 1	2	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	1 ounce	....	1 to 2	2	15 to 18 inches	[illegible]
Squash:
Bush	½ ounce	....	1 to 2	3 to 4	3 to 4 feet	[illegible]
[illegible]	½ ounce	....	1 to 2	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	35 to 50	[illegible]	3	[illegible]	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]	[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognized Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

XIII.

UP TO YOU AND CONGRESS

At the present time it would be a misnomer to speak of the national government having a personnel system at all. The reform accomplished by the establishment of the civil service commission and the merit system has touched but one phase of the personnel problem, and that but partially—entrance into the government service. Practically nothing has been done in the way of erecting the government services into careers that will attract and retain efficient men. Bad as conditions were in this respect before the war, they have become many times worse during and since that event.

The correction of these evils presents a problem of great complexity. It cannot be achieved by a half-hearted or half-way tinkering with the present system. Nothing but a thorough overhauling of the whole personnel system and the establishment of a new system covering all phases of the question and embodying the most approved principles of personnel administration will meet the needs of the situation. Fortunately a beginning has been made in this direction. It at least furnishes a starting point for action looking to the giving to the government of the personnel system that it must have if government work is to be even measurably well done.

The situation now is that there is an insistent demand on the part of the public that the whole administration of the national government be put upon a more efficient basis, and that the present waste of public funds, resulting from present defective organization and methods, shall cease; that congress is alive to this demand and has made a start toward meeting it; that the fundamental defects in the existing system are well known; and that the direction efforts looking to reform should take are clearly established. The responsibility is thus squarely up to congress.

If the problem that confronts congress in securing this laudable end is analyzed it will be found that the fundamental reforms are: The reform by congress itself of its own organization and methods of procedure; the entire revision of the present system under which the financial needs of the government are determined and provided; the setting up of an agency and procedure through which the expenditure of public funds may be properly controlled and congress be given that information regarding such expenditures which it must have if it is to assure itself that its agents, the administrative services, are properly performing their duties, and to act intelligently in respect to the future grant of funds; the provision of an organ through which the President may in fact, as well as in name, discharge his duties as head of the administration; the reorganization of the administrative branch of the government so as to eliminate the present widespread overlapping of jurisdictions and functions and indefensible duplication of services, organization, plant and work; and the complete recasting of the present system under which the personnel required to man the governmental plant is secured, compensated, promoted, assigned to particular tasks and controlled, to the end that not only justice will be done to the several classes of governmental employees, but that a personnel system will be established that will insure a maximum of efficiency in the actual conduct of public affairs.

A study of action actually had or now under way shows that steps have been taken toward the accomplishment of each of these fundamental reforms. The introduction of a budget system is a long step forward.

I don't mean in the least to give the impression that all private business is perfectly run and that only government business is badly managed, or that all the efficient people are in private employ and only inefficient in the public service. Neither of those conditions exists.

In the common phrase, you have got to hand it to Alexander Hamilton for devising a scheme that has stood up since revolutionary days. It has not been fundamentally altered since his day. There has been no readjustment of salaries in the departmental service for sixty years. That implies a certain loyalty and faithfulness on the part of the workers.

My only desire is to disclose the present condition of government employment; that good men are leaving, and that the present tendency, if not checked, will inevitably drive out of the service all of the efficient and leave only the mediocre and incompetent. I have said little myself, but have chosen to let the men working for the government tell the story. Every assertion of fact in these articles comes from some responsible source or authority within the service. I am not making a criticism or attack from the outside, but merely serving as a mouthpiece for your hired men.

EASY COME, EASY GO

Back in 1912, when Mr. Taft was President, and when the gross expenditures of the government were about one-quarter of what they are now, he became exercised and concerned about the higgledy-piggledy, unscientific, disorderly, grab-bag methods by which your money was expended for public purposes. He said then what is equally true now, that the activities of the national government "are almost as varied as those of the entire business world. The operations of the government affect the interest of every person living within the jurisdiction of the United States. Its organization embraces stations and centers of work located in every city and in many local subdivisions of the country.

"This vast organization has never been studied in detail as one piece of administrative mechanism. Never have the foundations been laid for a thorough consideration of the relations of all its parts. No comprehensive effort has been made to list its multifarious activities or to group them in such a way as to present a clear picture of what the government is doing. Never has a complete description been given of the [illegible] which these activities are [illegible].

"At no time has the [illegible] made to study all of these [illegible] with a view to the [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

You may remember that back in the time of the first Cleveland administration one of the problems of public discussion was: "What shall be done with the surplus?" Then there was a change of administration and Corporal Tanner was made commissioner of pensions. The whole country was amused and had a hearty laugh when he announced his policy: "God help the surplus!" Them was the halcyon days!

Mr. Gilbert, the present undersecretary of the treasury, in an address said:

"The estimates for the year 1920 show that over a billion dollars of expenditures were authorized by the last session of congress in addition to the amount shown in the usual compiled statements of appropriations. In fact, the practice has reached such proportions as to be almost a national scandal, and it was vigorously denounced in the President's last annual message.

"It has become the first principle of strategy on the part of people interested in appropriations for various special purposes to frame the matter so as to authorize the use of the public funds indirectly, or in indefinite terms, or by authorization for expenditure of [illegible] balances, [illegible] for other [illegible] to [illegible] before they [illegible]

[illegible]

YOUNG GIRLS NEED CARE

Mothers, watch your Daughters' Health

Health Is Happiness

From the time a girl reaches the age of twelve until womanhood is established, she needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give.

The condition that the girl is then passing through is so critical, and may have such far-reaching effects upon her future happiness and health, that it is almost criminal for a mother or guardian to withhold counsel or advice.

Many a woman has suffered years of prolonged pain and misery through having been the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance on the part of those who should have guided her through the dangers and difficulties that beset this period.

Mothers should teach their girls what danger comes from standing around with cold or wet feet, from lifting heavy articles, and from overworking. Do not let them over-study. If they complain of headache, pains in the back and lower limbs, they need a mother's thoughtful care and sympathy.

A Household Word in Mother's House writes Mrs. Lynd, about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

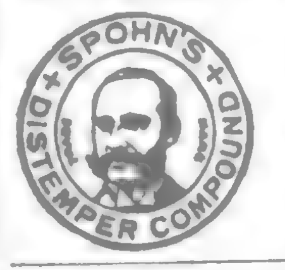
"My mother gave me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was 14 years old for troubles girls often have and for loss of weight. Then after I married I took the Vegetable Compound before each child was born and always when I felt the least run-down. Both my sister and sister-in-law take it and have only the highest praise for it. It has been a household word in my mother's house for years." — Mrs. KATHERYN LYND, 2431 Gladys Ave., Chicago, Ill.

A Little Book Helped Her to Decide

Milwaukee, Wis.— "My daughter took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as she was so weak and did not feel like going to school. She was like that for a whole year before taking your Vegetable Compound. I found a little book of yours in our mail-box and decided to give her your medicine. She is now strong and well and attends school every day. We recommend your Vegetable Compound to all mothers with weak daughters. You may use this letter as a testimonial." — Mrs. E. KLUCZNY, 917 20th Ave., Milwaukee. Wis.

"I was always feeling tired and sleepy, was losing in weight and would faint at times. I had other troubles too, that made me feel badly. I read your little books and heard friends talk about the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done them, so I have taken it too. The results are most satisfactory, for I have gained in weight and my bad symptoms are gone. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may make whatever use you like of this letter."—GLORIA RAMIREZ, 1116 9th Ave., Tampa, Florida.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.



HORSES COUGHING? USE

Spohn's Distemper Compound

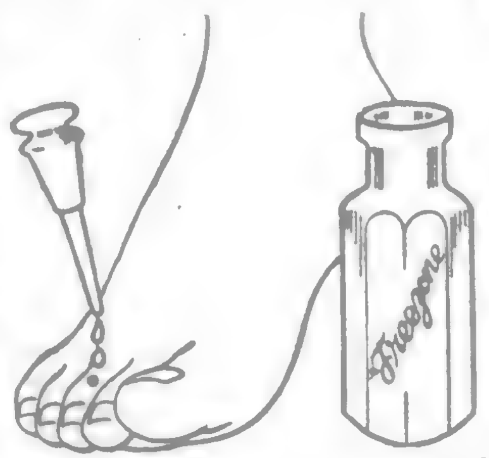
to break it up and get them back in condition. Twenty-eight years' use has made "SPOHN'S" indispensable in treating Coughs and Colds, Influenza and Distemper with their resulting complications, and all diseases of the throat, nose and lungs. Acts marvelously as preventive; acts equally well as cure. 60 cents and $1.20 per bottle. At all drug stores.

SPOHN MEDICAL COMPANY GOSHEN, INDIANA

The hatter and the shoemaker may not be divinities, but they shape the ends of men.

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers



Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Strawberry Plants

THE GIBSON STRAWBERRY, big in size, big in yield, best for shipping, table and canning. The all-round perfect strawberry. Write for prices and catalog of complete line of small fruits.

DASS NURSERY CO.

Dept. 5 Bridgman, Mich.

TOBACCO—KENTUCKY HOMESPUN NATURAL LEAF chewing or smoking. Mild two year old. 10 lbs. $3. 20 lbs. $5. MADDOX BROS., Dept. 35, MAYFIELD, KY.

WRITE to G. H. SAVAGE, HONDALE, NEW MEXICO, the sunshine state, for Chamber of Commerce folder. We have sure crops and get good prices.

PAPERSHELL PECANS—5-10-25 LBS. Finest quality. Prices 60c lb. delivered. W. R. BAIRD, Barnesville, Ga. Reference, Armour & Co., Chicago. Agents Wanted.

WANTED—Women to do fancy work at home. Materials furnished. Good pay. Send stamped envelope for particulars. FLORENCE ART GOODS CO., Cambridge, Ohio.

Salesmanagers Wanted. Financially responsible. [illegible] commission. Practically no [illegible]. Sells to merchants. Excl. ter'ty. Buckeye Sply. & Machine Co., Lima, Ohio.

Philanthropic persons should see that the poor are coaled instead of cold.

Wider Field Necessary.

He (rejected)—"Well, you may go farther and fare worse." She—"Yes; it can't be done around here."

MOTHER! CLEAN

CHILD'S BOWELS WITH

CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Also, the sidewalks were found to be no softer than when there was no ice on them.

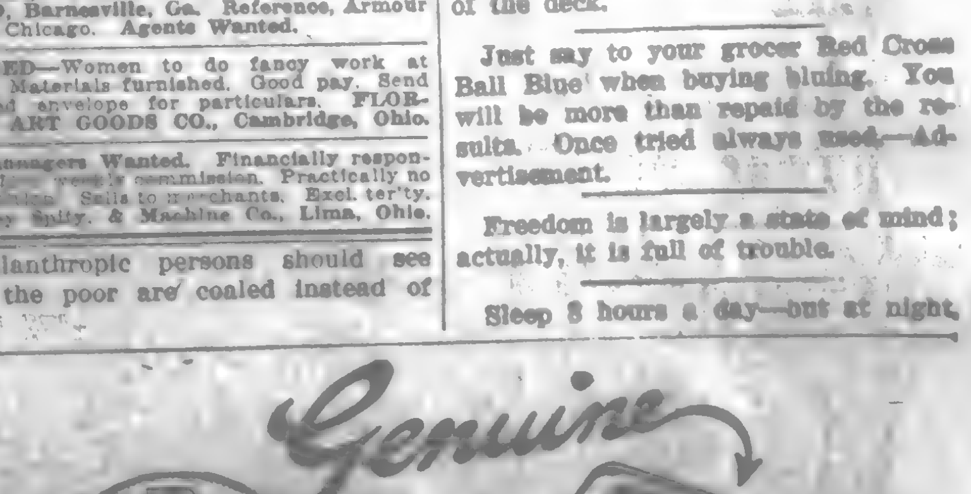
Cuticura Soap for the Complexion. Nothing better than Cuticura Soap daily and Ointment now and then as needed to make the complexion clear, scalp clean and hands soft and white. Add to this the fascinating, fragrant Cuticura Talcum, and you have the Cuticura Toilet Trio.—Advertisement.

Many a man gets the upper hand by dealing it to himself from the bottom of the deck.

Just say to your grocer Red Cross Ball Blue when buying bluing. You will be more than repaid by the results. Once tried always used.—Advertisement.

Freedom is largely a state of mind; actually, it is full of trouble.

Sleep 8 hours a day—but at night.



ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 24 years and proved safe by millions for

[illegible]

[illegible]

MARCH

THE GREEN PEA PIRATES

By PETER B. KYNE

Author of "WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN," "THE VALLEY OF THE GIANTS," Etc.

Copyright, by Peter B. Kyne

CHAPTER XIV—Continued.

—16—

"All right, Mac. I guess the commodore's foot slipped this time, but I ain't squawkin' yet."

"No. Not yet," cried Mr. Gibney bitterly, "but soon."

"I ain't, nuther," Captain Scraggs assumed an air of injured virtue. "I'm a-willin' to go through with you, Gib, at a loss, for nothin' else except to convince you o' the folly o' makin' this a one-man syndicate. I ain't a-kickin', but I'm free to confess that I'd like to be consulted oncet in a while."

"That's logic," rumbled the single-minded McGuffey.

"You dirty welchers," roared the commodore. "I ain't askin' you two to take chances with me. Me an' Neils'll take this deal over independent o' the syndicate."

"Well, let's dress this here diver," retorted the cautious Scraggs, "an' send him into the hold for a look around before we make up our minds." Captain Scraggs was not a man to take chances.

They moored the launch to the wreck and commenced operations. Mr. Gibney worked the air pump while the diver, ax in hand, dropped into the murky depths of the flooded hold. He was down half an hour before he signaled to be pulled up. All hands sprang to the line to haul him back to daylight, and the instant he popped clear of the water Mr. Gibney unburdened himself of an agonized curse.

In his hands the diver held a large decayed codfish!

Captain Scraggs turned a sneering glance upon the unhappy commodore while McGuffey sat down on the damp rail of the derelict and laughed until the tears coursed down his honest face.

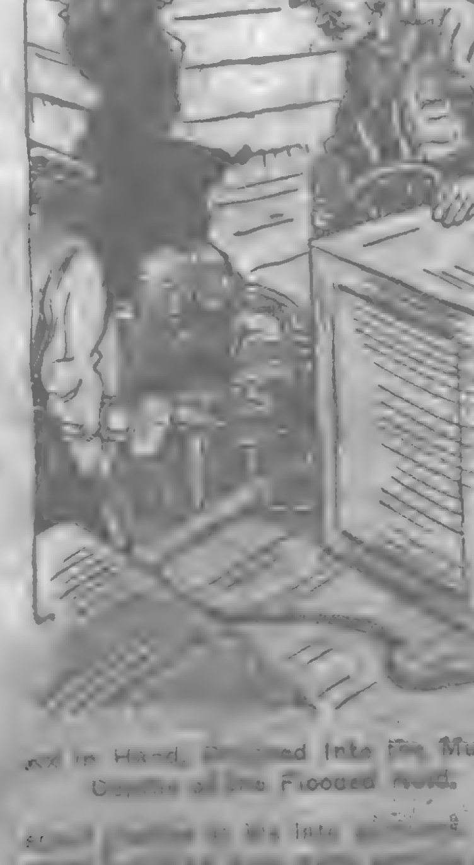
"A dirty little codfishin' schooner," raved Captain Scraggs, "an' you a-sinkin' the time an' money o' the syndicate in rotten codfish on the say-so of a clairvoyant you ain't even been introduced to. Gib, if that's business, all I got to say is: 'Excuse me.'"

Mr. Gibney seized the defunct fish from the diver's hand, tore it in half, slapped Captain Scraggs with one awful fragment and hurled the other at McGuffey.

"I'm outer the syndicate," he raved, beside himself with anger. "Here I go to work an' make a fortune for a pair of short sports an' pikers an' you get to squealin' at the first five-hundred-dollar loss. I know you of old, Phineas Scraggs, an' the leopard can't change his spots." He raised his right hand to heaven. "I'm through for keeps. We'll sell the pearls today, divvy up, an' dissolve. I'm through."

"Glad of it," growled McGuffey. "I don't want no more o' that codfish, an' as soon as we git fightin' room I'll prove to you that no near-sailor can insult me an' git away with it. Me an' Scraggsy's got some rights. You can walk on Scraggsy, Gib, but it takes a man to walk on the McGuffey family."

Nothing but the lack of sea-room prevented a battle royal. Mr. Gibney



Ax in Hand, Dropped Into the Murky Depths of the Flooded Hold.

[illegible]

me it's sp'iled," cried McGuffey, simulating horror.

"No, not quite, Mac, not quite. Just slightly. I s'pose Gib'll tack a sign to the stub o' the main mast: 'Slightly spoiled codfish for sale. Apply to A. P. Gibney, on the premises. Special rates on Friday.'"

Mr. Gibney quivered, but made no reply. He carefully examined that portion of the derelict above water and discovered that by an additional expenditure of about fifty dollars he might recover an equal amount in brass fittings. The Kadiak's house was gone and her decks completely gutted. Nothing remained but the amputated hull and the foul cargo below her battered decks.

In majestic silence the commodore motioned all hands into the launch. In silence they returned to the city. Arrived here, Mr. Gibney paid off the launch man and the diver and accompanied by his associates repaired to a prominent jeweler's shop with the pearls they had accumulated in the South seas. The entire lot was sold for thirty thousand dollars. An hour later they had adjusted their accounts, divided the fortune of the syndicate equally, and then dissolved. At parting, Mr. Gibney spoke for the first time when it had not been absolutely necessary.

"Put a beggar on horseback an' he'll ride to the devil," he said. "When you two swabs was poor you was content to let me lead you into a fortune, but now that you're well-heeled, you think you're business men. All right! I ain't got a word to say except this: Before I get through with you two beachcombers I'll have all your money and you'll be a-beggin' me for a job. I apologize for soakin' you two with that diseased codfish, an' for old sake's sake we won't fight. We're still friends, but business associates no longer, for I'm too big a figger in this syndicate to stand for any criticism on my handlin' o' the joint finances. Hereafter, Scraggsy, old kiddo, you an' Mac can go it alone with your sternwheel steamer. Me an' The Squarehead legs it together an' takes our chances. You don't hear that poor untootered Swede makin' no holler at the way I've handled the syndicate—"

"But, Gib, my dear boy," chattered Captain Scraggs, "will you just listen to re—"

"Enough! Too much is plenty. Let's shake hands an' part friends. We just can't get along in business together, that's all."

"Well, I'm sorry, Gib," mumbled McGuffey, very much crestfallen, "but then you hove that dog-gone fish at me an'—"

"That was fortune hittin' you a belt in the face, Mac, an' you was too self-conceited to recognize it. Remember that, both of you two. Fortune hit you in the face today an' you didn't know it."

"I'd rather die poor, Gib," wailed McGuffey.

The commodore shook hands cordially and departed, followed by the faithful Neils Halvorsen. The moment the door closed behind them Scraggs turned to the engineer.

"Mac," he said earnestly, "Gib's up to somethin'. He's got that imagination o' his workin'. I can tell it every time; he gets a foggy look in his eyes. We made a mistake kiddin' him today. Gib's a sensitive boy some ways an' I reckon we hurt his feelin's without intendin' it."

"He thrun a dead codfish at me," protested McGuffey. "I love old Gib like a brother, but that's carryin' things with a mighty high hand."

"Well, I'll apologize to him," declared Captain Scraggs and started for the door to follow Mr. Gibney. McGuffey barred his way.

"You apologize without my consent an' you gotta buy me out o' the Victor. I won't be no engineer with a skipper that lacks backbone."

"Oh, very well, Mac." Captain Scraggs realized too well the value of McGuffey in the engine room. He knew he could never be happy with anybody else. "We'll complete the deal with the Victor, ship a crew, get down to business, an' leave Gib to his [illegible]

The [illegible] Scraggs and McGuffey [illegible] and Neils [illegible] time, they had [illegible] Victor [illegible] times I thought I'd give you a chance to figger on the business."

[illegible]

"Thanky, Gib. I'll be glad to. Where's your freight an' what does it consist of?"

"Agricultural stuff. It's crated, an' I deliver it here on the steamer's deck within reach o' her tackles. No heavy pieces. Two men can handle every piece easy."

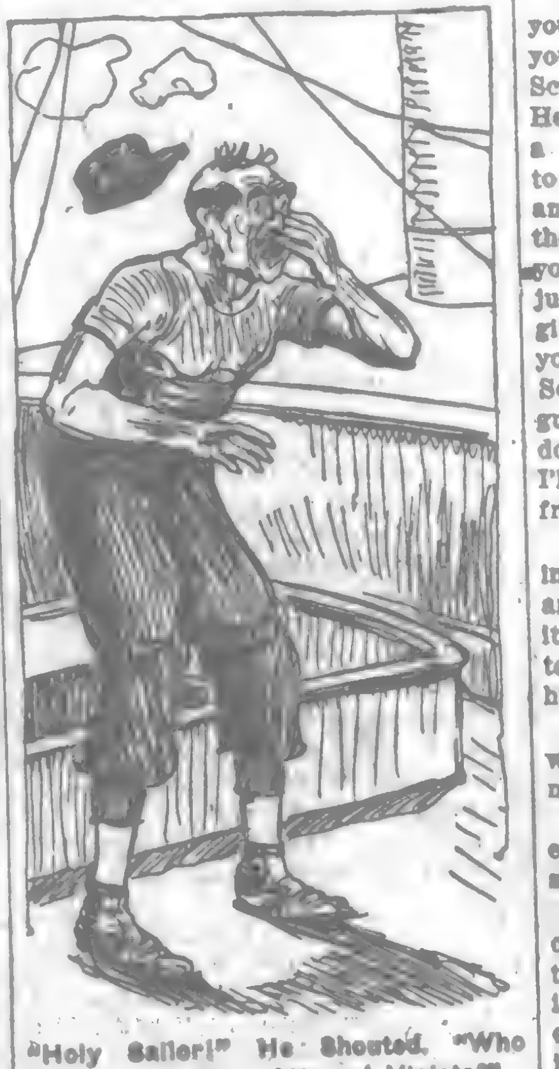
"Turnin' farmer, Gib?"

"Thinkin' about it a little," the commodore admitted. "What's your rate on this freight? It ain't perishable, so get down to brass tacks."

"A dollar a ton," declared the greedy Scraggs, naming a figure fully forty cents higher than he would have been willing to accept. "Five hundred dollars for the lot."

"Suits me." The commodore nonchalantly handed Scraggs five hundred dollars. "Gimme a receipt," he said.

So Captain Scraggs gave him a receipted freight bill and Mr. Gibney departed. An hour later a barge was bunted alongside the Victor and Neils



"Holy Sailor!" He Shouted. "Who Uncorked That Atter o' Violets?"

Halvorsen appeared in Scraggs' cabin to inform him that the five-hundred tons of freight was ready to be taken aboard.

"All right, Neils. I'll put a gang to work right off." He came out on deck, paused, tilted his nose, and sniffed. He was still sniffing when McGuffey bounced up out of the engine room.

"Holy Sailor!" he shouted. "Who uncorked that atter o' violets?"

"You dog-gone squarehead," shrieked Captain Scraggs. "You been monkeyin' around that codfish again."

"What smells?" demanded the mate, poking his nose out of his room.

"That tainted wealth I picked up at sea," shouted a voice from the dock, and turning, Scraggs and McGuffey observed Mr. Gibney standing on a stringer smiling at them.

"Gib, my dear boy," quavered Captain Scraggs, "you can't mean to say you've unloaded them gosh-awful codfish—"

"No, not yet—but soon, Scraggsy, old tarpot."

Captain Scraggs was on the verge of tears. "But, Gib! My dear boy! This freight'll foul the Victor up for a month o' Fridays—an' I just took out a passenger license!"

"I'm sorry, Scraggsy, but business is business. You've took my money an' you got to perform."

"You lied to me. You said it was agricultural stuff an' I thought it was plows an' harrers an' sich—"

"It's fertilizer—an' if that ain't agricultural stuff I hope my teeth may drop out an' roll in the ocean. An' it ain't perishable. It perished long ago. I ain't deceived you. An' if you don't like the scent o' dead codfish on your decks, you can swab 'em down with Florida water for a month."

Captain Scraggs' mate came around the corner of the house and addressed himself to Captain Scraggs.

[illegible]

"Adelbert," crooned Mr. McGuffey, "ain't you got no heart? You knew I got a half interest in the Victor—"

"O-oo-oh!" Captain Scraggs groaned, and his groan was that of a seasick passenger. When he could look up again his face was ghastly with misery.

"Gib," he pleaded sadly, "you got us where the hair is short. Don't invoke the law an' make us handle that codfish, Gib! It ain't right. Gimme leave to tow that barge—anything to keep your freight off the Victor, an' we'll pull it up river for you—"

"Be a good feller, Gib. You usen'ter be hard an' spiteful like that," urged McGuffey.

"I'll tow the barge free," wailed Scraggs.

Mr. Gibney sat calmly down on the stringer and lit a cigar. Nature had blessed him with a strong constitution amidships and the contiguity of his tainted fortune bothered him but little. He squinted over the tip of the cigar at Captain Scraggs.

"You're just the same old Scraggsy you was in the green-pea trade. All you need is a ring in yer nose, Scraggsy, to make you a human hog. Here you goes to work an' soaks me a dollar a ton when you'd be tickled to death to do the job for half o' that, an' then you got the gall to stand there appealin' to my friendship! So you'll tow the barge up free, eh? Well, just to make the transaction legal, I'll give you a dollar for the job an' let you have the barge. Skip to it, Scraggsy, an' draw up a new bill, guaranteein' to tow the barge for one dollar. Then gimme back $499.00 an' I'll hand you back this receipted freight bill."

Captain Scraggs darted into his cabin, dashed off the necessary document, and returning to the deck, presented it, together with the requisite refund, to Mr. Gibney, who, in the meantime, had come aboard.

"Whatever are you a-goin' to do with this awful codfish, Gib?" he demanded.

Mr. Gibney cocked his hat over one ear and blew a cloud of smoke in the skipper's face.

"Well, boys, I'll tell you. Salted codfish that's been under water a long time gets most o' the salt took out of it, an' even at sea, if it's left long enough, it'll get so darned ripe that it's what you might call offensive. But it makes good fertilizer. There ain't nothin' in the world to equal codfish, medium ripe, for fertilizer. I've rigged up a deal with a orchard comp'ny that's layin' out a couple o' thousand acres o' young trees up in the delta lands o' the Sacramento. I've sold 'em the lot, after first buyin' it from the owners o' the schooner for a hundred dollars. Every time these orchard fellers dig a hole to plant a young fruit tree they aim to heave a codfish in the bottom o' the hole first, for fertilizer. There was upward o' two hundred thousand codfish in that schooner an' I've sold 'em for five cents each, delivered at Dunnigan's landin'. I figger on cleanin' up about seven thousand net on the deal. I thought me an' Neils was stuck at first, but I got my imagination workin'—"

Captain Scraggs sank limply into McGuffey's arms and the two stared at the doughty commodore.

"Hit in the face with a fortune an' didn't know it," gasped poor McGuffey. "Gib, I'm sure glad you got out whole on that deal."

"Thanks to a lack o' imagination in you an' Scraggsy I'm about two hundred an' fifty dollars ahead o' my estimate now, on account o' the free tow o' that barge. Me an' Neils certainly makes a nice little split on account o' this here codfish deal."

"Gib," chattered Scraggs, "what's the matter with reorganizin' the syndicate?"

"Be a good feller, Adelbert," pleaded McGuffey.

Mr. Gibney was never so vulnerable as when one he really loved called him by his Christian name. He drew an arm across the shoulders of McGuffey and Scraggs, while Neils Halversen stood by, his yellow fangs flashing with pleasure under his walrus mustache.

"Scraggsy! Mac! Your fins! We'll reorganize the syndicate, an' the minute [illegible] Neils finds ourselves with a [illegible] for a one-quarter interest [illegible] the actual [illegible] tow this here barge—"

[illegible]

"You're a sea lawyer, Gib," Scraggs retorted sarcastically.

"You do what Gib says," McGuffey ordered threateningly. "Remember, I got a half interest in any judgment he gits agin us—an' what's more, I object to them codfish clutterin' up my half interest."

"You bullied me on the old Maggie," Scraggs screeched, "but I won't be bullied no more. If you want to tow that barge, Mac, you buy me out, lock, stock and barrel. An' the price for my half interest is five thousand dollars."

"You've sold something, Scraggsy," Mr. McGuffey flashed back at him, obeying a wink from Mr. Gibney. "An' here's a hundred dollars to bind the bargain. Balance on delivery of proper bill-o'-sale."

While Scraggs was counting the money Mr. Gibney was writing a receipt in his note book. Scraggs, still furious, signed the receipt.

"Now, then, Scraggsy," said Mr. Gibney affably, "hustle up to the custom house, get a formal bill-o'-sale blank, fill her in, an' hustle back agin for your check. An' see to it you don't change your mind, because it won't do you any good. If you don't come through now I can sue you an' force you to."

"Oh! So you're buyin' my interest, eh?"

"Well, I'm lendin' Mac the money, an' I got a hunch he'll sell the interest to me an' Neils without figgerin' on a profit. You're a jarrin' note in the syndicate, Scraggsy, an' I've come to that time o' life where I want peace. An' there won't be no peace on the Victor unless I skipper her."

Captain Scraggs departed to draw up the formal bill of sale and Mr. Gibney, drawing The Squarehead and McGuffey to him, favored each with a searching glance and said:

"Gentlemen, did it ever occur to you that there's money in the chicken business?"

It had! Both McGuffey and Neils admitted it. There are few men in this world who have not, at some period of their lives, held the same view, albeit the majority of those who have endeavored to demonstrate that fact have subsequently changed their minds.

"I thought as much," the commodore grinned. "If I was to let you two out o' my sight for a day you'd both be flat busted the day after. So we won't buy no farm an' go in for chickens. We'll sell the Victor an' buy a little tradin' schooner. Then we'll go back to the South seas an 'earn a legitimate livin'."

"But why'll we sell the Victor?" McGuffey demanded. "Gib, she's a love of a boat."

"Because I've just had a talk with the owners o' the two opposition lines an' they, knowin' me to be chummy with you an' Scraggsy, give me the tip to tell you two that you could have your choice o' two propositions—a rate war or a sale o' the Victor for ten thousand dollars. That gets you out clean an' saves your original capital, an' it gits Scraggsy out the same way, while nettin' me an' Neils five hundred each."

"A rate war would ruin us," McGuffey agreed. "In addition to sourin' Scraggsy's disposition until he wouldn't be fit to live with. Gib, you're a wonder."

"I know it," Mr. Gibney replied.

Within two hours Captain Scraggs' half interest had passed into the hands of McGuffey, and half an hour later the Victor had passed into the hands of the opposition lines, to be operated for the joint profit of the latter. Later in the day all four members of the syndicate met in the Bowhead saloon, where Mr. Gibney explained the deal to Captain Scraggs. The latter was dumfounded.

"You'll run without me, Gib," Scraggs declared emphatically. "I've had a-plenty o' the dark blue for mine. I got a little stake now, so I'm going to look around an' invest in a—"

"A chicken ranch," McGuffey interrupted.

"Right-O, Bart. How'd you guess it?"

"Imagination," quoth McGuffey, tapping his forehead, "imagination, Scraggsy."

Three weeks later Mr. Gibney had purchased, for account of his now abbreviated syndicate, the kind of power schooner he desired, and the inspectors gave him a ticket as master. With The Squarehead as mate and Mr. McGuffey as engineer and general utility man, the [illegible]

[illegible]

A Short Time Ago I Weighed Only 80 Pounds---I Now Weigh 112 Pounds and

TANLAC

is what built me up so wonderfully, says Mrs. Barbara Weber, 315 Van Ness Ave., San Francisco. She is but one of thousands similarly benefited.

If you are under weight, if your digestion is impaired, if you are weak and unable to enjoy life to the fullest measure, you should take Tanlac. At all good druggists.

Freedom Based on the Bible.

It is impossible to enslave, mentally or socially, a Bible-reading people. The principles of the Bible are the groundwork of human freedom.—Horace Greeley.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

Garfield Tea
Was Your
Grandmother's Remedy

For every stomach and intestinal ill. This good old-fashioned herb home remedy for constipation, stomach ills and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicine than in your grandmother's day.

Rats in the Cellar, Mice in the Pantry, Cockroaches in the Kitchen

What can be more disagreeable than a home infested with pests? Destroy them with Stearns' Electric Paste, the standard exterminator for more than 43 years.

Kill rats, mice, cockroaches, waterbugs or ants in a single night. Does not blow away like powders; ready for use: better than traps. Directions in 15 languages in every box. Order from your dealer.

2 oz. size 35c. 15 oz. size $1.50.

DON'T DESPAIR

If you are troubled with pains or aches; feel tired; have headache, indigestion, insomnia; painful passage of urine, you will find relief in

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles and National Remedy of Holland since 1696. Three sizes, all druggists.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Liggett & Myers
KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as
"that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

COUGH?
KEMP'S
BALSAM

[illegible]

MARCH

FREE

Rainbow

[illegible] COMPANY
FORT WAYNE INDIANA

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

"COLD IN THE HEAD"
is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a "run down" condition. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts Quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds." Sold by druggists for over 40 Years. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE NOTARY PUBLIC

Musical Art

Conducting and Teaching
a Specialty.

Arrangements can be made for beginners and advanced pupils at any time desired.
Call personally Mr. WILCOX, 2nd door west of Opera House, St. Joe, Ind.

Local Briefs

For Sale—Hard Coal Colony Brooder. G. A. Ward.

Samuel Mumaw is reported as not being very well again.

For Sale—A few bushels of mammoth clover seed. Garth D. Smith, St. Joe. Ind. R.F.D. No 1.

Mrs. Avis Staman spent Saturday afternoon a guest in the Byron [illegible] home.

[illegible]

Lee Chapman and family, of Spencerville, spent Sunday with F. D. Kinsey and family.

You Fisherman, get a copy of the new National Sportsman at the News Office.

C. B. Leighty remains about the same being confined to his bed with Yellow Jaundice.

WANTED:—Maple syrup on subscription. Call the News Office or bring it in any time.

J. P. Buckingham and wife spent Sunday as guests of the latter's brother, J. E. Folts and wife.

Mrs. William Price and daughter Margaret, spent Saturday night and Sunday guests of Saxe Hadsell and family.

The infant daughter, Katherine Belle, of Mr. and Mrs. Grover Curie is quite ill, being under the care of a physician.

Mrs. Stanley Monroe and little daughter of Williamsport spent last Sunday and Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Monroe.

Mrs. Pauline McDanial was dismissed Saturday from the Irene Byron Sanitorium and returned here to the home of her parents, E. P. Brown and wife.

Farm Wanted—Wanted to hear from owner of a farm for sale; give lowest price and full particulars. L. JONES, Box 326, Olney, Ill.

The name and address mentioned in the item concerning Mrs. Peter Kosht renewing of subscription should be corrected. It is D. R. Krabill, Lake, Clare county, Mich.

March Magazines are in. Call at The News Office and get a copy of the big March number of the Ladies Home Journal for 15 cents. 190 pages.

C. C. Curie, of south of town, is feeling considerably better than he has all winter, and it is thought that he will soon be able to get up town.

Grover Curie, who has been nursing a bullet wound inflicted in the calf of his leg on January 21, is now able to resume his work as a service man for the International Harvester Co., Ft. Wayne branch

T. A. Northrup, wife and son, and Will Hamilton, wife and daughter were Sunday dinner guests of Howard Northrup and wife. The occasion being in honor of the former two ladies birthday anniversaries.

Tanlac is the ideal strenthener and body builder for old folks, because it creates a healthy appetite for wholesome food and strengthens and invigorates the digestive organs. At Sheffer's.

Mrs. B. E. Widney was a guest of her niece, Mrs. F. D. Kinsey, Friday. Harry Kinsey, wife and little son, of Fremont, were Saturday afternoon callers in the same home.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily and daughter, Miss Louetta, attended the concert given by the Hart's Girl Band and Orchestra at Hicksville, Monday night. Miss Louetta having part in the orchestra.

The Indiana National guard will be trained at Camp Knox, Ky., this year from July 23 to August 27. The companies of the state will be divided into three groups for training

Henry [illegible] of near [illegible] town is advertising a public sale for March 4th at his residence [illegible]

[illegible]

Wm. Randall is numbered among the sick.

Mrs. Grace Sheffer was a Hicksville visitor Saturday.

Simon Chubb spent the day in Fort Wayne, Saturday.

S. D. Gee was at Hicksville, Friday morning.

Mrs. J. W. Cruthers is quite ill at her home on Spencerville street.

Mrs. McNabb of Butler spent Sunday as a guest of A. Poince.

Robert Johnson is improving nicely from his recent illness.

Mrs. Grover Ward was called to Toledo, Saturday, by the serious illness of her sister.

Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Gee spent the day Sunday with their son Howard Gee and family at Fort Wayne.

Miss Catherine Kinsey of Angola spent over Sunday here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Kinsey.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler returned home Saturday from nearly a two weeks visit with their children at Marion and Fort Wayne.

Dan Myers returned to work Sunday morning after a few days absence from the St. Joe garage because of illness.

Mrs. Lizzie Milliman and daughter Miss Leota, spent Saturday night and Sunday with the former's mother Mrs. Mary Shuff.

Mrs. Leon Sechler and little son Edward spent Thursday at Fort Wayne, bringing home with them a little two year old girl whom Mr. and Mrs. Sechler expect to adopt later on.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Brunson and daughter Violet were Tuesday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Bassett.

Mr. and Mrs Frank Myrtle of Waterloo accompanied Mrs. Harry Randall and son home Sunday last after she had spent the week with them. Harry Randall of Ottawa, Ohio, also spent Saturday night and Sunday with his family and parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Randall.

These cold nights and early morning thaws should inspire farmers to open their sugar camps. If the farmer hasn't the time to do the work he can easily get some one to do it for him. However there are several camps that are now open and it is reported that there has been a good run.

George Quince, the well known painter and paper hanger, was operated upon for hernia at the Souder hospital on West Seventh street, Auburn, last Saturday. Word from his bed side Tuesday was to the effect that he is doing nicely and is able to receive callers.

The work of wrecking 169 wooden cantonments at Fort Benjamin Harrison, near Indianapolis, built during the war and sold last week, was started last Tuesday. The buyers of the buildings will have sixty days in which to remove them from the post. Total receipts from the sale amounted to $22,000. Some of the cantonments will be reserved by the government to be remodeled and used as quarters for noncommissioned officers and their families.

During the absence of her father, J. L. Rhodenbaugh and wife, who were visiting in the home of Mrs Lu Smith, near Spencerville, Sunday, Miss Irma Rhodenbaugh about eighteen years of age, left for Garrett by auto where she entrained for Petersburg, Virginia, to the home of relatives. Her relatives here did not know she was going but in a note left behind they were informed of her destination which they confirmed by telephoning to the depot where she purchased her ticket. She also said in her note she would telegraph them on her arrival at her relatives home. Irma was a local telephone operator and a High School student.

High School Notes

FRESHMEN:

The Freshmen have enough money in their treasury to finance their own pictures for the Annual.

The Freshmen Domestic Science girls have begun work on kimonos. —H. M.

SOPHOMORE:

During the past week the Sophomores have missed the presence of one of their classmates, Bob Johnson, who has been ill. He is expecting to be back in school within a very short time.

We were not the first, but the second in Spelling Averages this week. Our averages show a decided improvement over the ones received during the first part of the term.

The Caesar class has begun to study in the fourth book. We expect to cross Caesar's famous bridge successfully. —L. D.

JUNIOR:

Junior attendance has been rather poor for the past week—it seems we are taking turns in getting sick.

Next Thursday in Book-keeping class we will have a total balance of all books. We are in training to become strict business men and women, therefore we must know the outcome of each days work. It might be well to apply this rule to all of our lessons. —J. K.

SENIOR:

The Senior Class has begun practice for the class play, entitled "The Rhodes Scholar," which will be given during the latter part of March. The exact date has, as yet, not been decided upon.

The St. Joe High School basket ball team has high hopes of making a showing at the District Tournament which is to be held at Fort Wayne next Friday and Saturday, March 3rd and 4th.

Our first opponents will be the La Otto High School. This game will be played Friday at 1:00 p. m.

We have, at present, eleven games to our credit, having lost only four.

GENERAL ITEMS

The following are the spelling averages for the past week:

Eighth grade	96
Seventh Grade	95
Seniors	92.82
Sophomores	92.73
Freshmen	90.4
Sixth Grade	88.2
Fifth Grade	86.4
Juniors	82.2

St. Joe motored to Garrett last Saturday night where they played the boys and girls teams of that place. The girls were defeated 68 to 1. The boys lost their game by three points, the score being 18-21. The latter [illegible] the score stood [illegible] favor at the end of the first half.

[illegible]

is concerned. Each home has some of them, stored away, catching dust and occupying space. If these could be turned over to the school, use could be made of a very large percent of them.

We therefore ask that any citizen [illegible]

[illegible]

A Load of DAILY BREAD FLOUR

Does not last long where it is best known. Women who have tried it always insist on having the DAILY BREAD BRAND thereafter. There must be a reason for their insistence, of course.

Tell your grocer to send you a sack and you'll know the reason to your own satisfaction and that of everybody who eats at your table.

GIVE US A CALL and we can save you $$$$$ on

Feeds and Tankage, Oil Meal and Cotton Seed Meal and Poultry Specialties

CHOP GRINDING OUR HOBBY

FARMERS' CO-OPERATIVE MILLING COMPANY

S. W. CHUBB, Mgr., - - St Joe, Indiana

Every Boy Wants It

If you could realize how much that boy of yours, or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well-balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through—and its influence is of the best.

THE AMERICAN BOY
"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"

In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.

Price Reduced

THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. Make some boy happy—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY!

Mail this Coupon to the publication in which this offer appears.

For $2.00 enclosed send a Year's Subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, beginning with the................Number to

Name ....

Address ....

--Dr.--

J. W. Hartzog

HARTZOG EYE SIGHT SPECIALIST

Eye-Sight SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana

WILL BE AT

Dr Price's Dentist Office, st joe, Ind.,

Friday, MARCH 10, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL.

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174

Made in five grades

For Sale at your Dealer

ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND

[illegible] MIKADO

EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

Announcement!

We have a new line of Ladies' and Misses

Oxfords and Slippers

FOR SPRING WEAR

Also a [illegible] line of

WHITE SLIPPERS

[illegible]

We carry a full line of

SHOES AND RUBBERS

[illegible]

Call and see [illegible]

THE CENTRAL GROCERY

MARCH

L 912

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1922 NO. 10

Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes for Spring 1922 are here

You'll find the coat lapels are a trifle longer and narrower. Buttons are spaced a little lower. The new sport styles show many interesting features in— pocket, plaits and belts. We're ready with all of them and will be glad to show you.

EVERYTHING TO WEAR
for Men and Boys.

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

The Coal That gives satisfaction is the COAL to buy. Every pound of our Hocking Valley and Buffalo White Ash is a pound of satisfaction. There are cheaper Coals but not as satisfactory. Order now and get the Best that money will buy.

Tankage--Cotton Seed Meal--Oil Meal--Bran and Middlinfis--Armour's Hog and Stock Feeds.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept. Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Let Us Be Your Bookkeeper

A checking account can be made a very convenient system of bookkeeping, commending itself especially to those people who feel that they do not have enough business to justify the keeping of an elaborate set of books. Your deposits can be made to represent your [illegible] and your checks your expenditures. The stubs of your check book will be your record, which will require very little time to keep up to date.

We would be pleased to have you call and let us explain [illegible] the advantages of a checking account. [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

St. Joe Loses Out in Tourney

St. Joe figured in the first game of the high school basket-ball sectional tournament held at Ft. Wayne last Friday and Saturday when they played the LaOtto five as a curtain raiser to the big series of games to be played. The locals found their opponents easy prey and won by a score of 32 to 2.

Having won their first game they were entitled to play in a second game on Saturday morning. This time it fell for them to contest the husky Washington Center team who were also successful in their first game on Friday against Spencerville. But this time our boys met with real opposition and they were forced to bow to Washington Center with a score of 13 to 7. However a plucky fight was given, as the close score indicates, and the winners had to resort to their very best to hold their safety.

The strong Wolf Lake team coped the finals Saturday night in the Ft Wayne district when it wrestled the championship away from Kendalville who held the cup for last year.

Angola was successful in retaining the honors in the northern district by winning in the final game with Hudson. Decatur won the finals in its section, and Huntington in the central section.

On March 11th, next Saturday, these winners of the various sectional meets of last week will journey to Indiana and Purdue Universities to play for closer honors. Then on the following Saturday, March 18, the winners at Indiana and Purdue of next Saturday will clash at Indianapolis for the state championship in the final contest. Make your guess.

High School Notes

FRESHMEN:

The Freshmen English class have completed their study of Scott's "Marmion," and are ready to begin work on Parkman's "Oregon Trail."

Our Algebra class, in order to cover their years work, has sixty-nine pages to cover during the next six weeks.

The Manual Training class will start to work in the shop, after devoting the last month to mechanical drawing.

—H. M.

SOPHOMORE:

Once more victorious!! By a small margin, we have again succeeded in placing ourselves at the apex of the spelling pyramid.

I take this opportunity to thank the members of the Sophomore class for their kind remembrance of flowers during my absence, also for the shower of letters which was equally appreciated.

—Bob Johnson.

JUNIOR:

The Juniors are busy preparing a Minstrel program, which they expect to present in a few weeks.

As a result of two of our boys being at the tournament our spelling average has taken a surprising [illegible]

[illegible] had us some very interesting facts about our personal characteristics during English class Monday morning.

—J. K.

SENIOR:

The Senior class, having [illegible] the study of [illegible] and [illegible], is now [illegible] up Tennyson's "Idyls of the King."

The Senior English class is now [illegible]

[illegible]

Samuel Armstrong Appointed Postmaster

Samuel Armstrong has been officially notified that he has been chosen as Postmaster of St. Joe postoffice.

Mr. Armstrong has been serving as postmaster since January first, 1921. Another examination for that office was necessary when the office here was changed from Fourth to Third class several months ago.

Suit on an Account

A suit on an account has been filed in the DeKalb circuit court by Beyer Bros. against J. M. Beams of Spencerville.

The complaint says the defendant bought merchandise from the plaintiff that has not been paid for, to the value of $111.25. Judgment is asked for $200, including 8 per cent interest from March 1, 1921.

Will be a Candidate for Recorder

Marion S. DeLong, of Fairfield township, announced recently that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for recorder at the primaries on May 2. He is the first candidate to seek the Republican nomination for that office.

Mr. DeLong is well known throughout DeKalb county. He was born and reared in Richland township, DeKalb county, and for the past thirty-one years has resided in Fairfield township. He has been a farmer all his life except a period of two years in which he taught school.

Mr. DeLong has been active in the Republican party. For twenty-five years he has served either as precinct committeeman or as a member of the executive council of the county central committee. He also served four years as the secretary of the DeKalb county farmers' institute organization. Friends of Mr. DeLong have been urging that he become a candidate for several weeks, but it was not until Monday that he decided to enter the race. It is believed that he will not have opposition at the primary.

May be a Candidate for Coroner

Friends of Dr. U. G. Vance, of Waterloo, are urging him to enter the democratic primary for the nomination for coroner.

Dr. Vance has been practicing medicine a number of years at Waterloo, and during the war with Germany he served in the medical department of the American Army.

L. W. Yeiser For Auditor

Lloyd W. Yeiser, of Concord township, formally announced recently his candidacy for the republican nomination for auditor of DeKalb county.

Mr. Yeiser is a former newspaper man who deserted the publishing business to throw his lot with the farmer. He was publisher of the St. Joe News from 19[illegible] to 1906. Then he went to Avilla and was one of the proprietors of the Avilla News until 1915. For a number of years before that time he had owned a farm in Concord township, and in 1915 he sold his interests at Avilla and moved onto his farm.

While at Avilla Mr. Yeiser served as a member of the town school board. He entered DeKalb county politics in 1920, when he was elected a member of the board of county commissioners to represent the south west district. He has taken great interest in his duties on the board and has decided he would like to devote his entire attention to public office.

Calvin Kain Will be Candidate For Surveyor

[illegible]

ST. JOE GARAGE: Boost St. Joe

IT'S HIGH TIME

you were making arrangements to have your automobile overhauled if you expect to get the maximum amount of pleasure and satisfaction the coming spring and summer seasons.

Delays always means disappointment. No one can tell just what conditions exist until the working parts of your automobile have been examined. Some may be broken. Some worn out. In either case they must be replaced. This requires time and the amount of it depends, to a large extent, on the model of your automobile.

These blustery days are just the days to do "waiting" jobs. Later when the sun will be shining every day you'll be ready. ☞ A modern shop and competent workmen await your pleasure.

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 95.

6 per ct.

Money to Lend on Farm

LOANS to be secured by First Mortgage for not to exceed 40% value of land alone, excluding improvements.

LOANS for more than 40% of land value at 7

Call at our office for complete information about our conditions and terms, which are attractive.

The Straus Brothers Company,

LIGONIER, INDIANA. Established 1860

County Agent Notes

There will be a pig club again this year and on the plan similar to the club last year. The pigs will be gilts (sow pigs) and will be raised for breeders. A number of the township farm bureaus are helping on this work. There were 66 pig club members that finished last year. There will be more to finish this year.

The boy or girl will select the breed and the pig. The only requirements are that the pig is pure-bred and is farrowed. The boy or girl must be at least 9 yr. 6 mo of age on June 1, 1922 and under 18.

Now is the time to get busy. Send in your application on a post card or letter to the county agent and begin to look around where to get a pig. You cannot get it at present, but you can find out now, where you can get it later on.

The [illegible] Twp. Farm Bureau held a very interesting meeting [illegible] March 2nd, at the [illegible]. A literary [illegible] by the ladies [illegible]. This was followed [illegible]

[illegible]

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor, subject to your will at the May primaries. L. W. Yeiser.

High School Alumni

(Continued from last week)

By mistake there were six names omitted from the 1920 class of the high school alumni which we published last week. They were—

Edith Barry (Hatch)
Marguerete Milliman
Geneva Martin (Sechler)
Gladys Layman
Charles Curie
Russell Kain

Our copy was taken from the secretary's book which happened to be incomplete.

Starts Buss Line.

Another auto bus will be [illegible] out of St. Joe beginning [illegible] March, 192[illegible]

[illegible]

MARCH

L 91

84

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognised Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

XIV.

THIS WAS YOUR MONEY

Consider for a moment, if you will, some further figures. This is your money I am talking about.

For every fiscal year from 1866 to 1893, inclusive, there was a surplus of receipts over expenditures. During this period of 28 years the surplus of receipts over expenditures totaled $1,920,205,013.41.

For the fiscal years 1894 to 1899, inclusive, the expenditures exceeded the receipts in the aggregate of $283,022,991.14. For the fiscal years 1900 to 1904, inclusive, the surplus of receipts over expenditures aggregated $310,319,165.04. For 1905 the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $78,776,622.30.

For the years 1910 to 1914, inclusive, the receipts exceeded the expenditures by $149,024,404.27. For 1915 the expenditures exceeded the receipts by $33,488,931.53. For 1916 the receipts exceeded the expenditures by $55,171,553.59, and for 1917 there was a deficit of $29,724,864.73.

From 1866 to 1917, inclusive, the receipts exceeded the expenditures for each year with the exception of 1894, 1895, 1896, 1897, 1898, 1899, 1905, 1908, 1909, 1915 and 1917. The total amount by which the expenditures exceeded the receipts for these 11 years just named, is $443,766,744.70. For the 52 fiscal years, 1866 to 1917, inclusive, the receipts exceeded the expenditures in 41 years, the total of such excess for that period being $2,591,453,184.16.

For the fiscal years 1866 to 1910, the revenues were raised through an indirect system of taxation. Beginning with the fiscal year ending June 30, 1910, the receipts from direct methods of taxation have usually grown each fiscal year, as will be seen by the following table:

1910—Corporation tax	$ 20,951,780.97
1911—Corporation tax	33,516,976.59
1912—Corporation tax	28,583,303.73
1913—Corporation tax	35,006,300.84
1914—Corporation excise tax.	10,671,077.22
1914—Corporation income tax	32,456,662.67
1914—Individual income tax..	28,253,534.85
1915—Emergency revenue......	52,069,126.29
1915—Corporation income tax	39,155,596.71
1915—Individual income tax..	41,046,162.09
1916—Emergency revenue.....	84,278,302.13
1916—Corporation income tax	56,993,657.98
1916—Individual income tax..	67,943,594.63
1917—Emergency revenue.....	86,297,553.83
1917—Corporation income tax	179,572,887.86
1917—Individual income tax..	180,108,340.10
1918—Income and excess profits tax	2,838,999,894.28
1919—Income and excess profits tax	2,596,068,782.70

The number of corporations making income tax returns showing taxable income, aggregated 52,498 in the calendar year 1909, and that number increased to 232,079 for the calendar year 1917. The number of individuals making personal income tax returns aggregated 357,598 for the calendar year 1913, and that number increased to 3,472,890 for the calendar year 1917.

For the fiscal year 1909 the total ordinary receipts aggregated $603,589,489.84, of which $300,711,933.95 came from customs duties, $246,212,643.59 came from internal revenue, and the balance was received from the sale of public lands and other miscellaneous items; whereas, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, the total receipts from customs amounted to $184,457,867.39, while the internal revenue, including income taxes and corporation and excess profits taxes, amounted to $3,839,950,612.05.

So you will see that until 1910 the money you paid toward the support of the government was slipped away from you so easily that you hardly knew anything about it. You did not know that you were paying taxes to the national government.

Indirect taxation is the most seductive form of raising public revenue. You never came in contact with the federal government except when you bought a postage stamp. But now you know it every time you buy a drink at a soda fountain, or a bottle of medicine, or send a telegram, or make a long-distance telephone call, or perform any one of a score of other normal activities of daily life. Something must be put in the kitty for the government. Its annual rakeoff runs into the billions. You pay it and the government spends it.

But all that part of the party is about over now. The oysters have been eaten and put in the bill. They must be paid for. It is perfectly clear that in the future by far the greater part of the revenue required for conducting the public business must come from direct taxes. It is also clear that the ordinary expenses for running the government will in future probably exceed four billion dollars a year. That is a lot of money to take out of your pockets, and mine. Hadn't we better see what is done with it, and whether we can save any of it? Congress, which is very far-sighted, and able, when its own skin is concerned, to distinguish a hawk from a hand saw at a very great distance, is beginning to take notice.

REMEDY IN YOUR HANDS

I have been asked many times, and particularly since this series began: "What is the remedy for the condition and situation of government business that you have described? What can we, the average man or woman without influence, and with no knowledge of politics, what can we do about it?"

Well, the answer is that you can do everything about it. The remedy lies wholly within your own hands, as I have tried to point out in each one of the articles that have preceded this one. It is a remedy easy to prescribe but, I confess, difficult to put into effect.

Difficult, I mean, in the sense that you will have to give up time from your own engrossing private affairs to pay some attention to what you probably think of as public affairs and, as such, not concerning you. The whole point I have to make is that public affairs are your affairs.

I do not suggest that you go into politics. I do not suggest that you attend political meetings. I do suggest that you take an interest, a direct personal interest, in the business of government as distinguished from the politics of government.

A part of the remedy you ask for the conduct of the business of government has been applied when the facts and the conditions are spread broadcast and made known to every taxpayer. Bad conditions are in a way to be remedied when they become known.

But some hundreds of you have written me and asked: "How can we help? What can we do?" Let's take a concrete case.

Congress has committed itself to the policy of building twenty first-class battleships in the next few years. Armed and equipped these battleships will cost in the [illegible] of [illegible] each. That will make a total cost of [illegible]; that is, just about of a billion dollars.

Do you [illegible] [illegible] represent you fairly, you can keep them at home. Whatever a majority of you want you can have.

To this moment a majority have approved, at least by silence, the great military expenditures that have been made from the money you have paid in taxes. If now you have come to the conclusion that it is too much, you have only to say so.

Do you realize that this conference on the limitation of armament which President Harding called arose fundamentally out of the circumstance that all of the so-called big nations are paying more than they can afford to pay by way of preparation for war?

The endeavor to find a formula to limit armaments is another way of saying that the nations are trying to find a way to save money. Since the war the great powers are all living beyond their means. All of them are in debt. All of them, except ourselves, owe more than they can pay. In all of them, including the United States, government expenses are running beyond government income. A nation can no more stand that sort of thing than a private person or a private business.

If you will devote a half hour or an hour every evening to thinking about and talking about public business you will be amazed at the prompt response you will get. If there is any question you want to ask, write to your congressman or to either one of your senators. That will cost you two cents for a postage stamp, and it won't cost him anything to reply, for his letters go through the mails free. That is one way of helping to remedy the present condition.

An Arms Cache in Center

[illegible]

THERE IS PLACE ON MOST FARMS FOR TURKEYS, DUCKS OR GEESE

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farmers give much attention to various combinations and rotations of crops, endeavoring to secure an arrangement that is most profitable for each individual farm. They do the same in selecting the kinds and numbers of live stock. But not so much attention is paid to the selection of poultry to suit the peculiar conditions of farms and neighborhoods. The hen will always be the leader among farm poultry, says the United States Department of Agriculture, but she requires the aid of turkeys, guineas, geese and ducks, just as on a dairy farm the cow often requires the aid of pigs and sheep to make the farm business most profitable.

Ducks Gather Food From Streams.

Where grain fields of neighboring farms are in proximity to the barn and dooryard it would, perhaps, be better not to keep turkeys. The farm through which no streams run, and which has no large pond, would probably be better without ducks. But the circumscribed farm, on which turkeys would be a disadvantage, may be supplied with a small pool so located that ducks would be profitable, and the farm that has no streams and ponds may have large range for turkeys.

Geese, in a larger measure than chickens, or any other kind of poultry, are grazing stock, taking their living in large part from the ordinary grasses of the pastures. When the facts are taken into consideration that the demand for geese is strong, steady, and extended practically over the entire year, not confined to the holiday seasons as the demand for turkeys, that geese excel all other kinds of poultry as producers of fat, the importance of an adequate number of geese in the poultry scheme becomes apparent.

On farms where ponds or streams are available, ducks will convert into meat and eggs great quantities of water insects and various aquatic forms that would not be utilized by any other kind of poultry. Ducks, while they consume large quantities of grass and other green stuff, are more partial to animal feeds and are very energetic in patrolling the branches, creeks, and ponds as sources of feed supply.

Pigeons of Questionable Value.

The one kind of poultry of questionable economic value on farms is the pigeon. Almost exclusively a grain eater, the pigeon renders no important service as a conserver of waste, except, perhaps, in the case of shattered grain in the fields, and that in a large measure would be taken up by other poultry and by pigs. The pigeon has its place in the towns and cities, but, except in isolated instances where conditions are peculiarly favorable, its production is not often desirable on farms. The back-yard poultry keeper can hardly hope for success with turkeys, geese, ducks, or guineas, but for those who have lofts over garage, stable or coal shed the opportunity for squab growing is worth considering.

Hen Will Always Be the Leader Among Farm Poultry.

Turkeys, ranging further afield, prey upon the insects that escape the hens. From the time the poults are old enough to forage until near frost, they take the bulk of their feed from field insects, devouring millions of grasshoppers and other injurious worms that feed on crops. In regions where wooded areas are still fairly extensive mast is an important item in the diet of the turkey. When the supply of insects begins to fail the mast larder begins filling up. Feeding on acorns, chestnuts, beechnuts and the like, turkeys will go a long way toward fattening themselves for the Thanksgiving or Christmas market, and will not require much feeding of corn or other grain to finish them. Generally speaking, turkeys will require a larger feeding of grain than chickens to finish them for market, but as they utilize forms of waste that hens and their broods would not reach, the keeping of a few turkeys is good economy. The finishing period is short.

Guinea fowls use still other kinds of waste that would escape both hens and turkeys. Taking a wider range than chickens, and yet not quite so wide as turkeys, keeping largely to the thickets and weed patches, and committing fewer depredations against field and garden than either chickens or turkeys, requiring little feeding at any time, being good layers during their season of eggs that are thought by many to have a richer and finer flavor even than hen eggs, the guinea is a good fowl to keep on any farm where a serious effort is made to convert all waste into meat or eggs.

GIVE PIGS WORM TREATMENT

Young Animals Should Be Looked After as Soon as Weaned—Clean Pasture Favored.

Pigs should always be given worm treatment immediately after weaning. If necessary give them a second dose two weeks after the first. If they are then turned on a good alfalfa, clover or rape pasture and are fed grain in addition so that they remain thrifty there is little danger of further trouble from worms. In other words keeping hogs reasonably free from worms is not a difficult thing to do, if they are looked after at the proper time.

Substitute for Sprouted Oats.

Few farmers, not specializing in poultry, have the time and patience to operate an oats sprouter, valuable as sprouted oats are. Thus, the fine clover or alfalfa leaves lying on the hay mow floor if mixed with a soft mash will help take the place of the green food so essential to layers.

PLAN TO INCREASE SALES OF MILK

Campaigns Have Been Inaugurated in Various Sections to Boost Dairy Products.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Consumption of milk is on the increase as a result of the milk campaign of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges [illegible] inaugurated [illegible] the use of milk and other dairy products in cities, towns and rural districts. [illegible]

[illegible] ligent use of milk as a daily food. In Kansas City a previous survey showed a condition of 30 per cent undernourishment among the children, while after the milk campaign and regular instruction in health habits, a [illegible] investigation showed that malnutrition has been reduced to 15 per cent. [illegible] milk campaigns have been held in Madison, Wis.; Wheeling, W. Va.; Seattle, Wash.; Greenville, S. C.; Akron, O.; Warren, O.; [illegible], N. C.; Springfield, [illegible], Ind.; [illegible] county, Florida.

[illegible]

Highway Improvement

FEDERAL-AID HIGHWAY WORK

Texas Leads in Mileage With 1,116.4 Miles, With Minnesota Ranking a Close Second.

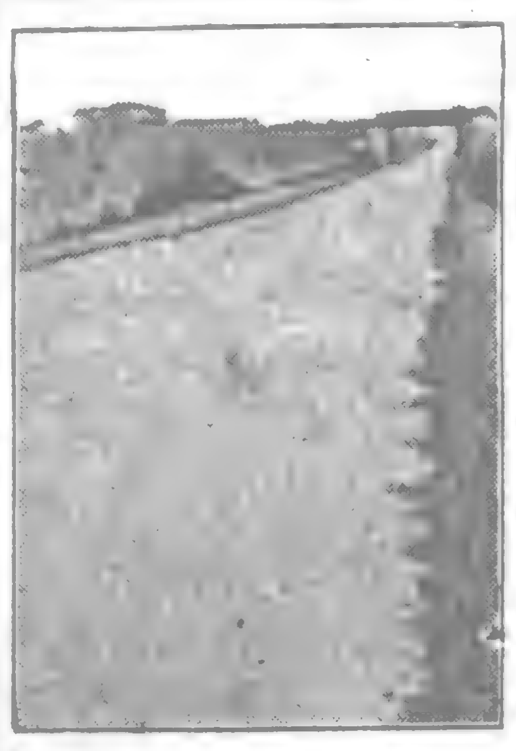
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Measuring the network of federal-aid highways spread over the country during the past 5 years, the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, places their total length, January 1 last, at 28,741.6 miles, and their cost at approximately $500,000,000. The figures represent 12,007 miles of completed roads over which traffic is flowing today and 15,834 miles of roads under construction and on that date estimated to be, as a whole, 70 per cent complete.

In mileage of completed federal-aid roads, Texas leads with a total of 1,116.4 miles. In addition there were under construction in Texas on January 1 a total of 1,381.9 miles of federal-aid highways whose estimated cost was nearly $22,000,000. Minnesota ranked second, with 1,066.6 miles, in the amount of completed federal-aid highways, the cost of the system being slightly over $10,000,000. Of that sum the federal government paid $3,878,663. In Minnesota there were under construction the first of the year 791.2 miles of federal-aid highways whose estimated cost was placed at $10,055,757. Other states with comparatively large mileages of completed federal-aid highways on January 1 were:

Illinois, 722.9 miles costing $24,608,958, of which $11,221,464 was paid by the federal government; Nebraska, 682.7 miles costing $3,627,767, of which the federal government paid $1,735,763; Wisconsin, 500.6 miles costing $6,702,100; Arkansas, 438.2 miles costing $5,148,080; Georgia, 633.4 miles costing $11,017,390; Iowa, 422.4 miles costing $7,969,981; North Carolina, 419.1 miles costing $5,641,788; Idaho, 401.1 miles costing $6,572,552; and Washington, 354.9 miles costing $8,081,285.

Completed federal-aid highway construction in some of the eastern and middle western states where the character of roads was of high type and the cost correspondingly greater per mile were as follows:



Completed Federal-Aid Road in Minnesota.

Pennsylvania, 390.1 miles costing $19,002,504; Ohio, 370.2 miles costing $12,475,569; New Jersey, 78.8 miles costing $3,442,224; Massachusetts, 120.5 miles costing $4,891,036; and Maryland, 187.8 miles costing $3,752,233.

Projects under construction and the degree of completion January 1 in other states were as follows:

California, 382.9 miles, 55 per cent complete; Georgia, 492.9 miles, 65 per cent complete; Iowa, 998.7 miles, 86 per cent complete; Kansas 471.8 miles, 69 per cent complete; Louisiana, 354.5 miles, 82 per cent complete; Minnesota, 791.2 miles, 65 per cent complete; Mississippi, 464.8 miles, 64 per cent complete; Missouri, 585.1 miles, 70 per cent complete; Montana, 412.8 miles, 77 per cent complete; Nebraska, 914.1 miles, 94 per cent complete; New Mexico, 551.9 miles, 54 per cent complete; New York, 347.9 miles, 44 per cent complete; North Carolina, 507 miles, 88 per cent complete; North Dakota, 810.2 miles, 80 per cent complete; Ohio, [illegible] miles, 91 per cent complete; [illegible], 308.2 miles, 64 per cent complete; Pennsylvania, 248.6 miles, 94 per cent complete; South [illegible], [illegible] miles, 59 per cent complete; South Dakota, 688.7 miles, 70 per cent complete; Tennessee, 449.1 miles, [illegible] per cent complete; Texas, [illegible] miles, [illegible] per cent complete; and [illegible], [illegible] miles, 75 per cent complete.

[illegible]

WORKS FOR CHILD MUST KEEP WELL

Mothers in a Like Situation Should Read This Letter from Mrs. Enrico

Chicago, Illinois.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a serious trouble. I had tried doctors and all said the same—an operation. At first I only felt the pain on my left side but later I seemed to feel it on both sides. I am a power sewing-machine operator and have a little girl to support. I work in a tailor shop and that line of work has been very slack this year and I am home part of the time. I do not like to take any chances, so I consulted my friends and one lady said, 'Take Lydia Pinkham's medicine,' so I did. I have felt better right along and am in good enough health to go to work. I recommend your Vegetable Compound and Sanative Wash to all."—Mrs. MARY ENRICO, 480 N. Carpenter St., Chicago, Illinois.

Often the mother is obliged to support her children and good health is necessary. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is just the medicine you can depend upon. It is a medicine for women's ailments and the relief it brought Mrs. Enrico it may bring to you. Keep well by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

Better Than Pills For Liver Ills.

NR Tablets tone and strengthen organs of digestion and elimination, improve appetite, stop sick headaches, relieve biliousness, correct constipation. They act promptly, pleasantly, mildly, yet thoroughly.

NR Tonight, Tomorrow Alright

Nature's Remedy
NR Tablets NR
A. H. Lewis Medicine Co. St. Louis
25 Tablets NR

Get a 25c. Box.

A Fair Trade.

"That's a beautiful bus," said the salesman, all carried away with his own eulogy of the car. "Of course there may be some little thing that it needs, but that's to be expected."

The prospect looked thoughtful, then he brightened.

"I tell you what I'll do," he replied. "I'll buy the little thing you mention and you throw in the car. You see, I've bought a second-hand machine before."—Cartoons Magazine.

Freshen a Heavy Skin

With the antiseptic, fascinating Cuticura Talcum Powder, an exquisitely scented, economical face, skin, baby and dusting powder and perfume. Renders other perfumes superfluous. One of the Cuticura Toilet Trio (Soap, Ointment, Talcum).—Advertisement.

Must Have Been.

"Look me in the face, sir."

He raised his eyes timorously.

"Now, sir, deny, if you dare, that you married me for my money!"

"It must have been for your money!" he faltered.—London Tit-Bits.

A man may be able to tell the truth about himself, but he prefers to tell it about some one else.

Many a married couple could save money out of what a bachelor spends.

No Rubber but More Stretch in Nu-Way or EXCELLO RUBBERLESS SUSPENDERS —and a Year's Wear Guaranteed Ask Your Dealer

If he hasn't them, send [illegible]

Price 75c

Ask for Nu-Way [illegible]

Nu-Way Stretch Suspender Co., Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.

KEMP'S BALSAM

MARCH

"Every Picture Tells a Story"

Feel Stiff and Achy After Every Cold?

Do You Have Constant Backache? Feel Old and Lame and Suffer Sharp, Rheumatic Pains? Then Look to Your Kidneys!

DOES every cold, chill or attack of grip leave you worn-out and utterly miserable? Do you feel old and lame, stiff and rheumatic? Does your back ache with a dull, unceasing throb, until it seems you just can't stand it any longer?

Then look to your kidneys! Grip, colds and chills are mighty hard on the kidneys. They fill the blood with poisons and impurities that the kidneys must filter off. The kidneys weaken under this rush of new work; become congested and inflamed.

It's little wonder, then, that every cold leaves you with torturing backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder irregularities.

But don't worry! Simply realize that your kidneys are overworked at such times and need assistance. Get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills and give your weakened kidneys the help they need. Assist them, also, by drinking pure water freely, eating lightly and getting plenty of fresh air and rest. Doan's Kidney Pills have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

"Use Doan's," Say These Grateful Folks:

Mrs. James Brady, 301 Sycamore St., La Grange, Ind., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have done me more good than anything I have ever used. My kidneys were always weak and when I took cold, it settled in these organs. My back ached so I could hardly keep on my feet to do my work and my kidneys acted irregularly, too. I used Doan's Kidney Pills for these attacks and they never failed to help me right away, strengthening my back and kidneys."

M. O. Fisher, 206 Division St., La Porte, Ind., says: "In the spring when I caught cold, my kidneys became disordered. My back was lame and weak. I also felt tired. Doan's Kidney Pills always put my kidneys in good condition and relieved me of the symptoms of kidney complaint." (Statement given March 9, 1916.)

On February 15, 1919, Mr. Fisher said: "I am sure Doan's have absolutely cured me of all kidney trouble."

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

At All Dealers, 60c a Box. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chem., Buffalo, N. Y.

WATCH THE BIG 4

Stomach-Kidneys-Heart-Liver

Keep the vital organs healthy by regularly taking the world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The National Remedy of Holland for centuries and endorsed by Queen Wilhelmina. At all druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Cuticura Soap Clears the Skin and Keeps it Clear

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

Painful Then.

"Do your shoes ever hurt you?"

"Not until I have to pay the bill."—New York Sun.

The man who is unable to work and smoke at the same time usually smokes.

When a man boasts of having money to burn he will soon have ashes to throw away.

A GOOD TONIC FOR OLD PEOPLE

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Restores Strength and Prevents Illness.

Aged people often need a good blood tonic. When the blood becomes clogged with poisons from the system, Gude's Pepto-Mangan purifies it by driving off the waste matter. Good blood is full of vitality and prevents illness, giving the body greater power of resistance. The weaknesses of old age are greatly helped by a supply of rich, red blood. Gude's Pepto-Mangan is sold in liquid or tablet form by all druggists. It has been recommended by physicians for 30 years and is a valuable tonic and builder for the weak and run-down of all ages from childhood to old age.—Advertisement.

Many a woman trusts a man with her affections who wouldn't lend him 30 cents in cash.

Hermits are not the only torpid livers.

Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

[illegible]

True Detective Stories

MATTER OF MINUTES

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

IT WAS evident that the robbery of the Rock Island Express had been effected in less than a quarter of an hour. The express car had been hitched on immediately behind the engine, and one of the firemen recalled having seen Kellogg, the messenger, checking up his accounts about fifteen minutes before the train pulled into Morris, Ill. The next time he glanced up a shade had been pulled across the window of the express car, and the first he knew of the robbery was after the train stopped at Morris, and Pitney, the brakeman, shouted out that Kellogg had been killed and that thousands of dollars was missing from the safe.

Jameson, who was in charge of the baggage car, directly behind the express car, provided what appeared to be the only clue to the crime, by stating that shortly after the train left Joliet, a man in a red mask had entered his car, held him up at the point of a revolver, and had then passed through to the car beyond, leaving Jameson in charge of another masked man who had disappeared as the train slowed down at Morris.

"I was scared stiff," admitted the baggageman, "and didn't dare budge."

The express authorities at Morris promptly sidetracked the express car, and wired the details of the case to William A. Pinkerton, who arrived only a few hours later. Meanwhile, however, the contents of the safe had been checked up, and it was discovered that more than $20,000 was missing. Kellogg, the messenger, was dead, but before dying, he had evidently given a good account of himself.

Before he did anything else, Pinkerton walked back over the track on which the train had come into Morris. Less than half a mile out he discovered a red mask, lying close to the track, and he also noted a most significant fact—although there was more than a foot of snow upon the ground, there were no foot-prints within a quarter-mile of the mask!

Returning to Morris, the detective commenced his examination of the express car, but failed to find anything of value.

Close inspection of the body of the dead messenger, however, brought to light another point which Pinkerton felt certain ought to prove valuable. Under Kellogg's finger nails was a considerable quantity of what at first appeared to be wet paper or pulp of some kind, but which the detective recognized as the outer layers of human skin, torn off during the struggle when the messenger's fingers were fighting to secure a hold upon his assailant!

Upon returning to Chicago, Pinkerton at once requested the officials of the road to have all the men employed on the train come to his office, one by one, to be interviewed. Jameson, he directed, was to be the last man sent.

When Pitney, the brakeman, entered, Pinkerton did not overlook the fact that he was dressed in a new outfit which was distinctly above his sphere in life. From the points of his glossy shoes to the top of his new derby, the brakeman had evidently treated himself to a brand-new wardrobe in honor of his interview with the famous detective, in spite of the fact that he had very little to tell. It was he who had discovered the robbery, but he had seen nothing of the man in the red mask, though Jameson's excited recital of the hold-up had caused him immediately to investigate the express car.

"That was just as we were pulling into Morris," concluded the brakeman, "and I gave a yell the minute I saw what they had done to Kellogg."

"That's what I wanted to talk to you about," said Pinkerton. "Sit down, won't you? And take off your coat, it's warm in here . . . . Your gloves, too, he added, noting that Pitney kept his hands covered.

After a moment's hesitation the brakeman peeled off his new gloves, and Pinkerton had difficulty in conceal- [illegible]

"No, no," Pitney replied. "I got those handling a busted trunk a few nights [illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

ROBBIE RACCOON

"I have been spending the winter in sleeping and resting," said Robbie Raccoon, and Ralph Raccoon said:

"So have I."

"You see," said Robbie, "when we live up North and winters are cold it is too much for us to be out all the time. Down in more southern climates the raccoons never bother to sleep and rest but keep busy all winter long rushing here and there and everywhere.

"How I do love to be about though, now that it is getting a bit warmer. I have been having a nice walk along the brooks and rivers nearby. I found some goodies inside shells, too! I had a regular feast and so did some of my relatives."

"Good," said Ralph Raccoon. "I have been feasting a bit, too, this year."

"They say that we're very curious and inquisitive, and I believe it is true. I never see anything," continued Robbie, "that I don't want to know what it is.

"Especially I like to know about things which shine brightly. Some of my family have been caught that way. But I am very careful.

"How I do enjoy eating!"

"So do I," said Ralph. "Let's talk about food for a bit."

"All right," said Robbie. "I couldn't talk about it so cheerfully were it not for the fact that I have just eaten well and so am not hungry.

"I like anything to eat. I enjoy fresh-water clams. Frogs and turtles and eggs, I like. Nuts and fruit and vegetables I can also eat.

"Green corn, I especially like. I will even venture near farmhouses so as to get the corn that is growing nearby.

"I run great risks for green corn."

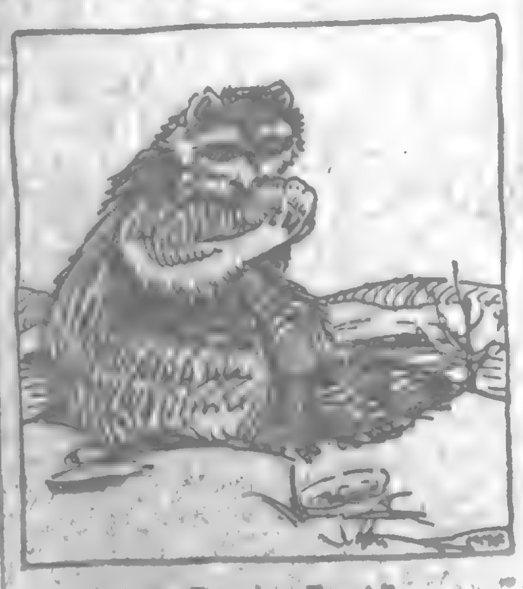
"So do I," said Ralph.

"I do most of my marketing at night," said Robbie.

"Yes," I like the night time best," said Ralph. "In fact I like the nighttime better than the daytime anyway, though I am not wholly a night creature as the owl is."

"The same is true of me," said Robbie.

"Well, to continue my talk on food," he said, "I always like to wash my food and have it nice and clean. And



"A Regular Feast."

I like to make it soft and squashy, too. I have been brought up by my mother to do this."

"Just as I have been," said Ralph.

"We're said to be very intelligent," said Robbie, "and I do believe we're bright.

"I think it is sensible of us to come back to the same hollow trees where we make our dens and to do this until we're grown-up gentleman and lady raccoons.

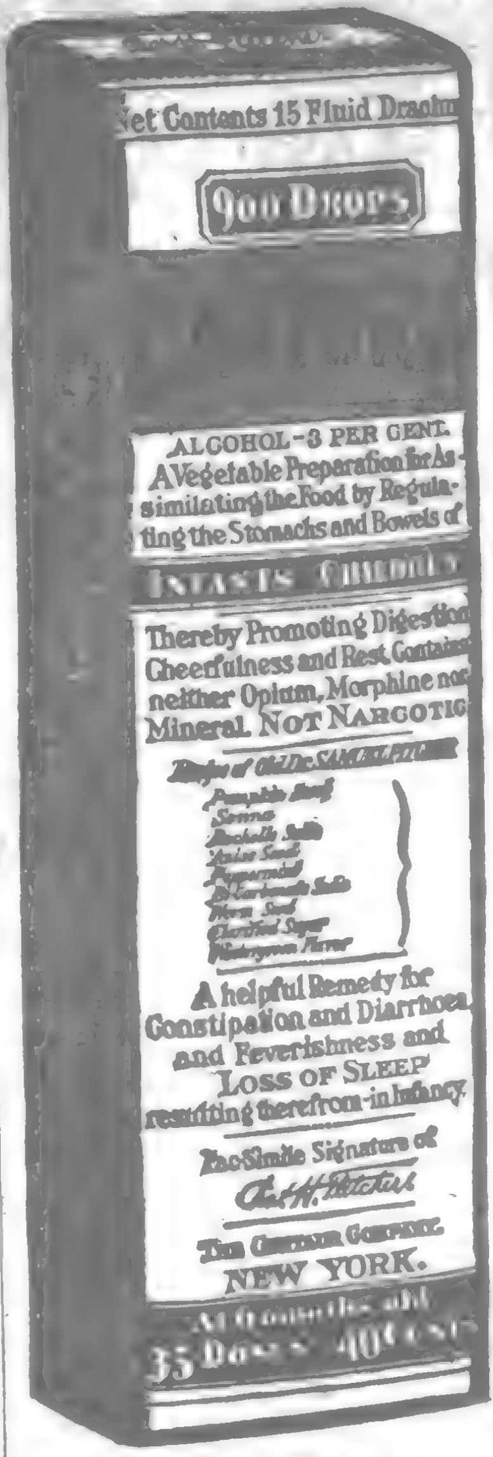
"We wait until we're really grown-up, too. We don't consider we're grown up when we're only a few months old. We have to be a few years old to consider ourselves grown up.

"Our dear mothers say they like to bring up about four or six little raccoons a year. They say they can do this and train them well."

"I suppose [illegible] knows what we [illegible]," said Ralph, "with our [illegible] tails and our hind feet which [illegible] on the ground like a bear's. [illegible] they aren't flat on the ground unless we are walking on the ground. That is understood, of [illegible]

[illegible] said Robbie.

[illegible]



Net Contents 15 Fluid Drachm
900 DROPS
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
Recipe of Old Dr. SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom in Infancy.
Fac-Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES 35 CENTS

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria Always Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Inviting Trouble.

"Would I consider him a prudent man? I can't say that I would. Exactly the opposite, in fact."

"What reason have you for holding such an opinion of him?"

"I happen to know that he lets his wife and the lady who expects to succeed her have charge accounts at the same store."

There is nothing more satisfactory after a day of hard work than a line full of snowy white clothes. For such results use Red Cross Ball Blue.—Advertisement.

Like His Verse.

"The lines of mine you have just read are a poetic picture of my fiancee." "Poor girl! She must limp terribly."

The most justice some men get the more they don't want.

Contentment is like fine weather; it usually doesn't last long.

TAKE ASPIRIN ONLY AS TOLD BY "BAYER"

"Bayer" Introduced Aspirin to the Physicians Over 21 Years Ago.

To get quick relief follow carefully the safe and proper directions in each unbroken package of "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin." This package is plainly stamped with the safety "Bayer Cross."

The "Bayer Cross" means the genuine, world-famous Aspirin prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years.—Advertisement.

Feminine Friendship.

"Is Bessie a friend of yours?"

"Yes—what has she been saying about me now?"—Judge.

WESTERN CANADA Land of Prosperity

offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts and conveniences which make life worth living.

Farm Gardens, Poultry, Dairying

are sources of income second only to grain growing and stock raising. Attractive climate, good neighbors, churches, schools, good markets, railroad facilities, rural telephone, etc.

For illustrated literature, maps, description of farm opportunities in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, reduced railway rates, etc., write

W. S. NETHERY, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, Ohio; M. J. JOHNSTONE, 215 Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Indiana

Authorized Agent, Dept. of Immigration and Colonization, Dominion of Canada

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Drawn from actual photograph of Jackson Allan Beard, son of Mrs. A. A. Beard, Priest River, Idaho.

Never one restless night—never one sick day!

CAN you say this of your baby? Or are you constantly worried, up half of the night, because his food is not agreeing with him?

Little Jackson Allan is a fine sturdy boy. Every child should be like him, [illegible] "he never has had a sick day" in [illegible] of "the [illegible] heat" of last summer. Mrs. Beard chose the famous Eagle Brand for her baby's food. [illegible] today justifies her choice, for he has progressed steadily [illegible]

[illegible]

Eagle Brand anywhere. It keeps indefinitely, so you can order a supply and have it always at hand. It is absolutely pure and uniform.

Do you want a beautiful little record book in which to keep your baby's record? You know how much you'll value it in the years to come. Just cut out the coupon and send it to us. We will mail "The Best Baby" and Eagle Brand feeding chart FREE.

THE BORDEN COMPANY

Borden Building, New York

[illegible] FOR FREE BOOK

[illegible]

MARCH

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year, . . . $1.50
Six Months, ...75
Three Months, ...40
One Month, ...15
Single Copy, ...05
(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

If you do not find town conditions to your liking, be a man, not a grouch. Try to better them.

—‡—‡—‡—

So many men seem to feel they have a grievance against advertising, although they have never given it a fair trial or really done anything to justify their contention.

—‡—‡—‡—

If you are in a small town where the opportunity for development is great, blaze the trail, start something doing and then keep it up. It may not yield such a terrific return in your day, but it may result in your being blessed by many generations to come.

—‡—‡—‡—

Robinson Crusoe--An Advertiser Got Results

One of the most persistent advertisers in the history of success was Robinson Crusoe. He knew what he wanted—a ship—so he put up an ad for one. He flung a shirt on a pole at the top of his island; that, in the language of the sea, was plain to every seafaring man. The circulation was small—there was no other medium—but Crusoe kept at it, despite the fact that he got no enquiries for a long time. He then changed his copy as one garment after another was frayed out—and in the end got what he wanted. Suppose Crusoe had taken down that signal after a time and declared "Advertising doesn't pay." Where would he and his story be now?—From Co-operation, Detroit.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	91	$4.90
M. P.	70	9.75
Lutheran	96	4.57
M. E. Spencer	62	6.39
Lutheran	86	4.22
Coburntown	71	2.89
Newville U. B.	61	2.54
Christian	95	3.10
Rehoboth	74	5.22
Concord	47	1.82
Mt. Pleasant	80

St. Joe Locals

William Curie was a Monday business visitor at Auburn.

George Swineford spent Sunday a guest in the James Sherwood home near Auburn.

Sam Kees attended the District basket ball tournament held at Fort Wayne, Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. Craig Sheffer and son Basil and Mrs. Eva Sheffer were Fort Wayne visitors Saturday.

Miss Kathryn Curie entertained at Sunday dinner the Misses Marjorie Curie and Katherine Shull.

Mrs. Will Hamm and Mrs. Clarence Hart were Hicksville visitors Monday forenoon.

[illegible]

Simon Chubb was a Fort Wayne visitor Saturday.

Charles Curie was a Friday night guest of his cousin Ralph Sechler and family at Fort Wayne.

Mrs. Samuel Keesler and daughter Jane were Sunday dinner guests of her mother Mrs. Jane Coburn.

Mrs. J. P. Buckingham left Friday morning to visit her mother Mrs. Margaret Folts near Continental until the first of the week.

Class No. 2 of the Lutheran Sunday school took well filled baskets and went to the home of an invalid member Mrs. Charles Reasoner last Wednesday, enjoying the day together.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer McKay of Indiana Harbor and Mrs. William Refner of Auburn came Saturday night, the former couple for a weeks visit, the latter lady to visit until Monday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wid Williams.

Mrs. William Malone, residing two miles north of town, is seriously ill with double pneumonia. Her sons Jasper of near Kendallville and James of near Butler were called Saturday night to be near her.

Mrs. Alice Warner returned home Sunday night on No. 6 from Chicago where she had spent the winter with her daughter Mrs. Rusha Langley. Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway of Auburn remained her guests over night.

Earl Smith and mother, Mrs. Ella Smith returned here last week and are occupying their residence at the corner of Spencerville and Jefferson streets. Mr. Smith is third trick operator at the Spencerville Wabash station.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Koch entertained the following at an oyster supper Saturday evening at their country home west of town: Mr. and Mrs. Sherman Rickett, Mr. and Mrs. Irvan White and children, Mr. and Mrs. Orange Herrick, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Shilling, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Bone, Mr. and Mrs. Will Koch and grandson Charles Coburn.

Lightning Protection Means to be Standardized.

There are practical methods and practices, appliances for protecting buildings against lightning, but because of unscrupulous agents who a score or more years ago succeeded in selling equipment that did not protect, all methods and equipment came into disrepute among farmers and others. In order to put the mark of official and scientific sanction on lightning-protection methods, there was recently appointed, through the collaboration of Bureau of Standards, the Weather Bureau, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, a committee to prepare a code.

Progress already has been made in the solution of this problem and many well-established principles have been made known to interested scientists and workers. It is hoped that the work of this committee will result in developing practical methods, practices and appliances, and make farm buildings and other structures safer.

What God Says.

For behold the day cometh that shall burn as an oven and all the proud, yea and all that do wickedly, shall be as stubble and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith tha Lord of Hosts, that it shall leave them neither root or branch.

But unto you that fear my name the son of righteousness arise with healing in his wings and ye shall go forth and grow up as calves in the stall.

CONCORD

[illegible]

We understand the dredge south of Concord is working now.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Beldon of Ft. Wayne were Sunday visitors in home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Koch.

Mrs. Dell Draggoo and Mrs. Jane Hull attended the meeting at Auburn last Sunday.

The report is Waldo Baker expects to work for Harry Haines this summer.

Some around here have little chickens, others have their incubators set, and some setting hens. We are afraid its a little early for little chicks.

NEWVILLE

Claud Tarney is moving to their new home northeast of town.

Mr. Perkins is improving slowly but remains almost helpless.

Miss Prudence Blood remains seriously ill. A nurse has been called from Ft Wayne to care for her.

There will be many changes this month, both in town and in the country.

An old time spelling bee was held at the Newville school house Friday evening.

Cloy Berree moved last week from the C. R. Scoville farm to the Gibson farm east of Newville.

Wall Warner is moving into the Harry Smith house in town; John Cook is moving into the Bodicker house vacated by Warner.

Burl Rude returned home from Goshen recently. He reports wife and baby doing fine, but thought best not to make the trip home until the weather settles.

Carl Clark and wife were Hicksville visitors recently. They went to see Mr. Clark's mother, who just returned from Atlanta, Ga., where she spent two months with her daughter, Mrs. Florence Fox and family.

Samuel Wyatt and family went to Ft. Wayne, Saturday, on receipt of a message stating that Lawrence Gaff was taken seriously worse. Mr. Gaff has been taking treatment at Ft. Wayne for tuberculosis.

Church Notes

M. P. Church Notes

The subject for Sunday morning will be "If the Church is of Divine Origin, What then?"

H. G. Hursh gave a very interesting talk at the Sunday evening service on "The Dream of My Life." These talks by laymen will be a feature of Sunday evening services.

The increased attendance and interest at the Midweek Service last week was encouraging. Let's double it this week. The subject is, "The Patience of Christ." Let every member of the church feel that these services are for them. All christians are invited.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTES

Preaching services next Sunday evening immediately after Christian Endeavor.

The Martha Society quilted Thursday afternoon for Mrs. R. B. Daily. One new member was added to the enrollment. Alice Gee will be the next hostess March ninth.

After Communion Sunday morning the regular monthly council meeting of the Sunday school officers and teachers. The meeting for February proved very interesting. All interested are invited to attend.

The illustrated lecture given Friday night by Rev. Mr. Shaw of Auburn Christian church was not as largely attended as could have been wished; but the cause was laid to the very bad roads which kept a good many of the country members away. The lecture was good and instructive and was along the line of work having been done by the Christian churches.

COBURN'S CORNERS

George Trostel is confined to his bed with an attack of the gripp.

Messrs W. W. and Lehr Wilder were in Antwerp, Saturday, attending teachers' meeting.

Miss Pauline Frye of Hicksville was a Sunday guest of her cousin, Miss Lucy Place.

Mrs. Clyde Hart, Mrs. Fred Hart and Mrs. Alice Hart are at present confined to their homes by illness.

Mrs. Clair Miller and small daughter Georgia Evelyn of Auburn spent the past week with her sister, Mrs. Mark Murphy.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Maxwell and little son James Richard, of St. Joe, were Sunday afternoon guests in the Will Maxwell home.

Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Northrup and son, Curtis, and Mrs. Harry Walts were entertained at dinner Thursday, in the Will Sommer's home.

Rev. R. B. Daily filled his regular appointment here Sunday evening, delivering a well-prepared sermon to interested hearers upon subject, "The Mission of Jesus."

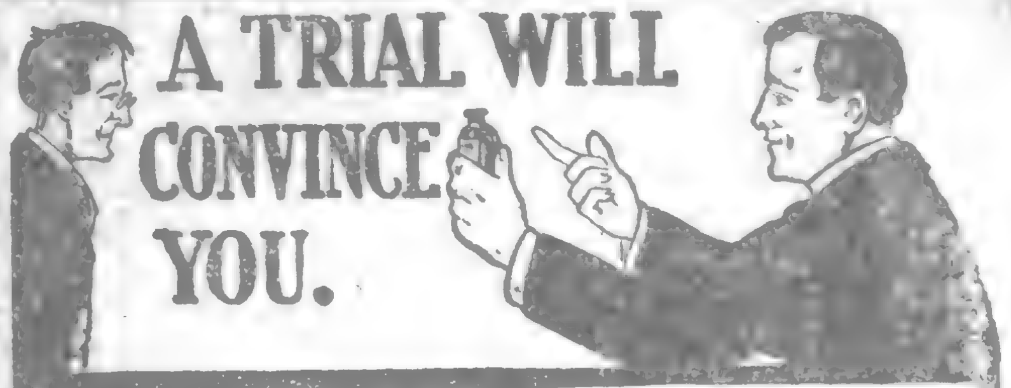
The Clyde Mason and Ella Wilmot families were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Donley, who are now occupying the property formerly known as the Carl Johnson place.

Mrs. W. W. Wilder was in Antwerp, Wednesday, attending the all-day convention and pot-luck dinner held by the Methodist Ladies' Aid Society. These affairs are held annually.

The Coburntown Ladies' Aid held a business meeting at the home of Mrs. Floyd Coburn, Wednesday afternoon to perfect arrangements for serving lunch at the William Orr sale to be held Saturday.

Mrs. Chas. Inlow and Mrs. Wm. Maxwell were in Auburn last Thur. night attending a special meeting of the D. of R. lodge.

Mrs. Jessie Sommer very pleasantly entertained the R. H. C. last Thursday afternoon, in a meeting of twelve members and three guests, viz: Mrs. Clair Miller, Mrs. George Hart and Mrs. Philip Smith. A handkerchief shower was held as a birthday favor for Mrs. Lela Northrup, she being awarded, also, a fancy bottle of lilac perfume as a prize in a very educative leaf contest. Mrs. George Hart was winner in a second contest, a puzzle arrangement of an alphabet letter, receiving a reward of a fancy handkerchief box with dainty handkerchief. The hostess served chicken loaf and sandwiches, fancy salad, fruit and nut desert with whipped cream, cake and hot cocoa. Mrs. Mattie Gee will be the next hostess.



A TRIAL WILL CONVINCE YOU.

NOTHING that we could say would so thoroughly convince you of the value of Chamberlain's Tablets as a personal trial. We can tell you of thousands who have been permanently cured of chronic constipation, indigestion, biliousness, sick headache and disorders of the stomach and liver, but this will have little weight with you as compared to a personal trial. That always convinces.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Why Live with Cracked Walls and Ceilings?

Fix them up today. Simply nail big Beaver Board panels right over the old plaster. Paint the surface, apply the decorative wood strips and at small cost convert old rooms into attractive new interiors.

BEAVER BOARD

is not only easy to apply but the result is permanent. The cost is surprisingly low, too. Beaver Board for finishing an ordinary living room will range from $15 up, depending upon the size of the room. See us for an estimate and plans.

SPENCERVILLE LUMBER COMPANY,

Ashur Culp, Manager

BALL BAND

They Wear Like Iron

The best of [illegible] go into "[illegible]" [illegible] Boots—[illegible] the best of [illegible]

[illegible]

MICKIE SAYS

WHILE TH' TIMID MERCHANT IS [illegible] "HARD TIMES," TH' [illegible] IS GRABBIN' TH' CUSTOMERS BY PEPPY ADVERTISIN' IN OUR NOTED MEDIUM OF PUBLICITY!

Administrator's Sale

Estate of William J. Orr

Notice is hereby given that the undersigned, Admistrator of the estate of William J. Orr, deceased, late of Spencer township, will offer for sale at public out cry, at the late residence of said deceased, three miles east and one-half mile south of Spencerville, one and one-half miles south of Coburn's Corners, in Spencer Township, in DeKalb County, State of Indiana, on the personal property of said estate, consisting of one horse, six milch cows, four of these have calves by side, two will be fresh soon; six head of young cattle; thirty head of sheep, two tractors, the Bull and Waterloo Boy, one Emerson & Brant threshing grain separator, one McCormick corn shredder, one grain binder, one side delivery hay rake, one cream separator, one farm wagon and box, one Superior grain drill, tractor plows, hay tedder, buggy, cart, gasoline tank, sap-pails, spiles, syrup cans, harness machine, belts, sews, fanning mill, platform scales, plows, cultivators, drags, discs, gasoline engines, dump-boards, hog-house heater, hog-fountain, hog-feeder, and many other farm implements and tools.

Saturday, March 11, 1922

Also about 300 bushels of oats, [illegible] hundred bushels of rye, twenty bushels of wheat, 100 [illegible] of [illegible], and hundreds of other articles [illegible].

Sale to begin at ten o'clock a. m.

Terms of Sale—[illegible]

CLYDE E. HART

[illegible]

You cannot afford not to save

THE disposition to save is the sure mark of determination to succeed.

Whatever your business and whatever your present prospects may be you cannot afford not to save

One dollar opens an account here. ☞ Start saving today.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Hilda and Emelia Kimes of Robinson chapel spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Vern Willmot and family.

Mrs. Walter Perkins of near Harlan and Mrs. Edward Billman were Tuesday afternoon guests of Mrs Frank Wertman.

Mrs. Sylvia Vansile came last week and is visiting at the home of Eck Vansile south of town. Mrs. Vansile has spent over a year in California.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hahn and family moved last week on the Jack Beams farm, and Mr. and Mrs. Egley of Hicksville move on the old Tyndal place east of town.

Bryan Widney of St. Joe was entertained on Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs Jacob Baltz and Merritt Sechler of St. Joe was a Wednesday guest at the same home.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wertman, Miss Ada Bowser and Otis Koch were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Wasson and family.

Rev. Carnes of Geneva visited friends here recently.

C. C. Askey was an over Sunday guest of his family.

Mrs. Ethel Webb and children spent Sunday as the guest of Mr and Mrs. Herbie Webb and family.

Mrs. Alice Zimmerman, who has been quite ill, is some better at this writing.

Mr. William Reed and family were Sunday dinner guests of Miss Ida Reed and brother James.

The Missionary society of the Lutheran church will meet with Mrs. Lucy Beams, Thursday.

Miss Fannie Vallieu was an over Sunday guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Vallieu.

Wm. Allen spent Sunday with his daughter, Miss Ailleen Allen, who is at school at Muncie.

Mrs. J. B. Sommers and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Sommers were Saturday guests of the latter's parents, Mr and Mrs. Jacob Baltz.

Mr. and Mrs. George Henderson and daughter Mary spent Friday the guests of Mr. and Mrs Rich Culberson at St. Joe.

The Women's Home Missionary society will meet on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ella Lucas.

Mrs. Jennie Walters will act as hostess on Friday afternoon to the C. C. club. All members are urged to be present.

Mrs. Wm. Allen and two younger children spent over Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jason Kees. Miss Frankie Allen is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Johnny Moody and family a few days.

Charles Scott and the Madames Jennie and Nancy Chaney received word of the serious illness of the sister, Mrs. Belle Kope of Angola.

If you once give TANLAC an honest trial, you will add your voice to the thousands of others who are praising it. Dr. Sheffer.

Mrs. Wm. Goldsmith and Mrs. Chas. Ratts attended the State Conference of Women held at Indianapolis, Tuesday, March 7th. They were sent as delegates from DeKalb county.

St. Joe Basket ball town team and the Spencerville town team will meet in a game of basket ball at the Community hall, on Saturday evening. The grade team will play the grade boys of St. Joe also.

Mrs. Estalla Goldsmith left last Monday to attend the Farmers' Federation meeting, which was held at Indianapolis on Tuesday. One woman of every county in Indiana is called and Mrs. Goldsmith was called from DeKalb county.

The Blacks and Whites Basket Ball teams played on Saturday night. The score was 16 to 8 in favor of the Blacks. The Waterloo team was held up by the bad roads on the way here on Saturday night and failed appear.

The grade team composed of boys under sixteen and not in high school played inthe tourname't at Auburn on last Saturday. The first game was with Butler, our boys won by a score of 31 to 26. They then played the Garrett team and being rather winded lost this game by a score of 16 to 20.

Members of the high school Basket Ball team and a large number of high school students motored to Ft. Wayne on Friday to attend the high school tournament at that place which was held on Friday and Saturday. The boys played the [illegible] team, composed of older and heavier lads than our boys and were defeated by a [illegible] being the [illegible] the other team [illegible].

Obituary

[illegible]

He departed this life at Long Beach, Cal., February 18, 1922 at the age of 83 years, 7 months and 1 day. He was united in marriage to Maria Hassanpflug January 1, 1861. His wife preceded him in death December 16, 1908.

To this union were born seven children: Luther, who departed this life at Fitzgerald, Ga., in 1897; Percy and Sophia of Spencerville, Ind.; Jennie, of Long Beach, Calif.; Rose, of Los Angeles, Calif.; Fred, of Peoria, Ill.; Roy, of Ft. Wayne, Ind.

He also leaves to mourn his departure 9 grandchildren and 10 great grandchildren, one sister, one brother and other relatives and friends.

The Masonic Order of Spencerville escorted the body to Scipio church, where Rev. A. K. Mumma, of Harlan, preached the sermon, after which the order took charge of the services. Interment at Scipio cemetery. Roscoe Walters, funeral director.

An Interesting Letter

The following letter has been written in connection with the anniversary of the Coburns' Corners church which was celebrated two weeks ago last Sunday.

Toledo, O: Feb. 22, 1922.

Mr. W. S. Quance,
St. Joe, Ind.

My Dear Sir:—

Following up our conversation in the Coburntown church last Sunday, (the 19th) after the commemorative exercises, I will try to give you as briefly as I can the history in which you seemed to be particularly interested.

My father was born in the year 1852. His mother, known through her life as "Aunt Roxy," was before her marriage "Roxanna Coburn." She came as a child seven years of age to Coburntown at the time of its first settlement. My grandfather, Harvey Ackley, came into the Coburntown neighborhood several years later when my grandmother Roxanna was a young woman of marriageable age. They were united, a good family was born and its branches have gone out to distant states and countries. So far as I know, and I speak advisedly and with aforethought—all of our folks, the result of this marriage, have been good citizens of the Republic.

My father was the second child and the first and only son of Harvey Ackley and his wife, Roxanna Coburn. He was christened "Ignatius Loyola Ackley," and throughout his childhood, adolescense and young manhood, he was known to all as "Nish."

My father received his name "Ignatius Loyola" on account of the fact that my grandfather, Harvey Ackley, when he was a boy in his teens and carrying water for the men constructing the Miami and Erie canal in Paulding and Defiance counties in Ohio, was partially adopted by and lived several years with a gentleman whose name was Ignatius Loyola Tellaga. This man, Mr. Tellaga, was a Polish nobleman who, following the breaking up of the kingdom of Poland and its division,—I am assuming that my readers are students of history or that historical works are available to them,— this man, I say, was exiled from his country.

Monsieur Tellaga picked up this lad, Harvey Ackley, and employed him as a personal servant, valet, guard and companion, and with him traveled the North American continent from Montreal to the city of Mexico. In dutiful remembrance of his association with Mr. Tellaga my grandfather named his first and only son Ignatius Loyola.

These words that I have just written should explain to my people of the Coburn blood how a name so closely associated with the Catholic church comes into this family. Monsieur Tellaga was named for that great and devout priest known to all students of the history of the "Middle Ages" as St. Ignatius of Loyola, (b 1491 d. 1556,) the founder of the "Society of Jesus," better known in our time and in the last three or four hundred years as the "Order of Jesuits." I will not digress here except to mention that the Jesuits played a large part in the conversion of the Indians to Christianity and in the early settlement of this country. One among them I can not keep from mentioning, viz., Father Marquette, or as they say in French, "[illegible]" Marquette. This fifteenth century [illegible], known to history as Ignatius Loyola, has exercised through the organization that he founded, a profound and in some cases, a determining influence upon the policy of nations. The good work, the bad work that they, the Jesuits, have done has been told about in hundreds of volumes that are accessible to all.

Ignatius Loyola took his name from that St. Ignatius, who as a child, was taken upon the knee of Jesus when he said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven." This man of whom the Encyclopedia Brittanica says, "No one connected with the early Christian Church is more famous," lived a very active life. He was closely associated with St. Paul and the other pioneers of early Christianity. He had much to do with making Christianity a world religion.

When he died he was past 100 years of age and he was Bishop of Antioch and his name was inscribed in hundreds of churches throughout the East by his Greek name Iyvatious.

Respectfully submitted.

Henry Ackley.

Will Retire.

"Uncle Joe" Cannon, the ol[illegible] member of the House of Representatives, has officially announced th[illegible] he will not be a candidate for election as representive from eighteenth Illinois district. [illegible] formeer speaker announced his [illegible]tention to retire from politics in [illegible]n eleven-word statement. While he gave no reason for his intention to retire from public life, close friends declare that he has made this decision in the belief that his health and age made a less strenous life advisable, and at the close of his term will retire to his home in Danville.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway of Auburn and Mrs. Ella Patterson were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Bishop.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT,
EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

The MAULE SEED BOOK FREE

This wonderful [illegible]-page book [illegible]

WM HENRY MAULE, Inc. [illegible] Arch St.

The COOLIDGE STORE

Our counters are laden with a new line of
Spring Dresses and Aprons
PLAY SUITS for the little fellows.

See our full line of Men's OVERALLS.

Special for SATURDAY
ALL SHOES AND RUBBER GOODS
At Below Cost Prices.

D. COOLIDGE, Spencerville, Ind

PUBLIC SALE!

Having sold our farm and are expecting to move we will sell at public sale at our residence, known as the Johnie Wyatt farm, located 3½ miles northeast of Leo, and 4½ miles southwest of Spencerville, on the county line, on

Friday, March 10th, 1922

Commencing at 10 o'clock, the following:

1 —— Bay MARE —— 1

6 years old, weight 1400.

16 —— Head of Cattle —— 16

Registered Jersey, six years old, to be fresh in April; Jersey-Guernsey, 11 years old, to be fresh in August, and giving good flow of milk; full-blooded Jersey, 6 yrs. old, was fresh in January, giving full flow of milk; full-blooded Jersey, 3 years old, to be fresh in April; full-blooded Jersey, 5 yrs. old, giving good flow of milk: short-horn Durham cow, 8 yrs. old, was fresh in February, giving full flow of milk; red Durham, 8 years old, giving good flow of milk; red Durham cow, 4 years old; 4 good steers coming 2 years old; 2 good heifers coming 2 years old; 2 yearling calves coming one year old. The above described milk cows are all good ones.

20 —— Head of HOGS —— 20

Three Big Type Poland brood sows, due to farrow in March, double immune; Big Type Poland male hog, double immune; 16 head of good shoats, weighing 80 pounds each.

140 good laying Hens: 120 white Leghorns,
20 mixed Hens, 6 roosters, yearlings.

Farm Machinery

New International Winrow loader, used 1 year; International disc, 14-16, new; Oliver sulky with steel moldboard; one Gale corn plow; narrow tire wagon; 1-16-foot flat bottom rack; set double harness; set double carriage harness; 3-A type farrow pens; single buggy; Portland sleigh; set bob-sleds; Galloway gasoline engine, 6 h.p.; 150 foot hay rope.

MISCELLANEOUS—130 sap pails, mostly new; 1-5 bbl. sap tank; sap pan; 20 cords of good wood; Economy chief cream separator; 5 bu. recleaned Alsike seed; porch swing like new.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS—Art Laurel range cook stove; Round Oak heating stove; Hoosier kitchen cabinet; side-board, and other articles too numerous to mention.

Usual Terms of Sale. Lunch will be served.

FILLMORE PRICE & SON.

Rhodenbaugh & McNamara, Auctioneers.
George Beams, Clerk.

From Headlights to Grease Cups

We repair and refit motor cars, from headlights to grease cups. We do it thoroughly and without wasting time. That means an easy bill. When you get your car back, it is sure to go—and go right.

We replace windshields or body glass with genuine plate glass. There isn't anything like it. There isn't anything as good. It gives you a clear view of the road and is free from all defects.

F. W. Silberg, Spencerville

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE.

[illegible]

MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS

[illegible] Street,

Fort Wayne, Ind.

MARCH

L 912

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Illustrated by R. H. Livingstone.

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

"JUST POLLYOP—POLLY HOPKINS!"

"What's your name?" he inquired.

"Just Pollyop," was the answer. "Polly Hopkins. My daddy is Jeremiah Hopkins, the mayor of this settlement."

"Can I do something for you, Polly Hopkins?" queried Robert, as she finished telling about life in the squatters' city.

She flung out both hands in a comprehensive gesture as much as to say he could see for himself how much she needed.

"Sure, sure you can," she said with fierce emphasis. "You can make Old Marc leave us squatters be. You're bigger'n he is! The squatters need you awful bad."

Her voice broke. Robert took a long breath. Of course he could help this girl and her people. He would, too! As far as money gave power, he could equal and surpass Marcus MacKenzie.

"I did try to talk sense into Mr. MacKenzie's head," he returned presently, "but now I will make him leave you alone."

In spite of the curved lips about which a smile lurked, there was apprehension in her voice when she asked:

"Can you lick 'im to a finish, mister?"

"Yes, I think I could," laughed Robert; "but it won't be necessary."

"Then I see us Silent City folks bein' happy again," sighed Polly. "We got a awful lot of things an' folks to take care of here."

There you have them—Storm Country Polly and Robert Percival, heroine and hero of another of those fascinating stories by Grace Miller White. "Tess of the Storm Country" was her first story. It was printed as a serial in a magazine for women—and practically established the magazine. It was put on the movie screen—and made the fortune of a woman film star of world-wide fame. Of course Grace Miller White (Mrs. Friend H. Miller) kept right on writing of the "Storm Country." Half a dozen other stories have been successes. More than a million copies of her books have been sold. The "Storm Country," by the way, is Cayuga Lake and vicinity in New York, one of the garden spots of the world.

Given a beautiful and persecuted squatter girl and a nice young man with brains, sympathy and money—what more do you want for romance!

CHAPTER I.

—1—

Four miles from Ithaca, N. Y., Oscar Bennett's farm spread its acres along the face of West Hill between the Lehigh Valley tracks and the highway leading to Trumansburg. Oscar Bennett was what the country people and even the Ithaca folks called a fine farmer. His farmhouse faced a lane that led to the west shore of Lake Cayuga, and from the front porch he could see, much to his dislike, the few straggling squatter shacks that brought to an end northward the Silent City. Like all other substantial citizens, Oscar detested the squatters. In his estimation they were a set of thieving loafers and sneaks, and many times he had wished that he owned the ground they squatted on instead of Marcus MacKenzie.

Of course it was no secret that MacKenzie never let an opportunity slip to pop a fisherman into jail, but in Bennett's opinion that treatment was not severe enough, and besides, it did not accomplish anything. MacKenzie's idea was to jail the men whenever the chance came and for a period as long as the law would allow. But what good did that do? Fierce hatred flamed in the haggard faces of the women, and they held to their squatter rights with the tenacity of leeches until their husbands were given back to them. Bennett would have done away with the wives and mothers if the job of breaking up the Silent City had been his. No man would hang to a hut long without a woman in it.

One morning in the early spring Oscar was finishing his breakfast when the door opened slowly. A girl with a small tin pail in her hand stepped into the room. She smiled at him almost humbly.

"Shut the door!" he shouted at her. "Where's your manners, Polly Hopkins? Can't you see the rain's coming in after you?"

The smile faded from the girl's face. Mechanically she turned, closed the door and, uninvited, seated herself in a chair and placed the pail at her side.

"So you've come begging, Pollyop," went on the farmer, wiping his lips on the sleeve of his gingham shirt. "Well, you might as well turn tail and run home again, for you're not going to get anything more from me. I don't want a poacher's brat around here."

The girl's bare wet feet drew tensely backward under the chair; but she remained discreetly silent. Oscar al- [illegible] given to the wide eyes their shade of ripe chestnuts.

Polly expected every moment that Oscar would reach out for the pail, and, though with bad grace, he'd give her the milk just the same. She fidgeted in her chair and drew a long sigh—he was staring at her in such a peculiar manner from under his heavy brows.

Why had he not noticed before that Polly Hopkins was so pretty, Oscar wondered, and a slow smile parted his lips. Polly's eyes lowered, and the long dark lashes only added to Bennett's sudden admiration. A quick-drawn breath slipped audibly past the man's teeth. Pollyop sensed in his attitude toward her a new quality that she recognized intuitively as dangerous. To bring his attention back to the purpose of her visit, she ventured to say:

"I thought it wouldn't hurt you none, Oscar, to gimme a little milk for Granny Hope an' Jerry. I'm always runnin' errands for you an' your woman."

Bennett's heavy farm boots made a scraping sound under the table.

"What good does that do me?" he returned. "Upon my soul, I might as well be without a wife as to have one who won't live with me or let anyone know I'm her husband. I'm gettin' sick, good and plenty sick, I can tell you, Miss Polly Hopkins."

This speech did not disturb Polly over much, for he'd made it a dozen times before. It was only the expression in his gaze, she did not quite like. Her mind went to Evelyn Robertson, the girl that Oscar had married. As if it were but yesterday, she remembered how two years ago she had gone with them under protest to a minister far back in the hills. Evelyn had explained that for some time to come no one but the three must know of the marriage.

Pollyop had learned a great many things in two years! What girl does not after she's passed her fifteenth birthday? One of the things she had found out was that Oscar was a dreadful person, more dreadful than most of the squatter men. Of course the men folks of her people did beat their women, now and then. That was their right without any question. The blood colored even her ears as she remembered how Oscar hectored his wife for the money it was so hard for [illegible] to get. Another thing she [illegible] was that if Oscar had [illegible]

Polly noted the glitter in Bennett's angry eyes and felt again the quiver of fear.

"She gives you all she gets her fingers on," she came back at him in defense of the absent Evelyn. "Lots of times she's got along on about nothin' to send you cash, an' didn't I come runnin' up here with it as soon as she give it to me? Now her ma's gettin' on that Eve ain't spendin' her money on herself, an' she watches 'er like a hawk does a chicken. She told me that only yesterday."

The squatter girl rose to her feet, anxious to be gone.

"Oscar, you might be lettin' me have just a wee bit of milk. You ain't losin' nothin' through me."

She picked up the pail, and with a growl the man snatched it out of her hand.

"Women're a d—d nuisance," he grumbled. "Well, wait here."

He went out of the room, and Polly Hopkins drew a long breath. It was getting harder every day to get the milk she needed.

When Bennett returned, she was standing with her hand on the door knob, ready to go. In silence she took the pail he offered her.

"Looka here, Pollyop," he began abruptly, as Polly opened the door. "What's to hinder your paying for your milk yourself?"

He said it with extreme deliberation, making emphatic the last words.

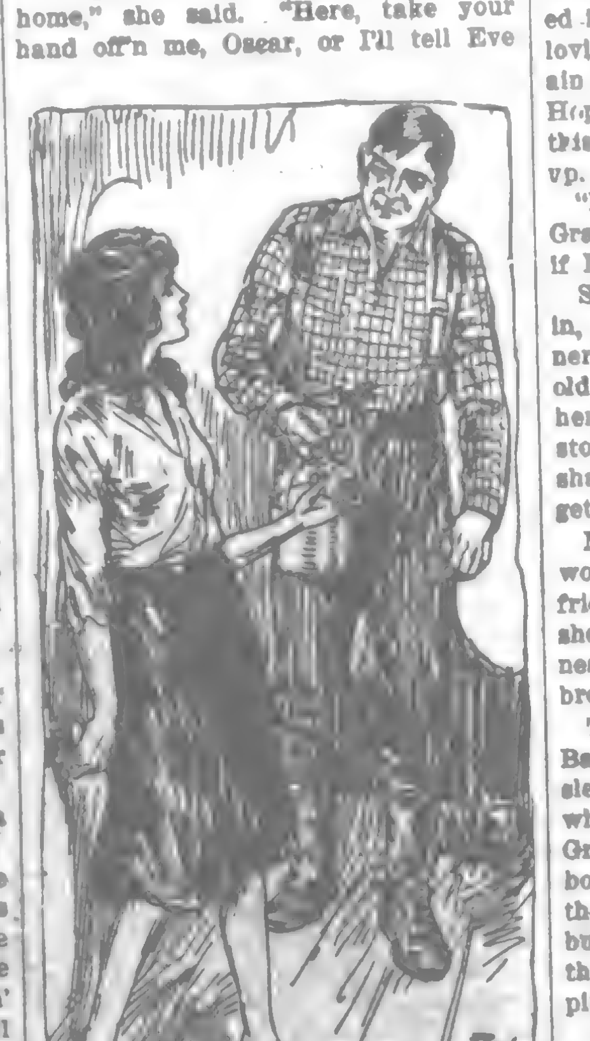
Polly threw up her head and eyed him sharply. "I run my legs most off for you as 'tis, Oscar," she retorted, "between here and the Robertsons'; but I don't never have no money. You know that, an' Daddy Hopkins don't get much, either. If I had a dollar, I bet I'd spend every penny of it fillin' up Jerry an' Daddy an' Granny Hope with milk an' eggs." To make him understand how anxious she was to please him, she went forward a pace. "An' I'd buy 'em all of you, Oscar. That's as true as Granny Hope's God is settin' up in the sky."

"I didn't ask you for money," answered Bennett, staring at her. Suddenly he came close to her; and Polly backed to the door. His face was red and agitated; the cords in his neck were swollen while his fingers twisted eagerly. That was another thing about which Polly's eyes had been opened in two years of growing womanhood. When a man looked as Oscar did now, a girl got away as fast as she could.

"You might pay me in kisses," he muttered hoarsely, towering over her. "Ten kisses for each bucket. You're a heap prettier than Eve."

For a long moment Polly did not speak. Her breast heaved as she swayed backward.

"I get all the kisses I want to home," she said. "Here, take your hand off'n me, Oscar, or I'll tell Eve the first time I get sight of her." She glared up at him like a cornered animal. "I said I'd tell Eve. I'll do more than that! I'll put old woman Robertson next to your coppin' her kid an' marryin' 'er."



"I Didn't Ask You for Money."

Oscar's fingers relaxed, and his hand dropped away from her arm as a rough laugh left his lips. She looked so lovely, her eyes blazing, her curls tumbled in confusion on her shoulders, that he would have taken his pay for the milk without her permission if she had not thrown at him a threat he feared she would carry out.

"Men's kisses are what you'll get, my pretty lass," he predicted grimly, "and if I was finished with Eve, by God, I'd set about getting my share. I won't always be married to my lady Robertson, mind you, Pollyop."

The blood had left his face. He was quite white and stern, and by this time Polly was on the porch.

[illegible]

turned back into the house. For the moment he paused in the kitchen; he could hear his old mother pottering about overhead in his bedroom. She was doing the work his wife ought to do! What a fool he had been to marry Evelyn Robertson! Instead of the fortune he had expected, he was tied hand and foot without money or woman. He thought of the radiant squatter girl who had just left him. Two years ago womanhood had not dawned upon Polly Hopkins, but today— He undertoned an oath and went out to the barn.

Polly Hopkins ran down the lane as fast as her legs could carry her. The milk was safe in the bucket, and she had scarcely reached the railroad tracks before she had decided not to mention Oscar's vicious demand upon her. If she told Daddy Hopkins, he would do some harm to Bennett, and there would be no more eggs and milk for Granny and Jerry. If she spoke of it to Evelyn, there was no telling what the girl would do.

The tangle-haired squatter girl was the daughter of Jeremiah Hopkins, the mayor of the Silent City, the leader of all those who lived in the rows of huts that ran along the Lehigh Valley tracks and on down the lakeside.

Uncouth and ignorant were Jeremiah and his kind, and visitors who came to the little city of Ithaca agreed with the town's inhabitants that it was a shame the law allowed such a blot as the Silent City upon the natural beauty of Cayuga and its majestic surroundings.

Pollyop stood shivering, her troubled gaze searching the lake for a boat. Daddy Hopkins had gone away early with Wee Jerry, and she always worried a little when they were out. Yet she knew that the only way to get the bread, beans and bacon for the family was for Daddy Hopkins to defy the law and drag his nets whenever the game wardens were not about. Without the lake and its hidden food, it would be a desolate world indeed.

Wee Jerry was Polly's five-year-old brother, and long before he could walk, he had chosen his father's big shoulders upon which to beat his way through an unfriendly and often hungry world. But this same world which had wizened Jerry had given to Polly a wild beauty, a body strong and as pliant as a marsh reed.

With a sigh Pollyop turned to the house. The door was shut against the storm, and a thin curl of smoke twisted upward from the toppling chimney, losing itself in the baby leaves of the willows. The little lines that had traced the troubled brow vanished at the sight of a slab of wood over the door. On it was painted in crude letters: "If your heart is loving and kind come right in. If it ain't, scoot off." Pollyop and Granny Hope had worked a long time to make this sign, and even longer to nail it up.

"It'll help the Silent City folks, Granny," she had said. "'Specially, if I smile a lot at 'em."

She flung open the door and went in, closing it behind her. In one corner of the kitchen, an old woman, so old that no squatter could remember her other than aged, sat near the stove. About her shoulders was a shawl, and its edges were held together with clawlike fingers.

Munching on a bit of hay at the wood-box was a lean goat, an old friend of Polly Hopkins. Long ago she had found him, lost in the wilderness of the Storm country, and had brought him to the Silent City.

The shanty consisted of three rooms. Back of the kitchen Daddy Hopkins slept, and in the miserable coop-hole where Polly had once stored rubbish Granny Hope stretched out her weary bones at night. Polly's bed ranged the kitchen wall, and the room had but a bench, two old chairs and a three-legged table to offer in rude hospitality.

"I wheedled a little milk from Oscar, Granny," said the girl. "Goddy, but he's gettin' stingy!"

She put down the pail, went to the stove and thrust a piece of wood into it.

"Wood's as wet as hell," she complained, almost as if she had spoken to herself.

The old woman stirred and lifted her withered lids.

"Hell ain't wet," she muttered. "It's dry an' warm—hot, I mean," and she shivered, drawing nearer the fire. "'Tain't like this lakeside."

Granny Hope had been in the Hopkins' shack since the first winter snow. Her own hut stood on a little point about a quarter of a mile away. In it she had lived alone ever since her husband had gone down in the Big Blow, a storm that was a tradition in the settlement, and which only the oldest inhabitants of the Silent City could remember.

> "Old Marc had a beautiful angel with him."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

The Fourth Estate

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR MARCH 12

AMOS WARNS ISRAEL (TEMPERANCE LESSON)

LESSON TEXT—Amos 6:1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.—Prov. 20:1.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Isa. 5:11, 12, 22, 23; 28:1-13; Hosea 4:11; Gal. 5:19-21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Sends Amos on an Errand.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Prophet Who Was a Friend to the Poor.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Consequences of Self-Indulgence.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Social Evils Yet to Be Conquered.

The kingdom of Israel reached a high state of prosperity in the time of Jeroboam II, and with it came a condition of luxury, corruption and wickedness.

The judgment woe of this lesson is directed against the sins of the upper classes in Samaria. The same sins are practiced in America, in the nation and in the church. With the increase of wealth in America has come luxury, corruption and gross wickedness which staggers the imagination. It behooves all to give a listening ear, for God will eventually enter into judgment. Our lesson is a temperance lesson. Temperance applies to other things than indulgence in intoxicating liquor. Our age is intoxicated with pleasure, pursuit of gain and selfish ambition.

I. Reckless Security (vv. 1-3).

They were blind to the perils that surrounded them. They were living in a fool's paradise, closing their eyes to the approaching storm of judgment as predicted by Amos. They trusted in the mountains of Samaria for their protection. They regarded their city as impregnable. They no doubt regarded the utterance of Amos as impracticable—the dreams of a fanatic.

The tragic thing about this blindness on the part of the chief ones of the nation was they were so puffed up with pride that they failed to read the signs of the times in the light of history (v. 2.) The cities of Calneh and Hamath, though great and mighty, had fallen. To disregard the lessons of history, to dismiss the thought of impending judgment, is to bring near the "seat of violence" (v. 3). Let chaotic Europe and Russia be the red lights of warning to America, and let all injustice and class selfishness be laid aside.

II. Luxury (vv. 4-6).

The luxury of these upper classes in Samaria expressed itself in: 1. Extravagant furniture (v. 4). They had beds of ivory—perhaps wood inlaid with ivory. Costly as their furniture was in that day, it was commonplace as compared to some of the expensive furniture and fittings in our great cities.

2. Laziness (v. 4). They stretched themselves upon their couches—lived lives of indolence. Such is the way of many still.

3. Feasted on delicacies (v. 4). The implication here is that they had their dainties out of season. This is what many of the rich pride themselves in.

4. Adorn their feasts with music (v. 5). They sang idle songs—even invented musical instruments for this purpose. They prostituted the noble art of music to their sensual feasts.

5. They drank wine (v. 6). They were not content with ordinary drinking vessels. They drank from bowls, indicating excessive drinking. They were so mastered by the intoxicating cup that their feasts which were adorned with the refinements of music ended in drunkenness.

III. Failure to Grieve for Joseph (v. 6).

Joseph here stands for Ephraim and Manasseh, his two sons. Ephraim became the principal tribe of the northern kingdom, so Joseph is used as a synonym for the nation. The upper classes were indulging in these effeminate luxuries, entirely indifferent to the groanings of the masses. And whenever such a condition exist in a nation there is need of Amos to thunder God's judgment upon those who are guilty of it

IV. The Inevitable Issue (vv. 7, 8).

1. They shall go into captivity (v. 7). The northern nation was first in sin, therefore first to go into captivity. What a striking contrast this picture! Instead of lying on ivory couches feasting upon dainties, they are with the suffering exiles.

2. The certainty of the issue (v. 8). It is inevitable because of God's nature. He is a God of justice. He has sworn that judgment shall fall. He is the God of hosts—the controller of the whole universe, therefore none can escape. God hates the wickedness of the world, and He will bring into judgment the men and women who revel in luxury with no concern for the poor and needy. Though God waits long, He does not forget. The only escape for America is repentance.

Abide in Him.

[illegible]

Mrs. Blanche A. Lewis

Warren, Ohio — "After a serious siege of influenza I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as a tonic and builder and it benefited me so much that I take the greatest pleasure in recommending it. As a tonic after an acute and prostrating illness Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is unequalled."—Mrs. Blanche A. Lewis, 312 Swallow St.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a well known tonic and builder that can be procured in tablets or liquid from your neighborhood druggist or send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial pkg. of the tablets and write for free medical advice.

CHILDREN WHO ARE SICKLY

TRADE MARK

Don't accept any Substitute.

Mothers who value the health of their children, should never be without MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS for CHILDREN, for use when needed. They tend to Break up Colds, Relieve Feverishness, Worms, Constipation, Headache, Teething disorders and Stomach Troubles. Used by Mothers for over thirty years. Sold by Druggists everywhere. Ask today. Trial package FREE. Address,

MOTHER GRAY CO., LE ROY, N. Y.

Taking the Joy Out of Art.

An artist from New York was visiting an old Southern family in Alabama. One day while they were riding in their automobile, which their former coachman, an old negro, was driving, the hostess pointed out a majestic tree that stood alone in a meadow. The artist went into rapture over it and with hands clasped turned to her hostess.

"Oh, isn't it superb!" she breathed. "A perfect example of a Corot!"

"'Scuse me, mistis," said the privileged old servant. "Dat ain't no Corot. Hit's jest one of dese hyuh sugarberry trees."—Youth's Companion.

CURES COLDS IN 24 HOURS

WORLD'S STANDARD FOR TWO GENERATIONS

CASCARA HILL'S BROMIDE QUININE

CURES LA GRIPPE IN 3 DAYS

DETROIT. W. H. HILL CO. MICHIGAN.

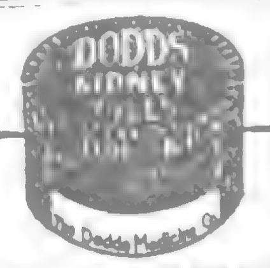
In Doubt.

A clergyman was in the habit of going up to his little girl's bedside each evening and telling her a story before she went to sleep.

One evening he told her such a thrilling tale that the child, sitting up in bed, looked very straight at her father and asked:

"Daddy, is that a true story, or are you preaching?"

Statistics show that more than 40 per cent of the clergy live to be septuagenarians.



"About fifteen years ago I used Dodd's Kidney Pills and was relieved of a very stubborn case of kidney trouble. Since then I use six boxes a year as a preventative. Am nearly 69, and never feel any symptoms of the old trouble. I can and do conscientiously recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills." Signed, SAMUEL P. BENTON, 836 Central Ave., Hot Springs, Ark.

The genuine DODD'S—three D's in name—are sold by every good druggist. If your druggist isn't stocked up, send 60c. for a large box to

DODD'S MEDICINE CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Mild Laxative — Diamond Dinner Pills — Never Gripe

BABY CHICKS—Guaranteed

Buff Leghorns (Egg Basket Strain); White Leghorns; Brown Leghorns (Netherland's Strain); Barred Rocks; Rhode Island Reds; Anconas; White Wyandottes.

Send for Catalog (No. A.)

UNITED CHICK HATCHERIES, Holland, Michigan

SELDOM SEE

a big knee like this, but your horse may have a bunch or bruise on his ankle, hock, stifle, knee or throat.

ABSORBINE

will clean it off without laying up the horse. No blister, no hair gone. [illegible]

W. F. YOUNG, Inc., [illegible]

The Best Way to Buy a Farm

[illegible]

MARCH

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Libel on American "Kiddies."

In America children are even more "modern" than they are in this country. Two American children had a very bad effect on a family living quietly in Sussex.

After these two children had gone back to the States, the vicar called and said, quite playfully, to the youngest daughter of the house: "Well, my dear, and what do they call you?"

"Cut that out," was the reply. "I guess you ought to know, Mr. Preacher. You put the christening dope across me."—London Tit-Bits.

Forecast.

"What's the weather forecast?"

"Both parties are freely predicting harmony."

The earth sustains a pressure of 70,000 tons exerted by the light of the sun.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

Gains 21 Pounds IN SHORT TIME MASTIN'S Vitamon Tablets

Now Used By Millions As A Natural, Quick and Easy Way To Help Increase Weight and Energy

So remarkable is the action of MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS in helping to increase the nourishing, health-giving power of what you eat, that one woman recently gained 21 pounds after being thin and ailing for years.

Weak, thin, run-down men and women everywhere—victims of undernourishment—are often amazed at the astonishing improvement in their health, weight, mental alertness and appearance after only a short course of MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS.

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS contain all three vitamines, true organic iron, the necessary lime salts and other vitalizing elements which Nature provides for perfect vigor of body and mind, and to build up that powerful resistance which helps to guard you against the germs of disease.

Only by making the test yourself can you fully realize how MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS help to feed and nourish the shrunken tissues, build up renewed nerve force, strengthen the entire digestive and intestinal tract and help put on firm solid flesh in the places where it is most needed.

For your own safety and protection against cheap substitutes and imitations, insist upon MASTIN'S to get the original VITAMON TABLETS guaranteed to give satisfaction or money refunded. At all good druggists, such as

MASTIN'S VITAMON

THE ORIGINAL [illegible] GENUINE [illegible]

Vaseline

PETROLEUM JELLY

[illegible]

PISO'S

[illegible]

INDIANA BREVITIES

Washington, D. C.—The Department of Commerce, through the bureau of the census, announces that the costs of the government for the state of Indiana for the fiscal year ending September 30, 1920, amounted to $17,981,521, which was a per capita cost of $6.12. In 1917 the per capita cost was $4.48, and in 1914, $3.74, the totals for these years being $12,703,909 and $10,458,335, respectively. The per capita costs for 1920 consisted of expenses of general departments, $5.03, payments for interest, $0.02, and for outlays, $1.08. The total revenue receipts in 1920 were $18,991,908, or $6.47 per capita. For the fiscal year the per capita excess of revenue receipts over governmental costs was, therefore, $0.35. The net indebtedness (funded and floating debt less sinking fund assets) of Indiana was $0.09 per capita for 1920, $0.06 for 1917, and $0.38 for 1914.

Indianapolis.—A list of all the stocks and other assets held by Richard V. Sipe, defaulting Marion county clerk, in lieu of a trust fund of more than $100,000 which he has dissipated, was turned over to county officials by the Hartford Accident and Indemnity company, surety on Sipe's official bond of $100,000. The assets had been given to the bonding company by Sipe since it became known that the trust fund supposed to be in his keeping was exhausted. Sipe was placed in jail at Indianapolis charged with embezzlement, and he refused to permit friends to come to his aid by providing the $10,000 bond which would cause his release from custody.

Elizabeth.—After a week's examination, the Elizabeth bank was closed on recommendation of T. J. Dowden, state bank examiner. It is said that withdrawals of money at intervals by depositors, who understood that officials of the defunct Corydon National bank owned a part of the stock, resulted in the institution being closed. The Elizabeth bank has a capital stock of $10,000 and deposits are estimated at $80,000. Elizabeth, which has a population of 200 persons, is in Harrison county, of which Corydon is the county seat.

Indianapolis.—A 50 per cent reduction in fire insurance rates "on all fireproof buildings and contents of the same in the state of Indiana" is requested in a petition filed with the state insurance department by forty-five Indianapolis business houses. It is addressed to the state insurance commissioner, and asks for the reduction order because "we are now paying in Indiana a very high rate on fireproof buildings and contents." In the list of signers to the petition are some of the foremost business men in Indianapolis. The signers represent themselves to be "owners and tenants of fireproof buildings."

Indianapolis.—Word was received from United States army officials at Washington by Harry B. Smith, adjutant general of Indiana, that the One Hundred and Eighty-first field artillery of the Indiana National Guard had been designated as the One Hundred and Fiftieth field artillery. The unit uses 155-mm. howitzers. Mr. Smith also announced that the state indoor rifle championship matches are to be held at Culver Military academy March 20 and 21.

Columbus.—A reduction of approximately $8,000,000 in the assessed value of property in Bartholomew county is anticipated by tax assessors. The reduction will be largely due to decreased value of farm lands and the live stock on the farms. The total value of assessed property in the county this year will range from $125 an acre to $190 an acre in the different townships with the average being about $150 an acre.

Shelbyville.—The assessor for Shelby county informed all township assessors and their deputies at a meeting preliminary to the start of the spring assessment of property to reduce valuations on Shelby county real estate approximately 35 per cent. The chief assessor said he believes a reduction of that amount will result in the land being assessed at its true cash value.

Fort Wayne.—The Fort Wayne city council adopted a resolution commending [illegible] and calling on congress to amend it to permit the sale of light wines and beer. The resolution was adopted 11 to 3, with two members absent. The only woman member voted against the resolution.

Jeffersonville.—An agreement has been entered into by the city of Jef[illegible]

[illegible]

Anderson.—In addition to the usual shifting from one farm to another by families, it is said, here, an unusually large number of tenants of tracts from 40 to 80 acres are not renewing contracts and will move to town because, they say, they cannot make a living under the present rentals for farm lands, the prices for farm products and taxation. Many owners of large tracts of land are confronting a problem of having to reduce rentals for farm land or to hire help and conduct their own farming. Tenants complaining say that many farmers having large tracts are holding for $10 to $12 an acre, against $6 an acre prior to the World war, and that there are few tracts available at less than $10 an acre. Sharing of farm products is also said to equal a $10-an-acre contract. Owners of land assert they have to contend with the highest taxes that ever prevailed, including income taxes, and that insurance rates and many farm supplies, including farming implements, are still at high prices.

Marion.—By the decision of the members of the Fairmount Agricultural association the farmers will enter a new line of co-operative effort when they establish a cream station, the first in the county, at Fairmount, in the next few days. There are four or five cream stations at Fairmount at the present time, owned and operated by creamery and packing companies. Farmers say there is a difference in the price they receive on butterfat of 5 cents compared to the Marion price, and that by establishing a co-operative station they will be able to get the difference and at the same time operate the station at less expense than the present stations are able to do.

Lafayette.—Fears that Lafayette's street railway system would be junked, following the sale of the company's property under a federal court order, were dispelled when it became known that a local business man had bid in the property for $75,000. It was announced that citizens were planning to organibe a new company and rehabilitate the lines. Rebuilding and operation of the car lines, however, is conditional on the city granting protection from jitney bus competition and authorizing the discontinuance of a few unproductive lines.

Lafayette.—The Farmers' Co-operative Grain Elevator company, composed of 150 representative farmers of Tippecanoe county, completed negotiations for the purchase of the Born & Co. elevator at Lafayette. The price was $15,000. The elevator plant includes a corn drier as well as other apparatus usually found in a grain elevator. The farmers will operate the plant as a co-operative project and have already disposed of a large amount of stock to individual farmers throughout the county. It will be a unit of the U. S. Grain Growers, Inc.

Indianapolis.—Many maple sugar camps have been opened during the last two weeks, and with present favorable conditions a large production is expected, according to the semi-monthly report of George C. Bryant, state agricultural statistician. The report is sent to the United States Department of Agriculture. The report says that corn prices are advancing and that a larger amount is being sold now, and that winter wheat in some localities of the state looks poor.

Indianapolis.—Within four weeks the price of 211,544 barrels of cement went down more than $115,000, it was shown when the state highway commission opened its second set of bids. The first bids, opened February 2, were not accepted, and the second set was called for. The bids are on cement to be used in the hard-surfaced construction of 56 miles of the National road, from Richmond to Terre Haute.

Columbia City.—Two daughters and one son of Mr. and Mrs. oJhn H. Smith of Collins were married a few days ago in a triple wedding at the Smith home. The marriage was performed by Rev. Ed Hively, an uncle of one of the brides. The same ceremony sufficed for all three couples, and following the service, which was read in the presence of only the immediate relatives, a wedding dinner was served.

Vincennes.—Mrs. Artie G. Cullop, wife of ex-Representative William A. Cullop of Vincennes, has announced her candidacy for nomination for congress from the Second district. Mrs. Cullop's plans call for a complete canvass of the district. She is the first woman of any party to become a candidate for congress in Indiana, although women have held seats in the house of representatives from other states.

Greencastle. — Announcement was made by the board of [illegible]

[illegible]

SHE DYED A SWEATER, SKIRT AND CHILD'S COAT WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her worn, shabby dresses, skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything, even if she has never dyed before. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is sure because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to spot, fade, streak, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.—advertisement.

Hard Job.

It is still pretty hard to get a woman who is compelled to do her own housework to believe her husband is successful, no matter how honestly he may be getting his income.

Baby's little dresses will just simply dazzle if Red Cross Ball Blue is used in the laundry. Try it and see for yourself. At all good grocers.—Advertisement.

Mistaken Identity.

Helen was a freshman at Shortridge High school and was proud of her new ring bearing the school insignia.

The waiter at the restaurant where she went said something that to Helen sounded like "Shortridge?" to which she promptly replied, gazing at her ring, which she supposed he had noticed: "Yes, are you from there, too?"

The waiter looked bored, and then repeated his request: "Short ribs or roast beef?"—Indianapolis News.

MOTHER! OPEN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Your little one will love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" even if constipated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Unworthy Son.

A certain senator, who is a close student of American dialects, thought he had detected from the speech of the driver of the coach in which he was driving through the Yellowstone park the region from which the reinsman came.

"You come from Missouri, do you not?" the senator asked.

The driver pulled in his four horses, set his brake with his feot, and turned impressively toward the senator.

"Senator," he said, "my father 'n' mother onct went to Missouri on a visit, and they visited there twenty years. During the time I was born; but I want to tell you right now thet I'm no, derned Missourian!"—Harper's Magazine.

No Retirement.

"Do you intend to retire from politics?"

"I never knew anybody who did," replied Senator Sorghum. "A politician may have to toss his hand into the discard and stay quiet for awhile; but he never actually quits the game."

The Day After Gomorrah.

Lot (to slaves)—Here, you! Take this wheelbarrow and shovel and bring along that pillar of salt my wife turned into. We'll use her in the ice cream freezer.—Life.

AFTER EVERY MEAL
WRIGLEY'S
P-K
WRIGLEY'S P-K CHEWING SWEET PEPPERMINT FLAVOR P-K 10 PIECES
WRIGLEY'S SPEARMINT
WRIGLEY'S JUICY FRUIT
WRIGLEY'S DOUBLEMINT
UNITED COUPONS
THE FLAVOR LASTS
AFTER EVERY MEAL

It's a DOUBLE treat —Peppermint Jacket over Peppermint gum

10 for 5c

Sugar jacket just "melts in your mouth," then you get the delectable gum center.

And with Wrigley's three old standbys also affording friendly aid to teeth, throat, breath, appetite and digestion.

Soothing, thirst-quenching. Making the next cigar taste better.

C30

PURE WATER WITHOUT COLOR

Has Blue Tint Only When a Large Quantity of It Is Under One's Observation.

Water in its purest state is practically colorless, except that it has a blue tint when a considerable amount of it is viewed together. The water of Loch Katrine in Scotland is nearly pure chemically, although it contains a vey small amount of carboniferous matter, which gives it a faint brown tinge. Water, under some circumstances, looks as if it was full of color, and this happens when light thrown upon it is reflected back again, as in the case of a soap bubble and of a rainbow, the latter being formed of drops of rain that reflect back the sunlight, broken up into its different parts which resemble the colors of a rainbow. Stagnant or "bad" water seems to have colors on it because of the different forms of life growing on its surface and forming layers which reflect the light back and forth. The waves of light interfere with each other and cause colors. Perfectly pure water has a taste from the salts dissolved in it and from the atmospheric gases, nitrogen, oxygen and carbon dioxide which it contains.

A blind horse can never see what he's driving at.

THERE WAS THAT POSSIBILITY

And Virginia Lad Might Have Seen Something of the Sort Happen Occasionally.

A Virginian, recently elected judge and feeling keenly the responsibilities of his exalted position, was coming on horseback along a road in a remote section of his district. He saw a smoke on a hillside.

"Boy," he said to a lad who was loafing alongside the road, "is that smoke up there from a still?"

"Yes, sir, I reckon it is," the boy replied.

"What are they making up there?"

"Might be makin' some apple brandy."

The judge jumped from his horse. "Here, boy," he said, "hold this horse. I'm going up there and stop that. They can't flout the law in that manner in my district."

The boy took the reins and the judge climbed the fence and started toward the smoke. After he had gone a few steps the boy shouted:

"Oh, mister!"

"What is it?" asked the judge.

"Effen you don't come back, what must I do with the horse?"—Saturday Evening Post.

Men are the architects of their own misfortunes.

He beat the train to the crossing a good many times

"It's never touched me yet," he explained when they pointed out the risks.

That's the answer a good many people make when they hear that the drug element in tea and coffee often harms nerves and health. They say it's never touched them yet.

[illegible] they only think [illegible]

[illegible]

judgment in taking needless chances with harm.

Over on the safe side is Postum, a pure cereal beverage, delicious and satisfying—containing nothing that can harm nerves or digestion. Thousands who used to try their luck with tea or coffee are enthusiastic over having found safety and satisfaction in Postum.

It's worth your while to make the test with Postum for ten days. Postum is a [illegible] drink for any member of the family at any meal.

[illegible]

Postum for Health

[illegible]

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE

Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

"COLD IN THE HEAD"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a "run down" condition. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts Quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds." Sold by druggists for over 40 Years. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

Musical Art

Conducting and Teaching
a Specialty.

Arrangements can be made for beginners and advanced pupils at any time desired.

Call personally Mr. WILCOX, 2nd door west of Opera House, St. Joe, Ind.

Local Briefs

Carry Davidson spent Sunday with Miss Florence Bart.

George Kees was at Auburn on business Tuesday.

S. L. Widney went to Auburn last Tuesday to remain the rest of the week.

Merritt Sechler and Grant Balts were last Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Byron Widney.

For Sale—A few bushels of mammoth clover seed. Garth D. Shull, St. Joe, Ind. R.F.D. No.1.

WANTED:—Maple syrup on subscription. Call the News Office or bring it in any time.

Mrs. Will Hamilton suffered very much last week from a Mastoid gathering, but is improved at this time.

Mrs. Durwood Ridgway and two younger children spent Tuesday [illegible] last with her sister, [illegible] Putnam and family [illegible]

[illegible]

M. Will James of Harlan was a week-end guest in the home of Morris Curie and family.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Staman, jr., were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Mumma.

Henry Milliman, Mrs. Hollis Jackson and Miss Carrie Bodiker are all reported as being on the sick list County Agent Repp and wife, of Auburn, took Sunday dinner with Clarence Hart and family.

Tanlac is appetizing, invigorating and strengthening. Try it and be convinced. Dr. Sheffer.

S. S. Widney was a Sunday supper guest in the [illegible] home, while Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] were evening guests.

[illegible]

Chicken pox is being entertained at different homes in this place.

TANLAC Vegetable pills are sold on a positive guarantee to give perfect satisfaction. Try them tonight and you will be delighted to find the results you have obtained. At Dr. Sheffer's.

A number of our basket ball fans attended the high school sectional tournament at Ft. Wayne, Friday and Saturday.

The Western Union Telegraph gang formerly camped here, are at the present time at Elroy, Wis., aiding in repairing lines wrecked in a recent storm.

For Sale—Residence property in good repair, at a low price, located on main street; other properties at reasonable prices.
S. S. Widney.

Waterloo is to have a new motor fire truck which was ordered from the Boyer-Oberchain Co of Logansport, Ind., at a special meeting of the town council held Monday.

Fred B. Leighty was called to Avilla last Tuesday to aid in the publishing of the weekly paper there, due to the absence of the regular publisher on account of injuries received.

Four armed bandits staged a daring daylight hold-up at Indianapolis on Feb. 26, when they entered the East Tenth street branch of the Fletcher Savings and Trust Company at the noon hour and escaped with $30,000 in a large touring car.

M. E. Leighty, superintendent of the DeKalb county infirmary, and his wife, Mrs. Leighty, who is matron, have been confined to their beds on account of influenza. Mr. Leighty was able to be up Friday for the first time while Mrs. Leighty still suffers considerably, the influenza leaving her heart in a very weakened condition.

Miss Esther Krafft and Harold Johnson were united in marriage recently at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Kraff, south of Butler, Rev. Hubard, of Newville officiating. Only immediate relatives were present. The bride is a charming young lady of ability and accomplishments. The groom, one of Butler's most esteemed young business men, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Johnson. The young couple will reside for a time with the parents of the groom.

Hicksville, O.—Every citizen was greatly shocked last Sunday morning to learn that Edith Applegate Limpert, young wife of Lee Limpert, had passed away at the Amaden hospital, where she had become a mother about two weeks before. She to all human knowledge was getting along fine and was looking eagerly forward to the next few days when she could with her darling babe return to her own home and fireside. To the moment of her death she was smiling in her happiness, and without a sign or warning she passed away with but a gasp, and the beautiful young life was ended. Heart trouble is reported as the cause of the sudden and tragic end, but no indications of such had been observed previously. Funeral services were held from the M. E. church at 10:30, Tuesday.

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

THE MILLIONS whose hearts were touched by the story of "Tess of the Storm Country" or who were equally affected by the sweet, pathetic little heroine as acted on the screen by Mary Pickford, will be charmed by this new tale of the squatter folk who once lived on Lake Cayuga, a few miles outside of Ithaca, N.Y.

Polly herself, crude and untaught, but beautiful in face and fine in spirit, is an adorable heroine, loyal through thick and thin, tempestuous at times when her anger is aroused by wrong or injustice, but tenderness itself to all weak and helpless creatures.

The situations in "Storm Country Polly" are tensely emotional, skillfully portrayed and adroitly handled, and the reader's sympathy with Polly and her people never lapses from start to finish.

This DELIGHTFUL STORY has been SELECTED by US to RUN as a SERIAL in THESE COLUMNS & DO NOT MISS the OPENING INSTALLMENT

NOTICE!

[illegible]

Patterson-Fletcher Company

-Fine Stationery!-

Fancy Fine in colors
24 sheets, 24 envelopes, 50c

Silvertone, Milford, Pollyanna
all in white, per box, - 25c

60 sheets Cloth of Gold stationery in box, - - 25c envelopes to match, pkg., 10c

Pink, Blue or White
Quilette Lawn, per box, 25c

New Castle Writing Tablet
70 pages, smooth linen, 10c

—Call at the NEWS office—

HARTZOG EYE SIGHT SPECIALIST

--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight
SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist office, St. JOE
Friday, MARCH 10, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

EAGLE "MIKADO" Pencil No. 174

For Sale at your Dealer
Made in five grades
ASK FOR THE YELLOW PENCIL WITH THE RED BAND
EAGLE MIKADO
EAGLE PENCIL COMPANY, NEW YORK

Candidate For Judge

James E. Pomeroy of Auburn on Tuesday announced his candidacy for the republican nomination for judge of the DeKalb and Steuben circuit courts. The friends of Mr. Pomeroy have been urging him to be a candidate for several months but it was not until Tuesday that he definitely decided to announce his name.

Mr. Pomeroy is well known in both DeKalb and Steuben counties and is qualified in every way for the office he is seeking. The Republican nominee will be selected at the primaries held on Tuesday, May 2[illegible].

County Office Candidacy

[illegible]

Notice

Concord Township Farm Bureau meeting Friday evening March 17. A fine program is being arranged. Watch for printed program in next weeks News.

Albion Has Good SHORT COURSE

Albion reports a big success with their Farmers' Short Course, which was held on the two days immediately following the close of our course. The extremely unfavorable condition of both roads and weather, however, held their registration to [illegible].

Notice of Administration

[illegible]

MARCH

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, MARCH 16, 1922 NO 11

Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes for Spring 1922 are here

You'll find the coat lapels are a trifle longer and narrower. Buttons are spaced a little lower. The new sport styles show many interesting features in— pocket, plaits and belts. We're ready with all of them and will be glad to show you.

EVERYTHING TO WEAR
for Men and Boys.

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Buy your CLOVER SEED
Timothy Seed, Alsike and Alfalfa Seed from us. We handle Bran, Middlings, Tankage, Cotton Seed Meal, Oil Meal.

COAL— If you need a ton or two to carry you over buy now; we have it.

BEST VIRGINIA AND HOCKING COAL ONLY.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Let Us Be Your Bookkeeper

A checking account can be made a very convenient system of bookkeeping, commending itself especially to those people who feel that they do not have enough business to justify the keeping of an elaborate set of books. Your deposits can be made to represent your receipts, and your checks your expenditures. [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

St. Joe Man Died Monday

Charles Bennett Leighty, the youngest child of John and Elizabeth (Sowash) Leighty, was born in DeKalb County, Indiana, June 6, 1853, and departed this life at his home in St. Joe March 13, 1922, at the age of 68 years, 9 months, and 7 days. His sickness was of short duration, lasting but 5 weeks, and one remarkable fact is, that this illness was the only one, that the family remembers of, which compelled him to take his bed.

Since his birth, on the old Lieghty farm west of Spencerville, his entire life has been lived in this county, and the most of these years at St. Joe, with the exception of 4 years spent at Auburn and Butler, where he was engaged in the butcher business.

On January 25, 1877, he was united in marriage to Martha Jane Burley at Spencerville. To this union were born two daughters, Nena Correl, who died in 1905, and Golden Grace, who remains at home; three sons, James Harper and Fred B., who live in St. Joe, and Frank Roy, who resides at Wymore, Nebraska.

For 30 years he has been a member of the I. O. O. F. Lodge at St. Joe and was also affiliated with the Rebecca lodge.

Besides his wife and children he leaves a sister, Mrs. Mary Bowman, who is the last of the John Leighty family.

The funeral services will be held from the home, Thursday at 1:30 o'clock, Dr C. S. Johnson officiating, assisted by Rev. R. B. Daily and Rev. C. O. Johnson. E. R. Kinsey, director.

Farmers to Meet Friday Night.

The farmers will give another entertainment at the High School building this week on Friday evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock.

Besides the singing of the Choral Society and its male quartet, which together with other singing and speaking are well worth the whole trouble of coming, there will be special talks given by Mrs Goldsmith and Mr. Provines.

Readings are to be given by Mrs. Repp of Auburn and Mrs. Borthwick and others.

Everybody in the towns and the whole countryside are most cordially invited to come.

Appointed Guardian

Judge Dan M. Link on T[illegible] of last week granted the [illegible] Emma J. Fearss for the appointment of a guardian for [illegible] Fearss. The petition [illegible] property.

[illegible]

Mortgage Foreclosed

[illegible]

High School Contest

The high schools of Spencerville and St. Joe will hold the preliminary contest of the County High School Discussion at Spencerville next Friday night. The county contest will be held at Auburn on Friday night, March 24th.

A musical and reading contest is to be held in connection with the regular state discussion. The subject for discussion is: "A comprehensive program for the solution of the immigration problem."

The following program has been worked out by the two schools:

Piano Solo—1. Alice Tustison, St Joe. 2. La Verne Rhodes, Spencerville.

Vocal Duet—1. Elizabeth Thorne, Anna Beerbower, Spencerville. 2. Pauline Wasson, Jessie Engle, St. Joe.

Reading—1. Esther Henderson, Spencerville. 2. Louetta Daily, St. Joe.

Vocal Solo—1. Madalene Nicholls, St. Joe. 2. Mary Pervoines, Spencerville.

Discussion—1. Robert Johnson, St. Joe. 2. Eileen Askey, Spencerville.

Arrangements are being made for a preliminary number by each of the schools. The St Joe High school orchestra will be present, and Spencerville High school will furnish music.

Case Is Dismissed

The case against Raymond U. Bowser of Spencerville was dismissed in the DeKalb Circuit court last week Wednesday upon motion of the prosecuting attorney.

Mr. Bowser was indicted by the grand jury of the December term of court on a charge of selling a diseased animal. It was claimed he had sold to Clyde Lindsey a horse that he knew to be wind-broken, that he concealed the defect from Lindsey and that he accepted a note for $190 in payment. The sale took place last Dec., 16th.

Witnesses for the state named in the indictment were Clyde Lindsey, Henry S. Lindsey, John McKee and Dr. Ora W. Hiner.

Mr. Bowser claimed the horse belonged to M. C. Stewart of near Auburn and that all he had to do with it was to enter it for sale at a public auction he held at Spencerville. He said it was announced at that time that the horse was the property of Mr. Stewart. Mr. Bowser accepted the note but claims he endorsed it to Mr. Stewart and that he himself did not profit by the transaction.

In his motion to dismiss, the prosecutor set out that the prosecuting witness refused to prosecute the case further and that the evidence was insufficient to obtain a conviction.

Speaker for the Commencement

[illegible]

St. Joe Garage—Boost St. Joe

Has the Motor lost Power?
If so, it needs expert attention
Let us give it a thorough overhauling now before the spring season begins. We'll guarantee a good job at a fair, Moderate Price

TIRES at pre-war Prices.
CHAINS--You can't afford to take chances

Strictly a Service Garage

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 95.

6 per ct.

Money to Lend on Farms

LOANS to be secured by First Mortgage for not to exceed 40% value of land alone, excluding improvements.

LOANS for more than 40% of land value at 7%

Call at our office for complete information about our conditions and terms, which are attractive.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.
Established 1860

SATURDAY
will be our opening days at my residence, 2 doors west of Widney Opera House.

Hotel and Short Orders
Candies, Cigars, Ice Cream
For Free Treat SATURDAY Night.

Come to a REAL HOME PLACE and enjoy your eats.
MRS. C. A. COCHRAN,
St. Joe, Indiana

[illegible] Indianapolis, March 10. [illegible]

[illegible]

What God Says.

Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God.

[illegible]

MARCH

Where Your Taxes Go

How Uncle Sam Spends Your Money in Conducting Your Business

By EDWARD G. LOWRY

Author "Washington Close-Ups," "Banks and Financial Systems," etc. Contributor Political and Economic Articles to Leading Periodicals and a Writer of Recognized Authority on the National Government's Business Methods.

Copyright, Western Newspaper Union

XV.

BUDGET SYSTEM A START

The remedy is already being applied to remove some of the conditions I have described. A budget plan has been put into effect. A director of the budget, in the person of Gen. Charles G. Dawes, has been appointed to office. General Dawes is at work now trying to find out in detail where the money comes from which you pay to run the government and where it goes and how properly to apportion it among the spending agencies of the government. He is just at the beginning of his big task, but the work has begun. That is the important thing.

The budget and accounting act provides for the presentation by the President of a regular and alternative budget of the United States to congress on the first Monday in December, 1921, covering the fiscal year ending June 30, 1923.

Recognizing in the budget machinery created by this law an agency through which executive policy and pressure involving better business administration could be exerted, Mr. Harding assembled on June 29, 1921, for the first time, the heads of departments and independent organizations and bureau chiefs, and after announcing a government policy of economy and efficiency, directed that an immediate attempt with the budget machinery be made to reduce expenditures under the appropriations of the current year ending June 30, 1922.

General Dawes, director of the budget, has reported to the President $112,512,628.32 "as the estimated savings in expenditures reported to me by the heads of departments and independent organizations, in compliance with your directions to all concerned to secure a reduction in expenditures under appropriations and balances available during the current fiscal year, where consistent with the mandatory obligations imposed by congress, either direct or implied.

"Of this amount, $22,822,113.14, pertaining to continuous appropriations and involving for the most part building and construction, will be postponed for expenditure in future years unless otherwise decided by congress. Whatever may be the relation of total expenditures to total revenues at the end of the current year, which, for various reasons, including possible new legislation, the operations of the shipping board, the railroad administration, and fluctuation in current receipts of the postoffice department, cannot be predicated at this time, the above amount is that much of a contribution to a more favorable relation.

"This fine response to your request from the heads of the departments and independent organizations and bureau chiefs, incidental to your assumption of responsibility as the business head of governmental administration, infers the existence in their minds of three principles involving improvement in governmental business, which should not be overlooked.

"First, that the business organization of government hereafter assumes that the minimum amount of money to be expended in any fiscal year is not, of necessity, the sum appropriated in advance by congress, but the smallest amount upon which the business of the government can be efficiently administered under the program outlined by congress.

"Second, that the minds of the business administrators of government have been diverted from a too easy reliance upon the custom of deficiency appropriations.

"Third, that where congress has directed the expenditure of certain sums for specific purposes, an executive pressure will now be exerted for more efficient and economical administration in order to produce greater result from the given expenditure, and also wherever possible, to complete the given project for a less amount than the total appropriated for the purpose."

The budget system was established because of an acute public interest in the expenditures of government, actively and continuously displayed by the tax payers. It was established in response to a public demand. The house of representatives has changed its way of appropriating money to conform to the budget system. It has only one great appropriation committee which authorizes all the expenditures for the house. The senate has not followed suit. If this newly installed budget system is to be a success it must have your active support and understanding and derive an added authority from your approval and support.

WRITE TO THESE MEN.

The chief defects, or places where waste is apparent in the conduct of the business of the government, that I have pointed out in these articles, have been, first, the excessive proportion of the government income that went for military expenditures; second, the chaotic condition and lack of adequate supervision and control of expenditures, which have been in part remedied by the introduction of the budget system; and third, the haphazard organization of the government departments and the unorganized condition that prevailed in government employment.

The remedy for two of these conditions I have treated briefly in the two immediately preceding articles. I come now to the matter of reorganization of the departments and the reclassification of government employees. A beginning has been made on both of these matters.

A joint committee of the two houses of congress, with Walter F. Brown as chairman, is studying the whole question of organization of the government and the function of the various departments and bureaus and independent establishments. I cannot too strongly advise you to keep yourself in contact with the work that joint committee is doing.

I have given you the names of the members of the committee in another article but I will repeat them here. They are Senators Smoot of Utah, Wadsworth of New York and Harrison of Mississippi; Representatives Reavis of Nebraska, Temple of Pennsylvania and Moore of Virginia. Write to any of them or to Mr. Brown, the chairman of the committee, who represents the President, with headquarters in the house office building here at Washington.

This is the third or fourth attempt that has been made to effect a general reorganization of the conduct of the business of the executive departments. They have all failed through lack of interest. There was lack of public interest, and consequently lack of interest in congress.

[illegible]

individual members of congress in a hundred skillful, shrewd, subtle ways arguments to support the legislation they are seeking to advance. It would take two or three columns of this newspaper merely to print a list of the organizations and associations that are here to keep congress mindful of their interests.

In this great clamor the common public interest is likely to be submerged. In fact, too often it has been submerged. This matter of economies and reorganizing the business of the government and taking up the tedious details of administration is a dull business. It has been neglected and put off time after time because of a lack of public interest and driving force behind it.

If you will supply this driving force now and display a sustained interest, you can at least put the business of government of the United States on an efficient basis. Congress has been negligent because you have been negligent, but now at last the thing has run along so far that something must be done about it.

Used Insects to Fight Insects.

Control of destructive insects by the introduction of their natural enemies has become an important technique during the last generation writes Paul Popenoe in Science. But if competent observers are to be trusted, the southern Arabs employed the same method more than 100 years ago in the culture of the date palm.

In his "Relation d'un Voyage dans l'Yemen," P. E. Botta says:

"I was able to verify the [illegible] fact previously [illegible] by Forskal that the date palms in Yemen are attacked by a [illegible] cause them to [illegible] growers [illegible]"

[illegible]

Seen and Heard In Indiana

Indianapolis.—Selection of a 1,086-acre tract of land near Pendleton as a site for the state reformatory was announced by Governor McCray following a meeting of the relocation commission. The institution is to be removed from its present location at Jeffersonville, under the provisions of an act of the December special session of the legislature. The site is about 26 miles from Indianapolis and two miles from Pendleton. It is on the main line of the Big Four railroad and the Union Traction company. An adequate water supply is assured from Fall creek, which adjoins the property. The land was obtained at a price of $168.63 an acre.

Terre Haute.—Miners of district 11, United Mine Workers of America, which includes practically all of Indiana's coal fields, will not meet with Hoosier operators to negotiate any separate wage contract, it was officially learned at district headquarters in Terre Haute. The present agreement on pay and working conditions expires March 31. Although the operators have not requested that the Indiana operators and miners meet, the step has been taken by Illinois operators. "Unless the policy of the international union is changed we will not agree to any state conference with the operators," William Mitch, secretary of district 11, said.

Indianapolis.—Dates for county conventions of beekeepers' associations in Indiana, which inspectors of the state conservation department will attend and assist beekeepers in preparing their colonies for the season's work of nectar gathering, have been announced by the state entomologist. The dates include: March 15, Lake county; March 16, Porter county; March 17, St. Joseph county; March 18, Monroe county; March 18, Cass county; March 22, Noble county; March 24, Kosciusko county; March 24, Adams county; March 25, Miami county, and March 31, Jackson county.

Indianapolis.—The members of the Indiana Dairy Marketing association, lately founded on a co-operative pooling basis, to be put into effect first in the areas surrounding Indianapolis, Muncie and Fort Wayne, are well pleased at the outcome of the first farm to farm canvass for memberships in the association. The canvass recently completed in Shelby county resulted, according to the president of the state association, in placing more than 80 per cent of all the dairy produce of Shelby county under control of the association for five years.

Connersville.—Valuation of farm land in Fayette county will be reduced from 20 to 25 per cent, is the view of assessors who have started the work of assessing. Reduction in farm valuaton is due to the fact that the present selling price is much lower than when the former appraisement was made. City real estate probably will remain at the same figure and household goods and personal property will be valued approximately at the same figure as last year, according to the county assessor.

Hammond.—Moonshine is taking a terrible toll in Lake county. The county jail and poor farm are crowded with insane men. All state institutions for the insane are filled. Some place will have to be provided for the county's moonshine insane. Insanity, due to moonshine, has increased so alarmingly within the past few months that county officials are seriously considering the advisability of erecting a county insane asylum. There are 168 cases of insanity being held at the county jail and at the poor farm.

Indianapolis.—A general building program and a resumption of full-time work in automobile factories and in other large manufacturing concerns would bring relief of thousands of persons now without employment in a few weeks, is the opinion of a member of the state industrial board in charge of the state and federal employment agency. He said his reports indicated that the situation had remained practically unchanged during the last month.

Logansport.—Many valuable papers, which were stolen from the safety deposit boxes when the Young America Bank at Logansport was robbed last May, have been recovered. The papers were found in a field near [illegible]ville, south of Lebanon, a few days ago. No negotiable securities were recovered. No clew to the identity of the robbers has been obtained.

Bloomfield.—The [illegible]

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—The state highway commission was in session the past week working out a 1922 road and bridge building program. In addition to paving the remaining gaps in the National road, the commission has decided tentatively to pave about as many more miles of highway, practically all of which will be in the north part of the state. This will complete the 100 miles of paving which the department intends to pave this year. It seems certain that the commission will pave the twenty miles of Dune highway between Gary and Michigan City and four miles east of Michigan City to the state line. Many northern Indiana persons of prominence have been pressing the state to pave the road. Ten miles in the Evansville-Princeton road, four miles north of Elkhart to the Michigan state line, seven miles in the Lincoln highway between Valparaiso and the Lake county line and three miles east of the Illinois state line in the Lincoln highway also are in the tentative paving program.

Wabash.—While teachers meeting at Chicago recently reported that the little red school is doomed, school officials here say they discovered that fact years ago. It will be brought to their attention again next summer when efforts will be made to close several of the eight district schools in Wabash county. A few years ago there were 60 district schools in the county. From year to year the district buildings have been closed until now the county stands almost at the head of the Indiana counties having better schools. Out of the eight district schools in the county, only one really goes back to the days of the red school.

Terre Haute.—The largest still confiscated in Indiana in the last year was taken in a raid at Clinton, made by federal prohibition officers. It is of 1,000-gallon capacity, has 36 coal oil burners, has a double jacket condenser and is fed with fuel by four five-gallon oil cans, each can providing the oil for one row of burners. The still from the floor to the top of the steam dome measures seven feet. It is seven and one-half feet long and is five feet and six inches wide. The still was found in a brick building almost in the center of Clinton. The alleged owner was arrested.

Huntington. — Huntington county owners of sugar camps say that the run of sap in maple trees this season is above the ordinary, both in quantity and quality, and that they expect a bumper crop of the maple molasses to be turned out. Most of the camps are in active operation and "sugaring off" parties are being planned and held by many groups of young people. Because of conditions throughout the country practically every man who has enough sugar trees to turn out quantities of sap sufficient to handle on any kind of commercial scale is busy at the sugar molasses making.

Indianapolis.—For the second time within a little more than six months the state general fund, out of which the general state expenses are paid and from which come legislative appropriations, is practically gone. Governor McCray, William G. Oliver, state auditor, and Ora Davies, state treasurer, are negotiating with bankers to obtain money to run the state until after spring taxes are paid and received by the state from the counties. It may be necessary for the state to borrow nearly $500,000.

Huntingburg.—The first step in the southern Indiana farm improvement program, suggested by Governor McCray and planned by Purdue University, was made when meetings of county farm bureau officers were held in six counties of the Huntingburg district. Plans were outlined for the agricultural surveys to be made in the counties of Pike, Dubois, Crawford, Perry, Spencer and Warrick.

Cloverdale.—A petition is being circulated and liberally signed by the taxpayers of Cloverdale township, Putnam county, which will be presented to the county commissioners at Greencastle, asking a five-year holiday from construction of new macadamized roads in the township. Instead of building new roads, it is urged that the money be used for the repair of roads already constructed.

New Albany.—At the annual convention of the Southern Indiana Telephone association in New Albany officers were elected as follows: President, Mr. Isom, Mitchell; first vice president, Carl W. Koerner, Huntingburg; second vice president, E. W. Swartout, Aurora; secretary and treasurer, George E. Fisher, New Albany.

Hammond.—The community of Poor Handmaids of Christ of East Chicago will break ground within a month for a group of [illegible] to be known as [illegible]. The [illegible], which, it is [illegible] will cost $[illegible], are to [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR MARCH 19

THE DOWNFALL OF ISRAEL

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 17:1-18.

GOLDEN TEXT—Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.—Prov. 14:34.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Hosea 7; Amos 2:6-16.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What Came of Wrong - Doing.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Israel's Punishment for Disobedience.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Results of Disobedience to God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How National Sins Are Punished.

I. Israel Taken Into Captivity (vv. 1-6).

This was the fulfillment of that which Amos had predicted in the days of Jeroboam II, at a time when the nation was at the height of its prosperity. The northern kingdom was ruled by 19 kings, all of whom were wicked. Their wickedness was not because of lack of information or opportunity, but in spite of it. God promised the first king His blessing if he would be loyal to Him. Jeroboam departed from God and the apostasy thus begun continued downward to the end. In the reign of Hoshea, the last king, the king of Assyria came and besieged Samaria and carried the children of Israel captive to Assyria, from which they never returned.

II. The Sins Which Caused Their Doom (vv. 7-18).

1. Conformed to the ways of the heathen (vv. 7-9). God had commanded them not to follow in the ways of the heathen, but these Israelites, instead of maintaining lives of separation, secretly did that which was displeasing to God. Secret sins just as surely as open sins bring ruin for all things are naked and open to Him with whom we have to do. One may maintain his reputation before men while practicing sins, but ruin will sooner or later overtake him. Even though God had cast out the heathen for practicing these sins, the Israelites followed in their ways. God demands separation (II Cor. 6:17).

2. Served idols (vv. 10-12). They not only compromised by "walking in the statutes of the heathen," but worshiped their gods. It was not a long step from following in the statutes of the heathen to worshiping their gods. Before they worshiped idols they cast off the true God. Idolatry came in because the race did not wish to retain God in its affection (Rom. 1:21-23). People today are worshiping idols because they have first cast off the authority of the living God. Man is a worshipful being. When he ceases to worship the true God, he worships other gods. Neutral ground is impossible.

3. They were rebellious (vv. 13-15). God by his prophet had said unto them "Turn ye from your evil ways and keep my commandments," but they stubbornly refused His testimony, even rejected His statutes. God, in love, tried to save them. He sent some of the noblest and best prophets who ever spoke to man to persuade them to turn from their sins, such as Elijah and Elisha, but they hardened their necks and plunged deeper into wickedness.

4. Caused their sons and daughters to pass through the fire (v. 17). This was the dreadful Moloch worship—the most cruel rite of heathen worship. It was done by kindling a fire in a hollow metal image until its arms were red hot and placing live children therein to be burned to death.

5. Resorted to magical practices (v. 17). When faith in the true God wanes, men always turn to the magical arts. In this way they sold themselves to evil in the sight of the Lord to provoke Him to anger.

III. Judgment Falls (v. 18).

At this stage of the drama the curtain falls. God could not be inactive longer.

1. God was very angry. God's anger is not raving fury, but the revulsion of His holy nature against sin. Sin cannot exist in His presence. His wrath must strike. Though He waits long, the debt must be paid and always with compound interest. There is only one way to escape God's wrath; that is, to turn from sin.

2. Removed them out of His sight. The land of Palestine is regarded as the land of God's sight, that is, the place of His manifested presence. Their national identity was blotted out forever. These people are still scattered among the nations, and as a separate nation doubtless they will never return to their land. The judgment was severe, but not more so than [illegible]. God had waited long. [illegible] of His grace [illegible]

[illegible]

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

for that COUGH! KEMP'S BALSAM Pleasant to take Children like it

NR Tonight Tomorrow Alright

Get a 25c. Box.

Nature's Remedy NR TABLETS—NR A. H. LEWIS MEDICINE CO. ST. LOUIS, U.S.A. 25 TABLETS NR

A woman's idea of economy is to have things charged.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Hurry, mother! Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" and it never fails to open the bowels. A teaspoonful today may prevent a sick child tomorrow. If constipated, bilious, feverish, fretful, has cold, colic, or if stomach is sour, tongue coated, breath bad, remember a good cleansing of the little bowels is often all that is necessary.

Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

One of the uncertainties of life is the uncertainty of love.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected.

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in an interview on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper. Advertisement.

In the Hospital.

"The doctor says I have a benignant tumor. What is the matter with you?"

"I have a kind-hearted carbuncle."

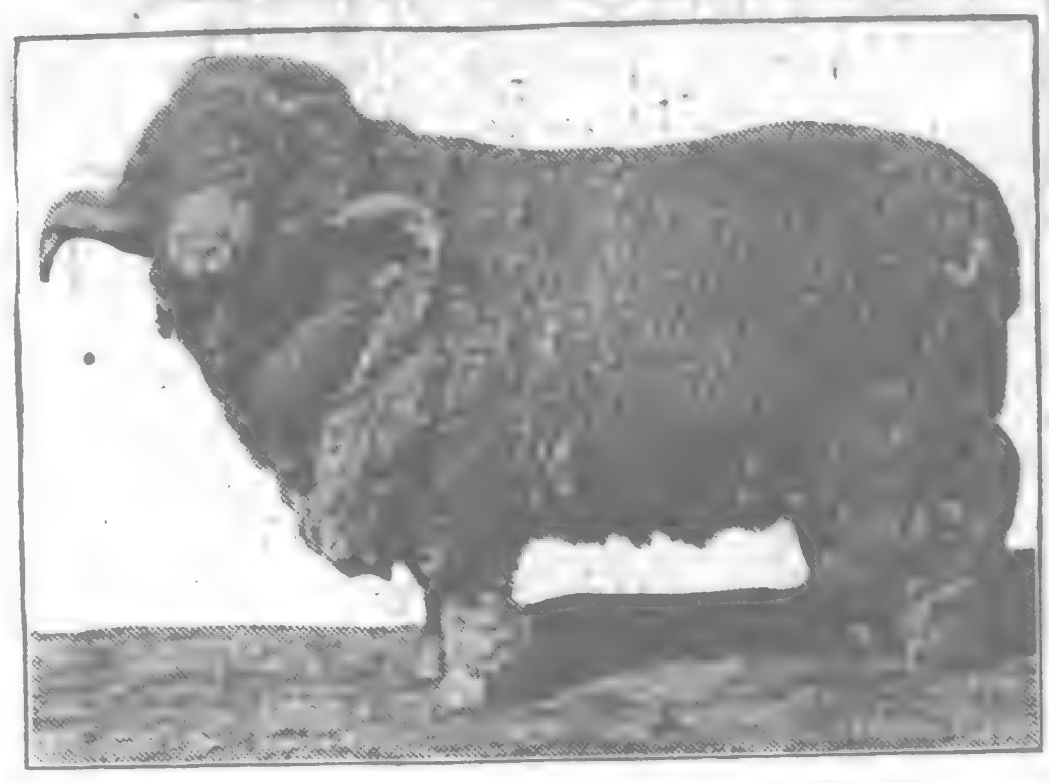
—[illegible]

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION [illegible] BELL-ANS

MARCH

L 9/2

MAINTAIN FLOCK OF SHEEP IN ADDITION TO OTHER LIVE STOCK



A Grand Championship Prize Winning Rambouillet Ram.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Recognizing the adaptability of sheep to a wide range of territory, extension workers of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state agricultural colleges have steadily encouraged the maintenance of a flock of sheep in addition to other live stock on the farm in sections where farm flocks can be profitably handled. The introduction of purebred stock and the establishing of breeding flocks has been an important feature of extension work in Connecticut and Pennsylvania in the East, and in Utah, Washington state, and New Mexico in the West.

Ram Club Comprises Three Flocks.

In Pennsylvania purebred ram clubs have been organized and are operating successfully. These clubs consist of three units of farm flocks each. A ram is purchased for each unit. He is used in each unit two years and then transferred from one unit to another until he has been used in all three units of the club. The county agent in McKean county aided in organizing three ram clubs during 1920, providing nine good rams of Shropshire breeding for the flocks of members of these clubs. All of these rams are grandsons of Minton's 51, one of the greatest show rams at the International in the past few years. Rape pasture is being used to fatten lambs. These clubs will also procure purebred Shropshire ewes, so that each member will eventually have a purebred flock.

Through the assistance given by the sheep specialist at the state agricultural college nine ram clubs were organized in Pennsylvania during 1920; $3,000 worth of purebred sheep were selected and purchased by farmers in the state in this connection. Supplementing the organization of these associations and the introduction of new stock, 35 shearing, docking, and dipping demonstrations were held, attended by over 700 people.

Utah has made notable progress in making the farm flock a factor of importance in its livestock production. In Iron county, where practically all the rams are now purebred, the sheep breeders have concentrated on the Rambouillet and grow enough stock of this breed to supply largely the demand in southern Utah for purebred animals. An outgrowth of this work is the Rambouillet sheep show, which is annually the big feature of the county fair in Iron county and at which the competition among sheep breeders is exceedingly keen. The county agent in this county co-operates actively with breeders in selecting and improving the management of the breeding stock.

A Club Member and His Pet.

Market Wool in State Pool.

In a number of states county agents have urged successfully an increase in the number of farm flocks kept. Johnson County, Neb., where the number of farmers keeping sheep was more than doubled in 1920, is a notable example. Although the condition of the wool market was discouraging, one group of 16 farmers in this county shipped a total of [illegible] pounds of wool to the state [illegible]. In Jasper County, [illegible]

[illegible] these clubs, accepting the notes of club members and letting them run from 2 to 2½ years in order to enable the club members to establish small flocks and sell wool and surplus lambs before settling their indebtedness. Representatives of these banks have shown much personal interest in the work and have co-operated with extension workers in giving club members encouragement and advice. In Lake County, Minn., the cashier of the local state bank made a personal visit during the year to every boy and girl to whom money had been loaned for the purchase of sheep.

Boys Raise Orphan Lambs.

Orphan lambs in Carbon county, Utah, were taken care of last year by boys and girls who could not afford to start flocks by purchasing sheep. Those who could get milk or dried milk were given the lambs, and 19 boys and girls, altogether, took charge of 158 lambs. Only nine of these were lost during the entire season. Cows' milk was found to be the most satisfactory food, but dried milk was very convenient for use on grazing fields. One boy kept 15 lambs at his home, all of which did well. The same problem was met in a different fashion at Padillas, Bernalillo County, N. Mex., where five club members secured from two to five orphan lambs each and raised them with a goat for a mother.

Boys and Girls Have Shown Unusual Adaptability in Raising Sheep.

The outlook for an increase in the number of farm flocks generally throughout the United States is promising. Adult farmers and farm boys and girls are finding the breeding of purebred sheep a profitable line of production, fitting in well with farm activities already established. Extension workers generally should feel encouraged in advocating the adding of flocks of sheep to live stock on farms where conditions are reasonably favorable to wool and mutton production.

SQUASHES IN HOME GARDENS

Small-Growing Plants Are Best Suited for Average Garden—Use While Young and Tender.

Two distinct types of squashes are commonly grown in home gardens—the summer squashes, the fruits of which are used while they are young and tender, and the fall and winter squashes, which are ripened and used during the winter months. The small-growing summer squashes are best adapted to planting in the average garden. The larger, or standard, varieties are better adapted to field culture, although one or two hills might be planted in a corner or along one side of the garden. The hills in which summer squashes are grown should be fully four feet apart and a little manure and fertilizer should be worked into each hill as it is being made.

PLAN TO RAISE ARTICHOKES

Seed May Be Planted in Spring as Soon as Soil Is Warm—Use Well-Rotted Manure.

Deep, rich sandy loam, with a liberal supply of well rotted manure, is best suited for [illegible]

True Detective Stories

BELOW DEAD LINE

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

CONTRARY to the general opinion, it was not Inspector Byrnes who instituted the famous imaginary barrier known as the "dead line"—a point beyond which crooks could not penetrate except under peril of immediate arrest, even though no charges were pending against them at the moment. The device was originated by William Melville, superintendent of Scotland Yard during the reign of Queen Victoria.

But it was in connection with the prevention of a crime, rather than in the solving of one, that Melville had his most distinguished success, for if he had not been able to capture Vroff, the famous anarchist, it is quite possible that the czar of Russia and possibly some of the members of the reigning family in England would have been blown into eternity.

The affair in question occurred some months after Melville had taken charge of Scotland Yard. The visit of the czar had been widely heralded through the press and every governmental operative in Great Britain had been pressed into service to secure the safety of the visiting ruler. The entire island was combed for men who were known to be hiding, and, as a final resort, Melville issued an order that any suspicious character found within five square miles of the line of march from Buckingham palace to the Mansion house would be arrested on sight.

Three days before the arrival of the czar, Melville's reports indicated that the city had been thoroughly cleaned up.

But on the very day of the procession, only two hours before the royal families were scheduled to leave the palace, Melville was informed that his men had failed to apprehend the most dangerous nihilist on the continent—a young Russian by the name of Vroff, who had escaped from a prison in St. Petersburg and had entered England in such a roundabout manner that his arrival had not been recorded. According to the word which reached Melville, Vroff had secured employment in a wine merchant's establishment along the line which the procession would follow, and had sworn to throw a bomb under the czar's carriage as it passed.

Melville realized that there wasn't a moment to be lost. Also, it was a job which he must handle alone.

As it happened, Melville knew the establishment where Vroff worked, and he also knew that a certain vintage of champagne was kept in the cellar, whence it was produced only at a special request. It was for this reason, therefore, that he made his way to the wine shop and stated that he would like to purchase half a dozen bottles of the champagne.

As he expected, the proprietor informed him that the vintage was in the bin, but offered to have it brought up immediately.

"Don't bother to do that," replied the Scotland Yard man, "I'll go down with one of your cellarmen and pick out the bottles for myself. Possibly I'll see something else that I want at the same time. Send that man along with me to point out the way," and he indicated one of the employees whom he had recognized from the description as Vroff.

As they reached the foot of the stairs, the cellarman pointed to a bin nearby and stated that it contained the champagne the customer asked for. Realizing that he could not stage his coup so close to a means of exit, Melville examined the bottles, offered some objection to the age of the wine and inquired what lay in the back of the cellar.

"Burgundy," replied the other, commencing to be a bit restive, for the hour of the approach of the procession was drawing rapidly nearer.

"Fine!" said the Scotland Yard head. "I think I'd prefer that, after all. Let me see some of it, will you?"

Grumbling a bit under his breath, Vroff led the way back into the dim recesses of the cellar, and as he bent forward to secure a bottle, Melville closed with him.

With a sidewise, eel-like slip, Vroff ducked out from under the detective's arms, and, before Melville knew what he was doing, he had reached into a bin in the center of the cellar and secured a big, dangerous bomb, which he held high above his head.

"Stop!" he commanded, as the Scotland Yard operative [illegible] him. "One more step and I'll [illegible] the whole place to [illegible] with it."

Melville, wise in the [illegible] of anarchist [illegible] [illegible]

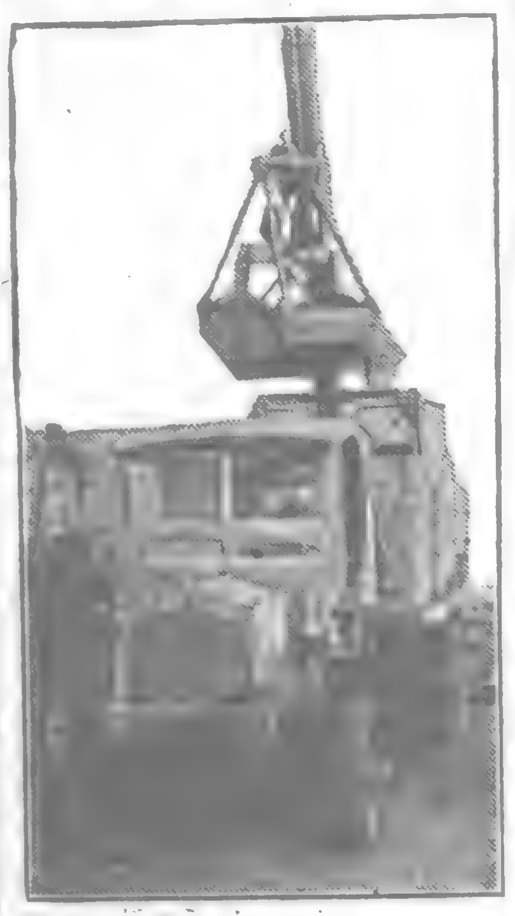
BETTER ROADS

GET SURPLUS WAR MATERIAL

Bureau of Public Roads Distributes Different Articles for Highway Construction.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many and varied are the articles of surplus war material which have been distributed through the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, among the various states for road-building purposes. These articles were turned over by the War department to the Department of Agriculture under the Wadsworth-Kahn bill, the sole stipulation attached to their use being that they be devoted exclusively to the construction and maintenance of roads. The distribution, which has been in process for some time, probably will be completed about the middle of next year. The total value of machinery, equipment, and supplies, independent of motor vehicles, which have been distributed is more than $30,000,000. More than 10 closely written typewritten pages are required for the list of articles alone. In the list are included many thousands of iron and steel bars, including 126,497 pairs of splice bars for 25-pound rails; 48,460 axes of various kinds; several hundred automobile bodies, and many thousand tons of spare parts; 12,398 brooms of various kinds; 275,085 feet of assorted cable; 60 cameras; 1,291 miscellaneous flat and gondola cars; 1,200 miscellaneous concrete carts; 117,850 feet of cord; 1,558 compasses of various sizes; 1,108 field desks; 24 grindstones; 4,660 hammers; 16,078 sets of assorted harness; 1,999 hatchets; 882,282 feet of various kinds and sizes of hose; 31,025 assorted lanterns; 14 sets of micrometers; 15,802 sheets of sand paper; 156,436 picks; 47,900 spark plugs; 307,647 fence posts; 25,000 gross tons of rails; 888,907 sheets of roofing metal; 494,860 feet of various kinds and sizes of rope; 67 salamanders; 378,812 shovels of various kinds; 47,892 spades; 1,757 tractors of various types; 4,778 wagons; 7,960 wheelbarrows; and wire of various kinds amounting to approximately 2,000 tons.



Truck Adapted to Road Work.

EXTENSIVE SURVEY OF ROADS

Mileage, Cost, Character of Construction, Improvement Work, Etc., to Be Ascertained.

America's far-flung network of roadways is soon to be measured accurately in terms of mileage, cost, character of construction, improvement work, and general condition by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The survey, which is the most extensive ever undertaken and the first in seven years, is to be made with the aid of state and local officials the country over, and is comparable only to the great task of taking the national census.

MICHIGAN KEEPS ROADS OPEN

About 1,200 Miles of Highways Being Kept Clear of Snow for Motor-vehicle Traffic.

Michigan is keeping open about 1,200 miles of her highways this winter in order that motor vehicle traffic may move [illegible] on intercity roads. [illegible] the road-[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

NERVOUS AND HALF-SICK WOMEN

These Letters Recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Will Interest You

For Your Own Good Please Read Them

Youngstown, Ohio.—"Last fall I began to feel mean and my back hurt me and I could hardly do my little bit of housework. I was played out when I would just sweep one room and would have to rest. I would have to put a cushion behind me when I would sit down and at night I could not sleep unless I had something under my back. I had awful cramps every month and was just nearly all in. Finally my husband said to me one day, 'Why don't you try Lydia E. Pinkham's medicine?' and I said, 'I am willing to take anything if I could get well again.' So I took one bottle and a second one and felt better and the neighbors asked me what I was doing and said, 'Surely it must be doing you good all right.' I have just finished my eighth bottle and I cannot express to you how I feel, the way I would like to. If you can use this letter you are welcome to it and if any woman does not believe what I have written to be true, she can write to me and I will describe my condition to her as I have to you."—Mrs. ELMER HEASLEY, 141 S. Jackson St., Youngstown, Ohio.

"I was very nervous and run-down," writes Mrs. L. E. Wiese of 706 Louisa St., New Orleans, La. "I would often sit down and cry, and was always blue and had no ambition. I was this way for over a year and had allowed myself to get into quite a serious condition. One day I saw your advertisement in the daily paper and began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once. I have improved ever since taking the third bottle and find it is the best medicine I have ever taken."

Benefited by First Bottle

"I was completely run down and not able to do my housework. I just dragged myself around and did not have energy to get up when once I sat down. I read advertisements of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in our paper 'The Indiana Daily Times,' and learned all about it. I received results from the very first bottle and now I am doing all my own work, even washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I tell all my friends it is due to you."—Mrs. ELIZABETH REINBOLD, 403 N. Pine St., Indianapolis, Indiana.

You should pay heed to the experiences of these women. They know how they felt before taking the Vegetable Compound, and afterwards, too. Their words are true.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts.

TO KILL RATS and MICE

Always use the genuine

STEARNS' ELECTRIC PASTE

It forces these pests to run from the building for water and fresh air. Rats, mice, cockroaches, waterbugs and ants destroy food and property and are carriers of disease.

READY FOR USE—BETTER THAN TRAPS

Directions in 15 languages in every box.

2 oz. size 35c. 15 oz. size $1.50.

MONEY BACK IF IT FAILS

Use Boran Shampoo Powder

Have Beautiful Hair all your life; no better made. Price 50c. NODOR, "The Toilet Necessity," STOPS odor of perspiration. Price 50c. RANAX, Relieves tired, swollen feet almost instantly. Price 50c. All three Toilet Necessities sent postpaid upon receipt of $1. B. & P. CHEM. CO., Box 45, ROME, N. Y.

FOR SALE—80 acre farm in Missaukee county, Michigan; all improved, good buildings and fences, heavy loam soil, one and one-half miles from market, churches and schools. Price $6,000.00; half down, balance on easy terms. Address LOCK BOX 31, McBAIN, MICH.

SINGLE COMB WHITE LEGHORN HENS, pullets, cockerels; 3 weeks old chicks; also pedigreed Beagle pups; trained fox hounds. H. S. MECKLEY, GLEN ROCK, PA.

Smoked Pork Products, salami cervelat sausage, high-grade Excelsior bacon; wholesale prices; parcel post shipments; price lists furnished. Schneider Shipping Co., Kewanee, Ill.

Auto Necessities, Sun Watch, Bild-a-Boat, other novelties. Agents Wtd. Write Cincinnati Mail Trading Co., Sta. K, Cincinnati, O.

BLOSSOM HAIR NETS

Agents can make 50% profit selling Blossom Hair Nets. An opportunity to build a profitable business. WAUGH & CO., 910 Woolworth Bldg., NEW YORK CITY.

START YOUR OWN BUSINESS

We start you, supplying scheme and first stock for 25c. If unsatisfied will return money. Send cash only.

ESCO CO., Box 165, SHEBOYGAN, WIS.

LOOK—New Invention 50 Egg Hen Hatching Incubator. Setting hen produces the necessary heat, automatically becomes a brooder when eggs are hatched; guaranteed to hatch every hatchable egg. You can make one in a few hours spare time, material costs less than $1. Send $1.25 for drawings and specifications. Money refunded if not satisfactory. John Fraser, Box 676, Rochester, N.Y.

KANT SLIP. Best Valve Lifter for all makes of cars. Descriptive Circular free. Oriental Balsam Tooth Powder. Try it 1c. Buy your Chewing Gum at half price. Any quantity. Fruit, Spearmint, Wintergreen, Peppermint. Four 5c pkgs., 10c. Ten pkgs., 25c. Box, 100 sticks, 47c. Stick of each 2c. MARVEL POWDER. Use same as eggs for all cooking. Trial, equivalent to 12 eggs, 9c. Drink Orangeade, Cherry, Strawberry, Raspberry, Lemonade. Enough for 10 glasses, 9c. Special—Pkg. of each drink and gum, 47c.

UNEKE SALES CO.

Box 11, Dept. H — Nevada, Mo.

The Proper Course.

"What's your idea of beginning with pie and eating your dinner backward?"

"My stomach's upset."

Two swelled heads are better than none.

Instruction as to eggs and colts: Break before using.

Cynicism is usually the second growth in a man who has been excessively disappointed in himself.

HAVE YOU THESE SYMPTOMS?

If So, Commence Taking Gude's Pepto-Mangan and Get Back to Good Health

Lack of vitality, a feeling of tiredness, bad breath, pale lips, colorless cheeks, loss of weight, flabby flesh, lessened strength—all of these call for the immediate use of Gude's Pepto-Mangan. It will positively produce satisfactory results. Try taking it with your meals for a few weeks and be surprised with the improvement in your condition. Gude's Pepto-Mangan will help you back to strength during convalescence from any illness. It has been prescribed successfully by physicians everywhere for thirty years. It is a recognized iron tonic of honest merit. For sale in liquid and tablet form by all druggists. Ask for it by the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan."—Advertisement.

Abating a Nuisance.

Hornblower—Sure, I'll lend you my saxophone. Anything to oblige a neighbor. But can you play it?

Nexdore—No, I can't play it, and you can't either till I return it.

Ladies Let Cuticura Keep Your Skin Fresh and Young

Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

The Best Way to Buy a Farm

Farms in the South as productive as Western farms can be bought at low prices and bring bigger net profits owing to mild climate and good markets. Unusual opportunities for dairy farming. Study these conditions before buying. Good farms can be rented for a year with option to buy at a fixed price. Full information free. Write J. C. WILLIAMS, Manager, Southern Railway Development Service, Washington, D. C.

Mufflers.

"The modern girl muffles and hides her ears in her hair," says Uncle Jed, "but from my observation she still contrives to hear when a man proposes to her."

Some bare-faced lies are old enough to wear full beards.

Ask Your Dealer

ASK your local dealer to recommend a practical decorator. If you are unable to secure one you can do the work yourself, tinting and stenciling your walls to give beautiful results.

Alabastine

Instead of Kalsomine or Wall Paper

[illegible]

MARCH

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Bet a horse-fly hates a tractor.

—‡—‡—‡—

Two may not live cheaper than one; but they can feel cheaper.

—‡—‡—‡—

Frowns cover a multitude of grins.

—‡—‡—‡—

Health hint—stand in with the cook.

—‡—‡—‡—

Scrape the roads; then scrape them some more; do it again, and keep on scraping.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	94	$ 4.73
M. P.	79	8.49
Lutheran	89	5.40
M. E. Spencer	94	6 77
Lutheran	71	5 29
Coburntown	63	2.32
Newville U. B.	68	2 96
Christian	86	3.00
Rehoboth	54	3.25
Concord	31	1.75

Estate Valued at $445.

Wm. G. Erick has been appointed by Judge Dan M. Link as administrator of the estate of the late Lina Rummell, who died at Spencerville, Jan. 14th.

The estate consists of $445 in personal property. The heirs are two sisters, Mary McGillvary, of New Ulisis, Kansas, and Mariah Hobough of Spencerville, and one brother, David Rummell of Jamaica, Iowa; three nephews, Hulbert Rummell of Oklahoma City, Okla.; Wm. Rummell of Mendon, Neb., and Oscar Rummell, whose address is unknown, and two nieces, Louie Beam of Spencerville, and Rosie Rummell, whose address is unknown.

Mr. Erick filed $900 bond, with Edgar W. Atkinson as surety.

Entertained Neighboring Lodge

The St. Joe K. of P. lodge entertained the brother lodge No. 321 from Spencerville, Wednesday evening, March 8th, who came out in a body, bringing along with them seven esquires, namely, Jas Vallien, Ralph Furnish, D. McKinley, Chas Scott, R. Walters and Fred Strubling, who were given third rank work by the local lodge.

A pot-luck supper was served to about forty members, which all enjoyed together with the social time [illegible] It is planned by both lodges to have more such meetings in the future knowing that it will promote more [illegible] which is the [illegible] of the order.

NEWVILLE

[illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. Verna Hull are the happy parents of a little daughter. Mrs. Hull will be remembered as Miss Gladys Roberts.

Your correspondent was intensely interested in the letter you published last week written by Henry Ackley of Toledo, for the Harvey Ackley mentioned therein was a brother of her grandmother whose maiden name was Laura Ackley. Her husband's name was Hazard Webster, who died in the gold fields of California, in the year of 1848, where he journeyed with companions who were smitten with the gold hunting fever at that time. Grandmother Webster, like her sister-in-law, was always called Aunt Laura and she prdceeded Aunt Rouxy a few years to that heavenly home.

Our Restaurants.

Chas. Cochran has removed the furniture and other articles which belonged to him from Brown's restaurant to his home. It seems that Mr. Cochran and Mr. Brown could not agree on the price of the articles is the reason that Mr. Brown did not keep them.

It was rumored that Cochran was going to start a restaurant at Spencerville in a room of the old Steward and Beams garage, but later it has been learned that he will operate a lunch room in the front part of his house, just two doors west of the Opera house in St. Joe.

Mr. Brown has put in new tables and other furniture in his place, and has made other inside changes that add greatly to the appearance of the restaurant. Zay Sailor is working for him now, and keeps things quite attractive.

Since John Bets has become owner of the property where he operates his restaurant, he has planned on much improvements. This week he is changing the wiring of the lights, concealing the wires, and adding a light to the front of the building.

Treat Oats For Smut

Very little oats in DeKalb county was treated for smut last year, and over the county there was more or less smut. If your oats had smut last year, you cannot afford not to treat.

1 pint formaldehyde.
5 or 6 gallons water.
50 bushels oats.

The pint of formaldehyde is added to the 5 or 6 gallons of water and sprinkled on with a sprinkling can, as the second party shovels the oats. Be sure to make the 5 or 6 gallons last for the 50 bushels of oats. When you have gotten this on the oats cover up the pile for at least five hours. When you get the five gallons on the forty bushels you will find the oats comparatively dry. As soon as they have been covered up 5 hours they are ready for sowing. The water is entirely absorbed by the grain.

If you are going to sow immediately, you can sack them up as soon as they have been covered up five hours. If the oats is going to stand in sacks for some time the [illegible]

[illegible]

Public Sales

Guardian's Public Sale

The undersigned, guardian of Rolland Bearss, will sell at public sale at the residence of said Rolland Bearss, located 3 miles west of St Joe, and 3 miles east of Jackson Center, on Thursday, March 23rd, beginning at 10 o'clock, the following property:

3 Head of HORSES—Two black mares, 13 years old, weight 1400 each; yearling Belgium colt.

10 Head of CATTLE—Jersey cow, 7 years old, calf by side; Jersey cow, 7 years old, calf by side; black cow, 8 years old, will be fresh in April; spotted cow, 8 years old, will be fresh in May; white cow, 3 years old; Jersey cow, giving good flow of milk; red heifer, 2 years old, with calf; three yearling heifers, Jerseys.

7 Head of HOGS—Sow, weight about 500 pounds, to farrow April 1st; 6 hogs, weight 150 pounds each.

Farming Tools — McCormick binder, 7-ft. cut, good as new; manure spreader, International, good as new; Hoosier fertiliser drill, good as new; Blackhawk corn planter; Oliver sulky plow, No. 11; wagon, with extra set of wheels; one Jones mower; Bryan walking plow; spring tooth harrow, 17 teeth; 5-tooth cultivator; one disc harrow; steel-drum roller; set dump boards; Hocking Valley hay loader; hay rack; copper kettle; set bob sleds; set of hay slings; 2 buggies; set of double harness; grind stone; DeLaval cream separator; gasoline engine, 1½ h.p., with pump jack.

Hay and Grain—About 10 tons of ensilage; 3 tons clover hay; 75 bushels 2-year old oats; 10 bushels new oats; 4 bushels seed corn; 75 bushels corn in the crib.

A few household goods.

Usual Terms of Sale.

William Curie,
Guardian of Rolland Bearss.
W. P. Endicott, Attorney.
Rhodenbaugh & McNamara, Auc's.
Clark Scholes, Clerk.

PUBLIC SALE

The undersigned will sell at public sale at his residence ¾ mile north of Coletown school house, 4 miles east and ¾ mile north of Spencerville, 5 miles southeast of St. Joe, 3½ miles out Spencerville road from Hicksville, and ½ mile south, on the former Mahlon Price and Myron Conine farm, commencing at 10 a. m., on the following property:

Friday, Mar. 17, 1922,

5 Head of HORSES—Bay mare, coming 6 years old, weight about 1500; black gelding coming 8 years old, weight about 1500; bay mare, 8 years old, weight about 1450; bay mare, coming 4 years old, weight about 1400; brown driving horse, 8 year old, weight about 1100, good general purpose animal. These animals are all sound; good workers.

Six Head of CATTLE—Jersey-Durham cow, coming 4 years old, bred, giving milk; 2 year-old Durham heifer, bred, giving milk; 18 months old Durham bull, well bred, yearling bull, yearling heifer, [illegible] 5 months old [illegible]

20 Head of SHEEP—[illegible]

8 Head of HOGS—[illegible]

[illegible]

give notes with approved security, notes to draw 6% interest from date. If not paid at maturity 8% from date; 5% discount for cash on all sums over $5. No property to be removed until settled for.

Hot lunch served on the grounds.

ROSCOE H. CONINE.
Rhodenbaugh & McNamara, Auc's.
Guy D. Wilson, Clerk.

C. E. Social

On last Wednesday evening at the basement of the Christian church the members of the Christian Endeavor society gathered for a social meeting. There were over 50 present to enjoy games, talks and more particularly the splendid lunch of sandwiches, dill pickles and cocoa.

The purpose of the committee in arranging such an occasion was to get more young folks interested in the Endeavor work that is being done at the Christian church. It is true that on Sunday evenings the attendance is good, but why can't we have out as large a number as was present at this social event?

The Christian church is the only church in town that is maintaining a society at the present time, and for that reason this one is a union society to which every young person of the community should belong.

More social meetings are to follow.

Children's Ailments

DISORDERS of the stomach and constipation are the most common diseases of children. To correct them you will find nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets. One tablet at bed time will do the work and will make your child bright and cheerful the following morning. Do not punish your children by giving them castor oil. Chamberlain's Tablets are better and more pleasant to take.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Wm. Staman Home Burns

The fine farm home of William Staman, Sr., 3 miles northeast of St. Joe, caught fire about 10 o'clock Wednesday forenoon, and burned to the ground. The fire was too far underway before the fire company could reach the place, but they succeeded in saving the kitchen. The origin is unknown. Only a few years ago the barn at the same farm was burned.

Now for Spring, 1922!

We have prepared for the biggest business in our store's history, when many merchants were undecided about placing orders, we took advantage of the unsettled market conditions and the desire of many manufacturers to secure advance orders and we placed our orders for the spring merchandise at prices that proved to be at the lowest ebb—over $100,000 worth of spring merchandise has been received during the past month and this added to our already large stock of staple merchandise, brings to the men, young men and boys of this community the greatest line of high grade merchandise ever shown by this store and never equalled by any other store in Indiana.

Here are Some of the Things We Will Do

Sell the high school boys

All-Wool Two-Pant Suits at	$18.00
Men's Blue Serge Two-Pant Suits at	$25.00
Men's Fine Worsted Two-Pant Suits at	$32.00

Hart, Schaffner & Marx Suits
As Low as $30.00

Or $5 under the price of any store we know of.

at $50.00

We will give you your choice of hundreds of Hart Schaffner & Marx beautiful tailored all-wool suits for men and young men, in all the new fabrics and new models, many of them silk trimmed and silk lined. These same suits we have seen in other cities marked $60 and $65.

Regulars--Stouts--Stubs--Slims

We're Ready for a Big Spring Business
We're Ready to Serve You

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

"The Store That Does Things"
The Home of Hart Schaffner & Marx Clothes

FORT WAYNE

NEXT
SALE--FRIDAY and SATURDAY

The CENTRAL GROCERY will have a Special Sale next Friday and Saturday at Low Smashing Prices.
[illegible]

[illegible]	33c	[illegible]	35c
[illegible]	99c	[illegible]	$1.22
[illegible]	39c	[illegible]	68c
[illegible]	25c	[illegible]	$2.98
[illegible]	25c	[illegible]	$3.48

[illegible]

The CENTRAL GROCERY, - St. Joe, Ind.

MARCH

You cannot afford not to save

THE disposition to save is the sure mark of determination to succeed.

Whatever your business and whatever your present prospects may be you cannot afford not to save

One dollar opens an account here. Start saving today.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

The MAULE SEED BOOK FREE

This wonderful 176-page book gives [illegible] years experience [illegible] and farmers. Send a postal for it today.

WM. HENRY MAULE, Inc. 2131 Arch St. Phila., Pa.

SPENCERVILLE

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. B F. Markle, Friday, a son, Max LeRoy.

Mrs. Ella Lucas very pleasantly entertained the Home Missionary society at her home Thursday.

Milton Chaney had the misfortune to slip and fall at his home one morning recently and break a [illegible]

[illegible]

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Summers of Coburntown were, recently, dinner guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Baltz.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Baker attended the funeral of the former's father, Ami Baker, of Ft. Wayne, which was held at Leo, Saturday.

Mrs. Hazel Steward, who has been a patient at the Hope Methodist hospital at Fort Wayne, was brought home Thursday.

The C. C. club and guests, Mrs. Hazel Steward, Mrs. Fay Strubing and Mrs. Audrea Wade were very pleasantly entertained Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jennie Walters. A negro wedding was planned and carried out to the great delight of the ladies.

Miss Cozy Oberholtzer of Springfield Center came Sunday to assist in the care of her aunt, Mrs. B. F. Markle.

Perry Miller, wife and baby of near Huntertown, were on Monday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Baltz.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Baltz were last Sunday guests at the home of Jacob Baltz and wife.

Mrs. Alice Zimmerman was a last Sunday guest, also Mrs. Harvey Kimes, at the home of B. F. Markle and family.

MICKIE SAYS

WITH YER KIND PERMISSION, I WILL NOW RECITE SHAKESPEARE'S [illegible]

High School Notes

Freshmen

It seems that the Freshmen cannot all be present on the same day. This keeps our attendance average very low. Let us try to remedy this condition by being present if we possibly can.

Our Latin class Tuesday was entirely devoted to a review of vocabularies.

The Domestic Science girls are making window decorations for Mr. Kinsey's store, in the form of artificial roses. —H. M.

Sophomores

The Geometry class, having completed Book I, is now starting upon Book II, which we are sure will be very interesting.

Hawthorne's "Twice Told Tales" will be our next English classic. If the little we have heard of it hold true we are sure we shall enjoy it.

The Sophomores are sorry to have taken up the examples set by the other classes in losing two of our members, Homer Woodcox and Fred Gee.

The Latin students are putting the finishing touches on the posters, which they are making. We have found this work to be quite novel and interesting. —A. T.

Junior

Delvin Armstrong has returned to school after a week's absence as the result of sickness.

Book Reviews seem to have the biggest rush they have had all year, during the last few weeks.

We find the "Tale of Two Cities" more interesting with each chapter we read.

Cleota More is absent this week because of illness.

Senior

A Senior class meeting was held Monday afternoon for the purpose of settling the various problems concerning the class play and commencement.

Senior play practice is progressing nicely. —C. W.

Chance For Improvement

Well, Jim, did you get through that hole all right this morning? No, you say you got in and then waited your turn to be pulled out. What a shame. A quarter of a mile of much traveled road in worse shape than any by-road in DeKalb county. What's the reason? Isn't there a source of compensating a means of improving this quarter of a mile from Hollobaugh's corners to the east end of the stone road leading out into Jackson township? There should be. It isn't only this spring that this section of highway has been impassible, or nearly so, but it is every year. But why let it go longer?

Last Friday there were six vehicles stalled there at one time.

Spencer township owns this stretch of road, but refuses to improve on the alibi that the road is not used enough by its taxpayers to justify such use of its funds. That is not basic. There is a goodly number of those people who do travel that road, maybe not when it is in the condition it is now, but when the roads dry off somewhat.

But on the other hand if it is Concord township citizens who wish to demand this road improved, why do they not do their part to get some good results?

It may be true that this road will not get in as bad a shape again until next year, but it is the writer's anticipation that the same difficulties will come up next spring. Here's hoping that it does not. Someone better get busy.

KOONTZ

Irvin Baltzer Koontz, son of Baltzer and Susanna Koontz, was born in Stark County, Ohio, on June 13th, 1831, and departed this life on March 12, 1922; having reached the ripe age of 90 years, 8 months and 29 days. He was the seventh of a family of fourteen children. In 1863 he enlisted in the Army. He belonged to Co. C First Batallion Cavalry of Nevada Volunteers, and he served his country in this capacity until the end of the Civil war when he was [illegible] discharged.

After the [illegible] he came to [illegible] where he [illegible] Emily Hale [illegible] one brother Dr. S. Koontz of Roanoke, Ind., besides other relatives and many friends.

[illegible]

Funeral services were held from the M. E. church on Tuesday afternoon at [illegible], with Rev. A. F. Uphoff [illegible]. Interment was made at [illegible] cemetery with Roscoe [illegible]

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to take this means of thanking our friends and neighbors for [illegible]

BANK STATEMENT.

Emilius Case, President; Wm. Curie Vice President; F. R. Bowman, Casheir; Elgin Curie, Assistant Cashier. Report of the condition of the St. Joe Valley Bank, a State bank, at St. Joe, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on Mar. 10, 1922.

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	$131,004 60
Overdrafts	148 80
U. S. Bonds	1,971 45
Other Bonds and Securities	9,000 00
Banking House	5,281 00
Furniture and Fixtures	4,220 90
Due from Banks and Trust Companies	10,778 25
Cash on Hand	3,952 8
Cash Items	156 00
Current Expenses	516 29
Interest Paid	690 84
Total Resources	$167,721 01
LIABILITIES
Capital Stock, paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus	4,542 00
Undivided Profits	146 27
Exchange, discounts and Interest	2,414 75
Demand Deposits	43,769 94
Demand Certificates	84,848 05
Bills Payable	7,000 00
Total Liabilities	$167,721 01

State of Indiana,
County of DeKalb, ss:

I, Frank R. Bowman, cashier of the St. Joe Valley Bank, a state bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

FRANK R. BOWMAN, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, this 14th day of Mar., 1922.

[L.S.] S. S. WIDNEY, N. P.

My commission expires Jan. 7, 1923.

BANK STATEMENT.

F. E. Rhodes, President; L. B. Fisher, Vice-president; C. G. Rectenwall, Cashier. Report of the condition of the Farmers & Merchants State Bank, a State ban at Spencerville, in the State of Indiana, at the close of its business on Mar. 10, 1922.

RESOURCES
Loans and Discounts	168,359 36
Overdrafts	164 72
U. S. Bonds	585 31
Banking House	3,668 39
Furniture and fixtures	3,126 18
Due from Banks and Trust companies	15 546 71
Cash on Hand	3,414 05
Current Expenses	894 24
Interest Paid	1403 38
Total Resources	197,162 34
LIABILTIES
Capital Stock, paid in	$25,000 00
Surplus	5,050 00
Undivided Profits	4,922 46
Exchange, discounts and interest	2013 80
Demand deposits	39,504 41
Demand certificates	100,671 67
Bills Payable	20,000 00
Total Liabilities	197,162 34

State of Indiana,
County of DeKalb, ss:

I, C. G. Rectenwall, cashier of the Farmer & Merchant State Bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true.

C. G. RECTENWALL, Cash.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 14th day of Mar., 1922.

[L S.] F, W. Silberg, N. P.

My com. expires Jan. 11, 1923.

Ford Size BATTERIES

It is always advisable to keep your BATTERIES in the best of repair.

Exchange your old one for a new one. We give you a new wood case set for your old one and $16.00

An all Rubber case set for your old one and $20.00.

These Batteries are guaranteed.
Repair Work Properly Done.

F. W. SILBERG,
Spencerville, - Indiana

Notice of Administration

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned has been appointed by the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, Administrator of the Estate of Lina Rummell, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

WILLIAM G. ERICK,
Administrator.

Mar. 7, 1922.

Atkinson, Endicott, Husselman,
Attorneys.

Announcements for Candidacy.

It is announced that Cyrus E. Gallatin, a B. & O. engineer living in Garrett, will be a candidate for the democratic nomination for congress, from the twelfth district, at the primary in May.

Mr. Gallatin has always been active in politics and has made speaking tours during campaigns. He is well known, particularly among the union men throughout the state.

R. Earl Peters of Fort Wayne is also a candidate for nomination.

Capt. Walter D. Stump of Auburn on Wednesday became the candidate of the democrats of DeKalb and Steuben counties for judge of the 35th judicial circuit.

Francis M. Wiltrout of Corunna is a candidate for the democratic nomination for caunty assessor.

J. Y. W. McClellan of Auburn is a candidate for the democratic nomination for county assessor.

Geo. J. Kayser of Auburn candidate for the democratic nomination for county recorder.

Clark Campbell announces his candidacy for the republican nomination of county recorder, subject to the primaries, May 2nd.

Garrett has a candidate in the race for the democratic nomination for sheriff in the person of Grover C. [illegible]

Wm. P. Endicott,

For Judge 35th Judicial District

DeKalb and Steuben Counties, Republican Ticket. Subject to Primaries, May 2nd.

Born in Cass county, Indiana, 41 years ago.

Raised on a farm.

Taught ten years in Indiana public schools.

Received law education at Indiana University, paying his own way.

Has actively practiced law in DeKalb and Steuben counties for 12 years, a longer period than many judges have practiced before occupying such positions.

Makes no claim and no boast of greatness, but refers you to those who know him as to his integrity and ability.

Your support will be appreciated.

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor, subject to your will at the May primaries. L. W. Yeiser.

OUR PRINTING on HAMMERMILL BOND Will Save You Money

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible]

Fort Wayne, Ind.

MARCH

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

MARCUS MACKENZIE.

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of their neighborhood. Polly alone knows their secret. Oscar is a thoroughgoing villain. He is tired of his wife and has his eye on the pretty squatter girl, with her radiant eyes and her tumbling curls. And of course Polly would fight like a wildcat if Oscar so much as laid hands on her.

CHAPTER I—Continued.

—2—

One day Polly had found her sick in bed, and, as she had led the forlorn billy goat home, so did she bring Granny Hope, never realizing that in the tottering old figure she was entertaining an angel unawares. All she knew was that Granny's toothless smile, her cheerful words of love and kindliness, made the sun shine brighter and the meager food more filling.

During the winter, Mrs. Hope had encouraged the girl to read. At first that had been difficult, for the shanty contained nothing but the tattered Bible the old woman had brought with her. Over and over Polly had read the miseries of Job the patient, the long lamentations of Jeremiah, who always put her in mind of Daddy Hopkins; and she also knew by heart the story of the crucifixion of Jesus, who, so the Bible said, was the best man that had ever walked the globe.

So had those winter days of close companionship with the woman who had lived long and suffered much, and who now was almost ready to on to larger experiences, brought out in Polly Hopkins a greater capacity for loving. The squatters called her "Pollyop, the love-lass," and sometimes, "Polly of the sun." Granny Hope explained this by saying: "They all love you, Poll, an' it's out of your own heart they get the feelin' of joy when they see ye."

From behind the wood-box near where the goat stood, Pollyop took up an ax. Tenderly she bent and placed a kiss upon the goat's horny head. Then she touched Granny Hope.

The woman lifted her lids and smiled at the girl.

"What's the matter, love-lass?" she murmured.

"I'm goin' out, Granny," replied Polly. "If Daddy comes, tell 'im I'll be back in a while."

Into the rain she went, her bare feet carrying her swiftly over the ragged rocks, her curls gathered under her chin like a warm glistening hood. When later she appeared in front of the shanty, her gingham skirt was filled with rusty pans and old pieces of tin. She placed them on the doorstep, and looking hesitatingly at the willow tree, went back into the house.

From a peg Polly took a pair of her father's trousers and clambered into them, tucking her skirts out of sight and rolling up the trouser legs, for Daddy Hopkins was much taller than his daughter. Into one of the big pockets Polly thrust a handful of nails. It was a grotesque looking girl who a few minutes later was flattening out the pans and the old bits of tin upon the stone.

When that was finished, she gathered them up and, ax in hand, climbed into the willow tree and onto the roof. Daddy Hopkins would be glad when he came home and found the shack dry and warm. Then she began her task of hammering the pieces of tin over the holes through which the water dripped. Once in a while she stopped working, and, flat on her stomach, sought for smaller cracks.

Just as she had mended the last hole, she heard the sound of horses' hoofs and men's voices. With the [illegible] of the persecuted, she crouched close to the roof, and like some [illegible] animal, crawled to the edge of it. Squatters did not speak [illegible] nor did they ride [illegible]. [illegible] frown faded from Pollyop's brow as she gazed wonderingly upon him. She marked his flashing glances that swept the Silent City. She noted with a strange little thrill the beauty of the clearcut features, the full, kindly mouth and the smooth, tanned skin.

Marcus MacKenzie was speaking rapidly, and though Polly could not hear what he said, she knew he was talking of the squatters. Then words that made her tingle with joy came distinctly to her ears.

"But you can't turn a lot of folks out of their homes, Marc," rang forth a deep, rich voice. "Where under the heaven would they go if you did?"

"Anywhere they d—n please," snarled MacKenzie contemptuously. "If they were all dead, they'd be better off, and Ithaca too."

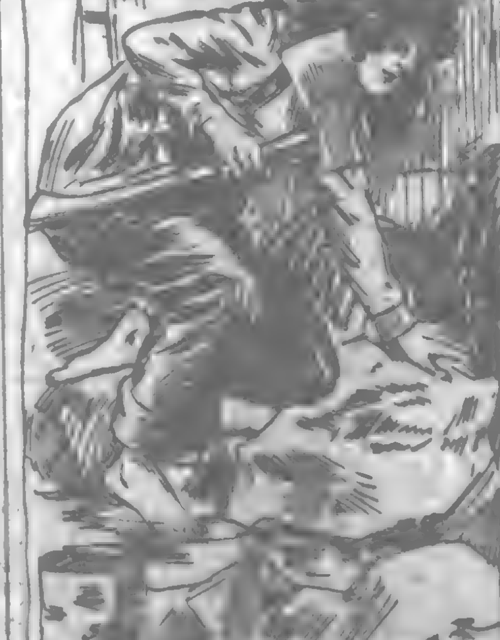
Polly's hand tightened on the ax-handle. To let it fly straight into the face of the haughty Ithacan would have been satisfaction indeed!

"Have you tried to buy them out?" asked the other.

"No, and I don't intend to," was the sharp retort. "They'll go because I'll make them go, that's all. I've been too busy for the last two years to make much of a dent among them, but now I'm home for good, I mean to clear them off." An outward gesture of the officer's hand told Polly he was not in sympathy with MacKenzie's threat. "You can't judge of the situation, Bob," Marcus went on, "because you've been gone for years. Evelyn can tell you what they are, though."

The speaker wheeled his horse and pointed his riding whip straight at the Hopkins' shanty; and Polly's curly head drew quickly back.

"One of the worst of them lives there!" she heard plainly. "He's sort of a mayor of the settlement. Jeremiah Hopkins! And such a tribe as that hut holds can't be found anywhere else in this county. A worthless, tangle-haired girl and a boy half in the grave, and I heard only this morning they're harboring a hag by the name of Hope. They live like pigs, too."



It Was a Grotesque Looking Girl Who a Few Minutes Later Was Flattening Out the Pane and the Old Bits of Tin Upon the Stone.

"The poor things haven't much of a chance to live otherwise, have they, Marc?" The question evidently required no answer. "Well, what do you think of that?" he went on. Then he read aloud: "'If your heart is loving and kind, come right in. If it ain't, scoot off.' Why, that's beautiful!"

The warm, velvety brown the rich man's threats had made a hard glare was brought back to Polly's eyes by these words. She could have hugged [illegible] as hard as she [illegible]

[illegible]

"They're pigs, Bob, I tell you," he repeated roughly, "and what I brought you down here today for—"

Polly lost the rest of his sentence. Back and yet farther back she slipped over the roof. She had never heard anything so dreadful as this. In fact, she had always quite liked pigs, but she had never thought of comparing the shanty or Granny Hope and Daddy Hopkins to a barnyard and its occupants.

She heard the men ride away; and once more she sat up. By raising her body a little, she could see them walking their horses along the road that led its crooked way through the settlement.

MacKenzie's straight, thick-set figure made her shudder, but the slim, boyish one beside him brought a queer little thrill to her heart.

"He's a beautiful angel himself," she murmured, and taking up the ax, she slipped down the tree and dropped to the wet ground. Granny Hope straightened up as Polly entered the kitchen. Swiftly the girl crawled out of her father's trousers and tossed back her curls.

"What's the matter, pretty brat?" queried the woman drowsily.

"I got to find Daddy," replied Polly, her voice shaking. "Old Marc's back an' he's after us squatters a-flyin', an', Granny—"

She paused, her face softened, and she smiled.

"Yep, honey?" prompted Mrs. Hope.

"Old Marc had a beautiful angel with him," went on the girl, "an' he likes us squatters. He stood right up to that rotten MacKenzie. I heard him, I did." She crossed to the old woman's side. "Love's able to send a angel slapbang down to this old earth to help us, huh, Granny Hope?"

"Yep, sure—sure, honey-girl," murmured Granny, and once more her head bobbed forward, and she slept.

Polly Hopkins crept out of the hut and sped away along the shore toward Bad Man's ravine.

CHAPTER II.

About the time Polly Hopkins began to repair the shack roof, Evelyn Robertson came into the room where her mother sat reading. The girl was dressed to go out and was drawing a pair of gloves over her ringed fingers.

"Where are you going, Eve?" inquired the lady. "It seems to me that you're running out altogether too much. There's your piano! You haven't practiced in months. Now don't blame me, Eve, if, when Marcus asks you to play, you fall flat."

A dull red ran into the girl's cheeks, but she made no reply as she smoothed the wrinkles from her gloves.

"The good Lord knows," continued the mother irritably, "that I've kept at you enough. Now Marc and Robert are home, how are you going to entertain them? Men demand so much."

The experiences of the past two years had taught Evelyn that lesson. It had been demand, demand and more demanding ever since, on girlish impulse, she had secretly married Oscar Bennett.

"And you heard what Marcus said last night about the Silent City folks," went on Mrs. Robertson. "What you want of that Hopkins girl I don't understand. Marcus says her father is the most dangerous man among the lot of them, and the girl herself is queer."

"Oh, don't talk about the squatters all the time," cried Evelyn. "I hate the very sound of the word. What's Polly Hopkins, anyway? . . . Now Marcus is home—"

"Darling," the mother interrupted eagerly, "it has always been my hope that you and Marc would grow to care for each other. He is so rich and so handsome! Now, isn't he?"

A gasp almost [illegible] from Evelyn's lips. [illegible] lyn's fingers, and she stooped to pick it up.

"If I lead Marcus on," she suggested, rising, "and—and get him to ask me to marry him, will you give me any sum of money I want?"

Her voice shook with emotion, and her young face seemed suddenly old and haggard. Mrs. Robertson had never seen her daughter in such a state.

"Sit down a minute, Evelyn," she commanded. "Now tell me what you want money for. I know very well that you haven't spent what I've allowed you upon yourself. That's why I've refused you so much lately. No more secrets or mystery! I want the facts. Now tell me this minute."

The girl dropped into a chair and buried her face in her hands.

"I can't," she whispered.

For some time she remained in the same attitude, while her mother studied her silently. At length the girl lifted herself erect.

"I can't explain," she broke out, "and I suppose you're thinking all kinds of things. I can't help it if you do. You'll have to give me the money I need, if you want me to marry Marc. There's no 'ifs' and 'ands' about that. If you'll give me the money"—she faltered, wiped her lips and concluded slowly, "I'll marry Marcus MacKenzie."

"You must be crazy, Eve," Mrs. Robertson said in a cold voice, "to talk to me like that. If you have any secrets from me, it's time you told them."

"Well?" shot from Evelyn sharply, "suppose I have? It's my secret, isn't it? Are you going to help me or not, that's the question."

It was evident to Mrs. Robertson that the situation was not to be trifled with. In a twinkling her daughter had changed from a meek and timid girl to an aggressive woman. To try to bully her any more would be a mere waste of effort.

"Heavens," she began, "this is a pretty how to do, I must say. I can't imagine why you should want money. It doesn't make much difference, anyway. There are more reasons than one why you can't get it from me."

"What are they?" fell from the girl's lips.

"The first is," returned the mother, tartly, "I don't like being held up in this high-handed manner by my own daughter."

She paused; and Evelyn caught her breath. If that were all, she would row and rage until she got what she wanted.

Mother and daughter were staring at one another, each demanding an explanation. Evelyn did not intend to make any! Mrs. Robertson weakened before the steely-blue in the girl's eyes.

"But the main reason is," she went on, "I haven't got it. I don't own this house, nor—nor—"

Evelyn sprang to her feet and confronted her mother. Her face was drawn into cruel lines, and her hands were gripped spasmodically.

"You lie," she burst forth. "You've always lied to me about money."

A bitter smile drew down the corners of the older woman's mouth. She knew how true the accusation was.

"Well, this time," she answered, "I'm telling you the simple truth. I not only do not own this house, but—"

"Then who does own it?" interjected the girl.

"Your cousin, Robert Percival," was the quick response; "and he's supplied all the money we have used. Now perhaps you won't try to get something out of me I haven't got."

"Mother!" cried the girl, in agony.

"I told you, Eve, that you should know the truth," Mrs. Robertson continued. "You've asked for it, and here it is. When Robert's father and mother died, I came here to take care of him. I had nothing then and have nothing now. You were only a baby, and I've always kept the facts from you. When Robert went to war, he arranged that if he didn't come back, I should have the home and enough money to keep us."

Evelyn's eyes widened. Of a surety this was the truth.

"Then we aren't rich?" she demanded [illegible].

"No, [illegible] we're not!" responded the lady, "and what's more, we are dependent upon Robert for everything."

With a quick gesture Evelyn [illegible] her mother's arm, despair changing the lines on her face.

"Oh, you [illegible] be so theatrical, my dear," said the woman. "Robert's [illegible] the slightest reason to [illegible] a burden. I'm quite [illegible] as I should be. The [illegible] is that you should [illegible] before Bob [illegible] to get married. I [illegible] turned down [illegible]. Now [illegible] Marc MacKenzie [illegible]—"

[illegible]

Make Every Meal A Perfect Feast

Tanlac Makes Each Bite a New Delight

WHEN your digestive system is working efficiently and smoothly, extracting from your food abundant stores of vital energy and piling up a reserve force of vigor to meet any emergency, every bite is eaten with keen zest and appreciation.

If your meals are not a real event, if you do not approach the table with the most lively anticipation of its delights, then you are only half-living, because you are only half getting the value of your food.

Lack of appetite, or distress from indulging the appetite, are both due to the same cause—failure of the digestive system to properly do its important work. The undigested food remaining in the alimentary canal may merely cause a distaste for more food when it cannot take care of what it has, or it may undergo chemical and putrification changes that cause acute disease.

Besides, these chemical changes produce poisonous substances that are carried to every cell and organ of the body and that cause all sorts of distressing symptoms.

Tanlac, the famous digestive tonic and body builder, has achieved its wide success because it is able to invigorate the entire digestive tract.

It acts to cause vigorous stomach preparation of the food, both through the muscular churning action of that organ and through ample secretion of digestive fluids. It then promotes energetic action of all the bowel muscles and glands and enables the food to pass through the digestive canal in the normal time. Each of the thousands of little glands whose duty it is to pick up nourishment from the food and send this to all parts of the body are stimulated to their utmost. The whole result is that food is taken care of without distress of any sort in such manner as to derive the utmost benefit from it.

If your appetite is not keen, if your food seems to disagree with you, if you are underweight, nervous, irritable and lack energy, give Tanlac the chance to show you that it can work a miracle in your condition as it has in so many thousands of other cases.

If you are despondent, gloomy, with little taste for and enjoyment of life, try Tanlac and no doubt you will see the clouds of gloom roll away under the sunshine of health.

You are entitled to be healthy, vigorous, efficient and happy. Give yourself the chance to become so as thousands of others have, by taking Tanlac.

Get Tanlac from your druggist this very day. Why wait for tomorrow when Tanlac—and health—await you today?

Keep the Children Well!

During these days many children are complaining of headache, feverishness, stomach troubles, and irregular bowels. If mothers only knew what

MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS for CHILDREN

Will do for children no family would ever be without them. These powders are so easy and pleasant to take and so effective in their action that for over 30 years mothers have used them and told others about them. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

Do Not Accept Any Substitute for MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS.

MOTHER GRAY'S

The art of living consists in not being a dead one.

The housewife smiles with satisfaction as she looks at the basket of clear, white clothes and thanks Red Cross Ball Blue. At all grocers.—Advertisement.

It is an easy matter for some real estate dealers to make mountains of molehills.

She Got the Name.

"Mary," said the mistress, "did you ask everyone for cards today, as I told you, when they called?"

"Yes'm. One fellah, he wouldn't give me no card, but I swiped his hat an' shoved him off th' steps. Here's his name on th' sweat band."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Some folks just can't foot a bill without kicking.

Genuine

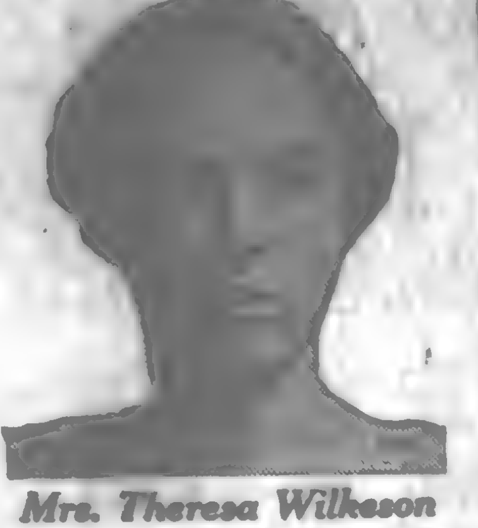
ASPIRIN

[illegible] Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on [illegible], you are not getting genuine Aspirin [illegible]

[illegible]

MARCH



Mrs. Theresa Wilkeson

South Bend, Ind.—"For some time I suffered from an organic trouble, with pains in my side, backache, and bearing pains. Through this I became so nervous and weak that I could not do anything. I was a miserable wreck, got so thin I only weighed ninety pounds. No medicine seemed to give me relief until I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. After I had taken a few doses of this medicine I knew I had at last found something that was going to help me, I felt so much better. I now weigh 140 pounds, and do not have an ache or a pain, and am completely rid of all my ailments. Can do all my work and am stronger and healthier than for a long time. Favorite Prescription has made a new woman of me."—Mrs. Theresa Wilkeson, 622 No. Walnut St.

All druggists sell "Favorite Prescription" in tablets or liquid.

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN
PLUG TOBACCO
Known as
"that good kind"
Try it—and you will know why

16799
DIED

in New York City alone from kidney trouble last year. Don't allow yourself to become a victim by neglecting pains and aches. Guard against this trouble by taking

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles. Holland's National Remedy since 1696. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

A COLD TODAY—DON'T DELAY

CASCARA QUININE

Cures Colds in 24 Hours
La Grippe in 3 Days
W. H. HILL CO., DETROIT.
SAFE SURE DEPENDABLE

SALESMEN Wanted To Sell
Our West Virginia Grown
Nursery Stock. Fine canvassing outfit FREE. Cash Commission Paid Weekly. WRITE for terms.
THE GOLD NURSERY CO.
Mason City, W. Va.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
[illegible]

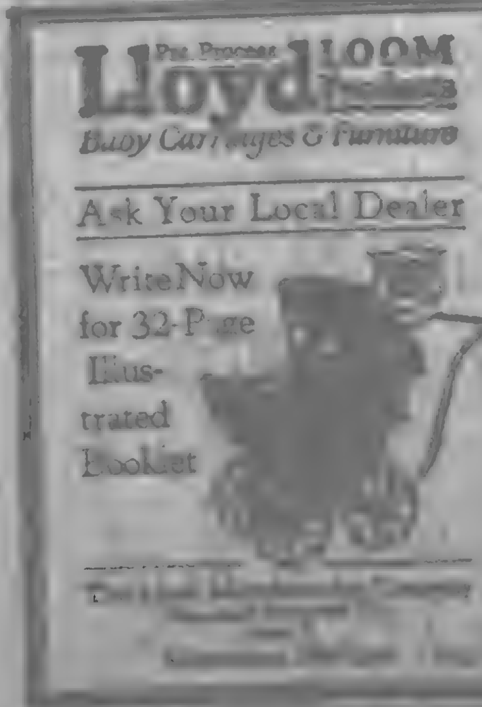
HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc. [illegible] Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 11—1922.

Much More.

"Old Mr. Gradit holds his own, does he?" "Yes, and as much of anybody else's as he can get."

It is never too late to mend, marry or get a divorce.



Pre Process LLOYD LOOM Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture
Ask Your Local Dealer
Write Now for 32-Page Illustrated Booklet
The Lloyd Manufacturing Company
[illegible]
Menominee, Michigan

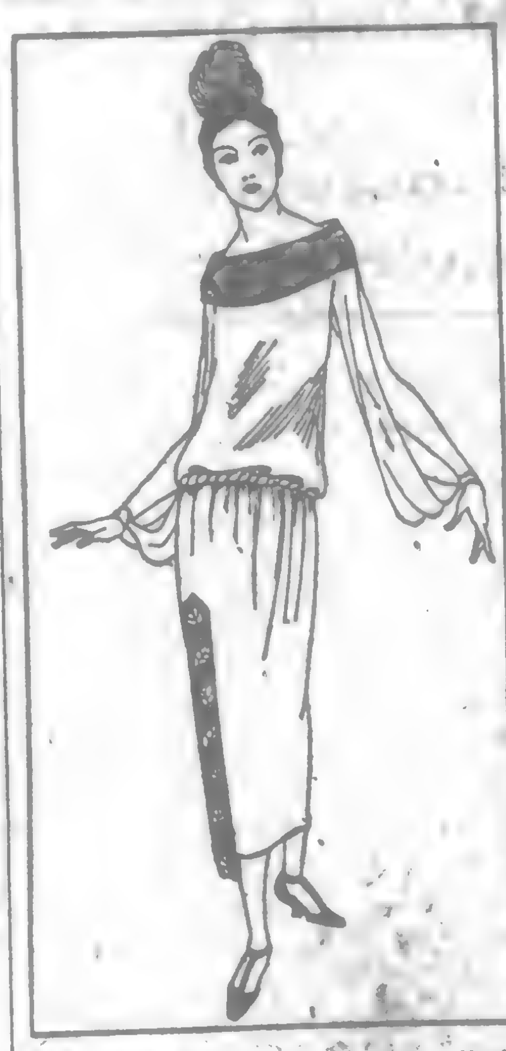
Garfield Tea
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible]

Suit and Dress Modes of Today

Quite fascinating are the latest showings at the dress shops. Everything, notes a fashion writer in the New York Times, is new and fresh and charged with vibrations of a promised springtime. And, in spite of the usual line, which is always confronting us where fashions are concerned, about there being no change to speak of, still there is every subtle difference to the lines of the silhouette and the character of all-important details.

The immediate concern of every woman is—what will be the first spring dresses and suits? What will the colors be? What materials are most fashionable and most wearable all in one combination? At how many inches from the floor will the skirts stop their downward trend? Will sleeves be much the same or changed in any way? And myriads more of questions along this general line.



Unusual Frock of Poiret Twill Trimmed With Bands of Brocaded Ribbon in Bright Colors.

The only thing to do, for one who attempts to give adequate answers to these questions, is to watch each new creation and its effect upon the public. So that just now there are a few fine points which have been registered with that force which indicates that they will be prominent. Further than that we cannot go just now.

There is a general feeling that the suit has gone out, or that it is not so much in fashionable favor as was the case sometimes in the past. That may or may not be so, but nevertheless there are any number of new and lovely-looking suits upon the market. Most of them (with the exception of the sport suits) are characterized by the fact that, instead of being made with skirt and blouse and coat, they are made with a dress in one piece and a coat to go with it.

Blouse Harmonizes With Skirt.

Sometimes there is a clever amalgamation of these two ideas, and the blouse is made to harmonize so perfectly with the skirt that the two together look, for all the world, like a one-piece frock. This latter combination has one big advantage over the old-fashioned idea of shirtwaist and skirt in that, when the waist wears out, there can be another one. And, since this is the portion of the dress which always shows the first signs of wear, there is more in the idea than might be at first visible.

But there are so many pitfalls in the direction of combining blouse and skirt that if one attempts that character of dressing one must be more than usually clever in constructing or choosing the design and in the manner in which one amalgamates the two. Not any blouse will do with any skirt, but the two of them have to be thought out together and arranged so that, when worn in unison, they will look as though they belonged together.

An interesting blouse shows a peculiar type of waist which does well when combined with a separate skirt and worn with a coat to match. In spite of the fact that the blouse is a [illegible] with a sort of [illegible] in a [illegible] is made of [illegible] with [illegible] of [illegible] It [illegible] a [illegible] on a [illegible]

[illegible] Costume.

[illegible] with a full [illegible]

spring suit, or any suit for that matter, a great deal of wear, this manner of combining waist and skirt is a veritable boon, for it just about doubles the life of her costume and, when there is so much expense involved, that consideration becomes an important item.

The girdle for this blouse is made of a soft crepe in a shade of brown, midway between the yellow of the blouse and the brown of the skirt. Then it has a long fringe of all of the varicolored threads used in the embroidery on the trimming of the blouse, which also serves to tie the two separate parts of the costume into one single unit.

This type of blouse for the costume suit is far more beautiful and fashionable than the old and accepted variety of white shirtwaist. In fact, the latter seems to have disappeared entirely off the face of the earth, except in its tailored state for sport suits and as a handmade French thing to go with the regulation tailored suit.

A suit is the thing which, in the spring, makes a woman look so well groomed and compact in style and so ready for any outdoor or street occasion. Women are loath to let it go as a type of dressing and, even though its character has been somewhat changed and twisted around, it is still the suit that has meant so much to the general well-dressed appearance of the American woman.

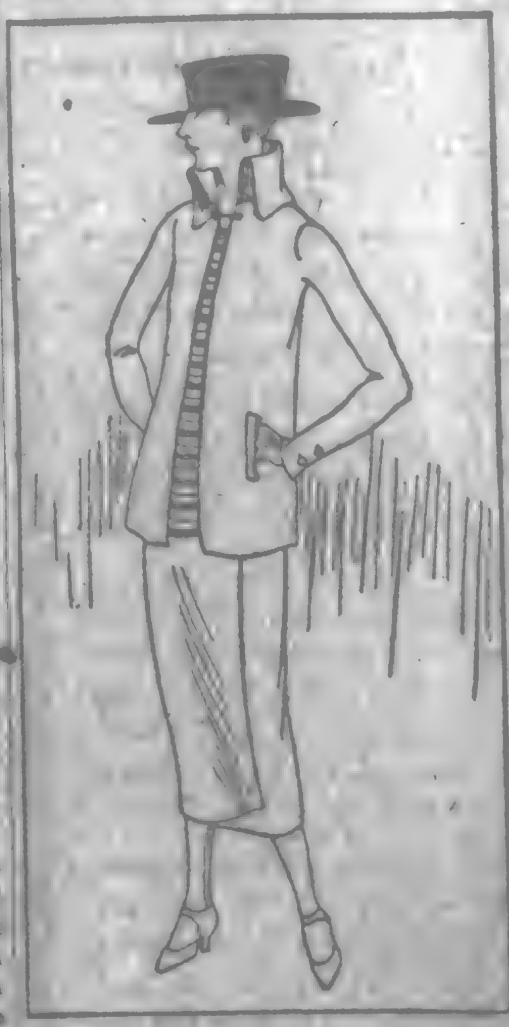
There is a new type of suit, with the very much abbreviated jacket, and a little vest that adds a touch of color in a new and original way. It is a relief to see suits getting away from that collar and cuff trimming which, after all, is so obvious. And this little waistcoat creates a freshness of feeling which will be a relief to many women who long to wear this sort of suit and still insist upon having their clothes in the fore ranks of fashion.

Loosest Sort of Homespun Weave.

Wool etamine is the material used for this suit. It is the loosest sort of homespun weave, and it also has about it a wiriness of character that makes it take very interesting lines, when developed either in the little spring suit or in a coat dress meant to be worn on the street. It is a fabric which is a little more dressy than the woolen homespun which is going into the sport suits, and yet its weave is so much like that of homespun that it keeps the fabric in the class of popularly accepted materials.

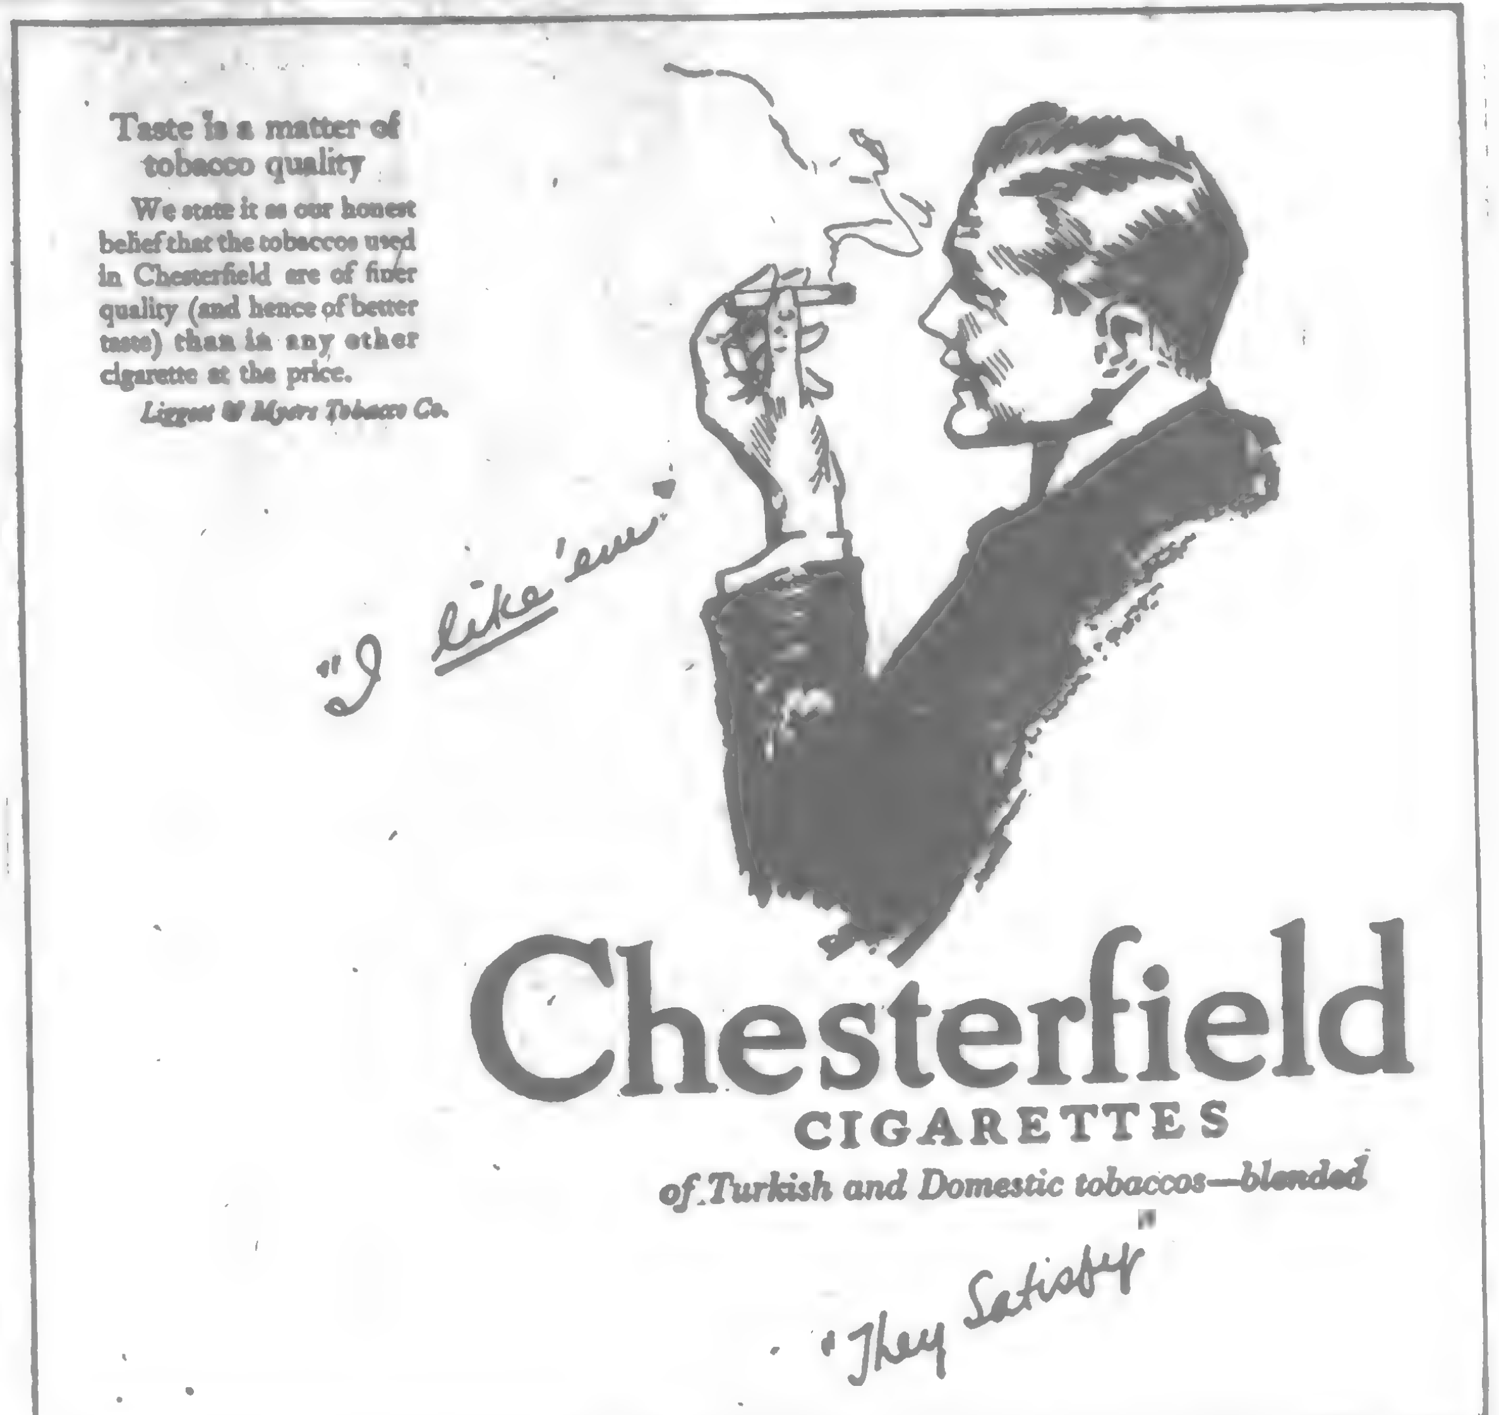
Following the craze for the long waistline that is bloused, many of the spring suits, especially those that are sent from Paris, show that long, bloused, Russian line with a very short, flaring peplum and a high, standing collar. It is an informal sort of suit, but one that is extremely youthful in its appearance and which, for that reason, is bound to exert a strong influence upon spring styles. With it the high, close-fitting Russian turban is the thing, and the whole makes an interesting silhouette which is new in every way.

Black has been so predominant among the winter street fashions, and we have become so accustomed to seeing it used in combination with gray



Wool Etamine in Cool Gray With the New Short Coat and a Waistcoat of Striped Silk.

and cream [illegible]



Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Chesterfield
CIGARETTES
of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—blended

Any man who takes things as they come lacks push.

The Cuticura Toilet Trio.

Having cleared your skin keep it clear by making Cuticura your every-day toilet preparations. The Soap to cleanse and purify, the Ointment to soothe and heal, the Talcum to powder and perfume. No toilet table is complete without them.—Advertisement.

Undertakers eventually overtake the rest of mankind.

Snowy linens are the pride of every housewife. Keep them in that condition by using Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry. At all grocers.—Advertisement.

TOO MUCH FOR GRANDMOTHER

Mathematical Problem, Old Lady Decided, Was Something That "No Fellow Could Understand."

The little girl at the elementary school had been promoted to multiplication and for her home work was set the task of finding out how many legs 400 normal horses possess. A bit puzzled as how to work it out, in the evening, as she sat with her exercise book in front of her, she called in the services of her grandmother.

"Let's see," said Grandma, adjusting her spectacles, "one horse'll have four legs, two eight, three twelve, four sixteen, five twenty—" and then she broke off. "How many horses did you say?" she asked.

"Four hundred, granny," replied the little girl.

"Ee-e, child," said the old lady, shutting up the book, "there isn't one living could do that sum."—Edinburgh Scotsman.

Family Abundantly Blessed.

Mr. and Mrs. Noyes, already parents of five children, were the proud parents of triplet boy babies two weeks ago. They live in Victoria, N. S. The indications point to lots of Noyes in that home.

See Placard.

"This garage man is something of a wag." "How so?" "I see he advertises air at cost."

Giving a Guess.

"Pa, what is this heel of Achilles?" "Something new in rubber, I s'pose."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

DYED HER DRAPERIES, SKIRT AND A SWEATER WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can dye or tint faded, shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, sweaters, stockings, hangings, draperies, everything like new. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed, even if you have never dyed before. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade, or run. So easy to use.—advertisement.

THOUGHT IT LOOKED STRANGE

Odd Appearance of Drug Store Astonished Woman Customer, Until the Clerk Explained Situation.

The woman needed three ounces of tincture of myrrh. Hurrying up the street her glance was caught by two mammoth bottles of apothecary waters, and two swinging doors of frosted glass.

Down she stepped—three steps down—into as attractive a drug store as she had seen. All was pure white walls, dazzling plateglass mirrors, gleaming soda water accessories and row upon row of shelves filled with bottles of ointments, camphors and medicinal remedies.

"Three ounces of tincture of myrrh," said the Woman to the clerk.

The clerk hurried out of sight and the Woman began to notice how queer was the structure of this drug store. There were columns and pilasters where there shouldn't have been any. The counter had a peculiar bend to it.

Then a strange, prickly feeling came over the Woman.

When the clerk finally appeared he explained cheerfully: "Used to be a barroom, lady!"—Chicago Journal.

The Courtship.

"Then she refused to smile upon you?"

"Yes, she gave me the laugh."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

From the fruit preservers we get our jams—and from the wet-goods dealer our jim-jams.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use for Over 30 Years.
Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

LESSER EVIL, AS IT WERE

Darky's Excellent Reason for Preferring to Take His Chances With the Bear.

A New York man tells of an exciting bear hunt in Mississippi. The bear was surrounded in a small cane thicket. The dogs could not get him out, and the gentleman who was at the head of the hunting party called to one of the darkies:

"Gus, go in there and get that bear out."

Gus hesitated for a moment and then plunged into the cane. A few moments later the negro, the bear and the dogs were rolling on the ground outside. After the hunt was over the man from the north said to the darky:

"Gus, weren't you afraid to go into that thicket with the bear?"

"Colonel," said Gus, "it was jest dis way: I neber had met dat b'ear, but I was pussunally acquainted with de old boss, so I jest nachurally took dat b'ar."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Truth of the Situation.

"I hear," said Margaret, "that Elsie finished her education abroad."

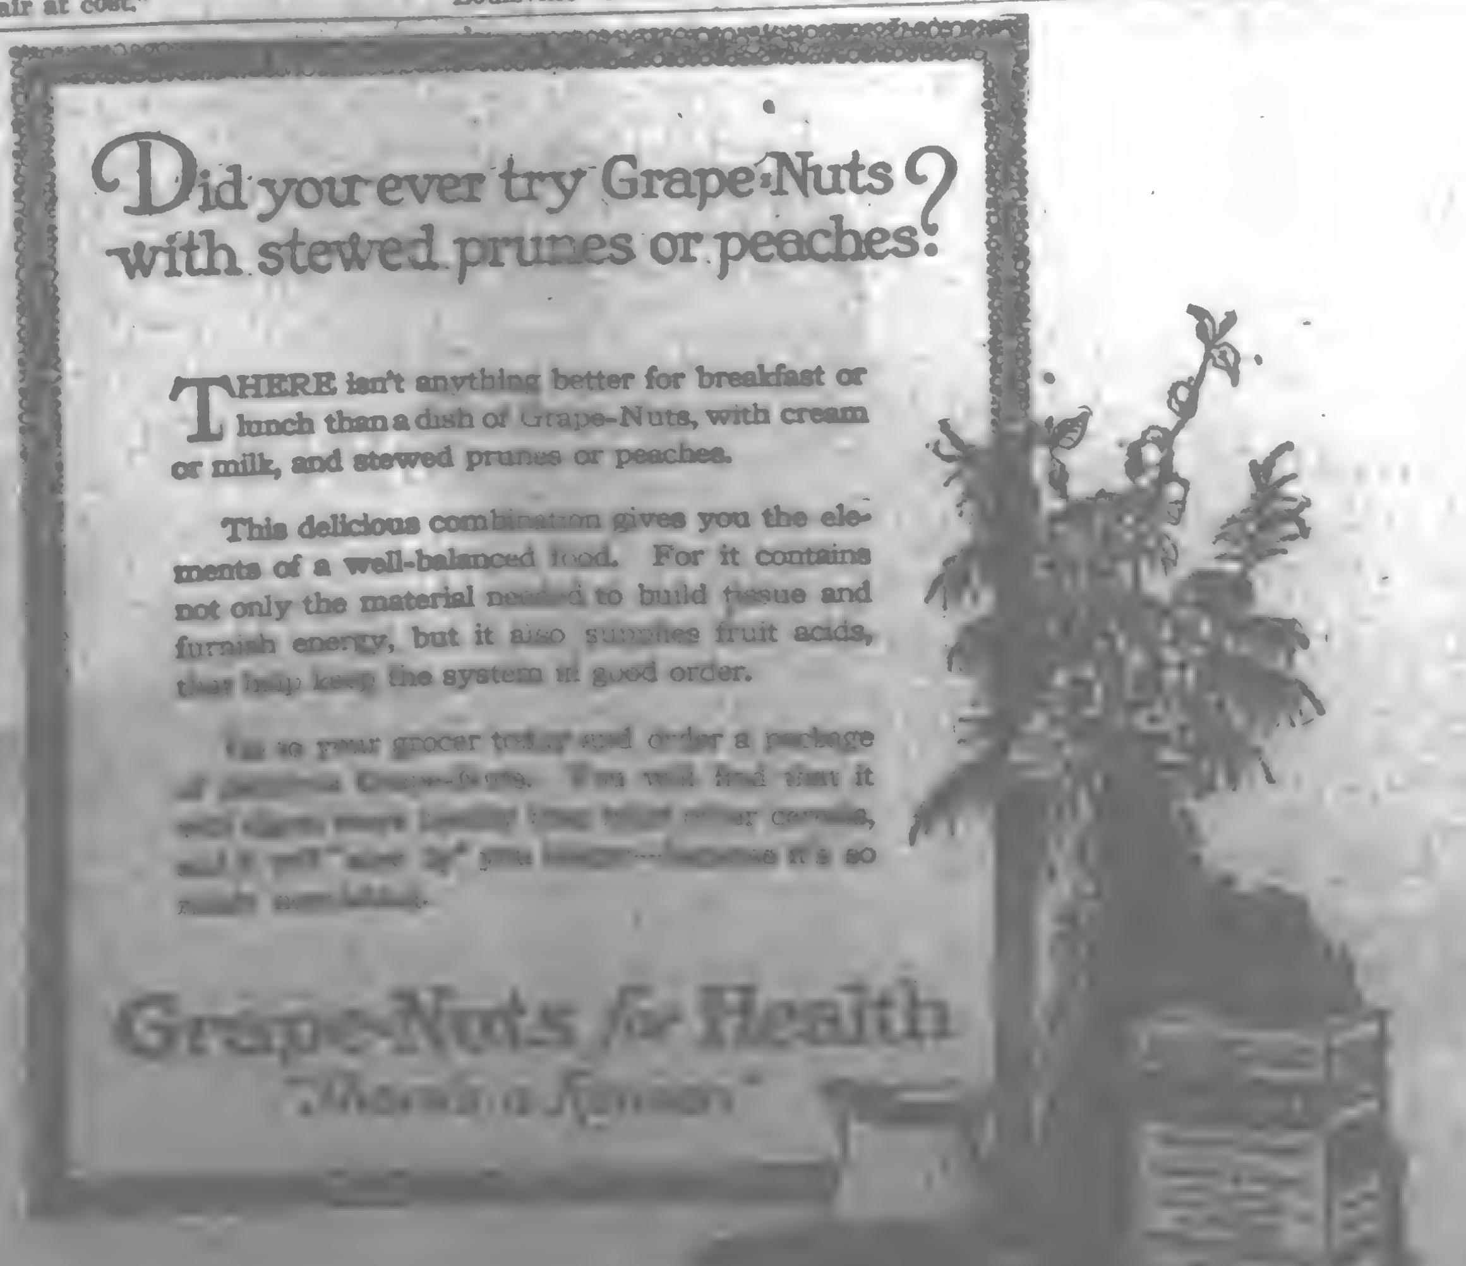
"No," corrected Susan, "she didn't finish it until she married Harry Hedges and had to live on $1,000 a year."

"How was that?"

"It was not until then that she learnt that money was needed to buy something else besides feminine finery, chocolates, theater tickets, phonograph records and taxi fares."

Not Diplomatic.

"Why did Miss Olden discharge her butler?" "He boasted around that he had grown gray in her service."



Did you ever try Grape-Nuts with stewed prunes or peaches?

THERE isn't anything better for breakfast or lunch than a dish of Grape-Nuts, with cream or milk, and stewed prunes or peaches.

This delicious combination gives you the elements of a well-balanced food. For it contains not only the material needed to build tissue and furnish energy, but it also supplies fruit acids, that help keep the system in good order.

[illegible]

Grape-Nuts for Health
"There's a Reason"

MARCH

WARNER'S MILLINERY OPENI'G

Tues. and Wed. March 21-2

A Wonderful assortment of the choicest selections of moderate priced TRIMMED HATS.

Hats are made of the newest All-Over Visca Braid, Moline Braid, and Polished Chif Combinations.

The color selection is extremely pleasing and includes all the Popular Shades for Spring Wear.

Musical Art

Conducting and Teaching a Specialty.

Arrangements can be made for beginners and advanced pupils at any time desired.

Call personally Mr. WILCOX, 2nd door west of Opera House, St. Joe, Ind.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

"COLD IN THE HEAD"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a "run down" condition.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts Quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds."

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

[illegible] [illegible]
INSURANCE PUBLIC

Local Briefs

[illegible]

Mrs. William Miller spent the week end with relatives at New Haven.

There were teams on the roads scraping Monday, none too soon.

Mrs. Carl Hatch spent Saturday with her mother, Mrs. Ada Berry.

Frank Scholes spent Friday at Auburn.

Byron Widney's have opened their sugar camp.

Mrs. Belle Ridgway spent Friday at Auburn with her daughter, Mrs. Abe Mason, and family.

Mrs. C. C. Woodcox spent from Wednesday until Saturday in the home of Ione Woodcox, northeast of town.

Mrs. Ruth Clark and daughter were over Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Herrick.

Mr. and Mrs. Wall Wasson have a new baby son, born Wednesday night. They reside northeast of town.

Mrs. Harry Waltz and son and Mrs. William Hamilton spent Saturday afternoon in the Byron Widney home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hollis Dilley, of Fort Wayne, spent over Sunday with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sechler.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Copp and daughter Vernell, of New Haven, spent over Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Monroe.

Miss Lenore Moore, accompanied Miss Mabel Schmalzreid home at North Manchester to spend Saturday and Sunday with her parents there.

Mrs. H. D. Hursh spent from Tuesday noon until Wednesday night in the home of Jesse Copp and family at New Haven.

Floyd Ridgway and mother, Mrs. Belle Ridgway, were Sunday dinner guests in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Durwood Ridgway.

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Ward, son Clifford and Mrs. Mural James, the latter of Ft. Wayne, were all day Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee.

Mrs. H. E. Randall and little son, Harry Jr., left Monday morning for her mother's, Mrs. Pence, at Santa Fe, Ohio.

Mrs. Mural James, of Fort Wayne, returned home Tuesday of this week, after spending several days, the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Grover Ward.

Mrs. Olive Frye and little daughter Virginia returned home Sunday night from a week's stay at Auburn, where she was helping care for her sister Mrs. Abe Mason, who was ill with threatened pneumonia.

Wm. Staman, Sr., received a telegram Sunday morning from [illegible] stating that their son-in-law, [illegible], was dying of blood poison.

Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Keesler and daughter [illegible] Sunday dinner guests of [illegible] Rev. R. B. Daily. [illegible]

[illegible]

Beautiful Hats at This MILLINERY OPENING
FROM
Griffith Bros., Indianapolis,
Asher, Chicago,
Reed, Cleveland.

Showing a complete line of Millinery — Pattern and Tailored Hats at

Mrs. Warner's

For Sale—Irish Cobler at $2.00 per bu. Will Hamilton.

Miss Doris Shull was a guest of Miss Portia Hadsell, Sunday.

When you need good foot upholstering, see our shoes at the Central Grocery.

Tomorrow is St. Patrick's Day, March 17th. Get out your green necktie.

Ed Leighty and J. J. Hart are sitting on the jury during the present term of court at Auburn.

WANTED:—Maple syrup on subscription. Call the News Office or bring it in any time.

Mr. and Mrs. Meade Baker were guests of Rev. R. B. Daily and family, Sunday.

Thos. Zobow was a Sunday dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Adam Shilling.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 2[illegible] West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.

Frank Leighty arrived Wednesday afternoon from Wymore, Neb., to attend the funeral of his father, Bennett Leighty.

The Coburntown Ladies' Aid netted the neat sum of $27.50, proceeds of the [illegible] conducted at the [illegible] Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Don[illegible]ey are parents of a [illegible] lb. daughter, born [illegible] She has [illegible] Ruth.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Trestel and son Dale were last Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hamilton.

[illegible]

Mrs. Silas Reasoner who suffered a stroke of paralysis a few weeks ago is improving.

A baby son was born Wednesday night to Mr. and Mrs. Grady Woodcox northeast of town.

Give nature a chance. Take Tanlac, nature's own medicine. Sold by Dr. Sheffer.

Ora Wilmot had made about 80 gallons of maple syrup up to Saturday night. He has the Sax Hadsell camp open.

Chicago is the largest railroad center in the United States; Kansas City ranks second and St. Louis third.

Mesdames Bertha Myers and Ella Smith and Geo. Kees attended the funeral of Baltzer Koontz held Tuesday afternoon at Spencerville.

Chas. Tustison spent Sunday and until Monday noon a guest in the home of his son Earl at Hicksville with his wife who is there since leaving the Amadeu hospital.

Tanlac strengthens the nerves and brings back the normal state of health through its effect on the appetite and nutrition of the body. Sold at Sheffer's.

Mr. and Mrs. [illegible] Osborn moved here Wednesday from Spencerville and are [illegible] Frye's property on East [illegible]ton street.

The rural [illegible] roads in the [illegible] have ever [illegible] carrier [illegible] to the [illegible] miles [illegible]

[illegible]

Chas. Quance spent last week in St. Joe.

Mrs. Lora Leighty spent Thursday and Friday in Auburn attending the "Bob Jones" meeting there.

The oldest state institution in the state is the Indiana reformatory at Jeffersonville, which was established first as a prison in 1821.

Wm. Henly has moved his shoe shop from the west side to the east side of his home. The new entrance is the east door.

Mrs. Wm. Goldsmith, Co. Chairman of DeKalb Co. Federation of Farm Women, has called a committee meeting for Saturday, Mar. 18, to be held at the courthouse.

The committee for arranging for the county institute of the W.C.T.U. were to have met at Auburn on Saturday, but on account of the bad roads the representatives from here were not able to go.

There will be a called meeting of the W. C. T. U. to be held at the home of the President, Mrs. Loretta Hull, Friday afternoon of this week. All members urged to be present. The County W. C. T. U. Spring Institute will be held Monday and Tuesday of next week, at Auburn.

If the people who have taken TANLAC were to form a line of march in single file, this grand army would reach clear across the American Continent from New York to San Francisco and extend over 3000 miles into the Pacific Ocean. At Sheffer's.

Monday, Mar. 27th, Miss Boston, of Purdue University, will be in DeKalb county to start a series of meetings on Household decoration. These meetings will be held at 12 different points in the county. Watch the paper next week for location of meeting in your particular community. Those women who attended the dress form meetings last spring will remember Miss Boston.

Friends and relatives of Charles R. Scoville, our DeKalb county evangelist, received word from him that his wife remains very weak and her suffering is severe. She is afflicted with two large abscesses on one hip which are constantly draining. However her temperature is now nearly normal and it is hoped she will steadily recover.

Christian Church Notes

The newest member to the cradle roll is little Miss Betty Elaine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Kees.

A very impressive memorial service was held on Sudday after communion in honor of Dr. A. L. Shelton, medical missionary in Thibet, who was murdered Feb. 17 by robbers near Batang. The program was conducted by the missionary superintendent, Mrs. Eva Sheffer, and consisted of readings and talks on the life of Dr. Shelton and of Thibet. There were songs by the various classes and prayers.

Because of the funeral of Bennet Leighty the Martha society will postpone its meeting of Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Charles Cochran announces that she will open a restaurant and hotel at her residence, two doors west of the Opera house, Saturday. Oft-times persons stop here for overnight, and find it difficult to find a room. Here such persons can find room and meals.

HARTZOG
EYE SIGHT
SPECIALIST

--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight
SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist office, St. JOE
Friday, MARCH 24, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

[illegible]

MARCH

L 912

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, MARCH ,23 1922 No. 12

OUR FURNISHINGS
KEEP MOVING

When our underwear comes from the laundry "Papa's shirt will not fit Willie;" it will fit papa.

The only thing "we shrink" is the Price and we do this when we first mark our goods. This makes them move out of our store fast.

Our tasty hose will make you roll your trousers up and our ties will tickle your eyes.

Let us supply everything you wear and you will be a well-dressed man.

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Buy your CLOVER SEED
Timothy Seed, Alsike and Alfalfa Seed from us. We handle Bran, Middlings, Tankage, Cotton Seed Meal, Oil Meal.

COAL— If you need a ton or two to carry you over buy now; we have it.

BEST VIRGINIA AND HOCKING COAL ONLY.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Safety and Convenience

Do you know that nine-tenths of the business of the United States is done by some form of check? This convenient condition is possible because the banking system of this country has been placed on such a safe basis that corporations and individuals have faith in it. The welfare of the banks depends in a large measure upon [illegible]

A checking account with this Bank [illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

TOWN BOARD MEETS

The Town Dads convened in their regular monthly business meeting Monday evening, March 20, at the Town hall. The particular business of importance that came up was the Fire Department Ordinance, which was voted upon and passed as presented.

The ordinance specifies that there be maintained the organization of the volunteer fire department to be known as the St. Joe Fire Department; but instead of its members being exempt from taxes as a means of compensation as heretofore they are to be paid a fee of 50 cents each for each run made. This change is required by a recently made state law. Members are to care for the apparatus and keep it in good condition.

This new ordinance is effective after last Monday night.

S. S. Attendance Poor.

People are inclined to permit a little rain be a hindrance to their attending Sunday school on Sunday morning. Notice the reports; one school reports as low as twelve and none went to the ninety mark for last Sunday. Why should we not be more consciencious about this divine requirement?

Farm Bureau Meeting.

The Concord Township Farm Bureau met last Friday evening in the assembly room of the school building for their monthly business and social meeting. President Frank Johnson was in charge. A splendid program was arranged and given as follows:

Song	Choral Society
Recitation	Priscilla Borthwick
Vocal Solo	Floyd Reasoner
Short Talk	Mrs. Wm. Goldsmith
Short Talk	County Agent Repp
Remarks	President Johnson
Songs	Ladies' Quartette

It was voted to call a special meeting of the bureau for Friday evening, March 31, to vote on certain amendments of the constitution; also the date of Tuesday, March 28th, was set for the time to treat oats for smut.

For Better Farming

The illustrated agricultural articles which appear in the News from week to week are for the most part prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture and embody knowledge resulting from innumerable experiments, tests and developments, in some cases extending over many years, and accumulated data of the department, to give farmers information which only could be provided by this branch of the government with its highly organized staff of scientists and practical men.

No doubt our farm readers have read and enjoyed these articles during the winter, but with the opening of spring [illegible]

[illegible]

Resolved, That we as a lodge deeply feel our loss, but realize that our loss is his gain.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our beloved brother, and a copy be recorded on the minutes of the lodge.

Com. { Mary Kinsey,
Anna Rickett,
Ida Herrick.

Whereas, Death has removed from our midst a highly respected citizen and from our lodge a faithful member in the passing away of Charles Bennett Leighty; therefore be it

Resolved, That we the members of the St. Joe I. O. O. F. lodge deplore the death of Charles Bennett Leighty, but bow our heads to the expression of Divine will

Resolved, That we extend to the family of our deceased brother our heartfelt sympathy, not in any empty phrase, but in the full meaning of the term.

Resolved, That the charter of our lodge be draped in mourning for a period of sixty days out of regard for the memory of our departed brother; that these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the lodge, that they be printed in the St. Joe News, and copies sent to the members of the family of brother Leighty.

Com. { John R. Gill,
S. A. Rickett,
George Kinsey.

Spencerville Wins Contest

Spencerville was a big winner in the literary, musical contest which was held there on Friday evening at the Methodist church, between the St. Joe and Spencerville High school students. Spencerville carried away the honor of winning four out of the five numbers on the program. Miss La Vern Rhodes won honors in the piano solo; Miss Mary Provines won the decision in the vocal solo, and a vocal duet rendered by the Misses Elizabeth Thorne and Anna Beerbower proved the popular choice; while Miss Eillen Asky won the decision in the discussion on immigration; Miss Louetta Daily of St. Joe winning the remaining numbers, a reading of Riley's. The judges were: D. O. McComb, county superintendent of Allen county; Mrs. Mary Allen, an English teacher of Leo, and Miss Rosa Toukle, New Haven.

The winners in the various sectional meets held last Friday night at Garrett, Ashley and Spencerville will compete in the county high school literary and musical contest at Auburn, Friday evening. The meeting will be held in the Presbyterian church.

St. Joe High School Notes.

SENIOR.

Many of the Seniors are preparing to take the teacher's examination [illegible] March 25. A [illegible] of their time at present is being taken in reviewing.

[illegible]

lish. All are enjoying it, except teacher and class.

Spelling grades for the past week:
Seventh year, 97.75
Eighth year, 96.02
Fifth year, 89.75
Sophomores, 89.64
Sixth grade, [illegible]
Seniors, [illegible]
Freshmen, 82.9
Juniors, [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe
We aim to give you quality at a Reasonable Price. Note the following list:
United States Tires and Tubes
Willard Storage Batteries
Mazda Lamps Weed Chains
Genuine FORD Parts
Columbian Hot Shot Batteries (4 cells)
Champion Spark Plugs
Shaler Lenses
Red Crown Gasoline
Polarine Motor Oils and Greases
SHAFER Roller Bearings
Free Air and Battery Service
EXPERT MECHANICS
DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

Announcement!
I am pleased to announce to all the public that I have to offer
The Genuine Famous
COLUMBIA Grafonolas
AND RECORDS
A shipment of these machines is now in. Come in and hear them.

Aluminium Ware
A finer line of Aluminium Ware than is now on display in my windows was never shown.
DISH PANS,
COFFEE POTS,
TEA KETTLES, ETC.
Your Choice - - - 99 cents.

E. R. KINSEY
St. Joe, Indiana
Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Women are Invited.

There will be a Home Economics meeting at the home of Mrs. H. M. Widney, on Monday evening, Mar. 27th, at 7:30 o'clock. Miss Boston, of Purdue University, will be present. The work will be "Interior Decoratsons" or "Beautifying the Home." Ladies interested are invited to be present.

Desperate Trails.

[illegible]

MARCH

Longer Skirt Is Making Headway

Harbingers of the spring season crowd upon us from all directions. From Paris come the cables of the openings there, while right here in New York, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times, we are being treated to fashion exhibits that are truly American in character. Only the best of America's fashion creators paraded their gowns for the fashion people to revel in and to take shining examples from the clothes of American women this spring.

While the dresses designed for the street have a tendency to remain at a very moderate length—not to say short—those for afternoon and evening are creeping floorward at no uncertain pace. And it is interesting to see how variously the different designers achieve their purposes by drapings and transparent flouncings and panels and rufflings and underskirts and things.

For those women who will not accept the frankly long skirt (either because their figures are too short or because they want to remain youthful in appearance), there are gowns with trailing trains to make them look long, while at other portions of their skirts the legs are allowed to show almost to the knees. This style will continue to please those husbands, too, who vowed they would not be parties to the reappearance of the longer skirts. It took them a long while to come around to a whole-hearted acceptance of the shorter skort; but having reached that point, they seem—many of them—determined to remain there.

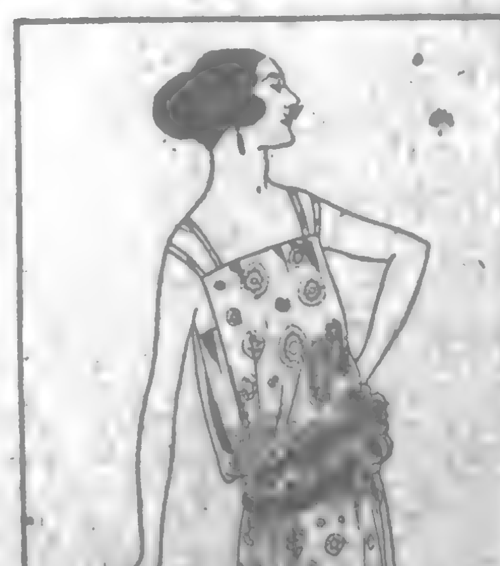
One evening gown at the National Garment Retailers' fashion show was made of a black beaded robe just draped about the figure in classic lines, with straps of cut jet to hold it in place over the shoulders. On the left side of the skirt the draping was opened and made a short skirt line, almost to the knees, while on the opposite side the lines of its draping curved downward until it barely escaped the floor.

Made of Metal Cloth.

Another of these very brilliant gowns was made of some soft and illusive shade of metal cloth—that is, one which had a color woven in with the silver threads. Its skirt was draped in one of those irregular ways that brought it very low on one side, where it spread out into a graceful train, and from the other side the fabric came from a higher point, to fasten under the drapery of the train. The interesting part about this gown was that when its lovely wearer stood still in one spot, it had every appearance of being quite amply full. Then when she stepped along the path the movement of her body transformed the lines of the skirt so that they followed her figure exactly.

All the evening frocks had simple straps for the shoulders, with as much neck showing as possible. One was of red velvet, and the shoulder straps were composed of twisted velvet, making a cord of about half an inch in diameter. But the lines of the neck were mostly square across the front, with some [illegible] considered, then there is a distinctly different type for the young and the slim woman. It is draped, to be sure, but it is extended in some way at the hip line, so that the gown assumes a distinctly bouffant appearance. It is made, more usually, of the thinner materials and of taffeta which, of its own accord, puffs out into distended lines.

[illegible]



Embroidered Gown of Violet Panne Velvet.

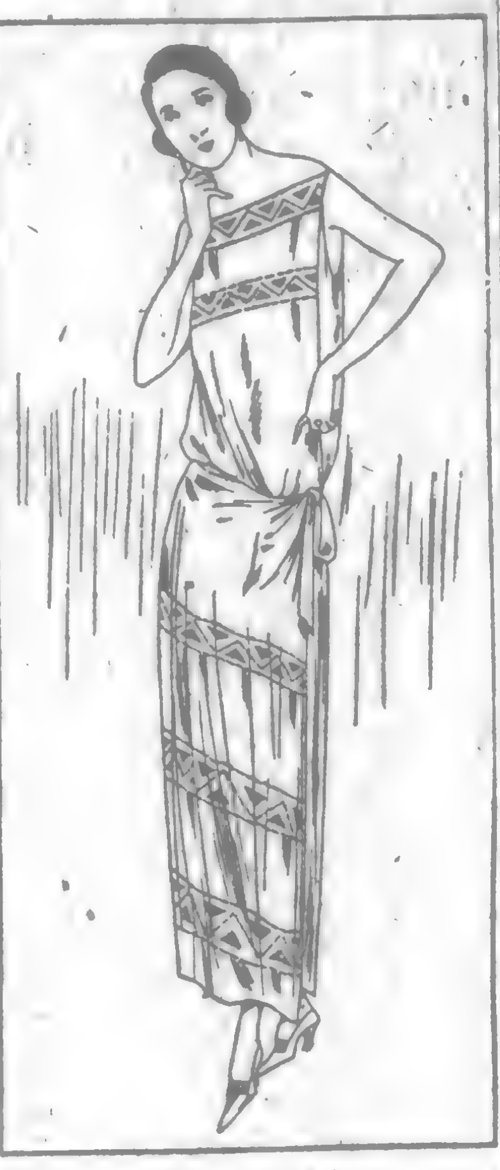
One dress of this type was made from heavy flowered taffeta, the tight little colorful bouquets of flowers being scattered over a background of stiff cream-colored silk. The skirt was invested with full panniers over either hip and, falling from that point, it reached the ankles. There was a short-waisted bodice and little, old-fashioned puffed sleeves, giving the effect of lovely maidenliness combined with a real old-time charm.



Late Creation in Pure White.

Some of the evening dresses were short, as far as the foundation material was concerned, and then had extra lace of gold tissue flounces below that line, which made the skirt long, and yet not long. It was a compromise that many women will like, because it forms an easy transition between the long and the short and allows them to gradually become used to the longer lines.

From Paris we gather the first news of the spring openings there. Of course it is, as yet, only snatched information transported by cable, but it serves to give an idea of what the Parisian couturiers will sanction for forthcoming styles.

Two frocks, which are the latest creations of Martial et Armand and Cheruit, are not, of course, included in the spring showings of those two houses, but they are the sort of thing that led up to those openings, and for that reason they hold a real significance.

Simplicity Is Noticeable.

The simplicity of the drapings of these gowns is their most noticeable characteristic. There seems to be only a suggestion of a gathering of the fullness at a certain point, or at various points, as the case may be. But in the manner of that draping lies the center of interest in the frock, and around it the trimming and all of the lines of the gown are grouped in harmony.

Cheruit's gown illustrates that regularity of beaded trimming which has proved itself so acceptable, and in this case the cross lines of bead tubes and circles follow the line established by the draping about the lowered waist line.

The gown from Martial et Armand has a somewhat higher waistline. That is, a second tier of velvet ribbon establishes a more normal line, while the lowered one remains there, as though to demonstrate its willingness to be pushed from the center of interest, which it has held uninterruptedly. This frock is made with an underdress of silver that shows charmingly on the bodice [illegible]

[illegible]

INSECT ENEMIES OF HOME GARDEN

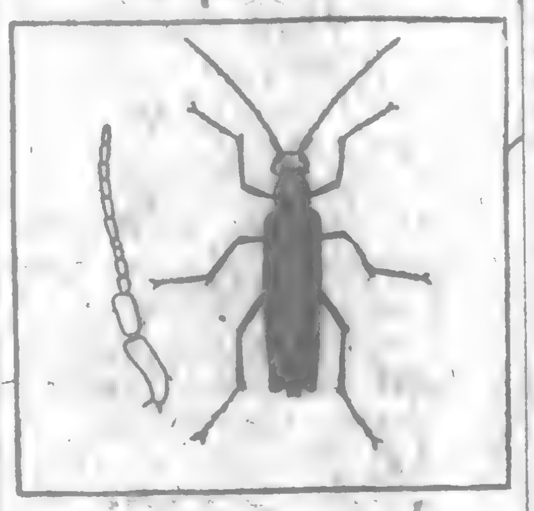
Some of Pests Devour Nearly Every Form of Vegetation and Do Immense Damage.

CUTWORMS INJURE TOMATOES

Arsenic and Paris Green are Deadly Poisons and Must Be Handled With Great Care—Rotation of Crops is Advisable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

From the standpoint of their food plants, injurious insects may be grouped roughly into two classes: First, those which are choice feeders and ordinarily attack only a single crop, or crops of a single class, although when they are extremely abundant they may resort to other crops or weeds. Examples are the asparagus beetles and asparagus miner and the large tomato worms, which confine their feeding to plants of a single family. Second, those known as general feeders—insects which are not particular as to their food plants. Some of these devour nearly every form of vegetable that grows in the garden. These include cutworms and other caterpillars, several forms of leaf-beetles and flea-beetles, plant-lice, thrips, blister beetles, and others. When abundant, some of these pests do great damage, sweeping over large areas and ruining entire crops before they can be stopped.



The Ash-Gray Blister Beetle.

Cutworms.

Tomatoes, sweet potatoes, and other truck plants, particularly when started under glass, are likely to be injured by cutworms when transplanted. These appear in great numbers in the spring and early summer, and the injury is often complete before the gardener notices it.

Control.—The best remedy is what is called "poisoned bait." For use in a small garden take 1 peck of dry bran, add 4 ounces of white arsenic or Paris green, and mix thoroughly with 2 gallons of water in which has been stirred half a gallon of sorghum, or other cheap molasses.

For a large garden, use 1 bushel of bran to 1 pound of the arsenical mixed with 8 gallons of water containing half a gallon of molasses. This is enough for treating 4 or 5 acres of cultivated crops.

After the mash has stood for several hours, scatter it in lumps the size of a marble over the garden where the injury is beginning to appear and about the bases of the plants set out. Apply late in the day so as to place the poison about the plants before night, which is the time when cutworms are active. Apply a second or third time if necessary.

White Grubs.

When new land is used for planting vegetables, especially land that has been in sod or grown up with weeds, white grubs are almost certain to make their appearance, sometimes in large numbers, doing great damage to plants from the time they attain any growth until the fruit is ready for harvest. They feed chiefly on roots and attack especially potatoes, corn, and strawberries, but they are general feeders.

Control.—Deep plowing is the most effective remedy for white grubs. Cross plowing and deep disking are sometimes necessary, and the ground should be disturbed often and kept clean of weeds so that the grubs can be eliminated.

Rotation of crops, avoiding the planting of potatoes, beets, sweet corn, and other crops on land which has been for some time in the same crops or in strawberries, grasses, or weeds is advisable. Fertilizers, especially kainit, as a heavy top-dressing are of benefit. Gas lime is valuable.

Wireworms.

Wireworms, like white grubs, are common pests in the garden and are also general feeders. They are the offspring of snapping beetles, or "snap-bugs," and are of long oval form.

Control.—The remedies advised for white grubs apply also to wireworms, with due care in selecting land for planting and in fall plowing and crop rotation. Wireworms, however, are much more difficult to control than white grubs.

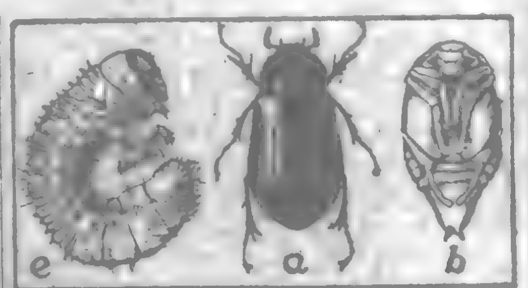
Blister Beetles.

Blister beetles are common farm pests and are very destructive to vegetables, especially beans, peas, potatoes, and beets. They travel in the same manner as army worms and are sometimes called "army beetles" for this reason. They are hungry feeders and travel frequently in lines, eating everything in their path, chewing up apparently more than they need for food.

Control.—Lead arsenate applied at the very outset of attack is the best remedy. In some portions of the Southwest lines of men and boys go through fields driving beetles before them until they reach windrows of hay, straw, or other dry vegetable matter previously prepared along the leeward side of the field. The windrow is then fired and the beetles burned.

Plant-Lice.

Practically all vegetables, especially cucumbers, cabbages, and peas, suffer considerable damage from attack by small, soft-bodied insects commonly called "lice" or "aphis," but better known as plant-lice. These work for the most part on the lower sides of the leaves, which become curled or otherwise destroyed by loss of their vital juices. They give off a sweet mixture called honeydew, which attracts ants, flies, and other insects. Plant-lice increase with great rapidity by the female giving birth to living young. The different kinds vary in color from light to dark green or nearly black, grayish, brown, yellow, and red. They have comparatively long legs and have feelers attached to the head. Some forms have two pairs of transparent or clear wings. They feed by sucking juices of the plants through a beak. Familiar examples are the melon aphis, pea aphis, and cabbage plant-lice.



A White Grub or May Beetle—E, Larva or Grub; A, Beetle; B, Pupa.

Control.—If the plants are grown under glass, plant-lice may be killed by fumigation with a nicotine preparation. The form suitable for this work is paper soaked in nicotine which when lighted causes a smudge. Sprinkling plants with fine tobacco dust is of some value, especially if applied early in the morning when the dew is on.

LEVEL CULTURE IS FAVORED

As Most Vegetables Require Much Moisture, It Is Best to Plant Them on the Surface.

Water still runs down hill. Practice [illegible]

[illegible]

SOY BEAN IN CROP ROTATION

Cash Value of Seed Is Sufficient to Warrant Growing Beans as One of Main Crops.

The soy bean may be combined advantageously in many systems of crop rotation. The United States Department of Agriculture says it is especial- [illegible]

[illegible]

AN [illegible] TAX

[illegible]

ROAD BUILDING

FEDERAL-AID ROAD PROGRAM

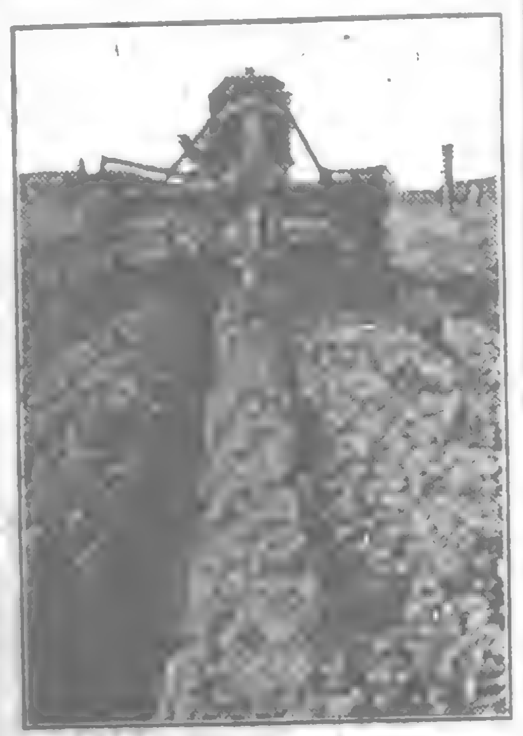
Secretary of Agriculture Is Considering Tentative Draft of Rules and Regulations.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The secretary of agriculture is considering a tentative draft of rules and regulations for the administration of the federal highway act, approved last November, under which $75,000,000 is appropriated for the construction of federal-aid roads, but will not promulgate them until he has conferred with representatives of the state highway departments. The secretary is impressed with the need for closest possible co-operation between the federal government and the states in the development of the federal-aid highway system called for by the act, and the value and serviceability of the system will not be jeopardized by a hasty decision as to the roads which will comprise it or the regulations to be followed in carrying out the purposes of the legislation.

Fifty million dollars of the appropriation became available January 1. The remaining $25,000,000 was made immediately available upon approval of the act, November 9, last.

In formulating the fundamental rules which will govern the states and the federal government in administering the law, the Department of Agriculture is seeking the counsel of the state highway departments as represented by the executive committee of the American Association of State Highway Officials. Members of the committee are: George P. Coleman, state highway commission, Virginia; Paul D. Sargent, chief engineer, Maine; Austin B. Fletcher, state highway engineer, California; W. R. Neel, state highway engineer, Georgia; Thomas H. MacDonald, chief of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture; George E. Johnson, secretary, department of public works, Nebraska; Ira R. Bowning, member of highway commission, Utah; R. J. Windrow, state highway engineer, Texas; W. D. Uhler, state highway engineer, Pennsylvania; and D. P. Olson, director, bureau of highways, Idaho.



A Modern Machine Working on a Rutty Highway.

Pending definite decision upon details of the federal highway system, each project submitted by the states will be examined with the utmost care by the bureau of public roads to determine whether it is likely that the roads proposed will come within the federal system as finally selected. The department regards the approval of this system as of great importance. Each project submitted in advance of the definite decision upon the system as a whole will have an effect in fixing particular routes and so determining the system. Location of the projects, choice of routes, and character of improvements proposed will be given close study.

Each state highway department has been requested to submit as soon as possible to the Department of Agriculture a tentative map showing routes proposed for primary and secondary systems. In examining and passing upon these recommendations special consideration will be given to social and economic questions involved, such as service to population, established trend of traffic, existing industries, natural resources, etc. In considering plans for individual projects special attention will be devoted to grade crossings, gradients, curvature, [illegible], general drainage conditions, location of materials, supplies, etc."

Much Money for Roads.

Receipts of the [illegible] division of the [illegible] highway department reached the enormous total of [illegible] last year, the largest in the history of the division. [illegible] is an increase of more than [illegible] over the receipts of [illegible]

Cleanliness Leads to Success.

Given a [illegible] is one of the best [illegible]

[illegible] Built in 1921.

[illegible]

[illegible]

FARM CHEAP LAND

Why Western Canada Agriculturists Are Smiling.

Low Overhead Expense and Bountiful Crops Have Enabled Them to Overcome Agricultural Depression.

The recent agricultural depression brought to the eyes of the world the fact that one of its basic industries was likely to suffer a severe blow unless steps were taken to secure a remedy. Physician after physician applied remedies, but even parliamentarians and newspapers were unable to place their finger on the pulse that would respond. As it appears today, it was a spasmodic wave due to the ebb and flow of the tide of readjustment that was bound to follow a disturbance such as the Great War caused.

Psychologically it was bound to change; there was certain to be a reflex movement that would bring agricultural conditions back to the place where they normally and rightly belong.

Efficiency and sound business judgment are needed more in agriculture today than ever before and are as important to the farmer as to a railroad company, or to a great steel corporation.

The farmer must endeavor to secure an equal footing in the competition for a lower cost of production. In Western Canada the farmer has come through the dark era with that fortitude and determination so peculiar to a new country, and is meeting the changed situation with energy and a smile. In Western Canada the farmer is not hampered by an annual overhead expense of heavy interest on high-priced land. He is able to produce at a minimum, because his land value seldom exceeds $50 an acre.

Owing to the fact that he is farming land the price of which is from $25 to $50 an acre, producing crops of wheat running from 20 to 40 bushels per acre, and other grains in proportion, he is able to produce at a low cost. In addition to this, a fact which should not be lost sight of, is the large area that he can farm at low cost, giving him an added advantage in reducing the cost of production.

The corn that the farmer fully expected to bring him over a dollar a bushel, he saw carried away to the market, and bring back a 30 or 40 cent check. Wheat for the whole of Canada averaged 86 cents a bushel in 1921 as compared with $1.62 in 1920; oats 37 cents as against 53 cents; barley 47 cents as against 83 cents. Other grain prices similarly fell. While other parts of the continent, where grain-growing is carried on, have suffered in like manner by deflation in prices, they have had to face a much higher cost in production, such as high rents, high-priced farms, and high taxes. Farmers had calculated on receiving war or nearly war figures for their grain and therefore were amply justified in submitting to the tax that soaring land prices set upon them. Western Canada fortunately did not suffer from inflated land prices. Therefore, when grain prices fell, the losses sustained were not so great; they did not cut out the margin of profit, excepting in some cases where some climatic conditions caused it.

Why not take advantage of the Homeseekers' rate to any point in Western Canada, of return rate single fare plus $2.00, and get information from the nearest Canadian Government agent?—Advertisement.

All Depends.

No place is so fine as it seems when you are homesick for it, and no place so bad as it seems when you are homesick in it.—Farm Life.

When Heine Was a Tramp.

Heinrich Heine was a tramp. He trudged all of one summer through Saxony in an old coat. He was going to Weimar to flatter—that seems odd—Goethe. As he wandered through the Harz mountains conning the speech he meant to make to the great German poet, he plucked plums by the wayside. When he reached his destination he forgot his eulogy and could only stammer his praise of Saxon plums. The railing, cynical exile of Paris, prodding his enemies with a trenchant pen, was that summer lovable as a tramp.—Exchange.

Suggestion.

Richard, age five, had been left at home in the care of one of his aunts for a few days. It appeared to the aunt that Richard usually managed to do just the things that she had forbidden him to do. Finally she mentioned that fact to Richard, only to receive the following reply: "But, [illegible] I never think of those things till you tell about them, and then it seems to me that I just must do them."

His Business Secret.

[illegible]

[illegible]

MARCH

L 91

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

"LOVE! H—L!"

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Polly alone knows their secret. Marcus MacKenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude. Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, as she supposed, but practically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin.

CHAPTER III.

—3—

As she ran, Polly Hopkins cogitated on MacKenzie's words. Evelyn's mother had said that she was as odd as she was filthy.

Mrs. Robertson! The arrogant woman who lived on the hill in a house almost big enough to hold every person in the Silent City ought not to say anything against the squatters. If the grand lady only knew it, her own daughter had stooped to a trick such as would put to shame any hut-woman. A squatter wife would not leave her man to do for himself or deny him before the world. Added to Polly's personal humiliation was MacKenzie's threat against Daddy Hopkins.

The hope Robert Percival's words had instilled in her seemed to die as she traveled, and her heart beat with fear, for should Old Marc get his fingers on Daddy Hopkins, Polly had no doubt there would be nothing but imprisonment for him and the graveyard for her and Jerry. She could not think of life without her father. Not a single night had she ever been away from his kindly love and attention—and Wee Jerry! A vivid picture rose before her of the baby's grief if he could not straddle daddy's neck and play his father was a horse.

When she reached the top of the ragged rocks, she pulled up and cast a glance out over the lake. The calling of her name made her turn swiftly. Recognizing Evelyn Robertson's voice, she waited while the other girl came down the path from MacKenzie's woods. She was quite unlike the little squatter. A fashionable raincoat protected her from the wet; and she carried a light umbrella in her gloved hand. The greeting between them was one of embarrassment.

"I were goin' to find my daddy," Polly explained. "He's somewheres along the lake. I didn't know I'd come on you this mornin'."

The memory of Mrs. Robertson's words brought a rush of color to her face, and she looked down at her feet. There surged up in her a feeling that she did not want anything to do with any of these people. Why should she? They were rich; and she was only a squatter brat! She started to walk away.

"I said," she flung over her shoulder, "I were lookin' for my daddy. Good-by."

Evelyn Robertson was not interested in Jeremiah Hopkins. As far as she was concerned, the whole Silent City might be washed off into the waves and carried away. Her own troubles filled her mind. The shock of her mother's disclosure stunned her, for without the help she had expected, she could see no way out of Oscar Bennett's clutches. In the meantime, the squatter girl was her only means of communication.

"Wait, Pollyop, wait a minute! I came down just to speak to you."

Wheeling slowly around, Polly faced her.

"What do you want?" she asked in surly tones.

"Pollyop," ejaculated Evelyn, coming swiftly to her side, "I'm almost scared to death. My cousin, Bob—oh, you've got to help me again!"

Bob! Then the soldier in the uniform was Evelyn's cousin. Bob! That was the nicest name in all the world, a name fitted for the man who had dropped into the Silent City to help along the squatters. Suddenly her mood changed. She forgot Oscar Bennett and his odious words, forgot that the girl crying for her aid had allowed her mother to say dreadful things against her and Daddy Hopkins. If Evelyn were related to the soldier, then Polly Hopkins would do anything Miss Robertson asked of her.

"What do you want?" she repeated [illegible].

[illegible]

Polly considered the pretty face a moment. She could not understand why the home-coming of the cousin and Old Marc should make Evelyn so flustered. With her steady eyes upon her she was studying over this question when Evelyn burst forth:

"Tell Oscar I haven't any money! I just can't get it now! And, Pollyop, tell him too that he mustn't write me any more letters. My mother—well, if she found one of them, she'd turn me out of the house."

Polly's mouth flew open. She could not conceive of a girl doing anything in the world bad enough to make her mother turn her out of her home.

"Lordy! Would she, now?" she gasped.

"My mother's proud," said Evelyn, in excuse. "You know that, Polly."

Certainly Polly knew it! Hadn't she ducked out of sight of the unsympathetic lady many a time when lurking near the Robertson home with a message from Oscar to Evelyn?

"I don't know what I will do, Polly," the other girl went on, "if you don't help me—and—some time I'll really do something for you."

A temptation to blurt out the words Marcus MacKenzie had spoken assailed the squatter girl; but Evelyn looked worried! Polly's heart was as soft as the velvet in her eyes when she came upon trouble of any kind.

"You've been good to Wee Jerry," she interposed gently, "Awful good. He 'most giggles his little life away when I bring him the goodies you send him."

"I'm going to do a lot for both of you," returned Evelyn impulsively, "and today I brought this bag of candy for the baby. Here! Take it! And you'll go to Oscar for me as soon as you can, won't you?"

Smiling, Polly slipped the package of sweets into her pocket. She could forgive anything against herself for the sake of seeing Wee Jerry smile and hearing him crow over the contents of the small bag.

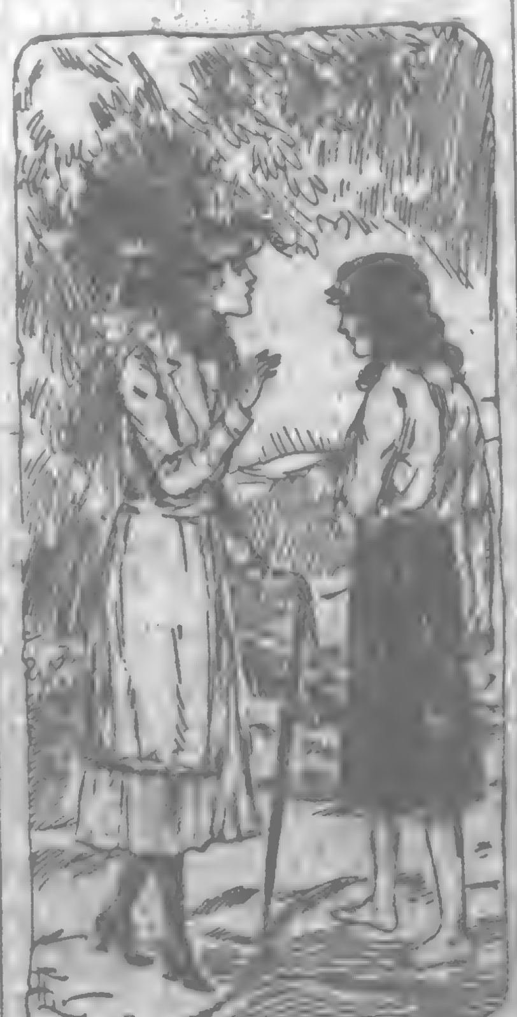
"Yep," she agreed, "an' say all you tell me to. But what if he kicks up a row? He's gettin' awful pernickity, Oscar is!"

A sharp cry from Evelyn was followed by:

"Tell him he mustn't! Make him promise he won't! And—and, Pollyop, I'll tell you something else, if you'll promise never to tell."

"I never told anything yet, have I?" Pollyop protested in low, indignant tones.

"No one must ever know about Oscar and me," Evelyn began, still harping upon the great fear that obsessed her, "because—"



"Tell Oscar I Haven't Any Money! I Just Can't Get It Now! And Pollyop, Tell Him Too That He Mustn't Write Me Any More Letters."

"Because of your ma," interrupted Polly. "Sure I know that."

A slim hand was raised in protest.

[illegible]

while you belong to Oscar, Miss Eve," she ventured gravely.

"Well, I know it; of course I know it," retorted Evelyn, resenting the censure in the other's tones; "but I've got to be free. I'm so frantic, I don't much care how. That's the way Oscar's got to help me! Anyway make him understand he's got to wait; he must be quiet and not bother me. Then come tonight, and let me know what he says. Will you, Polly?"

The squatter girl nodded. She would rather have been switched than see Oscar Bennett again.

"Yep," she assented. "I'll hunt him up late this afternoon and then hustle right over to you. I got to go now!"

For some moments after Evelyn left her, Polly watched the slim figure on the path to the woods. Then she suddenly remembered Marcus MacKenzie and without a backward glance hurried swiftly toward the south.

Meantime three squatters from the Silent City were in the Bad Man's ravine, dressing the fish they had netted the night before. One enormous man was seated on a flat rock, his bare feet almost touching the water as it hurried by to the lake. On his shoulders, with his legs wound tightly around the man's neck, sat a small boy, little more than a baby. He was shivering with cold, and, as the spring rain shot its drops upon his face, he lifted a small hand and brushed them away. Seemingly oblivious of the weight against his swarthy head, the man picked up a fish and contemplated it with a scowl. Then he proceeded to clean it deftly.

The silence was unbroken for a long time except by the rushing of the water, the gruesome running of the knives over the fish scales and a little whimper, now and then, from the child astride the man's neck.

"I heard in town," broke forth Lye Braeger, "that Old Marc MacKenzie's comin' home. Here's where us squatters get h—l flung at us good and plenty."

Jeremiah Hopkins stopped his work and frowned at the speaker.

"He'd best be a-lookin' out for hisself," he muttered. "Mebbe he'll get a taste of the hot place if he does any struttin' around the Silent City."

"Mebbe," repeated Larry Bishop, and no more. Marcus MacKenzie, handsome, smug and rich, had been the instrument that had moved the hands of the law to swing open the prison doors and shove Larry Bishop inside just when his young wife needed him most.

Once in sight of the roaring water, rushing in torrents from the Bad Man's ravine, Polly sent out a peculiar little trill; and the hoarse answer of a man's voice mingled with its echo as it struck the enormous, up-roaring rock slabs.

Polly's heart bounded and lost its heavy weight of fear. Daddy Hopkins had responded ponderously to her first call. In another moment she was crawling up the jagged sides of the deep gulf. As she came up to them, Hopkins' companions waved her a greeting, but stopped their work at the sight of her sober face.

"What's up, lassie?" demanded Hopkins. "You ain't seen a ghost, have you?"

"Worser'n that, Daddy," she replied. "Much worser'n that! Old Marc's home, an' I heard him say he's goin' to root us squatters out of the Silent City."

A brute-like glare flashed into Larry Bishop's eyes.

"Did he, now, brat?" he muttered, taking up his knife and looking at it.

Polly squatted down beside her father, slipping one hand under his arm. The other she gave to the child, who grasped it eagerly.

"Did he, now?" came in [illegible] from Bishop's [illegible].

"Yep," asserted Pollyop, with an emphatic bob of her head, [illegible]

[illegible]

ily. "Granny'll know soon what havin' money means. Some mornin' the Silent City'll wake up an' find the Hope shack burned to the rocks."

"Mebbe not," replied Polly simply. "Anyway, Granny don't need her hut now she's livin' with us."

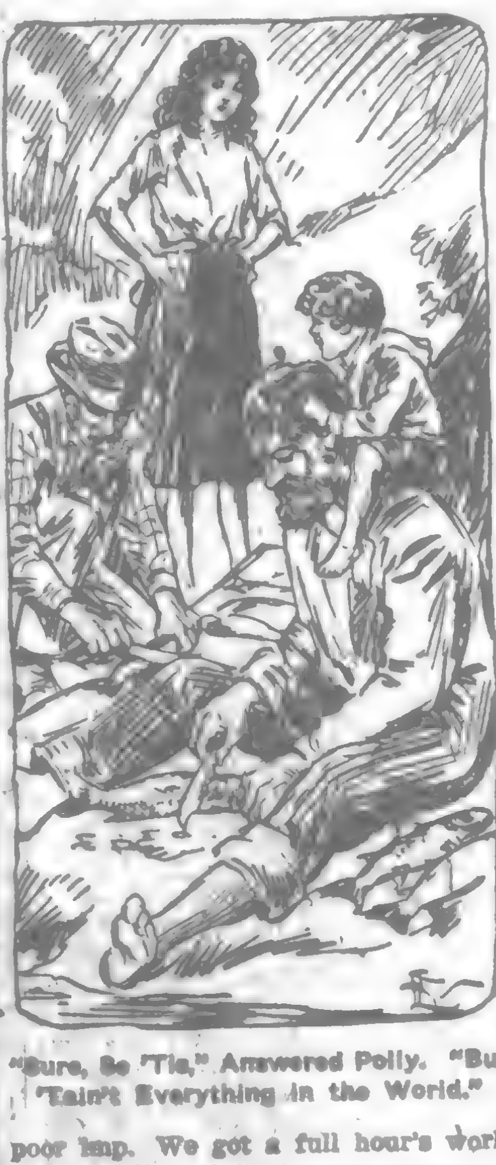
A sudden thought of Robert Percival shot a queer little thrill through her, and she got confusedly to her feet.

"Lordy, but the wind's cold this mornin'!" she exclaimed.

"That's so," answered her father. "It's too blamed cold for the baby to stay here. Get off'n my neck, boy, an' go along home with Poll, an' get het up a bit."

The child set up a howl that flung itself back and forth in squealing echoes from side to side of the ravine, but the struggle of unloosening Wee Jerry's fingers from his father's thick hair was short and sharp.

"Take him home, brat," said Jeremiah to Pollyop. "He's like a frog, poor imp. We got a full hour's work yet."



"Sure, So 'Tis," Answered Polly. "But 'Tain't Everything in the World."

With the child's hand in hers, Polly looked at her father.

"Come when you can, Daddy. I got a s'prise for you."

"Good little kid, your girl is, Jeremiah," droned Braeger, and he grunted as he straightened out his legs.

Hopkins bent over to catch another glimpse of his children.

"Yep," he agreed, a wavering smile touching his lips. "God love 'er! She's like her ma was at her age—as near like as two peas in a pod."

CHAPTER IV.

On entering the shack Pollyop found Granny Hope still asleep. Then she replenished the fire and sat down with Jerry on her lap. She disrobed him, dried the small body, and placed him on the cot under the blankets. Another piece of candy was popped into the ever-ready little mouth; and he cuddled down contentedly.

His daughter's cheerful face, when Jeremiah came home for his dinner, drove away, for the time being, the dread her announcement of MacKenzie's return had stirred in him. Her description of mending the roof brought a wry smile to his face. She sat on his knee while he smoked his pipe and chattered of the little intimate [illegible] of the lakeside, and later [illegible] Jerry off to Larry [illegible] shack, feeling the better for [illegible] warmth and love.

At [illegible] o'clock, milk-pail in hand, she [illegible] the lane that led to the Bennett farm. Nothing but her promise to Evelyn would have dragged her [illegible] into Oscar's presence. [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR MARCH 26

REVIEW

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is righteous in all His ways, and holy in all His works.—Psalm 145:17.

DEVOTIONAL READING—Psalm 130.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Favorite Stories of the Quarter.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Israel's Heroic Prophets.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Estimate of Elijah, Elisha, Jonah and Amos.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Social Teachings of the Quarter's Lessons.

The method of review will largely be determined by the taste of the teachers and the grade in the school concerned. To the writer's taste, two good methods are available: the biographical and the summary. In using the biographical, the lives of four great prophets, Elijah, Elisha, Jonah and Amos may be considered. These four men are connected with nearly all the lessons of the quarter. This method can be used to good advantage in nearly all the grades of the school. In the summary method the principal fact of each lesson with its leading lesson should be set forth. This method can be used to good advantage in the adult departments. The following is a suggested summary:

Lesson I. Rehoboam refused to grant the request of the people for the lightening of the burdens of taxation. Because of this ten tribes under the leadership of Jeroboam revolted and formed another kingdom. The most effective cure for social and political unrest is justice by the rulers to those ruled.

Lesson II. Elijah, after announcing to Ahab the withholding of rain for a term of years, fled and was fed by the ravens and by the widow at Zarephath. God adapts himself to the circumstances of His servants, and sometimes in the most unlikely ways provides for His own.

Lesson III. At the request of Elijah, Ahab called the people together to witness a supreme challenge of Baal worship. Faith in God will stand the most severe test. The fire of God is the unfailing sign which differentiates true from false religion.

Lesson IV. Elijah, though brave before the 450 prophets of Baal, fled for his life from Jezebel. God dealt most gently with his discouraged servant. We should learn from this that frequently we fail in our strongest point.

Lesson V. Naboth refused to sell his vineyard to Ahab, whereupon through Jezebel's plot he was murdered, and Ahab took possession. Nations and kings should respect the rights of individuals.

Lesson VI. When Elijah's work was finished, God took him to heaven by a whirlwind. Elijah had once requested death, but God had a better way for him to go to heaven than by way of death.

Lesson VII. The Shunammite woman, seeing Elisha passing by on errands for God, was moved to provide a comfortable lodging for him, whereupon Elisha sought to recompense her by promising that God would give her a child. Not infrequently has the prophet's chamber brought blessing to the home.

Lesson VIII. At the command of Elisha, Naaman dipped himself seven times in the Jordan and was healed of leprosy. In order to be healed of the leprosy of sin, human pride and vanity must be put away and obedience rendered to God.

Lesson IX. The king of Assyria sent a great army to apprehend Elisha because he had repeatedly informed the king of Israel concerning the movements of the Assyrian army. When the Lord opened the eyes of Elisha's servant, he beheld the mountains filled with horses and chariots of fire. "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them." "Lord, open our eyes!"

Lesson X. At the preaching of Jonah, the wicked city of Nineveh repented and God showed mercy. God's mercy and forgiveness should move us to preach the gospel to the heathen.

Lesson XI. The children of Israel prided themselves in their security and gave themselves to luxury and sensual indulgences. God sent Amos to warn them of the judgment which must follow. The Lord will bring the ungodly to judgment for their ungodly living.

Lesson XII. In due time the prophecy of Amos came true. The Assyrians came and carried the children of Israel [illegible] be [illegible] and destruction.

[illegible]

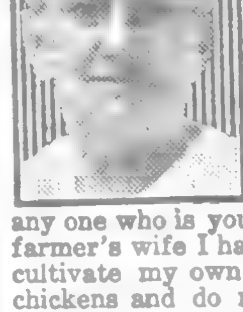
SPENT HALF HER TIME IN BED

Farmer's Wife Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her a Well Woman

Carter's Creek, Tenn.—"Three years ago I was almost an invalid. I spent half of my time in bed, being afflicted with a trouble which women of a certain age are apt to have. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I am a well woman now and have been for two years. I can work as well as any one who is younger and as I am a farmer's wife I have plenty to do for I cultivate my own garden, raise many chickens and do my own housework. You may publish this letter as I am ready to do anything to help other women as I have been so well and happy since my troubles are past."—Mrs. E. T. GALLOWAY, Carter's Creek, Tenn.

Most women find plenty to do. If they are upset with some female ailment and troubled with such symptoms as Mrs. Galloway had, the smallest duty seems a mountain.

If you find it hard to keep up, if you are nervous and irritable, without ambition and out of sorts generally, give the Vegetable Compound a fair trial. We believe it will help you greatly, for it has helped others.



CURES COLDS IN A DAY

AT ALL DRUG STORES

HILL'S CASCARA BROMIDE QUININE

PRICE 30 CENTS

World's standard cold and la grippe remedy. Demand red box bearing Mr. Hill's portrait and signature.

W. H. HILL CO., DETROIT

ABSORBINE

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

Stops Lameness from a Bone Spavin, Ring Bone, Splint, Curb, Side Bone, or similar troubles and gets horse going sound. It acts mildly but quickly and good results are lasting. Does not blister or remove the hair and horse can be worked. Page 17 in pamphlet with each bottle tells how. $2.50 a bottle delivered. Horse Book 9 A free.

W. F. YOUNG, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

Better Than Pills—For Liver Ills

The reason

Nature's Remedy

Get a 25¢ Box

NR Tonight—Tomorrow Alright

Naturally.

Artist's Wife—"Anatole, somebody's knocking." Artist—"Don't answer, then they'll think we are on the Riviera."

Cuticura for Pimply Faces.

To remove pimples and blackheads smear them with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. Once clear keep your skin clear by using them for daily toilet purposes. Don't fail to include Cuticura Talcum. Advertisement.

Really Something of a Mystery.

"Lawyers," said Uncle Eben, "mos'ly acks so unpleasant cross-examinin' folks dat I can't see how so many of 'em gits popular enough to be elected to offices."

To insure glistening-white table linens, use Red Cross Ball Blue in your laundry. It never disappoints. At all good grocers.—Advertisement.

In Tahiti serious crimes are punished by tattooing a mark upon the forehead of the delinquent.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

BELL-ANS FOR INDIGESTION 25 CENTS

6 BELL-ANS Hot water Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

VICTIMS RESCUED

Kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles are most dangerous because of their insidious attacks. Heed the first warning they give that they need attention by taking

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL

[illegible]

MARCH

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

What if the world would suddenly reverse?

What if St. Joe and Spencerville citizens would change places?—Would that quarter mile of road be improved? What?

The general topics of the storebox orators of St. Joe at the present time are "Who are to be our next county officers," and "Men of my party are best capable of serving the county in the public offices, not caring who the individual may be just so he belongs to our party.

A Lesson for Advertisers

Just the other day we saw an article which read something like this:

Once upon a time a man had a furnace which was not heating his home with satisfaction. One day he became angry and going down to the basement stood before the furnace and exclaimed: "Not another lump of coal will you get until you give me more heat." The poor fellow froze to death.

Herein is a lesson for advertisers: Some men put a little ad in the paper and if it doesn't bring the results that he expected, he says: "I won't advertise again until the other ad brings results." So the poor fellow freezes to death.

If you want further proof of this, look up statistics and compare the figures of failures among advertisers with the figures of failures of non-advertisers—those who freeze to death.—Pub. Aux.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	61	$ 3.48
M. P.	41	8.95
Lutheran	75	6 56
M. E. Spencer	44	3 70
Lutheran	59	3.45
Coburntown	35	1.49
Newville U. B.	23	.96
Christian	43	1.82
Mt. Pleasant	22	1.01
Concord	12	1.27

New $2500 Policy:
Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident $[illegible] (double the [illegible] insurance) will be [illegible], or else $[illegible] will be paid in a lump [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

An Appropriate Story.

Millie's Wedding

By Harry J. Williams

Nancy has a sister livin' about fifty miles down the valley, an' that sister has a daughter by the name o' Millie. Well, one day we got a high-falutin' card through the mail statin' that Millie would be united in marriage to Mr. Percival Hampton Gardner on the fifteenth o' the month.

"Where in Sam Hill did she find it?"

"It?" Nancy snorted. "Why, I'd have you to know that Mr. Percival Hampton Gardner is purty nigh a millionaire, an' Millie met 'im when she was workin' in the city. It's a fine match for Millie, I can tell you, for she'll have a fine house an' cooks an' butlers an' servants an' a footman, I expect."

"A footman?" I says, rilin' up. "You don't mean to tell me that Millie Babcock has got so all fired lazy that she can't wash 'er own feet?"

"Oh, you know a heap about a footman, now don't you?" Nancy says with so much disgust that I could feel it. "A footman don't wash feet; he jest looks after their footwear an' sees that their shoes are half-soled an' blacked in good shape. I'm glad they wasn't nobody around to hear you make such a break, fer I'd of been humiliated jest about to death!"

Well, that made me feel both squelched an' mad, in about equal proportions, so I says, as positive as I knowed how, "Well, we ain't a-goin', anyhow!"

Nancy decides to Go

"Yes, we are a-goin'," Nancy perked, with such firmness that I knowed I had a scrap on my hands right now. "You don't need to think I'm goin' to miss a chance to associate with people that's up in the class with the Rockefellers an' the Vanderbilts!" she flared, "I'll wear my new alpaca dress an' I'll make some o' them four hundreders turn green with envy."

The weddin' day dawned as bright as a dollar, an' we climbed into the Ford an' got started off in good shape. Me an' Nancy had fought it out an' I had give in jest as I knowed I would all the time, an' I had made up my mind to enjoy myself, as much as I could in a stiff-bosom shirt an' a white collar. We was goin' along at a purty good clip when I heard somethin' go, "Zip! Bang! Zee-e-e-u-u-u-u," an' I knowed good an' well that somethin' had busted. I got out an' sure enough, they was a tire down.

"My first puncture," I says, rollin' up my sleeves an' fishin' fer the jack.

"Will it take long to fix it?" Nancy asked, anxious, like.

"Jest about five minutes," I told 'er, settin' the jack jest as Tim Nolan had showed me one day when he was tinkerin' with 'is car.

Well, that five minutes was up afore I even got that consarned jack to workin', an', after I got the car jacked up, I had a whale of a time gettin' the tire off. The sun was bilin' right down on the back o' my neck, an', what the dirt an' grease didn't do to my white shirt an' collar, the sweat done to 'em. I pulled an' jerked till I was black in the face, an' I guess I must of jerked the jack off center, for the thing veered over an' let the wheel come down square on my foot. I let out a yell that you could of heard a mile, an' I said some things that wouldn't be jest exactly appropriate at a prayer meetin'.

"There you go again!" Nancy chided, "saying things that'll take thirty-five or forty per cent o' your religion off o' you, an' you know how hard it is to put it back on."

"Well, what I want now is to git this Ford off o' me," I says, scowlin' with pain, an' finally gettin' my foot loose.

"I'd hate to miss the ceremony," she went on, not payin' an ounce o' attention to what I said.

Pumpin' It Up

About that time a feller come along in a car an' offered to help me with the tire. I was mighty glad to let 'im, fer I couldn't of put it on in a week. He had the new tube in an' the tire back on afore you could of turned around, an' then he drove off [illegible] me it would be all right after I pumped it up. I guess he was right, but "Pumpin' it up," was considerable more of a job than I had jumped onto fer many a moon.

I worked the plunger up and down [illegible]

[illegible]

as it ever got—jest an attempt.

There was a house close an' a feller come out to see if he could help me. He was a little mite o' a runt, but he knowed Fords, an' he soon had the chains on, so I wiped some o' the mud off o' my hands an' took hold o' the wheel agin. We hadn't gone ten feet till one wheel dropped down into a mud-hole an' jest spun around like a top. The feller tried to help by pushin', but he was too light, so he told me to git out an' push an' he'd run the car.

We changed places an' I got my shoulder agin the thing an' the feller turned on the juice. Well, sir! Forty dogs a scratchin' couldn't of throwed mud like that one wheel did, an' I was standin' right behind it. It splattered that thin mud all over my Sunday-go-to-meetin' clothes, white shirt an' all, an' I sure was a sight. But we got the Ford lifted out o' the hole, an' I thanked the feller an' climbed in, mud an' all. I was madder'n a fool an' I was glad Nancy didn't say nothin', fer if she had, I'd of jest nachally busted right there.

Well, we plowed through the mud the rest o' the way, and got there fifteen minutes afore time fer the ceremony. I didn't see no evidence o' any four hundred folks, an' I mentioned the fact to Nancy, but she allowed they was on hand, all right. But they wasn't, an' when I'd got a few pounds o' the mud scraped off an' walked into the settin'-room I noticed the folks actin' queer and excited, an' I found out that the Honorable Percival Hampton Gardner hadn't showed up yet.

An' that wasn't all of it—that lowdown skunk never did show up. It made Millie about half mad, an' I didn't blame 'er, fer I always did say that ever' man ought to be present at his own weddin'.

Best Soil Needed for Potato Patch

By County Agent Repp.

Every farm in DeKalb county has at least a small patch of ground; an old strawberry bed, a hog lot, a discarded barn yard, or piece of clover or alfalfa sod, which more nearly meets the needs of the potato than any other place on the farm. These are usually well drained and being fertile contain above the average amount of plant food and organic matter, things which are absolutely essential for large yields. So the small grower will find little trouble in picking out a spot for his potato patch.

The larger grower should remember that potatoes do best on loose loam which may be inclined to sandy for the earlier potato plantings. Plenty of organic matter is essential as it opens up heavier types of soil. To these as well as higher soils it adds fertility and gives them the ability to hold larger quantities of water.

Even though you have a fertile piece of soil for your potatoes spread well rotted manure over it now at the rate of at least fifteen or twenty loads to the acre. Fresh manure should be added with caution as it has a tendency to make scab worse and often drys out the soil. Where fresh manure is added it should be applied now and thoroughly worked up with the soil in the early spring and followed immediately by deep breaking.

For early plantings the ground is best fall plowed, but if this has not been done, plow as early as possible in the spring. Late potato soil should likewise be plowed early at least 8 inches deep and reworked at frequent intervals until planting. This destroys the weeds and retains the [illegible].

Commercial fertilizer may well be [illegible] to our potato [illegible] if they have been manured. On the average loam soils a 500 pound application of a complete fertilizer analyzing about 2 percent nitrogen, 12 percent phosphoric acid and 6 percent potash is [illegible]. [illegible]

When potatoes are grown on black loams or on [illegible] is the most important [illegible] [illegible] to Yaggy, then cashier of the bank, but Mrs. Solon declared that she never received it. Judge John Moran, of Decatur, was called to act as special judge in the triangular law suit, which proved to be one of the most complicated ever tried here, and he returned a finding after taking the case under advisement.

[illegible]

Yaggy, shortly after he is alleged to have received the money from Kammeyer, confessed to embezzlement of the bank's funds and was sentenced to the state prison from two to 14 years. The banking company claimed that he also embezzled the money Kammeyer gave him and Mr. Hoffman declared that the several men who went on the former cashier's personal bond will have to make the amount good.

Kammeyer was absolved from liability at the trial, but Judge Moran claimed that the bank was responsible, although the officials asserted that Yaggy was acting as Mrs. Solon's agent in the transaction and not as their cashier.

"COLD IN THE HEAD"

is an acute attack of Nasal Catarrh. Those subject to frequent "colds" are generally in a "run down" condition. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a Treatment consisting of an Ointment, to be used locally, and a Tonic, which acts Quickly through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces, building up the System, and making you less liable to "colds." Sold by druggists for over 40 Years. F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O.

600 Millions Spent on Roads the Past Year.

The Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Deprtment of Agriculture estimate the total expenditure for construction and maintenance of roads in the country in 1921 to be $600,000,000. The sources of this fund are approximately as follows: Motor-vehicle revenue, 19 per cent; State road bonds, 7 per cent; local road bonds, 38 per cent; State taxes and appropriations, 12 per cent; Federal aid, 14 per cent; county, township, and district taxes and assessments, 14 per cent; and miscellaneous, 1 per cent.

Free Scholarships in Musical College

The Chicago Musical College is announcing free scholarships to be given in the Summer Master School by Prof. Leopold Auer, Herbert Witherspoon, Oscar Saenger, Percy Grainger, Richard Hagerman, Florence Hinkle, Clarence Eddy and Ivan Tarasoff.

The scholarships, which are awarded by competition, may mean the turning point in young artists' careers. They represent to the holder entirely free tuition.

The brilliance of the teaching in the Chicago Musical College, the enthusiasm of teachers and students the remarkable inspiration resulting from the work done in it, have made its fame world-wide The institution and its guest-teachers desire to make special recognition of the great talent which abounds in America. Felix Borowski is the president of the college and Carl D. Kinsey, manager.

To Be Members of H. S. Alumni

Recently in the News we have published the names of the members of the Alumni Society of the [illegible]. Now we will give [illegible] of the class of [illegible] in April, [illegible] members of the Alumni Society.

[illegible]

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

Chamberlain's Tablets

✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱

Political Announcements

✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱

Wm. P. Endicott,

For Judge 35th Judicial District,

DeKalb and Steuben Counties, Republican Ticket. Subject to Primaries, May 2nd.

Born in Cass county, Indiana, 41 years ago.

Raised on a farm

Taught ten years in Indiana public schools.

Received law education at Indiana University, paying his own way.

Has actively practiced law in DeKalb and Steuben counties for 12 years, a longer period than many judges have practiced before occupying such positions.

Makes no claim and no boast of greatness, but refers you to those who know him as to his integrity and ability.

Your support will be appreciated.

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor, subject to your will at the May primaries. L. W. Yeiser.

For Auditor.

I wish to announce that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for auditor of DeKalb county at the Primary May 2nd. Your support will be appreciated.

W. G. Erick.

For Recorder.

George J. Kayser of Auburn announces his name for the democratic nomination for Recorder of DeKalb county at the primaries, May 2, 1922.

For Sheriff

I desire to inform the public that I am a candidate on the democratic ticket, subject to their nomination [illegible] of DeKalb county at the [illegible] primary. Your support will be appreciated.

Grover C. Sapp.

For Assessor

[illegible]

A NEW NOVEL
by the Author of
"Tess of the Storm Country,"
"The Shadow of the Sheltering Pines," etc.

Storm Country Polly

By GRACE MILLER WHITE

LOVE, tenderness, heroism and fine sentiments are attributes of the human heart and soul, existing irrespective and frequently in spite of environment; quite as likely to be found in hovel as in palace.

Grace Miller White discovered a mine of human contrasts and a wonderful new setting for romance and heroism in her squatter settlement on the shore of Lake Cayuga, within sight of busy, prosperous Ithaca and almost under the shadow of classic Cornell university.

Polly is the latest find and likely to be quite as popular as Tess, Tonnibel Devon or any other of the author's sweetly appealing heroines.

We shall print this story as a serial. In book form it would cost you as much as this paper for a year. In a magazine or metropolitan newspaper, it would be made the basis of a subscription campaign.

Read It in These Columns!

Only a few copies of March Ladies Home Journal left.

Notice of Administration

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that the undersigned has been appointed by the DeKalb Circuit Court, of the State of Indiana, Administrator of the Estate of Lina Rummell, deceased, late of said county.

Said estate is supposed to be solvent.

WILLIAM G. ERICK,
Administrator.

Mar. 7, 1922.

Atkinson, Endicott, Husselman,
Attorneys.

Hundreds of Thousands of WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARIES are in use by business men, engineers, bankers, [illegible], architects, physicians, teachers, librarians, clergymen, by successful men and women the world over.

Are You Equipped to Win?

[illegible]

MARCH

You cannot afford not to save

THE disposition to save is the sure mark of determination to succeed.

Whatever your business and whatever your present prospects may be you cannot afford not to save

One dollar opens an account here. ☛ Start saving today.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

-Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

The MAULE SEED BOOK FREE

This wonderful 176-page book gives you the benefit of [illegible] experience as [illegible], gardeners and farmers. Send a postal for it today

WM. HENRY MAULE, Inc. 2131 Arch St. Phila., Pa.

SPENCERVILLE

Patronize the advertisers.

For [illegible] at [illegible] ville, Ohio.

The C. C. club will be entertained on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Georgia Jenkins.

Rolla Moffett and family, of Auburn, spent Sunday with Jacob [illegible] and wife.

[illegible]

Geo. Jenkins spent Friday with friends in Auburn.

Roscoe Walter, W. P. Steward and Ernest Steward motored to Kendallville, Sunday.

Charles Chapman, who has spent the winter in Florida, is expected to start home this week.

Frank Wise and wife, of Auburn, were recent dinner guests of the James Vallieu home.

Mrs. Estella Goldsmith and her daughters, Gaylon and Virginia, were Sunday afternoon guests of B. F. Markle and family.

Miss Vera Silberg, of Garrett, was the week end guest of her mother, Mrs. M. J. Silberg and family.

Reuben Renn has accepted the position of care taker of the White City Cemetery; Wm. Markle resigned recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Florence Buchanan of St. Joe is spending a few weeks with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rhoades.

Mrs. Cal Saylor spent Monday afternoon with Vern Wilmot and family. Miss Ida Reed was a Wednesday evening guest in the same home.

Merriledene Furnish, little son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Furnish, of the County Line, is quite ill with threatened [illegible]. His grandmother, Mrs. [illegible], is [illegible]

Members of the Ladies' Aid [illegible]

Alumni Re-Organized

[illegible]

SPENCERVILLE

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Steward and son Dale were last Sunday guests of Mrs. Gertrude Markle's family.

Fred Strubing and wife spent Sunday the guests of the lady's parents, Milo Gorrall, Hicksville.

Mr. Ralph Gloyd, who has been spending the last few months at the home of his sister and husband, Fred Osborne and wife of Delphi, Ind., returned home last week.

Frank Steward of Garrett, who was injured last fall on the railroad, was sent to Baltimore to a hospital at that place. Mr. Steward's arm never got entirely well. He was accompanied by his wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Vol Hay were last Sunday evening guests of Frank Wertman and wife, and Greeley Weasley was a Sunday afternoon guest at the same home.

On Tuesday for dinner the following guests were entertained at the home of W. F. Rhoades and wife north of town: Wm. Lake and wife, Viuton Miller and wife and Mrs Margaret Rhoades.

Tanlac is a powerful, reconstructive, systematic and stomachic tonic. It tones up the system, restores lost appetite and makes you feel strong, sturdy and well, as nature intended. At Sheffer's Drug store.

Mrs. Pernettie Steward was recently called to the home of her son, Arthur Steward, of Garrett, by the serious illness of his wife, Mrs. Emma Steward, who underwent an operation at the Garrett hospital for appendicites. Mrs. Steward is doing as well as can be expected.

Aged Lady Dies

Mary Ann Brooks, widow of the late Willis B. Brooks, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Frank Hodges, of complications of diseases at 10:30 Saturday morning at the age of 73 years and 7 months. Mrs. Brooks was the daughter of John and Cassie Spindler and resided most of her life in Milan township. She leaves to mourn her departure five children: Mrs. Frank Hodges and Grover Brooks, of this place; Mrs. George Ringwalt, of near Harlan; Delbert Brooks, of near Ft. Wayne and Chas. Brooks of Grand Rapids, Mich. The funeral was held Tuesday morning at the Lutheran church at Harlan. Interment at the Bowers' chapel cemetery.

Four Hundred Dollars Over Appraisement

In spite of the bad weather and almost impassible roads, a splendid crowd attended the sale of the Orr estate south of Coburntown, last Saturday. Men seemed eager to buy and bid well, and every article sold over the appraisement price except the grain separator and the Waterloo Boy tractor. The separator sold for $425 less than cost and the tractor $200 less than cost. The total amount [illegible] Clyde E. Hart [illegible] for the estate.

MICKIE SAYS

[illegible] A [illegible] EDITOR [illegible] MERCHANT

Try This Code

Some St. Joe people may have been too busy a few weeks ago to make New Year resolutions, or they may not have had time to frame a set of good resolutions to guide them through the year. For their convenience, and believing that they will appreciate them, we have prepared the following which we suggest as a code worth posting up where you can see it several times a day.

I will smile at least once a day, and twice on Sunday.

I will attend and support church, for my own and the other fellow's good.

I will make my family happy, because a happy family will add to my happiness.

I will love myself less and my neighbors more.

I will plant a tree, a few shrubs, and a lot of good deeds.

I will not kick unless I know what I am kicking about.

I will vote my own vote and run my own business.

I will subscribe for my home town paper—read it—and see that it is always paid at least one year in advance.

Buy at Home

Economists are watching the sales of mail-order houses. When these sales begin increasing, they say, it will indicate that the farmers' buying power is being restored. Unfortunately, that is true.

It would be a much more desirable sign of general improvement if the upward swing would take place in the sales of small-town merchants instead of mail-order houses.

After all is said and done, an order placed away from home means that money will circulate away from home—outside your own community. It is always advisable for each individual of a community to do everything possible to make his community prosperous. Prosperity in Chicago or St. Louis or New York, or New Orleans or Atlanta or San Francisco or Seattle—these are fine and thrilling things to read about. They impart a snug and smug feeling of security that the country is getting back on its feet. But prosperity in some far-off city, while it eventually may extend to us, is not felt as immediately as prosperity right here at home.

When you buy from a mail-order house, you are contributing to the prosperity of a distant community. When you buy near home, you are contributing to the prosperity of your own community. The little you may save in ordering by mail is more than counteracted by your share of what the home community loses in the way of prosperity. The quickest way to get money circulating at home is to circulate money at home.

Fresh Copy.

Most any man can be an editor. All the editor has to do is to sit at a desk six days a week, four weeks in a month and twelve months in a year, and "edit" such stuff as this:

"Mrs. Jones of Cactus Creek let a can-opener slip last week and cut herself in the pantry."

"A mischievous lad of Piketown threw a stone and cut Mr. Pike in the alley last Tuesday."

"Joe Doe climbed on the roof of his house last week, looking for a leak and fell, striking himself on the back porch."

"While Harold Green was escorting Miss Violet Wise from a church social Saturday night a savage dog attacked them and bit Mr. Green on the public square."

"Isaac Trimmer, Running Creek, was playing with a cat Friday when it scratched him on the veranda."

"Mr. Frang, while harnessing a bronco last Saturday, was kicked just south of his corn crib."—Ex.

Coburns Corners

Mrs Matie Gee called on Mrs. Will Sommer, Sunday afternoon.

The Ladies' Aid will meet today (Thursday) with Mrs. Cordelia Dermott.

Mrs. Will Price and daughter, Margaret are spending the week in the Saxe Hadsell home.

Ford Size BATTERIES

It is always advisable to keep your BATTERIES in the best of repair.

Exchange your old one for a new one. We give you a new wood case set for your old one and $16.00

An all Rubber case set for your old one and $20.00.

These Batteries are guaranteed.

Mr. Bice, our battery man, is at Detroit for ten days recieving instructions on battery work.

F. W. SILBERG,
Spencerville, - Indiana

The EARLY BIRD Protects Himself

Every year about this time there is the story of the first robin, the harbinger of spring; and there is only one reason why the robin comes north early, and that is for nesting.

Just so it is with people. Spring makes us think about that home, implement shed, chicken coop or barn we want to build; some people start right out doing it the very first thing, while others delay uutil the contractors and tradesmen are all busy and then have to wait their turn.

Spring, with its speeding up—always more than any of us expect—is here. Now, you can provide yourself with such material as you know will be needed for building requirements. —Now, labor, materials and transportation are available. Later when, business qickens, there may be delays, also losses and increased costs.

For your own protection, we suggest that you start building early and order materials now.

Spencerville Lumber Co.,
Asher Culp, Mgr.

Don't forget the date of the Easter Millinery opening at Mrs. Warner's.

A fine bed of gravel was discovered, recently, on the Lew Carpenter farm near this place.

Mr and Mrs. Abner Trostel were callers at the Frank Tustison home Sunday afternoon.

The Geo. Wilmot family of St. Joe were guests in the homes of Ella Wilmot and Fred Douley last Sunday.

Mrs. Alva Perry was a visitor at the Stearl Wade home on Saturday afternoon in compliment to the recent arrival there—an 8-pound son.

Charles F. Miller and daughter, Miss Alma, have returned to their home in Tyrrell, Ohio, after spending a few days in Clyde Hart home.

Chas. Tustison was in Hicksville last Sunday. Mrs. Tustison, who has been a recent patient at the hospital there, will probably return home this week.

Claude Laub has rented a part of the Wm. Orr place for the season, in addition to his own farm, and has employed Harvey Rank of Butler to assist him with the work.

Preparations were begun at Sunday school, Sunday a. m., for an appropriate program to be rendered Easter morning at the church. The superintendent appointed Mr. Glen Hart, Portia Hadsell and Bernice Hart as a committee for music, and Saxe Hadsell, Clyde Hart and Mrs. Laney Gee for short addresses; there will be readings and other numbers given also.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible] AND BOYS [illegible] CLOTHING [illegible]

Fort Wayne, Ind.

MARCH

DOES YOUR HOUSEWORK SEEM HARD?

Has Your Strength Left You? Gude's Pepto-Mangan Will Restore It

If you have dyspepsia and headaches and feel "all in," don't take it for granted that there is no relief. Strength and ambition for your tasks will come when you build up your weakened blood with Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Take it with your meals a few weeks and see the permanent benefit. It is just the thing to aid you to recover full health. This wonderfully efficient form of food iron quickly improves the appetite, adds color to cheeks and lips and imparts strength to the jaded muscles. Remember to ask for "Gude's Pepto-Mangan." Sold in both liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement.

Giving the Old Man a Treat.

Goodpatter—I tell you, Nickelpinch, the whole town is talking about your driving your old father to the poorhouse in your automobile.

Nickelpinch—I reckon they see now that I can do a good turn once in a while. I never charged the old man a cent for it. Just sent the bill to the county.

DYED HER SKIRT, DRESS, SWEATER AND DRAPERIES WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her worn, shabby dresses, skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything, even if she has never dyed before. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is sure because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to spot, fade, streak or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.—advertisement.

White Spots on Wood.

The white spots left on the woodwork after it is washed are caused by the use of soap which is too strong. In cleaning woodwork, use luke-warm water and milk, soap suds or cleaning powder. These leave no spots and are good dirt removers.

NAME "BAYER" IS ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

Take Tablets Without Fear, if You See the Safety "Bayer Cross."

If you want the true, world-famous Aspirin, as prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, you must ask for "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin."

The "Bayer Cross" is stamped on each tablet and appears on each package for your protection against imitations.—Advertisement.

Somewhat Contradictory.

She—(tenderly)—"And are mine the only lips you have kissed?" He—"Yes, and they are the sweetest of all."

No Rubber but More Stretch in Nu-Way or EXCELLO [illegible] SUSPENDERS and a Year's Wear Guaranteed

Ask Your Dealer

If he hasn't them, send direct, [illegible] [illegible]. Look for guarantee label and name on buckles.

Nu-Way
Stretch is in the Spring

Price 75c

Ask for Nu-Way Garters and Hose Supporters

Nu-Way Strech Suspender Co., Mfrs., Adrian, Mich.

SALESMEN Wanted To Sell Our West Virginia Grown Nursery Stock. Fine canvassing outfit FREE. Cash [illegible] Paid Weekly. WRITE for terms. THE GOLD NURSERY CO. [illegible]

YOUR SPRING COAT, SUIT OR DRESS CLEANED LIKE NEW for $2 [illegible] new one for $5. Parcel post with instructions. We guarantee to please. TROY DRY CLEANING CO. [illegible]-12 Calhoun St., FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

The Best Way to Buy a Farm

Farms in the South as productive as Western [illegible] can be bought at low prices and [illegible] [illegible] Railway Department [illegible], D. C.

AGENTS

[illegible] earned selling [illegible]

[illegible] CO.,

[illegible], Chicago

Salesmen and Saleswomen Wanted

[illegible]

LET US START YOU

ELEPHANT'S BOARD AND KEEP

It Cost Nothing—That Wonderful Gift. But, Oh, the Horrors of Ownership That Followed.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

ON TWELVE HUNDRED DOLLARS a year the Wheelers had contrived to live thus far with some comforts and a few luxuries—they had been married two years. Genial, fun-loving, and hospitable, they had even entertained occasionally; but Brainerd was a modest town, and its Four Hundred was not given to lavish display.

In the bank Herbert Wheeler spent long hours handling money that was not his only to hurry home and spend other long hours over a tiny lawn and a tinier garden, where every blade of grass and every lettuce-head were marvels of grace and beauty, simply because they were his.

It was June now, and the lawn and the garden were very important; but it was on a June morning that the large blue envelope came. Herbert went home that night and burst into the kitchen like a whirlwind.

"Jessica, we've got one at last," he cried.

"One what?"

"An automobile."

Jessica sat down helplessly. In each hand she held an egg—she had been selecting two big ones for an omelet.

"Herbert, are you crazy? What are you talking about?" she demanded.

"About our automobile, to be sure," he retorted. "'Twas Cousin John's. I heard today—he's left it to us."

"To us! But we hardly knew him, and he was only a third or fourth cousin, anyway, wasn't he? Why, we never even thought of going to the funeral!"

"I know; but he was a queer old codger, and he took a great fancy to you when he saw you. Don't you remember? Anyhow, the deed is done."

"And it's ours?—a whole automobile?"

"That's what they say—and it's a three-thousand-dollar car."

"Oh, Herbert!" When Jessica was pleased she clapped her hands; she clapped them now—or rather she clapped the eggs—and in the resulting disaster even the automobile was for a moment forgotten. But for only a moment.

"And to think how we've wanted an automobile!" she cried, when the impromptu omelet in her lap had been banished into oblivion. "The rides we'll have—and we won't be pigs! We'll take our friends!"

"Indeed we will," agreed Herbert.

"And our trips and vacations, and even down town—why, we won't need any carfare. We'll save money, Herbert, lots of money!"

"Er—well, an auto costs something to run, you know," ventured Herbert.

"Gasoline, 'course!—but what's a little gasoline? I fancy we can afford that when we get the whole car for nothing!"

"Well, I should say!" chuckled the man.

"Where is it now?"

"In the garage on the estate," returned Herbert, consulting his letter. "I'm requested to take it away."

"Requested! Only fancy! As if we weren't dying to take it away!"

"Yes, but—how?" The man's face had grown suddenly perplexed.

"Why, go and get it, of course."

"But one can't walk in and pocket a motor-car as one would a package of greenbacks."

"Of course not! But you can get it and run it home. It's only fifty miles, anyhow."

"I don't know how to run an automobile. Besides, there's licenses and things that have to be 'tended to first, I think."

"Well, somebody can run it, can't they?"

"Well, yes, I suppose so. But—where are we going to keep it?"

"Herbert Wheeler, one would think you were displeased that we've been given this automobile. As if it mattered where we kept it, so long as we had it to keep!"

"Yes, but—really, Jessica, we can't keep it here—in the kitchen," he cried. "It's smashed two eggs already, just the mention of it," he finished whimsically.

"But there are places—garages and things, Herbert; you know there are."

"Yes, but they—cost something."

"I know it; but if the car is ours for nothing, seems as if we might be able to afford its board and keep!"

[illegible]

Does it cost that—all that? But then, the car doesn't cost anything," she added soothingly, after a pause.

"Oh, no, the car doesn't cost anything—only eight or ten dollars to bring it down by train, or else two dollars an hour for a chauffeur to run it down for us," retorted her husband.

"Eight or ten dollars! Two dollars an hour to run it!" gasped Jessica. "Why, Herbert, what shall we do? There is only ten dollars now of the household money to last the rest of the month; and there's this week's grocery bill and a dollar and a half for the laundry to pay!"

"That's exactly it—what shall we do?" snapped Herbert. This thing was getting on his nerves.

"But we must do," laughed Jessica hysterically. "The idea of giving up a three-thousand-dollar automobile because one owes a grocery bill and a dollar and a half for laundry!"

"Well, we can't eat the automobile, and it won't wash our clothes for us."

"Naturally not! Who wants it to?" Jessica's nerves, also, were feeling the strain.

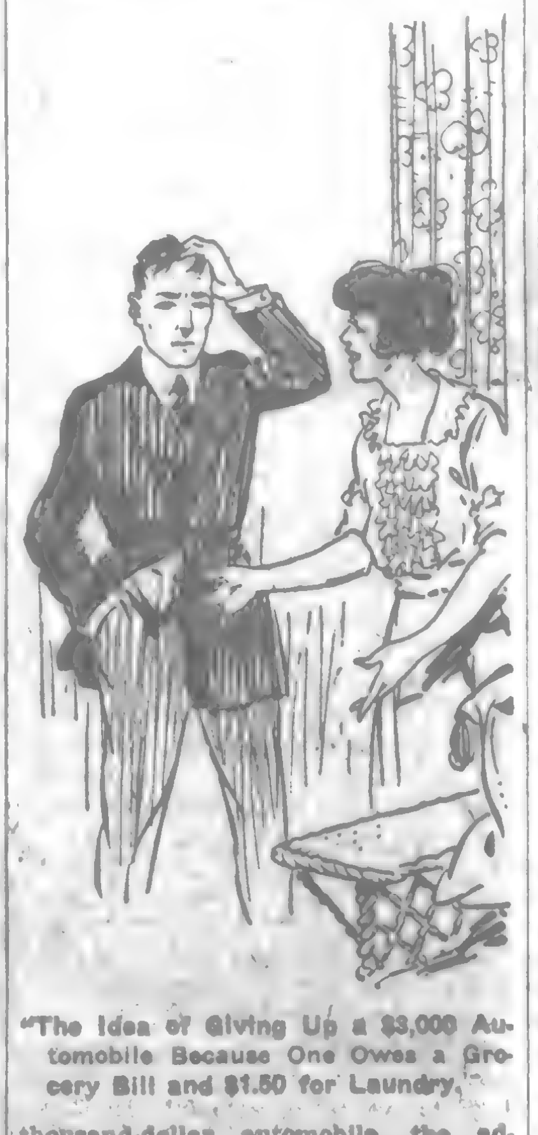
"We might—sell it."

"Sell it! Sell our automobile!" flamed Jessica; and to hear her, one would think the proposition was to sell an old family heirloom, beloved for years.

Her husband sighed.

"Isn't there something somewhere about selling the pot to get something to put into it?" he muttered dismally, as he rose to lock up the house for the night. "Well, I fancy that's what we'll have to do—sell the automobile to get money enough to move it!"

Two days later the automobile came. Perhaps the grocer waited. Perhaps the laundry bill went unpaid. Perhaps an obliging friend advanced a loan. Whatever it was, spic and span in Dearborn's garage stood the three-thousand-dollar automobile, the admired of every eye.



"The Idea of Giving Up a $3,000 Automobile Because One Owes a Grocery Bill and $1.50 for Laundry."

June had gone, and July was weeks old, however, before the preliminaries of license and lessons were over, and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wheeler could enter into the full knowledge of what it meant to be the joyous possessors of an automobile which one could run one's self.

"And now we'll take our friends," cried Jessica. "Who'll go first?"

"Let's begin with the A's—the Arnolds. They're always doing things for us."

"Good! I'll telephone Mrs. Arnold tonight. Tomorrow is Saturday, half-holiday. We'll take them down to the lake and come home by moonlight. Oh, Herbert, won't it be lovely?"

"You bet it will," exulted Herbert, as the thought of the Arnold's admiring [illegible] when their car should sweep [illegible].

[illegible] Saturday afternoon the Wheelers with their two guests [illegible]. It was a beautiful [illegible]

[illegible]

Arnold's said. The Arnolds talked of it, indeed, to each other, until they fell asleep—but even then they did not talk of it quite so long as their host worked cleaning up the car after the trip. Wheeler kept the automobile now in a neighbor's barn and took care of it himself; it was much cheaper than keeping it in Dearborn's garage.

There were several other friends in the A's and B's and two in the C's who were taken out in the Wheeler automobile before Herbert one day groaned:

"Jessica, this alphabet business is killing me. It does seem as if Z never would be reached!"

"Why, Herbert!—and they're all our friends, and you know how much they think of it."

"I think of it, too, when the dinner checks and the supper checks come in. Jessica, we just simply can't stand it!"

Jessica frowned and sighed.

"I know, dear; but when the car didn't cost anything——"

"Well, lobster salads and chicken patties cost something," mentioned the man grimly.

"I know it; but it seems so—so selfish to go all by ourselves with those empty seats behind us. And there are so many I have promised to take. Herbert, what can we do?"

"I don't know; but I know what we can't do. We can't feed them to the tune of a dollar or two a plate any longer."

There was a long pause; then Jessica clapped her hands.

"Herbert, I have it! We'll have basket picnics. I'll take lunch from the house every time. And, after all, that'll be lots nicer; don't you think so?"

"Well, that might do," acquiesced the man slowly. "Anyhow, there wouldn't be any dinner checks a-coming."

August passed and September came. The Wheelers were in "M" now; they had been for days, indeed. Even home-prepared luncheons were beyond the Wheelers' pocketbook now, and no friend had been invited to ride for a week past. The spoiling of two tires and a rather serious accident to the machine had necessitated the Wheelers spending every spare cent for repairs.

In the eyes of most of the town the Wheelers were objects of envy. They had an automobile. They could ride while others must plod along behind them on foot, blinded by their dust and sickened by their noisome odor of gasoline.

As long as the Wheelers were "decently hospitable" about sharing their car, the townspeople added to their envy an interested tolerance based on a lively speculation as to when one's own turn for a ride would come; but when a whole week went by, and not one of the many anxious would-be guests had been invited, the interest and the tolerance fled, leaving only an angry disdain as destructive to happiness as was the gasoline smell of the car itself.

There were some things, however, that the townspeople did not know. They did not know that, though the Wheelers had a motor-car, they had almost nothing else; no new clothes, except dust coats and goggles; no new books and magazines, except such as dealt with "the practical upkeep and operation of a car"; no leisure, for the car must be kept repaired and shining; no fresh vegetables to eat, for the garden had died long ago from want of care, and they could buy only gasoline. But they did have an automobile. This much the town knew; and there came a day when this fact loomed large and ominous on the horizon of the Wheeler's destiny.

On the first day of October the bank in which young Wheeler worked closed its doors. There had been a defalcation. A large sum of money was missing, and the long finger of suspicion pointed to Herbert Wheeler.

Did he not sport an automobile? Was he not living far beyond his means? Had not the Wheelers for weeks past flaunted their ill-gotten wealth in the very eyes of the whole town?

And so the town talked and wagged its head, and back in the tiny house in the midst of its unkept lawn and garden sat the angry, frightened, and appalled Herbert Wheeler, and Jessica, his wife.

In vain did the Wheelers point out that the automobile was a gift. In vain did they bare to doubting eyes the whole pitiful poverty of their daily life. The town refused to see or to understand; in the town's eyes was the vision of the Wheeler automobile flying through the streets with selfishly empty seats; in the town's nose was the hateful smell of gasoline. Nothing else signified.

To the bank examiners, however, something else did signify. But it took their [illegible] statement, together with the [illegible] of Cashier Jewett (the proved [illegible], to convince the town: and even then the town shook its head and said:

"[illegible] have been that automobile, [illegible]"

[illegible]

WRIGLEY'S

AFTER EVERY MEAL

Select your food wisely, chew it well, and—use WRIGLEY'S after every meal.

Your stomach will thank you.

It is both a benefit and a treat—good, and good for you.

And, best of all, the cost is small.

TRY THIS NEW ONE

Sugar jacket "melts in your mouth" and gum center remains to give you all the usual Wrigley's benefits.

WRIGLEY'S
P.K
CHEWING SWEET
10 PIECES
WRIGLEY'S
JUICY FRUIT
CHEWING GUM
THE FLAVOR LASTS
WRIGLEY'S
SPEARMINT
THE PERFECT GUM
MINT LEAF FLAVOR
UNITED COUPONS
WRIGLEY'S
DOUBLEMINT
CHEWING GUM
PEPPERMINT

Save the Wrappers

Wrigley's Wrappers are Good for Valuable Premiums

C40

Shining-up Days Are Here, Use

E-Z STOVE POLISH

Its Shine Is Wonderful

Save the coupons for kitchen aprons. Martin & Martin, Mfrs., Chicago

Drawn from actual photograph of Daryl Wilson, son of Mrs. Margaret Wilson, 1110 Eighth Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Are you as justly proud as this boy's mother?

DARYL WILSON is the kind of baby every mother wants her child to be. He is strong, sturdy, handome. He has been voted the best baby in two baby shows in Milwaukee, Wis., where he lives.

Mrs. Wilson attributes his fine health to Eagle Brand, on which he was raised. Mrs. Wilson was an Eagle Brand baby too, so of course she brought up her little son on it. This is one of the thousands of cases where Eagle Brand has been the accepted baby food for several generations in the same family. In some cases grandmother, mother, and child were all reared on it. For Eagle Brand has been the standard for sixty-four years.

No thoughtful mother would experiment with her baby. Mother's milk is best, of course, but if it fails for any reason, Eagle Brand is the natural substitute. Eagle Brand is not a "prepared" food at all. It is nothing but pure milk and pure sugar combined. Mothers all over the country have written us of the wonderful results they have had in feeding it to their babies. And doctors recommend it in stubborn feeding cases—it is so very digestible.

Eagle Brand Milk is entirely safe, pure and uniform. Each can is like the last, so that there is not the slightest variation in baby's food—a most important consideration according to modern specialists. And you can buy Eagle Brand anywhere. Get it in quantity so that you always have a supply. Even in hot weather the unopened cans keep indefinitely.

Are you keeping a record of your baby's characteristics, sayings, etc.? You will treasure it in later years. Write for our beautiful little record book "The Best Baby". It will be sent you FREE, together with an Eagle Brand Feeding Chart.

THE BORDEN COMPANY
Borden Building, New York

MAIL THIS COUPON FOR FREE BOOK

The Borden Company
Dept. 4131, Borden Building
New York, N. Y.

I would like to have your record book "The Best Baby" and also information and feeding chart for using Eagle Brand.

Name ____________________

Address ____________________

Western Canada Offers Health and Wealth

and has brought [illegible] and happiness to thousands [illegible]

[illegible]

MARCH

A Short Time Ago I Weighed Only 80 Pounds---I Now Weigh 112 Pounds and

TANLAC

is what built me up so wonderfully, says Mrs. Barbara Weber, 315 Van Ness Ave., San Francisco. She is but one of thousands similarly benefited.

If you are under weight, if your digestion is impaired, if you are weak and unable to enjoy life to the fullest measure, you should take Tanlac. At all good druggists.

Poor Kidneys—Poor Health

Backaches, headaches, stiff joints and muscles too often indicate sluggish, diseased, weak kidneys. Take Dodd's Kidney Pills—right away—before Bright's disease begins its deadly work. Tomorrow may be too late. Dodd's saves thousands of lives yearly—has been used and recommended enthusiastically for over two generations. Money returned if dissatisfied.

Sold by Good Druggists everywhere —60c. for large box. If your druggist is sold out—send price direct to

DODD'S MEDICINE CO., Buffalo, N. Y.

A Mild Laxative — Diamond Dinner Pills — Never Gripe

Not Ever.

Rastus (to Sambo, in an undertone)—I ain't the man I useter wus. Time wus when I could whip the ol' woman in a fair, stan-up fight.

The Old Woman (overhearing)—You's a black liar, Rastus Johnsing. Time wuzn't, time ain't, an' time ain't gwine to wus.—Nashville Tennessean.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Our instincts tell us not to do wrong; unfortunately, they also tell us not to do right.

Paul S. Magrue

Cincinnati, Ohio—"Some years ago I suffered from lowered vitality and liver trouble. I took Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and now have excellent health. I can never forget what this valuable remedy has done for me and can recommend it for all rundown conditions caused from overwork or for sluggish liver."—Paul S. Magrue, 5501 Madison Road.

Health is your most valuable asset. Do not neglect it. Go at once to your neighborhood drug store and get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form or send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial pkg. or write for free medical advice.

COUGH

KEMP'S BALSAM

Clear Baby's Skin With Cuticura Soap and Talcum

[illegible]

[illegible]

KING PIN

PLUG TOBACCO

[illegible]

"the good kind"

[illegible]

INDIANA STATE NEWS

Terre Haute.—Officials of District 11, United Mine Workers of America, which includes most of Indiana's coal fields, sent to the various locals of the district copies of a statement warning the members against practices calculated to create dissension in the ranks and retard the work of organization. Particular stress is placed on the practice of union miners taking employment in small mines not under union contract and against giving aid to the men in rebellion against the union in the Kansas district. Present wage agreements in the central competitive field, which includes Indiana, Ohio, Illinois and West Virginia, expire March 31 and the present indications are that there will be a strike as a result of failure to negotiate new contracts with the operators.

Terre Haute.—Rose Polytechnic institute here will receive $100,000 for a building as a memorial to Demas Deming and Sarah C. Deming, parents of Demas Deming, through the will of the latter, which has been filed in the Probate court. The love Mr. Deming had for little children was shown in a bequest of $20,000 to the Terre Haute Day Nursery. The Terre Haute Social Settlement will receive $10,000 and the Society for Organizing Charity will receive $5,000. Mr. Deming died a few days ago following several weeks of illness. He was president of the First National bank of Terre Haute.

Shelbyville.—Members of the Washington Township (Shelby county) Farmers' association, went on record as being opposed to building any new roads or new school buildings in the township during the next three years. The members of the association asserted in a resolution that with valuations on property dropping, and an increase in the tax rate in sight, they favor as much retrenchment as possible during the next few years, in an effort to keep down the expense. Copies of the resolution were sent to the township trustee and other township officials.

Indianapolis.—The collections of the state automobile license department for this year amounted the first half of the month to $411,000 more than the collections for the same period of 1921, the superintendent of the department said. This is the first year the automobile police, created under the 1921 law, have been patrolling highways. This is the first year also that licenses were procurable from substations over the state. The superintendent said collections to date amount to more than $2,089,000.

Indianapolis.—The state highway commission advertised for bids to be opened in the statehouse, April 4, on the construction of approximately 40 miles of hard-surfaced highways. This is a part of the commission's 1922 building program which totals 118.7 miles. The contracts for the construction of 44 miles of the program, in the National road from Richmond to Terre Haute, were awarded last week.

Indianapolis.—Announcement that the locomotive department of the Beech Grove shops of the Big Four Railway company, which has been closed since February 15, would resume operations under the contract plan was made at Indianapolis by the superintendent of motive power for the railway company, and Edward S. Goodrich, president of the Railway Service and Supply corporation, which has the contract.

Indianapolis.—The state law regulating the labeling of mattresses, under which indictments against 21 Indianapolis furniture companies and individuals were returned last fall for failure to label mattresses, was upheld by Judge James A. Collins, in the criminal court, in overruling motions presented by attorneys for the furniture companies and the individuals to quash the indictments.

Hammond.—Compliance with the principal condition contingent upon the location of the $20,000,000 Jones & Laughlin steel plant at Hammond, was completed when the United States house of representatives passed Senator New's bill providing for the improvement of the west branch of the Indiana Harbor ship canal. The bill already passed by the senate now goes to the President for his signature.

Indianapolis.—The Indiana Society of Sanitary Engineers, at the close of its three-day convention in Indianapolis, elected J. A. [illegible] of Muncie, president; Henry C. [illegible] of Gary, vice-president, and [illegible] Hartwe[illegible] of [illegible], secretary-treasurer. [illegible]

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—Robert H. Bryson, postmaster, has received official notification that the 1921 treasury savings sales contest between postmasters of third and fourth class post offices in Indiana and Illinois was won by Indiana. The following third class offices in Indiana are listed as having raised more than their quota: Akron, Avilla, Butler, Cloverdale, Coatesville, Ferdinand, Frankton, Fulton, Galveston, Hillsboro, Howe, Jonesboro, Lynn, Middlebury, Middletown, Monon, Remington, St. Meinrad, Sandborn, Scottsburg, Universal, Westfield, Westport, Wheatland, Whitestown and Winslow. The following fourth class offices exceeded their quota: Alton, Elizabethtown, Flatrock, Hall, Napoleon, New Salisbury, Patoka, Patricksburg, Quincy and St. Louis Crossing.

Princeton.—Judge R. C. Batzell, in the Gibson Circuit court, rendered judgment for a fine of $100 and costs, with a sentence of three months at the Indiana state farm, against Frank Bolin and 13 other miners found guilty by a jury of rioting. The case grew out of disturbances at Francisco when W. E. Cox, superintendent of the Francisco mine, and his family were driven from home. A motion by the defense for a new trial was denied. The defendants severally were granted 60 days in which to file a bill of exceptions. Pending an appeal to the Indiana Supreme court, the defendants are at liberty under $1,000 bond each.

Lafayette.—Certificates signifying successful completion of the annual eight weeks' winter course in agriculture and home economics were given to 57 of the 91 persons who completed the 1922 course at Purdue university. The number receiving certificates in the various courses of study were: General agriculture, 28; animal husbandry, 14; dairying, 11; home economics, 4. Those not getting the certificates did not take complete courses, entering as special students in various lines.

Indianapolis.—The 1922 bridge building program of the state highway department includes the building of 107 bridges at a cost of approximately $2,290,000, it was said in the department office. A few of the bridges will not be built new but substantial repairs practically will make them over. The federal government will share half of the cost of 65 of the structures, which will cost approximately $1,917,000. The state alone will build 89 structures to cost about $373,000.

Indianapolis.—Indiana has a lost city. It is, or was Hindostan, one-time county seat of Marion county. Indiana state library records show that not a house or street remains where the once prosperous little town stood. The site now is farm land. Hindostan, practically the first settlement in Marion county, was founded in 1819 or 1820. It was located at the falls, on the east fork of White river, 18 miles east of Washington and 15 miles west of Paoli.

Indianapolis.—The amount of grains in the hands of Indiana farmers March 1, this year was considerably less than last year, according to the monthly report of the co-operative crop reporting service for Indiana. Value of farm lands also shows a heavy increase, the amount for improved lands being $22 per acre, and for unimproved lands $20 per acre. This is a decrease from last year of approximately $350,000,000 on the total acreage of farm lands.

South Bend.—School teachers in Indiana may be affected by the outcome of an injunction suit filed in the St. Joseph Circuit court at South Bend by George E. Roop, an instructor in the South Bend high school, against the city of South Bend, the city board of school trustees and the trustees of the Indiana state teachers' retirement fund. Roop's complaint alleges that the 1921 amendment to the teachers' pension law is invalid.

Lafayette.—Purdue university coeds live more cheaply than the men students, room and board only being considered, shows a report made public by the Purdue Union investigating committee, which sent out [illegible]naires to all students. The number of forms filled out and returned was 1,652. The general average expense for women was [illegible] a school year, while for men it was [illegible].

Indianapolis.—Julia D. Nelson of Muncie, first woman to hold a seat in the Indiana general assembly, filed declaration of candidacy for renomination for representative from Delaware county. She was among 22 to file declarations.

Warsaw.—Kosciusko county will have a weigher and sealer if the county council [illegible] for the support of [illegible] create the office.

[illegible]

MOTHER, QUICK! GIVE CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP FOR CHILD'S BOWELS

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Honest.

"Yes, I can give you a job. You may gather eggs for me if you are sure you won't steal any." "Youse could trust me wid anything, lady. I wus manager of a bathhouse for fifteen years an' never took a bath."—Judge.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

DOGS GIVEN VICTORIA CROSS

Three Have Been Awarded Highest British Decoration for Bravery in Face of the Enemy.

The English in asking that the Victoria Cross be awarded to the cat which so heroically saved her young during the fire of the Printemps only follow an example given by the queen of England herself. To appreciate the value of this reward we must remember that the Victoria Cross is for a soldier, general or private, the highest military order.

In the last war at the utmost 50 have been awarded. However, several dogs belonging to the British army have received this honor. These were: Bob of the Royal Berkshire, which in the Afghanistan war saved the life of several soldiers; Jack, which accomplished the same feats at the battle of the Alma, and Jerry, the hero of the Crimean war, which received from the city of Dublin a medal and—a dinner. The odds are that the mess made the dog happier than the medal.—New York Tribune.

Improved Weather Map.

Three-dimension maps are being made by the United States weather bureau as a result of the development of flying, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. It was found necessary to chart wind directions at different levels for the airmen. A weather map carrying wind direction arrows for different levels is photographed from two angles, and when the two pictures are seen through a stereoscope, they blend, bringing the posts and arrows into strong relief.

In your years of strength prepare for your years of weakness.

Genuine

BAYER

ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache	Rheumatism
Toothache	Neuralgia	Neuritis
Earache	Lumbago	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

DISTEMPER AMONG HORSES Successfully Treated With

Spohn's Distemper Compound

At this time of year horses are liable to contract contagious diseases—DISTEMPER, INFLUENZA, COUGHS and COLDS. As a preventive against these, an occasional dose of "SPOHN'S" is marvelously effective. As a remedy for cases already suffering, "SPOHN'S" is equally effective. Give it as a preventive. Don't wait. On sale at drug stores.

SPOHN MEDICAL COMPANY GOSHEN, INDIANA

Britain's Balmy Climate.

London Daily Mirror—Her hair is always exquisitely dressed and her shoes in perfect shape. No more in the way of dress is required of any woman.

No ugly, grimy streaks on the clothes when Red Cross Ball Blue is used. Good bluing gets good results. All grocers carry it.—Advertisement.

WHY SOME MEN LEAVE HOME

This Kind of Thing, Served Up Daily, Would Drive Almost Anyone From His Loved Fireside.

"George, dear," cried wifey from the bedroom, "have you shut the dining room window?"

"Yes, love."

"Put the plate basket behind the bookcase?"

"Um!"

"Have you put the dog out?"

"Yes."

"Sure you bolted the scullery door?"

"Sure."

"Turned off the gas in the cellar?"

"Yes, precious."

"Wound the clock?"

"Yes, darling."

"Brought in the mat from the porch?"

"I have, my ownest."

"Have you locked up the wine?"

"Yes, yes, my sweetheart. I have done even that."

"Well, there's no need to get wild about it. Why can't you come to bed at some decent hour? What on earth have you been doing down there all this time?"—London Tit-Bits.

Slim Missed Something.

The company clerk had been reprimanded by the first sergeant on several occasions, and he was beginning to have a chronic grouch. One evening he came into the company quarters looking gloomier than ever.

"Whatsa matter, Slim?" asked his buddy. "You musta been havin' some more hard luck!"

"Hard luck?" said Slim. "I'll say I had hard luck. The company commander came around this morning and bawled out the top, and I wasn't there to hear it."—The Leatherneck.

Dignity and extreme politeness are often employed to keep foolish people at their distance.

LOOK—New Invention 50 Egg hen Hatching Incubator. Setting hen produces the necessary heat, automatically becomes a brooder when eggs are hatched, guaranteed to hatch every hatchable egg. You can make one in a few hours' spare time, material costs less than $1. Send $1.25 for drawings and specifications, money refunded if not satisfactory. Address John Fraser, B. 673, Rochester, N. Y.

Auto Necessities, Sun Watch, Bild-a-Boat, other novelties. Big profits. Agents Wtd. Cinci. Mail Trading Co., Sta. K, Cincinnati, O.

Lahey cured 30 years baldness with I-GROW. Guaranteed cure for Itchy Scalp, Dandruff, Falling Hair and Baldness or money refunded. Trial jar $1 prepaid. Local agents wanted. I-GROW, 96 Sheridan St., Jamaica Plain, Mass.

TIRE SALESMEN Sell Guaranteed Cord and fabric standard firsts. 35% consumers' discount. Write Hill, The Arcade, Cleveland, O.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 12--1922.

HAD NO "COMEBACK" TO THAT

Marine's Winterfield Uniform Scored Heavily on the Khaki Which Started the Controversy.

The marine's three uniforms hung side by side underneath his clothing shelf: one winterfield, one blue and one khaki. Suddenly the khaki uniform grew critical.

"You look pretty green," it said to the winterfield.

The winterfield uniform made no reply.

"And that outfit right next to you must be downhearted—it looks so blue," the khaki uniform went on.

The winterfield then spoke up: "I might be green," it said, "and that outfit right next to me might have the 'blues,' but doggone your hide—you're yellow!"

The khaki uniform piped down.—The Leatherneck.

A Carver.

The new boarder shyly took his seat at Mrs. Simpkins' table.

"May I ask, sir," said the old boarder, "what your occupation is?"

"Oh, I am a sculptor," replied the newcomer.

"You carve marble, do you?" pursued the veteran.

"I do."

"Then," continued the other, "I see you will be a valuable acquisition in this happy house. Do you mind coming up to this end of the table and carving the fowl?"

Just So.

"Your heart seems to miss a beat now and then." "Engine trouble, eh, doc?"

Wishing for sleep is a poor way to get it

A LITTLE wisdom in the daytime is a better assurance of rest than any amount of anxious wishing when nerves are a-jangle at night.

What you do at noon often has more influence on sleep than what you want and hope for, at midnight.

Coffee's drug element, caffeine, [illegible] and when its [illegible] a pen[illegible] no amount of [illegible] effort [illegible].

[illegible]

turbance to nerves or digestion. Even the little children can share in the enjoyment of Postum at any meal.

It's better to anticipate warnings than to be driven by them.

It's better to [illegible] and preserve sound nerves and [illegible] health than to [illegible] at night and say, "I wish!"

You can get Postum [illegible]

[illegible]

"Postum for Health—[illegible]"

[illegible]

MARCH

FOR SALE

REGISTERED SPOTTED POLANDS

Doubled Immuned—5 sows due to farrow in April; 1 boar, 2 1-2 years old.

FARMING TOOLS

Iron Age Potatoe Planter, fertilizer attachment complete, good as new; Elevator Potatoe Digger, 3-horse Disc with tongue trucks.

T. A. NORTHRUP

2 miles west and 1 mile south of St. Joe.

Musical Art

Conducting and Teaching a Specialty.

Appointments can be made for beginners and advanced pupils at any time desired.

Call personally Mr. WILCOX, 2nd [illegible] west of Opera House, St. Joe, Ind.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

[illegible] NOTARY PUBLIC

Local Briefs

[illegible]

Mrs. Wm. Malone is reported as slowly improving.

Mrs. Alfred Reasoner is caring for Mrs. Virginia Lawsen this week.

Many cases of LaGrippe are reported here, some being quite ill with the complaint.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brown were Sunday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Northrup.

Mr. and Mrs Chas. Koch were Sunday dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price.

Simon Chubb spent last Sunday night with relatives at Spencerville and on Monday went to Ft. Wayne.

Chas. Abel left Saturday for his home at Hesperia, Michigan, after spending several months here with his mother, Mrs. S. A. Abel.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Belden of Fort Wayne spent Satusday night and Sunday last with Mr. and Mrs Will Koch.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Herrick and children were last Sunday guests of his parents, Mr and Mrs. Orange Herrick.

F. H. Langley, of Chicago, was an over Sunday guest of Mrs. Alice Warner.

Mrs. E. A. Dallyis, of Ney, Ohio, spent from Saturday until Monday with her daughter, Mrs. Hickman.

For fashions, get a copy of the spring number of McCall's Embroidery Book at the News office.

Samuel Widney returned home last Saturday from a week's visit with his sister, Mrs. Alice Lewis, at Auburn.

The Orchestra made almost $5 at their bake sale, Saturday afternoon which was held at Brown's Restaurant.

Kwikstick, the sanitary mucilage—no muss, no fuss, no spilling, no brush, no waste—10 cts., at the News Office.

Mrs. Jennie White of Ft. Wayne spent from Tuesday until Friday a guest of her uncle and wife, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Terman.

For Sale—Residence property in good repair, at a low price, located on main street; other properties at reasonable [illegible].
-S. S. Widney.

I thank the ladies of St. Joe and community for past favors and would be pleased to have them call and see the hats at Mrs. Warner's.

[illegible]

Tom Brunson and family took dinner Tuesday with C. C. Bassette'

Mr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer had Sunday dinner with their son Craig and family.

Tuesday was fine winter day for the first day of spring; don't you think?

Miss Catherine Kinsey has returned home from Angola Tri State Normal where she has been attending the winter term of school

Dorothy Bowman went to Angola, Tuesday, where she will attend the spring term of the normal course, which begins this week.

Mrs. Jennie Sechler spent Monday and Tuesday last at Auburn attending the county W. C. T. U. Institute.

If you are run down, discouraged and out of heart, get a bottle of Tanlac and see how different it makes you feel. Sheffer's.

Three candidates from the Spencerville K. of P. lodge were given second degree work at the local lodge Wednesday evening

William Beam and little son of Logansport spent Saturday night and Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs Sam Kees.

Mrs. Alice Copp returned home Saturday from several weeks' visit with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. B. V. Widney at Albion.

The interior of E. R. Kinsey's store has been improved greatly already this spring. It has been painted and the stock rearranged in a more pleasing style.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sechler spent from Wednesday until Saturday as guests of their daughter, Mrs. Everett Mavis and family, at Hicksville.

Roscoe Conine of Hicksville, Rev. Steffey of Spencerville, Mrs. J. R Gill of St Joe, and I. L. Ackley of Ridgefield, Wash., are the latest new subscribers to the News.

Monday was the last day for winter according to the almanacs. Surely it was a typical winter day and we hope that such days end with the calendar winter.

Miss Vera Silberg, who is teaching in Garrett, spent a short time Saturday here with her aunt, Mrs. H. S. Bowman, while enroute to her home in Spencerville.

The W. C. T. U. will meet Friday afternoon with Mrs. R. B. Daily, at which time such articles as have been donated for use in the Fort Wayne Girls' home will be packed for shipment.

The two auto busses running between here and Fort Wayne were each unable to get to St Joe, Monday evening, on account of the bad roads together with the snow that had drifted in the tracks. The drivers left their machines near Leo.

Mrs. Alice Gee will entertain the Martha Society, Thursday afternoon. Each member is requested to bring plain blocks of calico or percale 5½ by 5½ inches to the number of six or more. There will be work.

The [illegible] was off duty two [illegible] on account of [illegible]. He is running [illegible].

[illegible]

FOR WEAR EVERYWHERE

This smart day-time dress of smooth-faced wool suiting is of the sort approved by fashion for wear everywhere that suits are worn. Its lines are graceful and simple, revealing the development of draped effects in skirts. It adopts the vogue of picturesque sleeves, lined with silk in a contrasting color, and of handsome girdles of beads or metal.

HERE AND THERE

Ft. Wayne—Jas. G. Gillespie, a Ft. Wayne youth of 23 years, was arrested at Detroit, Saturday afternoon, in connection with the hold-up and robbery of the Orpheum theatre of that city, and he has made a complete confession of the robbery.

Edgerton, Ohio:—The local congregation of the Church of Christ have extended a call to J. Evard Smith, of Payne, Ohio, to become their pastor, for two years. He will move his family to Edgerton about June 1. Mr. Smith will serve the Edgerton church half time, alternating with the church at Farmer.

Harlan—Failing to notice the approach of an uncoming interurban car, Aaron Amstuts, 42 years old, a resident of Harlan, was instantly killed, and his brother, Delbert, was injured, when the light Ford truck, in which the two men were riding, was struck by a speeding interurban on the Lincoln highway crossing near New Haven, at 11:45 o'clock Saturday morning. The remarkable thing is that both men were not killed.

LOCAL ITEMS IN BRIEF.

Mrs. F. R. Bowman is sick this week. Catherine Kinsey is helping her with her house work.

There will be preaching services at the Lutheran Church, Sunday evening. The Choral Society will furnish the music.

MAGAZINES—
Ladies' Home Journal, for Mar.;
Red Book, for March;
Hunter-Trader-Trapper, March:
Modern Priscilla, for April;
Hearst's, for April;
Popular Science, for April.
At the News Office

Card of Thanks.

We desire to express our sincere thanks to [illegible] for their [illegible] during the [illegible] band [illegible] and [illegible] offered. [illegible]

What Bob Says.

But [illegible]

6% MONEY FOR FARMERS!

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements at 6%.

Loans for more than 40% and not to exceed 50% of the value of the land and buildings, made at 7%.

☞ Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

STRAUS BROTHERS COMPANY

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.

Patronize the Advertisers.

Shelf paper—News office.

Where do you Trade?

You will notice that there are new advertisements in this issue These firms are ones of business principles. They are fair and square in their dealings and give you the best for your money.

If you live in Spencerville or near trade with these advertisers. If you live in St. Joe or near that is the place to do your business and especially with the firms whose ads you read in our paper.

Maxwell Bros. at Hicksville is the place to get your ready-made men's clothes.

Christian Church Notes

Bible School next Sunday morning at 9:30; after Communion, Charles Lawson will have charge of the services; Christian Endeavor at 6 p. m; preaching by the pastor R. B. Daily at 7:00 p. m.

The Loyal Sons and Daughters Class will hold their regular all day monthly meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley.

Three new names have been added to the Cradle Roll as follows:—Hilda Marguerite, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Brown; Winnifred Virginia, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Poper, and Morris Junior, little son of Mr. and Mrs Iona Woodcox.

The International Attendance Contest which has been running the past eighteen weeks closed March 5th. The Loyal Boys and Girls were the only contestants from the St Joe School and while they did not win in their division they feel proud of the fact that they came out second; the winners being a class of boys from a large Cincinnati Sunday School. There being thirteen entrants in this division.

Farm Bureau

How many farmers have forgotten most of the talks given by "Jones and Schwab" and are slipping back in that old rut not to get out again for awhile?

Why is farming the greatest and best industry of yesterday, to-day and tomorrow? Chiefly because it is through the hand of God that this great work is carried on.

Where will our children find a chance to obtain the necessary foods to sustain life if we do not leave the soil richer in plant life than when we received it.

The population of the world is growing larger, cities taking up more of the acres that are now used to grow food. Consequently we will have to farm more intensively, improve our soils and crops to take care of the millions that are to come.

Let us all work for the betterment of the human family, and for those things that make life worth while.

HARTZOG EYE SIGHT SPECIALIST

--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight
SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist office, St. JOE
Friday, MARCH 24, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL

[illegible]

MARCH

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI — ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, MARCH ,30 1922 — No. 13

OUR CLOTHES ARE MADE OF ALL WOOL CLOTH

Our Clothing is not only made of pure, long-fiber wool but it is made carefully by skilled tailors right down to the last stitch, and our "snappy" models make you have that well-dressed look and "feel."

You Need New Spring Clothes. Come to us for them. We will charge you $20 for a twenty dollar suit. We are not going to lie to you just to sell you one suit and then lose you for a customer; we want your business for life.

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville — Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Buy your CLOVER SEED
Timothy Seed, Alsike and Alfalfa Seed from us. We handle Bran, Middlings, Tankage, Cotton Seed Meal, Oil Meal.

COAL— If you need a ton or two to carry you over buy now; we have it.

BEST VIRGINIA AND HOCKING COAL ONLY.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept. — Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Safety and Convenience

Do you know that nine-tenths of the business of the United States is done by some form of check? This convenient condition is possible because the banking system of this country has been placed on such a safe basis that corporations and individuals have faith in it. The welfare of the banks depends in a large measure upon maintaining this confidence.

A checking account with this Bank [illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

County W. C. T. U. Meeting a Success

The DeKalb County W. C. T. U. closed a very successful institute in Auburn last week Tuesday night, considering the stormy weather.

The talks by the pastors, Tuesday afternoon, were very inspiring.

Rev. Trippeer talked on "What Anti-Prohibition is doing to Overthrow the 18th Amendment." In his talk he showed that much of the lawlesness is result of liquor men trying to make it appear that conditions are worse under prohibition than with the open saloons.

The importance of the primary election was discussed by the Rev. Bourns who urged the importance of nominating good men and women at the primary.

The disarmament conference was discussed by Rev. S. E. Slater who said the conference has been far reaching in its influence. President Harding voiced the sentiment of the people when he said "we want less of armament and none of war.

In discussing the strengthening the Volstead Act, Miss Woodward said that we may all help strengthen the law by not using alcoholic medicine and alcoholic flavoring extracts.

At the evening session the talk on the Bible in the public schools was given by County Superintendent of Schools Clarence Green who said the bible is read in many of the schools of the county and should be read in all.

A talk on Americanisation by Chas. Krise was given Tuesday. He said the best way to Americanise the foreigner is by the application of the Golden Rule.

Musical selections were rendered by the high school boys' quartet, the ladies' quartet of the Lutheran church, solo by Vivian Burnier, accompanied by Miss Berringer, and piano solo by Terressa Nagler. A reading by Mrs. Julia Simpson was very much appreciated.

The W.C.T.U. has special plans for this year's work and feels there is plenty to do and they dare not lay down the burden.

The county executive committee voted to send the county president, Ada Lane, to the state meeting, on Wednesday and Thursday, April 5 and 6, at Columbus, Indiana.

Miss Mary E. Woodward, state corresponding secretary, the leader of the institute, went from here to Albion to conduct an institute of Noble county.—Auburn Star.

Shower Newlyweds

The members and teacher, Mrs. Delora Curie, of the young people's class of the M. P. Sunday school, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Hart, and showered the daughter, Anna, and her husband, with a nice lot of gifts which they hope will prove useful to the newlyweds. Mr. and Mrs. Victor Brown married Feb. 5th, left on Wednesday for Dale, Indiana, where they will start housekeeping. The bride formerly was a member of this Sunday school class.

30 candidates File Declarations.

[illegible]

Choral Society Entertained

On Tuesday evening, after the regular rehearsal of the Choral Society, the members were surprised with an invitation from Mrs. Lora Leighty and Mrs. Addie Koch to go to the home of Mrs. Leighty for an evening of social enjoyment. The invitation was accepted with alacrity and about twenty-five members were royally entertained. The evening had been planned by the hostesses in compliment to Dr. Johnson, organizer and promoter of the society.

H. M. Widney acted as toastmaster and gave an excellent address on the right kind of community spirits he gave a full recognition of Dr Johnson's work along this line. Dr. Johnson responded with a talk expressing his complete surprise and appreciation and disclaimed personal credit for the success of the society. Mrs. F. R. Bowman was then called on for a toast, and she responded with remarks on the benefits of an organised community work and the ennobling influence of good music. In conclusion she gave a personal toast to Dr. Johnson as follows:

"You give of your heart's best treasures
For the good you unceasingly yearn;
You give of your life and ask not,
But willingly wait a return;
And we pray that the more that thou spendest
From out thy happy store
Will return with a double measuse
And that God will then give thee more."

A delicious two-course banquet was served, and after a few games the guests departed thanking the hostesses for the pleasant aad profitable evening and the general good time.

St. Joe High School Notes.

FRESHMEN.

The Manual Training Class will finish their work in the shop, this week. They will devote the rest of the term to mechanical drawing.

The Manual Training room is at present a small body of land surrounded by a large body of water.

The Domestic Science girls are now making Spring dresses and Easter bonnets.

The Art Class is devoting its time to Pastel Landscapes. H. M.

JUNIORS

The almost impassible roads and

(Continued on Page 5)

Butler Wins 3 of 5 Events.

Butler again won the greatest number of events in the first annual county literary and musical contest which was held Friday night at the Presbyterian church in Auburn. Butler won three events, the piano solo, vocal solo and reading.

Waterloo won the vocal duet and Ashley won the discussion league event, on the subject, "A Comprehensive Program for the Solution of the Immigration Problem." As a result, Cornelius Allen, representing the Ashley high school will go to Fort Wayne April 7 to represent DeKalb county at the district meet.

Miss Lonetta Daily, the only contestant from the St. Joe School, won second place place in the reading contest, to Sarah Wright, of Butler, first.

In the piano solo contest, [illegible]

C. S. Hart Home Burglarized.

[illegible]

dozen eggs, a small quantity of maple sugar, and a small amount in postage stamps.

The members of the Hart family were away from home. The intruder gained entrance to the house by prying open a window with a pair of scissors. He ransacked the house thoroughly, evidently looking for money. The [illegible] he stole were in a basket. As he left the house he took Mr. Hart's mail from the mail box and opened it. He failed to find any money and he tore it up and threw it into the road.

[illegible]

St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

We aim to give you quality at a Reasonable Price. Note the following list:

United States Tires and Tubes
Willard Storage Batteries
Mazda Lamps Weed Chains
Genuine FORD Parts
Columbian Hot Shot Batteries (4 cells)
Champion Spark Plugs
Shaler Lenses
Red Crown Gasoline
Polarine Motor Oils and Greases
SHAFER Roller Pearings
Free Air and Battery Service
EXPERT MECHANICS

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

Spring Time is Here--
What Does That Mean?
Paint and clean up
We have the largest and most complete line of colors ever shown, and gl[illegible] to say they are "LOWE BROS." Brands.
Climax Paper Cleaner,
Scrub Brushes, Paint Brushes, Mops, Step Ladders—make us a call and be convinced.
Rugs! Rugs! Axminster
Tapestry, Wool and Fiber
Step in and let us show you our new line at
Greatly Reduced Prices,
April releases of Columbia Records.
Come in and let us explain how you can have a Columbia Phonograph
put in your home for
$1.00 Down.

E. R. KINSEY
St. Joe, Indiana
Hardware — Furniture — Undertaking

Meeting Postponed

The home economics meeting was postponed until Wednesday evening at the Methodist church, at 8 o'clock, on account of the inclement weather.

What God Says.

Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets.

[illegible]

MARCH

L 91

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Illustrated by R. H. Livingstone

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

"A ANGEL"

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Polly alone knows their secret. Marcus MacKenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude. Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, as she supposed, but practically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin. Polly learns from Evelyn that the sympathetic stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennett, telling him she can give him no more money, and urging him to be patient. She already bitterly regrets her infatuation with and marriage to the ignorant farmer.

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

—4—

Polly hesitated a moment, coughed and cleared her throat.

"A little milk for Jerry, please," she suggested, extending her can.

Bennett snatched it from her hand.

"Good God, you squatters're nothing but beggars," he grumbled, but because he was eager to get her message, he filled the pail full. Smilingly Polly took it back.

"I'm thankin' you, Oscar," she gurgled, "an' now mebbe a fresh egg for Granny Hope?"

He made an angry motion with his hand.

"Up in that box," he snapped. "Then tell what you came for! What'd Eve say?"

"Your woman sent word by me," she began——

"Tell it, and don't be all day about it," ordered the farmer.

Pollyop took a couple of steps backward toward the door, ready to fly if Oscar showed any signs of unusual wrath.

"She said you wasn't to write her any more letters," she replied. "She's awful scared. She trembled all over when she told me."

"What did she say about money?" Bennett demanded gruffly.

Through the dim light of the lantern, Polly looked at him pleadingly.

"She just can't get another cent," she returned, "an' she's feelin' terrible bad about it."

Although he had not finished his task, Bennett jumped up from his stool, and one step took him very close to the nervous young speaker.

"She can't, eh?" he cried. "She means she won't, I guess. By God, she will, or I'll come out with the whole thing. You go and tell her so. She's got rich folks, and I didn't marry her to keep quiet all my life. Tell her either she comes home here to me, or she pays up. If she pays——" he paused, then laughed. "Oh, you needn't look as if I was goin' to swat you one, Pollyop," he went on, "but as I was sayin', if she pays up and I get rid of her, then—me for you, Polly Hopkins."

His voice was harsh, and his manners rough. Polly retreated to the threshold.

"The time's here," Oscar went on, "when both you women will be leaping to my gad. There! Get home and say to my lady just what I said—" again he broke off, only to continue, "leaving out the part about you. See, Pollyop?"

Dumb with dread, Polly sagged weakly against the door casing. No wonder Evelyn Robertson didn't want to live with such a man?

"And you can tell her to come tonight at nine o'clock, to Granny Hope's old shack," he proceeded. "I want to talk to her. Now get along and don't come around after any more milk, or I'll throw you out of the barn."

Glad to be gone, Polly passed out to the lane. In a little ravine at her left a noisy stream rumbled down the hill. With wistful eyes she watched it through the fast gathering dusk flow away to the lake. It was then she saw something moving about in a small pool of water in a rock basin. Carefully she put the milk and eggs on a bit of smooth turf. [illegible]

[illegible] went swiftly down the lane, the lamb under one arm. Polly's heart sang with gladness. Out of the rigors of the Storm country, out of the cold ravine water, she had found another little thing to care for.

Jeremiah Hopkins and Larry Bishop were in the shack when Polly arrived with her burdens. With much pride she displayed the lamb; then she fed him a portion of the milk with a spoon. While she was preparing the evening meal, she invited her father's friend to take potluck with them.

After supper she settled her family. Wee Jerry she tucked into Daddy's bed, and Granny Hope was made comfortable in a chair by the stove, where she soon nodded off to sleep. Then, the lamb in her lap and the billy goat at her knee, Pollyop sat down on the edge of her cot, facing the two men. She knew by the dark expressions on their faces that a question of import had come up.

"Me an' Larry, brat, have been tryin' to think of some way of gettin' rid of Old Marc," began Hopkins grimly.

Nervous brown fingers plucked at the lamb's wool as Polly, going white, stared at her father.

"You don't mean hurtin' him, Daddy dear, do you?" she broke out. "Oh, if that's what you're talkin' about, don't do it. Don't do it, Daddy! Something beautiful is goin' to happen to us squatters. God up in the sky sent a angel smack down from high heaven to help us."

The serious, lovely face turned pleadingly, truthfully up to his prevented Hopkins from indulging his desire to laugh. Polly turned and looked at Larry. His dark face was heavy with frown and deep, grief-cut lines.

"There ain't any angels anywhere but up there," muttered Larry Bishop, making an upward thrust with his thumb.

"Yep, there is, Larry," contradicted Polly impetuously. "I seen one. He's bigger'n you an' Daddy put together, I guess; an' his face looks like the sun, all shiny an' bright. He says the squatters has to have a place to live in just like other folks, an' he won't let Old Marc run us out of the Silent City. Mebbe after a while, when he gets to workin' for us, you can hunt an' fish just the same as ever!"

Hopkins looked at his daughter as if she had lost her mind.

"What's eatin' you, brat?" he grunted.

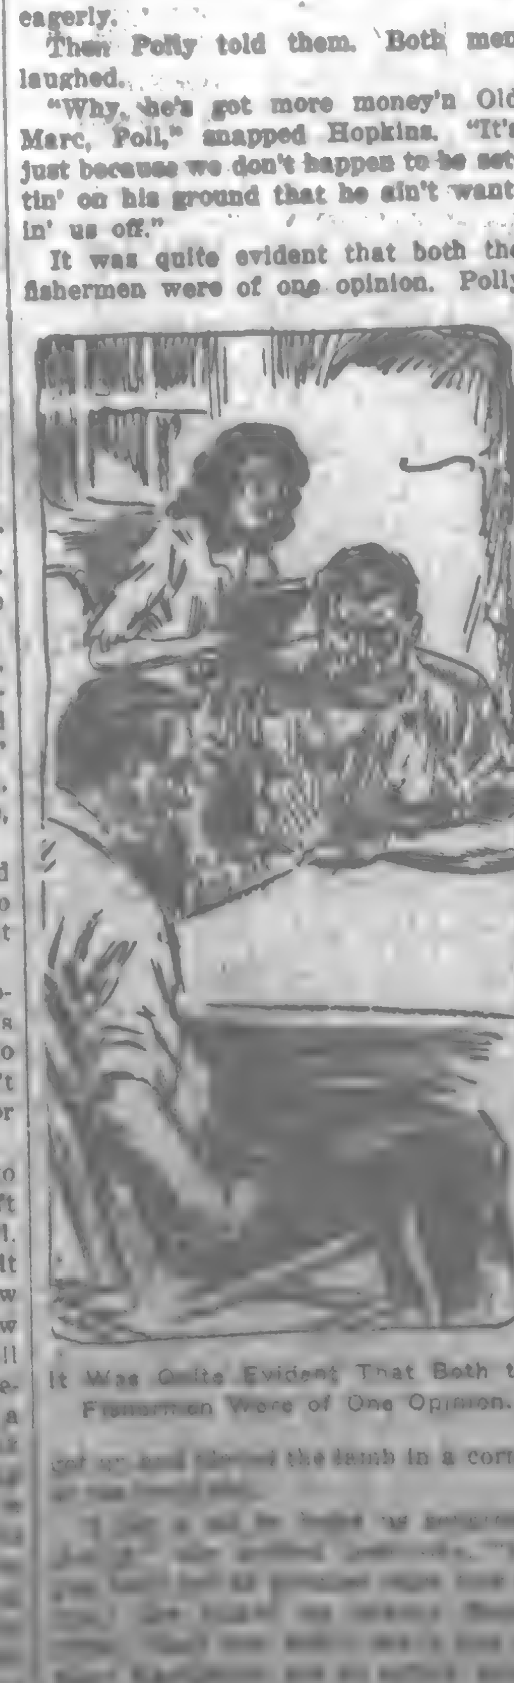
"Nothin'," replied Polly, "but I know what I heard."

"Spiel it out to us," put in Bishop eagerly.

Then Polly told them. Both men laughed.

"Why, he's got more money'n Old Marc, Poll," snapped Hopkins. "It's just because we don't happen to be settin' on his ground that he ain't wantin' us off."

It was quite evident that both the fishermen were of one opinion. Polly



It Was Quite Evident That Both the Fishermen Were of One Opinion.

got up and placed the lamb in a corner of the [illegible]

[illegible]

have been the brilliant smile she flashed upon her listeners. At any rate, the mayor of the Silent City and Larry Bishop, his henchman, repeated in dull apathy the oath she dictated to them, the words that made the Storm country a safe habitation for Marcus MacKenzie. Then both men reverently kissed the Bible and fell back limply in their chairs.

Polly kissed the ragged edges of the book too, then she turned to Hopkins.

"Daddy, honey, I'm goin' out. Give your kid a lovin' smack. I'll be back quicker'n the billy goat can blink."

CHAPTER V.

The afternoon had been unpleasant for both Mrs. Robertson and her daughter. The lady was studiously icy to Evelyn, and the girl was utterly miserable. Robert Percival was away with MacKenzie. In his absence, although the two women ate dinner together and kept each other company afterward in the drawing room, their conversation was limited to the simplest commonplaces. The return of the men eased the tension. Percival excused himself almost at once to write some letters, and as MacKenzie made evident his eagerness to get Evelyn by herself, Mrs. Robertson seized a chance to steal away to her own room.

For some time after her departure the girl and the man were silent. This was the first time in Marc's life that his heart had been really touched by a woman, and in spite of his years and experience, he was almost as bashful as a young boy.

At length their eyes met, and the girl's lowered, while the color mounted in a flood to her hair.

The man was by her side in an instant. He had read in the shy, retreating glance what he longed to see.

"Evelyn! I—I—I—believe you care for me, I really believe you do," he exclaimed. "You do, sweet?" he demanded, his voice trembling.

"Yes," whispered Evelyn.

"Now, isn't it strange," asked Marcus, after they took up their conversation again, "that while I was gone I always thought of you, but not just like this. Honey, girl, how long have you loved me? Before—before today?"

"I think always," confessed Evelyn, with a growing flush.

What a fortunate man Marcus MacKenzie considered himself just at that moment! He had won the prettiest girl in Ithaca; and she loved him.

"And to think I only came home last night," he exulted. "This time yesterday you were free, my Eve. At this moment no power can take you away from me."

Dreadful recollections of Oscar intruded upon Evelyn's new happiness. Oh, if she only had the courage to tell Marcus! Would he keep on loving her and help her to get free, or would he ——She glanced into his face. There were upon it the marks of breeding, of pride in himself, his wealth, position and power. She knew how highly he regarded the conventions of society. If she should disclose to him the secret of her marriage to the farmer, he would see nothing but the blot upon her and turn away in disgust. No, she couldn't tell him. Despair overwhelmed her and made MacKenzie's arms burdensome. With an effort she smiled faintly and withdrew from him.

"I don't want to let you go, darling," he laughed. "It seems like a beautiful dream!"

Eve wished passionately that she were at liberty to make the dream come true.

"You are my beloved," asserted Marcus, and with the girl's whispered "yes," he allowed her to leave the room.

Evelyn went immediately to her mother's apartment and, opening the door, slipped in and sank down upon the floor at Mrs. Robertson's side.

"I've told him I'd marry him," she said, with trembling lips. "Mother dear, oh, please, mother dear, don't you think you could borrow some money from Robert for me? I must have it. After I'm married to Marcus, I could get it all back for you. I know I could. I've just got to have a lot of money, and you can't expect me to ask Marcus."

Mrs. Robertson drew away with a shiver.

"If you so forgot yourself, your family and your name as to do such a thing, I should disown you, Evelyn," she said, finality in her tones.

Evelyn rose wearily. She could imagine the heights of her mother's scorn if she discovered the actual situation. She felt that she would rather tell MacKenzie than the unsympathetic, frowning woman in the chair.

"There's no use, mother, in trying to talk to you," she muttered. "I'll manage some way, though only God knows how."

Mrs. Robertson took up her book and gazed sternly at her daughter over the top of it.

"Very well, Evelyn," she said, ungraciously. "You're of age. If that's the way you feel about it, there's nothing more to be said."

Whereupon the speaker began to read, and a very hopeless girl crept out of the room.

[illegible]

was Robert Percival. He stood gazing straight ahead of him at the dark driveway, but turned when Evelyn appeared beside him. Polly heard the murmur of their voices, that was all. They then disappeared into the house, Evelyn laughingly pushing the soldier ahead of her. Quickly the girl came out again; and Polly could hear her swift-coming breaths as she ran softly down the steps.

"Shush," hissed Polly Hopkins. "Lordy! I was scared to death some one'd catch me."

"Pollyop," questioned Evelyn anxiously. "What'd he say? Was he angry?"

Their heads were very close together, and Polly gave the message in a low tone.

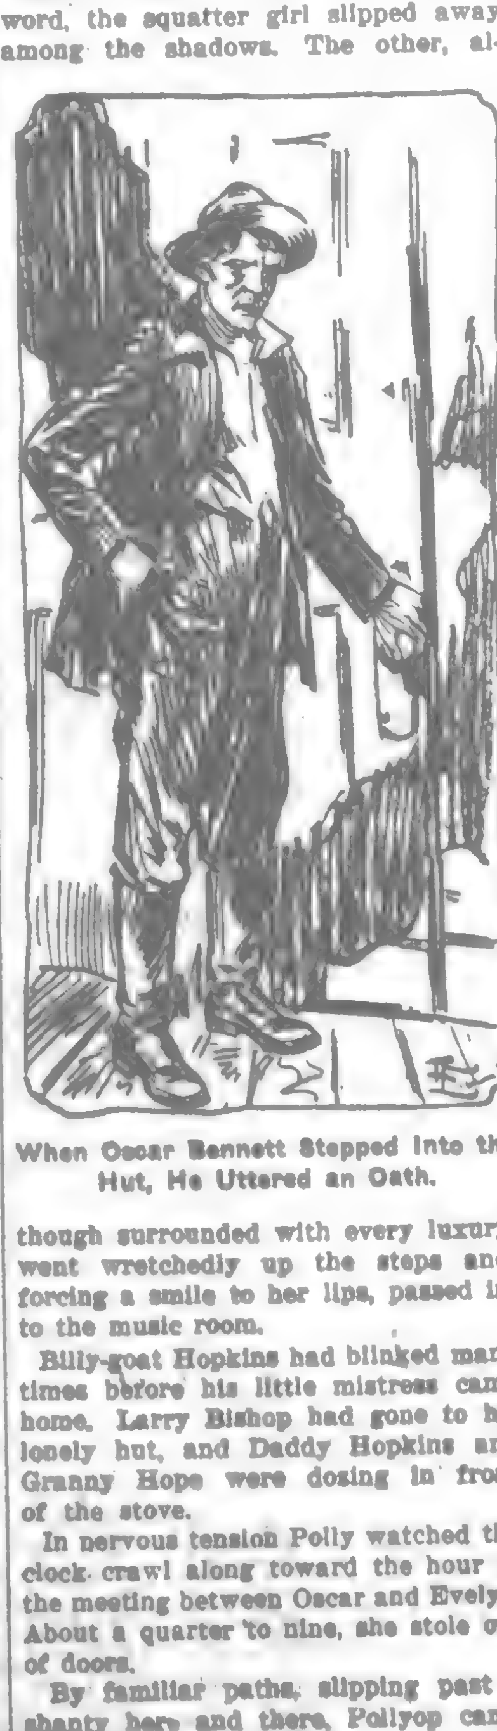
"He wants you to come to Granny Hope's hut at nine o'clock tonight, an' I guess you best do it. He's as mad as ever a man can be."

"I'm afraid," Evelyn wailed. "I'm terribly afraid, Polly dear."

All the sympathy in Polly's heart came to sudden life.

"I reckon you be," she returned. "But you've got to get up your spunk an' go. Oscar'd just as soon come bustin' right in your house here, I guess, if you don't. You come along, an' at nine o'clock I'll hike over an' get in the hut too. Say, why can't you talk just a little nicer to him? Granny Hope's got a Bible, an' it says when a feller hurts you, speak kind of soft back, an' he won't have nothin' more to say. Hist! What's that noise? Scoot."

Before Evelyn could say another word, the squatter girl slipped away among the shadows. The other, although surrounded with every luxury, went wretchedly up the steps and, forcing a smile to her lips, passed into the music room.



When Oscar Bennett Stepped Into the Hut, He Uttered an Oath.

Billy-goat Hopkins had blinked many times before his little mistress came home. Larry Bishop had gone to his lonely hut, and Daddy Hopkins and Granny Hope were dozing in front of the stove.

In nervous tension Polly watched the clock crawl along toward the hour of the meeting between Oscar and Evelyn. About a quarter to nine, she stole out of doors.

By familiar paths, slipping past a shanty here and there, Pollyop came at length upon a lonely shack set on a point by itself. She went around to the back, opened the door, and once within the room touched a match to a small candle which she had taken from her pocket, and sat down quietly.

When Oscar Bennett stepped into the hut, he uttered an oath. He was not expecting to see Polly Hopkins.

"My lady won't come, eh?" he demanded gruffly.

"Oh, she's comin' all right," answered Polly, "but she were afraid. So I came along to see she got home safe."

A loud laugh fell from Bennett's lips.

"You're a clever kid, Pollyop," he said, more affably. "Cunning as a weasel, d—d if you aint! Sit down. I won't bite you!"

Polly squatted on the floor by the old table; and Oscar eased himself gingerly down onto a rickety bench.

"I bet she was scared pink at what I told you to tell 'er," he burst out after a while. "She's about the most lily-livered woman I ever saw."

For the space of a few seconds Polly looked at the speaker. Then:

"I'm thinkin' she ain't lovin' you no more, Oscar, an' a woman without love in her ain't worth nothin'."

There was no smile on the lovely face when the words were finished. She had spoken the truth, and Oscar Bennett knew it.

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR APRIL 2

ASA RELIES ON GOD

LESSON TEXT—II Chronicles 14:1-12.
GOLDEN TEXT—Help us, O Lord our God; for we rest on Thee.—II Chron. 14:11.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—II Chron. 14:13-16; Isa. 41:10-13.
PRIMARY TOPIC—A King Who Trusted God.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God Helping Asa.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Ruler Who Relied on God.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Source of Personal and National Power.

I. Asa's Reformation (vv. 1-5).

Asa was the grandson of Rehoboam. Both his grandfather and father favored idolatry, but in spite of this record of his ancestors, Asa had a will of his own, and though young when he came to the throne, inaugurated a campaign of reform which brought great good. He not only had the handicap of the idolatry and immortality fostered by the two former kings, but he had to contend against the influence of his mother who had encouraged immoral worship (I Kings 15:13). In order to carry out his reformatory measures he had to wrest authority from her by deposing her. Asa did that which was good and right in the eyes of the Lord (v. 2).

1. Cleared the land of idolatrous emblems and images (vv. 3, 5). (1) Strange altars. These were the altars devoted to other gods. (2) High places. These were places where unlawful sacrifices were offered. (3) Broke down the images. These were upright stones connected with idolatrous worship. (4) Cut down the groves. These were trees or poles connected with tree worship. He had all these relics of idolatry destroyed in Jerusalem and other cities throughout his kingdom.

2. Commanded Judah to seek the Lord (v. 4). He knew that if the reformation was to be effective it must be by the positive seeking after and worshiping of God, accompanied by obedience to His commandments. Destructive work avails little unless followed by constructive.

II. Asa's Defensive Preparations (vv. 6-8).

1. Built fortified cities (v. 6). The cities are not named, but the meaning, doubtless, is that it was a general system of defense which involved the cities at strategic points.

2. He erected walls about the cities (v. 7). These were usually of stone. Upon the walls were observation towers from which the position and movements of the enemy could be seen, and from which defensive warfare could be waged.

3. Made gates and barred them (v. 7). The reason he assigns for these defensive preparations was that they had sought the Lord God. Those who really trust God will make every effort to provide defense.

4. Had an army of spearmen (v. 8). These spearmen were also protected with large shields. The army was made up of 480,000 brave men. They were prepared to wage an offensive as well as a defensive war.

III. Asa's Victory Over Zerah, the Ethiopian (vv. 9-12).

1. Asa set the battle in array (v. 10). He went out to meet the enemy. He first made a disposition of his means of defense. This was wisdom on his part. Intelligent faith moves the possessor to do first that which is within his power.

2. Asa's prayer (vv. 11, 12). He cried unto the Lord. He sought the source of national power. In this prayer note (1) his conscious helplessness. As he faced the Egyptian army two to one against him, he was clearly conscious of his impotency. The first requisite in obtaining help from God is conscious weakness. The Christian conquers not by self-reliance, but by self-distrust and faith in God. (2) Appeals to God for help. He knew that though they were helpless before the mighty enemy, with God's help they could win the victory. One man with God is a majority. (3) Reposes faith in God. The word "rest" means to lean upon—to cast the entire weight upon. In the measure that we realize our need of support will we lean hard upon God. (4) Advanced courageously. He went forth depending upon God to fight for him. Real faith does not wait until it sees its way clear, but goes forth expecting God to clear the way. (5) Flung himself upon God's arms. "O Lord, thou art our God." His cause was God's cause. If God has taken us for His people, and if we have taken Him for our God, no enemy can prevail against us. May we experimentally say, "Thou art my God," and hear Him say, "I am thy God!"

3. The Egyptians smitten (v. 12). The enemy fled before Israel and could not recover themselves.

Love, Faith and Hope.

A little love from day to day, and [illegible] to preach it; a [illegible] along the way. And [illegible]

[illegible]

Pat. Process Lloyd LOOM Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture
Ask Your Local Dealer
Write Now for 32-Page Illustrated Booklet
The Lloyd Manufacturing Company
(Heywood-Wakefield Co.)
Dept. E
Menominee, Michigan (19)

Martin's 100% Pure Varnishes INTERIOR
Use Martin's 100% Pure Varnishes to protect and beautify floors, doors and frames, window sash and trim, etc. Simple to apply, easier to keep clean, more lasting, sparkling and attractive.
Martin's 100% Pure Varnishes are not adulterated with rosin, benzine and similar substitutes, yet cost no more than inferior varnishes. Usually a leading dealer in every community can supply Martin's Varnishes. If we have no dealer in your town, write for name of nearest MARTIN VARNISH CO., Chicago, Ill.
Makers of 100% Pure Varnishes

TOO LATE
Death only a matter of short time. Don't wait until pains and aches become incurable diseases. Avoid painful consequences by taking
GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES
The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles—the National Remedy of Holland since 1696. Three sizes, all druggists.
Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

for that COUGH!
KEMP'S BALSAM
Pleasant to take
Children like it

"Tact."

Sir Chartres Biron, London's chief magistrate, once gave a lecture on "Tact" and incidentally related a story of a Scottish minister who on one occasion thus addressed a condemned criminal: "Donald, mon, the gallows are ready, the hangman's ready, the rope's ready—are ye ready?"—Chicago Herald.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

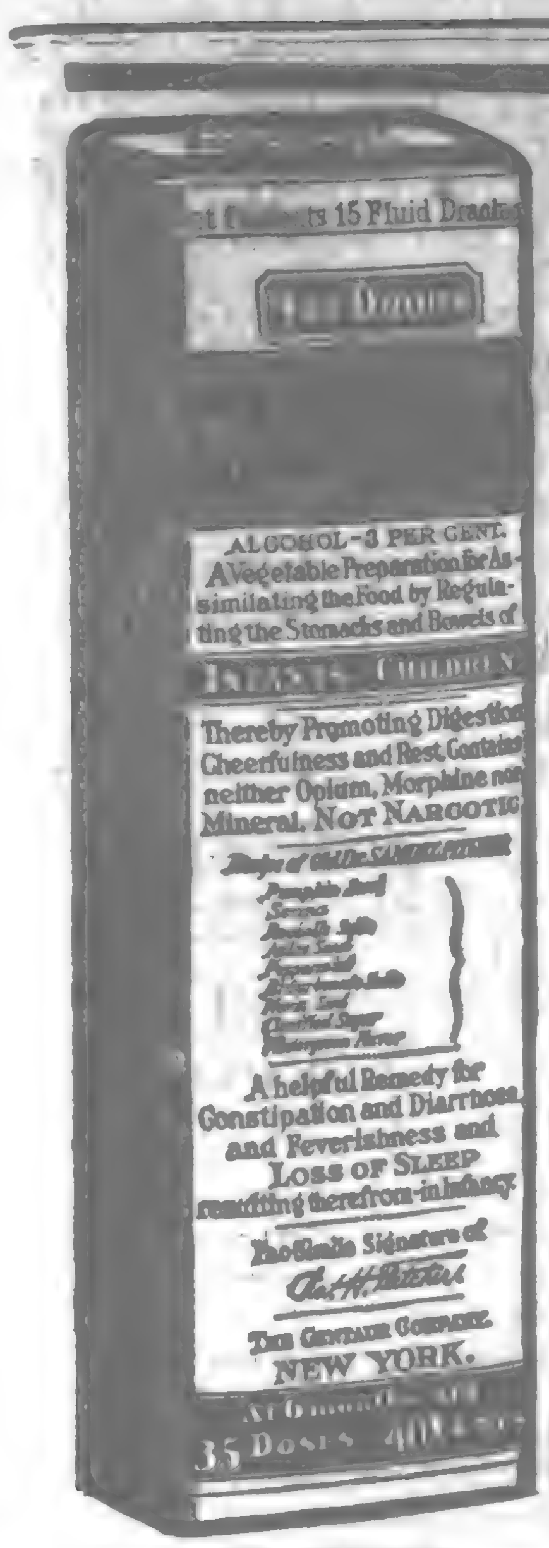
Go Light on Father.

"In choosing father's present make it as light on him as possible," advises the Fitchburg Sentinel.

There is a vigorous demand for a device that will compel a man to shut up when he has said enough.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
BELL-ANS

MARCH



Contents 15 Fluid Drachms
ALCOHOL—3 PER CENT.
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food by Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS CHILDREN
Thereby Promoting Digestion Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC
A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhoea and Feverishness and Loss of Sleep resulting therefrom-in Infancy.
Facsimile Signature of
THE CENTAUR COMPANY.
NEW YORK.
35 DOSES

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria Always Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

PALMER'S LOTION

A HOUSEHOLD NECESSITY FOR BURNS, BITES, CUTS, ECZEMA AND ITCHING SKIN AND SCALP TROUBLES

ALL DRUGGISTS.

GUARANTEED BY SOLON PALMER NEW YORK

PALMER'S LOTION

REMOVED ALL MY PIMPLES AND CLEARED MY COMPLEXION

Why suffer with Itchy Scalp or Dandruff? I-GROW cures both in a week; sure cure for Baldness and Falling Hair. Results guaranteed or money refunded. Price $1 per jar prepaid. Agents wanted. I-GROW, 36 Sheridan St., Jamaica Plain, Mass.

AS SURE AS DAWN BRINGS A NEW DAY

HILL'S CASCARA QUININE

AT ALL DRUG STORES

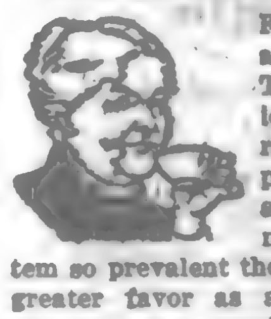
Will Break That Cold and Make You Fit Tomorrow

PRICE 30 CENTS

W. H. HILL CO., DETROIT.

Garfield Tea

Was Your Grandmother's Remedy



For every stomach and intestinal ill. This good old-fashioned herb home remedy for constipation, stomach ills and other derangements of the system so prevalent these days is in even greater favor as a family medicine than in your grandmother's day.

Line Was Busy.

He was newly arrived in this country and was none too familiar with the use of the telephone. So he took down the receiver and demanded:

"Aye vant to talk to my wife."

Central's voice came back sweetly, "Number, please?"

"Oh," he replied perfectly willing to help out, "she bane my second vun."

The prices of cotton and linen have been doubled by the war. Lengthen their service by using Red Cross Ball Blue in the laundry. All grocers—Advertisement.

If you are nervous, relax. Forbid annoyance to annoy.

Evidently Not a Whale.

The day following a Thames angling competition, one of the competitors was met by a friend.

Asked if he had caught anything, he replied: "Oh, yes! I landed a fish all right—the only one caught. But I didn't win the prize, though. You see, I put it in my waistcoat pocket, and at weighing-in time I couldn't find it."

"Hard lines!" exclaimed the friend. "But what had become of it?"

"That's what puzzled me at the time. But when I got home that night I found it in my watchkey!"—London Times.

WORRIED HUSBANDS— READ THIS

Gude's Pepto-Mangan Is the Best Tonic for Nervous, Tired-Out Wives

Is your wife "all tired out" and cross and irritable much of the time? Do the children "bother her to death" every day, and do the ordinary household tasks that she formerly performed with ease seem now to overtax her? In other words, do you often come home to a house of trouble instead of a house of joy and happiness?

If your answer is "yes" to these pointed questions, don't blame your wife until she has taken Gude's Pepto-Mangan with her meals for a few weeks. She is simply run-down and nervous and needs the kind of iron that she will get in Gude's Pepto-Mangan to give her more vitality and strength. For thirty years doctors have recommended Gude's Pepto-Mangan as a first-class building-up tonic. Sold by your druggist in both liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement.

It is mighty difficult to convince a self-made man that he has cheated himself.

Usually people who make the most imposing show have to impose on others to make it.

Genuine
BAYER

ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale
MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

SHORT-TAILED SHREWS

"I've always been so glad," said Mr. Short-Tailed Shrew, "that my name was so different from the names of other creatures.

"It wouldn't be nearly so interesting to be named anything else as it is to be known as a short-tailed shrew. There is something so unusual and attractive about the name.

"Don't you think so too?"

"I agree with you, but then of course I would agree with you naturally, as my name is the same," said Mrs. Short-Tailed Shrew.

"We're not very sociable as a rule, but you and I are pretty sociable at present," Mr. Short-Tailed Shrew continued.

"Do you know I wonder if people know how helpful we are to them?" asked Mrs. Short-Tailed Shrew.

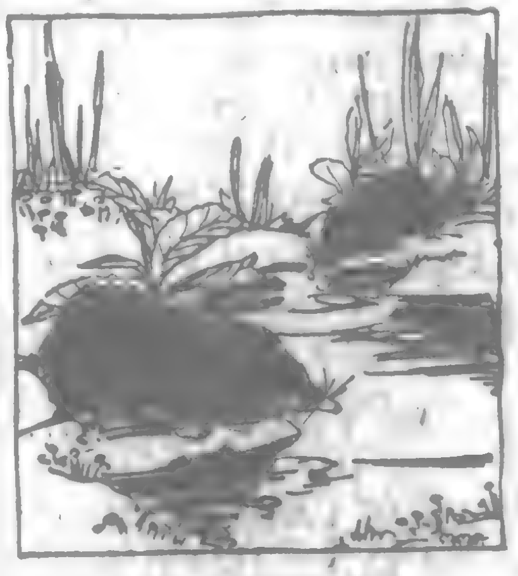
"I am sure I don't know," said Mr. Short-Tailed Shrew. "Why do you ask?"

"Well, I hope that they do, and I hope they will learn it more and more, or rather that more and more people will learn that the little short-tailed shrew or mole shrew as he is sometimes known does everything he can to help people.

"He eats insects and bugs which are harmful and is never anything but nice in his actions.

"He has a great deal of courage, and though he can hardly see at all he will fight bravely if he has to, even if he can't see the enemy who is attacking him.

"Of course his sense of smell is very keen and strong and he can rush this way and that by feeling and by smell.



"Others by Streams."

"He can see light from dark, but he hasn't much to boast of in the way of eyesight or eyes.

"Some of us are fond of living in the forests, others by streams, others again by fields. We're not in the least fussy.

"We burrow in the ground and have fine runways where we go from place to place.

"Our homes are beautiful with a number of rooms papered and carpeted by soft grass and leaves.

"We eat more in a day than we weigh. That is if anyone weighed the amount of food we ate in a day they would find that we were much smaller in size than the quantity of food we had eaten.

"But it doesn't hurt us for we are so active, always so busy. We do not even rest and sleep in the winter the way some creatures do.

"That is, I mean we do not go to sleep for the winter.

"We have very keen sense of hearing. "Oh, yes, we can hear very well.

"But I must say I have no use for creatures who eat all the time and who are lazy. We must eat a lot in order to have the strength to do so much.

"And we must do a lot in order to be able to eat a lot! I don't like to hear of creatures who eat and eat and eat and who then feel too lazy to do anything. That is dreadful.

"We can protect ourselves by our bravery and also by our musk glands which have a curious odor to them which the other animals do not like, we are thankful to say.

"We can squeak and cry and we can become very angry. But we're not dreadful little creatures at all, and I do wish people would hear that we are not."

"Perhaps they will," said Mr. Short-Tailed Shrew. "And perhaps the next time they see a little dark animal which looks something like a mole they will say:

"'There is a nice short-tailed shrew. We will not harm him.'"

"Oh, that would be pleasant indeed," said Mrs. Short-Tailed Shrew. [illegible]

[illegible]

MOTHER! CLEAN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, give a teaspoonful to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

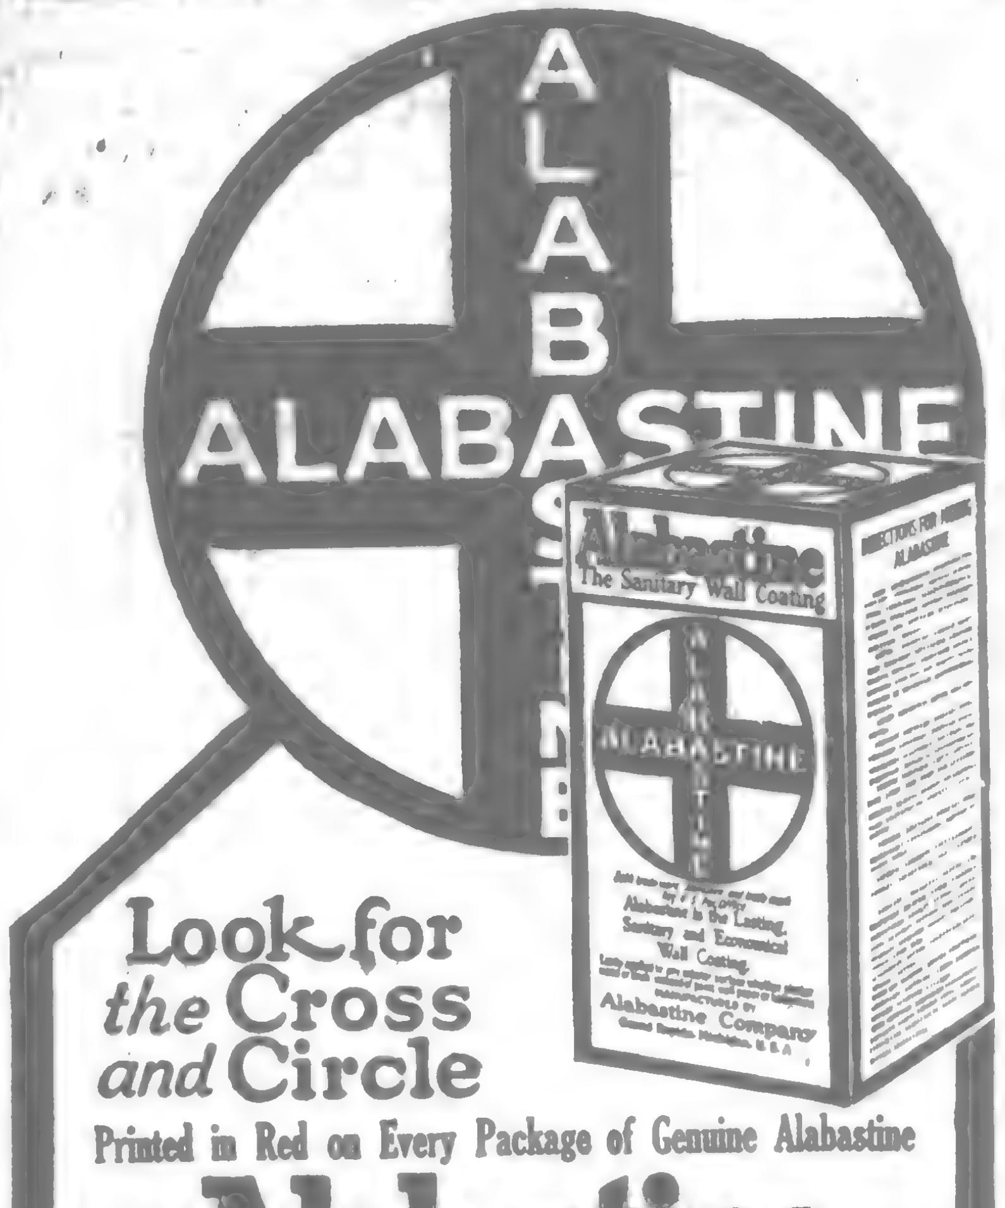
Revolutionizing the Orchestra.

Leo Sir, an aged violin maker of Marmande, France, has perfected instruments that may revolutionize the orchestra. At present we use four violin-type instruments, ranging from the soprano violin to the bass viol. M. Sir provides two super-sopranos, a mezzo-soprano slightly above the present alto, barytone just below the tenor and a sub-bass. The newly organized orchestra has been tried out at the Montmartre theater and critics declare that the possibilities of interpretation are wonderfully increased. —Scientific American.

Watch Cuticura Improve Your Skin. On rising and retiring gently smear the face with Cuticura Ointment. Wash off Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water. It is wonderful what Cuticura will do for poor complexions, dandruff, itching and red rough hands.—Advertisement.

People who know but little always tell a little bit more.

One pound of self-reliance is worth a ton of expectation.



ALABASTINE
Alabastine
The Sanitary Wall Coating
ALABASTINE
Alabastine is the Lasting, Sanitary and Economical Wall Coating.
Alabastine Company
DIRECTIONS FOR MIXING ALABASTINE

Look for the Cross and Circle

Printed in Red on Every Package of Genuine Alabastine

Alabastine

Instead of Kalsomine or Wall Paper

Because only genuine Alabastine will give you those soft delicate, artistic Alabastine colors, which add so much to the beauty of your home.

Good decorators use Alabastine. Nearly all stores selling paints carry it in stock. Ask your dealer or decorator to show you samples and explain the Alabastine-Opaline Process—the newest and most beautiful method of interior decoration.

The Alabastine Company
Grand Rapids, Mich.

causes more poverty than anything else.

Time and court plaster heal all wounds.

A UNION OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Healthy Housewife—Happy Home

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Helped Form Many

For the ailing, half-sick housewife such a union is impossible. Oftentimes even the slightest form of housework cannot be accomplished. Yet the work must be done.

Many women struggle along for years suffering from some form of female trouble that make their lives miserable and their homes far from happy.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped thousands of just such women regain their health and strength. Just give your thought to the following letters and remember that the women who wrote these letters knew how they felt before taking the Vegetable Compound and again afterwards. It helped them—let it help you.

Had Nervous Spells

Horatio, Ark.—"I had nervous spells and awful bad feelings. My right side and my back hurt me all the time and I had been going down in health for six or seven years. For three years I had not been able to do my work without help. I weighed only 95 pounds when my husband's mother persuaded me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Now I heartily recommend it to all suffering women, as I have gained weight and health. I can do all my work, anything I want to do."—Mrs. JIM REARICK, Horatio, Arkansas.

Reading, Pa.—"I was a nervous wreck and could hardly do my housework. I always had to have help or I would never have got it done. Through the advice of friends I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for my nerves and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine for my blood and I am feeling fine and doing my work all alone. I can recommend these medicines to any one, for they certainly helped me. I suffered for five years and Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines pulled me through."—Mrs. WALTER U. STOYER, 1218 Mulberry St., Reading, Pa.

Recommends the Vegetable Compound

New Orleans, La.—"I have found relief from my troubles by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I praise it wherever I go. I could not do my work as it should be done for I would sometimes have to lie down because of the pains I had. A friend induced me to take your Vegetable Compound and I have got great results from it. I keep house and am able to do all my own work. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to mine."—Mrs. T. FOECKLER, 1915 N. Derbigny St., New Orleans, La.

The Best Way to Buy a Farm

Farms in the South as productive as Western farms can be bought at low prices and bring bigger net profits owing to mild climate and good markets. Unusual opportunities for dairy farming. Study these conditions before buying. Good farms can be rented for a year with option to buy at a fixed price. Full information free. Write J. C. WILLIAMS, Manager, Southern Railway Development Service, Washington, D. C.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

FREE booklet "From Railroad Clerk to Oil Magnate." Address Y. E. Hildreth, Bx 1563, Ft. Worth, Tex.

Wanted: Women Agents. No experience necessary. Start at once. Quick sales, big profits selling Admira Guaranteed Toilet Preparations and Perfumes. Permanent business. Admira Co., 6309 Wentworth Av., Chicago, Ill.

YOUR SPRING COAT, SUIT OR DRESS CLEANED LIKE NEW for $2 or dyed a new color for $5. Parcel post with instructions. We guarantee to please. TROY DRY CLEANING CO., 1308-12 Calhoun Street, FORT WAYNE, INDIANA.

Stop, Thief!

Warner's burglar-proof window locks will keep prowlers away. Easily installed. Send 20c, stamps or coin, for sample lock. $1.80 dozen postpaid.

Attractive Proposition for Agents
The Warner Co., Box 364, Muncie, Ind.

SALESMEN Wanted To Sell Our West Virginia Grown Nursery Stock. Fine canvassing outfit FREE. Cash Commission Paid Weekly. WRITE for terms.
THE GOLD NURSERY CO.
Mason City, W. Va.

LOOK—New Invention 50 Egg hen Hatching Incubator. Setting hen produces the necessary heat, automatically becomes a brooder when eggs are hatched, guaranteed to hatch every hatchable egg. You can make one in a few hours' spare time, material costs less than $1. Send $1.25 for drawings and specifications, money refunded if not satisfactory. Address John Fraser, B. 670, Rochester, N. Y.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 13--1922.

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Chesterfield

CIGARETTES

MARCH

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

St. Joe Locals

Patronize the advertisers.

Don't miss the picture show next Saturday night.

Only a few copies of March Ladies Home Journal left.

Mrs. J. C. Hull is on the sick list.

Mrs. O. E Cannon is on the sick list, this week.

Mrs. Loren Means, of west of town, is sick with the grippe.

Edith Widney was a last Sunday evening supper guest of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Curie.

Mrs. C. R. Price spent Tuesday and Wednesday of this week with Ft. Wayne relatives.

Frank Benninghoff and wife arrived home Saturday from spending the winter in Florida.

Howard Northrup and wife were Sunday dinner guests of their son, Thayer Northrup and family.

Lloyd Belden and wife, of Fort Wayne, were over Sunday guests of Will Koch and wife.

Candidate for Sheriff.

Dallas Trevey of Auburn has announced his name as candidate for sheriff of DeKalb county, subject to the decision of democratic voters at the May primary.

Mr. Trevey has been a long time resident of the county, having originated the DeKalb Tankage Co. of Auburn, in 1914, and owned it for five years when he sold out and has since been engaged in the sales of automobiles.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	58	$ 3.39
M. P.	64	2.82
Lutheran	64	4.03
M. E. Spencer	47	3.76
Lutheran	62	3.33
Coburntown	46	2.11
Newville U. B.	22	1.20
Christian	48	1.75
Mt. Pleasant	13	.59
Concord	14	1.57

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $2500 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years.
$12.50 a month for five years.
$6.25 a month for ten years.

If Permanently and Totally Disabled by Accident or Disease [illegible]

[illegible]

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

WEATHER RECORD

Curious to know how true the old saying "that the weather of the three first days of December rules the winter," holds, C. G. Lucas, a farmer residing northeast of town, payed particular attention to these days this year, and then followed up by joting down the weather conditions of the day, at its close for the months of December, January and February. He has submitted his record to the editor who will publish same for he believes it is of interest to readers.

FOR DECEMBER.

Dec. 1, warm, cloudy.
" 2, cloudy, rain.
" 3, cloudy, colder.
" 4, clearing, cloudy.
" 5, cloudy, snow.
" 6, cloudy, warmer.
" 7, clearing, warmer.
" 8, cloudy, warmer.
" 9, cloudy, colder.
" 10, cloudy, warmer.
" 11, cloudy, rain.
" 12, cloudy, colder.
" 13, cloudy, snow, warmer.
" 14, snow, clearing, colder.
" 15, snow, colder.
" 16, cloudy, rain.
" 17, rain, warmer.
" 18, clear, colder, 16 above zero.
" 19, clear, warmer.
" 20, cloudy, warmer.
" 21, cloudy, snow, colder.
" 22, clearing, warmer.
" 23, cloudy, warmer, foggy.
" 24, cloudy, snow, sleet.
" 25, cloudy, 16 above zero.
" 26, cloudy, warmer.
" 27, clear, warmer.
" 28, cloudy, colder.
" 29, clear, colder.
" 30, clear, warmer.
" 31, cloudy, cold, wind.

FOR JANUARY.

Jan. 1, cloudy, snow.
" 2, clear, colder.
" 3, cloudy, warmer.
" 4, cloudy, warmer, rain.
" 5, cloudy, cold wind.
" 6, clear, warmer.
" 7, clear, warmer.
" 8, clear, warmer.
" 9, clear, warm.
" 10, clear, warm.
" 11, cloudy, colder.
" 12, clear, colder.
" 13, cloudy, snow.
" 14, cloudy, 8 above zero.
" 15, clear, warmer.
" 16, clear, 6 above zero.
" 17, clear, 6 above zero.
" 18, cloudy, foggy.
" 19, cloudy, warmer.
" 20, cloudy, 2 above zero.
" 21, clear, warmer.
" 22, clear, colder.
" 23, clear, 6 below zero.
" 24, clear, 10 below zero.
" 25, clear, 14 below zero.
" 26, cloudy, warmer.
" 27, clear, 8 above zero.
" 28, clear, 6 above zero.
" 29, clear, 8 above zero.
" 30, clear, warmer.
" 31, cloudy, warmer, foggy.

FOR FEBRUARY.

Feb. 1, rain.
" 2, cloudy, snow.
" 3, clear, warmer.
" 4, clear, warmer.
" 5, colder, snow.
" 6, cloudy, cold.
" 7, cloudy, cold.
" 8, clear, warmer.
" 9, clear, warmer.
" 10, clear, warm.
" 11, cloudy, colder.
" 12, cold, rain.
" 13, cloudy, cold.
" 14, clear, 8 above zero.
" 15, [illegible], cold.
" 16, [illegible], 8 above zero.
" 17, [illegible], 10 above zero.
" [illegible], rain.
" [illegible], foggy.
" [illegible], warmer.
" [illegible], rain.
" [illegible], rain.
" [illegible], wind.
" [illegible], warmer.
" [illegible], warmer.
[illegible]

"COLD IN THE HEAD"

[illegible]

Coburn's Corners

Mrs. Charles Tustison returned to her home from Hicksville last Thursday.

Mrs. Eva Shull and daughter, Miss Doris, were guests of George Hart and wife Sunday.

Meade Baker, Art Wilmot, Claude Laub, Wilson Beaber and Saxe Hadsell attended the Roland Bears' sale last Thursday.

Fred Hart and wife entertained the Clyde Hart family, Mrs. Will Hamilton and daughter, Margaret Elnor, at dinner Sunday.

The Ladies' Aid met at the home of Mrs. Cordelia Dermott, Thursday afternoon last, and engaged in rug sewing for Mrs. Forest Dermott. Ten members were present and completed the work, a social time afterwards being held with a delicious lunch.

Del Coburn and Faye Wilmot have planned to remove their families to the Geo. Wade farm south of here this week. An Auburn man has been hired to take charge of the farm for the season, Messrs Coburn and Wilmot retaining their positions at Auburn and Ft. Wayne for the present.

Mr. Eugene Uncather of Detroit, Mich., was a week-end guest in the Will Maxwell home. He and Mr Maxwell were room-mates at Newport News, Va., during the war period, where they were engaged in carpenter work, and the recent visit was a compliment to old friendship.

Cadmus Shull, wife and daughter, Miss Nellie, spent Friday at the home of Guy Platter and wife of Newville. Mrs. Platter, a daughter, is suffering a severe attack of sciatica, and being unable to assume a reclining position, has been compelled to a sitting posture in a chair, for the past three weeks; she will probably be brought to the home of her parents until improvement is shown.

NEWVILLE

A nice sunny Sunday would be appreciated very much.

The Newville Sunday school convention will be held at the Christian church next Sunday.

Argil Seebler will move into the Gillingham house as soon as it is vacated by Dewey Miller, who is wanting to move close to his shop.

Wm. Miller, who recently bought the Tarney place, is having the house improved extensively. He expects to make an ideal home of it and will move his family into it by the first of April.

Dewey Miller has been having a severe time with a sore hand, which was started by a slight bruise on the third finger of his right hand a short time ago. The affected hand became swollen and very painful to the extent of him having to have it lanced and treated by a physician. Dewey has not been able to work at the blacksmith shop for some time.

COLETOWN

J. S Kain and wife visited Sunday with E. M. Kain and wife.

Delba Rupert and [illegible] were callers at Alvin Walker's last Sunday.

J. W. Hart and wife were [illegible] day visitors with [illegible] wife in St. Joe.

[illegible] George [illegible] King and family [illegible]

[illegible]

Political Announcements

FOR PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

H. C. SPRINGER

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for PROSECUTING ATTORNEY, 35th Judicial District, DeKalb and Steuben counties.

Born at Huntington, Ind., 1894.

Received law education at the University of Indiana.

Served with U. S. troops on the Mexican border in 1616.

Enlisted as a private in World's War, and served overseas and discharged as a captain of infantry.

Has practiced law at Garrett for the past three years.

Your support will be appreciated.

For Prosecuting Attorney

CHARLES S. SMITH

Candidate for the Republican nomination for Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit, DeKalb and Steuben counties, subject to primaries May 2nd.

Graduate of Indiana Law School.

Admitted to bar in 1900; also a member of bar of Supreme Court of Indiana, and Federal Court and the United States Circuit Court.

Has been in the active practice of law in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, for over twenty years, and served as Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit of Indiana for four years.

Received education in the common schools of Indiana and the Indiana State Normal and taught eight years in the public schools of Indiana.

For Recorder

Please announce my candidacy for the democratic nomination for county recorder, subject to the primary, May 2nd.

Byron Platt,
Franklin Township.

For Sheriff

I desire to announce through the News that I am a candidate for nomination for county sheriff on the democratic ticket, subject to the will of the voters at the primaries on May 2.

I acted as deputy sheriff under Frank Baltz for 4 years to the satisfaction and good of the county.

My home prior to my appointment to public life was in Jackson township. Your hearty support will be greatly appreciated.

Charles Davis, Auburn.

For Assessor
Spencer Township

I am a candidate for assessor of [illegible]

[illegible]

For Sheriff

[illegible]

LAXATIVE for Aged People

THE BANE of old age is constipation. The bowels become weak and unable to perform their functions without aid. For this purpose only the mildest and gentlest laxative should be used. The use of harsh cathartics aggravates the trouble and makes the constipation worse. Chamberlain's Tablets are a favorite with people of middle age and older on account of their gentle action.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Wm. P. Endicott,

For Judge 35th Judicial District,

DeKalb and Steuben Counties, Republican Ticket. Subject to Primaries, May 2nd.

Born in Cass county, Indiana, 41 years ago.

Raised on a farm.

Taught ten years in Indiana public schools.

Received law education at Indiana University, paying his own way.

Has actively practiced law in DeKalb and Steuben counties for 12 years, a longer period than many judges have practiced before occupying such positions.

Makes no claim and no boast of greatness, but refers you to those who know him as to his integrity and ability.

Your support will be appreciated.

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor, subject to your will at the May primaries. L. W. Yeiser.

For Auditor.

I wish to announce that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for auditor of DeKalb county at the Primary May 2nd. Your support will be appreciated.

W. G. Erick.

For Recorder.

George J. Kayser of Auburn announces his name for the democratic nomination for Recorder of DeKalb county at the primaries, May 2, 1922.

For Sheriff

I desire to inform the public that I am a candidate on the democratic ticket subject to their nomination for sheriff of DeKalb county in the May Primary. Your support will be appreciated.

Grover C. Sapp.

For Assessor

O. K. Shull will be a candidate for nomination on the republican ticket for assessor of Concord township, subject to the decision of the primary, May 2.

For Sheriff

[illegible]

Of Interest To Voters

Registration for the primary election in DeKalb county is not required, but two registration sessions for the November election will be held.

The primary election will be held Tuesday, May 2nd, and with a large number of candidates having filed declarations, this is the absorbing topic in politics.

The Indiana registration law provides that registration of voters shall be held on Saturday the 59th day and on Monday the 29th day before the date for the general election. As the general election comes this year on Tuesday, November 7, the first registration session therefore will be held on October 9th. The two sessions are so arranged in order to conform with the election law governing the removal of voters from county or from precinct to precinct during the 60-and-30-day periods preceding the general election.

Chas. Davis a Candidate.

Chas. Davis of Auburn has announced that he will ask the democratic voters at the primary May 2 to give him the party's nomination for sheriff of DeKalb county.

Mr. Davis is very well known throughout the county, having made many friends while he was deputy sheriff for four years under Sheriff Frank Baltz. Since he left that office he has been employed in the police department of the B. & O. railroad with headquarters in Garrett. His home was in Jackson township before he was appointed deputy sheriff.

Mr. Davis is the seventh candidate to enter the contest for the democratic nomination for sheriff.

Clark P. Whetsel, died suddenly Sunday about noon at the home of his son, Bruce Whetsel, on Route No. 3 from Auburn. Apoplexy was the immediate cause of death.

Auburn—An explosion of a gasoline stove at the home of Mr. Benj. Repp, county agent, Friday, caused an alarm to be sent in to the fire department, but by the time the department arrived Mrs Repp who, by rare presence of mind and quick action, had picked up a rug and threw it over the burning gasoline, extinguishing the blaze.

Notice of Appointment of Executor

Cause 2581.

STATE OF INDIANA, } ss.:
DEKALB COUNTY, }

I, C. E. McClintock, Clerk of the Circuit Court, for the County of DeKalb, State of Indiana, do hereby certify that Sarah E. Koontz has been appointed executrix of the last will and testament of Baltzer Koontz, late of DeKalb county, who died testate, and the said Sarah E. Koontz having qualified and given bond as such executrix [illegible] said will.

[illegible]

MARCH

You cannot afford not to save

THE disposition to save is the sure mark of determination to succeed.

Whatever your business and whatever your present prospects may be you cannot afford not to save

One dollar opens an account here. Start saving today.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones —Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

The MAULE SEED BOOK FREE

This wonderful 176-page book gives you the benefit of our [illegible] years experience as seedsmen, gardeners and farmers. Send a postal for it today.

WM. HENRY MAULE, Inc. 2131 Arch St. Phila. Pa.

SPENCERVILLE

For good glasses see Grisel at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Mrs. Josie Baltz was a Saturday guest at the home of Jacob Baltz and wife.

Mrs. Jason Kees of Ft. Wayne was an over Sunday guest of her [illegible], Wm. Allen and family.

The Ladies' Guild will be entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Golden High.

Fred High, who has been working at [illegible], Ind., several months returned home last week. Mr. High has accepted a position on [illegible]

[illegible]

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Bice, a daughter

Donald Kimes has accepted a position at Ft. Wayne.

Eck Hursh and family visited at the home of Frank Markle family.

For Sale: Good Used Ford in No. 1 condition.
St. Joe Garage.

Mrs. S E. Koontz, Harold Vallien and Jerry Markle spent Tuesday at Auburn.

Chas. Chapman, who spent the winter in Florida, returned home last week.

Miss Ailleen Allen, who has been attending school at Muncie, returned home Saturday.

Misses Leone Widdifield, Gaylon Markle and Ailleen Allen were entertained at dinner Sunday at the home of Fred High and wife.

Communion services will be held also the doors of the church will be opened Sunday morning at the Methodist church.

Miss Cozy Oberholtzer of Springfield Center, who has been staying at the home of Frank Markle and wife, returned home Sunday.

Mrs. Gertrude Markle and children and Mrs. Ethel Webb and daughter were last Friday evening guests of Frank Wertman and wife.

Mrs. J. B. Sommers spent Friday the guest of Mrs. Jacob Baltz, and Miss Charlotte was a Saturday last guest of the same.

Miss Baston of Purdue University gave a demonstration on Interior Decorations or Beautifying the Home on Tuesday afternoon at the Lutheran church.

Mrs. Edna Webb and daughter returned home Friday evening after spending a week visiting her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Zent of Roanoke.

The following seniors took the teachers' examination at Auburn on Saturday: [illegible] Lake, Mary Purvine, [illegible] [illegible] took the examination.

[illegible]

Life of Mrs. D. W. Baker

Rebecca Jane Hay was one of ten children born to Adam and Christine (Morr) Hay. She was born on the farm where she died, June 22nd, 1852, and passed to reward March 26th, 1922, at the age of 69 years, 9 months and 4 days.

She was married to Daniel W. Baker, October 12, 1872. To this union were born seven children, four boys and three girls; two of the boys have gone before her—James W., who died at the age of seventeen, and Enoch, who died in infancy. The remaining children are Orla, Mrs. Effie Wilson, Mrs. Mary Gilford, Franklin, and Mrs. Laura Mower, all of near Auburn and Concord. These, with the faithful husband, fifteen grandchildren, one brother, Franklin Hay, and two sisters, Mrs. Mary Morehouse, and Mrs. Laura Satterlee, all of Vermontville, Mich., are the immediate relatives surviving. Of these, the little granddaughter, Ruth, will miss her most. She has known no other mother, and for seven years she has claimed the undivided attention and care of her grandmother.

Sister Baker has lived her whole life in the vicinity of Concord, and here she was born. Here she was wed; here her children were born and grew to manhood and womanhood, and here the many acts and deeds that have endeared her to the community were performed. If there were no other testimony as to her righteousness of life the testimony of her neighbors and relatives were enough to establish it. But we also have the testimony of her faith in Christ, and the assurance that she was ready to meet Him. She has attended services at this church (Concord), and the one that preceded it, all her life. She dedicated her life to Christ and united with the church March 9th, 1890, under the pastorate of Rev. S. S. Stanton, and as long as she was physically able, and often when not she was found at her beloved church. Let us hope that her example may be followed by those who loved her.

She is gone, and we shall miss her,
We are sad and full of woe;
But the Lord who gave her, took her,
It is better she should go.

During the last several years she has been a constant sufferer. Yet such was her determination and courage, that she would not give up, only the last few weeks has seen her courage fail, and then only because the body could bear no more she desired to be at rest.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors, in this manner, for their heartfelt sympathy and their help during the sickness and death of our dear wife and mother.

Daniel W. Raker and family.

S. J. H. S. NOTES

(Continued from page one)

disagreeable weather have had a very noticeable effect on the attendance for the past week.

The Juniors are making preparations for the annual Junior and Senior Banquet.

We have finished the study of "The Tale of Two Cities," and will devote the last four weeks to the study of Milton's 'Minor Poems."

J. K.

SOPHOMORE.

One would think that the Music Class, taught by Miss Moore, is composed of genuises, for by the end of the term we each expect to have composed a "waltz" song. Each song will be complete, having a title, words, and an artistic cover design which is to correspond with the piece. Whether or not any of these pieces make a hit with the world remains to be seen. We are very hopeful.

The Geometry Class has taken up the study of ratio and proportion. It seems that the more we learn, the more we realise how much we do not know.

The Sophomore History Class is about to cover their required work. We find the latter part of the work to be not only more interesting, but more easy also.

R. J.

SENIOR.

The Senior Class will present "The Rhodes Scholar," on Saturday evening, April 8th. The tickets are being printed at the present time, the price of which will be 20 and 30 cents.

The Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered at the Christian Church, Sunday evening, April 16.

The last number of the Lecture Course will be given next Friday evening, Mar. 31, at the M. P. Church. The entertainment will be furnished by Arthur Irwin, "The Magician." Owing to the financial condition of the Lecture Course funds, it is desired and asked that the outstanding money for tickets be paid in by Friday evening, Mar. 31.

Spelling grades for the past week:

Seventh year	98.5
Eighth year	97.93
Sophomores	94
Sixth grade	92.6
Fifth year	92.35
Freshmen	87.2
Seniors	83.2
Juniors	80.6

The High School is taking orders for renewals to "The Country Gentleman" this week. One half of the proceeds of the renewals or new subscriptions goes to the school. This money will be used to purchase books for the library Or, perhaps a small part of it may be used to secure much needed records for our Victrola.

Next Saturday night we will offer "A Nervy Dentist" and "Short Skirts." Our shows are giving satisfaction, but our crowds continue to be small.

ONION SEED!
Southport Yellow Globe
—Also—
Field and Garden SEEDS
[illegible] Coal Co.
Auburn, Indiana.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Envelopes at 5 and 10c. per package at News office.

George Kees began work Tuesday morning on the Concord Section.

That New Haven will secure the next Purdue Short Course for Allen County is almost an assured fact.

The St. Joe and Concord section gangs on the B. & O., have been increased in number to 10 men. New rails are being laid.

Ed Miser has purchased a new Ford oil truck. His business has demanded a second truck and he has hired Ora Wilmot to work for him this season.

Lew Price, of Tyro, Ohio, and Monroe Dill, of Pierceton, spent Sunday and Monday with their brother and sister, Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price.

Miss Portia Hadsell was a Friday night guest of Miss Marjoria Curie. They were both Saturday night and Sunday guests of Miss Katherine Shull.

Charles Jordan returned home Thursday evening from some where in the west where he has been employed with the American Telephone and Telegraph Co., as a line man. Mr. Jordan will spend a short time with his family here and then will probably return to his work.

A tree cut into three 12-foot logs and one 8-foot log, measuring 28 inches in diameter at the small end of the top log and 44 inches in diameter at the big end of the butt log figured out to contain 2903 feet of lumber. Such a tree was cut in the Case woods, last week, by Ed Pflaumer and Sam Malone.

Christian Church Notes

Bible School at 9:30, Sunday morning, followed by Communion services and sermon by the pastor. Christian Endeavor at 6:00 p. m.

The Martha Society will meet with Mrs. Hazel Herrick, Thursday afternoon. There will be work.

The Loyal Boys and Girls will meet Friday evening at 7 o'clock with Miss Martha Woodcox in their regular monthly meeting.

Rehearsals are being held for the Easter program which will be given Easter morning.

The Loyal Sons and Daughters including children to the number of thirty-one held their regular monthly meeting, Sunday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Pugsley. A potluck dinner was served at the noon hour, after which the time was given to the regular business session, and talks given by Rev. R. B. Daily, Sam Keesler and George Wilmot which were interesting. A pleasant social hour followed.

Ford Size BATTERIES

It is always advisable to keep your BATTERIES in the best of repair.

Exchange your old one for a new one. We give you a new wood case set for your old one and $16.00

An all Rubber case set for your old one and $20.00.

These Batteries are guaranteed.

Mr. Bice, our battery man, is at Detroit for ten days recieving instructions on battery work.

F. W. SILBERG,
Spencerville, - Indiana

TIME is MONEY

To gain time, busy men willingly pay extra fares on limited trains. They forego the comforts of home at night in order to gain time while they sleep. They hire taxicabs to save time. They speed up operations to prevent idle time from eating into profits.

Concentration of buyiug at one source saves time and money.

We carry a complete line of building materials consisting of quality products supplied by reputable manutactures. Prices are right. Stocks are ample.

When your order is placed, your next concern is to get deliveries when you want them—delays are costly. You can count upon our delivery equipment for fire department speed.

Today, more than ever, time is money.

Spencerville Lumber Co.,
Asher Culp, Mgr.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible]

MENS AND BOYS' OUTFITTERS

[illegible] Calhoun Street

Fort Wayne, Ind.

MARCH

PLAN OUTLINED FOR ORGANIZING CLUBS TO PROMOTE GARDEN WORK

Potomac Park Gardens Near Washington on June 30, 1920, on Land Where Clearing Began March 22.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The United States Department of Agriculture and the state colleges of agriculture are frequently asked for the best method of organizing for garden work. Among the most successful city, town and village organizations, those that are organized on a co-operative basis, including all branches of the local government, the citizens' associations, the merchants' and other business men's associations, also schools and churches, have proven most effective. In order, however, to centralize the direction of the work the United States Department of Agriculture advises that a special garden committee or governing board be appointed. Under the direction of this committee, or board, all matters pertaining to securing the use of land, the purchase of seeds, fertilizers, plants and other materials are handled and the general supervision of the garden work maintained.

Formation of Club.

Where the work has not already been started, the formation of the organization should be perfected before the garden season begins, and all arrangements for the use of land and the purchase of materials consummated before they will be wanted. Someone, usually a public-spirited citizen, who can spare time for the work, should be appointed as director or chairman of the board. A membership fee of 50 cents to $1 is frequently paid by those who plant gardens and who receive benefit from the organization.

In some cases a special trained garden leader has been hired to give information and help to those who need it. Very often this supervisor has been employed for a few months only, but this type of supervision pays, provided the person employed understands his business. In most cases prizes have been offered by the merchants and business interests, first, for the best individual gardens, both in back yards and on vacant land, and, second, for the various products of the gardens. Usually an exhibit is held at some convenient time during the latter part of the garden season, and a contest between the gardeners is staged. These exhibits and contests have been of wonderful value in promoting a spirit of rivalry to produce the best. As a rule, however, the gardeners have considered the garden products as they came upon their home tables the greatest reward for their efforts.

Where a group of gardens is located on one piece of land it is often necessary to provide special means for financing the clearing, plowing and fitting the soil and later for policing the gardens to prevent losses, either from stray live stock or from theft. The fees collected from each gardener to cover these costs have varied in different instances from $1 to $5 per garden, but rarely more than $3. Any funds that are left in the treasury at the end of the season can be used for promoting the garden movement the following year or returned to the gardeners.

Success in organizing city, town or village garden work depends upon leadership, and the harmonious working together of all concerned. One of the most successful garden clubs of which there is record is governed by a board of nine directors who are elected annually by ballot. The directors elect a chairman, secretary and treasurer, who constitute the officers of the club. This club has been in existence for several years and has grown stronger in its organization each year.

The formation of clubs consisting of those who plant gardens in their back yards is a little more difficult and must include provision for rendering a distinct service to its members. This service may consist of the purchase of manure or fertilizers, plowing the back yards, and supplying early plants or seeds. The gardeners must be made to feel that they are getting something in return for their participation in the club and the payment of dues, otherwise little interest will be taken in the organization.

Co-Operative Spraying.

In a few instances the spraying of crops to control insects and diseases has been handled in a co-operative way, using power sprayers which go over the gardens at such stated intervals as may be necessary for good results. These power sprayers are simply driven into the alleys, and lines of hose discharging the spray mixture carried into the gardens. In this way effective spraying can be secured at a less cost than if the gardeners provided spray equipment to do the work themselves. There are numerous other ways in which back yard gardeners can secure benefits from organized efforts. The greatest opening, however, for active organization in the home garden line is among those who plan gardens on a community basis.

RECORD INVALUABLE IN ARRANGING WORK

It Is Often Means of Saving Labor Costs.

Farmer Enabled to Determine Number of Days Necessary to Produce an Acre of Any Crop, or for Care of Animals.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Keeping a record of farm labor does not require much time, yet it is often the means of saving labor costs. The United States Department of Agriculture has found such records of great value in the cases of many farmers whose experience has come to its notice. The labor records should show just how much man labor and team work is required on each crop and the season when it is used. They should show what proportion of the labor is devoted to work that directly produces income, and the amount that is consumed by odd jobs or indirectly productive tasks.

This will enable the farmer to determine the number of days of man labor and horse labor necessary to produce an acre of any crop or for the care of any class of animals for a year. [illegible]

[illegible]

WAR EXPLOSIVES FOR ROADS

Trinitrotoluol Has Become One of Most Desirable Agencies for Construction Work.

Trinitrotoluol, one of the most efficient of war-time explosives, has become, by adaptation, one of the most desirable agencies for the peace-time task of road construction, according to reports received from many states by the bureau of public roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. The use of this powerful explosive is becoming general throughout the Union wherever highways are under construction. Out of the surplus war materials turned over by the War Department to the Department of Agriculture and distributed by the bureau of public roads among the various states, approximately 20,000,000 pounds of T. N. T. has found its way to the road builders' supply houses. This is more than four times as much as the total of powder of all grades distributed by the department among the states.

The quantity of T. N. T. distributed up to September 15, among the states, was [illegible] pounds. In addition there has been distributed [illegible] pounds of [illegible] and [illegible] pounds of [illegible] powder. [illegible] among the states were [illegible] pounds of dynamite, [illegible] pounds picric acid, [illegible] detonators, [illegible] exploders, [illegible] caps, [illegible] feet of fuse, [illegible] reels of detonating cord, and [illegible] dampers.

TRY NEW GARDEN VARIETIES

[illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED ROADS

WAR MATERIAL MADE USEFUL

Ingenious and Economical Uses of Surplus Supplies Made in Construction of Highways.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Army ambulances have been converted to survey cars for use in road building; water sprinklers changed to machines for spraying whitewash on poles along state highways; bombproof shelters now house road-making tools and explosives—such are some of the peace-time conversions of surplus war materials turned over to the states through the Department of Agriculture, by authority of the congress, and now playing a part in extending and perfecting the national highways.

Reports from many states to the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, through which agency the surplus material was distributed, tell of the ingenious and economical uses of these supplies, valued at $50,000,000. Among the chief items thus distributed are nearly 30,000 motor vehicles and nearly $12,000,000 worth of spare parts. In their original form, the motortrucks were generally not suited for road construction purposes on account of the shape and size of their bodies, which were designed especially for army use, but the majority of the trucks have been altered by substituting dump bodies and hoisting devices for the cargo and ammunition bodies with which they are equipped.

Steel Rails Being Made Use Of for Dragging a Road.

Idaho has converted the steel ammunition bodies into bottom-dump bodies; Maine has removed the cargo bodies from the chassis and changed them into dump bodies by pivoting them near the rear end, and adding a hoisting device; Arizona has cut the bottoms of the bodies in half from front to back and then used the sides for a new bottom and the two halves of the bottom for the new sides. Nearly all the states in which there is a snow problem have utilized a portion of their truck allotment to push snow plows in winter, and many have converted the trucks into serviceable sprinklers.

RUSH OF PRELIMINARY WORK

There Will Be No Delay in Highway Construction by Enactment of New Federal Act.

Highway construction will not be delayed by the requirements of the new federal highway act. The federal highway system will consist of roads, not exceeding 7 per cent of the total in any state, designated by the state and approved by the secretary of agriculture. Work is being rushed by all the highway departments on the preparation of maps of the proposed system, but naturally such an important matter will take some little time and consideration. The government authorities will insist that important through routes meet at state lines which will require conferences between authorities of different states.

In order that work will not be delayed pending the approval of each state system the secretary of agriculture has amended the rules and regulations for federal aid to permit the immediate construction of such roads as it may reasonably be anticipated will become part of the system.

State highway officials are being advised that the anticipated route of which the road to be built is a part should be as long as practicable, preferably entirely across the state. A [illegible] showing the route, [illegible] and connecting routes. If this is found satisfactory the project will be approved [illegible].

The State of [illegible] submitted [illegible] and plans are [illegible] in a short time.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

Hoosier News Briefly Told

Princeton.—Forty coal miners of Gibson and Pike counties pleaded guilty in the Gibson Circuit court at Princeton on charges of rioting in connection with disturbances at Francisco June 10, 1921, when the superintendent of the Francisco coal mine and his family were driven from home by vigilantes numbering several hundred. Following the plea entered for the defendants by their attorneys the prosecuting attorney and the special assistant prosecuting attorney recommended as punishment fines not to exceed $50 for each of the 40 defendants. The state does not know where several of the defendants are at the present time, and the action does not dispose of the cases of the missing persons.

Indianapolis.—Internal revenue collections in Indiana due on 1921 business, from January 1 to and including March 18, amounted to $5,421,890.56, or 53.9 per cent of the collections during the correponding period last year, M. Bert Thurman, collector of internal revenue for Indiana, said. The collections during the corresponding period last year amounted to $10,051,257.02. The individual returns on incomes less than $5,000 this year were about 40 per cent of the number filed last year, while the number on incomes more than $5,000 was about 58 per cent of last year. The corporation returns were about 60 per cent of last year, Mr. Thurman said.

Indianapolis.—Approximately 500,000 cubic feet of helium gas, worth about $80 a 1,000 cubic feet, could be extracted from the present average annual output of natural gas in Indiana, the state geologist said in discussing the rarity of helium gas, its value in aerial navigation, the report from Washington, D. C., that Indiana is one of five states where helium gas is to be found in natural gas, and the history of its discovery. Indiana natural gas wells at the present time are found, for the most part, in Delaware, Madison, Hancock, Henry, Grant, Blackford, Randolph, Jay, Shelby, Wayne and Fayette counties, said the geologist.

Indianapolis.—Veterans of the World war who are in soldiers' homes in Indiana are "S. O. L.," if an opinion sent to David N. Foster, member of the board of the Indiana State Soldiers' home, by Attorney General U. S. Lesh holds water. In a letter Mr. Foster asks "if a part of adjusted compensation can be withheld when he becomes a member of the home." In his answer Mr. Lesh ruled it lawful for the board of trustees to make it a condition that soldiers, unmarried, receiving a pension, shall pay into the home all over $16.

Terre Haute.—Plans for sending speakers before all of the Parent-Teachers associations during the Vigo county milk festival, April 24 to May 6, have been made by a committee of the Parent-Teacher councils. Thirty-five schools in and near the city will be visited in a series of 18 meetings between April 26 and May 2, and the purpose of the festival will be explained by speakers from Purdue university, the department of agriculture and Terre Haute persons.

Indianapolis.—Investigation by the state board of tax commissioners in Indianapolis, Marion county and 61 others of the 92 Indiana counties has disclosed, members of the board believe, that real estate in Indiana has been appraised at considerably less than its real value and the board is urging tax assessors this season to stick close to a 100 per cent true cash valuation on the basis of normal market conditions.

Princeton.—The Patoka township farmers' organization, meeting in the Gibson county courthouse, voted unanimously to ask the Gibson county commissioners to grant no more stone roads for three years. The farmers also took action against the building of any more schoolhouses, except in case of emergency, during the same period. More than 100 members of the organization were present.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray announced the appointment of Dr. Byron E. Biggs as superintendent of the Indiana School for Feeble-Minded Youth at Fort Wayne. He is to take charge about May 1. Doctor Biggs is now medical superintendent of the Mississippi Colony for the Feeble-Minded at [illegible], Miss.

Huntingburg.—Dubois county is leading in the agricultural survey of [illegible] counties in this district, which includes Dubois, Pike, Perry, Crawford, Spencer and Warrick. It has been announced at the headquarters here.

Terre Haute.—Members of Honey Creek Grange, No. 1, adopted resolutions condemning strikes or conditions which will have a tendency to delay the return to normal industrial life.

[illegible].—Governor McCray has [illegible] April 21, as Arbor day.

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—State and federal prohibition laws, as well as all other laws, are being rigidly enforced in Indiana, and violations of laws of every kind are on the decline, says U. S. Lesh, attorney general, in a letter to Harry M. Daugherty, attorney general of the United States. In the letter Mr. Lesh reports the verdict of about thirty prosecuting attorneys of the state, to whom he recently sent questionnaires. The improvement in the law enforcement situation is the direct result of the campaign against law violations launched January 20, Mr. Lesh says. At that time he called all prosecuting attorneys in the state to Indianapolis and asked them to aid in suppressing the crime wave, particularly as to "bootlegging" and profiteering.

Indianapolis.—Organizations caring for dependent and homeless children in nearly every county of the state are violating the law under which they are supposed to be operated in one way or another, officials of the board of state charities have announced. The violations are due apparently to a lack of clear understanding of the law, it was said. Cases recently reported to the board involve expenditures of public money contrary to law, the boarding of children at public expense in institutions outside the state, and the operation of a children's boarding home without a license and sometimes in poorly situated buildings without adequate facilities.

Kentland.—Citizens of Brock held a meeting and drafted a petition to be presented to Governor McCray asking for a special session of the legislature to enact a law forbidding railroad companies from junking roads. They are asking for a law similar to laws on this subject now in force in Wisconsin and Michigan. The petitions are being circulated along the line of the Brazil division of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad, abandoned since the first of the year, and are being signed by many. Governor McCray has expressed doubt whether the plan of calling a special session of the legislature would be at all advisable or of any assistance in the matter.

Terre Haute.—Indiana miners again refused the invitation of the operators to confer with the object of effecting a separate wage agreement applicable to this state alone. John Hessler, president of the United Mine Workers of district 11, replying to an invitation of the operators, declared the Indiana miners would not break away from the policy of interstate agreements. Hessler asserted the miners are bound by the Washington agreement, under which the expiring contract was negotiated, to take up new wage scales only at interstate conferences.

Indianapolis.—The erection of a $3,000,000 Indianapolis exposition building, five stories high, with an auditorium of 20,000 seating capacity, and with exposition floor space twice that of the Manufacturers' building at the state fair ground, was recommended in a survey of the needs of Indianapolis for a coliseum and exposition building, presented to a committee which was appointed at the meeting of Indianapolis manufacturers six weeks ago, to consider plans and possibilities for such a building.

Indianapolis.—Two thousand public officeholders will be elected this year in Indiana. In addition, the voters will select 10,000 party precinct committeemen and state convention delegates. Aspirants for the offices now are getting ready for the May primaries, in which probably 15,000 persons will be entered as candidates. The offices range from township constable to United States senator, with many state, county and township places in between. Only the state officers escape the primary.

Evansville.—The furniture industry, with 2,412 men employed on an average of 50.4 hours a week, led the field of Evansville industries the first 15 days in March, according to the report of the employment bureau of the Evansville Manufacturers' association. Machine shops, stove manufacturers and foundries came next with 745 men employed on an average of 36.5 hours a week. It is said there are fewer unemployed men in Evansville than a year ago.

Newcastle.—A building program, costing more than $1,000,000, has been started in Newcastle and vicinity, and the coming spring and summer is expected to be the busiest in the history of the community along this line. Buildings of a public or semi-public nature costing approximately $1,200,000 are either planned or actual work has begun, and in addition many homes are being erected.

Indianapolis.—Conservation of Indiana waterways was urged by the director of the state department of conservation at a luncheon of the Indiana [illegible] and Water Supply association, in annual convention at Indianapolis. The director said stream [illegible] if the waterways are to be used for drinking purposes.

[illegible] Brazil [illegible] city.

Hammond.—[illegible]

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

Fields enchanted, and woods a' dream,
Ermine crested, royal and still.
Hushed in silver peace each stream,
Tall and proud each ivoried hill.

Hush! Like some late bird that lingers,
Strange wild voices come and go,
As the wind, with fairy fingers,
Harps the wild dance of the snow.

MORE GOOD THINGS

Put one cupful of raisins through the meat grinder, and then cook in a quart of chicken stock for twenty minutes. Thicken with six tablespoonfuls of flour, blended to a paste with one-fourth of a cupful of butter; season with one teaspoonful of salt, a few dashes of pepper. Add one pint of thin cream mixed with the beaten yolk of an egg. Stir until heated through, and serve with a garnish of the stiffly beaten white, flavored with two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice.

Imitation Pates de Foie Gras.—Boil in separate sauce pans a calf's tongue and a calf's liver and let stand for a day in the refrigerator so that both will be cold and firm. Pare and cut up the tongue into small triangular pieces that will look like the truffles in pates. Put the liver through a food chopper, using the finest knife and repeating the process. Into a large mixing bowl add the chopped liver and one-fourth its volume in melted or softened butter, working the two together until smooth. Now add to the liver paste one tablespoonful of strained onion juice, one teaspoonful each of made mustard and worcestershire sauce, one-fourth of a teaspoonful each of ground cloves and cayenne pepper, one-half of a nutmeg grated, and salt to taste. Butter the inside of jars or glasses and pack the paste as firmly as possible, mixing the bits of calf's tongue with it. Cover with melted butter and put on the covers when the butter is hard. Set in the refrigerator and the mixture will keep for weeks.

Waffles.—Beat one egg, add two cupfuls of sour milk, three-fourths of a teaspoonful of soda, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and about three and a half cupfuls of flour. The batter must not be too thick. Have the iron quite hot before greasing both sides. Do not look at the waffle until it has time to be cooked. Do not serve hot syrup with hot waffles as it makes the crispest waffle soggy.

An angel, robed in spotless white,
Came to me once and bade me,
"Write."
"What shall I write?" I, wondering, asked.
"Look in my heart, and tell, unmasked,
The greatest truth thou seest there."
I looked, and straight this thing laid bare:
The shadow of a sorrow great;
A silenced wrong, forgotten hate;
A golden rod each one above,
This rod, the magic wand of love.
—Harriet d'Autremont.

WHAT SHALL WE EAT?

This is season of the year when every member of the family will enjoy an:

English Plum Pudding. — Soak one-half pound of stale bread crumbs in scalded milk, using one cupful. When cool add one-fourth of a pound of brown sugar, the well-beaten yolks of five eggs. Dredge lightly with flour, add one-half pound of raisins, one-fourth pound each of currants and candied cherries finely cut, two ounces of citron cut in thin shreds. Add one-half pound of suet finely chopped and creamed, one-half of a grated nutmeg, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of mace, the same of salt, one-third of a cupful of orange juice; mix well and fold in the stiffly beaten whites of the eggs. Turn into a buttered tube mold and steam six to eight hours. Serve with:

Meat Loaf.—Put through a meat chopper, one pound of lean ham, one pound of fresh pork and one small onion. Add salt pepper and two teaspoonfuls of curry powder, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of sage, then put again through the meat chopper, add one-third of a cupful of cream, and one egg white. Roll in cheesecloth, with four strips of fat. Simmer in three quarts of water and one-fourth of a cupful of vinegar, one teaspoonful of salt, for two and one-half hours. Drain, cool, put under a weight and serve when cool and firm.

Steamed Brown Betty.—Mix two cupfuls of brown bread crumbs with two cupfuls of chopped apple, add two-thirds of a cupful of brown sugar, one cupful of seeded raisins mixed with two tablespoonfuls of flour and one-half teaspoonful of salt; add one cupful of milk to which one beaten egg has been added and beat thoroughly. Steam in buttered molds two hours. Serve with lemon or vanilla sauce.

Angel Food Pudding.—[illegible]

Nellie Maxwell

MARCH

THAT ANGEL BOY

He Sang Like an Angel, But His Trip to the Country Will Be Long Remembered.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

I AM SO glad you consented to stay over until Monday, auntie, for now you can hear our famous boy choir," Ethel had said at the breakfast table that Sunday morning.

"Humph! I've heard of 'em," Ann Wetherby had returned crisply, "but I never took much stock in 'em. A choir—made o' boys—just as if music could come from yellin', hootin' boys!"

An hour later at St. Mark's, the softly swelling music of the organ was sending curious little thrills tingling to Miss Wetherby's finger tips. Then faintly in the distance sounded the first sweet notes of the processional.

Ethel stirred slightly and threw a meaning glance at her aunt. The woman met the look unflinchingly.

"Them ain't no boys!" she whispered tartly.

Nearer and nearer swelled the chorus until the leaders reached the open doors. Miss Wetherby gave one look at the white-robed singers, then she reached over and clutched Ethel's fingers.

"They be!—and in their nighties, too!" she added in a horrified whisper.

One of the boys had a solo in the anthem that morning, and as the clear, pure soprano rose higher and higher, Miss Wetherby gazed in undisguised awe at the young singer. She noted the soulful eyes uplifted devoutly, and the broad forehead framed in clustering brown curls. To Miss Wetherby it was the face of an angel.

At dinner that day Miss Wetherby learned that the soloist was "Bobby Sawyer." She also learned that he was one of Ethel's "fresh-air" mission children, and that, as yet, there was no place for him to go for a vacation.

"That angel child with the heavenly voice—and no one to take him in?" Miss Wetherby bethought herself of her own airy rooms and flowering meadows, and snapped her lips together with sudden determination.

"I'll take him!" she announced tersely, and went home the next day to prepare for her expected guest.

Early in the morning of the first Monday in July, Miss Wetherby added the finishing touches to the dainty white bedroom upstairs.

"Dear little soul—I hope he'll like it!" she murmured.

On the table in the corner were hymn books, the great red-and-gold family Bible, and a "Baxter's Saints' Rest"—the only reading matter suited to Miss Wetherby's conception of the mind behind those soulful orbs upraised in devout adoration.

Just before Ann started for the station Tommy Green came over to leave his pet dog, Rover, for Miss Wetherby's "fresh-air" boy to play with.

"Now, Thomas Green," remonstrated Ann severely, "you can take that dirty dog right home. I won't have him around. Besides, Robert Sawyer ain't the kind of a boy you be. He don't care fur sech things—I know he don't."

Half an hour later, Ann Wetherby, her heart thumping loudly against her ribs, anxiously scanned the passengers as they alighted at Slocumville station. There were not many—an old man, two girls, three or four women, and a small, dirty boy with a dirtier dog and a brown paper parcel in his arms.

He had not come!

Miss Wetherby held her breath and looked furtively at the small boy. There was nothing familiar in his appearance, she was thankful to say! He must be another one for somebody else. Still, perhaps he might know something about her own angel boy—she would ask.

Ann advanced warily, with a disapproving eye on the dog.

"Little boy, can you tell me why Robert Sawyer didn't come?" she asked severely.

The result of her cautious question disconcerted her not a little. The boy dropped the dog and bundle to the platform, threw his hat in the air, and capered about in wild glee.

"Hi, there, Bones! We're all right! Golly—but I thought we were side-tracked, for sure!"

Miss Wetherby sank in limp dismay to a box of freight near by—the bared head disclosed the clustering brown curls and broad forehead, and the eyes uplifted to the whirling hat completed the tell-tale picture.

The urchin caught the hat deftly on the back of his head and pranced up to Ann with his hands in his pockets.

[illegible]

change of position, "yer'd better call me 'Bob'; I ain't uster nothin' else. I'd fly off the handle quicker'n no time, puttin' on airs like that."

Miss Wetherby's back straightened. She made a desperate attempt to regain her usual stern self-possession.

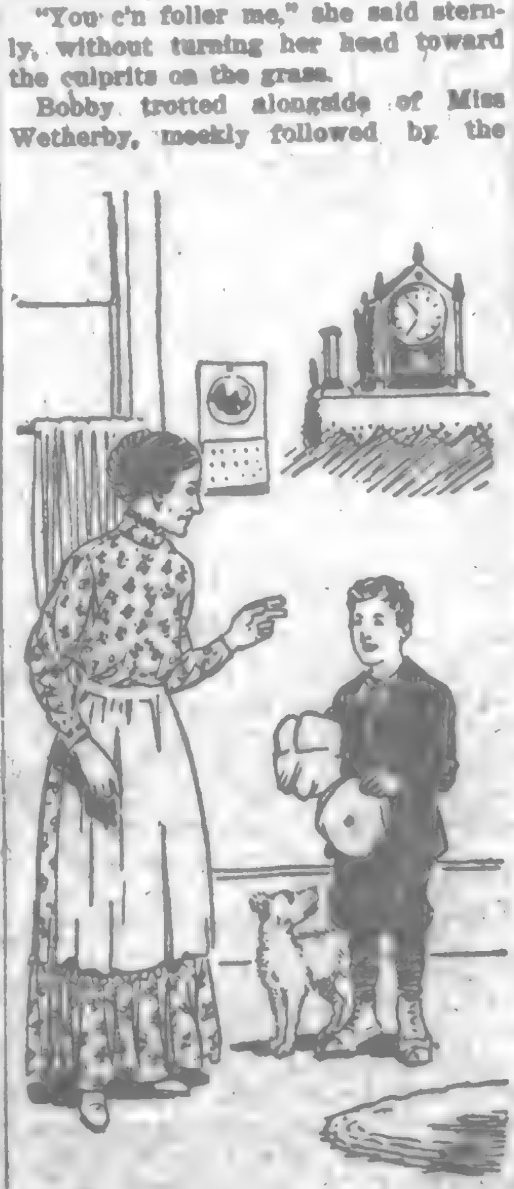
"I shall call ye 'Robert,' boy. I don't like—er—that other name."

There was a prolonged stare and a low whistle from the boy. Then he turned to pick up his bundle.

"Come on, Bones, stir yer stumps; lively, now! This 'ere lady's a-goin' ter take us ter her shebang ter stay mos' two weeks. Gee-whiz! Bones, ain't this great!" And with one bound he was off the platform and turning a series of somersaults on the soft grass followed by the skinny, mangy dog which was barking itself nearly wild with joy.

"You c'n foller me," she said sternly, without turning her head toward the culprits on the grass.

Bobby trotted alongside of Miss Wetherby, meekly followed by the dog. Soon the boy gave his trousers an awkward hitch and glanced sideways up at the woman.



"Robert, You Ain't a'Going Home Today."

"Oh, I say, marm, I think it's bully of yer ter let me an' Bones come," he began sheepishly. "It looked 's if our case'd hang fire till the crack o' doom; there wa'n't no one ter have us. When Miss Ethel told me her aunt'd take us, it jest struck me all of a heap. I tell ye, me an' Bones made tracks fur Slocumville 'bout's soon as they'd let us."

"I hain't no doubt of it!" retorted Ann, looking back hopelessly at the dog.

"Ye see," continued the boy confidentially, "there ain't ev'ry one what likes boys, an'—hi, there!—go it, Bones!" he suddenly shrieked, and scampered wildly after the dog which had dashed into the bushes by the side of the road.

Ann did not see her young charge again until she had been home half an hour.

"Jiminy Christmas!" he exclaimed, "I begun ter think I'd lost ye, but I remembered yer last name was the same's Miss Ethel's, an' a boy—Tommy Green, around the corner—he told me where ye lived. And, oh, I say, me an' Bones are a-goin' off with him an' Rover after I've had somethin' ter eat—'t is most grub time, ain't it?" he added anxiously.

Ann sighed in a discouraged way. "Yes, I s'pose 't is. I left some beans a-bakin', and dinner'll be ready pretty quick. You can come upstairs with me, Robert, an' I'll show ye where yer goin' ter sleep," she finished, with a sinking heart, as she thought of those ruffled pillow shams.

Bobby followed Miss Wetherby into the dainty chamber. He gave one look, and puckered up his lips for a long, low whistle.

[illegible]

When Ann went upstairs to make the bed that Tuesday morning, the sight that met her eyes struck terror to her heart. The bedclothes were scattered in wild confusion half over the room. The washbowl, with two long singing books across it, she discovered to her horror, was serving as a prison for a small green snake. The Bible and the remaining hymn books, topped by "Baxter's Saints' Rest," lay in a suspicious-looking pile on the floor. Under these Miss Wetherby did not look. After her experience with the snake and the wash bowl, her nerves were not strong enough. She recoiled in dismay, also, from the sight of two yellow, paper-covered books on the table, flaunting shamelessly the titles: "Jack the Pirate of Red Island," and "Haunted by a Headless Ghost."

Ann Wetherby never forgot that Fourth of July, nor for that matter, the days that immediately followed. She went about with both ears stuffed with cotton, and eyes that were ever on the alert for all manner of creeping, crawling things in which Bobby's soul delighted.

The boy, reinforced by the children of the entire neighborhood, held a circus in Miss Wetherby's woodshed, and instituted a Wild Indian camp in her attic. The poor woman was quite powerless, and remonstrated all in vain. The boy was so cheerfully good-tempered under her sharpest words that the victory was easily his.

But on Saturday when Miss Wetherby, returning from a neighbor's, found two cats, four dogs, and two toads tied to her parlor chairs, together with three cages containing respectively a canary, a parrot, and a squirrel (collected from obliging households), she rebelled in earnest and summoned Bobby to her side.

"Robert, I've stood all I'm a-goin' ter. You've got to go home Monday. Do you hear?"

"Oh, come off, Miss Wetherby, 'tain't only a menag'ry, an' you don't use the room none."

Miss Wetherby's mouth worked convulsively.

"Robert!" she gasped, as soon as she could find her voice, "I never, never heard of such dreadful goin's-on! You certainly can't stay here no longer," she continued sternly.

An hour later, Miss Wetherby had a caller. It was the chorister of her church choir. The man sat down gingerly on one of the slippery haircloth chairs and proceeded at once to state his business.

"I understand, Miss Wetherby, that you have an—er—young singer with you."

Miss Wetherby choked, and stammered "Yes."

"He sings—er—very well, doesn't he?"

The woman was still more visibly embarrassed.

"I—I don't know," she murmured; then in stronger tones, "The one that looked like him did."

"Are there two?" he asked in stupid amazement.

Miss Wetherby laughed uneasily, then she sighed.

"Well, ter tell the truth, Mr. Wiggins, I s'pose there ain't; but sometimes I think there must be. I'll send Robert down ter the rehearsal tonight, and you can see what ye can do with him." And with this Mr. Wiggins was forced to be content.

Bobby sang on Sunday. The little church was full to the doors. Bobby was already famous in the village. The witchery of the glorious voice entered again into the woman's soul, and indeed, sent the entire congregation home in an awed silence that was the height of admiring homage.

At breakfast time Monday morning, Bobby came downstairs with his brown paper parcel under his arm. Ann glanced at his woeful face, then went out into the kitchen and slammed the oven door sharply.

"Well, marm, I've had a bully time—sure's a gun," said the boy wistfully, following her.

"Robert," she began with assumed sternness, trying to hide her depth of feeling, "you ain't a-goin' home ter-day—now mind what I say! Take them things upstairs. Quick—breakfast's all ready!"

A great light transfigured Bobby's face. He tossed his bundle into a corner and fell upon Miss Wetherby with a bearlike hug.

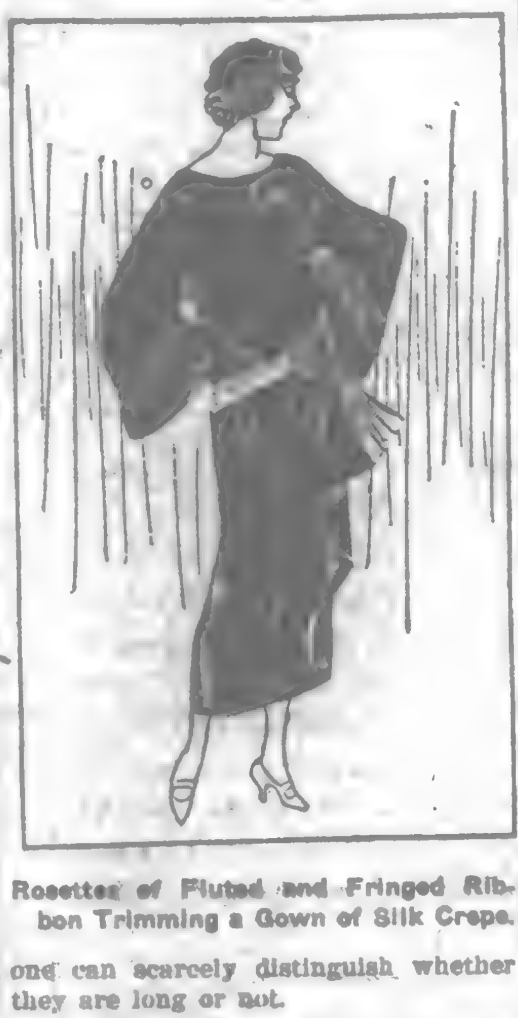
"Gee-whiz! marm—but yer a brick! An' I'll run yer errands an' split yer wood, an' I won't [illegible]

[illegible]

Signs of Modes for the Season

Frocks this spring will have fullness. They will have a little added length, but not an accentuated amount, asserts a fashion writer in the New York Times. There will be sleeves as decorative as any part of a pageant and drapings in every style allied with fabrics to defy the imagination. The pure essence of smartness will be there, while the actual spring creations, in their newest American and Parisian interpretations, await release to the public.

Length of skirts seems to be a fairly well-disputed point. Fashion people insist loudly that skirts shall be long. The fashion people and the fashion models wear long skirts, but the American women are doing nothing of the sort. Perhaps they will come around with a wild rush to dress as they are bidden, but as yet they have shown no disposition in that direction. Their only feeling for longer skirts is when they wear losely hanging panels which bob about so saucily in the breeze that one can scarcely distinguish whether they are long or not.



Rosettes of Fluted and Fringed Ribbon Trimming a Gown of Silk Crepe.

Still, the fact remains that the newer spring models making their appearance have somewhat longer skirts, though not nearly so long as might have been suspected.

We have the loose, short coat for spring. This is something entirely new, for it has sleeves that often are made kimono-fashion. The French have adopted this style, and we are following, even though we are prone to consider the suit as something which must have tightly-fitted sleeves with armholes that are as defined and stitched and shaped as any tailored man's garment—and sometimes more so. The little, loose coat will be one of the spring features, and while sometimes it will have a skirt to match, more often it will be combined with a skirt of some other material and some contrasting color. The coat will be patterned or striped and the skirt will be plain, or the combination will be reversed and the skirt will carry the pattern, while the coat will be plain.

With or Wtihout Wraps.

Street dresses for spring—those that can be worn with or without wraps to cover them—are perhaps the most interesting of all the new dresses. They really form the foundation-note for many costume suits, as they are called, for it is a simple matter to select a wrap or a top coat that carries out the scheme of the dress, once the costume has been given some distinction of design. Lelong models show things which he considers to be the most interesting designs for wear during the coming season. They have all of the features which make the new frocks popular, and they are made from the materials which will be most used for spring.

A dress with a simulated jacket is made of dark blue wool velours, in an extremely light weight. Its edges are braided closely, so that the little addition to the bodice suggests a jacket. The sleeves are made [illegible] full, and are gathered into [illegible] a succession of pleated and fringed ribbons in dull reds, and greens and browns.

[illegible]

The hat, too, has been cleverly made of a series of the same rosettes set around the brim of a closely fitting turban. And then rows of ribbon, set on straight, around the waistline and sleeves, end at one side of the waist in a fringed series of tags dangling over the skirt where it is draped at that point.

This dress shows one of the longer waistline which, from all that can be learned about the coming fashions, is something likely to remain with us for at least another season. This is cheerful news for the long, slim figures, which can so well stand the line; but for the shorter women there is every chance they will find the normal waistline and, in some instances, a line that is higher still, the fashion for them.

More and more is the fact disclosed that one places one's waistline, and the rest of the lines of one's costume, for the matter of that, exactly where one wishes, for the fashion of individuality grows upon the population as time goes on. More and more women are willing to take the courageous step which stamps them as persons with their very own style of dressing.

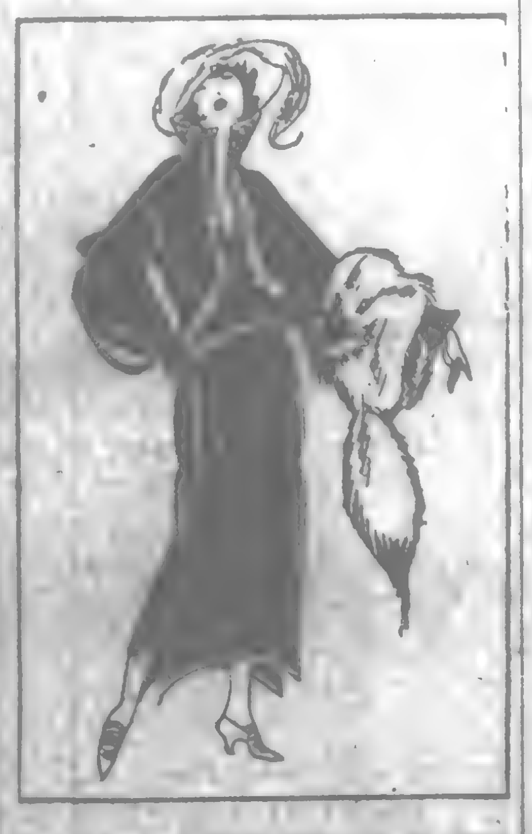
The newer woolen fabrics for spring are something to be wondered at and loved, for they are woven in so soft and pliable a manner that, from a distance, one cannot tell them from silken materials. The Rodier kasha cloth has made a distinct sensation, for it is being used right and left for the making of street dresses, two-piece costumes and suits of various sorts. Its chief attribute is that, while it is as soft as any woolen material coming from the looms in many a long year, it is shown in many and vivid colorings, so that any taste and any style of garment can be successfully carried out with this material as a foundation.

Kasha Cloth Is Popular.

For all the dresses which used to feature serge, kasha cloth is now used, for it is only a refined and beautified serge, with all the surface of a wool velours and all of the foundation weave of a serge, to give it firmness and solidity of texture.

Then silks have taken a very strong place in the designing and making of clothes for the street which are always the first dresses to be considered for spring. Silks have such strength of texture that they serve excellently for all sorts of frocks for which woolen materials have usually been employed.

It takes a long while to turn the mind in the direction of accepting silk as a material for street dresses—especially if one expects them to amount to anything after they have been given any amount of wear. However, such is the perfection of heavy silk as it is woven today that it can fairly stand alongside the heavier materials and compete with them, on an equal basis, for all the honors of giving steady wear, of providing an economical medium of dressing, and so on, through all the necessary attributes of any material which attempts to take an honored place among those sponsored by American women for any sort of [illegible]



The Dress of Dark Blue Twill With Red and White Braid Trimmings.

[illegible]

Mrs. C. L. Scott

South Bend, Ind.—"I had become all run-down, very weak and nervous, and was so poorly that I could not do any of my work, but after taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription I regained my strength and never felt better in my life. It completely restored me to health. I had practically no suffering and my baby was very strong and healthy. I know 'Favorite Prescription' to be the best medicine a woman can take during expectancy and afterward for strength and health."—Mrs. C. L. Scott, 401 E. Sample St.

The use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has made many women happy by making them healthy. Get it at once from your nearest druggist in either liquid or tablet form.

Liggett & Myers

KING PIN

PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why

A Fish as a Mousetrap.

A large brook trout was caught by J. E. Barbour of Paterson, N. J., in the St. John's river, Gaspe, Canada, June 20, 1921, and when opened it was found that its stomach contained nine mice, five of them quite large.

DYED HER BABY'S COAT, A SKIRT AND CURTAINS WITH "DIAMOND DYES"

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her old, worn, faded things new. Even if she has never dyed before, she can put a new, rich color into shabby skirts, dresses, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything. Buy Diamond Dyes—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is guaranteed. Just tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton, or mixed goods. Diamond Dyes never streak, spot, fade or run.—advertisement.

Yes, With Too Many of Us.

"Six days pass mighty quick," said Uncle Eben, "but dey's more dan time enough to let us fohgit whut we learnt on Sunday."

The use of soft coal will make laundry work heavier this winter. Red Cross Ball Blue will help to remove that grimy look. At all grocers—Advertisement.

Easy.

"What kind of boys go to heaven, Willie?"

"Dead ones."

CORNS

Lift Off with Fingers

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly!

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

Cuticura Soap

For the Hands

[illegible]

MARCH

→FOR SALE←

REGISTERED SPOTTED POLANDS

Doubled Immuned—5 sows due to farrow in April; 1 boar, 2 1-2 years old.

FARMING TOOLS

Iron Age Potatoe Planter, fertilizer attachment complete, good as new; Elevator Potatoe Digger, 3-horse Disc with tongue trucks.

T. A. NORTHRUP

2 miles west and 1 mile south of St. Joe.

Musical Art

Conducting and Teaching a Specialty.

Arrangements can be made for beginners and advanced pupils at any time desired.

Call personally Mr. WILCOX, 2nd door west of Opera House, St. Joe, Ind.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE [illegible] NOTARY PUBLIC

Local Briefs

[illegible] Cochran was a[illegible] [illegible], Tuesday.

[illegible]

Mrs Chas. Strite is visiting relatives in Ohio.

For fashions, get a copy of the spring number of McCall's Embroidery Book at the News office.

Mr. and Mrs. Argyle Sechler last Saturday night and Sunday were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Mumma.

Merritt Sechler entertained last Sunday at dinner Wm. Staman, sr., and wife, and William Staman, jr., and wife.

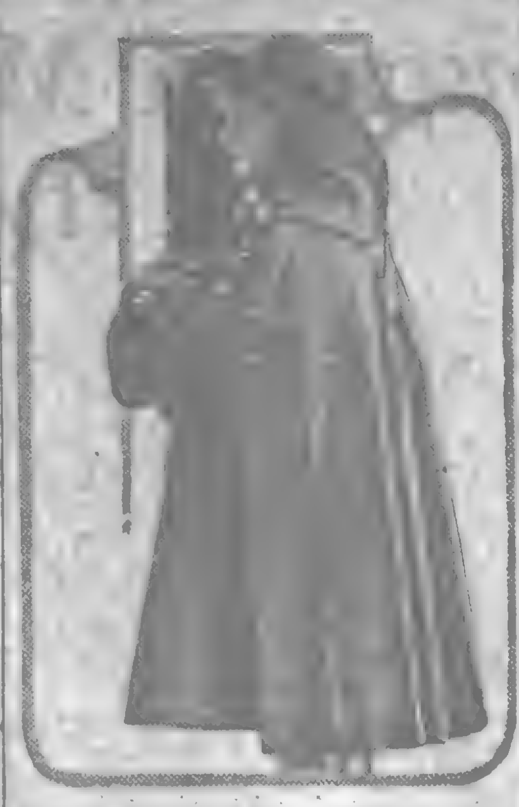
Kwikstick, the sanitary mucilage—no muss, no fuss, no spilling, no brush, no waste—10 cts., at the News Office.

Miss Marguerite Millman, who has been attending Muncie Normal school, returned home Friday night for a few days' visit.

For Sale—Residence property in good repair, at a low price, located on main street; other properties at reasonable prices.
S. S. Widney.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Myrtle of Waterloo were Thursday afternoon guests, and Fred Randall and family of Harlan, were Saturday afternoon guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Randall.

FOR THE 'TEENS



It is not difficult to solve the problem of dress for little girls in these days of specialising. Resourceful designers devote their time to putting materials into styles that are appropriate for the little miss and pleasing to her as well. They craftily take their cues from the "grown-up" modes, modifying them to suit the younger generation, as in the case of the pretty cape-wrap shown here.

This wrap for girls in their "teens" is a cape to which sleeves have been gracefully added. It is made of lightweight velours and has a full ripple back with a decoration of stitching in two rows around it. It has a large collar which is ingeniously arranged to draw up around the neck by means of a heavy silk cord that is threaded through large eyelets worked in silk like that of the stitching. The cord and eyelets are very decorative.

Tanlac's world wide fame is due to its merit. It does the work. At Sheffer's Drug store.

"Pete" Milliman has moved from the Bleck's property into the Geo. Wilmott property, formerly occupied by the Wilmott family.

Joe Johnson and family who have been residing in part of the Wm Hamm residence, moved Friday in the Alfred Reasoner's, property north of the tracks.

Notice—Any one wanting any more Victory Laundry Tablets can have them now as I am going to keep them on hand now all the time. Dora Sailor.

For Sale: Good used Ford in No. I condition.
St. Joe Garage.

A. D. Perry has had his name entered on the honor roll of new subscriptions to the home paper.

Chas. Thayer of Ft. Wayne was a recent guest of Dr. and Mrs B S. Sheffer.

Eight members of the senior class of the local high school took the teachers' examination at Auburn last Saturday.

Mrs. Paul Curie and little son, Paul, jr., spent from Saturday till Monday in Waterloo and Butler visiting relatives.

Harry Morr and family of Chicago spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. Morr's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Morr.

James Smith of Garret spent last Saturday forenoon in St. Joe visiting friends and attending to some business matters.

Wm. Staman, sr., and son Wm., jr., attended the funeral of their son and brother-in-law, Dr. Frank Burdeno, held at Sturgis, Mich., Saturday.

Mrs. Charles Tustison returned home on Thursday from Hicksville where she had been a patient in the Amaden hospital, and also a guest in the home of her son Earl for a number of weeks.

"When I began taking Tanlac I only weighed 98 pounds, now I weigh 125 pounds and never felt better in my life," says Mrs. Chas. Peden, Huntsville, Ala. Get a bottle at Sheffer's.

Waterloo is facing the problem of a new high school building. The state board of education has informed the Waterloo board that a new building must be erected if the board wishes the high school commission renewed.

Miss Ella Brown of Bamilton was the guest of Mrs W. P. Patterson from Thursday morning until Friday noon. Miss Brown formerly taught in the city schools here for several years. She has spent the winter in New Orleans, Louisiana.

6% MONEY FOR FARMERS!

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements at 6%.

Loans for more than 40% and not to exceed 50% of the value of the land and buildings, made at 7%.

☞ Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.

Patronize the Advertisers.

Shelf paper—News office.

E. P. Brown and wife spent last Monday at Ft. Wayne.

For Sale: Good used Ford in No. I condition.
St. Joe Garage.

Lee O. Tustison, of Defiance, spent a day about St. Joe, last week.

Mrs. F. D Tope, Mrs. G. A. Ward, George Simanton and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hursh spent Tuesday in Ft. Wayne.

The almost impassible roads caused E. R. Kinsey to use the horse-drawn hearse at the funeral of Mrs. Dan Baker, Tuesday. Four horses were used on it and even then it made a heavy pull. All the other vehicles in the procession were horse drawn.

The Farmers Co-Op Shipping Assn., were shipping stock, Tuesday. Again they made complaint of the poor weighing conditions of the scales at the stock yards. Two head of cattle put on together weighed 500 lbs., less than the sum of the weights if put on separately. The elevator scales were used, but to some inconvenience.

A very interesting meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held Friday afternoon last at the home of Mrs. Dora Daily. After the regular program, Mrs. Jennie Sechler gave a good report from the county W. C. T. U. institute, held at Auburn, Monday and Tuesday of last week. The box which was to have been packed for the Working Girls Home at Ft. Wayne was held open for another week.

Thousands of thin, frail men and women have reported an astonishing and rapid increase in weight as a result of taking Tanlac. Sold at B S. Sheffer's.

Earl Smith received a cablegram Monday from his wife, who, with their baby, has been spending the past few months with her parents in France, stating that she will soon sail for home and will be in New York on May 6th. Mr. Smith will probably meet his family there.

Durwood Ridgway and wife entertained in honor of the former's birthday anniversary, Sunday, at dinner, Mr. and Mrs. John Wineland, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dorsey, Mrs Belle Ridgway, Mrs. Olive Frye and daughter, Mrs. Emma Freeburn and three children, and Floyd Ridgway.

The following young people were among those from here that took the teacher's examination held at Auburn, Saturday: Katherine Shull, Portia Hadsell, Catherine Kinsey, Edna Jackson, Pauline Wasson, Marjoria Curie, Mabelle Schmalzried, Donald Kinsey, Dwight Kain, Charles Johnson and Clayton Wyatt.

The dam that had been built in Bear Creek near the Haner farm to back up the water and enable the men to work below with the dredge washed out last Thursday night. This was the cause of the sudden rise of the water in the lowlands at the mouth of the creek. Several teams are employed in making the short cut of the channel across the bottom near the railroad.

6000 Spring Suits

In Regulars, Stouts, Stubs, Medium Stouts, Short Stouts, Long Stouts and Slims. Sizes 31 to 58. WE CAN FIT YOU. We are specializing on Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits at—

$50

Showi[illegible] 200 patterns at this price and we believe we are $10 a suit under [illegible] of any other store in the state.

$18

—will buy your boy's first long-pant suit in an all-wool, snappy sport model with two pair of trousers.

$25

—will buy men's fine tailored suits [illegible] pure worsted; they cost you $32 with two pair of trousers.

Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits

[illegible]

[illegible]

Top Coats

[illegible]

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

[illegible]

--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight
SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist office, St. JOE
Friday, APRIL 7, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL.

[illegible]

L 91

APRIL

APRIL

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA, THURSDAY, APRIL 6, 1922 No. 14

SPRING
NEW SPRING GOODS
OPENING
NEW GOODS

RIGHT up to the last tick of the clock are the styles of our new Spring Suits and top coats. Just come in and see them. —Then you will buy the new outfit you NEED and when you wear it you will feel PROUD.

AND it will PAY you to buy what you you need for Spring at our store. We are after a big volume of business; to get the big volume we make our PRICES LITTLE.

We tell only the TRUTH about our goods.

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Buy your CLOVER SEED
Timothy Seed, Alsike and Alfalfa Seed from us. We handle
Bran, Middlings, Tankage, Cotton Seed Meal, Oil Meal.

COAL— If you need a ton or two to carry you over buy now; we have it.

BEST VIRGINIA AND HOCKING COAL ONLY.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept. Call on us—glad to see you.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Robbers!

Robbers do not disturb people who have nothing.

A man with a thousand d[illegible] in the bank and only a check book in his [illegible] nothing for robbers to take; yet his [illegible] is as good as the money which his [illegible] carries in his pocket.

It is not safe to carry money [illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank--State Bank

St. Joe Couple Celebrate Diamond Wedding Anniversary

On March 29th, 1862, Christian Curie, son of Nicholas and Barbara (Klopfenstine), Curie and Katherine, daughter of Gabriel and Annie (Conrad) Royer, were united in marriage at Smithville, Ohio, by the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker.

They began housekeeping in Canton, Ohio, where they resided three years, moving from there to a farm near Leo, Indiana, where they also lived three years. Then in the spring of 1869 they purchased and moved to the farm just south of town where they have resided for the past 54 years.

Here they reared their four sons and six daughters, all living, their names and residences being as follows; William, Morris, Frank, Grover and Mrs. Arline Koch of this place; Mrs. Laura Whaley, Topeka, Kan.; Mrs. Emma Skilling, Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Anna Henderson, Walkerville, Mich.; Mrs. Amanda Klopfenstine, Grabill, Indiana, and Mrs. Maude Beams, Spencerville, Indiana. There are also thirty-six grandchildren, thirty-two of whom are living, and three great-grandchildren.

In his younger days Mr. Curie taught school in the winter months and attended to his farm duties during the remainder of the year. They moved to the farm where they now reside before there was any St. Joe here. He has cradled grain and mowed hay where the town now stands. They went to Spencerville for their mail.

They are the only married couple now living who resided in this vicinity before the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad was built through here. They have seen the town grow to its present size.

On Wednesday of last week this couple, who are now at the 80th year milestone in life, celebrated in a quiet way their 60th wedding anniversary, and enjoyed the day from the delicious dinner served, the large and beautiful bouquet of pink carnations received to the calls and congratulations given them by their children and friends. Both are in fairly good health and bid fair to enjoy several more anniversaries.

Fine Prospects for Wheat.

Winter wheat is starting out fine this spring and farmers everywhere are repeating that they have the best prospects for a good stand of it in years. One piece that is attracting particular attention is the one on the Dennis Burley farm, west of town, sown by Will Miller. Every one knows that Mr. Miller took particular pains in putting this wheat in, and he surely will be well paid for his extraordinary efforts. H. M. Widney, who has traveled the state this spring, perhaps more than any other man near here, stated that he has not seen a piece of wheat anywhere that looked as well as the one we have [illegible]

News Story Series.

[illegible]

has contributed to magazines, it is to be deduced that the nature of her stories has the popular approval.

Mrs. Porter is a direct descendant of Governor William Bradford of the Mayflower and represents the highest type of wholesome American womanhood—which is a composite of the many fine qualities reflected in her literary work.

Home Brew Recipe.

Chase a bull frog three miles and gather up the hops; to the hops add the following: Ten gallons of tan bark, 1 bar of home-made soap, ½ pint shellac; boil the mixture for 36 hours; then strain it through an I. W. W. sock to keep it from working; then bottle and add one grasshopper to each pint to give it a kick.

Home Economic Meeting

In spite of the inclement weather and extremely bad roads a crowd of women to the number of thirty-two gathered to hear Miss Boston speak on the subject of Interior Decorations at the M. P. church here last week Wednesday evening. Had these folks not prized the value they received from the same speaker's demonstrations here during the recent Farmers' Short course they would not have made such a splendid effort to get out this time.

County Agent Repp brought Miss Boston over from Auburn to the meeting and was the only man in attendance.

Lecture Course Closes

Arthur Irwin, "The Magician," entertained a record crowd at the M. P. Church last Friday evening, in the last number on the high school lecture course. His clever readings and tricks were of interest especially to the children.

Frank Scholes Contracts

Frank Scholes recently sent in bids on eight bridge jobs in Allen county, four of which he has obtained. The contracts call for rebuilding bridges and grading. There were twenty jobs let but Mr. Scholes had time to bid on but eight. He is now bidding on some work in DeKalb county. Don Hindman is planning to do the team work.

The Harter Roof Fire

The roof near the chimney of the James Harter home caught fire on Sunday about two o'clock p. m., and burned a small hole through. The fire alarm was sounded and the department made the run, but the flame had been extinguished [illegible] will be [illegible]

Will of [illegible] Koontz Probated

[illegible]

St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe
QUALITY ———— SERVICE
Let us overhaul that motor. You will save gasoline and oil.
Come in and talk over your car troubles with us.
Be ready when the roads are good
Strictly a Service Garage
DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

Spring Time is Here--
What Does That Mean?
Paint and clean up
We have the largest and most complete line of colors ever shown, and glad to say they are "LOWE BROS." Brands.
Climax Paper Cleaner,
Scrub Brushes, Paint Brushes, Mops, Step Ladders—make us a call and be convinced.
Rugs! Rugs! Axminster
Tapestry, Wool and Fiber
Step in and let us show you our new line at
Greatly Reduced Prices,
April releases of Columbia Records.
Come in and let us explain how you can have a Columbia Phonograph
put in your home for
$1.00 Down..

E. R. KINSEY
St. Joe, Indiana
Hardware Furniture Undertaking

Koontz, of Fort Wayne.

The widow is nominated in the will to be executrix. She qualified by filing $1,000 bond, with James E. Vallieu and Miss Millie Bowser as sureties. The widow and son are the only heirs and the estate consists of [illegible] in personal property and $1,500 [illegible]

DeKalb County Man Hangs Self

[illegible]

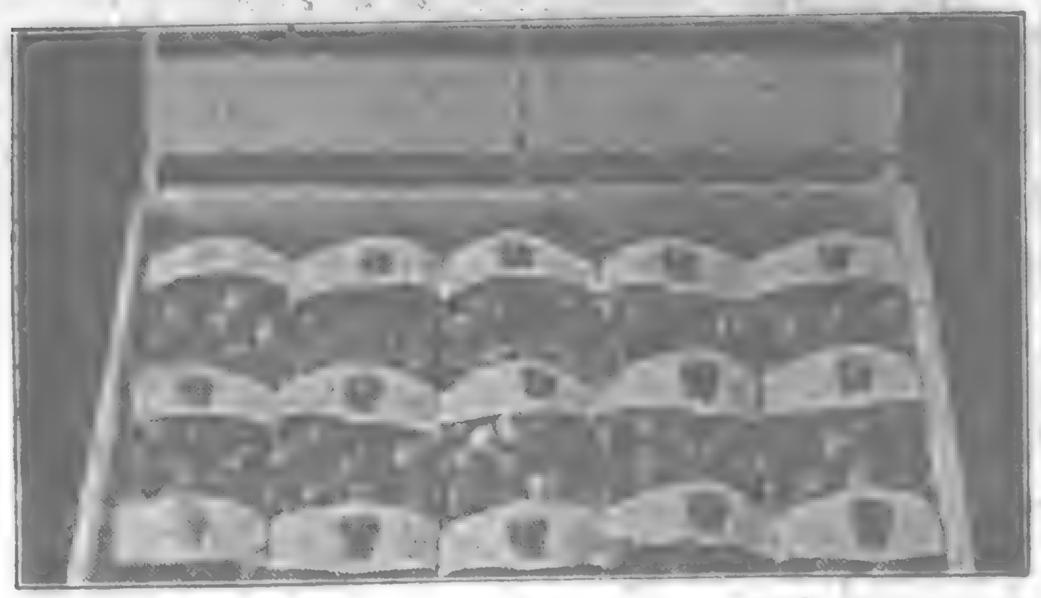
ship trustee. He had considered entering the race for the nomination for county recorder, but later decided to ask for the nomination for trustee. He served one term of six years as trustee, retiring from office eight years ago.

The widow of the deceased has been in Auburn for the past two weeks in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Harry Western. She has been taking chiropractic treatments there. Word of Mr. [illegible] death was received by [illegible]

Mr. [illegible] was a lifelong resident of DeKalb county, having been born in [illegible] township fifty-[illegible] years ago. He and Miss Elnora [illegible] were married two score years ago, and there are three children, Dr. [illegible], a dentist [illegible] Auburn and now [illegible] his profession at [illegible]

[illegible]

GROWTH OF STRAWBERRY INDUSTRY DUE TO INTELLIGENT MARKETING



Paper Labels for Special Shipments.

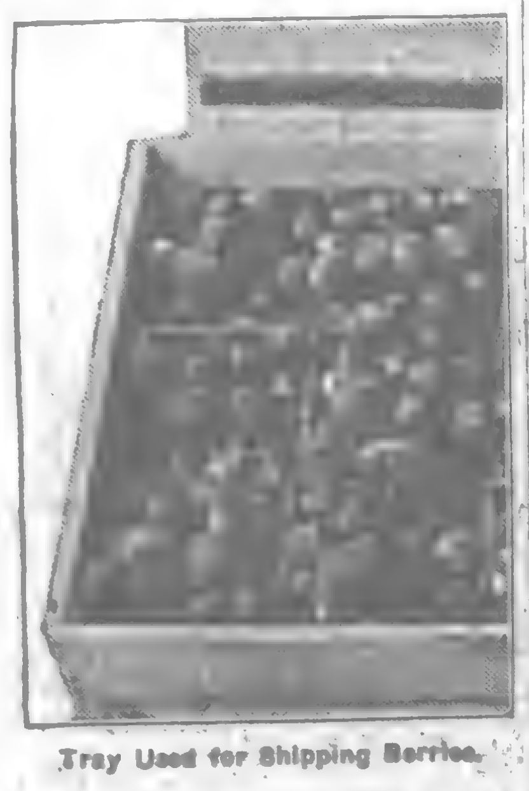
(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Within six years Louisiana has taken first place among the states as regards value of strawberry production. The 1921 season was the best ever known in the industry, 1,400 carloads of Louisiana berries being marketed in 74 cities in the United States and Canada. In Chicago the 24-pint crates brought as much as $6.50 each, and during practically the entire marketing season Louisiana strawberries sold at a higher price than any other berries on the market, due to the high quality of the product.

With such a record of achievement, much interest centers in the opening of the 1922 marketing season. As heretofore a field station of the United States Department of Agriculture will be maintained in the Hammond district during the season to keep producers and shippers informed daily of strawberry marketing conditions in the principal consuming markets, prevailing prices, carlot shipments from competing areas, and other marketing data essential in the scientific marketing of agricultural products, and granted favorable conditions the 1922 season should surpass even the 1921 record.

Nation-Wide Distribution.

The Louisiana strawberry industry is of national importance. The crop has nation-wide distribution, the carlot shipments spreading out like a fan from the Atlantic coast to the Rocky mountains. Last year 29 carloads also went to four cities in Canada. Chicago is the principal market for the fruit, Detroit, Boston, Pittsburgh and New York ranking next in the order given. Heat, cold and distance—marketing obstacles that seemed insurmountable a few years ago—have been overcome by the growers and shippers, and with continued careful selection, grading, packing and shipping, marketing experts say that the industry will enjoy increasing prosperity.



Tray Used for Shipping Berries.

During the early years of the strawberry industry in Louisiana several varieties of berries were grown, and Chicago was the main market outlet. Today the Klondike variety is grown exclusively, and Louisiana strawberries have a wider distribution than the strawberries from any other section of the country. The quality of the fruit is dependable, and there is everywhere a demand for the berries. When picked the berries are carried to packing sheds, where practically each one is handled separately. Both the 24-pint Hallock crate and the 24-pint ventilated crate have been used in packing the fruit, although during the past few seasons there has been a considerable decrease in the use of Hallock's crates, which are known locally as "coffin" crates. Practically all growers are now using ventilated crates, as berries shipped in such containers arrive at market in sound condition and usually command a premium over the price paid for berries in non-ventilated crates.

Trains of Strawberries.

Fully 90 per cent of the marketed crop is shipped by express, the railroad company providing [illegible] in the district utilize overripe and soft stock in the preparation of fruit for the ice cream and soda fountain trade in northern cities.

Perhaps the principal reason for the prosperity enjoyed by Louisiana's berry growers is that they keep themselves closely informed upon day-to-day market conditions. The producers appreciate that "knowing the markets" enables them to meet the consumers' desires as regards quality and quantity, and that to overstock one market when another market is undersupplied is unsound from both an economic and financial viewpoint. Every day during the marketing season a daily report of conditions and prices at the principal marketing centers throughout the country is issued by the local representative of the United States Department of Agriculture. This information is obtained by trained market reporters at consuming points.

The growers are also informed as to daily carlot shipments everywhere in the United States. Thus the producers not only know the prices being paid for berries at the various consuming markets, but exactly what competition may be expected from other sections shipping strawberries at about the same time. The department also furnishes daily information regarding temperature and weather conditions, so that the necessary icing and refrigeration can be provided for the shipments.

Information for Growers.

The department's station at Hammond was opened in 1915, and was the first field station established anywhere by the United States Department of Agriculture for the issuance of market news reports. Here, in the heart of Louisiana's strawberry producing district, arrangements were first made to study methods of packing, shipping, and distributing strawberries in the United States; to keep growers informed of strawberry movements from other regions, and to inform them daily of prices and conditions in the leading consuming markets. Hammond was selected as the location for the department's first field station because of the large proportions that the Louisiana strawberry industry had attained. Louisiana then ranked fourth in commercial strawberry importance. Today the state ranks second in carlot shipments.

ROUND POSTS MOST DURABLE

One Kind of Timber Will Last as Long as Others if Amount of Heartwood Is the Same.

Is a split fence post as durable as a round fence post? This is a question frequently asked of the United States Department of Agriculture. The fact is, says the forest products laboratory, one kind of post will last about as long as the other if the amount of heartwood is the same in both. But if the percentage of sapwood is increased by splitting, the split post will be less durable and if the percentage of heartwood is increased, it will be more durable than a round one. Posts of spruce, hemlock, or any of the true firs are exceptions to this rule, because their heartwood and sapwood are about equally durable.

When posts are to be treated with creosote or other preservative, a round post is preferable to a split post, because of the comparative ease with which the sapwood can be treated. The heart faces on split posts do not, as a rule, absorb preservative well. Split red-oak posts will take treatment, because the wood is very porous, but the heart faces of split posts of many other species, notably white oak, red gum, and Douglas fir, resist the penetration of preservative, even under heavy pressure.

[illegible]

Fertilizer May Burn Crop if Season Is Very Dry—No Fear of Harm if Worked In.

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

GOOD ROADS

PROPER CONCRETE MATERIAL

Just What Kinds Are Best and Proportions for Mixing Made Subject for Experiments.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Experiments to determine just what kinds of materials are best for concrete, and in what proportions to mix them so that they will wear well in a road are being made by engineers of the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture. An apparatus will be used that consists of heavy steel wheels which, guided by a mechanical arrangement, roll continuously back and forth over the pavement.

Mixing Materials for Concrete Road.

More than 40 different sections of concrete pavement, each ten feet long, will be laid. Materials from many different parts of the county are being shipped to the government experiment farm at Arlington, Va., near Washington. They will be mixed with varying quantities of cement and water to determine which is best. Experience has shown that there is a measurable amount of wear of the surface of a concrete road each year.

REINFORCED CONCRETE ROAD

Experiments Conducted in Suburbs of Washington to Determine Strength of Foundation.

How a reinforced concrete road holds up under heavy traffic is to be determined by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, through experiments to be conducted on such a road now being built in the suburbs of Washington in co-operation with Arlington county, Va.

The road is being reinforced with many different arrangements of wire mesh and round steel rods embedded in the concrete. The joints will be either a crack left in the road, to be filled with tar, or simply a sheet of corrugated metal set on edge with the concrete poured around it. Some sections are to have joints running along the middle of the road, some across it, and some will be built without joints.

Of especial interest is the construction of ribbed sections. Instead of placing the concrete on a nearly flat subgrade, trenches will be dug in the subgrade running parallel to the edges of the road and also across the road. These trenches will be filled with concrete, giving the slab downward projection of concrete, and presumably strengthening it. Experiments also will be conducted to determine the strengthening effect of treating the earth under the concrete. On one section the earth for a depth of 6 inches will be mixed with cement, using 1 part of cement to 20 parts of earth. In some places where there is a grade a trench under the concrete will be filled with gravel. These trenches will slope toward the edges of the road and drain away any water that might [illegible] the sur- [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

True Detective Stories

OUT OF THE AIR

Copyright by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

SOMEWHERE, somehow, the Germans were getting messages through from the United States to the fatherland. That much was certain. Washington knew it beyond the shadow of a doubt, but the way in which the messages were transmitted was a mystery—dark and apparently unfathomable.

This was in the days before America entered the war, in the days when the United States was, theoretically at least, a neutral nation. But Von Bernstorff, Von Papen and the rest of the embassy at Washington were doing everything they could to further their schemes from this side of the Atlantic.

But not even the secret service could penetrate the mystery of the messages. That these were flashed from the huge wireless towers on this side of the Atlantic, or relayed from the German radio stations, seemed fairly obvious. But how?

"They must be sending the stuff through the air," argued the chief of the secret service to Talbot, one of his best men, "for the simple reason that we've closed all their other channels."

"Any idea as to the code they are using?" asked Talbot.

"None at all, but it's probably concealed somewhere in the messages which they send out to the ships at sea—press bulletins, stock quotations, and the like. We've studied them carefully, but haven't been able to find a thing."

"How about the outburst from Nauen every morning?"

"The only explanation for that seems to be that it's an attempt to 'fog the air' so that ships and other towers can't get anything through."

"Yes, but in that case would the Germans send it for an hour early every morning? Why not all day long? And why that hash of language that doesn't mean a thing? If they were trying to fog things they'd wireless the Bible or Nietzsche or excerpts from some other long book instead of that mess of meaningless rot."

"All right," retorted the chief, "if you think there's a clue there, go to it."

But Talbot didn't begin his investigations with a study of the Nauen "hash." He made his way at first to the laboratory of Charles E. Apgar, a deep student of wireless telegraphy. It was to Apgar that he told his troubles and, when he had finished, the expert leaned forward and picked up something from the table in front of him.

"See that?" Apgar asked. Talbot nodded.

"Looks like an old-fashioned cylindrical phonograph record," he said.

"Just what it is," admitted the expert, "only you use it in connection with a wireless phonograph."

"A wireless phonograph?" and the government operative's voice showed that he had never heard of such a contrivance.

"Yes, a phonograph attached to the receiving end of a radio station. I finished working on it a few days ago, and I think it's just what you need for this job. It will record and keep track of every sound that comes into the station, enabling you to 'listen in' on messages months after they have been sent. With a supply of these records and the necessary patience you ought to be able to figure out the system the Huns are using, without their being any the wiser. It may take weeks or even months, but it's just a question of being everlastingly at it."

Apgar was right. Talbot found that it took him nearly four months to get on to the system—four months of ceaseless listening-in at the end of a De Forest audion detector which picks up sound waves from thousands of miles away, and even then he would never have located the secret had it not been for the wax cylinders. But with the aid of these automatic detectives he was able to repeat each message until he had it almost by heart, trying out the various combinations and symbols until he stumbled across the right one.

Then, one morning, when the chief of the secret service least expected [illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR APRIL 9

THE LORD PRESERVES JOASH

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 11:1-17.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord preserveth all them that love Him.—Psalm 145:20.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—II Kings 11:18-20; II Chron. 23:1-21; Matt. 2:13-23.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Takes Care of a Boy.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How a Boy Became King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Boy Saved for a Great Career.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Secret of Personal and National Safety.

Joash, viewed in the light of his ancestors, was a poor prospect for a king. His grandmother was the wicked Athaliah and his great grandparents were Ahab and Jezebel. There was enough bad blood in his veins to assure his doom. Despite this fact, he brought about some noble reforms and turned the people back to God.

I. Athaliah Usurps the Throne (vv. 1-3).

1. Her attempt to destroy the seed royal (vv. 1). In order to remove any rival claimant to the throne she tried to kill all the royal male children.

2. Joash preserved by Jehosheba (vv. 2, 3). Though Athaliah was keen-eyed she was checkmated by another woman. Her fatal omission was not to get rid of the women too. This woman, the wife of the priest, stole away the child and hid him in the bedchamber for six years. God had promised that through the Davidic line the Messiah should come. In order that this line be unbroken Joash must be preserved. No purpose of God can fail.

II. Joash Crowned King (vv. 4-12).

1. Jehoiada's preparations (vv. 4-11). The high priest and his wife were intelligent and strong characters. As the high priest, Jehoiada felt that it was his duty to thwart the heathen project of Athaliah. Doubtless his cooperation with his wife made possible the saving of Joash.

(1) Secured the aid of the military leaders (v. 4). He knew somehow that these men were not loyal to Athaliah. (2) Bound them under solemn oath (v. 4). He took an oath of them in the house of the Lord. Honest men will stand by their word. (3) Excited their spirit of patriotism (v. 4). He gave them a sight of the king's son. This, no doubt, was a great surprise. Now having seen the heir to the throne they would risk everything, even their lives, in order to set him on the throne. (4) Co-ordinates all matters (vv. 5-11). The soldiers were divided into companies and arms were distributed to them. Each group was assigned to specific duties.

2. The coronation (v. 12). (1) The king's son brought forth. This was a great day in Jerusalem. After six years of usurpation, the people all the while supposing that all the heirs to the throne were dead, now to gaze upon the king's son would be a notable event. (2) Put the crown upon him. This was the formal induction into office. (3) Gave him the testimony. This was a copy of the law, showing that the king was to rule according to the law of God. The act of putting the law upon his head showed that the king himself would be under the control of the law. (4) Made him king. This shows that he was made king by the choice of the people. (5) Anointed him. They poured oil upon his head. This was the usual method of consecrating prophets, priests and kings. (6) Clapped their hands. This was a token of joy.

III. Athaliah Slain (vv. 13-17).

1. The noise of the coronation of Joash brough Athaliah to the temple (v. 15). Up to this time she thought her place on the throne was secure and that her heathen religion had free course.

2. Her dismay (v. 14). Upon her arrival at the temple she saw the king wearing the crown and surrounded by the guards, so that she could do nothing. In her despair she exclaimed: "Treason, treason!" How prone wicked men and women are to cry out as though they had been [illegible] when their wicked plots and conspiracies are exposed and thwarted!

3. Athaliah executed (vv. 15, 16). The orders were that she should not be killed in the temple. They led her out by way of the horses' entrance to the king's palace and slew her. What a tragic end for the sinner. [illegible]

4. Worship of the True God (vv. 17 [illegible]

[illegible]

If You Need Strength and Reserve Power
Take
TANLAC
The World's Greatest Tonic

Mother Gray's Powders Benefit Many Children

Thousands of Mothers have found MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS an excellent remedy for children complaining of Headaches, Colds, Constipation, Feverishness, Stomach Troubles and Bowel Irregularities. These powders are easy and pleasant to take and excellent results are accomplished by their use. Used by Mothers for over 30 years. Sold by Druggists everywhere.

BETTER DEAD

Life is a burden when the body is racked with pain. Everything worries and the victim becomes despondent and downhearted. To bring back the sunshine take

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The National Remedy of Holland for over 200 years; it is an enemy of all pains resulting from kidney, liver and uric acid troubles. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

The Diagnosis.

Flubdub—Has the doctor diagnosed your case?

Gotrox—Perfectly.

Flubdub—How did he find out just what you've got?

Gotrox—Looked me up in Bradstreet's, I suppose.

Take Yeast Vitamon Tablets To Round Out Face and Figure With Firm Flesh

HOLLOW CHEEKS
SKINNY JAW
SCRAWNY NECK
UGLY SHOULDERS
FLAT CHEST
FULL CHEEKS
BEAUTIFUL JAW
ROUNDED THROAT
PLUMP BUST
GRACEFUL SHOULDERS

If you are hollow-cheeked, sallow-skinned, sunken-chested and generally weak or run down and want to round out your face and figure to pleasing and normal proportions you will find this simple test well worth trying: First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Next take Mastin's VITAMON—two tablets with every meal. Then weigh and measure yourself again each week and continue taking Mastin's VITAMON regularly until you are satisfied with your gain in weight and energy. Mastin's VITAMON tablets contain highly concentrated yeast-vitamines as well as the two other still more important vitamines (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C) together with organic iron and real lime salts. They will not upset the stomach or cause gas, but on the contrary are a great aid to digestion, to overcome constipation and as a general conditioner of the whole system. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish like magic under its purifying influence, the complexion becomes fresh and beautiful, the cheeks rosy instead of pale, the lips red instead of colorless, the eyes bright instead of dull. So rapid and amazing are the results that thousands of people everywhere are now taking to them as a quick way to put on weight and increase energy. Be sure to remember the name Mastin's VI-TA-MON—the original and genuine yeast-vitamine tablet—there is nothing else like it so do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get Mastin's VITAMON at any druggist

Ask Your Dealer for Nu-Way or EXCELLO RUBBERLESS SUSPENDERS Year's Wear Guaranteed
[illegible]

SALESMEN Wanted To Sell Our West Virginia Grown [illegible]

KING PIN PLUG TOBACCO
Known as "that good kind"
[illegible]

APRIL

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

THE "ANGEL"

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Marcus MacKenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude. Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, but practically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin. Polly learns from Evelyn that the sympathetic stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennett, telling him she can give him no more money. She already bitterly regrets her marriage to the ignorant farmer. Polly conveys her message and Oscar makes threats. He insists Evelyn meet him that night. Polly has her father and Larry Bishop, a squatter, take an oath to do MacKenzie no injury. Evelyn unsuccessfully tries to get money from her mother with which to buy off Bennett and induce him to leave the country, giving her her freedom. She and MacKenzie avow their love.

CHAPTER V—Continued.

—5—

"I wanted to 'fess up to you this morning, Poll," Oscar ran on. "It's a funny thing, but I reckon I care more for your little finger than for Eve's whole body. Maybe some day after I get all her cash ——"

Polly coughed down a lump that persisted in coming up in her throat.

"You needn't spiel lovin's to me, Oscar," she gulped, "an' I believe in bein' honest. So, before your woman comes, I might as well give you a bit of my mind. If I owned you from your cap to your boots, I wouldn't use you for a doormat in front of Daddy's shanty!"

He shot a look of amazement. The confident smile faded from his face, and his lips sagged at the corners. Then he arose to his feet.

"I been thinking about you all day," he broke forth. "You've got everything—looks, action and brains. I want you, Pollyop and I'm going to kiss you this time, so help me God!"

He took a step toward her and Polly scrambled up. Just at that moment Evelyn Robertson entered. Oscar Bennett turned swiftly, and Polly, very pale, placed herself at Eve's side. And as the wind foamed the lake to fury and shook Granny Hope's forsaken little hut, the man and two girls stood silent a long, tense minute.

Then Oscar smiled at Evelyn, a triumphant, insulting smile.

"So you thought it best to mind me, my lady," he laughed. "I guess after a while you'll come to know I mean what I say."

Eve tried to speak but could not. Polly squeezed her arm encouragingly.

"You're a mean duffer, Oscar," she thrust in. "Your woman's scared of you, that's all. Try bein' better, an' see how she likes it."

"She's got a good right to be d—d scared," grunted Bennett. "Now out with it, Eve. What's the rumpus? You haven't sent me a cent for a month."

With shaking fingers Evelyn pushed back her wind-blown hair.

"I couldn't get any money, Oscar," she wailed. "My allowance is all gone. I gave every cent of it to you. You know very well mother won't give me any more."

She had one card left to play, and she hoped it would take the trick.

"I might as well tell you," she continued, the steel in her eyes wiping away the blue. "Mother hasn't any money. All I thought we had belongs to Cousin Bob."

She ceased speaking and waited an instant to note how her news struck her husband. He flung up a clenched fist.

"The devil take you, Eve!" he cried. "Don't try to put anything over on me like that. You're the biggest liar in Tompkins county."

That he partly believed her showed in his manner.

"I'd never 'a' married you if I'd a known that two years ago," Oscar asserted hoarsely. "You can be dead certain of that, my lady. You were pretty careful to keep your money troubles to yourself. [illegible] you! You're strutting [illegible]" and Polly slipped one arm around her waist.

[illegible]

"You want to be free from me, eh? That's it, is it?" he sneered. "Some other guy looming up to love, I s'pose. Well, I don't mind who gets my leavings if you make it worth my while. But if not——"

Evelyn's pale, beseeching face lifted to his. She could not quit him without his promise that she should have her freedom. Neither must he think that she could get him a large sum of money.

"I can't get another dollar," she repeated hoarsely. "I simply can't. And—and I must be free."

A frown drew the man's heavy brows together until they touched, and he lifted his fist to strike; but Polly Hopkins, by one swift movement, thrust Evelyn from under the man's upraised arm and crowded in between them. Because Evelyn was his wife, he had the right to beat her if he pleased, Polly thought, but he would not dare to strike Polly.

"If you've got to swat some one, Oscar," she gritted between her teeth, "swat me!"

The beautiful white face came close to Bennett's, and the challenge in the squatter girl's flashing eyes stirred a feeling within him that he never had had for Evelyn Robertson. Oscar had always believed that a woman must fear a man to respect him, and that to respect him meant to love him. He did not want Evelyn Robertson in the farmhouse, but he did want money and Polly Hopkins. If he could master her as he had Eve, she would come to him willingly when he was ready for her.

Working on that principle, he struck out. As the huge fist came in contact with Pollyop's shoulder, she staggered backward. Her low cry was followed by Evelyn's scream. The squatter girl sank to the floor limply. No one had ever struck her before.

"You've killed her," cried Evelyn; and Oscar Bennett, fearful that the girls' clamor would summon some inquisitive squatter, turned swiftly to go.

"Both of you keep mum about this, my lady," he ordered. "I'm off! See?"

With that he tore open the shanty door; and Evelyn stood panting with her hand on her heart until the sound of his running footsteps was lost in the windstorm.

Then Evelyn led Polly Hopkins home. One arm hung at the squatter girl's side; and the pain in her shoulder, where Oscar's fist had landed, was terrific. On nearing the shack, Polly whispered:

"Mebbe he'll be quiet a while now. You'd best scoot home, huh?"

A small box passed from Evelyn's handbag to the squatter girl's pocket.

"I brought them for Jerry," said Evelyn softly, "and oh, Polly, whatever can I do for you to even up things? Perhaps—"

"Scoot home," interrupted Polly, "I'm goin' in."

Pollyop stole into the shanty in the greatest torment she had ever known. Granny Hope and Daddy Hopkins had gone to bed, and she could hear her father's loud breathing from the back room. She was glad of that, for if he were to learn how she had been hurt, his rage would know no bounds. She lighted a candle and looked about dazedly. The billy goat was snuggled against the wood-box; and Nannie Lamb poked her head up and blinked at the light. Polly put down the candle and slipped the dress from her shoulder. How dreadfully it hurt her! Oh, how she wanted something to make her misery less! But squatters did not have money to spend on drug-store remedies.

From an old can she poured a little coal oil on a rag and bathed the injured flesh. Then she took up the lamb and dropped into a chair by the table. In sheer exhaustion her head sank down upon it. After a while she straightened up, threw back her curls, and raised the lamb's face to hers, a wry smile flitting across her lips.

"It's goin' to be a hard job lovin' Oscar and' Old Marc like Jesus loved wicked folk, Nannyop," she said under her breath, "but mebbe now I been face to face with a angel, I can do it."

Again her head fell forward; but almost instantly she arose, and with the lamb in her right arm like a baby, moved to the side of the bed. Then she [illegible] under the [illegible] lamb.

CHAPTER VI.

[illegible]

misery! Surely the squatters had suffered in the past year! Many a boy had been taken from his home and sent to France, and many a mother had crept about the settlement with grief-worn face, waiting for news from over the sea.

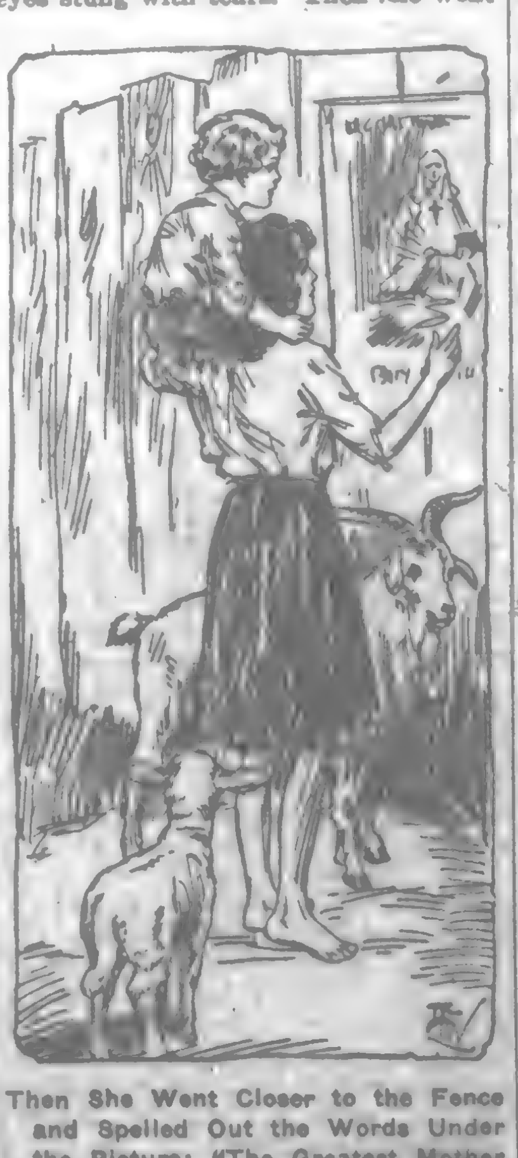
Pollyop understood what war meant. The squatters were always at war! Granny Hope had explained to her that, whenever people fought and were cruel to one another, that was war. Hadn't she warred but two nights ago with Oscar Bennett?

She had not seen him since, and the pain and humiliation he had dealt her had been lightened by Granny Hope's assurances that love was the leveler of hate. So Polly, having quantities of love and sympathy to spare, sent it broadcast over the hopeless ones in the settlement and promptly put Oscar Bennett's cruelty out of her mind. She did not even remember sometimes how much the milk Oscar had begrudgingly given her was missed in the shack. To offset that deprivation, she was free from him and the ugly quarrels she had had to settle almost daily between him and Evelyn.

This morning, while Daddy Hopkins was in Ithaca, Pollyop started out with her many loves for a walk. On her shoulder perched Wee Jerry; at her side, in stately dignity, stalked the billy goat, and tied to one of her arms by a small rope gamboled Nannie Lamb Hopkins.

Through the Silent City she wandered, helping people here and there to see the sunny side of things. Beyond the row of shacks was the fence Marcus MacKenzie had erected to keep the squatters from trespassing on his woodland, and in front of it Polly Hopkins stood. A bill poster had passed and left on the fence a picture that caught her attention.

It was a beautiful woman, her eyes saddened with tears, and she looked straight out of exquisite coloring at the wide-eyed squatter girl. In her arms was a withered, sick, little man, and Pollyop knew that somewhere over the ocean an enemy, perhaps a man like Old Marc, had hurt him. The woman held him close as she looked at Polly, and for a moment the girl's eyes stung with tears. Then she went closer to the fence and spelled out the words under the picture: "The Greatest Mother in the World."



Then She Went Closer to the Fence and Spelled Out the Words Under the Picture: "The Greatest Mother in the World."

Ah! So she was, this protector of the hurt and the sick! The Red Cross poster carried its wondrous message to the very bottom of the squatter girl's heart.

A sound, close at hand, caused her to turn swiftly. A man on horseback had drawn up on the side of the road. The blood came in swift leaps to Polly's face. There was the "beautiful angel" looking down [illegible] her! What could she do but stare back at him? In another [illegible] he had dismounted and was coming toward her.

Jerry slid from her shoulders to the ground. Polly's [illegible] but she did not [illegible] comfort to every one on earth that needs help."

[illegible]

"Golly, she's some mother, ain't she?" breathed Polly soberly. "She's beautiful too. Squatter mammies has too many kids to stay handsome like her." She made a backward motion with her thumb toward the fence and searched his face gravely.

A choking sensation in Robert's throat made him cough. The girl's statement was like a charcoal drawing in which a few broad lines tell the whole story. He felt his interest in her increase. She was the quaintest, prettiest and most solemn child he had ever seen. Yes, he knew she was an inhabitant of the Silent City by the clothes she wore, and the thin, bow-legged child, to say nothing of the be-whiskered goat and woolly lamb that were with her.

"What's your name?" he inquired.

"Just Pollyop," was the answer "Polly Hopkins. My daddy is Jeremiah Hopkins, the mayor of this settlement."

Surely! Robert remembered very well MacKenzie speaking of Hopkins, and he remembered too the painted invitation over a hut door as if it were before his eyes. Looking Pollyop over from the top of her curly head to the tips of her bare feet, he decided that she had written it.

Question after question he flung at her, and answer after answer came from Polly's lips. She told him where she lived, and how she cooked the beans, bacon and fish Daddy Hopkins provided; how cold it was in the shanty when the cruel north wind swept up the lake; and how wet it was when the rain fell and clammy fogs shrouded the world in gray; how Granny Hope was sick with pains. She gave him an inside view of life in the Silent City. Long before she had finished her recital, Percival's courtesy had put her at her ease, and she was chattering like a magpie.

"Can I do something for you, Polly Hopkins?" queried Robert, as she finished telling about life in the squatters' city.

She flung out both hands in a comprehensive gesture as much as to say he could see for himself how much she needed.

"Sure, sure you can," she said with fierce emphasis. "You can make Old Marc leave us squatters be. You're bigger'n he is! The squatters need you awful bad."

Her voice broke. Robert took a long breath. Of course he could help this girl and her people. He would, too! As far as money gave power, he could equal and surpass Marcus MacKenzie.

"I did try to talk sense into Mr. MacKenzie's head," he returned presently, "but now I will make him leave you alone."

In spite of the curved lips about which a smile lurked, there was apprehension in her voice when she asked:

"Can you lick 'im to a finish, mister?"

"Yes, I think I could," laughed Robert; "but it won't be necessary."

"Then I see us Silent City folks bein' happy again," sighed Polly. "We got a awful lot of things an' folks to take care of here."

Robert made a sweep with his arm that encompassed the group before him.

"You have, evidently!" he laughed.

"An' I got more home," interjected Polly. "I got Daddy Hopkins an' Granny Hope—an' this brat is my brother, an' this goat is Billy Hopkins an' this lamb's Nannyop. Oh, sure, sir, I've got a hull lot to love in this good old city."

Polly made an upward motion with her hand toward the picture on the fence.

"She's got a bunch to love, too," she said softly. "Ain't she?"

He walked to her side and contemplated with her the pictured woman, making her silent appeal to them for the wounded boy in her arms.

"Of course she has," answered Percival reverently. "She's the Greatest Mother in the World, Polly Hopkins, and—and—" his gaze dropped upon her, and he continued, "and you're the littlest mother in the world."

A glad smile widened the girl's lips. All the fear that had been as a ton weight upon her had fallen away. She wanted to pay him the highest compliment she knew. When he had mounted, she said [illegible] gently:

"Some day you'll be the biggest an' most [illegible] daddy in the world. [illegible]"

[illegible] Percival stepped in. [illegible] a log on the [illegible]

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

COMPANION TO THE GOODYEAR ALL-WEATHER TREAD

In a factory devoted exclusively to manufacturing Goodyear Tires for small cars, the two tires illustrated above are made.

One is the famous 30x3½ Goodyear All-Weather Tread Clincher.

By long wear, superior traction, freedom from skidding, and ultimate economy, the Goodyear All-Weather Tread has won unquestioned leadership.

As a companion to this tire there is the Goodyear 30 x 3½ Cross Rib.

Built of the same high grade Egyptian fabric and with a long wearing but differently designed tread, this tire offers unusual value.

Over 5,000,000 of these tires have been sold in the last five years.

Their quality and serviceability have proved to thousands of motorists the folly of buying unknown and unguaranteed tires of lower price.

Ask your Goodyear Service Station Dealer to explain their advantages.

30x3½ Cross Rib Fabric . . .	$10.95
30x3½ All-Weather Fabric .	14.75
30x3½ All-Weather Cord . .	18.00
30x3½ Heavy Tourist Tube .	2.80
30x3½ Regular Tube	2.25

Manufacturer's tax extra

GOODYEAR

WESTERN CANADA
Land of Prosperity

offers to home seekers opportunities that cannot be secured elsewhere. The thousands of farmers from the United States who have accepted Canada's generous offer to settle on FREE homesteads or buy farm land in her provinces have been well repaid by bountiful crops. There is still available on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

—land similar to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—oats, barley and flax also in great abundance, while raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs is equally profitable. Hundreds of farmers in western Canada have raised crops in a single season worth more than the whole cost of their land. With such success comes prosperity, independence, good homes and all the comforts and conveniences which make life worth living.

Farm Gardens, Poultry, Dairying

are sources of income second only to grain growing and stock raising. Attractive climate, good neighbors, churches, schools, good markets, railroad facitities, rural telephone, etc.

For illustrated literature, maps, description of farm opportunities in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia, reduced railway rates, etc., write

W. S. NETHERY, Room 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, Ohio; M. J. JOHNSTONE, 215 Traction-Terminal Building, Indianapolis, Indiana

Authorized Agent, Dept. of Immigration and Colonization, Dominion of Canada

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

HORSES COUGHING? USE

Spohn's Distemper Compound

to break it up and get them back in condition. Twenty-eight years' use has made "SPOHN'S" indispensable in treating Coughs and Colds, Influenza and Distemper, with their resulting complications, and all diseases of the throat, nose and lungs. Acts marvelously as a preventive, acts equally well as a cure. Obtainable in two sizes at drug stores.

SPOHN MEDICAL COMPANY GOSHEN, INDIANA

Not in China.

Traveler—The Chinese make it an invariable rule to settle all their debts New Year's day.

Stay-at-Home—Yes, but the Chinese don't have a Christmas the week before.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas H. Fletcher

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Life's immitigable bore is the man who finds everything a bore.

Honesty is always the best policy for the grocer.

Her Credit.

"That's Jinks, the famous millionaire, over there on the left. He's a wife-made man."

"But I understand that his money came from oil on his farm."

"Ah, yes—but it was his wife who had finally consented to live on the farm."—Kansas City Star.

The charm of a bathroom is its spotlessness. By the use of Red Cross Ball Blue, all cloths and towels retain their whiteness until worn out.—Advertisement.

It remains unhappily true that an utter optimist can provoke as many yawns as an utter pessimist.

Cloves often savor of the spice of wickedness.

Genuine

BAYER

ASPIRIN

WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are [illegible] Aspirin prescribed by physicians [illegible]

[illegible]

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe. Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

STATEMENT OF THE OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, CIRCULATION, ETC., REQUIRED BY THE ACT OF CONGRESS OF AUGUST 24, 1912.

Of St. Joe News, published weekly at St. Joe, Indiana, for April 1st, 1922.

State of Indiana, County of DeKalb, ss: Before me, a Notary Public in, and for the state and county aforesaid, personally appeared Fred B. Leighty, who, having been duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Owner of the St. Joe News, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership, management, etc., of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of August 24, 1912, embodied in section 443, Postal Laws and Regulations, printed on the reverse of this form, to wit:

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor, managing editor, and business manager are:
Publisher, William S. Quance, St. Joe, Ind.
Editor, William S. Quance. St. Joe, Ind.
Managing Editor, William S. Quance, St. Joe, Ind.
Business Manager, William S. Quance, St. Joe, Ind.

2. That the owners are:
Fred B. Leighty, St. Joe, Ind.

3. That the known bondholders, mortgagees, and other security holders owning or holding 1 per cent or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages, or other securities are:
None.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the boods of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing, affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stick and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

FRED B. LEIGHTY.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 1st. day of April 1922.

S. S. WIDNEY. N. P.
Commission expires Jan. 7, 1923.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	88	$ 4.70
M. P	75	9.12
Lutheran	94	6.49
M. E. Spencer	81	5.74
Lutheran	91	5.00
Coburntown	69
Newville U. B.	65	2.89
Christian	91	3.62
Concord	33	1.86
Rehoboth	64	8.17

Magazines: April Ladies Home Journal, Harper's Basar, Woman's Home Companion, American Magazine, and many others at the News Office.

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features.

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $3000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows:
$25.00 a month for five years.
$12.50 a month for five years.
$6.25 a month for ten years.

If Permanently and Totally Disabled by Accident [illegible]

[illegible]

J. F. [illegible], St. Joe, Ind.

COLETOWN

Lehr Wilder was a business caller at Defiance, Saturday.

Jay Hart and family spent Tuesday at J. W. Hart's.

J. H. Kling, wife and daughter Lillian, were Sunday dinner guests at the Elmer Palmer home.

Edwin Guthrie and wife and J. D Drown visited at J. E. Brown's Sunday afternoon.

Mildred Pierman and Mercy Gruber, visited Sunday with Opal Walker.

Harold Miller and Dale Brown called on Henry Kling, Sunday evening.

Cloyd Hall and family took dinner Sunday with Fordyce Gruber and wife.

Ralph and Floyd Palmer took dinner Friday with Henry Kling and family.

NEWVILLE

E. E. Traxler and wife have been on the sick list

Mrs. Guy Platter is seriously ill with sciatic rheumatism.

A lot of moving has been delayed on account of the bad weather.

Mrs. Harry Hendershot is visiting her son Dale and family in Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Kinny entertained Miss Roth, Saturday night and Sunday.

Miss Roth of Ft. Wayne, addressed the Christian Sunday School, Sunday morning and the convention in the afternoon. Her talk was very much appreciated.

Mrs. Lillian Benninghoff is in the hospital at Ft. Wayne taking treatments for cancer which was recently detected. The malady effects the side and one arm. The patient was shocked to discover that she was afflicted with this dreaded disease and went to the hospital just as soon as she could after the discovery. Her many friends are hoping for her recovery.

Charley Countryman has filed his name as a Republican candidate for the nomination for trustee of Newville Township.

Russel Platter, who accidently shot his arm while hunting, in the early part of the winter has not fully recovered. There will have to be an operation as the wrist bone is splintered.

Well, we guess everybody knows that we have plenty of mud. We haven't seen so much horse back riding as now for a number of years. A number of people are walking to town carrying their produce these days.

Some of the rainy days last week it looked as though we were living on an island, but the water has gone down in the fields and road. The river is away out of its bank on the east side of the bridge but not over the road.

CONCORD

Envelopes at the News office.

Miss Vivian Murphy has been out of school three weeks on account of sickness.

Mrs. Rasler has been under the doctor's care for the past few days with the flue or lagripp.

Ford Jackson has been sick with chills, fever and cold, and was unable to work for a few days. Ford and his wife have been staying with Holl Jackson and wife for over one week, returning home Saturday.

Orley Baker and family moved some things Saturday in with his father and Ruth to keep house for him.

Ira Bone and wife entertained at Sunday dinner Howard Krise, wife and son, Paul.

Mrs. Rasler was quite bad Sunday, and is no better at this writing.

The Gleaners talk some of selling their property at Concord known as the Funk property.

Chas. Jackson and wife went to Auburn last Saturday, returning in the evening, and while there they called on Mrs. Less Sebring, who has been sick but is now better.

PUBLIC SALE!

Baving sold my farm I will sell at public auction, located 4 miles north of Grabill, 8 miles southwest of Spencerville and 3 miles northeast of Leo, on Saturday, April 8th, 1922, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m., the following property:

Four Head of Horses

Black mare, 11 years old, weight 1500 lbs.; bay horse, 12 yrs. old, weight 1500 lbs.; bay driving horse, 11 years old, weight 1100 lbs.; bay gelding, 4 years old, weight 1300 lbs.

Eleven Head of Cattle

Four-year-old Jersey cow, was fresh in Nov , giving good flow of milk; 8-year-old cow, was fresh in Dec , giving good flow of milk; 5-year-old cow, was fresh in Jan.; 4-year-old cow, was fresh in Feb.; 4-year-old cow, to be fresh by day of sale; 2 yr.-old heifer, to be fresh by day of sale; Durham cow, 8 yrs. old, to be fresh in July; 3 yearling heifers; 3 mo. old heifer calf.

Twenty-three Head of Hogs

Registered Duroc male hog, 3 yrs. old; registered Duroc sow with 8 pigs; pure bred Duroc sow with 7 pigs; pure bred Duroc sow with 6 pigs; 4 shoats, weighing 125 lbs. each.

Farm Implements, etc.

Tiffin wagon complete, 3-in. tire good as new; Deering mower, 5-ft. cut; Osborne hay tedder; Ohio hay loader; solid bottom hay rack; hay slings; Gale riding breaking plow, good as new; Syracuse walking plow; International riding cultivator; Brown walking cultivator; one-horse cultivator; shovel plow; spring-tooth harrow; spike-tooth drag; mud boat; log [illegible]; log chains; set of dump boards; manure [illegible]; 1 rubber tire, good as new; 10 farm gates; [illegible] some wire fence; [illegible] fountain; [illegible] corn sheller; 2 sets of [illegible] harness; [illegible] 2 sets of single harness; [illegible]

[illegible]

S. C. WITMER, Owner.

[illegible]

Political Announcements

FOR PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

H. C. SPRINGER

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for PROSECUTING ATTORNEY, 35th Judicial District, DeKalb and Steuben counties.

Born at Huntington, Ind., 1894.

Received law education at the University of Indiana.

Served with U. S. troops on the Mexican border in 1916.

Enlisted as a private in World's War, and served overseas and discharged as a captain of infantry.

Has practiced law at Garrett for the past three years.

Your support will be appreciated

For Prosecuting Attorney

CHARLES S. SMITH

Candidate for the Republican nomination for Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit, DeKalb and Steuben counties, subject to primaries May 2nd.

Graduate of Indiana Law School.

Admitted to bar in 1900; also a member of bar of Supreme Court of Indiana, and Federal Court and the United States Circuit Court.

Has been in the active practice of law in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, for over twenty years, and served as Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit of Indiana for four years.

Received education in the common schools of Indiana and the Indiana State Normal and taught eight years in the public schools of Indiana.

For Recorder

Please announce my candidacy for the democratic nomination for county recorder, subject to the primary, May 2nd.

Byron Platt,
Franklin Township.

For Sheriff

[illegible]

BAD BREATH

DO YOU WANT your friends to avoid you? They will certainly do so when your breath is bad.

There is no excuse for anyone having a bad breath. It is caused by disorders of the stomach which can be corrected by taking Chamberlain's Tablets. Many have been permanently cured of stomach troubles by the use of these tablets after years of suffering. Price 25 cents per bottle.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Wm. P. Endicott,

For Judge 35th Judicial District,

DeKalb and Steuben Counties, Republican Ticket. Subject to Primaries, May 2nd.

Born in Cass county, Indiana, 41 years ago.

Raised on a rarm.

Taught ten years in Indiana public schools.

Received law education at Indiana University, paying his own way.

Has actively practiced law in DeKalb and Steuben counties for 12 years, a longer period than many judges have practiced before occupying such positions.

Makes no claim and no boast of greatness, but refers you to those who know him as to his integrity and ability.

Your support will be appreciated.

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor, subject to your will at the May primaries. L. W. Yeiser.

For Auditor.

I wish to announce that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for auditor of DeKalb county at the Primary May 2nd. Your support will be appreciated.

W. G. Erick.

For Sheriff

I desire to inform the public that I am a candidate on the democratic ticket subject to their nomination for sheriff of DeKalb county in the May Primary. Your support will be appreciated.

Grover C. Sapp.

For Recorder.

George J. Kayser of Auburn announces his name for the democratic nomination for Recorder of DeKalb county at the primaries, May 2, 1922.

For Sheriff

I will be a candidate for sheriff of DeKalb county, subject to the [illegible]

FOR COMMISSIONER

[illegible]

For Assessor
Spencer Township

I am a candidate for assessor of Spencer township, subject to the decission of the democrats at the primary, May 2d, 1922. I will appreciate your support.

D E. McKinley.

For Sheriff.

I wish to announce to the readers of the News in DeKalb county that I am a candidate for sheriff subject to the wishes of the democratic voters at the primary, Tuesday, May 2nd.

William G. Moer.

For County Commissioner

Through the earnest solicitation of my friends I have decided to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for a member of county commissioners from the southeast district. If the voters consider me competent and worthy their support will be greatly appreciated. Primary May 2, 1922.

Ed Leighty.

For Trustee Concord Twp.

I wish to announce to all the men and women voters of Concord Township that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for trustee, subject to your decision in the primary, May 2nd.

Ray D. Herrick.

For Assessor

I wish to announce my name as a candidate for the democratic nomination of county assessor at the primaries on May 2nd.

Francis M. Wiltrout.

Lutheran Church Notes.

Pre Easter meetings will be conducted at the church during the week commencing on next Sunday evening and ending with Easter day. The pastor will preach each evening.

Communion services will be held Sunday morning. Remember that church benevolence payments are due at that time.

Everybody invited to these services and all will be made welcome. Young and old, come.

Notice of Appointment of Executor

Cause 2581.

STATE OF INDIANA,
DEKALB COUNTY, } ss.:

I, C. E. McClintock, Clerk of the Circuit Court, for the County of DeKalb, State of Indiana, do hereby certify that Sarah E. Koontz has been appointed executrix of the last will and testament of Baltzer Koontz, late of DeKalb county, who died testate, and the said Sarah E. Koontz having qualified and given bond as such executrix [illegible]

[illegible]

APRIL

You Should Be Obliged oT Save

THE disposition to save is the sure mark of determination to succeed.

Whatever your business and whatever your present prospects may be you cannot afford not to save

One dollar opens an account here. ☞ Start saving today.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician

Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

The MAULE SEED BOOK FREE

[illegible]

WM. HENRY MAULE, Inc. 213 Arch St. [illegible], Pa.

✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱

SPENCERVILLE

✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Kenneth Rhoades of Auburn, spent Sunday with his grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Freece

The C. C. Club will be entertained at the home of Mrs. Verney Rhodes, Friday afternoon.

[illegible]

See The NEW STONEHILL Pattern Hat From Chicago At Mrs. Warner's.

Miss Minnie Walker spent the week end at the F. W. Silberg home.

Mrs. John Benninghoff of Fort Wayne, was a Sunday caller at the homes of Charles Rhoades and Mrs. Cora Steward.

Mrs. C. R. Rhoades and little son of Indianapolis, visited her parents, Rev. and Mrs. S. D. Steffy and family last week.

Mrs. Marelle Thorne will entertain the Home Missionary Society on next Wednesday afternoon, April 12th.

Port Vallieu, infant son of James Vallieu is very ill with pneumonia. Miss Fannie Vallieu, a nurse at the Hope Methodist Hospital was called home to assist in caring for him.

On Wednesday afternoon, April 12, Mrs. Mary Grogg, will act as hostess to the Economics Club at her home on the County Line. A health program will be given.

On Saturday, April 22, school will close. The grades are making preparations for observing the day with different programs. The Baccalaureate sermon will be delivered by Rev. Upoff, M. E. pastor, at the Lutheran Church on Sunday evening April 16.

The children of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Baltz gathered at their home on Wednesday evening in honor of their parents fifty-fourth wedding anniversary. A delightful potluck supper was served from well filled baskets brought by the guests and a delightful evening was spent together.

ONION SEED

Southport Yellow Globe

Also

Field and Garden

SEEDS

[illegible] Coal Co.

Auburn, Indiana

Gerry Wasson, wife and daughter and Otis Koch, were Sunday dinner guests of Frank Wertman and wife. Verna Kelly and family were evening guests in the same home.

The directors of the White City Cemetery Association, met at the home of B. F. Markle on Friday evening and elected officers. R. B. Renn, president; Gaylon Markle, secretary; George Beams, treasurer; J. F. Baltz, superintendent. The other two directors are Wm. Fairfield and Charles Watson.

Joel Bets received word Thursday of the death of his brother, J. Frank Bets, of Allen county, at the age of 64 years. Mr. Bets formerly resided at East Springfield. He leaves four brothers and two sisters many neices and nephews to mourn his departure. The body was brot on Friday to the home of his brother Samuel Bets of Springfield Twp. The funeral was held on Saturday afternoon at the Springfield Center Lutheran Church, Rev. Mumma of Harlan officiating. Interment at Springfield cemetery.

St. Joe Locals

Shelf paper—News office.

Frank Curie and wife were Sunday evening supper guests of C. C. Curie and wife.

F. B. Leighty and wife, Mrs. C. S Johnson and Miss Martha Moon were Ft. Wayne visitors, Saturday

Christian Curie and wife were Sunday dinner guests of their son, Grover Curie and family.

Miss Dorothy Bowman spent over Sunday here with her parents, H. S. Bowman and wife. She is attending Normal at Angola.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Hathaway of Auburn were Sunday afternoon callers in the M. T. Bishop and Mrs. Alice Warner homes.

Cash Hannen and family moved here last week from Auburn and are occupying the D. J. Baker property on East Main street.

Edith Widney and guest, Mrs. Nona Morr of Elkhart, spent last Monday and Tuesday visiting with friends in Fort Wayne.

Stanton Osborne, wife and children spent Saturday night and Sunday in the John Moody home west of Spencerville.

Ed Miser, wife and children, Martha and Frank, were Waterloo visitors Saturday. Mrs. Martha Miser, who had been spending the week here, returned home.

Mesdames Catherine Rickett, Etha Jackson, Mae Miser, Jennie Andress, Blanche Leighty, and the Misses Edna Jackson and Melba Andress were Fort Woyne visitors one day recently.

Leon Sechler and wife entertained at a Sunday dinner Walter Bowen and wife of Ft. Wayne, Frank Sechler and wife, Wm. Staman, jr., and wife. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen were over Sunday guests in the Sechler homes.

Howard Northrup and wife entertained at Sunday dinner Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily and daughter, Miss Louetta, Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer and granddaughter, Miss Evelyn Knight, and Wm. Brown and wife.

Garth Silberg Operated On

Garth Silberg, [illegible] and nausea followed.

A hasty examination disclosed the nature of the trouble and he was rushed to the hospital where it was found that an immediate operation was necessary.

[illegible]

✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱

We are going to clean house this week—

WE ARE GOING TO CLEAN HOUSE at a time when we can help you and you can help us. Below are our clean up prices on all Rubber goods—

Men's Ball Band Rubber boots—black $3.95 red $4.25
Men's Heavy 4-buckle arctics, red $3.20
Boys' boots $3.15
Boys' sandals.. 79c
Misses Sandals 79c
Ladies sandals 83c
Men's sandals $1.15

One-buckle arctics for the whole family at Cost Prices.

Ladies' and Misses Oxfords and Pumps

at ☞ $2.50 $3.50 $3.85 $3.98

Colors: brown, black and patent leather in low and military heels. Up-to-date styes.

FULL LINE OF

Children's Oxtords

☞ Watch for our announcement of our sale in men's work shoes next week at Real Prices.

Our motto: Give a Square Deal and demand one.

Central Grocery,

St. Joe, Ind.

✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱ ◉ ✱

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Cause No. 2414.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons interested in the estate of James M. Milliman, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 15th day of May, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 30th day of March, 1922.

S. S. WIDNEY,
Administrator.
Atkinson, Endicott
& Husselman,
Attorneys.

Sheriff's Sale on Decree

4369

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, State of Indiana.

Eli M. Keener vs Fred H. Donely and Mary Donley.

By virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me, directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in the cause wherein Eli M. Keener is plaintiff and Fred H. Donley and Mary Donley are defendents requiring me to make the sum of One thousand Two hundred ninety two and 00-100 dollars, with interest and costs, I will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, on the 27th day of April 1922, between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day at the door of the Court House, in the City of Auburn, County of DeKalb, State of Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, the following described realestate, in said County and State, to-wit:

Ten (10) acres of land off of the north end of the west half of the north-west quarter of Section twenty-four (24) in township thirty-three (33) north of range fourteen (14) east, and bounded as follows:

Commencing at the north-west corner of said section Twenty-four (24) thence running south forty-four (44) rods, thence east thirty-six (36) rods, thence north forty-four (44) rods, thence west thirty-six (36) rods, to the place of beginning, containing ten (10) acres. Also sixty-five one hundredths 65-100 of an acre lying south of the Baltimore and Ohio Right of way, in the south-east corner of the south-east corner of section fourteen (14) Concord Township, all in DeKalb County, State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sum sufficient to pay and satisfy said decreed interest and costs, I will at the same time and place offer for sale at public auction the fee simple of said real estate.

Said sale to be made without any relief from valuation or appraisment laws.

T. L. HOODELMIER,
Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana.
Dated March 28th, 1922.

Willis Rhoads, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Ford Size ☞ BATTERIES

It is always advisable to keep your BATTERIES in the best of repair.

Exchange your old one for a new one. We give you a new wood case set for your old one and $16.00

An all Rubber case set for your old one and $20.00.

These Batteries are guaranteed.

☞ The third car load of TRACTORS has just arrived. Make your decission now.

F. W. SILBERG,
Spencerville, - Indiana

What is your Idea of the requirements of a really efficient building supply dealer?

COMPLETE STOCKS? Ours are watched with careful eyes, and promptly replenished when low.

QUALITY MATERIAS? Only the best of their kind are handled by us.

In a word is it service that you want? If so you have struck the key-note of our policy.

Prompt attention to customers needs is the first law of our business.

No matter how small or how large your business will receive here the kind of treatment you have a right to expect.

Spencerville Lumber Co.,
Asher Culp, Mgr.

Lehman's
CLOTHING HOUSE
Fort Wayne, Ind.

APRIL

VITALITY! VITALITY! VITALITY!

You Must Have It to Keep Your Job, Your Friends, Your Happiness

Thousands of thoughtless people needlessly let themselves run down in health. The day comes when, with a terrible shock, they suddenly realize that they are permanently broken in health. For your own sake keep well. If you feel weak or run-down or do not sleep well or are nervous and have a poor color, don't wait until it is too late. Gude's Pepto-Mangan taken with your meals for a few weeks will restore your good health, give you renewed strength and vitality for your daily work. The healthy life is the only happy life—do not let it slip from you. For thirty years Gude's Pepto-Mangan has been helping people who were run-down back to good health. It was made famous by the medical profession. Sold by druggists in both liquid and tablet form.—Advertisement.

That Started Him.

Staylate (at 11:30 p. m.)—"My motto is to live and let live."

Miss Bright (stifling a yawn)—"I wish it was to sleep and let sleep."

WHY DRUGGISTS RECOMMEND SWAMP-ROOT

For many years druggists have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

It is a physician's prescription.

Swamp-Root is a strengthening medicine. It helps the kidneys, liver and bladder do the work nature intended they should do.

Swamp-Root has stood the test of years. It is sold by all druggists on its merit and it should help you. No other kidney medicine has so many friends.

Be sure to get Swamp-Root and start treatment at once.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

But Few Ever Learn.

Certainly the mistakes that we male and female mortals make when we have our own way might fairly raise some wonder that we are so fond of it.—George Eliot.

MOTHER! OPEN CHILD'S BOWELS WITH CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP

Your little one will love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup" even if constipated, bilious, irritable, feverish, or full of cold. A teaspoonful never fails to cleanse the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the sour bile, and undigested food out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.—Advertisement.

Simple.

"How can I keep my toes from going to sleep?"

"Don't let them turn in."

DON'T FEAR ASPIRIN IF IT IS GENUINE

Look for Name "Bayer" on Tablets, Then You Need Never Worry.

To get genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" you must look for the safety "Bayer Cross" on each package and on each tablet.

The "Bayer Cross" means true, world-famous Aspirin, prescribed by physicians for over twenty-one years, and proved safe by millions for Colds, Headache, Earache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for Pain in general. Proper and safe directions are in each unbroken "Bayer" package.—Advertisement.

The Truth.

"[illegible] can't reason with a woman."

"[illegible] boy, women are hard to [illegible]."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SHE DYED A SWEATER, [illegible] CHILD'S COAT [illegible]

[illegible]

THE SECOND FIDDLE

In Which the Powerful Influence of Example Does Much to Develop Independence.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

AT the first sound of the step on the stone walk below, Kate Denny sprang to her feet. A delicate flush came to her cheeks and a new light in her eyes. She listened, standing motionless, until the whir of the electric bell stirred her into life.

Hurriedly she crossed the room to her mirror, and patted with shaking fingers the already smooth waves of her pale yellow hair. From the lace at her throat she tore the blue bow hastily, substituting a pink one—only to replace it almost at once with the blue. Her gown at back and waist and sleeves she touched tentatively with her still shaking fingers; when plainly nothing else could be done to make perfection more perfect, she turned and waited, her expectant eyes on the closed door leading from her chamber to the hall.

Two, three, five minutes passed. The subdued confusion of an entrance and the sound of voices had floated up from the hall below, but all was silent now. Three more minutes Kate Denny waited. Surprise, doubt, and a frightened questioning came in turn to her eyes; then resolution, as she softly crossed the room and opened the door.

A light laugh floated up the stairway, and a deeper note answered. The girl drew back, half closing the door.

Then it was true. He had come, and she had not been summoned to go down. Edith was there, however—that light laugh had been hers. So it was to be the old story over again. If Edith wanted it, she must have it, whether it were a jam tart or the exclusive attention of an evening caller.

Always it had been like that; and always she, Kate, had taken the subordinate place, together with the smaller tart.

Resolutely Kate Denny opened the door wider and took one step into the hall.

Well, why not? That was John Kennison down there. He had come to see her.

Irresolutely the girl still stood debating the matter, when the twang of a violin string came from the room below and seemed to end all hesitation. With swift steps and heightened color, Kate Denny tripped down the stairs and entered the brightly lighted living-room. John Kennison rose at once, an almost boyish eagerness in his glance. Edith Denny turned slowly. Her eyes carried a barely perceptible annoyance.

Oh, here's Kate," she said. "You're just in time, Kate, to turn the music."

John Kennison played first violin in a large city orchestra. He stood now close to the piano, his instrument in his hand, and his eyes longingly fixed on Kate Denny.

"It's a concerto. I was going to try it a bit," he began eagerly. "You know, I brought the piano score last week. You said you'd——"

"Yes, it's right here, Mr. Kennison," interrupted Edith, brightly. "And we'd love to play it with you. Come, Kate."

For one brief instant Kate almost rebelled. John Kennison had asked her to practice that score, and she had practiced it for hours at a time until it was at her finger tips; yet she was expected to stand patiently by and turn the leaves for Edith.

"But, Edith," hesitated Kate, "don't you think it would be better if I——"

"Nonsense! of course you can turn the music, Kate," laughed her sister, airily. "Don't be so timid! Come."

It was not a success—the playing of that concerto. From start to finish it was an agitated scramble on the part of each player to find and keep step with the other. At the conclusion Edith laughed hysterically, Kate bit her lips in open confusion, and John Kennison reached for his handkerchief to wipe the perspiration from his face.

A moment later Edith suggested that they try a [illegible] love song to which she knew [illegible] and [illegible] "Yes, oh, if you please." [illegible] his violin to position.

For half an hour then Kate sat in a corner [illegible]

[illegible]

a shamed red, and began to lash herself with scorn.

Had she, indeed, fallen so low as to be ready to quarrel over a man, as a dog would fight for a bone? Doubtless, anyway, John Kennison preferred Edith.

It was merely another case of the smaller tart.

After all, was there not such a thing as too much self-sacrifice, too continual self-repression? A certain amount, of course, was beautiful, virtuous, and altogether commendable, but might there not come a point where they became actually a fosterer of other people's selfishness, and a sin against one's own individuality? As if a perpetual seeder of raisins and eater of chicken wings could live a full, free life—a life that really brought out the best within one's self and within one's fellow men! Indeed, no! And there should be a change—a rightabout face. She would see to it that there was. With sweet, gentle, yet firm dignity, she would take her rightful place.

And with this thought in mind, Kate Denny rose to her feet, prepared herself for bed, and then determinedly raised her window before opening the connecting door leading to her sister's room.

As expected, she did not have long to wait.

"Kate!" called her sister.

"Yes, Edith."

"Where's all that wind coming from?"

"From my window, perhaps; it's open."

"Open! Why, Kate Denny, you never have your window open!"

"I know I don't; but I thought I would tonight. I wanted the air."

"But it's so cold! I'm half-frozen. Do you want me to catch my death of cold?"

"Why, no, of—of course not," murmured Kate. Involuntarily she started to get out of bed; then suddenly she fell back. With stern resolution she wet her dry lips and said, "If you're cold, Edith, why don't you pull up another blanket?"

"'Cold!' 'Another blanket!' Why, Kate, what are you thinking of, when you know how I hate a lot of stuffy clothes over me! I never knew you to act like this! Well, if you won't shut it, I shall—that's all!" And the swift patter of bare feet and the determined bang of the window sash told that Edith had made good her word. "There!" exclaimed an aggrievedly triumphant voice, as the patter retreated through the open doorway.

On the bed Kate Denny made one more effort to rise—to catch the fleeting "sweet, gentle, yet firm dignity" of her promise to herself; then wearily she fell back.

"After all, it'll be easier to begin tomorrow in daylight when—when I'm up and dressed," she told herself. "Besides, there won't be anything so hard as that window is, to—assert my rights about."

"Tomorrow," however, proved that dignity had neither to do with daylight nor being dressed, and that whether it were an open window or a proffered invitation about which one wished to assert one's self, there was no variation in the difficulty of doing it.

She had arisen early and started breakfast (in spite of it being Edith's week to perform that duty). She had washed the dishes while Edith went to market, because Edith liked to go to market—when it was pleasant. When it rained, Kate herself went. As usual, she had tidied the kitchen and the bathroom, leaving the lighter dusting to Edith and her mother, who preferred that kind. As usual, too, at luncheon, she had given the golden-brown crusts of her rolls to Edith, not because she herself did not [illegible] the Dennys the "Philharmonic" was always "John Kennison's orchestra," and as such its concerts were enthusiastically welcomed. Tonight, however, there was no animation, no joy in Kate Denny's face as she dressed herself; nor did even the anticipatory rustle and hum of the concert room itself bring an answering flash or sparkle as she waited for the first number on the programme.

[illegible]

This was her mood when a chance conversation between two men in front of her aroused a mild sort of interest.

"Who is that long-haired, dreamy-eyed creature caressing his fiddle as if it were the dear child of his heart?" asked one man of the other.

Almost unconsciously Kate Denny turned her head to catch the reply. She, too, had often idly wondered about that particular dreamy-eyed violinist.

"That? Oh, that's Bronoffsky."

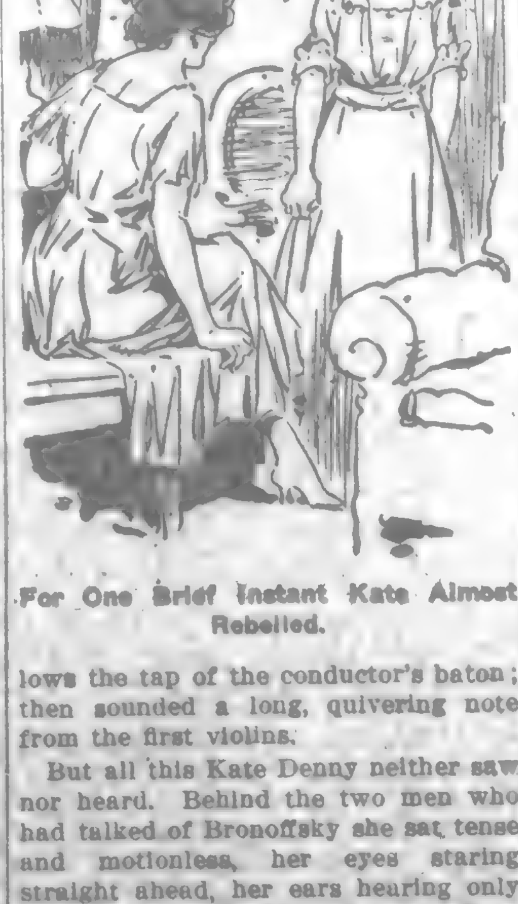
"Queer-looking chap! Good player?"

"Hm-m—well, yes, he is. Still—he's only a second fiddle up there, you know. He plays second violin." There was a moment's pause, then, half musingly, the voice went on: "Do you know, it's rather funny about that fellow, Bronoffsky. He is possessed and consumed by one mad ambition; he wants to lead, direct,—be a conductor, you know."

"Well, why doesn't he?"

"Bronoffsky lead! Jove, man, he couldn't! Bronoffsky's a dreamer, not a doer. He can play, sure—second fiddle. But he hasn't the audience sense; he doesn't know how to handle men. He doesn't know how to hold thirty, forty, fifty instruments at the tip of a little black stick. All his life he's been controlled, not in control. All his life he's done another's will, not his own. Great Scott! man, Bronoffsky is—is just what you see, a first-rate second fiddle!"

There was a burst of applause—the leader of the Philharmonic had appeared on the platform. A moment later came the electric hush that follows the tap of the conductor's baton; then sounded a long, quivering note from the first violins.



For One Brief Instant Kate Almost Rebelled.

But all this Kate Denny neither saw nor heard. Behind the two men who had talked of Bronoffsky she sat tense and motionless, her eyes staring straight ahead, her ears hearing only the words that had just been spoken:

"All his life he's been controlled, not in control. All his life he's done another's will, not his own. Bronoffsky is—is just what you see, a first-rate second fiddle!"

So that was all she was, or could ever hope to be—a second fiddle.

Suddenly, now, Kate Denny became conscious of the music from the platform. It had dropped to pianissimo, yet clearly, sweetly, the melody still ran through it like a silver thread. Fainter and yet more faint it grew, until only an airy, swaying cobweb of sound floated from the leader's baton.

There was a moment's breathless hush, then deafening applause. In her seat Kate Denny [illegible] suddenly. With the [illegible] of that perfect music still in her ears she [illegible] to herself that [illegible] even selfish that she should not like always to be doing the drudgery, or always to be giving up her will about every little matter, or always to be handing over to another woman the flowers, drives, calls, and candy that seemed originally intended for herself. But invariably, even though inwardly she did rebel, outwardly she was still the self-sacrificing, self-effacing sister.

[illegible]

As it chanced, it was after a day of this inward rebellion that Kate Denny went once again with her family to a concert by the Philharmonic. There was the same anticipatory hum and stir in the audience, but on the stage—on the stage, even Kate could see that something unusual had happened, or was about to happen. One by one the musicians were taking their places, but not in the quiet, orderly way that was customary. They were plainly hurried, nervous, excited. One stumbled against a music-rack, and another dropped his bow to the floor. Some talked earnestly together; others sat silently apart, an odd look almost like disdain on their faces. Bronoffsky, for whom Kate looked at once, was nowhere to be seen. She was wondering at this, when unexpectedly John Kennison appeared in the aisle by her seat.

"I came down a minute to tell you," he began excitedly in a low voice. "Last night Rossi—the leader, you know—was thrown out of his auto and hurt rather badly. Kepple, the concert master, was with him, and he was knocked out, too, for tonight. And what do you think—? Rossi sent word that Bronoffsky — Bronoffsky should conduct tonight!"

"Who's Bron — Bron — what's his name?" demanded Edith, pettishly. And Kate, to whom John Kennison's words had been addressed, for once rejoiced in her sister's interposition, so oddly stirred was she herself at John Kennison's words.

"Why, he's one of the second violins, second violins," repeated Kennison, "tall, long-haired chap with big black eyes. You'll remember when you see him. I must go, but I wanted to tell you," hurried the man, turning again to Kate, "something's going to happen, but just what, I don't know. He's been putting us through our paces all the morning, and—well, you'll see," flung back Kennison as he hurried away.

Five minutes later the orchestra were all in their places; then from the wings stepped a tall, dark-haired man, and Kate Denny's heart gave a heavy, suffocating throb. A patter of hand-clapping greeted the man's appearance, but almost instantly died into silence—the claps had been intended for Rossi—and this man was not Rossi. Kate Denny, watching him with suspended breath, wondered if he cared.

The man himself did not look as if he cared, or as if he even heard. With head and shoulders erect he was making for the stand. His face was white, and his jaw firm-set; but there was that in his eyes that caused the girl to glow suddenly as with hidden fire. For a tense instant Bronoffsky, motionless upon his stand, faced his orchestra; then slowly he raised his baton.

True to John Kennison's prophecy, something did happen that evening. The orchestra knew that never before had they played as they were playing now—with such passion, such power, such a oneness of purpose.

The audience knew only that never before had they heard forty instruments sound so exactly as one.

The critics—between the numbers the critics talked enthusiastically of the new leader who had that night been born. From their lips dropped learned phrases: He did not overdrive his orchestra; he sought no undue din of brass and drum; he was careful of the quality as well as the quantity of tone; he had balance, poise, power; he ordered the pace of his music judiciously, and he moulded its phrases with a masterly hand.

And yet—neither orchestra nor audience nor learned critics were quite so much moved as was a certain young woman in an orchestra chair nine rows from the front. Her head was erect, her eyes were shining like stars, and her mouth was curved in a smile that some way seemed to carry an elation all out of proportion to any cause. For, had you asked her, she would have said that it was all because of one Leon Bronoffsky, second violinist, who that night had led the orchestra.

For Edith Denny that evening there came two surprises. One surprise was when she found herself unaccountably walking out of the concert hall with her mother, while ahead Kate and John Kennison walked together.

The second surprise came later, when Kate, nearly ready for bed, appeared at the connecting door between their rooms.

"Edith," began Kate [illegible] "I'm going to close this door [illegible]. I want my window open, and [illegible] don't [illegible] be satisfied. Goodnight." And she shut the door.

For one amazed instant Edith stood and stared at the closed door; then [illegible] forward, her hand reaching for the knob.

[illegible] thinking [illegible] with- [illegible]

NOW DO MY WORK WITH EASE

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored My Health

Hornell, N. Y.—"I was in bad health but there didn't seem to be any one thing the matter with me. I was tired out all over and it was an effort for me to move. I was irritable and could not sleep nights and had trouble with my bowels and at my periods. It seemed that nearly every one around me knew of your medicine and wanted me to try it, so at last I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine and improved every day. I do all my own work now except the washing and do it with ease. I can accomplish as much in a day now as it would have taken me a week to do last winter and I try to get every one I know to take your medicine to build them up. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you like."—Mrs. CHAS. BAKER, 21 Spencer Ave., Hornell, N.Y.

In almost every neighborhood there are women who know of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They know because they have taken it and have been helped. Why don't you give it a trial?

Increase Your Weight to Normal by Taking

TANLAC

The World's Greatest Tonic

INDIAN RELICS. Their probable worth and other information. A booklet of 4,000 words, price 50c coin or money order. OLIVER PONTIOUS, Lock Box 12, TOLEDO, OHIO.

NR

TONIGHT
Tomorrow Alright

NR Tablets stop sick headaches, relieve bilious attacks, tone and regulate the eliminative organs, make you feel fine.

"Better Than Pills For Liver Ills"

Get a 25c. Box.

Strengthen Your Eyes with Dr. Frank's Remedy. It relieves inflamed, sore, itching, aching, discharging eyes; also headaches, ulceration, eyes swollen with colds, granulated and scaley lids. It's Dr. Frank's private formula, used in his practice over 30 years.

Send for a bottle—keep it handy. Watch your eyes improve with its use. $1.00 postpaid.

FRANK CHEMICAL COMPANY
623 Gratiot Ave. DETROIT

Dr. Frank's REMEDY
for Inflamed Eyes

"I can truthfully say that Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me more good than any kidney medicine I have ever taken. Am bothered very seldom with kidney trouble. When I feel it coming on I take a few Dodd's Kidney Pills and soon feel all right. Feel [illegible] than since taking your pills. When I commenced taking them I was hardly able to walk across the room."

Signed, ROBERT FLEENOR,
Pine Village, Indiana.

Get DODD'S at your druggist's or order direct from
DODD'S MEDICINE CO., Buffalo, N. Y.
Large box only 60c. Absolutely Guaranteed.

A Mild [illegible] Diamond [illegible] Never [illegible]

Cuticura Soap
[illegible]
Shaving Soap
Cuticura Soap shaves without mug. Everywhere [illegible]

COCKROACHES
ANTS
[illegible]

APRIL

Mrs. Emma Vosburgh

Elyria, Ohio.—"I can highly recommend Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as a household remedy for deep-seated coughs and colds and as a tonic and builder in run-down conditions. Golden Medical Discovery has been of great value to me and to my family for years and it is a pleasure to recommend it."—Mrs. Emma Vosburgh, 228 Rush St.

When run-down you can quickly pick up and regain vim, vigor, vitality by obtaining this Medical Discovery of Dr. Pierce's at your nearest drug store in tablets or liquid, or send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for trial pkg., or write for advice.

All Played Out at Quitting Time?
You Need
TANLAC
The World's Greatest Tonic

An Equation.

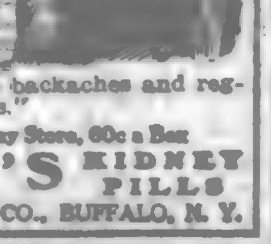
O'Rourke—The man phwat has no wolfe is nawthin'. McToole—So is the man phwat has wan, b'gob!—Life.

Children's handkerchiefs often look hopeless when they come to the laundry. Wash with good soap, rinse in water blued with Red Cross Ball Blue. —Advertisement.

Something Missing.

She—You are a perfect dear!

He—Not perfect, darling, you have my heart!—Wayside Tales.



Miserable With Backache?

Why put up with that nagging backache? You can't be happy when every day brings morning lameness, sharp, shooting pains and that all-worn-out feeling. The best way to get well is to find the cause of your trouble and correct it. Likely, a cold or a chill has slowed up your kidneys and that is why you have backaches, stabbing pains, headaches and dizziness. Just take things easier and help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Indiana Case

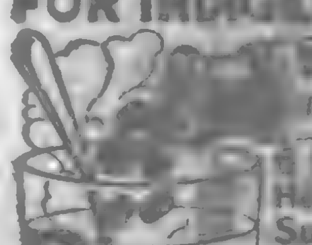
Mrs. Fred Canan, S. Heaton St., Knox, Ind., says: "My kidneys were weak and I was hardly ever free from dull pains across the small of my back. Headaches and nervous, dizzy spells were frequent and I had no energy. My kidneys were irregular in action but Doan's Kidney Pills freed me from the backaches and regulated my kidneys."

Get Doan's at Any Store, 60c a Box
DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS
FOSTER-MILBURN CO., BUFFALO, N. Y.

Appropriate Selection.

Having just finished his sermon on "Gossip and Slander," a minister in the suburbs announced the hymn, "I Love to Tell the Story."—Boston Transcript.

Feel a smile and the right kind of smile will show up; but drat the artificial ones.



Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS
25¢ and 75¢ Packages Everywhere

"Vaseline" Carbolated Petroleum Jelly is an effective, antiseptic first-aid dressing for cuts, wounds and insect bites. It helps prevent infection.
[illegible] MFG. CO.
State Street New York

INDIANA State News

Greenfield.—An injunction was issued at Greenfield in the Hancock Circuit court by Jonas T. Walker, judge, in which he barred use of Indiana's legislative apportionment of 1921. The acts, he held, are unconstitutional and the ruling affects the election of both senators and representatives in the state's general assembly. A similar ruling recently was made in the Johnson Circuit court at Franklin, in which the acts also were held unconstitutional, but it applied only to the election of representatives, as no senator was to be chosen in that district this year. Judge Walker, however, declined to issue a mandate providing that election of senators and representatives this fall be held under the apportionment of 1915. The state as defendant will appeal the case to the Indiana Supreme court.

Indianapolis.—The unemployment situation in many of the cities in Indiana seems to be on the mend, says a report for the latter part of March, made public by Evans Woollen, regional director for Indiana of the President's conference committee on unemployment, of which Herbert Hoover is chairman. Reports to the regional director from the mayors and other officials of many Indiana cities and from investigators sent out by the Washington headquarters of the committee, indicated that in few places is the unemployment situation as acute as it was in December. In some places there are indications that industry is resuming its prewar stride. Reports from Muncie, for example, say that city "is almost back to prewar conditions."

Indianapolis.—The total assessed valuation of taxable property in the city of Indianapolis for the year 1921, taxable in 1922, is $592,818,300, according to a certified statement received by the business director of the Indianapolis school city, from the county auditor. This is approximately $7,800,000 higher than the estimated total given by the auditor last fall, and on which the 1922 tax levies for the city and school city were based, so that the total tax receipts of both the city and school city this year will be appreciably higher than the officials had expected. The higher total valuation also increases the bonding power of each unit approximately $156,000.

Brazil.—Sunday blue laws are being rigidly enforced at the mining town of Staunton. A newly organized unit of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union recently started a campaign which resulted in the stopping of public card games. The town board also has posted notices that all persons following their usual avocations on Sunday will be arrested. The confectioneries, drug stores and soda fountains have been ordered closed on Sunday.

Shelbyville.—Shelby county wool growers have agreed to pool their spring clip this year, as was done last year, and to ship to a warehouse at Columbus, O., for sale. Indiana wool last year was moved from farm to manufacturer at a cost of 3½ cents a pound, according to Claude Harper of Purdue, who spoke at the Shelby County Wool Producers' meeting held recently. He said that approximately one-third of the Indiana wool clip was pooled last year, and that the profit to the farmers was about 80,000.

Terre Haute.—The Vigo County Farmers' association has joined numerous other organizations, including the rural and city mail carriers, the Central Labor union, United Mine Workers of America and other unions in opposing the adoption of the daylight saving plan by the Terre Haute city council. A resolution opposing this plan was adopted by the association of this county.

Indianapolis.—A decrease in the tuberculosis death rate for each 1,000 persons in Indianapolis from 2.31 in 1900 to 1.22 in 1921, is accounted for by the fight on tuberculosis during the twenty-two years, Dr. Herman G. Morgan, secretary of the city health board, says.

Fort Wayne.—D. Lafayette Beaker, seventy-seven years old, junior vice department commander of the Indiana G. A. R., is dead at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Theodore Kayser, here.

Valparaiso.—Porter county farmers will purchase a [illegible] seed potatoes this year. [illegible]

[illegible]

Noblesville.—Farm work in central Indiana generally is well in hand, notwithstanding the fact that the recent wet weather has delayed spring plowing to some extent. A large amount of sod has already been turned this spring and a good deal of this work was done last winter, which was unusually mild through this region. Thus far no trace of the fly has been found in wheat in Hamilton, Madison, Boone, Tipton, Howard, Clinton and other counties in the central part of the state and the wheat is stooling out in a way that promises an unusually large yield. The clover sown last spring is showing up in good condition. Fruit men say peach trees have come through the winter in good condition. The buds have begun to swell and the indications point to a heavy peach crop. "It is not often that trees come through the winter in this latitude looking as promising as they do at the present time," a fruit expert says. "While the peach crop is often killed in April or May, yet the greatest damage is usually wrought by the intense cold in January and February. The same token that promises a large peach yield also gives hope of a large apple, cherry, plum and pear crop.

Jeffersonville.—With a population of approximately 1,000 men and with equipment to keep only about 700 busy, the management of the Indiana reformatory at Jeffersonville is virtually compelled to keep the foundry going at full speed while the demand for hollowware has so fallen off that the product of the shops cannot be disposed of and is piling up at the institution. Something like 200 men are employed in the foundry and it is estimated the finished product on hand amounts to about $125,000. Formerly the labor of prisoners was sold to contractors. Later the state operated the foundry and sold the finished product at piece prices, but now the output is disposed of virtually by the state itself and the entire industry is under direct state control.

Mooresville.—The fruit-growing industry of Indiana has advanced in the last two years. Laurens Greene, chief of the horticultural department of Purdue University experiment station, to whom the Indiana Fruit Growers' association and individual fruit growers make reports, says that "orchard fruits were on the decline between 1910 and 1920. A total of 10,000,000 bearing trees in 1910 was reduced to about half that number in 1920, with less than 2,000,000 nonbearing trees in 1920 to take the place of the older trees which are going out. One of the hopeful factors is that those men who are planting will take care of the trees they plant."

Vincennes.—The concrete dam at the lake in Lakewood park, north of Vincennes, broke, permitting probably 1,000,000 black bass to escape and flooding the country in that vicinity. The dam was built about 1900 and had been in a weakened condition, it was said, for several years. The lake covered two acres and in many places was fifteen feet deep. Following the break thousands of little bass went away with the water, which washed out many bridges. Hundreds of bass weighing four and five pounds, floundering around in puddles, were picked up.

Culver.—Led by Claude E. Gregg of Vincennes, state commander of the American Legion, more than 100 officers and others assembled here for the third Culver conference of the Indiana department. Business included consideration of the several undertakings which are being pushed by the Legion in Indiana. These embraced the problems of serving the former service men, administration of the state department's affairs and similar items of business.

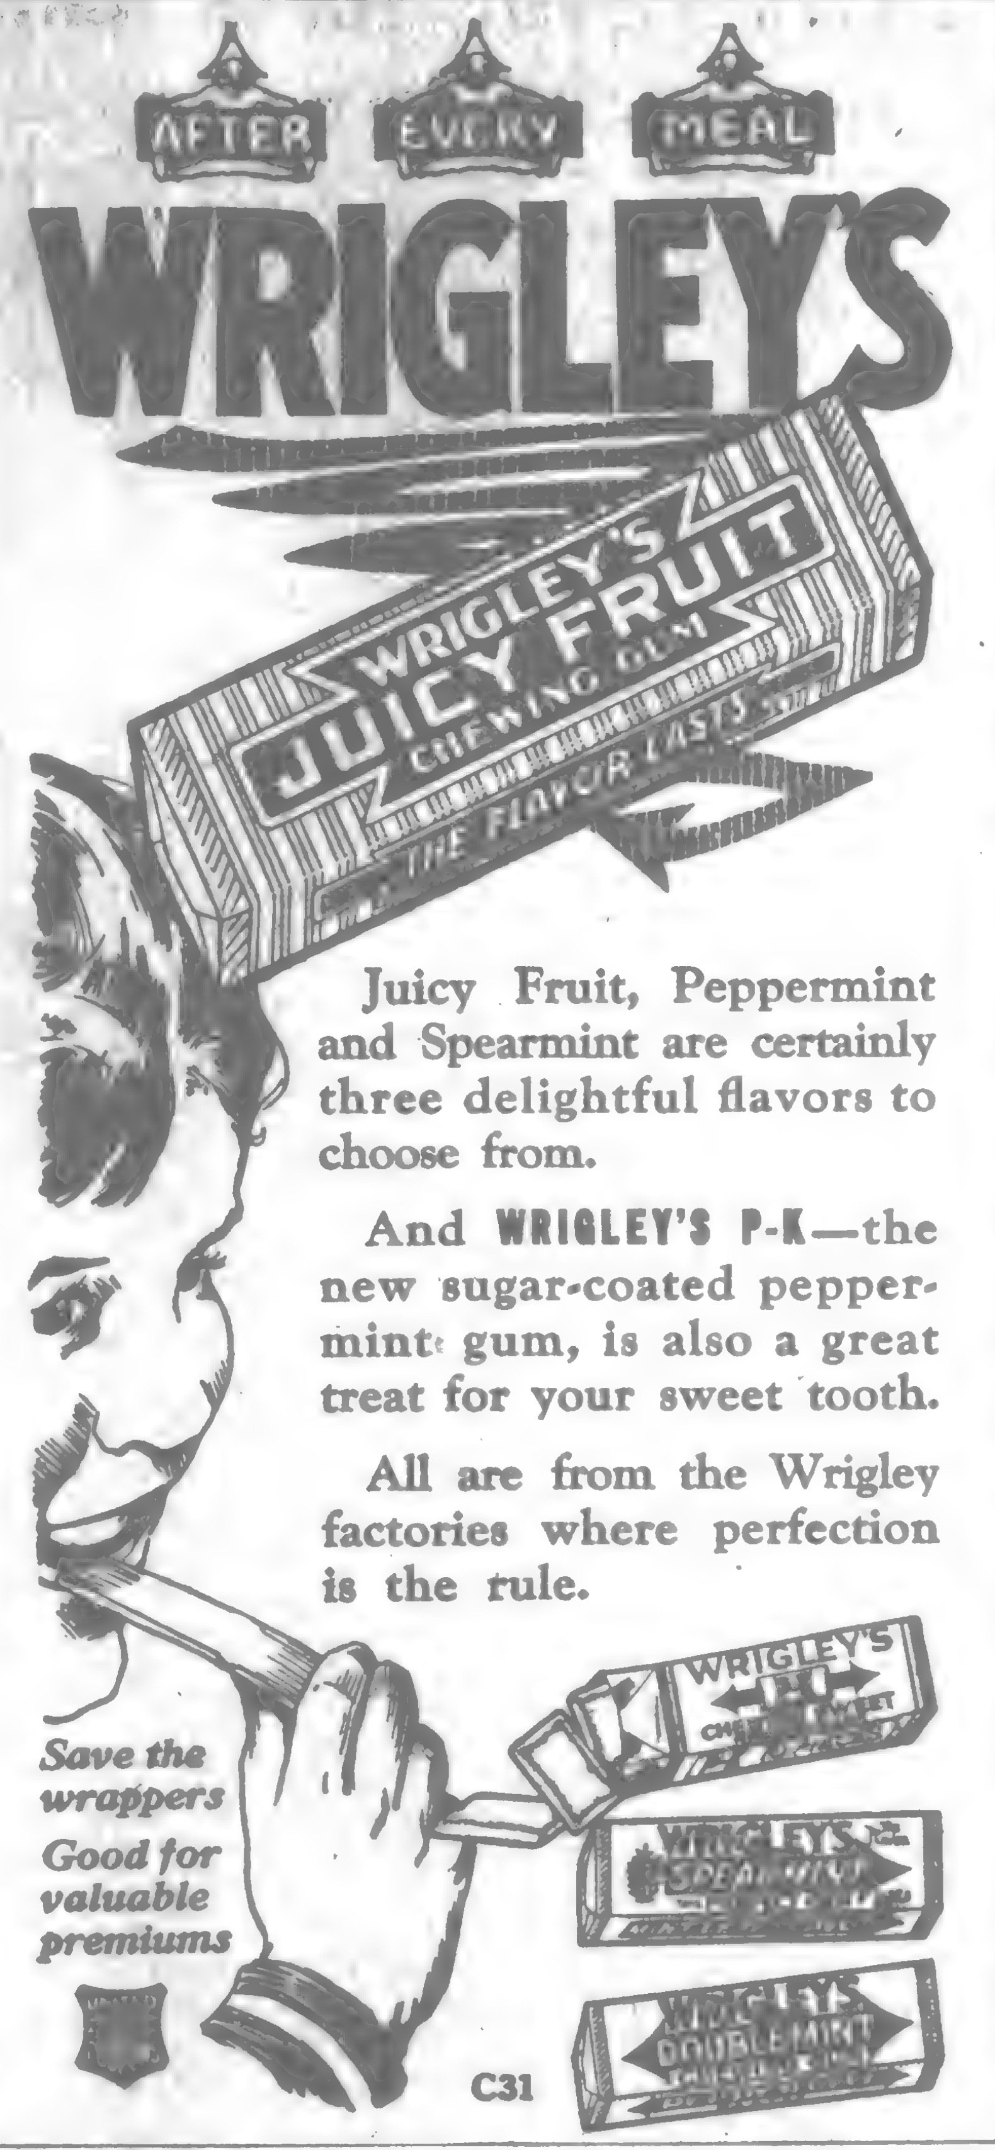
Lafayette.—Definite plans for the annual meeting to be held in Lafayette May 6 of the Central Indiana Track and Oratorical association were made by representatives of the six schools in the body at a recent meeting. The high schools in the association comprise Jefferson, Lebanon, Frankfort, Crawfordsville, Delphi and Noblesville.

Indianapolis.—A handy reference pamphlet, interpreting the primary election and absent voters' laws and containing a "political calendar" for 1922, has been prepared by the state board of election commissioners. About [illegible] copies will be printed for distribution to county clerks and others who have duties in connection with the primary election, which is to be held May 2.

South Bend.—Miss Esther O'Keefe, [illegible] writer of [illegible], has [illegible] her candidacy for the [illegible] nomination in the Thirteenth district. She is the second Indiana woman to enter the congressional contest, the first being Mrs. William Cullop of Vincennes.

Brazil.—A packing company at Brazil [illegible]

[illegible]



Juicy Fruit, Peppermint and Spearmint are certainly three delightful flavors to choose from.

And WRIGLEY'S P-K—the new sugar-coated peppermint gum, is also a great treat for your sweet tooth.

All are from the Wrigley factories where perfection is the rule.

MIGHT SEEM SO TO DADDY

"Full House" Likely to Be the Least That Father of Quintet Would Remark.

A social worker attending the convention in Indianapolis of the Indiana Tuberculosis association told this one:

A Sunday school teacher had been asked by one of her pupils what word was used in referring to two children born at the same time.

"Twins," the teacher answered.

"What is the term used in referring to three babies born at the same time?" was the next inquiry.

"They are triplets," she replied.

"How do you refer to four babies?" another asked.

"Four babies are called quadruplets."

A bright, flaxen-haired youth, probably thinking to catch the teacher, asked the term for five children.

Before the teacher had time to respond, a red-headed little fellow, the Peck's bad boy of the class, answered:

"Gee, that's a full house."—Indianapolis News.

Don't worry about your looks. You will always look good to your friends.

Don't fail to ask for advice if you wish to flatter.

OLD BOAT NOW POWER PLANT

Former Mississippi River Steamer Seems to Have by No Means Outlived Its Usefulness.

One of the survivors of the days made famous by Mark Twain's "Life on the Mississippi," the steamboat Andrew Paddock, is now serving as a power plant at New Orleans. Perched high in the air on stilts, smoke still belches forth in black masses from its tall stacks, but the stern wheel that once churned the murky waters of the river is motionless.

The captain and crew of the "Andy," as it was affectionately termed by the negro roustabouts, were transferred to other boats, and the crew now consists of two firemen, each of whom is addressed joculary as "captain." The numerous passing craft invariably blow their sirens in salute, and old "Andy" always replies vigorously from its position just beyond the water's edge.

The Whirligig of Time.

An old Arkansas man remarked the other day that "Times ain't like they useter be. In the old days the men put powder in their guns and went out to hunt the deer; but nowadays the 'dears' put powder on their faces and go out to hunt the man."—Boston Transcript.

Dyspepsia Soon Disappears When You Take
TANLAC
25,000,000 Bottles Sold

The Best Way to Buy a Farm

Farms in the South as productive as Western farms can be bought at low prices and bring bigger net profits owing to mild climate and good markets. Unusual opportunities for dairy farming. Study these conditions before buying. Good farms can be rented for a year with option to buy at a fixed price. Full information free. Write J. C. WILLIAMS, Manager, Southern Railway Development Service, Washington, D. C.

MEN AND WOMEN
Steady or Part Time

can coin money selling our invention. Drops doughnuts, cookies, fritters, pancakes, etc., without the use of rolling pin, breadboard, cutters, etc. 99% pure aluminum. Large profits. Sells for $1.75. Women can't resist buying. Sample $1.15. Write the Stoddard Mfg. Co., 11607 Detroit Ave., Cleveland, Ohio Twenty Independent Occupations for Women at Home. All the twenty, 50c. Write today for free circular. Smith Service, Gansevoort, N. Y.

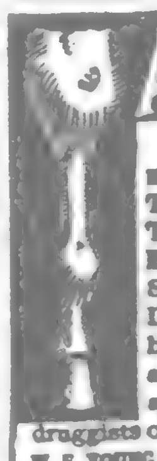
I-GROW
HAIR RESTORER

Guaranteed Cure for Baldness, Falling Hair, Dandruff. Large jar $1. Agents wanted. I-GROW, 96 Sheridan St., Jamaica Plain, Mass.



ABSORBINE

Reduces Bursal Enlargements, Thickened, Swollen Tissues, Curbs, Filled Tendons Soreness from Bruises or Strains; stops Spavin Lameness, allays pain. Does not blister, remove the hair or lay up the horse. Only a few drops required at each application. $2.50 a bottle at druggists or delivered. Book 1 A free.
W. F. YOUNG, Inc., 310 Temple St., Springfield, Mass.

MAKE MONEY If you are well acquainted and want to make some profitable side money in congenial work, write Chas. Murdock, 10th Floor, W. T. Waggoner Bldg., Ft. Worth, Texas.

SIBERIAN WOOL PLANTS, Rare Flowers, $1.00 per dozen. Can use own seed after first year. Retain their color all winter. Order now; plants will be sent you as soon as weather permits planting. A flower your neighbors will envy.
Chas. Mathews & Son, Newportville, Penna.

Men—Sell Silk Knit Ties to acquaintances in spare time. 100% profit. Send no money—just name, address. Pay postman $3.75 for 12 samples. Triangle Co., 703 Broadway, N. Y.

DISTRIBUTORS—COUNTY AND STATE; FORD windshield visor; only practical Ford visor made; no competition; sells on sight at $5; 100% profit. Manufactured by Lamb Brothers & Greene, Nappanee, Ind.

W. N. U., FORT WAYNE, NO. 14-1922.

As a Friend.

"Is Flubdub a free thinker?"

"No, he's married."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Don't Forget Cuticura Talcum

When adding to your toilet requisites. An exquisite face, skin, baby and dusting powder and perfume, rendering other perfumes superfluous. You may rely on it because one of the Cuticura Trio (Soap, Ointment and Talcum). 25c each everywhere.—Advertisement.

Pressure of Necessity.

During my college days I went out one evening with a young man friend and discovered upon my return that I had forgotten my house key. Not liking to arouse the sleeping household we investigated the windows and found one which would open.

I had just climbed inside when I heard a man's voice call out: "Who's that?"

"It's just Lulu," I answered, reassuringly.

"Well, who in thunder's Lulu?"

I had got into the house next door.—Exchange.

Too many people don't want to work with their hands.

A man should know the company he avoids.

A pawned opportunity seldom is redeemed.

William found a pocketbook
But the string jerked it back

It looked like a happy discovery as it lay there on the sidewalk—until the discoverer reached to pick it up. Then the hidden string jerked it away. All William got was disappointment.

That's the way a good many [illegible]

[illegible]

Postum, that wholesome and delightful cereal beverage, is completely satisfying and there's no harmful quality whatever, to jerk away the comfort which you find [illegible]

[illegible]

Postum for Health—"There's a Reason"
[illegible]

APRIL

See The NEW STONEHILL Pattern Hat From Chicago At WARNERS

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE

Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Miss Mabelle Schmalaried spent Saturday in Ft. Wayne.

Wanted—Odd jobs in or about St. Joe. Phone No. 67.

Mrs. Wm. Malone is slowly improving.

For fashions, get a copy of the spring number of McCall's Embroidery Book at the News office.

Miss Stella Hull of Fort Wayne spent over Sunday here with her parents, Al Hull and wife.

Paul Curie and wife and Charles Rice and wife spent Sunday afternoon at Fort Wayne.

Dr. Bonnell M. Sender's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.]

Little Virginia Frye is ill with the grippe.

Miss Lenore Moore was a Fort Wayne visitor Saturday.

See The NEW STONEHILL Pattern Hat From Chicago At Mrs. Warner's.

F. R. Bowman and wife, Mrs. Lena Meek and Wm. Curie were Auburn visitors Monday.

Foster Gee, wife and children were last Sunday dinner guests of Grover Ward and wife.

For Sale—Irish cobbler early potatoes, for seed or to eat. Will L. Hamilton.

C. C. Bassett was a business visitor at both Hicksville and Auburn last Saturday.

Lost:-A gold Sunday School Pin. Finder will please return to Miss Kathering Curie.

Rev. and Mrs. R. B. Daily and daughter Louetta were last Sunday dinner guests of Howard Northrup and wife.

Kwikstick, the sanitary mucilage—no muss, no fuss, no spilling, no brush, no waste—10 cts., at the News Office.

Mrs. Leon Sechler was called to Hicksville on Monday night by the serious illness of her mother, Mrs. Samuel Deardorff, who has pneumonia.

For Sale—Residence property in good repair, at a low price, located on main street; other properties at reasonable prices.
S. S. Widney.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Langley of Chicago came last Friday night, the former for an over Sunday visit, and the latter for an indefinite stay with her mother, Mrs. Alice Warner.

You can't get strong on a weak, flimsy diet. Tone up your stomach. Eat plenty of nourishing food and build up your system. Tanlac does it. B. S. Sheffer.

Patronize the Advertisers.

Mrs. Vina Fish returned home Tuesday after a three weeks' visit with Auburn relatives.

Everybody who tries Tanlac has something good to say about it. At B. S. Sheffer's.

Mrs. Geo. Bleeks remains in the same critical condition with pneumonia.

Mrs. Isaac Meese left Friday for an indefinite visit with her son and family at Davenport, Iowa.

Buy at the Bake Sale at Kinsey's store, Saturday, April 15, of the young peoples class of Concord Sunday School.

A business meeting of the St. Joe High School Alumni Society, was held Tuesday evening at the Frank Scholes home.

Wm. Schmalsried of North Manchester spent from Thursday until Saturday morning a guest in the home of Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Price.

Mrs. Ada Loftus of Pleasant Lake and Mrs. Sadie Reader of Auburn are both here helping in the care of their mother, Mrs. Geo. Bleeks, who is seriously ill with pneumonia.

Glen Freeburn and wife have sold their farm near Spencerville and have moved on to the Henry Krabill farm on the State road, which Mr. Freeburn and his brother Virgil Freebuin have rented.

Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Carrol Wilmot of Fort Wayne, were Sunday guests of Ora Wilmot and wife. Mrs Fay Wilmot also of Ft. Wayne was a guest on Saturday evening.

John Wineland and wife had the following guests throughout the latter part of the week: Simon Bernard of Fort Wayne, Mrs. Elma Brown of Auburn, Glen Freeburn, wife and family, and Glen Wineland of Auburn.

For Sale:-Irish Cobbler early potatoes, for seed or to eat.
Will L. Hamilton.

Mrs J. P. Buckingham, who has been ill for the past week, is slightly improved.

T. A. Northrup and family were Sunday dinner guests of Will Hamilton and wife.

Miss June Ridgway was an all day guest of Miss Marion Miller, Sunday.

William Randall and wife were Auburn and Waterloo visitors last Monday.

A baby daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Carpenter, March 29th.

Mrs. William Malone and Mrs. Willis Baker are both slowly improving.

The year-old baby of Aden Brenenman and wife, which has been quite ill, is improving.

Bake Sale at the Kinsey store Saturday, Arril 15, by the young peoples class of Concord Sunday School.

Mrs. Mark Morr of Elkhart is spending a few days in and about St Joe visiting relatives and friends. She spent the week end at the B. E. Widney home.

On Saturday evening, DeLoy Mills was reminded of his birthday when a number of his young friends came in to spend the evening. Music and games were features after which all enjoyed a fine lunch.

County Agent Repp of Auburn was working in this part of the county the fore part of the week. He remarked to the editor that he helped to treat some of the finest oats he had seen this year out at the H. M. Widney farm. These oats are of the seed Mr. Widney sowed which he brought from New York last spring.

6% MONEY FOR FARMERS!

We have cash available for loans secured by first farm mortgages, which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements at 6%.

Loans for more than 40% and not to exceed 50% of the value of the land and buildings, made at 7%.

☞ Call at our office for information on attractive terms and conditions.

The Straus Brothers Company,
LIGONIER, INDIANA.

Patronize the advertisers.

Funeral services for W. H. Leedy was held at Indianapolis last Saturday afternoon at 2:30. Gen. Harry K. Landis of the I. O. O. F. had ordered as many members of the canton of Indiana to attend if possible the services which were in the charge of the Patriarchs Militant.

Ex-Emperor Karl of Austria died in exile at Funchal, Maderia Islands, last Saturday, April 1. The former Austrian monarch had been ill for over a week with double pneumonia, and physicians gave up hopes of saving his life even several days before death came, although every available aid was administered.

New York newspapers are having considerable to say of Everett Scott, an Auburn young man, who will appear in the line-up of the New York Yankees this year. Scott is now in training with the New York aggregation. He was recently traded to New York by the Boston Red Sox.

Chas. Koch has handled just 40 head of horses during the winter months. He, with the aid of his son, Stanley, of Grabill, have made a business of buying and selling or trading of horses, and have had some mighty nice ones at times. I think Charley would rather have a fine team of steppers than all the automobiles Henry Ford produces in a year. He takes pride in it.

Guard your stomach. It is the foundation of health or disease. The world's most famous stomach medicine is Tanlac. At B. S. Sheffer's.

A powerful third party—purporting to represent 23,000,000 workers and 10,000,000 farmers in the United States—entered the national political arena at Washington, April 1st. The definite decission to form the new party as the great coal strike begins is regarded there as most significant. The 600,000 miners, now quitting work throughout the country, have joined hands with the railroad workers and farmers to form the backbone of the new organisation.

H. O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE — NOTARY PUBLIC

YOUR EASTER SUIT
Is Among the Six Thousand We Show

Our Feature Line for Spring Is

Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits $50

The most wonderful line of suits we have ever shown. Fabrics woven from the very finest of worsted yarns into fine serges, beautiful cassimeres and unfinished worsteds. Models fashioned as only Hart Schaffner & Marx know how, and the best tailoring that can be put into clothes. The most of the suits are silk lined, quarter silk lined and silk trimmed.

Every Good Pattern — All Sizes — All Desirable Models

Other HART SCHAFFNER & MARX SUITS
$30 $35 $40 $45

Copyright 1922 Hart Schaffner & Marx

To the Man Who Wants a Low-Priced Suit
We Want You to Know —that we have a larger assortment of [illegible] than can find in any other store in the state. [illegible]

We Show All Wool Suits with Two Pair of Trousers at $15

[illegible]

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight
SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana
WILL BE AT
Dr. Price's Dentist office, St. JOE
Friday, APRIL 7, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble
GIVE ME A CALL

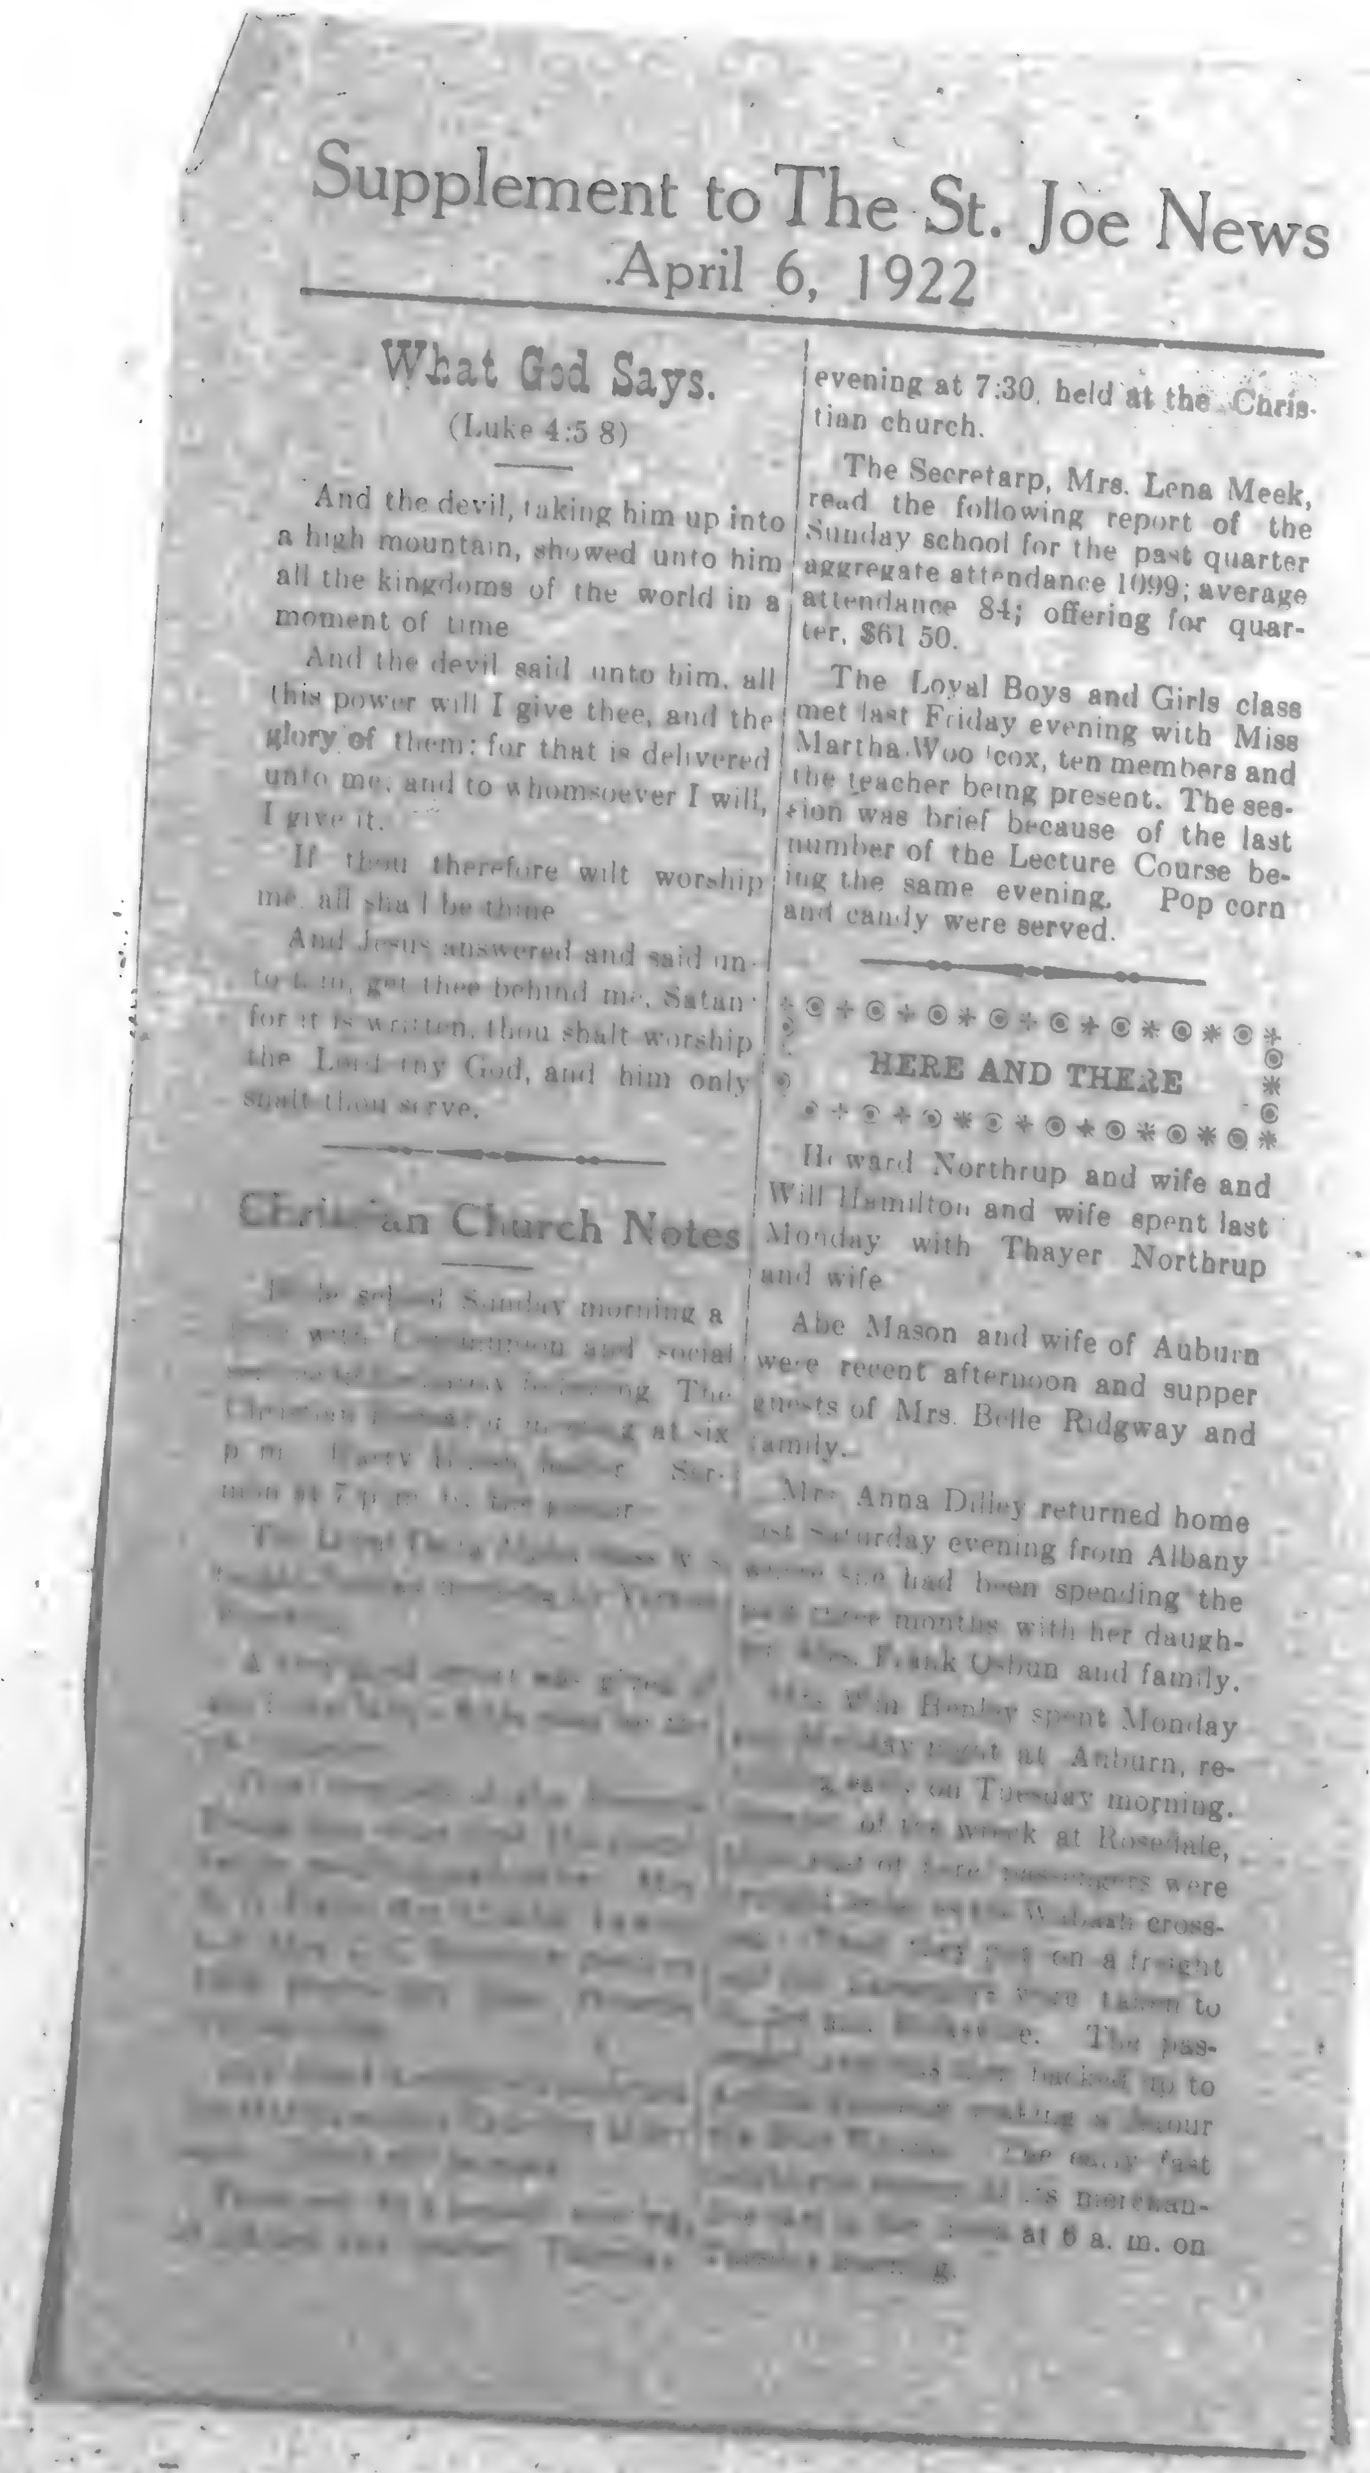
EAGLE "MIKADO" [illegible]

[illegible]

APRIL

L 912

V124



Supplement to The St. Joe News
April 6, 1922

What God Says.
(Luke 4:5 8)

And the devil, taking him up into a high mountain, showed unto him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time

And the devil said unto him, all this power will I give thee, and the glory of them: for that is delivered unto me; and to whomsoever I will, I give it.

If thou therefore wilt worship me, all shall be thine

And Jesus answered and said unto him, get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.

Christian Church Notes

[illegible] school Sunday morning a [illegible] with Communion and social [illegible] The Christian [illegible] at six p m [illegible] Sermon at 7 p m [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] Thursday evening at 7:30, held at the Christian church.

The Secretarp, Mrs. Lena Meek, read the following report of the Sunday school for the past quarter aggregate attendance 1099; average attendance 84; offering for quarter, $61 50.

The Loyal Boys and Girls class met last Friday evening with Miss Martha Woolcox, ten members and the teacher being present. The session was brief because of the last number of the Lecture Course being the same evening. Pop corn and candy were served.

HERE AND THERE

Howard Northrup and wife and Will Hamilton and wife spent last Monday with Thayer Northrup and wife

Abe Mason and wife of Auburn were recent afternoon and supper guests of Mrs. Belle Ridgway and family.

Mrs Anna Dilley returned home last Saturday evening from Albany where she had been spending the past three months with her daughter Mrs. Frank Osban and family.

[illegible] spent Monday and Monday night at Auburn, re[illegible] on Tuesday morning. [illegible] of the week at Rosedale, [illegible] passengers were [illegible] Wabash cross[illegible] on a freight [illegible] taken to [illegible] The passenger [illegible] backed up to [illegible] hour [illegible] The only fast [illegible] merchandise [illegible] at 6 a. m. on [illegible]

APRIL

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, APRIL 13, 1922 No. 15

Easter

Sunday, April 16

Nearly 400 Candidates File

About 400 names have been filed as candidates for county or township offices in the office of the county clerk at Auburn in readiness for the primary May 2nd.

Included in the list are 2 women who are Mrs Carrie Pauline Weaver of Auburn for county treasurer, and Mrs. Mary Miser of Waterloo for county recorder, both on the republican ticket.

New names placed on the roll from Concord, Spencer and Newville townships are:

For Concord township—

Marshall Andress, for township assessor, democratic ticket.

John Wineland, for advisory board in Concord township, democratic ticket.

Milton E. Storer, for committeeman in east precinct Concord township, democratic ticket.

Don Hindman, committeeman in west precinct, Concord township, democratic ticket.

Ray D. Herrick, for trustee, democratic ticket.

Ed Leighty, for county commissioner, southeast district, republican ticket.

For Spencer township—

Fred F. Hart, for county commissioner, southeast district, republican ticket.

Harvey W. Kimes, for county councilman, republican ticket.

Merritt A. Butler, for justice of the peace for township, republican ticket.

William O. Lake, for township trustee, republican ticket.

Vinton L. Miller, for township assessor, republican ticket.

David W. Baughman, for township constable, republican ticket.

Clyde G. Rectenwald, for township committeeman of west precinct, republican ticket.

For Newville Township—

Wallace Abel, for councilman, democratic ticket.

Roy D. Abel, for township justice of the peace, democratic ticket.

Former St. Joe Pastor Dies.

Word has been received by members of the Disciple church of the death of one of its former pastor's, Rev. Charles W. Mahin, which occurred at Greensburg, Kan., lately.

Rev. Mahin will be remembered as the jolly cripple, using a wheel chair to move himself about.

Left for the West.

Mr. and Mrs Philip Smith, who have been [illegible]

[illegible]

Start Work on County Road.

Preparations were begun last Thursday to continue the work of construction of the Auburn–Newville road. Tools were hauled to the road and the contractor expects that work on the drainage will be resumed Monday.

The drainage was practically completed last fall. By the middle of the week, work will be started on the grading and within two weeks gravel will be hauled onto the highway.

The contractor expects to have six gangs of workmen on the road, including 100 or more men with trucks, teams and single-handed. Ten inches of gravel will be placed on the road, with a width of fourteen feet. It is expected that the job will be completed in July.

S. Heininger Writes

Elkhart, Ind., April 1st, 1922.—Mr. D. W. Baker, Concord, Ind. My dear friend:—A friend handed me the St. Joe News of Mar. 30th, in which I see that your dear wife has departed to her long home. Permit me to assure you, and your dear children, my sincere sympathy; may the dear Lord bless, comfort and sustain you. You had a noble Christian wife, and I always was glad to meet her. I hope my dear Mr. Baker you will prepare well to meet her in that better home where sickness and death can never come; God bless you. We are about in usual health; wife is quite lame; suffers much. With best wishes, I am your friend, S. Heininger.

Petitions Granted.

All the petitions at the April term of the Commissioners' Court were granted.

The Concord township petition, bears the description of the road to be made a county highway as follows:—Commencing at the St. Joe–Butler road between sections 14 and 15 at the east corporation line of St. Joe, thence east to the section line of sections 14 and 15, thence north between sections 14 and 15, 10 and 11.

The petition is signed by B. E. Widney, Hugh M. Widney, Mary Bowman, James H. Leighty, Nelson Tustison, S. L. Widney, O. D. [illegible]

Uphoff to go to Arcola.

[illegible]

What God Says.

(Matthew 5:33-37)

Again, ye hath heard that it hath been said by them of old time, Thou shalt not forswear thyself, but shall perform unto the Lord thine oaths.

But I say unto you, Swear not at all; neither by heaven; for it is God's throne.

Nor by the earth; for it is his footstool; neither by Jerusalem; for it is the city of the great King.

Neither shall thy swear by thy head, because thou canst make one hair white or black.

But let thy communication be, Yea, yea; Nay, nay; for whatsoever is more than these comest with evil.

Hicksville Made Proposal.

Hicksville may see the end of their present electrical troubles, for the Northwestern Ohio Light Co. has made a tentative proposal that it install a complete plant in Hicksville capable of carrying the complete load there at all times, should it become necessary. The city council has the proposition under advisement.

This betterment of electrical conditions will probably effect St. Joe as well for we have shared with Hicksville all the light and power troubles that they have had to bean recently. We should be due for better service.

OUR SHOES HAVE SOLID BOTTOMS
AND ARE MADE WELL
THRU AND THRU

THE "Bottoms" of Our Shoes are made of specially "oak-tanned" leathers—the best-wearing kind.

THE "tops" are made of best quality leathers in the latest style.

YOU get the "top" quality in good shoes at the "bottom" prices in our store.

BRING in your two good friends, your feet, and let us shoe them. They'll be glad; so will you.

MAXWELL BROS.
2 BIG STORES
Hicksville Ohio
Sherwood, O.

Buy your CLOVER SEED
Timothy Seed, Alsike and Alfalfa Seed from us. We handle Bran, Middlings, Tankage, Cotton Seed Meal, Oil Meal.

COAL— If you need a ton or two to carry you over buy now; we have it.

BEST VIRGINIA AND HOCKING COAL ONLY.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR
Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.
Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.
Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Robbers!

Robbers do not disturb people who have nothing.

A man with a thousand dollars in the bank and only a check book in his pocket has nothing for robbers to take: yet his check is as good as the money which his neighbor carries in his pocket.

It is not safe to carry money on your person [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

St. Joe Garage-
Boost St. Joe

QUALITY ———— SERVICE

Let us overhaul that motor. You will save gasoline and oil.

Come in and talk over your car troubles with us.

Be ready when the roads are good

Strictly a Service Garage

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.
Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.

Spray Those Fruit Trees

Lime and Sulphur in Liquid
Lime and Sulphur in Dry—
Spray and Fixtures we have them

POCKET KNIVES
Watch our west windows for Special Display and note prices.

Perfection Oil Stoves
Do not be mislead on an Oil Stove
Buy the only one that gives satisfaction, which is the —PERFECTION—
Call and let us demonstrate them to you.
We carry in stock from
2 Burners to the Big 5 Burners.

E. R. KINSEY
St. Joe, Indiana
[illegible]

APRIL

L 917

A PATRON OF THE ARTS

And a Loyal Patron She Was, Only the Art She Supported Was but Deception

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

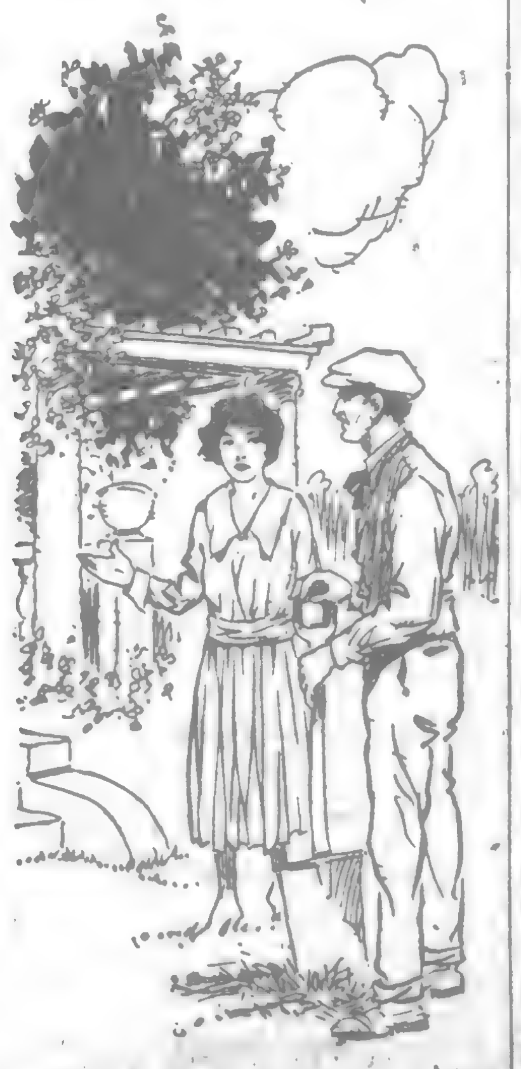
Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

MRS. LIVINGSTONE adored art—Art with a capital A, not the kind whose sign-manual is the milking-stool or a beribboned picture frame. The family had lived for some time in a shabby-genteel house on Beacon Hill, ever since, indeed, Mrs. Livingstone had insisted on her husband's leaving the town of his birth and moving to Boston—the center of Art (according to Mrs. Livingstone).

Here she attended the Symphony concerts (on twenty-five cent tickets), and prattled knowingly of Mozart and Beethoven; and here she listened to Patti or Bernhardt from the third balcony of the Boston theatre.

To be sure, she occasionally read a novel or a book of poems a trifle less ancient in character, but never unless the world had rung with the author's praises for at least a score of years. The stamp of Time's approval was absolutely necessary to the aspirant after Mrs. Livingstone's approbation. Indeed, there was only one of the present-day celebrities who interested the good lady at all, but that one attracted with a power that compensated for any lack in the others.

Of course he was famous—he had been for thirty years. She called him the "Inimitable One," and set him up in her heart and groveled joyfully at his feet. She bought each of his books when published, whether she had shoes to her feet or clothes to her back.



"Isn't This House Owned by a Very Famous Man?"

Mrs. Livingstone's husband was only an ordinary being who knew nothing whatever of Art; and it was a relief to her—and perhaps to him, poor man—when he departed this life, and left her to an artistic widowhood with anything but an artistic income—if size counts in Art. But one must eat, and one must wear clothes (in chilly, civilized Boston, at least), and Mrs. Livingstone suddenly realized that something must be done toward supplying these necessities of life for herself and her young daughter, Mabel.

It was at about this time that there came a sharp ring at the doorbell, and a stout man with small, but very bright black eyes asked to see Mrs. Livingstone.

"I have come, my dear madam, on a matter of business," said he suavely; "and though I am a stranger to you, you certainly are not one to me. I said 'business,' madam, yet I and the one for whom I am speaking are so anxious that you should look favorably upon our proposition that I had almost said that I had come to ask a favor."

Mrs. Livingstone relaxed from the forbidding aspect she had assumed, and looked mildly interested.

"A gentleman wishes to leave his house in your charge, madam. The house is advertised for sale, and from time to time parties may wish to see it. He would like it to be in the care of someone who will understand how to show it in the best [illegible] you see."

[illegible]

was not the first time he had traded on this convenient similarity of names.

"I thought, madam, we had made no mistake. I was sure you would deem it a privilege. And as for us, your keen appreciative sense of the fitness of things will—er—will make it a favor to us if you comply with our request," said he, floundering in helpless confusion for a moment.

But Mrs. Livingstone did not notice. She went through the rest of that interview in a dazed, ecstatic wonder. She only knew at its conclusion that she was to go up to Vermont to care for His house, to live in the rooms that He had lived in, to rest where He had rested, to walk where He had walked, to see what He had seen. And she was to receive pay—money for this blissful privilege. Incredible!

It did not take Mrs. Livingstone long to make all necessary arrangements.

As they stepped from the train to the platform at the little country station, Mrs. Livingstone looked about her with awed interest. He had been here! The jouncing yellow stage coach became a hallowed golden chariot, and the ride to the house a sacred pilgrimage.

"Only think, Mabel, He walked here, and sat here," said the woman adoringly, suiting the action to the word and sinking into a great Morris chair.

Mabel sniffed her disdain.

"I presume so; but I should like to know where he ate—maybe he left something!"

Mrs. Livingstone rose in despairing resignation.

The next few days were a dream of bliss to Mrs. Livingstone. The house was a handsome mansion set well back from the street, and surrounded by beautiful grounds which were kept in order by a man who came two or three times a week to attend to them. Mrs. Livingstone had but herself and Mabel to care for, and she performed the work of the house as a high-priestess might have attended upon the altars of her gods. It was on the fifth day that a growing wonder in the mind of Mrs. Livingstone found voice.

"Mabel, there isn't one of His works in the house—not one. I've been everywhere!" said the woman plaintively.

"Well, mother," laughed the girl saucily, "that's the most sensible thing I ever knew of the man. I don't wonder he didn't want them round—I shouldn't!"

"Mabel!"

"Well, I shouldn't!" And Mabel laughed wickedly while her mother sighed at the outspoken heresy. It was plain that Mabel had no soul.

Mrs. Livingstone was furthermore surprised at her idol's taste in art; some of the pictures on the wall were a distinct shock to her.

The house was to be sold completely furnished, with the exception of the books and pictures. The price was high, and there were but few prospective purchasers. Occasionally people came to see the property; such Mrs. Livingstone conducted about the house with reverent impressiveness.

"It is something to buy a house owned by so famous a man," she insinuated gently one day, after vainly trying to awaken a proper enthusiasm in a prim little woman who was talking of purchasing.

"Indeed!" replied the other, frigidly. "Do you think so? I must confess it is somewhat of a drawback to me." And from that time Mrs. Livingstone wore an injured air—the young mother's baby had been snubbed—grievously snubbed.

Toward the last of the summer a wild plan entered Mrs. Livingstone's brain; and after some days of trembling consideration, she determined to carry it out. The morning mail bore a letter from her to the Inimitable One through his publishers. She had learned that he was to be in Boston, and she had written to beg him to [illegible] hands, she twisted a [illegible] the flap of the envelope and tore out the letter with shaking fingers.

It was from the Inimitable One's private secretary. The Inimitable One did not [illegible]

[illegible]

Sweaters Show Change in Form

There are new developments in sweaters, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune, which have caused these highly useful garments to change their form. Innovations lie in the means of belting the sweater, the combination of strikingly opposing colors in one garment and in the collars.

The Russian blouse effect bids fair to replace the straight sweater for the woman who wears exclusive clothes. This effect is obtained through the girdle—that simple article of dress which has been called upon to do so much toward making new fashions during the past year. The evening gown, the street dress, the house dress, the negligee, all have depended upon it to bring them into the front ranks of fashionable dress, and it has not been found wanting in versatility. Now it must lend its support to the new Russian blouse sweaters.

Sometimes the sweater is bloused at a low waistline by means of an elastic band over which is placed an ornamental girdle, or it may simply blouse over a girdle. Among the late models is noticed an arrangement of shell rings through which a knitted ribbon girdle passed. Every model shows something different in its style of belting from the ordinary straight-cut sweater.

Opposing Colors Combined.

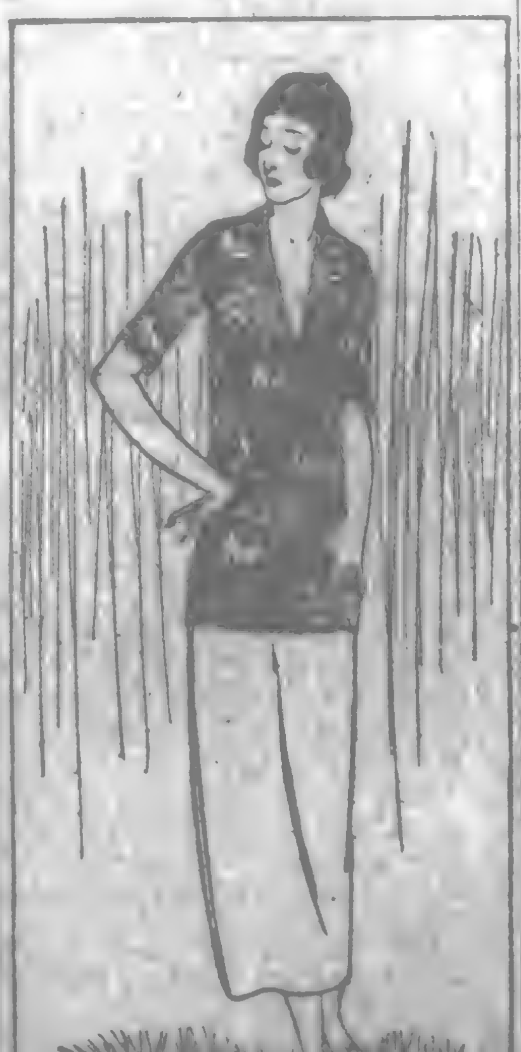
Among the newest sweaters are those knitted of artificial silk with beautiful patterns introduced in opposing colors. For instance, a cerise sweater will have a design in deep purple, a lovely shade of lavender may be relieved by flame yellow and again two shades of mauve may be beautifully blended.

Some new sweaters from Madeleine et Madeleine of Paris represent the newest designs in sweater coats and are typical of the latest developments in garments of this sort.

One is of lavender silk with the pattern in blue. It is belted by a knitted band of the silk. Another shows a very pale lavender silk coat with the pattern knitted in bright yellow. It is bloused by means of an elastic band placed low on the inside of the coat. An interesting model is of bright cerise silk patterned in purple. The purple string belt passes through shell rings and draws in the jacket to form the blouse effect.

Sport Bags Accompany Sweaters.

Odette of Paris is showing some beautiful hand-knit sweaters and sweater blouses. One of her most striking is named Geisha. The original is developed in black wool with a landscape pattern done in yellow, black and white embroidery silk. A [illegible] yellow.



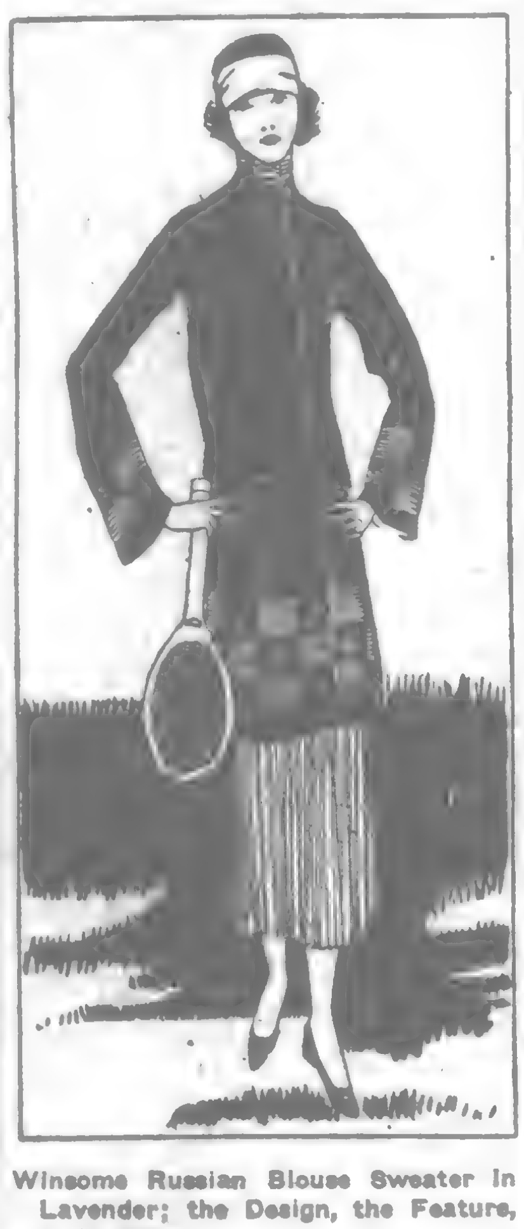
[illegible]

Morat of Paris is making two-piece suits of knitted fabrics. They consist of a skirt and [illegible]

[illegible]

The three-piece idea is carried out in similar costumes, having capes in place of coats. Two colors are likewise introduced into these capes which have either fur collars or throw scarves in a color to match the design in the material. Monkey fur is very popular on capes and cape coats of knitted fabrics.

While there is the greatest diversity in color in the knitted costume, here, as everywhere else, a few colors become the extreme of fashion. In the dress and suit made to take their places with the tailleur of cloth or the simple afternoon dress of silk, brown and gray are favorite colors. Great stress is placed on brown used either alone or in combination with gray or beige.



Winsome Russian Blouse Sweater in Lavender; the Design, the Feature, Is in Blue.

In the purely sport types very unusual shades of the brightest colors are seen, such as the above mentioned cerise and purple. Emphasis is placed on yellow and black used in union.

Black Jackets Plaided in Yellow.

There are smart Russian jackets of black plaided in yellow with long yellow scarves having a pattern faintly outlined in black. Often there is a hat to match the scarf. There are suits consisting of a skirt of black and yellow plaid, a yellow blouse and a black jacket.

These are much too fanciful, the conservative woman will say. No one will wear them. And the question has been raised on all sides, Will women accept these new knitted things? Not only has this question been raised because of their unusual colorings but because the knitted dress never has been popular as anything but a sport costume. But the subject is no longer one for conjecture. The public has accepted them.

A demand for any particular type of dress is a wonderful inspiration to designers and manufacturers and an incentive to do their very best in that particular line.

The one great difficulty about making sport suits look their best is in choosing the right hat. Do you know that very many women do this thing wrong? While one hat may be quite perfect for the country, the same one will not do at all for the city streets. Then when they come to selecting a sport hat for city wear, that is where the whole difficulty arises. They are either too fancy or too plain about it.

And, if you have any delusions about this sort of hat being of the inexpensive variety, why, there is where you are doomed to disappointment. They are among the most expensive of [illegible]. And because of their tailored [illegible] their shapes have to be most [illegible] before they can be [illegible] suitable.

Must Be Suited to Face.

[illegible] turned-back [illegible] the most universally becoming. But even these must be adjusted well and suited to the face. You see, there is the most awful chance with a hat of this character of making the face sink into insignificance, or, on the other hand, of [illegible]

[illegible]

"---and we are a healthy, happy family now"
—Louis Gingras

TINGLING with abundant energy, appetites hearty, nerves strong and steady and their faces radiant with the glow of perfect health, the entire family of Louis Gingras, 9 Harrison Ave., Providence, R. I., are an eloquent tribute to the powers of Tanlac, the greatest family medicine the world has ever known.

"I've put Tanlac to the test four times right in my own family and it hasn't failed me once," declared Mr. Gingras. "My wife, my son and my daughter, as well as myself, have all been built up from a half-sick, run-down, worn-out set of people into a healthy, happy family brimful of new life and energy."

And the experience of this family is only typical of thousands of others whose statements are on file in the Tanlac offices. Hardly a day passes that does not bring scores of such messages of praise from every part of the United States and Canada from families where mother, father, son and daughter have all found health, contentment and the joys of living through simply taking a course of Tanlac.

Take, for instance, the case of John Widner, 1571 Roosevelt Ave., Los Angeles, Calif., who says: "My wife, myself and little boy are now as healthy, happy family as you will ever see—and it's all due to Tanlac."

Or that of Mrs. John Marquis and her family of sixteen living in Manchester, N. H., at 292 Belmont St. She says: "Tanlac has been the only medicine used in our house for two years and it has kept every one of the sixteen here in the best of health."

In Chicago, Frank R. Richards, of 441 South Wood St., writes: "We will never be without Tanlac in our house after the remarkable way it has built up my wife, my son and myself to where we are the very picture of health."

Representative of New York is the case of Chas. E. Van Colt's family, residing at 129 Fourth Ave., Albany. He says: "Every member of our family is enthusiastic over Tanlac. It's certainly a medicine for all the family."

From far-away Canada comes this message: "My little girl, my son and myself are all enjoying splendid health now and Tanlac brought it all about." Mrs. Bert Hewer, 193 East Avenue, Toronto, Ontario.

"We call Tanlac 'The Family Medicine' here in our Virginia home, because it restored my mother and sister to perfect health, just the same as it has done me," is the enthusiastic statement of Mrs. J. F. Robertson, Danville, Va.

And on through the list, men, women and children from every state in the Union and every province of Canada unhesitatingly come forward and tell in words ringing with sincerity of the wonderful benefits of health and happiness that Tanlac has brought into their homes that were formerly darkened by the gloom of sickness, suffering and despair.

And should yours be one of those homes where any member of the family is thin, run down and weakened from loss of appetite, caused by indigestion and stomach troubles, you have at your very door the means that will no doubt bring the sunshine of vigorous health back into their lives and yours, just as it has done in so many thousands of other cases. Do not delay. Get a bottle of Tanlac from your druggist today.

Quick Lunch.

Pig and hen chatting together on the railroad tracks. Toot-toot! Ham and eggs.—American Legion Weekly.

Waiting.

"Do you get your alimony promptly, Winifred?" "No, I don't! Dick pays his wives alphabetically!"—Judge.

Ask Your Dealer

ASK your local dealer to recommend a practical decorator. If you are unable to secure one you can do the work yourself, tinting and stenciling your walls to give beautiful results.

Alabastine

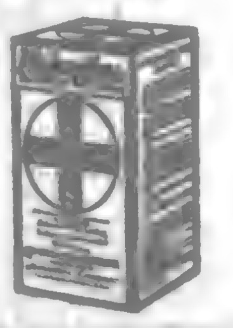
Instead of Kalsomine or Wall Paper

Alabastine is a dry powder; mixes with cold water; directions on each package. Used on plaster, wall board and all wall surfaces. White and artistic, durable tints. Cross and circle printed in red on each package.

SPECIAL STENCIL OFFER

We will supply cut stencils to any user of Alabastine—one stencil for each room requiring not less than two packages, if you will send the large words ALABASTINE cut from the face of the packages over the cross and circle, accompanied by 15c in stamps or silver for each stencil desired, covering postage and packing. Write for free booklet, "Nature's Beautiful Tints."

THE ALABASTINE COMPANY
1648 Grandville Avenue Grand Rapids, Michigan



Sympathy never approaches with the idea that your troubles "should teach you a lesson."

Compliment yourself and few others will.

Pride is said to go before a fall. Anyway, a woman's pride usually gives way before her tears fall.

Agree with people readily and usually the conversation will stop.

Genuine

BAYER

Aspirin

[illegible] when you buy Aspirin.

[illegible]

APRIL

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Copyright by Little, Brown & Co.

THE FIGHT

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Marcus MacKenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude. Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, but practically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin. Polly learns from Evelyn that the sympathetic stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennett, telling him she can give him no more money. She already bitterly regrets her marriage to the ignorant farmer. Polly conveys her message and Oscar makes threats. He insists Evelyn meet him that night. Polly has her father and Larry Bishop, a squatter, take an oath to do MacKenzie no injury. Evelyn unsuccessfully tries to get money from her mother with which to buy off Bennett and induce him to leave the country, giving her her freedom. She and MacKenzie avow their love. At the arranged meeting that night Bennett threatens Evelyn with exposure unless she gives him money. Polly meets Robert Percival, and they are mutually attracted, Polly's feeling being adoration.

CHAPTER VII.

—6—

To describe Oscar Bennett's rage when he left the two girls in Granny Hope's shack would indeed be a task.

Of late Evelyn had ceased to attract him. In the excitement of the courtship he had put his best foot forward, and for a time after the marriage he had found a great satisfaction in the thought that she was his. When the glamor of their secret honeymoon-time had worn off, and the farmer's crude, cruel nature had been disclosed, Evelyn's mad infatuation had disappeared in terror-stricken horror.

As Evelyn was finding in Marcus MacKenzie a mate more to her taste, Bennett's primitive passions had burst into a sudden flame for Polly Hopkins. The squatter girl's scorn of him, her drawling ridicule, only made him desire her the more.

A couple of days after the night scene with the girls, he left his house and took his way to the lake. He crossed his fodder lot and plunged into the MacKenzie forest which lay between the railroad tracks and the water. In his pocket he had a letter for Evelyn. He intended to kill two birds with one stone. If he could find Polly Hopkins alone, he would tell her the decision he had come to and give her the note to deliver.

Oscar did not relish entering the Silent City by the highway. The squatters hated him as much as he did them, more, in all probability; and it was his habit to give the settlement a wide berth. If he discovered any of them on his land, with the exception of Polly Hopkins, he drove them away furiously. Oscar was one of those who would rather have produced rot on his land than give it to the needy.

Before vaulting the MacKenzie fence, the sound of people talking on the other side halted him. Pollyop's voice came distinctly to him, and another voice, a man's, answered her. The deep well-bred tones Bennett was sure did not belong to a squatter. He listened carefully to pick up the import of the conversation. The bass voice mumbled something about a mother. In response, the squatter girl's tones fell upon his ear: "Some day you'll be the biggest an' most beautifulest daddy in the world." Then followed the rush of departing hoofs.

Jealousy tore at the eavesdropper. It did not take him long to get to the top of the fence.

Some sound he made brought the squatter girl's head around sharply from her survey of the picture.

"What do you want?" she asked sullenly, frowning at him.

Oscar jumped to the ground.

"I come down to see you, Pollyop," he rejoined, coming forward. "Who were you talking to?"

The only safe way to get along with the farmer, Polly had concluded, was to have nothing to do with him.

"Leave me be, Oscar Bennett!" she shrilled. "I don't want nothin' to do with you. I'm goin' home."

To cut off her retreat, Oscar needed to take but a couple of strides, and he promptly took them.

"Jiminy crickets!" he expostulated. [illegible]

[illegible]

Had she not found him dying in the water and loved and fed him ever since? She looked first at the man, then down at the lamb.

"He's mine, Oscar," she hesitated. "I've had him two hull days now."

Oscar laughed.

"A likely story!" he jeered. "How long since squatters raised sheep? Where'd you get him?"

"Found him," she answered, putting her hand on the little animal.

"Then he isn't yours," he retorted, "and he can't be anybody's but mine. I thought I was missing some lambs."

Polly's eyes filled with alarm. She was trying to frame an argument in favor of herself and the creature she loved.

"When you find a thing dyin' in a creek, Oscar," she faltered at length, "you can take him home an' love him, now can't you?"

The man's loud guffaw brought a deep flush to the girl's face. She placed herself directly between him and the lamb.

"He's mine," she insisted. "He'd drowned sure if I hadn't jumped into the drink an' pulled him out."

Her words made the farmer certain where the creature came from.

"Dead or alive, he's mine!" he exclaimed.

Besides coveting the lamb, he hated the squatter girl's way of fondling animals. When he got her, he determined, he would take all of that kind of nonsense out of her.

With one sweep of his mighty hand, he thrust her aside, and, whipping out his knife, he cut the rope that held Nanny Hopkins to Polly's arm. Then, in spite of the girl's frantic cries and her desperate fighting against it, Oscar picked up the lamb.

Pollyop screamed frantically, for from the look on his evil face, she saw instantly what he intended to do. He was going to kill Nannyop! Again she flew at him, but he was tall and strong and held the lamb aloft in the air, high out of her reach. With a rough oath he pushed the girl from him so roughly that she fell. When Polly scrambled up, he had the lamb in one hand and a large stone in the other.

"Oscar!" she shrieked.

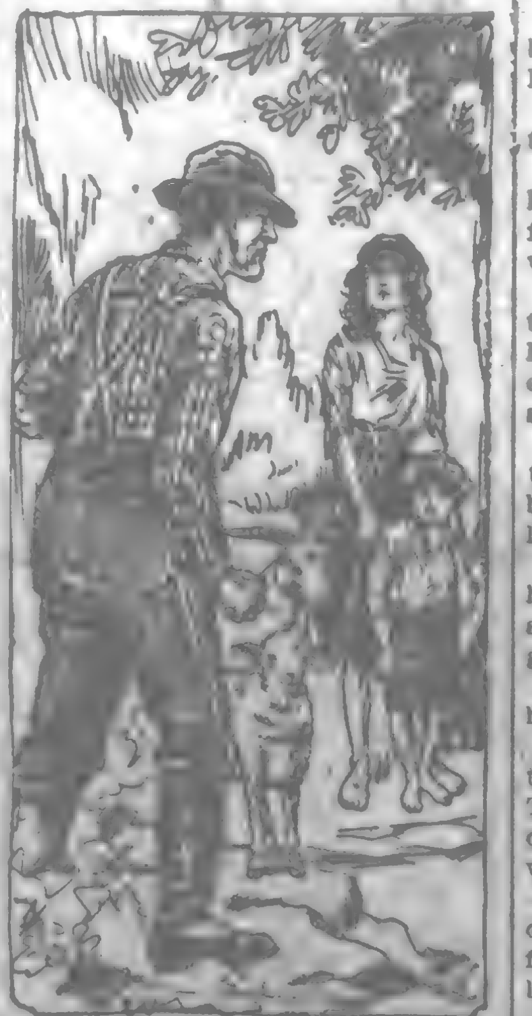
She dropped to her knees, clasped Wee Jerry in her arms, and shrouded his face and her own in her curls. When she dared look up again, Oscar had thrown the dead lamb on the ground.

"There," he gritted, "that's to teach you a lesson, Miss Poll Hopkins. And now I'll open your eyes to something else."

As he crossed to her, she tried to struggle to her feet; but her legs were weak, and she was sick over the quivering body there in the road. In another minute Oscar had snatched her into his arms.

She shrieked again and again; and Jerry's loud cries followed, as she fought desperately with the burly farmer.

Once out of sight of the Red Cross poster and the little group in front of it, Percival checked his horse. Bay



"What Do You Want?" She Asked Sullenly, Frowning at Him.

Dexter shook his head and champed his bit in disapproval. He was accustomed to [illegible] harum-scarum gallops, and he loved them; but this [illegible] pause by the [illegible] he had been compelled to jog along like a worn-out old [illegible].

[illegible]

when he returned, he would do something worth while, something to make the world a little better because he had lived in it.

Now he was home; and almost the first day had come to him this appeal. He smiled ruefully at the recollection of Pollyop's plea. He had promised to help the squatters, and he meant to do it. Suppose it did bring him into conflict with Marcus MacKenzie! He knew how to fight, and a good fight was not bad fun.

Faintly from the direction he had ridden, the sound of cries came to his ears. Idly he wondered what the row was. Some squatter man disciplining his wife, he decided; but he could not stand to have a woman beaten!

He vaulted into the saddle and raced back over the road. It was not long before he located the place where the screams came from. Then Bay Dexter had an opportunity to show all the speed he had.

The sight of Pollyop writhing in the strong arms of a man he did not recognize made Percival see red. He was off his horse with one leap, and two long strides took him to Oscar's side.

One blow from his powerful knuckles in the farmer's face staggered Bennett and freed Polly so quickly that she fell to the ground. Instinctively she crawled out of the way of the battling men. The blow that had released her had done no damage to Bennett except to aggravate his rage. He recovered himself and confronted his assailant, dripping oaths like rain from a cloudburst.

Bennett took the offensive, his fists flying like flails. He wanted to get his arms around the other fellow, to trip him and make the fight a rough and tumble on the ground, but Percival avoided the rush, and struck as Bennett went by. Again and again Bennett tried to come to close quarters. But he could not; neither could he hit his elusive opponent. At length he hesitated, distressed as much by his own efforts as the blows he had received.

Then Percival stepped in, and quickly it was all over. Two well-planted thumps laid Bennett like a log on the ground.

Robert dusted off his hands, picked Wee Jerry up, and handed him to his sister.

"Did he hurt you, Polly?" he queried, and her answer was positively gleeful:

"Nary a bit, sir, an' I reckon the big lummox's got a plenty this time."

Robert brushed off his clothes slowly. The farmer still lay on the ground.

"Get up," ordered Percival scornfully, touching the prostrate man with the toe of his boot. "Get up and make off if you don't want me to lick you again."

Oscar rolled over and crawled slowly to his hands and knees.

"The ground's kinda wabbly, ain't it, Oscar?" Polly gibed.

"Get out," commanded Robert, once more.

Bennett scrambled to his feet, shook his fist at Polly, snatched up the little dead lamb, and in another moment had climbed the fence and was gone.

"What were you fighting about?" began Robert, looking keenly at Pollyop.

Tears hung on the girl's lashes, and the sensitive underlip quivered.

"Oscar said as how Nannyop were his," she murmured. "Weren't it awful for him to swat it with that stone that way?"

"Did you—" He broke off the question abruptly. He was going to ask her if she had stolen the lamb; but an expression in the pleading, misty eyes stopped him.

"I found the little feller drownin' in the creek, sir," she explained with bowed head. "I just took him home to love him, that was all."

The strange, thrilling emotion that had overcome Robert but a short time ago in the presence of this squatter girl attacked him again.

"What can I do to help you, child?" he demanded sharply.

Polly flung out her hand. Help! that was what the squatters wanted. The little lamb was dead. Nothing could ever hurt it any more. But there were her people—

"Just help Daddy Hopkins"—she choked and went on—"an' all the poor folks in the Silent City, an'—all—I'll love you forever and forever!"

* * * * * * * *

After that the "littlest mother" made large strides upward toward the "greatest mother." Every little worried thing in the woods, every heavy heart in the squatter settlement had the [illegible] of Polly Hopkins. She smiled [illegible]

[illegible]

There in his riding clothes, haughty and frowning, stood Marcus MacKenzie.

"Where's Jeremiah Hopkins?" he demanded, eyeing Pollyop sternly.

She fidgeted with the edge of her apron. Had MacKenzie come to harm her best beloved?

"My daddy's gone out," she returned finally, in a low tone.

"Then I'll wait," said Marcus. "I'll sit down and wait.'

Polly set out a chair for him, her legs trembling so she could scarcely stand. Granny Hope grunted out a word of greeting, but the man gave her no answer; and, after blinking at him a few times, the old woman fell asleep.

"This is a rotten hole," spat out MacKenzie presently, looking at the girl.

This scornful comment on the quarters Daddy Hopkins worked so hard to support touched the squatter girl to the quick. She kept the hut as clean as broom and lake water could make it!

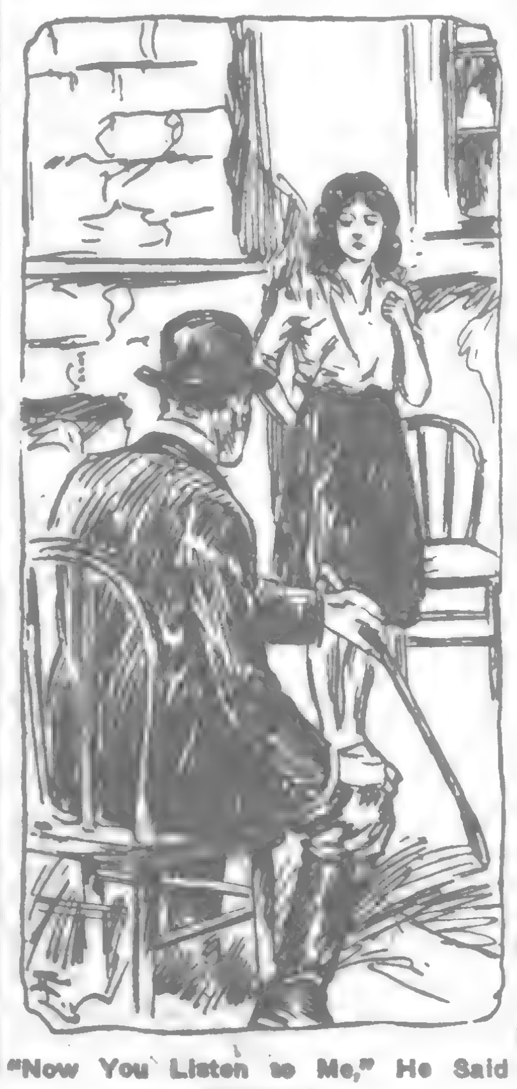
"It's our home, mister; all we got," she replied, and she straightened her shoulders with dignity.

"Rotten, just the same," repeated Marcus. "Say, you! Come and stand here before me."

He touched a spot on the floor with his riding whip; and Polly stepped upon it.

"Now you listen to me," he said sternly. "I've come with a proposition to your father, and if you've any influence with him, you'd better talk him into it."

Polly's face brightened a little. Then it was not real harm coming to Daddy Hopkins today. She wished now that he would come in; and, almost as if in answer to the throbbing of her nerves, Hopkins passed through the doorway with Wee Jerry clinging to his neck.



"Now You Listen to Me," He Said Sternly."

The trembling girl saw his face grow gray at the sight of his powerful enemy.

Jeremiah made an awkward bob of his head to Marcus, slipped Jerry into his arms and without a word sat down. And Pollyop, full of curiosity and anxiety, sat down too, her brilliant eyes steadily leveled upon MacKenzie.

"Hopkins," began Marcus, "I've come with a proposal to you. If you've got any sense, you'll impress its value on the rest of your fellows here, for by hook or by crook, I intend to break up this settlement and burn these shacks."

One long gasp came from Polly. Her father said nothing but looked back at the speaker as if he had not heard.

"Daddy ain't got the hull right to say what's what," she interrupted suddenly. "There's lots of squatters."

"Then call in some of the others," MacKenzie snapped. "And don't be long about it. I want to know what's going to be done before I go."

Polly flashed a glance at her father.

"Go get 'em, brat," he directed. "An' bring Larry."

Out into the settlement she went, and when she came back into the shanty, there followed her an angry set of illy-clothed men; and outside a sullen group of women waited to hear what Old Marc had to offer.

One by one the men silently ranged themselves in a row around the hut wall while Polly stood at her father's shoulder, one hand resting upon it, and the other on Wee Jerry's head.

Marcus MacKenzie knew the group of men he had to deal with. He knew their wicked ways, how they thieved, how they used their nets against the [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR APRIL 16

EASTER LESSON

LESSON TEXT—John 20:19-31.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is risen indeed.—Luke 24:34.

PRIMARY AND JUNIOR TOPIC—The First Easter.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why We Observe Easter Day.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Effect of Belief in the Resurrection.

I. Jesus Manifests Himself to the Disciples, Thomas Being Absent (vv. 19-25).

He appeared to several of His disciples at several different times during that day. This is the first appearance to the disciples as a body. The rumors of His several appearances on that day caused the disciples to assemble to talk over the matter. For fear of the Jews, they met in a private room and barred the door. While they were discussing the strange happenings of the day, the Lord mysteriously appeared before them with the greeting of good cheer, "Peace be unto you." He did not come with censure for their failure and desertion. At His birth the angels announced "Peace." Just before he took His departure, He said: "Peace I leave with you; my peace I give unto you" (John 14:27); "Let not your heart be troubled" (John 14:1); and now the first word after His resurrection is "Peace." Having calmed their fears, He gave them an unmistakable evidence of His resurrection. "And when He had so said, He showed unto them His hands and His side. Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord." Their doubts needed to be scattered, and His peace needed to be upon them. Consider:

1. The disciples' commission (v. 21). "As my Father hath sent Me, even so send I you." This commission was not simply to a class, as the eleven, but is to all Christians. In Luke 24:33 we find that there were others there in that meeting besides the eleven when Jesus showed himself to them and commissioned them, showing that the commission is not confined to a class or order, but is wide as the Christian body itself. All Christians, therefore, are envoys and representatives of Christ. The exercise of this great function is not merely optional with the individual, but is obligatory upon him. The Lord placed it upon a plane with His own commission from the Father—"As my Father hath sent me, so send I you."

2. The disciples' equipment (v. 22). "He breathed on them, and saith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghost." The mission of the disciple is a very great one, but every one who goes forth in its execution He clothes with the power of a new life by the bestowment of His spirit. No one who has this equipment shall ever fail. The Lord's representatives have His life in them. The barrenness of our efforts is due to our failure to take by faith our equipment.

3. The disciples' authority (v. 23). "Whose soever sins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whose soever sins ye retain, they are retained." This authority was not by virtue of office, but by virtue of having the Holy Ghost. This would give the spiritual discernment to know who had or who had not repented, and consequently, to pronounce pardon or not.

II. Jesus Manifests Himself to the Disciples, Thomas Being Present (vv. 26-29).

Thomas was absent at the first appearance of Jesus. His absence deprived him of a vision of the Lord. Absence from the assembly of believers always occasions loss. The other disciples go to Thomas at once with the glad news of the resurrection, but he will not believe. His stubborn disbelief is such that he doggedly declares that unless he sees the prints of the nails, etc., he will not believe. It is right to demand evidence, but to prescribe terms is rank unbelief. Note:

1. The Lord's kindness to those who have difficulties. Thomas deserved rebuke, but the Lord kindly supplied the evidence which he demanded.

2. The revelation of the Lord transforms a doubter into a possessor.

III. The Conclusion of the Gospel (vv. 30-31).

In these verses John's arguments are summarized, and an explanation is given as to why he wrote this Gospel. Many other things could have been written, but these that he wrote he judged adequate to prove his point; To prove that (1) Jesus of Nazareth was the expected Messiah; (2) that He was divine—the very Son of God; (3) that those who believe on Him as God's only Son—the Messiah—would receive eternal life. Eternal life is in [illegible] as life is appropriated by faith can men be saved.

What Christ Saw in World.

Christ saw [illegible] in this world to [illegible] ever; [illegible]

Happiness in Our Heart

[illegible]

[illegible]

Mothers of the World

Mothers!! Write for 32-Page Booklet, "Mothers of the World"

Pat. Process Lloyd Loom Products
Baby Carriages & Furniture

Use This Coupon
The Lloyd Mfg. Company (Heywood-Wakefield Co.) Menominee Mich.
(31)

The Lloyd Mfg. Co. (Heywood-Wakefield Co.) Dept. E Menominee, Mich.
Please send me your booklet, "Mothers of the World."
Name.........................
Street.........................
City.................. State..............

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

FLORIDA—ORANGE GROVE, IMPROVED FARMS—unimproved land—large and small tracts. I have just what you [illegible] me. Jno. W. Pelot, Realtor, Arcadia, Florida.

AGENTS WANTED—BIG MONEY. Quick sales. Steady demand selling guaranteed hosiery direct from mill to wearer. Many making $3,000 yearly. Particulars, [illegible] SILK MILLS, Dean Bldg., South Bend, Ind.

Big Line—Big Profits Easy
Selling toilet preparations. Sample outfit free. Write Emoh Co., Arno Bldg., Cincinnati, O.

SPECIALTY SALESMEN
To sell marvelous new chemical discovery which vitalizes gasolene or kerosene. Guaranteed to increase efficiency of automobile or tractor, and effect a saving of at least 25% fuel cost. Warranted not injurious to metal or lubricant. Fine opportunity for energetic men. Write today for particulars.
THE CLAFIN CHEMICAL CO.
12369 Euclid Ave. - Cleveland, Ohio

BE OUR COUNTY AGENT
Farmer-agents everywhere making big, extra money selling our high grade House, Barn, Silo and Roof Paints to farmers and consumers at factory-direct prices. No experience or capital required. Ask for details.
The FOREST CITY PAINT & VARNISH CO.
In Business Over 50 Years.
CLEVELAND, OHIO

Keep Your Skin-Pores Active and Healthy With Cuticura Soap
Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

One of the Old-Timers.

My brother, who was popular with the fair sex, had quite a collection of photographs.

"Oh," I said to a girl I was showing them to, "you would not be interested in those. They are only some old-timers."

I was speechless when the second one I turned up was her own.—Exchange.

TAKE GUDE'S PEPTO-MANGAN

It Is the Safe and Reliable Tonic Used by Physicians for Thirty Years

There are "new styles" even in medicines. A new "fad" comes, is popular for a while, and then fades out of public view. A remedy that has stood the test for thirty years must have remarkable merit and cannot be called a "fad." Such is Gude's Pepto-Mangan, originated by Dr. A. Gude over a quarter century ago, which has helped many thousands of people back to good health by improving the blood. Pepto-Mangan is an iron tonic. It contains iron in a special form easily absorbed by the system. It puts color into the lips and cheeks and improves the entire body by improving and enriching the blood. It is sold by druggists in both liquid and tablet form. If you want to be well and strong and look fine and healthy, take Gude's Pepto-Mangan.—Advertisement.

Before or After?

The nurses and students at a certain London hospital were rehearsing a Greek play—in English. They were to perform it at a concert in aid of their exchequer.

There was an elderly woman at the rehearsal. She seemed a little mystified.

Eventually she turned to the girl beside her and said in a puzzled voice: "Let me see, dear—Euripides—was he before Venizelos?"

Every department of housekeeping needs Red Cross Ball Blue. Equally good for kitchen towels, table linen, sheets and pillowcases, etc.—Advertisement.

So He Was Fired.

"What happened to your new clerk?"

"Too business-like. He wrote an important letter the other day that spoiled a big order for me."

"How was that?"

"He closed the letter by saying: 'Hoping for your immediate execution, we remain.'"—American Legion Weekly.

When the ghost walks the actor rides.

Men who [illegible] find it easy.

[illegible]

APRIL

L 912

128

The St. Joe News

William S. Quance,
Editor and Publisher.

One Year,	$1.50
Six Months,	.75
Three Months,	.40
One Month,	.15
Single Copy,	.05

(Advertising Rates on Application)

Entered at the postoffice at St. Joe, Indiana, as second class matter.

Foreign Advertising Representative
THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

Change of Address.

To receive your copy without interruption, please observe the following:

1. Notify us at least two weeks in advance.
2. Give both old and new address.
3. Write clearly.

Auburn—In line with the many improvments contemplated by public spirited citizens of Auburn for the benefit and pleasure of the public, is a public swimming pool at Robbins park. Engineers were taking measurments recently as a preliminary step.

Butler—It seems practically assured that Butler is to have a new school building. Plans are being gradually adopted for the various places of the improvement, and it is hoped the whole project will go through satisfactorily. The ordinance passed the council on the second reading.

Hicksville—On Saturday evening, April 1st, the Eureka flour mills were almost totally destroyed by fire which started about 6:30 o'clock. The four brick walls stand intact, but the interior was burned. Over one hundred barrels of flour was in the mill but the supply of wheat was low. The loss, no doubt, will amount to $20,000, while the insurance will cover about $11,000. This is the fourth flour mill to be destroyed by fire in the history of the town.

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	90	$4.48
M. P.	90	11.39
Lutheran	97	6.33
M. E. Spencer	79	5.01
Lutheran	93	5.41
Coburntown	81	3.14
Newville U. B.	75	3.62
Christian	78	2.17
Concord	44
Rehoboth	72	5.42

New $2500 Policy: Mutual Life Insurance Co.

Special Features-

If killed by Accident, $5000 (double the regular insurance) will be paid in a lump sum, or else $2500 will be paid in a lump sum and an additional $3000 in installments running 20 years, payments as follows: $25.00 a month for five years, $12.50 a month for five years, $6.25 a month for ten years,

If Permanently and Totaly Disabled by Accident or Disease before reaching the age of 60, Premiums on this policy will cease and the Company will pay you $25 a month as long as you live, and at you death the full $2500 will be paid to your beneficiary.

Full particulars of this Perfect Policy given upon request by

J. C. HULL, St. Joe, Ind.

Senior Play a Success.

The play, "A Rhodes Scholar", given by the Senior class of the local high school at the Opera House, last Saturday night, met with much favor. A record crowd was in attendance; every seat being occupied, and all the standing room was filled to its capacity The total receipts, reported by the class, were $88 30. Many tickets had been sold prior to the date but the largest part of the amount was taken at the door.

The type of play given was appropriate for a class play in every way. It portrayed the several types of characters that are represented at a college and some of the life that is lived there.

Truly it is evident that the cast had been carefully selected and all parts trained to almost perfection.

The baccalaureate services will be held Sunday evening at the Christian Church. The Choral Society will furnish the music.

The Commencement exercises will be held at the Opera House on Thursday evening, April 20.

Co. Agent Notes.

During the week May 8 to 13th, Miss Annan, extension worker in Massachusetts will conduct three two day schools in DeKalb County. Representative of the several township Home Economic clubs will send delegates to this school.

Jackson Twp. will be one of the leaders in club work this summer. They are planning on a Sewing Club, a Baking Club and a Canning Club.

Spencer Township is also planning on some Girls' Club work.

Next Tuesday, Miss Grace King, of the State Club Leaders office will be at Auburn to meet with the local club leaders of the several townships.

Size of Flock of Hens Next Winter

"How many hens do I want for next winter laying?" Let's do a little figuring. First, my flock should consist of from 50 to 60% pullets next winter. If I want 100 hens for next winter laying, I must then have from 50 to 60 pullets in my flock next winter. We must set 5 eggs for each pullet wanted.

It figures out this way. From 100 eggs set, about 60 will hatch on the average; 15 will die when young, leaving 45. Half of these will be roosters leaving 22 or 23 Then 2 or 3 will be culled out in the fall because of undersize or other reasons. This leaves 20 pullets left from the original number of eggs set.

If we want 60 pullets then we must set about 300 eggs. If we expect to do our own hatching we should get these chicks hatched in April. If we expect to buy chicks we will want to buy April hatched chicks. We will need about 180 chicks, for we must count on 45 dying, 67 or 68 being roosters, and 7 or 8 being culled out in the fall, leaving 60 pullets, as we planned on having.

You perhaps can do better than this, but this is taking average results.

St. Joe Locals

Wilson Beaber and Ray Inlow spent Tuesday at Ft. Wayne.

Several people started to make garden, Monday morning. It's sure they did not spend the latter part of the day in the garden, though.

Congressman Fairfield will be opposed for the republican nomination for a candidate for congress from the twelfth district in the May primary by Chas. R. Lane of Ft. Wayne, who has filed his name with the secretary of state, and also with the clerks of various counties in the district.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E Randall and son Harry Junior, of Lima, Ohio, were over Sunday guests of his parents, Wm. Randall and wife. While John Beard, wife and daughter Muriel, of Waterloo, were Sunday guests and Fred Randall, of Harlan, stayed over Sunday night with them.

Last week some of the county papers ran an item that an announcement had been received of the marriage of Fred A. Thomas, a former Newville pastor, to Hattie B. Davis, at Colville, Washington; but Mrs. Geo. Strong of northeast of town, a daughter of Mr. Thomas, while at the News office, Saturday, stated that there has been a confusion of names to make such an item. Her father is not married, according to Mrs. Strong's statements.

MICKIE SAYS

THAT OLE LINE O' GUFF ABOUT "HELPING OUT TH' PAPER" AIN'T BEIN' PULLED MUCH ANY MORE! FOLKS TAKE THIS PAPER BECUZ THEY LIKE IT 'N BIZNESS MEN ADVERTISE IN IT BECUZ IT PAHS THEM, NOT JEST TO BE GOOD FELLERS!
This is the Place Where Harold Speed and Geo W Claus turn out Job Work that makes a hit with John D Public
CHARLES SUGHROE

Get your McCall's or Popular Science magagine. May now at the News office.

IMPORTANT

Elsewhere in this paper you will find Patterson-Fletcher Company's advertisement. This store never loses an opportunity to pass on to their customer the news of any merchandising event.

Last week Mr. Fletcher was in Rochester, N. Y., and bought six hundred Michaels-Stern & Company's men's and young men's suits. They are now on sale at $18 and $25. The previous week the store purchased several hundred pair of the famous Kalamazoo trousers. These are selling at $3.50 to $6.50 or $1.50 to $3.50 under the regular price. In the Fort Wayne Sunday papers, they state that more than $150,000.00 stock of new spring merchandise has been added during the past thirty days. This no doubt gives them the largest stock for men, young men and boys of any store in the state.

* * *

Political Announcements

* * *

For Recorder

I am a candidate for the republican nomination for county recorder, from Grant township. Your support will be appreciated.

Mrs. Mary Miser.

MONTE L. GREEN

President Garrett Savings, [illegible] Trust Co. Garrett, Indiana, with 3[illegible] years [illegible] as accountant, executive and [illegible] the nomination [illegible] democratic [illegible] at the primary May 2, 1922, [illegible]

COUNTY TREASURER

FOR PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

H. C. SPRINGER

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for PROSECUTING ATTORNEY, 35th Judicial District, DeKalb and Steuben counties.

Born at Huntington, Ind., 1894

Received law education at the University of Indiana.

Served with U. S. troops on the Mexican border in 1916.

Enlisted as a private in World's War, and served overseas and discharged as a captain of infantry.

Has practiced law at Garrett for the past three years.

Your support will be appreciated

For Prosecuting Attorney

CHARLES S. SMITH

Candidate for the Republican nomination for Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit, DeKalb and Steuben counties, subject to primaries May 2nd.

Graduate of Indiana Law School.

Admitted to bar in 1900; also a member of bar of Supreme Court of Indiana, and Federal Court and the United States Circuit Court.

Has been in the active practice of law in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, for over twenty years, and served as Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit of Indiana for four years.

Received education in the common schools of Indiana and the Indiana State Normal and taught eight years in the public schools of Indiana.

For Recorder

Please announce my candidacy for the democratic nomination for county recorder, subject to the primary, May 2nd.

Byron Platt,
Franklin Township.

For Sheriff

I desire to announce through the News that I am a candidate for nomination for county sheriff on the democratic ticket, subject to the will of the voters at the primaries on May 2.

I acted as deputy sheriff under Frank Baltz for 4 years to the satisfaction and good of the county.

My home prior to my appointment to public life was in Jackson township. Your hearty support will be greatly appreciated.

Charles Davis, Auburn.

For Recorder

Marion S. DeLong of Fairfield township announces his name for the republican nomination for recorder of DeKalb county at the primaries, May 2nd.

FOR COMMISSIONER

Southeast District

I announce my name for the nomination for county commissioner from the southeast district [illegible]

[illegible]

Constipation

THERE IS NOTHING equal to Chamberlain's Tablets for constipation. When the proper dose is taken their action is so agreeable and so natural that you do not realize that it is the effect of a medicine. These tablets possess tonic properties that aid in establishing a natural and regular action of the bowels. Chamberlain's Tablets have cured many cases of chronic constipation.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Wm. P. Endicott,

For Judge 35th Judicial District,

DeKalb and Steuben Counties, Republican Ticket. Subject to Primaries, May 2nd.

Born in Cass county, Indiana, 41 years ago.

Raised on a farm

Taught ten years in Indiana public schools.

Received law education at Indiana University, paying his own way.

Has actively practiced law in DeKalb and Steuben counties for 12 years, a longer period than many judges have practiced before occupying such positions.

Makes no claim and no boast of greatness, but refers you to those who know him as to his integrity and ability.

Your support will be appreciated.

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor, subject to your will at the May primaries. L. W. Yeiser.

For Auditor.

I wish to announce that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for auditor of DeKalb county at the Primary May 2nd. Your support will be appreciated.

W. G. Erick.

For Sheriff

I desire to inform the public that I am a candidate on the democratic ticket subject to their nomination for sheriff of DeKalb county in the May Primary. Your support will be appreciated.

Grover C. Sapp.

For Recorder.

George J Kayser of Auburn announces his name for the democratic nomination for Recorder of DeKalb county at the primaries, May 2, 1922.

For Sheriff

I will be a candidate for sheriff of DeKalb county, subject to the wishes of the voters of the democratic ticket at the primary, May 2.

Dallas Trevey, Auburn, Ind.

For Assessor

My name has been solicited for assessor of Spencer township on the democratic ticket, subject to the primary May 2d, 1922. Your support will be appreciated.

McClellan Hart.

For County Commissicner

Through the earnest solicitation of my friends I have decided to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for a member of county commissioners from the southeast district If the voters consider me competent and worthy their support will be greatly appreciated. Primary May 2, 1922.

Ed Leighty.

For Assessor
Spencer Township

I am a candidate for assessor of Spencer township, subject to the decission of the democrats at the primary, May 2d, 1922. I will appreciate your support.

D. E. McKinley.

For Sheriff.

I wish to announce to the readers of the News in DeKalb county that I am a candidate for sherifi subject to the wishes of the democratic voters at the primary, Tuesday, May 2nd.

William G. Morr.

For Recorder

Please announce that I am a candidate for the democratic nomination for county recorder, subject to the wishes of the voters at the primary, May 2.

A. V. Smith.

For Trustee Concord Twp.

I wish to announce to all the men and women voters of Concord Township that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for trustee, subject to your decission in the primary, May 2nd.

Ray D. Herrick.

For Assessor

I wish to announce my name as a candidate for the democratic nomination of county assessor at the primaries on May 2nd.

Francis M. Wiltrout.

To Republican men and women of the twelfth district:

C. R. Lane

of Ft. Wayne is a candidate for the republican nomination for Congressman from the 12th district.

He was nominated as your candidate in 1912 when defeat was certain, and lost, without a whimper; he was again nominated when nobody else would accept in 1914, and through the party split lost, but blamed nobody; he wanted the nomination in 1916, but so did other good men, and Fairfield of Steuben won. Lane came "smilin' through" and has helped Fairfield win three times. Victory this year depends on Allen county where the fight will be waged. It will help Harding and the nominee for senator, and the nominee for congress, and all the county tickets to give Allen the nomination. Capt. White elected in 1886 was the only Allen county republican ever elected to congress in the history of the district as now constituted. It is not unfair to ask you to vote for Lane on May 2nd.

Mr. and Mrs. Taxpayer:

In announcing my name for representative for the people's consideration, I claim it is a duty every man owes to himself and to the people to declare the stand he takes on the questions that confront the people and how to remedy them.

First. We find in the past six years the present state administration has taken over our local self-government and divided it up between Indianapolis and Purdue; that must be brought back home and put into the people's hands, the rightful owners.

Second. The next great evil: there has been a perfect mania for creating new offices, new boards, new commissions, new bureaus, new extension departments, field men galore, agents, specials, inspectors, nurses and busy-bodies, till the people don't know what to do, or where the tax money is coming from.

Third. The automobile license should stay in the county and big trucks should be taxed for damage they do the roads. Then the commissioners wouldn't have to levy a county road tax on the people.

Fourth. If the commissioners had a legal right to raise everyone's salary, it also should be their moral duty to reduce them, and if they don't reduce them and help to start the taxes down the people should consider it a crime.

These are my views as a farmer for your consideration the 2nd of May. If nominated I will back this. If elected I will fight for it.

F. B. SMITH.
Garrett, Ind., Route 1, Box 36.

APRIL

In the First Place Save

Then you have the right to Spend

Get the habit of saving something Each Week

Saving with an object in view is a splendid duty.

We will aid you to realize your ambition by starting now with us
A Saving Account
you will be proud of.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT
NOW

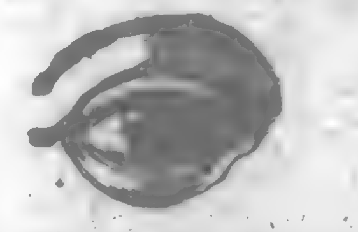
Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank
Capital Stock, - $25,000
Spencerville, Ind.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians
OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE. - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Chiropractor Optician



Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.
EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

The MAULE SEED BOOK FREE
This wonderful 176-page book gives you the benefit of our 6 years experience as seedsmen, gardeners and farmers. Send a postal for it today.
WM. HENRY MAULE, Inc. 2131 Arch St. Phila., Pa.

SPENCERVILLE

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Mrs. Herbie Webb and Mrs. Nancy Rummell are confined to their home by sickness.

Frank Silberg has sold out of the first three car loads of Fordson [illegible]

[illegible]

Miss Mildred Pierman of Wesley chaple spent the week-end with Miss Thelma McNabb.

Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Silberg and daughter, Orpha, were Ft. Wayne visitors recently.

Mrs. S. E. Koontz is visiting her son, John Koontz and family at Ft. Wayne.

Joseph Goldsmith and wife of Grabill were Sunday guests at the J. S. Hollabaugh home.

Rev. Steffy of Lutheran church will hold services this week at St. Joe, and will hold communion services on next Sunday morning.

Miss Leone Widdifield of Fort Wayne spent the week-end with her parents, Mordie Widdifield and family.

C. E. Chapman, wife, and children were Sunday afternoon and evening guests of D. D. Webb and wife.

Mrs. Lillie Boger returned to her home at Ft. Wayne last Sunday after spending a week visiting with her mother, Mrs. Hattie Barr, and family.

Miss Lois Coolidge was a Sunday guest at the home of Miss Marjie Spitler and Mr. Lipe, wife and son, Vernon, were last Sunday afternoon guests of the same home.

Mrs. W. F. Rhoades and daughter, Doris, spent Saturday and Sunday the guests of the former's sister and husband, John Sturgis, wife and family of Butler.

The Eastern Star and the Alumni committee met in the Masonic hall Friday evening for the purpose of planning the menu for the Alumni banquet, which will be held Friday night, April 21st.

ONION SEED
[illegible] Yellow Globe
—Also—
Field and Garden SEEDS
[illegible]

The Spencerville K. of P., Lodge sent fifteen candidates to Garrett, last Thursday night, to take their first degree work.

R. U. Bowser of this place has purchased a new truck fully equipped with cattle rack to assist him in his business of handling cattle.

Many people of this place attended the Senior high school play given Saturday night by the Senior class of St. Joe.

Mr. Baltzli and wife, John Zimmerman and wife, and Miss Lucy Zimmerman, were Sunday guests at the John Bachman home.

Invitations have been received to the Senior-Junior Banquet given Wednesday evening, April 19th, at the Lutheran church.

The Woman's Home Missionary society will be entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Marella Thorne, near the depot. Miss Ethel Palmer will act as the leader.

Mrs. Mary Grogg of the county line acted as hostess on Wednesday afternoon of this week to the Home Economics class. A Health program was observed, lead by Julia Groscup, Public health nurse.

Mrs. Herman Reasoner very pleasantly entertained the following guests on Sunday at dinner in honor of Mr. Reasoner's birthday anniversary: Ray Reason, wife and son, Floyd, John Reason and wife, of St. Joe, and Gust Hafner and wife, and Miss Irene Webb.

Next Saturday the eighth grade examination will be held in the High school building. Those of the eighth grade who will take it are: Kenneth Vallieu, Lois Coolidge, Dora Hahn, Lillian Steffy, Clarence Bice, Geo. Wilmot, Chas. Timmerman, Clarence Going.

A musical treat was given the people of Spencerville and vicinity on Thursday night, when the Wolf & Dresseur orchestra gave a program at this place. The meeting was held for a better community, and county agent Showalter of Allen county gave a short talk on community clubs.

Coburn's Corners

Mrs. J. E. Ulm called on Mrs. T. H. Shull, Tuesday.

Harold and Olen Waltz are the possessors of a new car.

O. L. Dermott and family were Ft. Wayne shoppers, Saturday.

An Easter program will be rendered at the church next Sunday morning.

Merwin Place and wife, of Newville, visited with the latters parents, Thursday.

The Ladies' Aid enjoyed a pleasant social afternoon at the home of Mrs. W. P. Coburn, last Thursday. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake and strawberries were served.

Mrs. Guy Platter, of Newville, who is at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cadmus Shull, is recovering from a recent attack of Sciatica.

Wanted—The umbrella I left in the Coburn Corners church the day of the church anniversary. Please call the News office if you know anything about same.

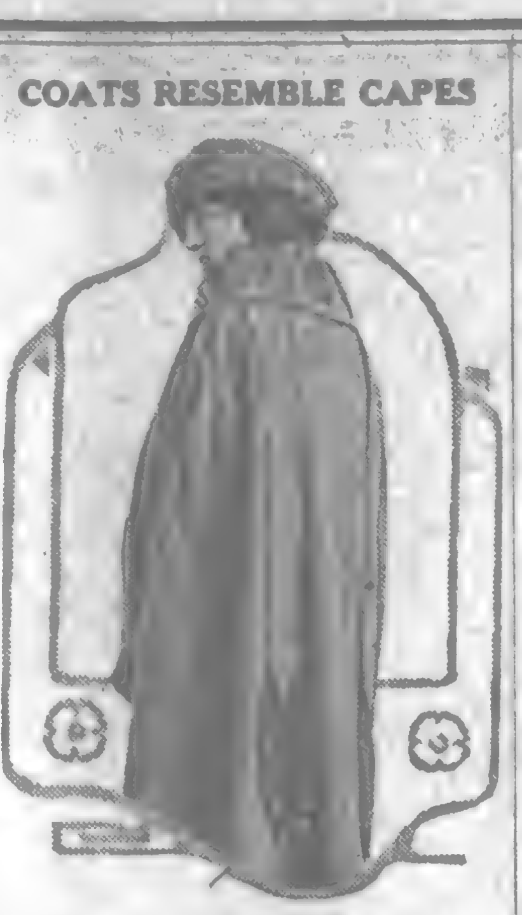
William S. Quance.

Much enthusiam and interest was shown in steps begun recently, for the organization of a S. S. orchestra. Plans will be urgently resumed after the completion of the Easter [illegible]

Floyd Coburn and the Misses Minnie Waas and [illegible]

[illegible]

COATS RESEMBLE CAPES



One must look twice at many a spring wrap to determine whether it is a cape, pure and simple, or a more complex wrap. The more like a cape it looks the better its chances of winning approval from the fashionables. The cape has always stood women in good stead, nevertheless it will not hold her allegiance season after season without modifications, and we have them in the cape-wrap.

For general wear the spring offers, among others, the graceful wrap shown here. It is made of tricotine and has a large collar trimmed with applied loops of silk braid. At the back, loose, pendant panels of the cloth are finished with silk cords ending in slender tassels. Something between a sleeve and a slit at each side of the front allows freedom for the hands and arms. Altogether this is a smart and practical wrap for general wear and is developed in several coatings and colors.

NEWVILLE

Mrs. Alvin Keesler is seriously ill at this writing.

Wm. Miller had a new galvanised roof put on his house last week.

Guy Smith of Ft. Wayne spent Saturday and Sunday at Newville.

Mrs. Minnie Tarney and baby were Newville visitors Sunday.

Easter services will be held in both churches, Sunday, April 16th.

A. I. Richmond and wife spent last Saturday night and Sunday at Newville.

Mrs. Ruth Bilbert and little son of Hicksville were Newville visitors recently.

Carl Clark and wife and Vertie McDaniels were Auburn visitors the other day.

Chub Richmond has been in a serious condition for a few days past with erysipelas of the face.

Miss Prudence Blood has sufficiently recovered to be up and about the house, she having partly lost the sight of one eye.

Mrs. Hattie Ditmar of Milwaukee, Wis., is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Lillian Benninghoff, who recently returned from the hospital at Ft. Wayne.

Burl Ensor, wife and mother, and Leroy Kinney, and Mrs. Vera Miller, attended the Stafford township Sunday school convention at Big Run, Sunday afternoon.

Joe Rhodes and wife celebrated their 50th (Golden) wedding anniversary Friday, their children all being with them to spend the day. Mrs. Ethel McCulloch of Mount Pleasant; Mrs. Imo Miller, Mrs. Bethel Shaffer of Newville; a son, Arthur Rhoads, and family, and a daughter, Mrs. Fails, of Peoria, Ill., were present. Mr. and Mrs. Rhodes [illegible]

Ford Size BATTERIES

It is always advisable to keep your BATTERIES in the best of repair.

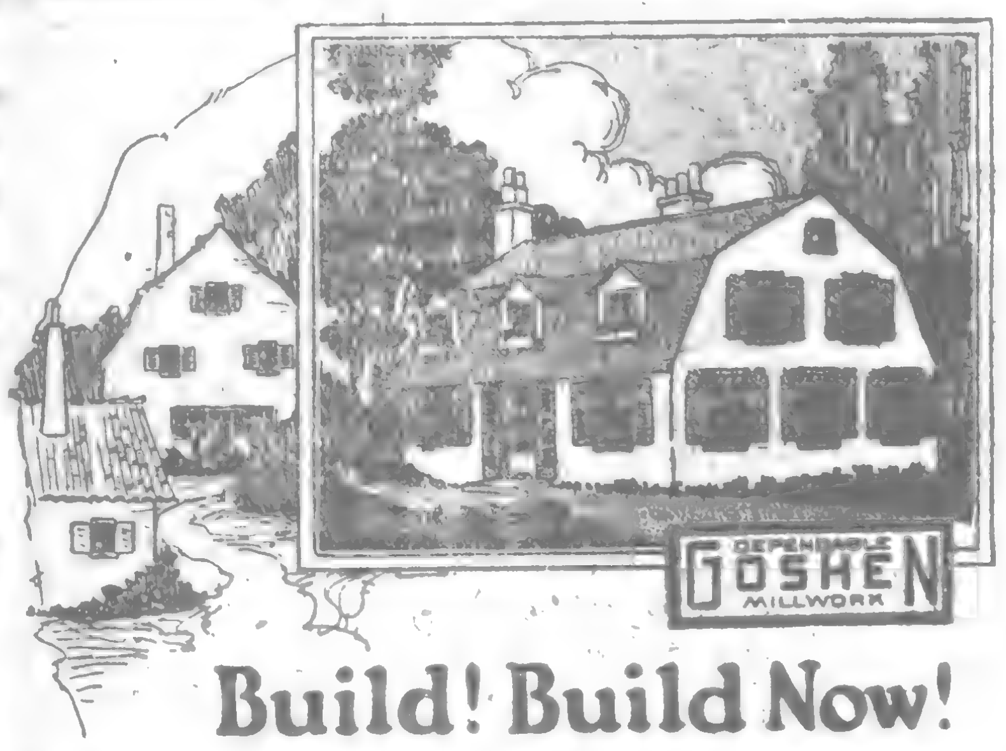
Exchange your old one for a new one. We give you a new wood case set for your old one and $16.00

An all Rubber case set for your old one and $20.00.

These Batteries are guaranteed.

Are you thinking of a new car this year?
Buy a Ford car at the new reduced prices. See ours.

F. W. SILBERG,
Spencerville, - Indiana



Build! Build Now!

YOU can build today wisely and economically. What you save by owning your own home will in after years mean much to you and yours.

Consider this attractive dwelling with its Dutch influence. It is one of many beautiful homes which we can help you own.

Think of that—your home—planned to suit your particular needs and ideas of comfort and convenience, finished as you would have it, and improved from time to time—not for the other fellow, but for yourself.

Talk to us in all confidence. Ask us for estimates. Our service does not obligate you. Own a home of your own.

....Spencerville Lumber Co....
....Spencerville, Indiana....

Envelopes at the News office.

COLETOWN

J. W. Hart and wife were Sunday guests of Geo. Hart and wife.

John Varner and Will Sauers called on Dan Sauers last Sunday.

Shermah Meek and wife called on Elton Brown last Sunday.

Glenolene Spires has been quite ill the past week.

Mrs. Herbert Ginther is a visitor in the home of her parents, C. D. Nelson and wife.

Maurice Conine and family were last Sunday guests of J. D. Brown and family.

Mildred Pierman called on Mrs. Henry Kling last Tuesday.

Lilllian Koch had Sunday dinner with Opal Walker. Zelma Miller and Geo. Brown were callers.

Lester Pierman and wife were Sunday guests of Joe Newton and wife.

Francis Miller and Mory Brown spent Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Henry Kling.

J. E. Evans, wife and daughter, Lulu, of Ft. Wayne, spent Saturday night and Sunday with Vere Nelson and wife.

Mrs. Grace Miller and daughter, Georgia, returned to Auburn last Friday after spending the winter in the home of her parents, where she has been under care of a physician.

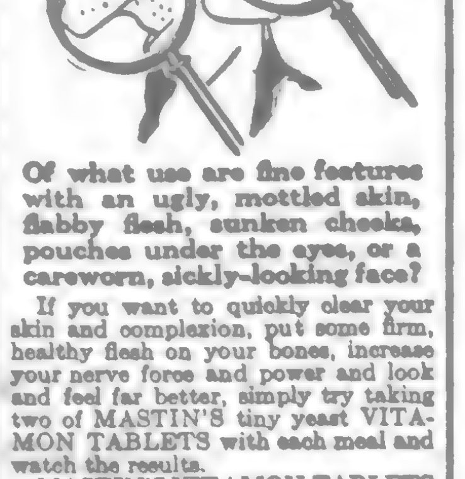
Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE
Established 1867
MENS AND BOYS OUTFITTERS
[illegible] Street
Fort Wayne, Ind.

APRIL

Why Men Take Mastin's Yeast Vitamon

Tablets—To Clear The Skin and Put On Firm Flesh

Easy and Economical Results Quick



Of what use are fine features with an ugly, mottled skin, flabby flesh, sunken cheeks, pouches under the eyes, or a careworn, sickly-looking face?

If you want to quickly clear your skin and complexion, put some firm, healthy flesh on your bones, increase your nerve force and power and look and feel far better, simply try taking two of MASTIN'S tiny yeast VITAMON TABLETS with each meal and watch the results.

MASTIN'S VITAMON TABLETS contain not only the purest form of concentrated yeast vitamines, but all three vitamines scientifically combined with specially prepared organic iron for your blood, the necessary lime salts and other true vitalising brain, bone and tissue making elements which Nature provides to produce real "stay-there" flesh, clear skin and increase energy.

Under their purifying influence, many embarrassing skin eruptions seem to vanish as if by magic, leaving the skin and complexion fresh, clear and glowing with ruddy health.

●To protect yourself against imitations and cheap substitutes INSIST upon MASTIN'S to get the original and genuine VITAMON TABLETS, recommended by physicians and used by millions. At all good druggists.

MAN'S BEST AGE

A man is as old as his organs; he can be as vigorous and healthy at 70 as at 35 if he aids his organs in performing their functions. Keep your vital organs healthy with

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles since 1696; corrects disorders; stimulates vital organs. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

Very Cursory.

A huntsman called at the farmstead to settle for damages done by the hounds, and found only the farmer's wife at home.

"Has your good man made an examination yet?" he asked.

"That he have, sir," replied Mrs. Hodge.

"Rather a cursory examination, I suspect?"

"Oh, dreadful, sir? Such language I never heard—never!"

And the dame held up her hands at the bare recollection.—Tit-Bits.

He Knew the Kind.

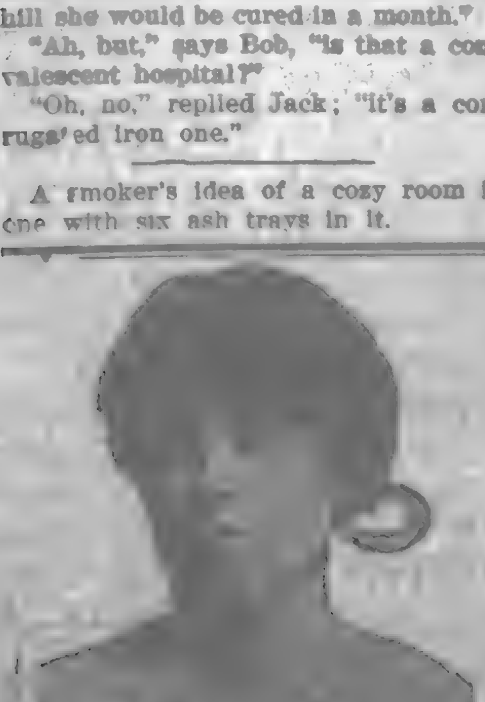
Two men were having a talk at dinner time one day and the health of a fellow workman's daughter was the subject of the conversation.

"Well," said Jack, "if Tom would send his lass up to the hospital on the hill she would be cured in a month."

"Ah, but," says Bob, "is that a convalescent hospital?"

"Oh, no," replied Jack; "it's a corrugated iron one."

A smoker's idea of a cozy room is one with six ash trays in it.



Mrs. Florence Coop

[illegible]

SUGGESTIONS FOR TREATMENT OF TREES DAMAGED BY ICE STORMS

An Old Orchard in the East With Trees Headed High and Tops Full of Water Sprouts and Brush.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The extensive injury to fruit trees in Wisconsin and parts of Michigan by the recent ice in late February has brought inquiries to the United States Department of Agriculture as to the best methods of treating these trees and repairing the damage. The following suggestions are made by the department and apply mainly to the apple but are applicable to the cherry and other fruit trees.

The best thing to do with apple, cherry and other fruit trees which have their branches broken down or split and injured by snow and ice, is first to give them a very careful pruning, and, second, to use, as far as possible, methods of tree surgery to enable them to repair and outgrow the injury.

Proper Methods in Pruning.

The pruning of an injured fruit tree with part of its branches broken out requires more cutting and more skillful pruning than an ordinary normal tree. Each tree presents more or less an individual problem, depending on how severely it is injured. When one side of the tree has been badly smashed, the other side may require more than normal heading back to attempt to balance the fruit top, at least eventually. Sometimes long, slender branches have escaped, and these likewise require more heading back, and this may be needed a second and third year before the top of the tree can be shaped into anything like the normal. Water sprouts on the stubs of branches which in ordinary pruning would be removed, should be mostly left on an injured tree. Individual water sprouts properly located to form new branches may be selected, headed back slightly if too long, and encouraged to grow into new limbs. Stubs from six inches to a foot or more in length should not usually be sawed off on these crippled trees if they are in the right location for future framework branches. The ragged ends should be neatly sawed or smoothed with a knife and the stub left to throw a mass of sprouts, as it usually will do if the top has been pretty generally taken out or removed by breaking and pruning.

Dehorning or pruning the main branches to stubs is often purposely practiced by orchardists to renew the top, and essentially the same methods can be applied in part, even though the dehorning is forced in this case. Whenever there are any small spurs or branches on the remaining stubs, they should be left to get out new twig growth promptly. Apple trees, especially, sprout very freely from the branches, even though they may be as large as one's arm or larger, so that where there are no spurs or small branches, still new growth is likely to be produced.

While abnormally slender, high branches or extra long lateral branches may require heading in to balance up the tree, it is well to leave as much as possible of the top and not try to do all the balancing up and heading back in a single year. It will take at least three years to build a new head on a ten-year [illegible] tree which has been badly broken, [illegible].

Tree Surgery Methods Suggested.

Trees with split forks or large wounds made by branches being broken out, tearing and stripping of bark and wood from the main branch or main trunk, and trees with their tops smashed down beyond recovery present problems of tree surgery not covered by ordinary or [illegible] pruning. Each case requires more or less special treatment. A few types of repair work may be mentioned:

Young fruit trees under [illegible] years of age, or [illegible]

[illegible]

It is not often necessary in this case to do summer pinching, and it may be desirable in the later pruning to leave some of the weaker lateral sprouts for future fruiting limbs instead of stripping them all off as described for training up a new trunk. Forks which have split down and even bent over so that the branches touch the ground, but with the wood and bark still intact and not too badly splintered, can be pulled up with ropes and bolted back into place, using one or more bolts inserted according to the usual tree surgery methods described in Farmers' Bulletin 1178, Tree Surgery, which deals with the general problem of repairing forest, shade and ornamental trees. This bulletin can be obtained free on application to the Division of Publications, Department of Agriculture, Washington D. C.

Proper Method of Treating Wounds

If the branches are broken down beyond recovery, hanging only by splintered wood and bark, or in case of branches broken off from the tree the wound should be trimmed and smoothed as neatly as possible with a gouge and mallet. Special attention should be given to trimming the edges of the bark neatly, particularly at the lower part of such a wound, because growth proceeds from the top and sides more than from the bottom. Ragged stubs and broken edges of the bark should be trimmed out at the bottom of the wound. The splintered wood should be removed leaving a smooth surface for the healing-in margin of the wound to cover. The bottom should end in an elliptical or V-shaped point from which rain water can readily escape.

The exposed wood on all the scars where branches are broken and on all pruning wounds more than three-fourths of an inch in diameter or which may be expected to take more than one year to heal should be painted at once with a good wound paint. A mixture of 1-4 to 1-3 creosote oil and 2-3 to 3-4 ordinary coal tar has proved very satisfactory, since it is both a disinfectant and a waterproof covering. It is slightly injurious to the cut edges of the bark and while this may not be serious and is readily overgrown, if one wishes to get the best results, a coat of shellac should be applied to this cut edge of the bark and also a half-inch or so on the sapwood before the tar and creosote oil is applied. The coal-tar and creosote are the ordinary commercial materials purchased at the paint stores. The mixture should be made as thick as a very thick paint and is best applied with a stiff brush. The wounds should be kept painted annually until they are healed.

Grafting May Hasten Recovery.

The recovery of badly broken trees can be hastened somewhat by inserting grafts according to the usual methods of grafting fruit trees, though perhaps the grafts may not always be in the usual positions. Cut stubs can be grafted with two or more scions either of the same or of a new variety. The scions for this purpose should be saved while the trees are still perfectly dormant, but the grafting is best done while the buds are [illegible].

[illegible] of the trunks of the trees [illegible] ing. This consists of inserting [illegible] whip-like scions above and below the wound so as to completely bridge it over. By this method the trees can be [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED ROADS

MONEY FOR BUILDING ROADS

According to Bureau of Public Roads $339,875,000 Must Be Expended in Three Years.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The total of federal-aid funds for road building apportioned among the various states up to the present time by the bureau of public roads, United States Department of Agriculture, aggregates $339,875,000, according to a tabulation prepared by the department. Of this sum $73,125,000 is apportioned under the federal highway act, approved by President Harding November 9, last, and $266,750,000 represents the total apportionment under the old acts.

Under the terms of the new act the federal aid money will be available to the states for two years after the close of the fiscal year for which the money is appropriated. This provision is made to apply to the money appropriated under the previous act and its amendment as well as to the new appropriation. Accordingly, the new appropriation must be expended by June 30, 1924, and the time allowed for the expenditure of the balance of the previous appropriation which remains in some states is extended to June 30, 1923. The forest road appropriation is available until expended.

The new appropriation is to be expended upon a definite, connected system of highways in each state, of not to exceed 7 per cent of the total mileage of highways already existing in the state. This system is to be divided into two parts; the first to include the more important roads, which are to be known as the primary or interstate highways; the second to include the secondary or intercounty highways. The primary roads, it is provided, shall not be more than three-sevenths of the mileage in the system. The second part will make up the balance of the system.

A Model Stretch of Improved Roadway.

MONEY IN QUEBEC HIGHWAYS

Amount Now Reaches Sum of $86,000,000—Foreign Motorcars Leave $35,000,000.

Forty thousand miles of roads in the province of Quebec occupy an area of 320,000 acres, which at $50 an acre, makes a value of $18,000,000, according to S. L. Squires, chairman of the executive committee of the Canadian Good Roads association. The cost of the work done on the highways prior to 1912 aggregated $40,000,000, while the amount spent by the province since that date amounted to $30,000,000. This constituted a total investment in Quebec roads of $86,000,000.

The number of motorcars entering Quebec in 1920 totaled 34,435. These foreign cars left no less than $33,867,200. It is expected that when the final figures for 1921 are compiled this amount will total approximately $35,000,000.

FEW RURAL ROADS SURFACED

Of an Estimated Total of 2,478,552 Miles of Highways Only 299,135 Are Improved.

Despite the fact that the United States has [illegible]

[illegible]

HOW TWO WOMEN ESCAPED OPERATIONS

Doctor Advised Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Happy Results in Both Cases

St. Joseph, Missouri.—"Both of my sides swelled and hurt me so that I could not move or do any of my work. There was heavy pressure and pains through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would. After taking several bottles I felt it was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. If my testimonial will help others I shall be glad for them to read it and hope your Vegetable Compound will do them as much good as it did me."—Mrs. WM. LOCKMAN, 513 N. 4th St., St. Joseph, Mo.

White Plains, N. Y.—"I had such a pain that I could hardly walk and the doctor said that I needed an operation. I was sick for a year before I started taking your medicine and I could not work. I saw your advertisement in a little book and that is how I came to take Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines. I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and the capsules and prescription recommended. I am doing all my work and have gained twenty pounds. I am taking the medicines still, but I feel fine. You have my permission to use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. MARY MARK, 37 Hamilton Ave., White Plains, N. Y.

Some female troubles may through neglect reach a stage when an operation is necessary. But most of the commoner ailments are not the surgical ones; they are not caused by serious displacements, tumors, or growths, although the symptoms may appear the same.

When disturbing ailments first appear, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to relieve the present distress and prevent more serious troubles. Many letters have been received from women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after operations have been advised by attending physicians.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Drawn from actual photograph of Charles Villiar Sparr, son of Mr. & Mrs. Charles Sparr of Prescott, Iowa

He was learning his ABC's at fifteen months!

THAT the well-nourished, healthy child is mentally alert and forward, has been the contention of child experts for years. Mrs. Sparr has had this experience with her young son, Villiar, now two and a half years old.

Eagle Brand Milk has always been Villiar's food. He has had constant good health all of his short life—"full of vim and pep"—his mother calls it. And he has been strong and well developed too. He walked at ten months, and at fifteen Mrs. Sparr began teaching him his ABC's. He "has keen intelligence," she says, and "he learns exceedingly fast." Today at the age of two and a half he can use a tooth brush to perfection!

Of course, Mrs. Sparr is an unusually thoughtful mother and has given her child the best of care. But she insists that Eagle Brand deserves the credit for his splendid vigor.

If you wish your baby to get a fine start in life, don't experiment with his food. Thousands of other mothers have had Mrs. Sparr's experience. For Eagle Brand has been the accepted baby food for generations. Every day letters come in from grateful mothers testifying to its benefits. Doctors recommend it in difficult feeding cases—because of its digestibility.

Eagle Brand is always pure and safe, always uniform, on sale everywhere. It is a special boon to mothers in hot weather because the unopened cans keep indefinitely and you always have a ready supply.

Are you keeping your baby's history? Years from now it will mean much to you. Send for our cunning record book, "The Best Baby". We will mail it FREE with an Eagle Brand feeding chart.

Clip the coupon right now.

THE BORDEN COMPANY
Borden Building, New York

MAIL THIS COUPON FOR FREE BOOK

The Borden Company
Dept. 4132, Borden Building
New York, N. Y.

I would like to have your record book, "The Best Baby", and also information and feeding chart for using Eagle Brand.

Name________________

Address________________

Modern Miles Standish.

The Woman was spending a week-end in the suburbs and Dorothy, the six-year-old daughter of her hostess, proved a never-ending source of delight. She was seated on the porch with another small playmate, gravely discussing a boy named Jimmy, who lived next door. "Do you like him better than the new boy down the street?" queried the playmate. Just at that moment Jimmy hove within hearing distance. Suspiciously Dorothy asked: "Did he tell you to ask me?" There was an emphatic nod from the little friend. With a toss of her head Dorothy replied: "Oh, I like Tom better than Jimmy, but there's a boy in New Hampshire I like better than both of them."—Chicago Journal.

Might may make right, but it doesn't always make good.

From Six to Seven.

The Woman was entertaining two small nieces, who between sips of cambric tea and bites of jelly sandwiches were giving her a glowing account of some recent festivities. "How very jolly!" commented the Woman; "and of course you played games and had ice cream and—a birthday cake?" "Yes, indeedy," affirmed Dolly; "a splendid rosy-pink one on it!" cried Nelly. "How lovely!" enthused the Woman; "and how mnay candles were there?" "We didn't count 'em, did we, Dolly?" was the reply, and then, with a puzzled frown, "and she's seven years old, auntie, seven years old, and she looks just exactly the very same as she did last Sunday, when she was only six!"—Chicago Journal.

Half of genius is the desire to excel.

From a Bride:

"As a young housewife of only two and one-half years' experience I am glad to find that even we amateurs can cook successfully if we use Royal Baking Powder."

Mrs. J. L. M.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

[illegible]

APRIL

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.Advertisement

Produces Like Effect.

The force of example is shown by the fact that when a razor loses its temper it is apt to make the user lose his also.

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use for Over 30 Years.

Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Keeping Him Satisfied.

"There's a man from the tailor's, sir."

"Tell him I can't pay his bill, but I'll be around tomorrow to order another suit."—Life.

Cuticura Comforts Baby's Skin

When red, rough and itching, by hot baths of Cuticura Soap and touches of Cuticura Ointment. Also make use now and then of that exquisitely scented dusting powder, Cuticura Talcum, one of the indispensable Cuticura Toilet Trio.—Advertisement.

Folks and Flowers.

Mrs. Kawler—Those new neighbors of ours must be rich, judging from the clothes they wear.

Mrs. Wyse—That's a poor way to judge, my dear. Some of the most gorgeous flowers haven't a scent.—Boston Transcript.

YOU CAN WALK IN COMFORT

If you Shake Into Your Shoes some ALLEN'S FOOT=EASE, the Antiseptic, Healing powder for shoes that pinch or feet that ache. It takes the friction from the shoe and gives relief to corns and bunions, hot, tired, sweating, swollen feet. Ladies can wear shoes one size smaller by shaking Allen's Foot=Ease in each shoe.—Advertisement.

If anyone in a camping party can fry potatoes he is made to do all the cooking.

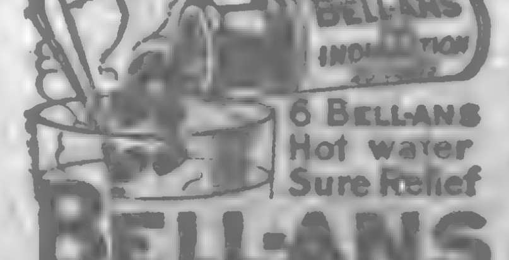
Red Cross Ball Blue is the finest product of its kind in the world. Every woman who has used it knows this statement to be true.—Advertisement.

The things that come to the man who waits are seldom the things that he has been waiting for.

A little learning often saves a man from jury duty.

Sure Relief

FOR INDIGESTION



6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS

25¢ and 75¢ Packages, Everywhere

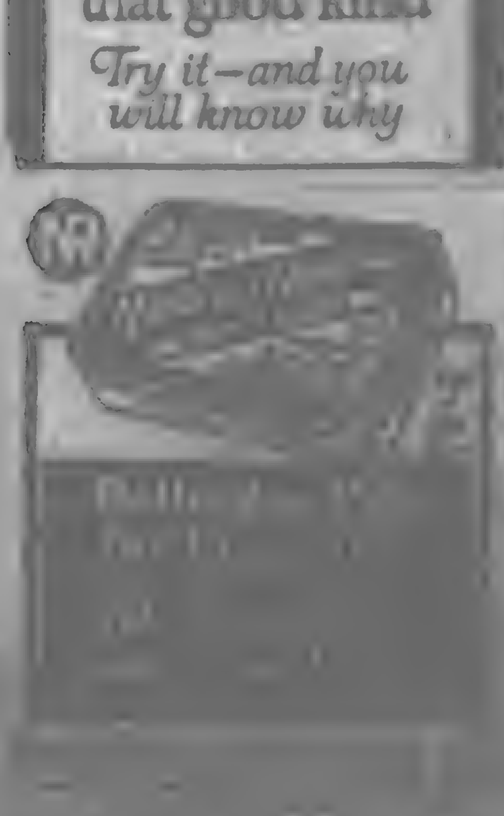
Liggett & Myers

KING PIN

PLUG TOBACCO

Known as "that good kind"

Try it—and you will know why



INDIANA BREVITIES

Marion.—Asking for retrenchment in public expenditures, and asserting the time had come for economy, the "watchdog" committee of the Grant County Agricultural association appeared before the county commissioners at Marion. The farmers arrived just before contracts were to be awarded for bridges, for stone and gravel. L. L. Needler, president of the agricultural association, was the principal spokesman. "The farmers believe the commissioners should use greater care and caution in awarding contracts," Mr. Needler said. "We believe you should handle public money just the same as your own." Following the hearing all bids for stone were rejected and new bids are to be asked.

Indianapolis.—Isaiah Moore, who was referred to by Indianapolis police authorities as the "ace of bigamists" after he had confessed that he had married 13 women, was sentenced in the Criminal court to the state prison by Judge James A. Collins on charges of embezzlement and bigamy. He was convicted of embezzling $512 belonging to Harriet E. Melrose of Mexico, one of his wives, and in this case received a sentence of two to fourteen years, was fined $1,000 and costs and disfranchised for five years. On the bigamy charge, to which Moore pleaded guilty March 24, he was sentenced to the state prison from two to five years.

Indianapolis. — Announcement was made by the director of the state highway department, that the state highway commission will open sealed proposals on April 18 for the construction of approximately 28 miles of hard-surfaced pavement. This is a part of the commission's program to build 113.7 miles of hard-surfaced roads during 1922. Roads on which contracts will be let for both paving and structures include the famous Dunes highway in the extreme northern part of the state, the road to Louisville, in southern Indiana, and a section of the National road in the vicinity of Putnamville.

Valparaiso.—The Porter county jail is empty for the first time in 15 years. This unusual state of affairs was brought about recently by the discharge of eight prisoners. For many years the city has put its prisoners in the county jail owing to lack of space to house violators of the law. Local authorities have been busy during the last three months cleaning up the city and at least a dozen men are serving prison terms as a result.

Elwood.—An Elwood cigar factory, which had been closed since the first of the year, resumed operations with a full force. About 100 men and girls are employed. One hundred hot mill men of the tinplate mill here go to Gary to work until extensive repairs are made to double mills 7 and 8 in the factory here. This will leave the local plant operating about 75 per cent capacity.

Shelbyville.—Assessments on farm lands in the various townships in Shelby county this spring range from $105 to $113 an acre, reports which have been submitted by the township assessors to the county assessor show. The land valuations are from 30 to 40 per cent lower than those now effective in the county, it was said.

Terre Haute.—Indiana coal operators rejected the proposal of Chairman Nolan of the house labor committee for a joint wage conference of operators and miners unless the entire central competitive field, comprising western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois, were represented in the conference.

Evansville.—Benjamin Bosse, mayor of this city and Democratic state chairman, is dead. Pneumonia, which developed after a complication of Bright's disease, rheumatism and heart lesions, caused his death, physicians said.

Mooresville.—Rev. Jason W. Tudor, age about fifty, and one of the most popular ministers of the Christian church in Monroe county, whose home was at Monrovia, committed suicide at his home by shooting himself through the heart with a revolver.

Salem.—Dr. John L. Williams, age eighty-eight, of Salem, the oldest practicing dentist in Indiana, was found dead of heart disease in his bed by members of his family. Doctor Williams had been engaged in dental practice here since 1874.

South Bend.—St. Joseph county will spend [illegible] in improving the roads of rural districts this year, the commissioners having awarded contracts for that amount.

Indianapolis.—A total of [illegible] declarations of candidacy [illegible] with the secretary of state for the primary election, [illegible] than [illegible] the total of two years ago.

[illegible]

Indianapolis.—Indiana land values showed a total loss of $421,260,000 during the last year, George C. Bryant, director of the state crop reporting service in co-operation with the United States Department of Agriculture, has announced. Whether this loss will be reflected in tax valuations now being made by state and local officials remains for future decision. However, the values reported by Mr. Bryant are substantially the average values used by taxing officials in making the valuations in 1920, that are to be renewed or changed this year. As compared with the valuation of lands in the 1920 census taken by the federal government, Mr. Bryant's report shows a total loss of land value for the state of almost a half billion dollars. Land without improvements on the average was valued at $80 to $105 an acre in the last official crop report compiled by the agricultural statistician.

Indianapolis.—More than 130,000 questionnaires have been sent to the posts of the American Legion for distribution among former service men in Indiana. The questionnaires were designed to obtain information concerning service records and needs of all Indiana veterans. They were mailed to posts in the county seats, which will distribute them among the other posts in the county. The sending of the questionnaires is part of a state-wide drive by the Legion and the Legion Auxiliary to ascertain the best means of service to all who took part in the World war.

Indianapolis.—Indiana now has 29 posts of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, with a membership of more than 7,000. This organization takes in any man who has seen active foreign service for the United States either on land or sea. Many veterans of the Spanish-American war, two survivors of the battleship Maine, followers of Pershing in Mexico, Americans who fought in the Boxer rebellion in China, as well as veterans of the recent World war, are among the members in Indiana.

Indianapolis.—The Dunes summer camp, to be held in the sand dunes of northern Indiana under the auspices of the Dunes park committee, has been arranged, for June 16 to 29, according to word reaching Richard Lieber, director of the state conservation department, from Mrs. Frank J. Sheehan of Evansville, chairman of the committee. The camp has been planned as a part of the movement to urge the creation of a state or national park in the Dunes region.

Indianapolis.—The Indiana Amateur Athletic union presented to the Indiana board of agriculture a proposal that the board co-operate with the union in the construction of an athletic field inside the half-mile race track at the state fair ground. The field would be used at intervals throughout the year by organizations in the union, and might be used to stage a grand finale of state athletic competitions during state fair week.

Marion.—Visualize 138 business men of Marion bedecked in overalls and swinging hammers and pushing saws and you will have an idea of what is to happen a few miles south of Marion on Wednesday, May 17. The Marion Kiwanis club voted to build a $3,000 community hut on the Boy Scout camping ground near Marion. The members decided not only to finance the plan, but in person to do the carpenter work.

Washington.—Ballots for the May 2 primary election will be the longest in the history of Daviess county. Three hundred candidates will have their names on the ballots—149 Democrats and 151 Republicans. Of the 300 candidates, only one is a woman. Mrs. Estella Earle is seeking the nomination for trustee of Elmore township.

Hammond.—The board of county commissioners at a special meeting at Crown Point rejected the bids submitted for the construction of the proposed new Lake county tuberculosis sanatorium, for which $250,000 had been appropriated. The highest combination of bids was $745,000 and the lowest $462,000.

Crawfordsville.—The members of the Montgomery County Horse Thief Detective association have adopted a resolution asking Gov. Warren T. McCray to exercise his power of pardon only in case where new and additional evidence shows that error exists.

Indianapolis.—Governor McCray announced the appointment of Mrs. L. G. R[illegible] of this city as a member of the board of [illegible] four years.

[illegible]

Taste is a matter of tobacco quality

We state it as our honest belief that the tobaccos used in Chesterfield are of finer quality (and hence of better taste) than in any other cigarette at the price.

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

Chesterfield

CIGARETTES

of Turkish and Domestic tobaccos—blended

"They Satisfy"

20 for 18c
10 for 9c
Vacuum tins of 50 - 45c

UNDERTAKER HAD LAST SAY

Revised Version of Old Story Leaves Welshman the Winner Over Admittedly Canny Scotsman.

Admittedly, this may be an old story, but it has the distinction of possessing a new twist at the end:

A person died. He willed all his earthly possessions to be divided among an Englishman, an Irishman and a Scotsman. But the will was conditional; each of the legatees was to place five pounds in the testator's coffin. On the day appointed (by Fate) the Englishman placed a five-pound note as willed; the Irishman collected a number of coins somehow—shillings, sixpences and coppers—and made up his contribution of five pounds, which he placed on the Englishman's fiver. The Scotsman then made out a check for 15 pounds and, pocketing the 10 pounds already deposited, threw in his check, with the remark, "That's easier."

A month later, when the Scotsman perused his pass book he was surprised to find that his check had been cashed.

The undertaker was a Welchman.—Philadelphia Record.

Sensible Question.

She had the money and he a small job. He wished to get married very badly, but she was rather undecided. One night as they sat talking about the future, he having coaxed her into a half-way engagement, he said:

"And we'll be very careful and not run into debt and have trouble as the Sissons did. We'll always pay cash, won't we, dear?"

A suspicious look came into her face. Quickly she put forth the question: "Whose cash?"

She Read the Advertisements.

Upon the dressing table in the bride's boudoir stood a small shallow cut-glass vial. In the bottom of the vial could be seen some pinkish-looking substance resembling plastering that had been dried and pulverized.

"And what is that?" asked the curious friend.

"I read," said the bride simply, "that one should keep one's wedding day complexion. That is mine."—Strickland Gillilan in Wayside Tales.

EXCURSIONS TO WESTERN CANADA

Round Trip for Single Fare Plus Two Dollars

Good First and Third Tuesdays in Each Month

A splendid opportunity is now offered those who desire to make a trip of inspection to look over

Western Canada's Farming Possibilities

Recent advances in the price of farm products and the possibility of further increases will warrant an increase in the price of Western Canada Farm Lands, now exceptionally low considering their producing value.

The depression is now over, and normal times are at hand. Western Canada came through the late trying period with a stout heart and a preparedness to take advantage of the better times that we are approaching.

To take advantage of the low rates now in force, and for other information, apply to

W. S. NETHERY, R. 82, Interurban Station Bldg., Columbus, O.;
M. J. JOHNSTONE, 215 Traction-Term. Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.
Authorized Canadian Government Agents

True, but Astonishing.

Anatole France, who is seventy-eight, went to Stockholm to receive his Nobel prize just after recovering from a severe illness. He was fearful of catching cold, and wore several well-padded waistcoats under his coat. The Swedish custom officers were suspicious. "What have you got in here?" one of them asked, with his hands on the great novelist's coat. "France," was the reply.

A Blowout.

Suitor—What would you do if I kissed you?

Electrician's Daughter—I would use one hand for insulation and with the other I would create a short-circuit by a quick connection against your cheek.—Science and Invention.

Very properly a girl has little faith in a mirror that tells her she is homely.

It's a fine morning, but, as Sandy said: "Eh, mon, think o' the national debt."

Dum Cold.

Bert Acosta, the air champion, said at a banquet in Omaha:

"It is so cold in an airplane when you reach great altitudes that if you try to describe the weather up there you feel like a liar.

"Yes, you feel like the farm hand who said:

"'Yep, mighty cold day, but 'tain't nothin' tu what I seen to hum wonst in the Vermont mountings. Why, one day in pig-killin' time it was so dum cold that we had a kittle of b'ilin' water settin' on the stove, and when we took it out in the yard it friz so dum quick the ice was hot.'"

Source of Aluminum.

Hungary can now boast of possessing the largest aluminum deposits in the world. A recent discovery near Tapolcza has revealed a deposit containing more than 150,000,00 tons, according to estimates of expert engineers.

How easy it is to suggest a remedy for other people's ills!

When Will There Be A Disarmament of Dining Tables?

Suppose everybody would recognize the fact that there's no gain but much loss in keeping up hostilities with the stomach!

[illegible]

Grape-Nuts makes a friend of the taste and an ally of the stomach.

There's a charm and satisfaction to this delicious food which prompts appetite to say, "There's a meal!" and digestion to answer, "Thank goodness, here's peace at last!"

Grape-Nuts is the perfected nutriment of wheat and malted barley [illegible]

[illegible]

APRIL

It's What You Raise that Counts
It's Not What You Hatch

The loss of little chicks, as most poultrymen know, is enormous; ranging from 25% to 75% of almost all hatches. Most of these losses are preventable, if you feed for the first eight weeks

The Original

Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Feed

The stomach of a little chick is extremely sensitive, and the least disorder quickly results in disease and death.

Conkey's Buttermilk Starting Feed is an appetizing combination, scientifically proportioned, of pure sweet Grain and concentrated sanitary Buttermilk. The lactic acid of buttermilk strengthens and tones up the sensitive digestive organs of the little chicks and helps prevent White Diarrhea.

Conkey's is different from all other chick feeds. It builds strong, sturdy chicks that grow into heavy layers, good breeders and full-bodied market fowls. It costs so little for these first eight weeks that no chick raiser can afford to be without it.

We also have Conkey's Remedies for White Diarrhea, Roup, and other poultry diseases; Head Lice Ointment, and all kinds of louse powders and disinfectants; also sprayers and self-feeders. We have in our office Conkey's Poultry books which describes all diseases of poultry and their treatments. You may have a copy free of charge if you are interested by calling at the office, or phone us and one will be mailed to you at once.

STEWARD GRAIN CO., - Spencerville, Ind.

FOR SALE- SETTING EGGS

From Pure Bred
Single Comb

RHODE ISLAND REDS CHICKENS

From the Pioneer Strain, which won all prizes, including the silver cup at the Chicago Poultry show in January of this year.

We have a fine park flock besides the large utility flock.

If interested call for arrangements and prices of

MRS. FRED STRUBING,

Phone No. 82, Spencerville, Indiana

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Patronize the Advertisers.

Wilson Sanders is in quite poor health again.

Wanted—Odd jobs in or about St. Joe. Phone No. 67.

C. A. Patterson of Fort Wayne was in town last Friday.

H H. Todd of Ft. Wayne spent over Sunday here with his family.

Miss Viola Coburn had as a Sunday guest Miss Priscilla Borthwick.

Mrs. Wm. Hamilton is again on the sick list.

Roy Maxwell and wife, Mr. Gresjean and Charles Koch were Auburn visitors, Saturday.

Dr. Bonnell M. Souder's Hospital, No. 206 West Seventh St., Auburn, Indiana.]

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Wade are now occupying the east half of the Bills residence.

S. D. Gee and wife were Sunday guests of their daughter, Mrs. Milo Provines, and family, near Auburn Tanlac relieves rheumatism by removing the cause. At B. S. Sheffer's.

Miss Ida Driver of Hickseville spent Sunday here with her sister, Mrs. Dan Myers.

Miss Evelyn Knight was an over Sunday guest of her uncle, Craig Sheffer, and family.

Mrs. Ann Abel was a Monday guest of her sister, Mrs. Ella Patterson.

The main item of food on many of our tables these days is a dish of greens.

George Berry visited over Sunday at Ft. Wayne with his sister, Carl Hatch and wife.

Hall's Catarrh Medicine

Those who are in a "run down" condition will notice that Catarrh bothers them much more than when they are in good health. This fact proves that while Catarrh is a local disease, it is greatly influenced by constitutional conditions.

HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE consists of an Ointment which Quickly Relieves by local application, and the Internal Medicine, a Tonic, which assists in improving the General Health.

Sold by druggists for over 40 Years.
F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio.

Patterson-Fletcher Co.'s
Easter Values

We will add to our great stock of Spring Clothing today 600 Michaels Stern Spring Suits in Men's and Young Men's models and mark them at two prices—

$18 and $25

The cheapest Spring Suit made by Michaels Stern & Co., retails at $30, so you see what we can do for you. Our buyer bought these suits in Rochester last Thursday.

Hundreds of Hart Schaffner & Marx Suits Will Be Ready for You at

$30 to $50

A Saving of [illegible] to $15 on Each Suit

We have taken all of our broken lines of fine silk-lined Top Coats, up to [illegible], and marked them all—

$15

[illegible]

$30

Gabardines by the Hundreds at $20 to [illegible]

Patterson-Fletcher Co.

[illegible]

The St. Joe river raised about four feet, Monday night.

For Sale—A few bushels of good early seed potatoes. Nice large potatoes. W. H. Northrup.

Edith Widney is spending a few days with her cousin, Mrs. Frank Curie and family.

Miss Leota Milliman spent Saturday night and Sunday a guest of Willard Gruber at Hicksville.

Will Price, who has been visiting his sister at LaGrange, returned to this place, Saturday.

Rev. R. B. Daily and daughter, Miss Louetta, were Hicksville visitors, Saturday.

The Martha Society will meet Thursday afternoon with Mrs. B lle Keesler.

Mrs. S. D. Gee and Mrs. Martha Forkner were Auburn visitors, Friday afternoon.

Rev. C. O. Johnson went to Dunkirk, Ind, Sunday, where he spent the forepart of the week.

Although John Fetters has but recently celebrated his 61 birthday anniversary he is still supple enough to turn a handspring.

Stanley Koch and wife, and Mrs. Jennie Tilberry, of Grabill, were Saturday evening guests of Chas. Koch and wife.

George Tustison, of Auburn, spent over Sunday at the home of his parents, Frank Tustison and wife.

Ralph Sechler, wife and little daughter, of Ft. Wayne, came Saturday for a few days visit with his parents, Frank Sechler and wife.

Delbert Andress of Chicago came last Sunday night to visit with his brother, Marsh Andress and sister, Mrs. Howard Northrup.

Bake Sale at Kinsey's Hardware Store, Saturday, April 15, at 10:00 a. m. Young People's Class Concord S. S.

C. J. Folts, of near Holgate, came Tuesday for a few days visit with his sister, Mrs. J. P. Buckingham, and brother, J. E. Folts.

Dr. and Mrs. B. S. Sheffer were at Hicksville over Sunday, being called there by the illness of the latter's brother, C. J. Hadsell.

Foster Gee, wife and children, and Chas. Koch, were last Sunday guests of Mrs. Gee's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Carper, near Auburn.

John Milliman and wife entertained the following guests, Sunday—Jay Springer and wife, and Mrs. Hattie Springer and daughter all of Cedarville.

Waldo Rosenbury and wife of northwest of town were Saturday night and Sunday guests of her grandparents, John Koch and wife.

Will Koch and wife were Sunday dinner guests of their daughter, Mrs. Clay Coburn, and family, the occasion being in honor of Mrs. Coburn's birthday anniversary.

For Sale—Residence property in good repair, at a low price, located on main street; other properties at reasonable prices.
S. S. Widney.

"This Tanlac is really the first medicine I have ever taken that does what they say it will do," said J. F. [illegible], Lexington, Ky. Sheffer's Drug store.

James [illegible], wife and little daughter of [illegible] were Saturday night and Sunday guests of George [illegible] and family. Mrs. [illegible] was also a Sunday guest.

Mrs. Clay [illegible] was a Sunday [illegible]

[illegible]

—SATISFACTORY FARM LOANS—

—We make loans secured by first farm mortgages which do not exceed 40% of the land value, excluding improvements, at 6%.

—Where loans exceed 40% and are less than 50% of the value of the land and buildings, the rate is now 6½%.

☞ Our terms and conditions are attractive. For complete information, call at our office.

STRAUS BROTHERS COMPANY

The Straus Brothers Company,

LIGONIER, INDIANA.

Magazines:-April Ladies Home Journal, Harper's Bazar, Woman's Home Companion, American Magazine, and many others at the News Office.

Fred Quance spent the entire of last week in the Fred Leighty home returning to his home in Ft. Wayne, Sunday night, with his older brother Charles, who spent Saturday and Sunday here.

Abe Mason and wife, of Auburn, were Sunday dinner guests of Mrs. Belle Ridgway and family. Mr. and Mrs. Mason, Mrs. Ridgway and Mrs. Olive Frye and little daughter, were Sunday evening supper guests of Grover Curie and family.

Geo. L. Tessey, a well-known Buffalo mechanic, said he had gained twelve pounds; his wife had gained twenty-six pounds, and his daughter was gaining every day by taking Tanlac. Dr. Sheffer's drug store.

Byron Widney and sister, Mrs Lew Carpenter, were called to Jackson Township by the death of their cousin, Mrs Sarah A. Pervines. The funeral will be held Thursday at 11 o'clock from the Rehobeth Church. Mrs. Pervines was bedfast with rheumatism for five years.

J. O. Quance and little son Wayne, of Ft. Wayne, came to the home of J. C. Hull, Sunday morning, the former to remain for the entire week, and the son to return in the evening. Mr. Quance is just recovering from an attack of sciatic rheumatism and is not yet able to return to work.

F. R. Bowman

TRUSTEE
Concord Township

Office Day Thursday's of Each week in Town Hall, St. Joe.

J. Maxwell Life

Attorney and Counselor
AT LAW.

7th. Street, Opposite Court House
AUBURN, INDIANA

Abstracting, Notary Public in Office
Both Phones

H O. WILLIAMS

THE Abstracter

is able to furnish you with a complete Abstract of Title to any description of Real Estate in DeKalb County.

OFFICE
West Seventh Street
AUBURN

FIRE INSURANCE
NOTARY PUBLIC

HARTZOG
EYESIGHT SPECIALIST
FT. WAYNE.-IND.

--Dr.--
J. W. Hartzog
Eye-Sight
SPECIALIST

of Ft. Wayne, Indiana

WILL BE AT

Dr. Price's Dentist office, St. JOE
Friday, APRIL 21, 1922.

If you are having Eye Trouble

GIVE ME A CALL.

[illegible]

APRIL

NEWS SUPPLEMENT

APRIL 13, 1922

Legal Publications

Sheriff's Sale on Decree

4369

In the DeKalb Circuit Court, State of Indiana.

Eli M. Keener vs Fred H. Donely and Mary Donley.

By virtue of a certified copy of a decree to me, directed from the Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court, in the cause wherein Eli M. Keener is plaintiff and Fred H. Donley and Mary Donley are defendants requiring me to make the sum of One thousand Two hundred ninety two and 00-100 dollars, with interest and costs, I will offer for sale at public auction to the highest bidder, on the 27th day of April 1922, between the hours of 10 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., of said day at the door of the Court House, in the City of Auburn, County of DeKalb, State of Indiana, the rents and profits for a term not exceeding seven years, the following described realestate, in said County and State, to-wit:

Ten (10) acres of land off of the north end of the west half of the north-west quarter of Section twenty-four (24) in township thirty-three (33) north of range fourteen (14) east, and bounded as follows:

Commencing at the north-west corner of said section Twenty-four (24) thence running south forty-four (44) rods, thence east thirty-six (36) rods, thence north forty-four (44) rods, thence west thirty-six (36) rods, to the place of beginning, containing ten (10) acres. Also sixty-five one hundredths 65-100 of an acre lying south of the Baltimore and Ohio Right of way, in the south-east corner of the south-east corner of section fourteen (14) Concord Township, all in DeKalb County, State of Indiana.

If such rents and profits will not sell for a sum sufficient to pay and satisfy said decreed interest and costs, I will at the same time and place offer for sale at public auction the fee simple of said real estate.

Said sale to be made without any relief from valuation or appraisement laws.

T. L. HOODELMIER,
Sheriff of DeKalb County, Indiana.
Dated March 28th, 1922.

Willis Rhoads, Attorney for Plaintiff.

Notice of Appointment of Executor

Cause 2581.

STATE OF INDIANA, }
DEKALB COUNTY, } ss.:

I, C. E. McClintock, Clerk of the Circuit Court, for the County of DeKalb, State of Indiana, do hereby certify that Sarah E. Koontz has been appointed executrix of the last will and testament of Baltzer Koontz, late of DeKalb county, who died testate, and the said Sarah E. Koontz having qualified and given bond as such executrix is duly authorized to take upon herself the execution of said will.

Witness my hand and seal of said Court this 28th day of March, 1922
C. E. McCLINTOCK,
Clerk of the DeKalb Circuit Court.
J. E. Pomeroy, Attorney.

Notice of Final Settlement of Estate

Cause No. 2414.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to all persons interested in the estate of James M. Milliman, deceased, to appear in the DeKalb Circuit Court, held at Auburn, Indiana, on the 15th day of May, 1922, and show cause, if any, why my Final Settlement Accounts with the estate of said decedent should not be approved; and said heirs, and all others interested, are notified to then and there make proof of heirship or claim and receive their distributive shares.

Witness, my name, this 30th day of March, 1922.
S. S. WIDNEY,
Administrator.
Atkinson, Endicott
& Husselman,
Attorneys.

Contracts Awarded

[illegible] week (Wednesday) by the county commissioners. Mr. Butler's bid was the lowest one of the three submitted.

On the St. Joe bridge, Butler's bid was $1,130; Frank Scholes, $1,470; Beidler & Hanna, $1,500. Orwig bridge, Butler, $1,062; Scholes, $1,345; Beidler & Hanna, $1,065. Shilling bridge, Butler, $585; Scholes, $730; Beidler & Hanna, $721.

Frank Scholes was given the contract for the culvert, his bid being $100.28, and Butler's, $128.00.

Every Boy Wants It

If you could realize how much that boy of yours, or that young relative or friend in whom you are interested, craves the healthy, well-balanced reading matter he will get in THE AMERICAN BOY, never for a minute would you deny him this pleasure. For a Christmas present, or birthday gift, a subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY is unexcelled. It lasts the whole year through—and its influence is of the best.

THE AMERICAN BOY
"The Biggest, Brightest, Best Magazine for Boys in All the World"

In the next twelve numbers there will be serials by such famous authors as Melville Davisson Post, Ralph D. Paine, William Heyliger and Clarence B. Kelland, the short stories are by authors of equal note, and the big departments which are edited by experts, are devoted to every legitimate interest of boyhood.

Price Reduced

THE AMERICAN BOY is now only $2.00 a year. Make some boy happy—fill out the coupon and mail it TODAY!

Mail this Coupon to the publication in which this offer appears.

For $2.00 enclosed send a Year's Subscription to THE AMERICAN BOY, beginning with the..............Number to

Name ....
Address ....

BEDTIME STORIES for the Children
CURRENT EVENTS and EDITORIALS
STORIES and HOME HELPS for Mother
Girls Find 100 Features
Live Boys always like the things to DO and to MAKE and STORIES of ADVENTURE and SPORT
ALL

52 issues a year —not 12

Start a year Today

The Youth's Companion

should be in every home which demands "only the Best." Live boys and girls, and their fathers and mothers, always find The Companion Reliable, Entertaining and Up-to-Date.

Hundreds of Short Stories, Serial Stories, Editorials, Articles, Poetry, Nature and Science, Current Events, Doctor's Corner, Receipts, Stamps to Stick, Games, Sports, Puzzles, "How-to-Make" Pages, Suggestions for Home Efficiency and Economy.

Costs LESS THAN Five Cents a Week

OFFER No. 1	OFFER A
1. The Youth's Companion—52 issues for 1922 2. All remaining Weekly 1921 issues; also 3. The 1922 Companion Home Calendar	1. The Youth's Companion for 1922 $2.50 including all of Offer No. 1 2. McCall's Magazine $1.00 The best Fashion Magazine for women readers
All for $2.50	All for $3.00

Check your choice and send this coupon with your remittance to the PUBLISHERS OF THIS PAPER, or to THE YOUTH'S COMPANION, BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS.

SUBSCRIPTIONS RECEIVED AT THIS OFFICE

Are You Equipped to Win Success?

Here is your opportunity to insure against embarrassing errors in spelling, pronunciation and poor choice of words. Know the meaning of puzzling war terms. Increase your efficiency, which results in power and success.

WEBSTER'S NEW INTERNATIONAL

DICTIONARY is an all-knowing teacher, a universal question answerer, made to meet your needs. It is in daily use by hundreds of [illegible]

[illegible]

PLANT SOYBEANS IN CORN.

There are 6 reasons for planting soybeans in with your corn, namely:

1. CHINCH BUGS DISLIKE SOYBEANS.

2. THEY MAKE AN ECONOMICAL SOURCE OF PROTEIN FOR HOGS.

In 82 days with 424 lbs. of corn and 82 lbs. of soybeans 110 hogs made an average gain of 120 lbs. Where corn was used alone to make this same gain (120 lbs.) it took 583 lbs of corn and 126 days time (The Purdue Farm Experiment, 1921).

Is the time element worth anything?

Compare the price of hogs September 15th, for the last 10 years with the price of hogs Oct. 29th, 44 days later (126-82(; and what about the extra work in feeding

3. THEY FURNISH EXERCISE FOR BROOD SOWS AND GROWING GILTS.

They can be grown in corn a short way from the barn where sows can go out to pick beans up in the corn sow. Exercise is most valuable to any brood sow.

4. THEY FURNISH NITROGEN TO THE SOIL.

When we buy nitrogen in fertiliser we must pay about three times a smuch for nitrogen as we do for either phosphoric acid or potash. The soybean takes the nitrogen out of the air in the soil, providing the soil is inoculated. If it isn't they will take nitrogen out of the soil for their own growth. Moral, do not fail to inoculate Get a gallon of dirt out of a row where soybeans grew last summer (be sure they had nodules on) and mix with 1 bushel of beans. Do not moisten beans, or buy a can of commercial cultures. County agent can get them if wanted.

5. IF PLANTED WITH SILAGE CORN THEY HELP TO MAKE MORE AND BETTER SILAGE PER ACRE.

6. PRICE OF SEED IS REASONABLE THIS SPRING.

Soybean seed can be purchased at some elevators in this county at $2 25 per bushel.

HOW TO PLANT.

1. Use a soybean attachment with corn planter. The new attachments will put them in the soil at proper depth. If planted in planter with corn, the stand of both is uneven and beans are planted too deep. They will not come up so good.

2. Use 1 bushel for 7 to 9 acres with corn. If wanted for hay or seed plant broad-cast with drill or in rows, 28-30 in. apart. If planted in rows, use 30-35 lbs. per acre; if planted broad-cast, use 1-1½ bu. per acre.

3. For hogging-off in corn plant Ito Sans. If planting for seed sow Ito Sans; if for hay or silage, use Hollybrooks.

4. Do not neglect to inoculate.

Chinch Bugs Dislike Soybeans

Insects are like human beings in some respects. Some things they like and others not. Chinch bugs feed on plants of the grass family which includes the small grains, kafir, sorghum, and corn among the cultivated crops and foxtail, sedge, bunch grass and the like among the uncultivated plants.

They do not feed on other crops such as soybeans, cowpeas, peas, potatoes or rape.

Chinch bugs are also sun-loving insects. They prefer open patches rather than the dense shade to lay their eggs, and to develop. Furthermore the bugs are more susceptible to disease in moist locations, and shaded areas are of course conducive to moisture.

Since the chinch bug does not like the soybean and a thick shade, as would be caused by having the soybeans in the row, it would seem good business to plant soybeans with corn. You would be making three good bets:

1. They will help to keep out the chinch bugs from the corn, by virtue of conditions stated above.

2. They will increase the fertility of the field by adding nitrogen to it.

3. They make a more economical hog ration.

APPROPRIATE GIFTS

For the Graduates

Sometimes it is hard to know just what to give for a Commencement Gift.

AT OUR STORE we have so many lovely things for you to choose from. A few suggestions—

NEW STYLE WATCHES for Girls and Boys—Rings, Pearl Beads, La Vallieres, Bar Pins, Cuff Links, Belt Buckles, Scarf Pins, Waldemar Chains, Gold and Silver Pencils, Parker Lucky Curve and Moore's Non-Leakable Fountain Pens, Souvenir Spoons, Ivory, Cut Glass and Fancy Pottery.

Jeweler of Merit. -P. J. MURPHY- Hicksville Ohio.

Successor to F. A. Patterson.

HERE AND THERE

Patronize the advertisers.

Sixteen homes were under water in Terre Haute recently.

Wabash, Ind., claims the distinction of introducing the first electric lights in the United States 42 years ago, and the city celebrated the anniversary there recently.

A suit on a note has been filed in the DeKalb circuit court by Irvin S. Hadsell of Hicksville against Paul P. Maxwell. The note was given Aug. 4th, 1921, in the sum of $198.41, and judgment for $149 is asked.

Vitamin Easy to Find But Hard to Find Out

When the eminent Austrian scientist, Casimir Funk, tracked that mysterious life-giving substance to its lair and then named it vitamin, he started something that bids fair to assume importance in rank with the telephone, the steam engine and the Ford.

Little did the professor think that he was upsetting the calm and orderly lives of our most dignified scientists and medical experts, causing them to plunge madly into orgies of research, and vie excitedly with each other over each new discovery in this intriguing field.

In spite of the fact that nobody has ever seen a vitamin face to face, its marvelous performances go on apace. Nobody ever saw electricity but no one who ever picked up a live wire doubted its presence. So it is with vitamin.

Anyone who has seen dying pigeons, rats and pigs revived simply by feeding them tiny fragments of yeast, cannot doubt the presence of a magic "something." Anyone who has visited hospitals, where tests on sick people and well people are under way, must be forcibly struck by the almost uncanny recuperative and tonic effect of yeast vitamin.

So yeast, which for all these years has led such a prosaic career, has come into its own and from all indications seems headed for an illustrious future.

True, yeast was used many years ago as a "home remedy" for boils, but although it did the work, not much significance was attached to its curative powers. It was not recognised by the medical profession and had no standing in professional therapeutic circles. But look at it now!

Newspapers, magazines, medical journals and scientific publications all over the world proclaim in no uncertain terms its present high estate. How—how, indeed, the lowly have risen!

Yeast, especially the pure whole dried type of yeast, said to be the richest source of vitamin, is successfully used in the treatment of boils, pimples, blackheads, indigestion, failing appetite, anaemia, malnutrition, nervousness, physical debility, colitis, and other symptoms of what we call vaguely a "run down" condition.

Recent articles seem to show that vitamin even makes the hair grow in a way that would make Lady Godiva herself envious. What will be the next revelation? Are we to find that in this microscopic plant lies the fabled fountain of youth?

The future will tell and in the meantime, while celebrated medical men are experimenting [illegible] men are [illegible]. The patent medicine [illegible] are busy and everywhere the public is urged to buy so [illegible] some of which [illegible]

[illegible]

Now you can get yeast the way you want it

For the first time you can get a pure whole yeast in agreeable and convenient tablet form

Of surpassing interest to you thousands of men and women who understand the remarkable health-building properties of yeast is the knowledge that you can now get yeast the way you want it.

Ever since the therapeutic value of yeast was definitely determined by leading scientists, there has been an insistent demand for a pure whole yeast of high vitamin potency—that would keep; that would be easy and agreeable to take; that could be conveniently carried about in the pocket, and, finally, that would not form gas nor cause flatulency or belching.

In Yeast Foam Tablets these demands have been met.

A food—not a medicine

Yeast has within itself the [illegible]

[illegible] for its tonic action on the whole body, take pure, whole, concentrated yeast—Yeast Foam Tablets.

What this new yeast does

"Foods which lack vitamin will not maintain health," says a noted medical authority, "and many foods which originally contained this element reach our table with all vitamin eliminated, due to various heating and preparing processes."

The vitamin thus eliminated is restored through the addition to your regular food of Yeast Foam Tablets. They stimulate the appetite, aid digestion and enable the body to [illegible] into firm, [illegible] you will find nothing more efficacious than a prompt treatment of Yeast Foam Tablets. They are sold by all druggists.

[illegible]

Northwestern Yeast Co., Chicago
Makers of the famous baking yeasts, Yeast Foam and Magic Yeast

Extraordinary advantages of Yeast Foam Tablets

The only pure whole yeast in [illegible] tablet form.

They contain no drugs or [illegible]

They do not form gas nor [illegible]

[illegible]

Yeast Foam Tablets

APRIL

ST. JOE NEWS.

VOL. XXXVI | ST. JOE DeKALB COUNTY, INDIANA. THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1922 | No. 16

MAIL ORDER CATALOG

STUNG!

NO MORE MAIL-ORDER GOODS FOR THEM

WHEN you buy "at home," you SEE what you buy before you pay out your good money; you do not WAIT; you pay NO high FREIGHT; you try on your clothes and know that they fit you; and we stand behind everything we say and sell.

DO NOT buy from us just to keep your money at home and be loyal to your home town, but because you can get BETTER stuff for LESS MONEY and get it QUICKER than by sending to a far-away mail order house.

MAXWELL BROS.

Two BIG Stores

Hicksville Ohio

Sherwood, O.

HIGHEST Market Prices paid at all times for Corn, Wheat, Oats, Rye and Barley. Bring your grain to us.

WE HANDLE Bran, Middlings, Tankage, Cotton Seed Meal, Oil Meal.

COAL.—If you need a ton or two to carry you over buy now; we have it. Best Virginia and Hocking Valley Only.

The St. JOE ELEVATOR

Samuel Keesler, Mgr. Grain Dept.

Bert Jackson, Mgr. Coal Dept.

Call on us—glad to see you. Come in whether you want anything or not.

Robbers!

Robbers do not disturb people who have nothing.

[illegible]

It is not safe to carry money [illegible]

[illegible]

St. Joe Valley Bank—State Bank

Financial Report

Of the Incorporated Town of St. Joe, Indiana, from Dec. 31, 1920, to Dec. 31, 1921.

RECEIPTS
Jan. 1, 1921, Balance in treasury	$ 58.30
Jan 15, 1921, December draw	450.16
Jan. 31, 1921, B. & O. lights	33.00
April 12, 1921, Trustee office rent	24.00
June 27, 1921, June draw	1326.04
July 25, B. & O. lights	33.00
Nov. 3, 1921, Election hall rent	6.00
Dec. 27, 1921, December draw	483.77
Total Receipts	2,414.27
EXPENDITURES
JANUARY
Morris Curie, labor	10.00
Geo. W. Bleeks, labor	3.60
Butler Utilities Co., lights	268.85
Frank Rhodes, hauling gravel	23.75
Nathan Grain Co., coal	13.61
G. W. Woodcox, storage	3.00
Harvey Kimes, gravel	52.00
Morris Curie, labor	11.25
FEBRUARY
Standard Oil Co., gasoline	$ 1.42
Wm. Hamm, labor	2.40
Morris Curie, labor	12.50
Roy Koch, labor	1.00
Morris Curie, labor	9.00
MARCH
Nathan Grain Co., coal	$ 6.60
Morris Curie, labor	9.50
C. S. Hart, labor	3.00
Wm. Hamm, team work	25.50
APRIL
Ray D. Herrick, repairs	$ 10.72
Sentinel Printing Co., warrants	18.75
Geo. W. Bleeks, labor	21.50
MAY
Geo. W. Bleeks, labor	11.34
JUNE
Geo. W. Bleeks, labor	27.60
JULY
Butler Utilities Co., lights	$ 278.00
D. F. Benninghoff, Bond and Interest	207.78
AUGUST
Geo. W. Bleeks, labor	31.35
SEPTEMBER
Geo. W. Bleeks, labor	38.00
OCTOBER
Ora Wilmot, labor	7.50
Grover Curie, labor	7.50
Ward Woodcox, labor	6.00
Wm. Hamm, labor	18.50
Geo. W. Bleeks, labor	36.00
St. Joe Valley Bank, ditch installment	3.20
D. F. Benninghoff, Interest coupon	10.00
St. Joe Valley Bank, ditch assessment	28.80
NOVEMBER
Frank Tustison, work	16.25
Grover Curie, work	18.00
Ben Leighty, work	15.00
Chas. Bassett, work	16.50
Wm. Hamm, work	29.25
Geo. W. Bleeks, work	37.00
John Wineland, work	27.00
E. R. Kinsey, supplies	2.74
W. H. Randall, repairs	[illegible]
Grover Curie, labor	9.00
Ward Woodcox, labor	4.00
DECEMBER
Adrian Washler, hauling gravel	6.00
Wm. Curie, hauling gravel	13.50
Glen Freeburn, hauling gravel	12.00
J. M. Dorsey, hauling gravel	10.50
Lyman Aldrich, hauling gravel	15.00
Frank Meese, hauling gravel	12.00
C. C. Woodcox, gravel checks	3.00
J. L. Wright, hauling gravel	6.75
Adrian Washler, hauling gravel	3.00
Wal Wasson, hauling gravel	[illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]
Frank Meese, hauling gravel	22.50
Sam Bailey, hauling gravel	3.00
W. M. Wasson, hauling gravel	7.50
Total Expenditures	$2,150.84
RECAPITULATION
Total receipts, all sources	$2,414.27
Total expended, all sources	$2,150.84
Total Balance	$ 263.43

Respectfully submitted,
FRED B. LEIGHTY, Treas.

Men and Women Vote for Lane for Congress

Hon. John B. Stoll, of South Bend one of the ablest thinkers who ever wielded an editorial pen in Northern Indiana, published a paragraph on the editorial page of the Indianapolis Star of April 9th, reading as follows.

"In Fort Wayne there has developed a strong sentiment in favor of sending Charles R. Lane to Congress from the Twelfth District. This sentiment is founded upon the belief that conditions have arisen that call for the selection to legislative positions of men thoroughly familiar with the nation's various needs and requirements. Mr. Lane has given governmental affairs years of diligent study and has learned thoroughly to understand what the welfare of the Republic demands. Of his worthiness to be honored with a nomination by his party which has had the benefit of his unstinted, unselfish service from the days of his boyhood, there can be no question. Of his qualifications to render efficient and valuable public service, there is no doubt in the minds of those who know him as in reality he is and what he is capable of doing for a high purposed constituency."

B. Paul Mossman of Fort Wayne, who is the President of the "Lane for Congress" Club, with 5,000 members, reports that the Club is receiving encouraging reports of a disposition in the other counties among republicans both men and women, to give the Allen County Candidate the nomination, May 2,—for the first time in a winning year, since 1886, when Captain James B. White was elected. Captain White was the only republican elected from Allen County since the district was organized in 1879. It is in Allen County this year in which the contest will center. The nomination of Lane will strengthen the senatorial, congressional and county tickets.

Lawrence Gaff Dies.

After a long spell of sickness, Lawrence Gaff died Monday noon at the home of his father, Orange Gaff, north of Butler. He has been a constant sufferer of tuberculosis for several years, and last fall his condition became so serious that he went to Ft. Wayne and took treatments.

But it seemed as though the doctors could do no good and he was brought to his home about three weeks ago.

Mr. Gaff was a young man of but 29 years, with a wife and two small children to survive him. He lived on a farm one mile west of Newville previous to the time he went to Ft. Wayne.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon from the U. B. church in Newville at two o'clock.

Something New.

St. Joe is to have a wireless telephone and a radio club. Think of [illegible] club to be composed of 40 [illegible]

[illegible]

Rev. Daily Questioned.

On last Friday a revenue collector was in town to see Rev. R. B. Daily, pastor of the Disciple church, on a charge of carrying passengers without a license. The charge was news to Rev. Daily, and it was of course denied, for he states that he has not made a business of hauling passengers, although he has taken friends with him to places merely as an accommodation, and has made no charges and has accepted no donations for such.

It could not be learned who had made such a report, but the case is going to be carried far enough to learn that much about it, any way. Mr. Daily has a grave suspicion of the reporter and he means to make sure and expose the party to the public, and that should be done.

The same kind of a trick was played with Rev. C. O. Johnson several years ago. Some one surely has prejudice against preachers.

Alumni Reception

The Alumni Society of the St. Joe High School will give their alumni reception for the graduating class on Saturday evening, April 22, at the high school building.

The committees, recently appointed, are busy planning for a fine program and a bounteous supper.

A general invitation has been extended to the public to attend, and tickets, which are 35c each, are on sale now at the News Office and at the Bank. A record attendance is expected and is being planned for.

Commencement Exercises for the Senior Class will be Thursday Evening, April 20. S. LeRoy Scoles, of Indianapolis will deliver the address. Tickets are on sale at Brown's Restaurant and at the Central Grocery. Admission 20 and 25 cents.

St. Joe Garage-

Boost St. Joe

TUBES ARE LOWER

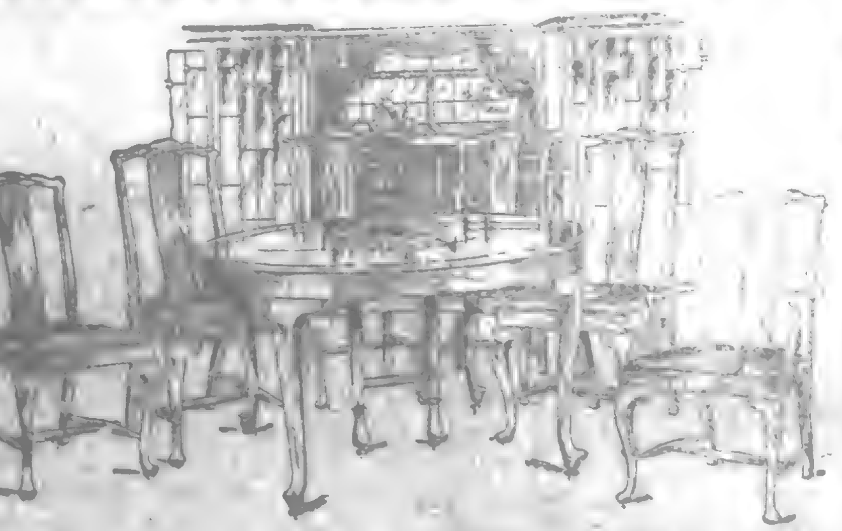
Let us make you a price

Now is a good time to have that Tractor looked over and adjusted for the spring work

Strictly a Service Garage

DANNY and VERNON on the job every minute.

Phone—Days 36. Nights 76.



--"Queen Ann"--

Walnut Dining Room Set

If you are fitting out your dining room this spring see us for the most attractive furnishings. The "QUEEN ANN" will set it off.

E. R. KINSEY

St. Joe, Indiana

Coat Dress Is to Be in Lead

The coat dress has long been a rising factor in the wardrobe of the American woman. Those who have worn them have loved them dearly, have known that dresses of this general character could not be duplicated in any way. But their champions have been few and far between until the coming of the present season. Now, observes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times, it looks very much as though the coat dress will lead them all.

For the spring season especially it has many attributes. It is warm enough without being too warm. It has the chic of a certain tailoring without being of too hard and fast a tailor's rule. It is trim looking, and, above all, it is so perfectly suited to all of the city outdoor activities which are so prevalent at just this season.

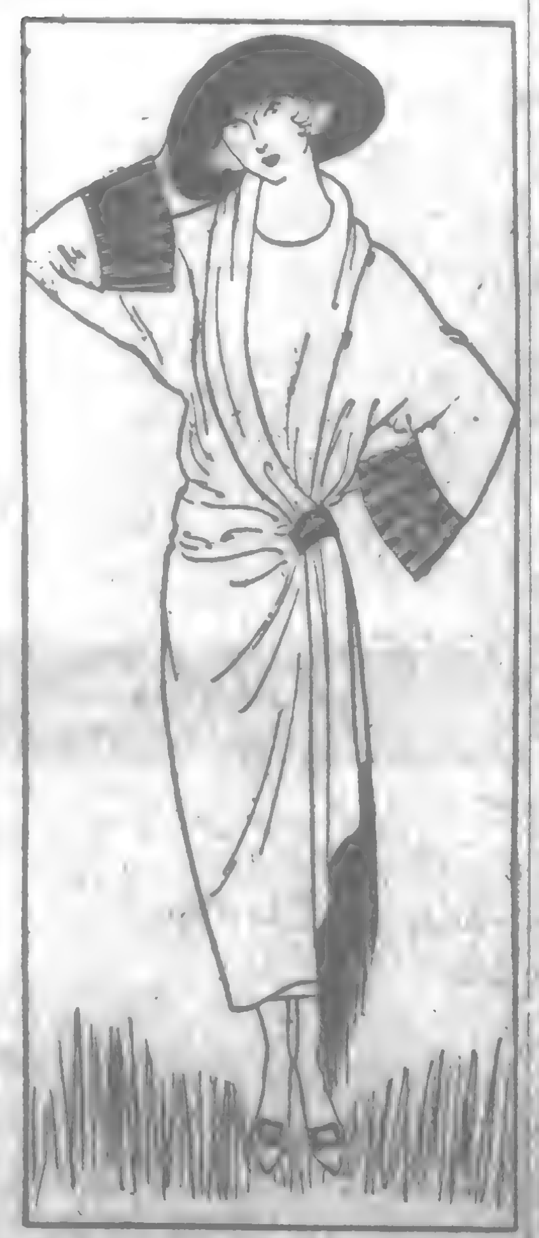
Then, there are many and various materials from which the coat dress can be made. It is as good in twill as it is in duvetyn. It is excellent in homespun, and it finds one of its finest expressions in some of the heavier silks. In fact, it offers the well dressed woman an opportunity to show her talent for dressing without any exterior coverings to mar the general effect.

As the openings of American designers show their newer creations to the world, more and more of this type of street frocks are to be seen, and from the enthusiasm of the women who are looking at them with a view to buying there seems to be no doubt that they will be eminently successful.

Does Not Require Tailor.

The coat dress is something which does not necessarily require a tailor to make satisfactorily. It is a dress which a clever dressmaker can do quite as well, and for that reason, it is often more becoming than the tailored suit of harder lines and more visible stitching. Also the fabrics for coat dress being of the softest possible texture, they then fall more closely in harmony with the lines of the figure and help a woman to appear at her most graceful best.

There is a coat dress made of satin and duvetyn, the upper section being composed of the former material and the lower of the latter. Then you can see at a glance how cleverly the ends of the full, puffed sleeves have been handled in order to repeat the heavier fabric there and to carry out the simplicity of the design of the coat. The color of this particular coat dress was dark blue, the upper section being of that same tone. Then the satin of that bodice portion was carried down underneath the skirt section to make its lining. The lining was carried out to the very edge, so that when the skirt of the dress bobbed back and forth as its wearer walked along the street there appeared now and again that shiny glint of the satin that gave the frock lightness and ease and a decided gracefulness.



Striped Lining of Coat Dress Comes Through to Form Wide Cuffs.

The neck of this dress is one of those exaggerated bateau lines that are allowed to stand straight around the throat. And in this case the [illegible] which gives that "snappy" little air so necessary to the smartest dressing of the season.

[illegible]

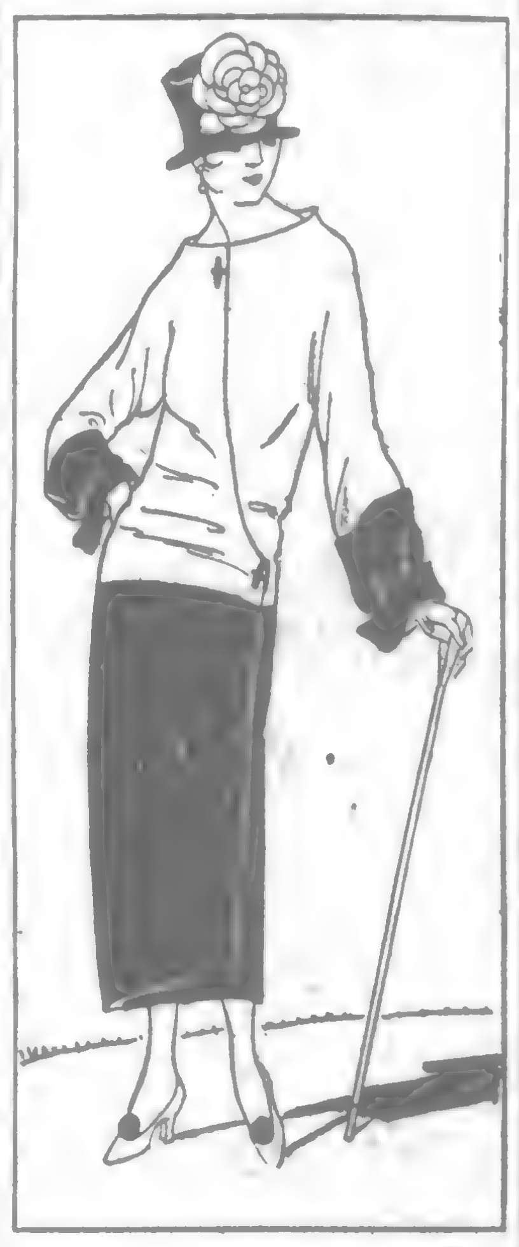
Into many of the coat dresses the general tendency for draping has been carried with a great deal of success. And this idea is perfectly illustrated by another coat dress made of a taupe-colored wool velours, in the lightest of its weights. Of course this material drapes better than any other woolen fabric, and it is no wonder that the designer has chosen it to carry out this model. Much in the manner of the draped afternoon and evening frocks, this coat dress has been wrapped around the figure until it has achieved a shape that is entirely consistent with the figure that wears it. The coat has that surplice, fichu line with a rolling collar carrying out the outline, and it ends in a bunch of draping over one hip where the fastening is marked by a brilliant green jade buckle. The fringing at the lower ends of the drapery is of the same shade of taupe from which the dress is made.



An Interesting Coat Dress Constructed of Blue Duvetyn and Satin.

The lining of this coat dress is, perhaps, its most interesting feature. It is composed of a striped silk in colors of gold and green, with many varying shades of these tones woven into the pattern. The design takes a naive turn when the lining suddenly appears from its hiding place and proceeds to constitute the lower sections of the sleeves in lieu of large and spreading cuffs.

Ready for Wear at Any Time.

Women who have succumbed to the coat dress are stating positively that they like it better for street wear than any other sort of costume. They say it means so much to have one garment do the whole trick. They like the idea of having only to adjust one set of hooks and eyes, one set of one collar and one snap at the waistline before their dressing operations are complete. You know there is a great deal in that, especially if you happen to be busy all day long and when the elimination of labor in your dressing becomes something to be striven for.

A dress of this sort, once it has been completed by a designer who knows his business, is ready for wear at any moment, and with the minimum amount of toil it can be snapped into place with no trouble about collars and cuffs or waists and skirts or any of those nuisances to which women have become so accustomed that sometimes they fail to see how possible it is to do without them.

A French dress made in this coat dress manner had the interesting design of a simple chemise dress. Of course it had tremendous sleeves to make it look more like the thing it was, but other than that it was every resemblance to the [illegible] which has had its [illegible] through so many changes and [illegible]

[illegible]

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Teacher of English Bible in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union.

LESSON FOR APRIL 23.

UZZIAH'S PRIDE AND PUNISHMENT.

LESSON TEXT.—II Chron. 26:1-21.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Pride goeth before destruction and an haughty spirit before a fall.—Prov. 16:18.

REFERENCE MATERIAL.—Num. 12:1-15; Deut. 8:11-14; II Kings 5:20-27; Dan. 4:28-33.

PRIMARY TOPIC.—The Story of a Proud King.

JUNIOR TOPIC.—A Man Who Forgot God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—"Pride Goeth Before Destruction."

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—The Perils of Prosperity.

I. Uzziah Made King (vv. 1-5).

1. His Age (v. 1). He became king at the age of sixteen.

2. Length of His Reign (v. 3). He reigned fifty-two years. His mother's name was Jecoliah, which means "Jehovah is able," or "Made strong of Jehovah."

3. His Character (v. 4). He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord.

4. His Prosperity (v. 5). He definitely sought God while Zechariah lived, and because he sought him God made him to prosper as long as he continued to seek him. He, like Joash before him, turned aside when the influence of the man of God was removed.

II. Uzziah's Achievement (vv. 6-15).

1. He Built Eloth (v. 2). This was a port on the Red sea which had been lost to Judah. No doubt it was the aim of the father to get possession of this port, so the son makes its restoration his first duty. It was an important trading point and the commercial interests of the nation would be greatly increased by its possession.

2. He Had Military Success (vv. 6-8). (1) He conquered the Philistines (v. 6). After subduing them he dismantled their fortified cities and built new cities in their stead. (2) He defeated the Arabians (v. 7). (3) He made the Ammonites across the Jordan pay tribute (v. 8).

3. He Fortified Jerusalem (vv. 9-15). He took advantage of the peace which was now enjoyed because of the subjugation of his enemies to fortify Jerusalem. He placed in the towers great engines of war for hurling stones.

4. His Civic Improvements (v. 10). In the regions south and west of Jerusalem he built towers which served a threefold purpose, namely: observation, defense and shelter for his cattle. This enabled him to carry on his stock-raising enterprises.

5. His Army (vv. 11-15). It numbered 307,500. It was thoroughly equipped and drilled. God was with him, and his fame spread far and wide. The source of his strength was God.

III. Uzziah's Transgression (vv. 16-18).

The prosperity bestowed upon him by the Lord was too much for him—his heart was lifted up with pride. This is always so unless counteracted by divine grace. In his pride he presumptuously intruded into the priest's office. This act was not because of forgetfulness, but of deliberate purpose. Azariah and eighty other priests remonstrated with him, but this only made him angry. This act was a trespass against God.

IV. Uzziah's Punishment (vv. 19-21).

While raging in his wrath and about to burn incense he was smitten with leprosy, a dreadful, incurable and unclean disease. This judgment came upon him as a consequence of his overweening pride and vanity. He was thrust out of the sanctuary—excluded from God's house. Indeed, his own conscience smote him, and he hurriedly went out because he knew that the Lord had smitten him. He not only was excluded from the place of worship, but was dethroned. His son Jotham was made regent. His judgment was:

1. Sudden. The Lord smote him while acting as priest, with censer in hand. Frequently God's judgments are speedy. 2. Severe. The leprosy broke forth upon his forehead. The same judgment [illegible]

[illegible]

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

PERCY PORCUPINE

"I have a stronger tail than Willie Woodchuck," said Percy Porcupine, "and altogether I am a stronger animal. I have a nice blunt nose and I'm a good climber, too."

"What has a blunt nose to do with being a good climber?" asked Peter Porcupine.

"Nothing much," said Percy. "I only mention both those facts in case any one is interested. I am certainly a sensible animal.

"I would be very foolish, indeed, if I didn't wear my suit of quills.

"I wouldn't be able to protect myself at all. When creatures see my quills they are frightened and that is a good thing. I must frighten creatures or they might hurt me. When they see my quills sticking out they think I am a fearful looking animal.

"Ah, it is well to be protected.

"I am so glad that in the Porcupine world it is the fashion to wear quills. I don't know what I'd do if another fashion should come in.

"Just suppose a fashion came in of wearing silk or muslin or something equally foolish! That would be dreadful."

"Of course it would be," said Peter Porcupine, "but you needn't worry about that, for no such fashion will come in.

"No porcupine would be foolish enough to take up such a fashion if it did start, and what is more, no porcupine would be so foolish as to start such a fashion.

"If the fashion came in with other animals it wouldn't make any difference to us. And we wouldn't have to pay any attention to it. If a porcupine should start such a fashion it might be different.

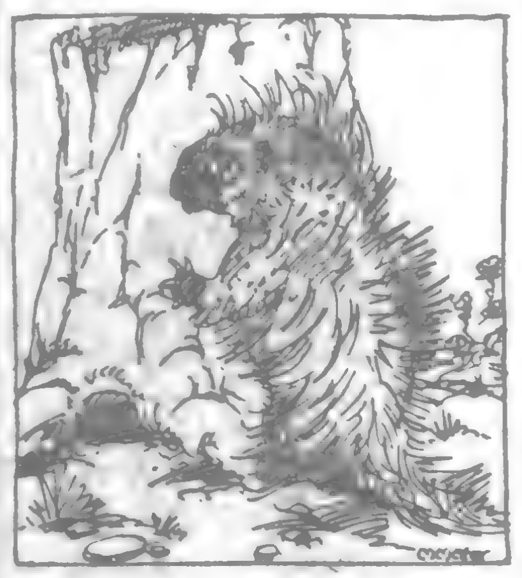
"But, as I said before, no porcupine will do such a thing. We don't change our styles all the time. In fact we don't change at all.

"That is where the Porcupine family is so sensible. When we're suited, we're suited. We don't get our suits from the shops and then say after we have them home:

"'Oh dear, now I wish I'd ordered that blue and green suit which was hanging next to this one.'

"We never say anything like that!

"In the first place there are no porcupine shops and in the second place we'd never go to them if there were.



"Fearful Looking Animal."

"We have too much sense for that, and we're pleased with the suits we have always worn. Why change when one is satisfied?

"There is no sense in doing such a thing and so we don't.

"Very sensible of us."

"Very sensible, indeed," said Percy Porcupine. "Oh, I love these woods up here where people so seldom come. I don't mind people and I wouldn't hurt them, but I like to be away where it is quiet.

"I would never do for a city life. Dear me, no. Even a small town wouldn't suit me. Do you suppose I'd care to walk about the streets and wave my tail as a dog would do when he met his friends? Not much. I wouldn't do that. I would be very unpopular in a town or a city and I wouldn't be happy there at all.

"Now, a dog is quite different. They are sociable. But when they try to make friends with us we don't make friends with them.

"Perhaps I shouldn't say they try to make friends with us, for they don't. They want to chase us and we make them nervous and upset and they can't keep away from us. And then we stick our quills into them [illegible]

[illegible] keep away from us if they don't want to be hurt.

[illegible] in the quiet woods [illegible] ever [illegible] the woods near [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

She Knows

"I am a Domestic Science Graduate and a chemical student from the ——Normal School. After making the experiment testing various baking powders I never use any except the Royal." Mrs. J. P.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

Contains No Alum Leaves No Bitter Taste

Send for New Royal Cook Book—It's FREE

Royal Baking Powder Co., 130 William St., New York

Bird Talk.

"Am I tweet?" twittered she.

"You are tweet," gurgled he.

"Tweet?"

"Tweet."

"A fine pair of birds," commented an old bachelor who overheard.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Attentive Listener.

"I hope you were a nice girl at the party, Dorothy, and paid attention to what was said."

"Oh, yes, mamma. I listened all the evening to one person talk."

"Who was talking?"

"I was."

BOTH BEAR THE GOODYEAR NAME

One of the tires shown above is the famous 30 x 3½ inch Goodyear All-Weather Tread Clincher.

By long wear, superior traction and freedom from skidding, and low final cost, this tire has won unquestioned leadership in its field.

Alongside it is illustrated its companion, the 30 x 3½ inch Goodyear Cross Rib.

Both these tires are built in a factory devoted exclusively to manufacturing Goodyear Tires for small cars.

More than 5,000,000 of the Goodyear non-skid tires have been sold in the last five years.

Built of the same high grade Egyptian cotton fabric that goes into the All-Weather Tread Goodyear, with a long-wearing but differently designed tread, they have given remarkable service.

Their quality and serviceability have proved to thousands of car owners the folly of buying unknown and unguaranteed tires of lower price.

Ask your Goodyear Service Station Dealer to explain their advantages.

30x3½ Cross Rib Fabric . . .	$10.95
30x3½ All-Weather Fabric .	14.75
30x3½ All-Weather Cord . .	18.00
30x3½ Heavy Tourist Tube .	2.80
30x3½ Regular Tube	2.25

Manufacturer's tax extra

GOODYEAR

DON'T LET THAT COUGH CONTINUE!

Spohn's Distemper Compound

will knock it in very short time. At the first sign of a cough or cold in your horse, give a few doses of "SPOHN'S." It will act on the glands, eliminate the disease germ and prevent further destruction of body by disease. "SPOHN'S" has been the standard remedy for DISTEMPER, INFLUENZA, PINK EYE, CATARRHAL FEVER, COUGHS and COLDS for a quarter of a century. On sale at all drug stores in two sizes.

SPOHN MEDICAL COMPANY GOSHEN, INDIANA

There's Still the Necklace.

Till—I hear that London society women have discarded the tiara.

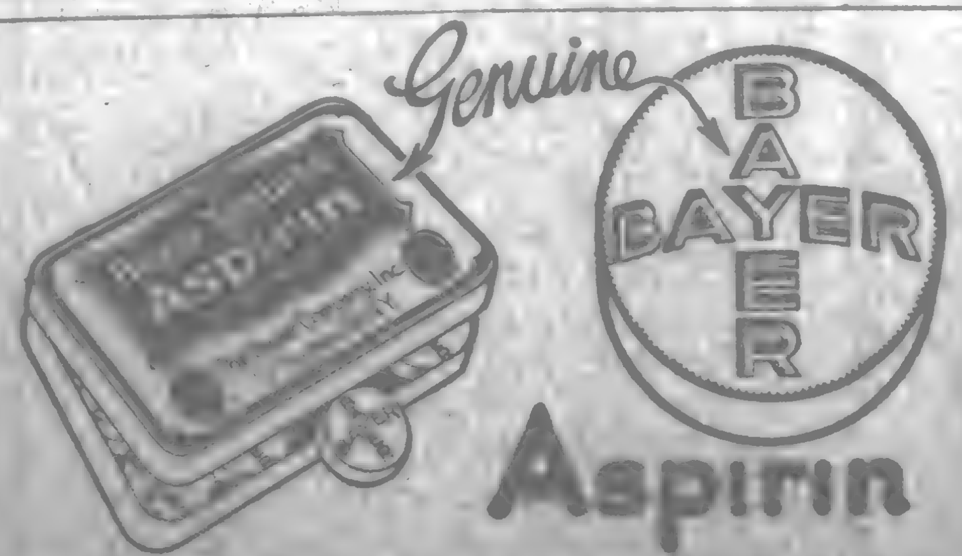
Phil—Shocking. There's not much more to go now.—New York Sun.

Some may be content to do the chores of the world who are aggravated by their own.

No End to It.

"I'm tired of living." "What's the trouble?" "It isn't the trouble. It's the expense."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Youth accepts the world unthinkingly. Age has to summon philosophy to do it.



WARNING! Say "Bayer" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians over 21 years and proved safe by millions for

Headache Colds [illegible]

Toothache Neuralgia [illegible]

Earache Lumbago Pain, Pain

[illegible]

APRIL

SURE TO HELP SICK WOMEN

Mrs. Baker, So Much Benefited by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Anxious to Help Others

Lebanon, Indiana.—"I was completely run down from women's troubles and stomach trouble and for a long time was hardly able to do my work. I had some friends who had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they told me about it. I know what it has done for me and I recommend it to others, as I am sure it will be a great help to all sick women. It is a wonderful medicine, and I give you permission to use my testimonial and my photograph."—Mrs. EMMA BAKER, 310 S. East St., Lebanon, Indiana.

These letters recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound ought to convince women of the great worth of this medicine in the treatment of ailments to which they are often subject.

Mrs. Baker calls it "a wonderful medicine." If you are suffering from troubles women often have, or feel all run down, without any ambition or energy for your regular work, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is a natural restorative and should help you as it has Mrs. Baker and many, many other women.

Millions Every Year End Stomach Trouble
By Taking
TANLAC
25,000,000 Bottles Sold

Women Made Young

Bright eyes, a clear skin and a body full of youth and health may be yours if you will keep your system in order by regularly taking

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

The world's standard remedy for kidney, liver, bladder and uric acid troubles, the enemies of life and looks. In use since 1696. All druggists, three sizes.

Look for the name Gold Medal on every box and accept no imitation

AGENTS—HOUSE TO HOUSE CANVASSERS—Big money selling women new NOTON Stop-run garters. Address EMMA F. BARRI, 134 Livingston St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Big Line—Big Profits Easy Selling toilet preparations. Sample outfit free. Write Emoh Co., Arno Bldg., Cincinnati, O.

Sell Motor Car and Tractor Oils grease, paint specialties. Full or spare time. Samples free. Should have car or rig. The knack of selling will yield desirable earning. THE IVISON COMPANY, CLEVELAND, O.

Girls! Girls!!
Save Your Hair
With Cuticura
Soap 25c, Ointment 25 and 50c, Talcum 25c.

A Friendly Offer.

"I always take a sleeper when I travel."

"Do you? Then you can take the one you will find in my front office. He is no good to me."

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

A Husband's Privilege.

"The cook is leaving us to get married."

"Good. She'll soon know from somebody who won't be afraid to tell her how punk her cooking really is."

Economy is easy when you never have money enough.

Sure Relief
FOR INDIGESTION
[illegible]
BELL-ANS
[illegible]

A QUARANTINED QUARREL

Showing That Love, Not Unlike Other Diseases of a Catching Nature, May Profit by Quarantine.

By ELEANOR PORTER

Author of "Pollyanna," "Just David," Etc.

Copyright by Eleanor H. Porter.

THE airy indifference of the girl's manner and the stilted pomposity of the man's words made the quarrel a comedy; the ache in the girl's heart and the choke in the man's throat made it a tragedy.

Rainsford, his head high, thrust the discarded diamond into his pocket and strode into the hall. It was at that moment that the fussy little doctor from the village came down the stairway.

"There is no doubt, madam," he was saying to Mrs. Kenton, who was close behind him. "It is a well-developed case of diphtheria and the very greatest caution is necessary."

The man in the hall below caught up his hat and stalked to the outer door.

"Here, here, Mr. Rainsford," called the doctor, agitatedly, "you mustn't do that!"

"Mustn't do what?" he demanded, throwing wide the door.

"You mustn't go out, you are quarantined."

"Quarantined!"

"Yes, sir—quarantined," reiterated the doctor. "There is a case of diphtheria upstairs and not a soul can leave this house until—until I give permission."

At Rainsford's dismayed ejaculation Mrs. Kenton came quickly forward.

"My dear boy," she soothed, "don't let it fret you for a moment. We shall be delighted to have you with us. Just think, you will be a regular godsend to us through all these lonely days ahead; and Dorothy—it will be so nice for Dorothy.

"But, Mrs. Kenton, I can't—there are reasons why I—"

Rainsford paused irresolutely.

"Nonsense—not a word! Come—run into the other room to Dorothy."

Hardly conscious of voluntary movement, Rainsford found himself a moment later facing Miss Dorothy Kenton, who sat limp and silent, upon the living room sofa.

"You heard?" he asked.

She nodded her head.

"Pleasant prospect—for you," he observed.

"But what—what are we going to do?" she faltered.

His hands executed an expressive semicircle.

"But it—it's ridiculous," she continued, with some heat. "The idea of our being shut up in the same house in this absurd fashion now; if it had been before, why—" she stopped, her cheeks crimsoning.

For some unaccountable reason his spirits rose.

"Can't help it—it's a case of quarantine," he rejoined.

At that moment Mrs. Kenton came into the room.

"Well, well, children, this is an experience, isn't it?" she exclaimed. "I don't suppose it will trouble you much, though," she went on with a faint smile.

"What did the doctor say of father?" interposed Dorothy, with feverish eagerness.

Mrs. Kenton's face lengthened. "Well, it's diphtheria—and that's bad; still, he says it's a light case. We are fortunate in having Miss Merriman—she's a fine nurse. But I do wish Doctor Kane was here. We've sent for him, however, and if he's in the city he'll surely come. This is the first time anything like this has ever happened when we've taken a cottage at one of these summer places."

"And my being thrust upon you in this absurd fashion is anything but pleasant for you," asserted Rainsford.

"My dear boy," remonstrated Mrs. Kenton, "we're delighted! Of course I shall have to be with Mark more or less, and I fear you two will be left pretty much to your own devices, but I presume—"

"Er—mother," Dorothy broke in hastily, "I can help, you know."

"There's not a thing for you to do, dear, except to make it as pleasant as possible for our captive here.

The house was very quiet when Rainsford came downstairs the next morning. He fingered the books on the center table, picked up a magazine, dropped it, then wandered out to the veranda, which extended around three sides of the house.

"Well, by Jove," he muttered wrathfully, marching to and fro, "I'll stand this thing just one hour longer until I see Mrs. Kenton, then—I'll run for it!"

His feet were brought to an abrupt stop at the extreme end of the veranda where an open door led apparently into the kitchen. Kneeling before the stove was Mrs. Kenton.

"Since when have you been a fire-[illegible]?" he asked.

[illegible]

reaching up and turning the damper in the stovepipe. A minute later, with the aid of some small sticks he had the fire burning briskly. After being assured that the sick man was no worse, Rainsford said:

"Might I inquire—without exceeding the limits of our prescribed fellowship—if this is your usual morning pastime?"

Miss Kenton's eyes flashed and her chin rose perceptibly. "The cook has gone," she replied with some dignity.

"Gone!"

"Yes—ran away in the night—afraid."

"And Nora?"

"Gone!"

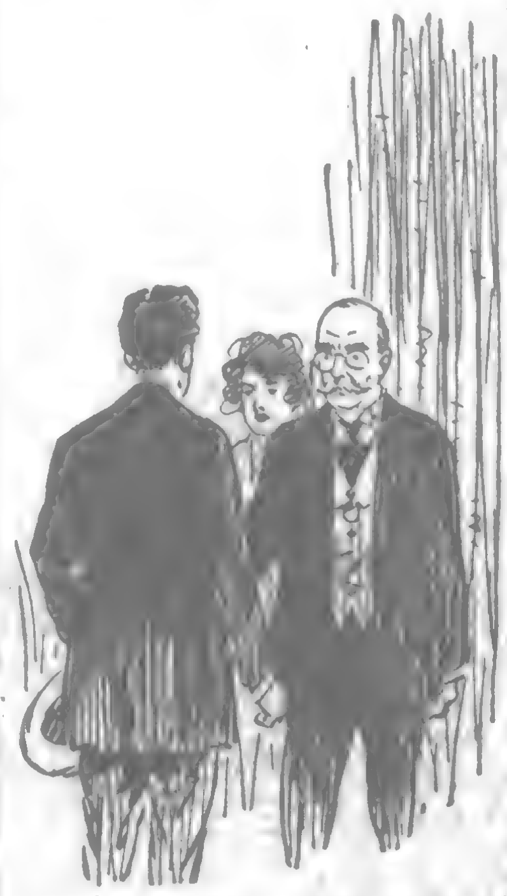
Rainsford gave a sharp ejaculation. "The miserable cowards—to leave you like this! What are you going to do?"

"Do? I'm going to get breakfast—perhaps you'll run now," she finished, something like a twinkle in her eyes.

"You couldn't hire me to," he returned, with a promptness that gave no hint of his recent determination quite to the contrary; then he added: "I can make fine coffee, Dorothy, and—"

"I can get along very nicely by myself, Mr. Rainsford," interposed Miss Kenton, with sudden hauteur.

"Oh—transgressed, that time, didn't I?" murmured Rainsford, cheerfully, with uplifted eyebrows, as he picked up the basket and went out into the shed for more wood. Dorothy looked after him for a helpless moment, turned, and went into the pantry. She was standing irresolutely before the empty bread jar when he came back and peeped in at the door.



"Mustn't—Go—Out!" Returned Rainsford Stupidly.

"Might made a corn cake," he suggested.

"Why, I've forgotten—I did know how once—but there's a rule—it must be somewhere," she replied disconnectedly, poking inquiring fingers into the drawer at her left.

"I know how," announced Rainsford, airily; "still, I'd have to have mother's old dish with the two cracks and a nick in it to tell me how to measure the things," he added with a mischievous glance.

Miss Kenton's back stiffened.

"I learned at cooking school, of course," she began, with some dignity; "but I have not practiced any of the things lately, only rabbits, and creamed things, and a cake now and then— Oh, here's the book!" she finished.

When Miss Kenton came into the kitchen a minute later she found an array of raw beefsteak, cold potatoes, and a cantaloupe on the table.

"Found 'em in the refrigerator," chuckled Rainsford. "I'll broil the meat when the time comes—done it lots of times in camp; I know how to fix the potatoes in great shape, too," he added.

"Oh, that's fine!" cried Dorothy softly, almost clasping her hands [illegible] few minutes later dubiously eying a half-dozen hard brown rings which were draining on a plate.

[illegible]

"Why, what ails them?" she cried.

He shook his head.

"They—they're hard as rocks and flat as pancakes!" she gasped, picking one up and dropping it on the table.

"Perhaps you didn't mix them right."

"I made them straight according to rule," she returned with dignity. "It must have been your frying."

"Oh, but it couldn't have been," he demurred. "I never left them alone a minute. I flopped them over and over all the time."

A peal of laughter interrupted him.

"Oh—oh—you don't mean to say that you stood there and turned those poor things over every second!" she cried, as soon as she could speak. "No wonder their spirits couldn't rise—and just look at your fat! It's so hot it burned up what little life there was left!"

"Dear me, children, what a good time you are having!" called Mrs. Kenton from the doorway. "When one is young and in love one can find enjoyment anywhere."

Dorothy choked into instant gravity, while Rainsford made a low bow.

"I am in disgrace, madam," he said meekly. "I am guilty of too devoted an attendance upon doughnuts and—er—"

"Yes, you are," interrupted Dorothy severely, vanishing into the pantry.

At two o'clock a man from the hotel, in response to Rainford's telephone message, brought a suitcase filled with the various articles he had sent for. The man laid the bag somewhat gingerly down on the extreme end of the walk and hurried away; then Rainsford went down and picked it up.

"How perfectly funny!" exclaimed Dorothy nervously, as he came back to the steps.

"It does seem queer," acknowledged Rainsford.

"Don't you two look contented!" called a merry voice, as three girls stopped at the end of the walk. "How is Mr. Kenton, Dorothy, dear?"

"He is very comfortable," replied Miss Kenton with studied politeness.

"How absurdly idiotic some people can be," observed Dorothy, after a time.

"Very," agreed the man.

Dorothy looked at him sharply; then she sighed and fidgeted in her chair.

"I don't like this deception," she protested.

"No? Then why not tell?"

She gave him a scornful glance.

"As if I could call out across the lawn to those girls: 'We aren't engaged any longer!'"

"Hm-m; well, there's your mother."

Miss Kenton frowned. "She has enough to trouble her now. As things are she'd be dreadfully distressed. I shall have to wait until father is better and you are gone."

"Oh!" murmured Rainsford.

There was a long silence; then Dorothy sprang to her feet. She was almost hysterical with the tension of the last few hours. Things had scarcely improved since the morning. Rainsford had grown quite grave, and scrupulously polite.

"As hostess, I feel it my duty to entertain you," she announced sweetly. "If you'll look under the table on that shelf there you'll find some games. Make your selection and we'll play."

Dr. Kane arrived on the five o'clock train and went directly to the sick room. Fifteen minutes later Mrs. Kenton appeared on the veranda.

"Well, Jack, you are free," she said smilingly.

"Eh—what—how—" stammered Rainsford, growing white and red by turns; there was but one kind of freedom in his mind, and that he had already most unwillingly received at the hands of Dorothy. He glanced at the girl now, but her face expressed only unalloyed joy.

"You mean the quarantine? It's over?" she asked eagerly.

Mrs. Kenton nodded. "Yes; that fussy little doctor was all wrong. It's not diphtheria at all, and your father will be all right in a few days."

"How perfectly glorious!" cried Dorothy. "I never believed father was very sick. Now we'll go off—let's see, what shall we do—ride?"

Rainsford caught his breath. "Yes; or we might go on the lake," he said, in a voice that he tried to make diplomatically unconcerned.

"Or we could play golf!"

"Hm-m; or we've got just time to see the sunset from Peak's hill," he further suggested, with a swift sidelong glance at her face.

"Just the thing after being cramped up all day! I'll get into my walking skirt in no time." And she hurried through the hall door after her mother. The next minute she was back with a dismayed face.

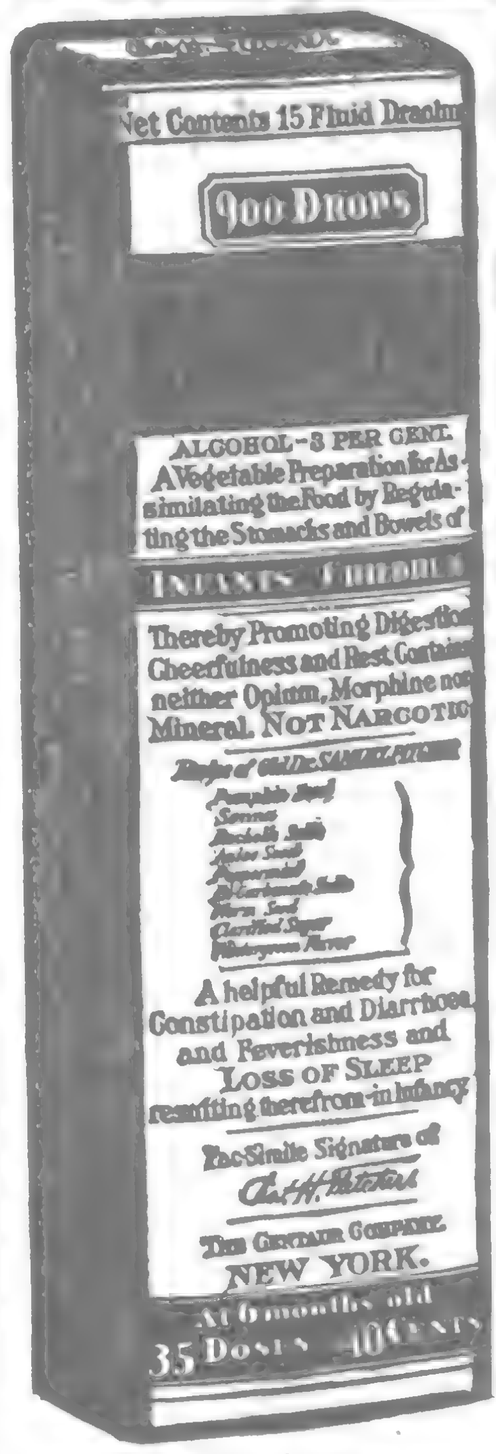
"Why, I—I forgot!" she faltered.

"Forgot? Forgot what?" he asked [illegible]

"That we—er—that things weren't [illegible]."

"[illegible] a little thing like [illegible]

[illegible]



CASTORIA

For Infants and Children.

Mothers Know That Genuine Castoria Always Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. In Use For Over Thirty Years

CASTORIA

Exact Copy of Wrapper.

THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Something Suitable.

"They say music helps housework."

"Well, put something stirring on the graphophone. I'm making batter."

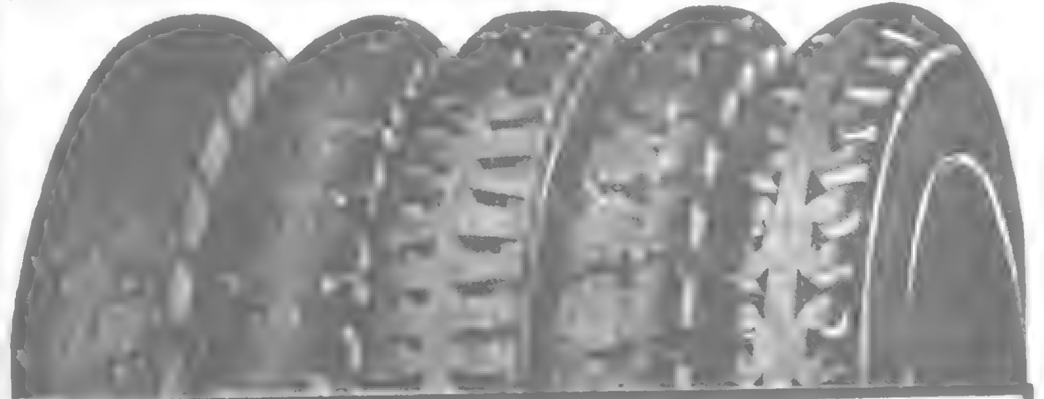
He who makes it his law to do what he likes will not always like what he has done.

Hardly That.

"And avoid all sweet things."

"Hey, doc, do you mean to say I can't go to see my best girl?"

Men's right are conserved fairly well; it is their privileges that are taken away from them.



CHAIN TIRE STORES

We Are Ready to Open a World Tire Store in This Town

World Tire Stores are the greatest and fastest growing chain of tire stores in the country today. The demand for tires from our chain of stores has grown so rapidly that whenever a new World Tire Store is opened it means a tremendous influx of business the very first week with earnings for the operators from $4,000 to $18,000 per year.

When you become an operator of a World Tire Store your business is linked to the greatest chain of retail tire stores in the world and is backed by a $1,500,000 corporation. You own the business, manage your own store and retain all the profits, but you are guided and assisted by trained tire men, able merchandisers and expert advertising men who concentrate their combined ability on the one idea of increasing your sales and profits and making you a big success in business.

You do not need experience. All you have to have is a desire to co-operate, good judgment, enjoy a good reputation and have at least $500 to open your store and support it. If you can qualify we do the rest. Write today for full details.

A CHAIN OF STORES from COAST TO COAST
WORLD TIRE STORES
Executive Offices 1508 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago

Western Canada Offers Health and Wealth

and has brought contentment and happiness to thousands [illegible] who have [illegible] FREE homesteads or bought land at [illegible] prices. They have established their own [illegible] secured prosperity and independence. [illegible] sections of the prairie [illegible] there is still to be had on easy terms

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 an Acre

[illegible]

E-Z STOVE POLISH
[illegible]

Sunday School Report.

The following is a true and correct report of the various Sunday Schools in this neighborhood for last Sunday.

Christian	109	$16.27
M. P.	107	30 57
Lutheran	125	8.10
M. E. Spencer	92	6 06
Lutheran	93	5 41
Coburntown	76	5 68
Newville U. B.	79	3.59
Concord	51	2.26
Rehoboth	83	10 40

Coburn Corners

Victor Dermott and mother were afternoon callers at the Will Maxwell home, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Sommers entertained William Quance and Miss Martha Moon at dinner, Sunday.

The Clyde Mason and Fred Donley families were dinner gcests at the Ella Wilmot home, Sunday.

The Easter program given at the church was very successful. Each number was interesting and very creditably rendered.

Mrs Lee Tustison and son Keith, of Defiance, O., were guests of Mr and Mrs. Chas. Tustison, last week.

Pickles will be a good thing to raise this year. Contract now. Only those can raise pickles for the salting station who sign a contract.

The Fred Hart family, Mrs. Clyde Hart, Mrs. Milo Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Reed Place. Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Coburn and Miss Minnie Walker attended the funeral of Mrs. Sarah Wade at Spencerville, Sunday afternoon.

Little Miss Margaret Price will render a solo at the towhship S. S. convention at Spencerville, Sunday representing Coburntown in special music. Miss Bernice Hart will direct the song service in the afternoon.

Death came suddenly to Mrs Sarah Jane Wade, last Friday, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. A Coburn. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon, at the Methodist Church at Spencerville Interment was made, also, at that place. The Coburn family are but recent occupants of the George Wade farm having removed here from Auburn.

The R.-H. C. was entertained by Mrs. Matie Gee, last Thursday afternoon. Two guests, Mrs. Will Price and Mrs. J. S. Kain were present After the business session, a pleasant social hour was enjoyed, and a fine lunch served, consisting of pink and white cake, raspberries with whipped cream, sliced cucumbers, pickled eggs, cinnamon rolls and tea. Mrs. Clyde Hart will be hostess at the next meeting.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH NOTES

The Christian Endeavor Society will have charge of the regular evening meeting next Sunday night. Special music by the Christian Endeavor orchestra will be gvien. The young people deserve having a large crowd.

The Loyal Sons and Daughters class will hold their regular monthly all day meeting next Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Gee.

The Martha Society will give a bake sale in the E. R. Kinsey Hardware next Saturday afternoon. All the ladies of the church are asked to help.

One hundred nine in Bible school Sunday morning. Immediately after the study hour an Easter program was given which was followed by a brief sermon by Rev. Dailey. Five members of the Bible school united with the church, four by statement, one by confession, the latter being immersed at the close of the service.

The Rev. Mr. Shaw of the Auburn Christian church delivered the Baccalaureate sermon to the graduating class of the High School at the Christian church Sunday evening. The Choral society furnished the music. A large and appreciating audience listened to an inspiring message full of the Easter spirit. The message brought to the young people was [illegible] also, advising them not to stop now their High school days were over but to "Go on."

Bible school next Sunday morning with Charles Lawson as leader of the services, following Communion.

The Martha Society has purchased a new table for the church.

Corunna—A raccoon attacked [illegible]

Notice of Ditch Sale.

State of Indiana, } ss.
DeKalb County, }
Before the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Indiana.
In the Matter of the Petition of Ora D Baker for Change and Repair of Adolphus Widney Drain

Notice is nereby given that the undersigned, superintendent of construction, to whom was assigned the construction of the ditch and drain described in the report of the drainage commissioners in the above entitled petition, will, on the 6th day of May, 1922, at the hour of two o'clock p. m. of said day, at the office of the St. Joe News, in the the town of St. Joe, Indiana, receive bids for the construction of the said proposed ditch.

Said contract will be let to the lowest and best bidder.

The right to reject any and all bids is reserved.

Dated this 18th day of April, 1922.

O. K. Shull,
Superintendent of Construction
of said drain.

Notice of Ditch Assessment.

State of Indiana, } ss:
DeKalb County, }
Befoie the Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Indiana
In the Matter of the Petition of Ora D. Baker for change and repair of the Adolphus Widney Drain.

The undersigned, superintendent of construction, appointed by the said Board of Commissioners of DeKalb County, Indiana, in the above entitled proceedings to construct a certain ditch and drain in the said county of DeKalb as described and reported in the report of the drainage commissioners therein made to the said Board of Commissioners on the 8th. day Mafch, 1922, and confirmed by said court on the 5th day of April, 1922, hereby gives notice to the landowners whose lands are assessed for the construction of said drain that the assessments against said lands and the respective landowners affected thereby are as follows, to wit:–

Ora D. Baker	$285.90
Jacob Krabill and Ruby Krabill	15 00
Henry W. Stroyer	122.10
William M. Malone	66 90
Thomas E. White	42 50
Samuel A. Mumaw	81.00
Byron E. Widney	87.00
Samuel L. Widney	266.15
David L Carpenter	10 80
Ephriam W. Baker	140.00
Frank R. Bowman, Trustee of Concord Civil Township of DeKalb Co., Ind.	80.00

Each of the foregoing persons named as affected and assessed for the construction of the said drain are hereby notified to pay said assessments to the undersigned at The St. Joe Valley Bank, in St. Joe, in DeKalb County, Indiana, and in installments of ten per cent per month, the first of said installments to be paid on or before the 29th., day of May, 1922, and one of said installments to be paid on or before the 29th. day of each and every month thereafter until the whole of said sum of said assessments is paid or until a sufficient amount is paid to construct said drain.

Dated this 18th., day of April, 1922.

O. K. Shull,
Superintendent of Construction
of said drain.

FOR JUDGE OF THE CIRCUIT COURT

DeKALB-STEUBEN COUNTIES

In presenting my name as a candidate for Circuit Judge, at the Republican Primaries, May 2, 1922, I have been impressed that the dignity of that office does not sanction on a "button-hole campaign"; even though available time and highway conditions made it possible for me to personally confer with every voter.

However, I do feel, that above all to know who their candidates for Judge are, and what they stand for. With that object in mind, for the benefit of those who have never met me personally, I wish to announce the following:

I was born in Stark County, Ohio, 1867; graduated from the High School in 1884; and from the Northern Indiana University in 1893.

When fifteen years of age, through force of circumstances, I was thrown upon my own resources. I worked my way through school and college. I taught school twelve years, of which seven years were as superintendent and principal of High Schools.

In 1895, I was admitted to the bar to practice law, at Auburn; later I was admitted to the bar of the Indaina Supreme Court, and to the bar of the Federal Court.

For twenty-seven years I have engaged in the active practice of law at Auburn. During these years I have waged many legal contests; and have built up one of the most lucrative practices, if not the largest, now enjoyed by any attorney in this Judicial Circuit. I have been zealous of the interests of my client, and for a number of years the large per cent of my cases won, has aroused favorable comment from those who have watched my career, and is evidence of my ability to correctly interpret the law.

I have never been a "policy man," but I have aimed to maintain the courage required to do my duty regardless of selfish interests. I have taken an active part in problems of community welfare, and in the work of the church, Y. M. C. A., Commercial Club, and schools. The official positions in these organizations, entrusted to me, is evidence of the confidence reposed in me by friends who know me best.

For the past four years I have been president of the Auburn School Board. I entered upon that service at a time when finance problems, presented, appeared almost unsurmountable. Today the people of Auburn point with pride to their splendid new High School building, completed, and the rapid advancement and the high rank attained by our schools during these four years.

If elected Judge, I pledge my earnest effort to do my duty. I courteously invite your careful scrutiny of my fitness for Judge, and your active support.

Respectfully,
J. E. POMEROY.

Republican Candidate

FOR AUDITOR

OF DEKALB COUNTY

14 years a resident and merchant of Auburn.
A University student in accounting and auditing!

H. Lee Lawrence

solicits your support on the grounds of EFFICIENCY Primary, May 2

MONTE L. GREEN

[illegible]

COUNTY TREASURER

FOR PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

H. C. SPRINGER

Candidate for the Republican Nomination for, PROSECUTING ATTORNEY, 35th Judicial District, DeKalb and Steuben counties.

Born at Huntington, Ind., 1894

Received law education at the University of Indiana.

Served with U. S. troops on the Mexican border in 1916.

Enlisted as a private in World's War, and served overseas and discharged as a captain of infantry.

Has practiced law at Garrett for the past three years.

Your support will be appreciated

For Prosecuting Attorney

CHARLES S. SMITH

Candidate for the Republican nomination for Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit, DeKalb and Steuben counties, subject to primaries May 2nd.

Graduate of Indiana Law School.

Admitted to bar in 1900; also a member of bar of Supreme Court of Indiana, and Federal Court and the United States Circuit Court.

Has been in the active practice of law in Auburn, DeKalb county, Indiana, for over twenty years, and served as Prosecuting Attorney of the 35th Judicial Circuit of Indiana for four years.

Received education in the common schools of Indiana and the Indiana State Normal and taught eight years in the public schools of Indiana.

For Recorder

Please announce my candidacy for the democratic nomination for county recorder, subject to the primary, May 2nd.

Byron Platt,
Franklin Township.

For Sheriff

I desire to announce through the News that I am a candidate for nomination for county sheriff on the democratic ticket, subject to the will of the voters at the primaries on May 2.

I acted as deputy sheriff under Frank Baltz for 4 years to the satisfaction and good of the county.

My home prior to my appointment to public life was in Jackson township. Your hearty support will be greatly appreciated.

Charles Davis, Auburn.

For Recorder

[illegible] for the republican nomination for recorder of DeKalb county at the primaries, May 2nd.

FOR COMMISSIONER.

[illegible]

Constipation

THERE IS NOTHING equal to Chamberlain's Tablets for constipation. When the proper dose is taken their action is so agreeable and so natural that you do not realize that it is the effect of a medicine. These tablets possess tonic properties that aid in establishing a natural and regular action of the bowels. Chamberlain's Tablets have cured many cases of chronic constipation.

Chamberlain's Tablets

Wm. P. Endicott,

For Judge 35th Judicial District,

DeKalb and Steuben Counties, Republican Ticket. Subject to Primaries, May 2nd.

Born in Cass county, Indiana, 41 years ago.

Raised on a farm

Taught ten years in Indiana public schools.

Received law education at Indiana University, paying his own way.

Has actively practiced law in DeKalb and Steuben counties for 12 years, a longer period than many judges have practiced before occupying such positions.

Makes no claim and no boast of greatness, but refers you to those who know him as to his integrity and ability.

Your support will be appreciated.

FOR COUNTY AUDITOR.

I wish to announce to the voters that I will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for county auditor, subject to your will at the May primaries. L. W. Yeiser.

For Auditor.

I wish to announce that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for auditor of DeKalb county at the Primary May 2nd. Your support will be appreciated.

W. G. Erick.

For Sheriff

I desire to inform the public that I am a candidate on the democratic ticket subject to their nomination for sheriff of DeKalb county in the May Primary. Your support will be appreciated.

Grover C. Sapp.

For Recorder.

George J. Kayser of Auburn announces his name for the democratic nomination for Recorder of DeKalb county at the primaries, May 2, 1922.

For Sheriff

I will be a candidate for sheriff of DeKalb county, subject to the wishes of the voters of the democratic ticket at the primary, May 2

Dallas Trevey, Auburn, Ind.

For Assessor

My name has been solicited for assessor of Spencer township on the democratic ticket, subject to the primary May 2d, 1922. Your support will be appreciated.

McClellan Hart

For County Commissioner

Through the earnest solicitation of my friends I have decided to become a candidate for the Republican nomination for a member of [illegible] from the [illegible]

For Sheriff.

I wish to announce to the readers of the News in DeKalb county that I am a candidate for sherifi subject to the wishes of the democratic voters at the primary, Tuesday, May 2nd.

William G. Morr.

For Recorder

Please announce that I am a candidate for the democratic nomination for county recorder, subject to the wishes of the voters at the primary, May 2.

A. V. Smith.

For Trustee Concord Twp.

I wish to announce to all the men and women voters of Concord Township that I am a candidate for the Democratic nomination for trustee, subject to your decision in the primary, May 2nd.

Ray D. Herrick.

For Assessor

I wish to announce my name as a candidate for the democratic nomination of county assessor at the primaries on May 2nd.

Francis M. Wiltrout.

For Recorder

I am a candidate for the republican nomination for county recorder, from Grant township. Your support will be appreciated.

Mrs. Mary Miser.

For Representative.

Vote for Cleve H. Grube of Stafford township for nomination for state representative on the democratic ticket in the primary May 2. He will appreciate your support.

F. B. Smith

the candidate for the state legislature was born in Concord township. He was a blacksmith, in partnership with Jacob Baltz of Spencerville for 15 years. He is the father of three sons, all of whom served in the World's War with U. S. forces, two serving 28 months and one 15 months, and for this reason he will take his hat off to no man.

Mr. Smith moved to the farm where he now lives, two miles south of Garrett, in 1913, and has been very successful in farming.

Mr. Smith solicits your support in his nomination for state representative from DeKalb county on the democratic ticket, May 2nd.

Garrett—Earl Shull, Baltimore & Ohio patrolman, was found dead five miles west of Bremen early last Monday morning. It is a mystery whether he met his death by accident or by foul play. Mr. Shull had been employed in the Baltimore & Ohio police department for the past year. Until about three weeks ago he lived in Auburn, but moved to Garrett and with his family resided on North Randolph street. He was thirty-two years old.

ONION SEED!
Southport Yellow Globe.
--Also--
Field and Garden SEEDS

Yesbera Coal Co.
Auburn, Indiana

APRIL

In the First Place save

Then you have the right to Spend

Get the habit of saving something Each Week

Saving with an object in view is a splendid duty.

We will aid you to realize
your ambition by starting now with us

A Saving Account

you will be proud of.

START A BANKING ACCOUNT
NOW

Farmers' & Merchants' State Bank

Capital Stock, - $25,000

Spencerville, Ind.

SPENCERVILLE

Mrs. Winnie Shook and two sons have had the mumps lately.

Born, to Kenneth Miller and wife a son.

Are you going to raise pickles this year? Get your contract at the News Office.

Orla Woodring and family of Newville were Monday guests of the James Vallieu home.

Beeks Erich, wife and son William were entertained at an Easter dinner at the home of the lady's parents, W. S. Tyndall and wife.

For good glasses see Griest at American Building Hicksville, Ohio.

Fred High, who has been quite ill, was able to return to work last Monday morning.

Joel Bets and wife spent Sunday the guests of the former's brother, John Bets and wife of St. Joe.

Edward Billman and wife were Sunday guests of the former's sister and husband, Arthur Steward and family of Auburn.

Miss Dora Hahn was a last Sunday dinner guest; Mrs. Catherine Ebingee and son Paul of Ft. Wayne were afternoon guests at the R. U. Bowser home.

Conkey's
BUTTERMILK
STARTING FEED

Conkey's Is Different—No Dried Buttermilk

[illegible] THE ORIGINAL Conkey process of combining them [illegible] produces such wonderful results.

We also have Conkey's Feeders,
Roup Remedies, White Diarrhea
Remedies, Lice Powders,
Poultry Tonic, Noxicide.
SPRAYERS

Remember we carry a full line of CONKEY'S Buttermilk Feed and [illegible]

[illegible]

B. A. Rhodes and wife spent last Sunday with C. A. Rhodes' family.

Mrs. Sophia Miller is spending a few days at the home of Kenneth Miller and family.

A marriage license was issued to Mr. Orville Smith and Miss Ethel Dwyer at Ft. Wayne on Saturday.

Mrs. Jos. Webb was an Easter guest for dinner with John Shilling and family.

Jason Kees and wife of Ft. Wayne were Sunday guests of Wm. Allen and family.

Miss Minnie Walker was a Friday night guest in the F. W. Silberg home.

Ed Cutler, wife and son, and Hort Squire were recent guests at the home of Mrs. Cora Steward and family.

Preparations are being made to organize a girl sewing club in this vicinity. Girls of ages from 10 to 15 years are invited.

When planning your truck patch don't forget to include a patch of pickles. They are well worth considering.

Mrs. Mary Zimmerman returned home on Saturday after spending a few days visiting her sister at Fort Wayne.

Dr. and Mrs. F. W. Silberg and daughter, and Herman Reasoner, were guests of friends at Ft. Wayne last Friday.

Wesley Hart and wife, Wilmot Coburn and wife of Coburntown, were Sunday guests at the home of Vern Wilmot and wife.

Rev. and Mrs. Linstrone and daughter were last Sunday dinner guests at the home of Clyde Rectenwal and family.

Earl Stiman, wife and children, Ray Zimmerman, wife and son, Miss Bertha Thornburg and Mrs. John Haifley were Sunday guests at the home of Wesley Zimmerman and family.

Rev. Mr. Uphoff and family will move on Thursday to their new appointment at Arcola. Rev. Brewster delivered his first sermon at the Methodist church Sunday morning. He will move in the near future.

Jelf Bird of Butler and Harvey Beam and wife were Sunday dinner guests at the home of Wm. Lucas and wife, and Rev and Mrs. Uphoff and children were supper guests at the same home.

Solomon Goldsmith was called to the home of his sister, Mrs. Geo. Lochner, of near Leo, by the death of his mother, Mrs. Jos. Goldsmith, on Tuesday night, April 11th. The funeral was held on Thursday at the Leo M. E. church.

The following guests were entertained at the home of Frank Wertman and wife, Sunday, for dinner: Verna Kelley, wife and children, and Vol Hay and wife. Afternoon guests were Mrs. Walter Carr of Auburn; Ray Zimmerman, wife and son, and Earl Stiman.

Miss Fannie Vallieu was able to return to her work at the Hope Methodist hospital on Monday last. Her little brother is getting better. Later report—The little two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Vallieu died at the home in Spencerville at 5 o'clock Tuesday evening. The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon from the M. E. church.

Mrs. Nancy Jane Steward died on Tuesday night, April 11th, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. [illegible] south [illegible]

[illegible]

To Have Radio Phone.

In keeping up with the times Spencerville is to be noted for having a radio outfit installed in one of its business places. F. R. Silberg will have a phone put in his home next Wednesday, and as soon as it is made to operate properly an amplifier will be installed in the office of the Silberg garage where the public will be welcomed to come and hear the reports that come in from various places.

Obituary

Sarah Jane Koch was born in DeKalb county, Indiana, February 23, 1856, and departed this life on April 14, 1922, aged 66 years, one month and 22 days.

She was joined in marriage to Geo. W. Wade, May 7th, 1873, the husband preceding her in death on December 9, 1917. To this union was born 10 children, the first born dying in infancy. Those living are: Mrs. E. G. Scott, Hicksville, Ohio; Mrs. A. H. Cole, Hillsdale, Mich.; Mrs. H. A. Coburn, Auburn, Ind.; Mrs. C. O. Benjamin, Peru, Ind.; Roy, of St. Joe, Indiana; Lloyd, of Spencerville, Ind.; Clifford, Claypool, Ind.; Stearl, living near Hicksville, Ohio. One son, Harry, preceeded the father and mother in death at the age of two years.

About thirty years ago both Mr. and Mrs. Wade joined the M. E. church at Spencerville. During the last five years of her life she was sorely afflicted, which cross she bore with patience to the end.

She is survived by four sons, four daughters, 25 grandchildren, one great-grandson, one sister, Mrs. Samantha Volkert, one brother, Albert Koch, with other relatives and friends.

Funeral services were held from the M. E. church of Spencerville, interment being made in the White City cemetery, Rev. Uphoff officiating, with E. R. Kinsey funeral director.

Spencer Twp. Convention

AFTERNOON SESSION, APRIL 23.
Spencerville Lutheran Church,
2 o'clock.

Song service . . . . Miss Hart
Devotional . . . . Chas. Watson
Special music . . . Coburntown S. S.
Address . . . . Rev. Mr. Steffy
Report of Nominating Committee.
Report of Township Officers.
Song. Benediction.

EVENING SESSION, M. E. CHURCH,
7:30 o'clock.

Song service . . . . Mrs. Wade
Devotional . . . . Clyde Hart
Special music . . . . Ladies' Quartette
Address . . . . F. Brewster
Special music . Lutheran Sun. school
Reports. Benediction.
M. H. Howey, President.
Miss Ailien Allen, Secretary.

C. R Baumgartner, D V M

Veterinarians

OFFICE and HOSPITAL
SPENCERVILLE, - IND.
Phones—Office No. 7

F W Silberg, D V M

Ford size Batteries

It is always advisable to keep your BATTERIES in the best of repair.

Exchange your old one for a new one. We give you a new wood case set for your old one and $16.00

An all Rubber case set for your old one and $20.00.

These Batteries are guaranteed.

Watch for our RADIO PHONE Announcement!
We are going to sell outfits soon. Radio is all the go, now.

F. W. SILBERG,
Spencerville, - Indiana

--WINDOW SEATS--

WHERE do you keep your overshoes and nice little empty boxes, and the toys the children have outgrown?

In that window seat in the dining room?

A nice wide seat clear across the end of the room, right under the windows, will provide a convenient place for the "clutter" and at the same time make a pleasant change in the looks of the whole house.

The seat should have a hinged top so that it can be easily raised. Think what a wonderful place to dump things when company drives up without warning.

Raise the lid, throw everything toward the seat, let the lid down, throw a pillow or two at the thing,- presto, the house is clean.

All of which pleasant and convenient arrangement is not marred by the high prices that sometimes robs us of the joy of living.

There's much to be said on this subject, if you'll just come in and help say it.

Spencerville Lumber Company,
Spencerville, Indiana.

St. Joe Locals

Miss Lenore Moore spent Saturday night and Sunday at her home in Cromwell.

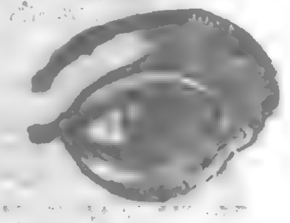
Mrs. J. P. Buckingham spent Monday visiting friends at Huntertown.

Work has begun on the road east and north of town, which will be improved from the creek bridge, east a quarter of a mile, then north for three miles to the township line.

Patronize the advertisers.

Harry Hursh and wife entertained at Sunday dinner, Mrs. Lloyd Miller, of Detroit, A. S. Andress, of Chicago, Howard Northrup and wife, Marsh Andress and wife, Miss Melba Andress, and Clayton Wyatt.

Chiropractor Optician



Calls made at your home by APPOINTMENT.

EARL E. FRISBIE,
Butler, Indiana.

Lehman's CLOTHING HOUSE

[illegible]

APRIL

Storm Country Polly

by Grace Miller White

Illustrated by R. H. Livingstone

Copyright by Little, Brown and Company

"YOU DARLING!"

SYNOPSIS.—Occupying a dilapidated shack in the Silent City, a squatter settlement near Ithaca, New York, Polly Hopkins lives with her father, small Jerry, and an old woman, Granny Hope. On an adjacent farm, Oscar Bennett, prosperous farmer, is a neighbor. He is secretly married to Evelyn Robertson, supposedly wealthy girl of the neighborhood. Marcus MacKenzie, who owns the ground the squatters occupy, is their determined enemy. Polly overhears a conversation between MacKenzie and a stranger, in which the former avows his intention of driving the squatters from his land. The stranger sympathizes with the squatters, and earns Polly's gratitude. Evelyn Robertson discovers from her mother that they are not rich, but practically living on the bounty of Robert Percival, Evelyn's cousin. Polly learns from Evelyn that the sympathetic stranger is Robert Percival. Evelyn charges Polly with a message to Bennett, telling him she can give him no more money. She already bitterly regrets her marriage to the ignorant farmer. Polly conveys her message and Oscar makes threats. He insists Evelyn meet him that night. Polly has her father and Larry Bishop, a squatter, take an oath to do MacKenzie no injury. Evelyn unsuccessfully tries to get money from her mother with which to buy off Bennett and induce him to leave the country, giving her her freedom. She and MacKenzie avow their love. At the arranged meeting that night Bennett threatens Evelyn with exposure unless she gives him money. Polly meets Robert Percival, and they are mutually attracted, Polly's feeling being adoration. Oscar kills Polly's lamb and Percival thrashes Oscar.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

—7—

A sound of boots moving on boards was his only answer. Polly coughed nervously.

"Now this is what I'm going to offer," went on MacKenzie. "No one can make me raise the price one cent. I'll give you men twenty-five dollars apiece; you sign over to me your squatter rights; then take your women and kids and go."

There was not a word in answer to this. Only Wee Jerry felt Daddy Hopkins clasp him tighter.

Realizing that the stony silence that met his offer was practically a refusal, MacKenzie got to his feet.

"You can take it, or—or go to h—l for all I care!" he exclaimed.

He turned toward the door; and then Pollyop got back her breath, and while the squatter men watched sullenly, she stepped in front of him.

"You're in wrong, mister," she flared. "You're d—d generous, ain't you? Twenty-five dollars wouldn't take us anywhere, an' where would we go, anyhow? This ain't movin' day in the Silent City. You've made your talk, now scoot along."

